DECLINES HERO AWARD

Wounded Sergeant Was Not Considered Officer Material by Army

LOUISVILLE, March 8 (AP)—Sgt. Joseph Kusaila, 24, of Waterbury, Conn., has declined to accept a medal for "leadership under fire" after the Army refused to make him a commissioned officer.

In a letter to General Marshall, Chief of Staff, Sergeant Kusaila, who is a patient here at the Army's Nichols General Hospital, said that the officer candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., "washed him out" as officer material on the ground that he "lacked the qualifications of a leader."

Later he went overseas and as he related in his letter when two officers deserted their men and fled in thhe face of enemy fire, he led an assault against enemy positions. Kusaila and his group knocked out four German pillboxes and isolated a fifth, he said, taking more than fifty prisoners.

For this he received the Bronze Star, which he termed in his letter to the Chief of Staff "an ill-conceived sop to my conscience."

The 2,500-word letter was typed with the veteran's left hand while his right, broken and partly paralyzed by a shell fragment, hung in a sling.

Ready For Yank Invasion, Say Japanese

San Francisco, March 8 (AP)—The imperial Japanese high command is awaiting an American invasion of Nippon with the "greatest confidence," the Domei News Agency reported today.

Domei quoted the Tokyo newspaper Asahi as saying the high command had completed plans for defense of the homeland and for "dealing the enemy literally an annihilative blow, thereby securing decisive victory at one stroke."

Navy Reported Ready

The broadcast, heard here, said the Japanese naval force is "being kept in full readiness" to strike "the first decisive blow" before invasion forces can land. "If some enemy forces should escape" they will meet "smashing attacks at the beach lines.

"Should enemy remnants still manage to invade inland," Asahi went on "then our field army in its all-out assault will literally wipe them out."

Sees Supply Difficulties

The broadcast said American invasion forces would meet the same supply problems that have hampered Japanese in defense of islands they have lost."

Domei also reported that the Diet (Parliament) would reconvene on Sunday and Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso would be asked to outline progress in carrying out "decisive war policies," explain "countermeasures being planned for disasters" and the Government's attitude toward the "current situation."

IRAA Poses Questions

The Domei dispatch said the three questions would be asked by a special representative of the Imperial Rule Assistance Political Society, parliamentary wing of the Imperial Rule Assistance Association.

Recall of the Diet after less than a month's recess resulted from agitation for direct assurance of Koiso's "determination to cope with the gravity of the war situation" and for formation of a new totalitarian party to replace the IRAA.

Domei said the Parliament would act on emergency wartime measures after the Government clarifies its wartime policies.

Bataan Heroes Given Welcome On Arrival in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8—(AP) "This makes it all worth while!"

With these few, tear-choked words, Sgt. William Thomas, 48, Bloomsburg, Pa., expressed for nearly all the 272 heroes of Bataan returned here today, the reaction to the open armed, heartfelt and clamorous welcome given them as they steamed through the Golden Gate and into San Francisco.

After three years of imprisonment by the Japanese, they were liberated Jan. 30 by Rangers who broke into the Cabanatuan camp to free all held there.

San Francisco turned out in a tumultuous welcome for the heroes. The harbor was alive with boats, their whistles and sirens screaming, their masts and lines bedecked. Bands played and flags tossed.

Mayor Roger Lapham and Army officers boarded the big transport in the harbor to extend an official welcome.

"Every one of us is glad you're here," the mayor exclaimed. "We will try to make up for the things you have gone through. Thank God you're back."

The liberated soldiers lined the rail as the transport moved to the dock. Many seemed straining to catch sight of a familiar face among the men and women standing on the wharf. Occasionally one would lift a hand to brush away a tear. One lad—he had lost an arm—caught sight of his mother, and she saw him. They waved across the few feet of water that separated them.

"This was worth every day we spent over there," exclaimed Lt. William J. Duncan, quartermaster, of Pelahatchie, Miss. "That day, Jan. 30, when we saw the Rangers, and this day will compete in my heart for the greatest experience in my life."

There was a great cry from the ship of "where's Eleanor? Where's Eleanor?" as the official launch drew alongside the transoprt. The nation's first lady was not on hand, however.

Army officials in charge of the welcoming ceremonies announced that after a checkup by medical officers at Letterman hospital, the men will be outfitted and processed for their furloughs and leaves.

7 Local Men in Group

SAN FRANCISCO, March 8 (AP).—Two New Yorkers and five New Jersey men were among those released from the Japanese prison camp of Cabanatuan who landed from a transport in San Francisco today.

The New Yorkers are Private Carl A. Carleson, of 444 East 149th Street, and Corporal Max M. Greenberg, 1450 Harrod Avenue, the Bronx. Those from New Jersey are First Lieutenant Eugene J. O'Keefe jr., of 224 Walton Road, South Orange; Private Paul M. Browning, 54 Maple Street, Princeton; Private David A. Coull, 412 Main Avenue, Atlantic City; Technical Sergeant Barney Machovic, 40 Paulison Avenue, Ridgefield Park, and Sergeant Leon A. Tice jr., Valley Road Mahwah.

Marines Battle To Edge Of Cliff On Northern Iwo

San Francisco, Friday, March 9 (AP)—The Tokyo radio said today that warships have been bombarding Zamboanga, on the southwest tip of Mindanao Island, in the southern Philippines since early Thursday morning and the bombardment "is believed to be a prelude to a landing attempt."

ARMY PRAISES THE NEW "GI"

"Work - Or - Fight" Inductees Called Good Soldiers

Camp Ellis, Ill., March 8 (AP). Physically deficient "work-or-fight" inductees undergoing specialized training demonstrated today that they can "take it" like good soldiers.

The camp commander, Col. John S. Sullivan, asserted, furthermore, that "they are good soldiers."

Camp Ellis is the only one in the nation where this type of inductee is being trained. They are men under 38 and below physical par for general military service, and who were not in or who left essential jobs, whereupon their local selective service boards drafted them under War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes's "work-or-fight" order.

Can Choose Assignment

During their first ten days here they must choose between volunteering for assignment in essential industry or assignment in the Army. If they elect industry they will be transferred to the Enlisted Reserve Corps, and work in war-production plants at civilian wages. If they then quit or get fired, they will be returned to active army duty. If they choose army service at the outset they will be assigned to work in uniform at army pay in an army-operated arsenal, for example, or will be sent to some other military installation.

Among 50 who have made the choice so far, only eight elected to stay in the Army.

Inductee's Attitude Good

Col. Joseph E. Torrence, director of training, said the trainees' attitude and desire to learn soldiering "is better than the average ordinary inductee." He added that so far no disciplinary action of any kind has been required.

The first eight men completing the four weeks training all qualified as rifle marksmen, two as experts.

Only 164 have reached camp so far from all parts of the country, but more are arriving daily. A training cadre of 235 officers and 600 enlisted men was established, sufficient for 5,000 trainees in two regiments, if necessary.

GRAHAM-PAIGE STRIKE ENDED BY WORKERS

DETROIT, March 8—(AP) Striking employes of the Graham-Paige Motors, Inc., plant here voted this afternoon to return to work Friday morning, but any back-to-work decision by 13,000 Briggs Manufacturing Co. strikers awaited a mass meeting scheduled for Friday night.

The end of the Graham-Paige stoppage was voted at a meeting of Local 142, United Automobile Workers (CIO). Approximately 3,000 were idle in this dispute.

The Briggs workers, members of Local 212, UAW-CIO, who walked out after the management dismissed eight men it accused of inciting previous stoppages, will consider a regional War Labor Board directive ordering them to return to work and the Briggs company to reinstate the eight dismissed men.

The strike started a week ago.

A dispute over plant rules limiting employes' time for washing up to five minutes caused the walkout at Graham-Paige. The strike followed the disciplining of a number of employes the management said left their jobs 15 minutes before quitting time.

Gen. Batista's Wife Visitor In Los Angeles

Los Angeles, March 8 (AP)—Senora Elisa Godinez Batista, wife of Gen. Fulgencia Batista, former President of Cuba, has arrived for a visit.

She said the general, now visiting in Mexico City, would join her here shortly. Afterward, they expect to visit San Francisco, the Pacific Northwest and then the East Coast.

4 Nazi P.W.'s Removed From Plant

Frederick, March 8 (AP) — Four German war prisoners were removed from the Ox Fibre Brush factory after the employés threatened to shut down all machinery and walk out unless the prisoners were sent away, Superintendent G. Arthur Jones reported today.

Jones said that a local shortage of part-time unskilled laborers had prompted the bringing of the prisoners to the factory, where they were stacking lumber. He said that the German war prisoner camp was the only immediate available source of emergency labor.

Jones added that civilian workers at the company volunteered to unload the needed lumber and the prisoners were dismissed several hours after their arrival.

Col. Church M. Matthews Reported Killed In War

West Point, N.Y., March 8 (AP)—The War Department today said that Col. Church M. Matthews, 40, chief of staff of the 7th Armored Division, was killed in action last December 17 in eastern Belgium.

Born in Kentucky, Colonel Matthews was graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1928, later attending field artillery schools and the command and general staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

A son, Church M., Jr., also survives.

Pride-Wounded GI Spurns A Medal

Louisville, March 8 (AP)—With a wound to his pride deeper than those of the flesh, Sergt. Joseph Kusaila, 24, of Waterbury, Conn., has declined to accept a medal for "leadership under fire" after the Army had refused to make him a commissioned officer.

In a letter to Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, Kusaila, who is a patient here at the Army's Nicholas General Hospital, said that the officer candidate school at Fort Benning, Ga., "washed him out" as officer material on the grounds that he "lacked the qualifications of a leader."

Says Officers "Fled In Terror"

Later he went overseas. He related in his letter to General Marshall that when two officers deserted their men and "fled in terror" in the face of enemy fire, he led an assault against enemy positions. Kusaila and his group knocked out four German pillboxes and isolated a fifth, he said, taking more than 50 prisoners.

For this he received the Bronze Star, which he termed in his letter to the chief of staff "an ill-conceived sop to my conscience."

The 2,500-word letter was painfully typed with the veteran's left hand while his right, broken and partly paralyzed by a shell fragment, hung in a sling.

Stands On His War Record

Kusaila, an honor graduate of Columbia University and a former photographer's model, addressed the American commander earnestly and respectfully. In an interview here he said he realized the seriousness of the charges he was making against American officers. He asserted that the majority of commissioned leaders in the armed services are brave and efficient.

He admitted that his complaint to General Marshall might react against him, but declared:

"I am willing to pit my war record against anything they can do to me. After all, nothing more can hurt me."

In Washington a War Department spokesman declined comment on the letter.

W. M. C. to Shift 10,921 Workers In Philadelphia

New Program, First To Be Adopted in a City, Will Aid Area's War Plants

MAR 9 1945

PHILADELPHIA, March 8 (AP).—A program to transfer 10,921 men from "less essential" industry into highly critical war industry in the labor-starved Philadelphia area will go into effect Monday, the War Man-Power Commission said today.

The program was prepared after months of conferences among labor, industry, Federal, Selective Service and W. M. C. officials, the commission said, following which an eleven-point agreement was signed.

"This is not the same program as the Allentown 'war work or no work' plan begun on a small scale in Allentown, Pa., early this year, but it is similar," a commission spokesman said.

The new program affects male workers in "less essential" industries from sixteen years of age upward, the W. M. C. said. "There is an over-all need in the Philadelphia area of 25,000 persons, including women," the commission added.

First City Test of Plan

First to be affected, the commission said, will be such industries as confectionery, hat manufacturing, brewery, taxicab, lace manufacturing, baking (not bread makers, but fancy cake bakers), soft drink bottling and textile manufacturing.

"Philadelphia is the first city in which such a plan has been adopted after months of preparation," the W. M. C. spokesman said.

The W. M. C. said, in effect, the plan will work in this manner:

Workers to be transferred will be called into United States Employment Service offices and be given as wide a war-production job choice as possible. If they refuse they will become unemployed (that is, the U. S. E. S. will not give them a certificate of availability, without which workers cannot be employed) until such time as they accept the U. S. E. S. transfer.

They will be given opportunity to appeal the decision, the W. M. C. said.

"The plan will fit a pattern as much as possible of trying not to have workers lose wages. In some cases they might lose some wages, but bonus and overtime pay in war production should make up for their loss," the W. M. C. said.

WARSHIPS BLASTING MINDANAO, JAPS SAY

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tokyo radio said today that warships have been bombarding Zamboanga on the southwest tip of Mindanao island in the southern Philippines since early Thursday morning and the bombardment "is believed to be a prelude to a landing attempt."

The report was without any Allied confirmation.

Mindanao is second only to American-invaded Luzon island in size in the Philippines.

JAPAN ALL SET FOR INVASION

Tokyo Professes Greatest Confidence in Defenses.

The Imperial High Command is awaiting an American invasion of Japan with the greatest confidence, Domei, the Japanese news agency, said today. In a broadcast recorded by the FCC and distributed by the Associated Press, Domei quoted the Tokyo newspaper Asahi as saying that the High Command had completed all its plans for the defense of the homeland and for "dealing the enemy literally an annihiliative blow, thereby securing a decisive victory at one stroke."

The Japanese naval force is being kept in full readiness to strike the first decisive blow before the invasion forces can land, and if some enemy forces should escape they will meet smashing attacks at the beach lines, Asahi continued, and added: "Should enemy remnants still manage to invade inland, then our field army in its all-out assault will literally wipe them out."

The American invasion forces will meet the same supply problems that have hampered Japanese in defense of islands they have lost, Domei declared.

A Japanese warrior code with teeth in it was reported by the Tokyo radio yesterday.

"Though his weapons are damaged and his ammunition exhausted, he will charge empty-handed and bite the enemy to death," read one resolve of the by-passed Japanese at Rabaul, New Britain, as reported by Domei.

Domei said that the Japanese garrison at Rabaul was prepared for the coming of the enemy, and listed a series of their "commandments," including a pledge to "defy death and fight to kill ten of the enemy."

Domei also reported today that the Diet would reconvene on Sunday and that the Premier, Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, would be asked to outline the progress made in carrying out "decisive war policies" and explain the "counter-measures being planned for disasters" and the Government's attitude toward the current situation.

SAY NEW WEDGE IS DRIVEN DEEP IN JAP IWO LINE

Tokyo Dispatches Report One Position Penetrated by 2000 Americans.

The Tokyo radio declared today in a broadcast picked up here by NBC that about 2,000 American troops supported by ten tanks penetrated the northern position on Iwo Jima and drove a wedge into the Japanese lines, but that the Japanese were still holding a large defense stretch.

In a later broadcast, recorded by CBS, the British radio quoted a Tokyo broadcaster as saying that the situation on Iwo has entered its most critical stage.

Bonn, a Picturesque City, Is Beethoven's Birthplace

Rhine University Center Has Known Wars Since 70 A.D.

Bonn the city on the west bank of the Rhine southeast of Cologne which was entered yesterday by the American 1st Infantry Division, is one of the picture towns of the river. It is the home of Beethoven, and a statue of the famous musician stands in the Munsterplatz there.

This ancient town has been besieged by many armies through the centuries. Originally a Roman military settlement, it was the scene of a Roman defeat in 70 A. D. It was devastated by bands of Norse raiders in 889. Occupied by the French after 1794, it was made over to Prussia in 1815.

A bridge 1,417 feet in length was stretched across the Rhine at Bonn in 1898. Many villas and gardens flank the river here, adding greatly to the appearance of the town.

The finest buildings in Bonn comprise the old university, which occupies the larger part of the southern frontage of the town. It was first the electoral palace of the Archbishops of Cologne and was constructed in about 1717 of materials of old fortifications. The central part of the town, with its narrow streets, contains the gray-stone Munster surmounted by five towers. The central tower stands 315 feet and is a landmark in the Rhine Valley.

Because of the scenery and educational facilities of Bonn, the place has been a mecca for world tourists for many years.

German Radio Fails To Mention Crossing

New York, March 8 (AP)—The German radio, more than 24 hours after the Americans crossed the Rhine, made no mention of it tonight but some accounts stressed the growing fury of the battle.

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, of Transocean, predicted the major Rhine crossing would be attempted by the British 2d and Canadian 1st armies across the north German plain.

Japanese Minister Quits Luzon

The Tokyo radio reported yesterday that the Japanese Minister to the Philippines, Nariyoshi Tajeiri, had returned to Japan "for consultation" and claimed some Filipinos still supported Japan's cause. The broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications Commission.

JAPS REPORT B-29S BLASTED WAKE ISLE

The first Superfortress raid of the war on Wake Island and scouting B-29 flights over three of Japan's primary industrial areas were reported by the Tokyo radio today. In a broadcast recorded by the FCC and distributed by A. P., the Japs said that four B-29s raided Wake Island, former American base, but caused no damage. Liberators usually make the strikes at Wake and it is possible Japanese mistook high-flying B-24s for Superforts.

Six B-29s flew individually over Honshu, main island of Japan, during daylight this morning without dropping bombs, said another broadcast heard by FCC. Three were over the Tokyo area, two scouted Nagoya and a sixth circled the Osaka-Kobe region.

New Clashes Occur In Greek Capital

New York, March 8 (AP)—The Greek Army announced today that one man was killed and four others were wounded in the streets of Athens yesterday in two clashes precipitated by ELAS demonstrations.

The announcement, broadcast by the Athens radio, said that ELAS groups had been marching and singing "hymns of a political character" despite official bans.

In the first instance the police intervened after unidentified persons clashed with ELAS demonstrators and in the second outbreak a police officer fired on the demonstrators when they failed to disband, the broadcast said.

The British radio said the EAM, the political organization of which the ELAS is the military division, had charged taht the Greek Government was violating the agreement which ended the country's civil war.

Lady Mountbatten Visits China

Lady Louis Mountbatten, wife of the Allied supreme commander in Southeast Asia, arrived at Chungking Wednesday on a four-day visit to Chinese Red Cross units and was entertained at a dinner yesterday by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, the Chungking radio said in a broadcast which was beamed in English to North America and was reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

MAR 9 - 1945

LONDON, MARCH 8--(AP)-- AN OFFICIAL WHITE PAPER SUGGESTED TODAY THAT TELEVISION BE RE-BEAMED INTO BRITISH HOMES WITHIN A YEAR ON A GOVERNMENT SUBSIDY BASIS.

A TELEVISION COMMITTEE HEADED BY LORD HANKY PROPOSED

THAT TELEVISION BE STARTED ANEW ON A PREWAR BASIS IN ORDER THAT THERE BE NO WASTE OF TIME BUT THAT IMPROVEMENTS SHOULD BE MADE AS RAPIDLY AS POSSIBLE.

PRE-WAR TELEVISION IN ENGLAND WAS ON A 405-LINE DEFINITION BASIS BUT THE REPORT SAID THE DEFINITION SHOULD BE IMPROVED TO 1,000 LINES AND THE INTRODUCTION OF COLOR AND STEREOPTIC EFFECTS SHOULD BE CONSIDERED.

MAR 9 - 1945

LORD HANKY SAID XN PLANS SHOULD BE MADE FOR EXTENSION OF TELEVISION SERVICE TO THE SIX MOST POPULOUS PROVINCIAL CENTERS IN ENGLAND AS SOON AS IT IS RESUMED IN LONDON. HE SAID THE LONDON SYSTEM COULD BE IN OPERATION WITHIN NINE TO 12 MONTHS AFTER THE RELEASE OF THE REQUISITE STAFF FROM OTHER DUTIES.

UNDER THE WHITE PAPER PLANS TELEVISION WOULD BE OPERATED UNDER THE BRITISH BROADCASTING CORPORATION, WHICH RECEIVES GRANT-IN-AID FROM PARLIAMENT, WITH A CABINET MINISTER RESPONSIBLE TO PARLIAMENT FOR BOTH TELEVISION AND BROADCASTING.

A GOVERNMENT LICENSE TAX ON RADIO RECEIVING SETS HELPS SUPPORT BBC SO BRITISH LISTENERS DO NOT HEAR ANY "COMMERCIALS" BUT THE WHITE PAPER RAISED THE POSSIBILITY OF SPONSORED TELEVISION PROGRAMS.

ZMZXBREBBZZBABBK MBNZNERBXZNBBZKINZBBK

"IN THE EARLY STAGES,HOWEVER," THE REPORT SAID, "WE COULD NOT EXPECT SPONSORED PROGRAMS TO PROVIDE SUBSTANTIAL CONTRIBUTION TOWARD THE COST OF TELEVISION SERVICE."

THE AGENCY SAID THE OPPOSITION WING OF JULIU MANIU'S NATIONAL PEASANT PARTY APPEARED TO APPROVE THE PEASANTS OWN LAND REFORM, ACCUSING MANIU OF BEING "ARCHREACTIONARY."

LONDON, MARCH 8--(AP)-- RUSSIAN APPROVAL OF THE TRANSFER OF NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA FROM HUNGARY TO ROMANIA WAS INDICATED TONIGHT IN A BUCHAREST RADIO BROADCAST HEARD HERE.

THE BUCHAREST RADIO QUOTED PREMIER PETRU GROZA AS DECLARING IN A STATEMENT THAT HE HOPED "WITHIN A FEW DAYS WE WILL BE IN NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA."

EARLIER RADIO REPORTS SAID THAT AT HIS FIRST MINISTERIAL MEETING GROZA TOLD OF TALKS WITH MARSHAL RODION Y. MALINOVSKY AND SOVIET DEPUTY FOREIGN AFFAIRS MINISTER ANDREI J. VISHINSKY ON INCORPORATION OF NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA INTO ROUANIA.

HUNGARY ACQUIRED NORTHERN TRANSYLVANIA UNDER THE VIENNA ACCORD.

THE VETERAN FIRST DIVISION CLEARED AT LEAST HALF OF BONN, A CITY OF 101,000, DURING THE DAY IN FIGHTING WHICH ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT DON WHITEHEAD SAID WAS MUCH MORE BITTER THAN THE BATTLE FOR COLOGNE. DESPITE THE PRESENCE OF THOUSANDS OF CIVILIANS IN THE FAMED UNIVERSITY CITY, THE GERMANS WERE POURING ROCKETS AND ARTILLERY INTO IT, KILLING MANY OF THEIR OWN PEOPLE.

AT LAST REPORTS THE IRON BRIDGE CARRYING THE HIGHWAY AND TRAMWAY ACROSS THE RHINE AT BONN WAS STILL PASSABLE.

THREE MILES SOUTH OF BONN THE NINTH DIVISION OF THE FIRST ARMY CLEARED THREE FOURTHS OF THE RESORT TOWN OF BAD GODESBERG AND SEVERED THE RIVER BANK ROAD RUNNING BETWEEN BONN AND COBLENZ.

A131

THE THIRD ARMY'S FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, WHICH REACHED THE RHINE NORTHWEST OF COBLENZ YESTERDAY, FANNED OUT ALONG THE RIVER AND THE ELEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION SPEARED EASTWARD ANOTHER FOUR MILES IN ITS SECONDARY SALIENT BEYOND THE KYLL RIVER.

OTHER THIRD ARMY TROOPS ON BOTH SIDES OF THE DOUBLE SALIENT PUSHED AHEAD AS MUCH AS 3 1/2 MILES, CAPTURING SEVERAL MORE TOWNS ALTHOUGH RESISTANCE WAS STILL DESCRIBED AS STIFF IN THESE REAR AREAS WHICH HAVE BEEN VIRTUALLY CUT OFF BY THE SWEEP UP TO AND ACROSS THE RHINE.

ALL OF THIS, HOWEVER, WAS SUBORDINATE TO THE FEAT OF CROSSING THE RHINE -- A FEAT WHICH RAISED EXHILARATING HOPES EVERYWHERE THAT THE SUDDEN, SURPRISE BRIDGEHEAD WOULD SHORTEN THE WAR

THE GERMANS SAID THE NINTH HAD LANCED ON INTO REMAGEN, SITE OF A RHINE BRIDGE 12 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BONN.

THE NINTH INFANTRY DIVISION WAS CLEANING OUT THE RESORT TOWN OF BAD GODESBERG, THREE MILES SOUTH OF BONN.

THE BLACKOUT WAS IMPOSED ON THE MOVEMENTS OF THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION DRIVING SOUTH AND THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION OF THE THIRD ARMY PUSHING NORTH.

PARIS, MARCH 8-(AP)-SGT.FRANCIS W.MITCHELL, A MEMBER OF ONE OF THE FIRST AMERICAN UNITS TO ENTER COLOGNE, SAID TODAY THAT RULES AGAINST FRATERNIZING DO NOT WORK AMONG COMBAT SOLDIERS BECAUSE "WE BEGIN TO FEEL SORRY" FOR GERMAN CIVILIANS WHEN THE FIGHTING IS OVER.

HE TOLD HOW THESE CIVILIANS IN COLOGNE CRAWLED OUT OF CELLARS AND "SEEMED GLAD TO SEE" THE AMERICANS WHEN THE WORD SPREAD THAT THEY WERE NOT GOING TO BE MASSACRED.

THEY TOSSED THE AMERICANS LOAVES OF BREAD AND BROUGHT OUT JAM, PRESERVED CHERRIES, BEER AND PRETZELS, SAID MITCHELL, FROM 72 BARROW STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

"THEN SOME GIRLS--VERY PRETTY TOO--BROUGHT OUT A PHONOGRAPH AND PLAYED RECORDS," HE SAID. "IT GOT REAL COZY, BUT SOON WE HAD TO SPEAK IT OFF TO GET ON WITH THE JOB."

DENYING IT WAS JUST THE GIRLS WHO CAUSED THE AMERICANS TO FEEL SORRY FOR THE RESIDENTS LEFT IN THE CITY, THE SERGEANT SAID: "THEY (THE CIVILIANS) WERE MOSTLY CHILDREN AND OLD PEOPLE--JUST SORT OF HELPLESS AND GLAD THEY WERE NOT BEING KILLED. IT'S HARD TO KEEP THAT ICY FRONT WHEN PEOPLE ACT FRIENDLY, ALSO, WE AMERICANS USED TO HAVE SOME RESPECT FOR OLD FOLKS."

MITCHELL IS A MEMBER OF COMPANY A, 36TH ARMORED REGIMENT. THIS OUTFIT WAS GIVEN THE HONOR OF SPEARHEADING THE ENTRY INTO THE RUINED RHINELAND CITY FROM THE NORTHWEST BECAUSE IT PREVIOUSLY HAD WON A PRESIDENTIAL UNIT CITATION FOR GALANTRY. MITCHELL WAS BROUGHT TO PARIS TO TELL CORRESPONDENTS HOW IT FELT TO OCCUPY THE REICH'S FOURTH LARGEST CITY.

DECLARING THAT THE NONFRATERNIZATION RULE WORKS ONLY AFTER THE MPS COME UP, THE SERGEANT SAID: "WE ARE SUPPOSED TO HATE PEOPLE--BE VERY TOUGH CUSTOMERS. BUT AS SOON AS THE FIGHTING IS OVER IT WORKS JUST THE OTHER WAY--WE BEGIN TO FEEL SORRY FOR THEM. NONFRATERNIZATION WORKS IF SOMEBODY IS THERE WITH A CLUB, BUT RIGHT AT THE FRONT WHERE A SOLDIER IS RISKING DEATH YOU CANNOT SCARE HIM WITH A $65 FINE."

COLOGNE, MARCH 8-(AP)-THE AMERICAN MILITARY GOVERNMENT LOOKED LONG AND HARD IN BOMB-AND SHELL-RUBBLED COLOGNE BEFORE IT COULD FIND A PLACE TO SET UP HOUSEKEEPING.

I DROVE AROUND COLOGNE MOST OF YESTERDAY WITH LT. COL. JOHN K. PATTERSON OF 3244 PINE ST., RIVERSIDE, CALIF., IN CHARGE OF THE AMG HERE. THE TASK OF FINDING SOMETHING FIT FOR ADMINISTRATION OFFICES AT FIRST SEEMED HOPELESS. LITERALLY NOWHERE IS ANY OFFICE BUILDING INTACT. IT MERELY WAS A QUESTION OF FINDING A LOCATION THAT COULD BE CONDITIONED IN THE SHORTEST POSSIBLE TIME. BUT LATE IN THE DAY A PLACE WAS DISCOVERED. ITS LOCATION MUST, FOR SECURITY REASONS, GO UNMENTIONED AT PRESENT.

OUR PROGRESS OFTEN WAS INTERRUPTED BY BEWILDERED GERMAN CIVILIANS ASKING WHAT THEY SHOULD DO, WHERE THEY SHOULD GO. ALL WERE CRUSING THE NAZI GOVERNMENT FOR LEAVING THEM.

ONCE OUR MOVEMENT WAS HALTED BY A PITIFUL CRY FOR FIRST AID FROM A BLONDE LITTLE GIRL OF ABOUT 13 WHOSE FOOT HAD BEEN MANGLED BADLY BY A STRAY MORTAR FIRED BY GERMANS FROM ACROSS THE RHINE. HER SISTER EXCLAIMED BITTERLY OF THE NAZIS:

"FIRST THEY TERRORIZE US, THEN THEY RUN OUT ON US, AND NOW THEY SHOOT AT US."

COLOGNE, MARCH 8-(AP)-THE RHINELAND IS BEING "DEMILITARIZED" BY THE ALLIES AS EFFECTIVELY AS IT WAS "REMILITARIZED" BY ADOLF HITLER IN VIOLATION OF THE TREATY OF VERSAILLES NINE YEARS AGO.

IT WAS MARCH 6, 1936, THAT HITLER DEFIANTLY CALLED TOGETHER THE REICHSTAG AND ANNOUNCED THAT "AT THIS VERY MOMENT OUR TROOPS ARE PROCEEDING INTO THE RHINELAND."

THE UNITED NATIONS LAST NIGHT AND TODAY WERE MAKING UP FOR THEIR MISTAKE IN LETTING HITLER GET AWAY WITH IT.

DRIVING INTO COLOGNE FROM A POINT ABOUT 25 MILES AWAY LAST NIGHT OVER THE VAST COLOGNE PLAIN, I FIRST HEARD THE CEASELESS DRONING OF RAF MOTORS, AND THEN SAW VIRTUALLY THE WHOLE RIGHT BANK OF THE RHINE FROM DUESSELDORF TO MEUSS ILLUMINATED AS BOMB AFTER BOMB STARTED HUGE FIRES, AND THE GERMANS SENT UP TRACERS, FISHED WITH SEARCHLIGHTS, AND AIMED THEIR FLAK IN VAIN HOPE OF STOPPING AN AVALANCHE OF STRAFERS

MAR 9 - 1945

THEN, AS I RETIRED TO MY COLOGNE BILLET, AMERICAN ARTILLERY TOOK OVER. PRACTICALLY WITHOUT CESSATION HEAVY SHELLS ROARED ACROSS THE RHINE AND THE GERMANS APPARENTLY HAD NOTHING WITH WHICH TO ANSWER. THE AIR WAS SO RENT WITH CONTINUOUS ARTILLERY POUNDING THAT THE WALLS OF OUR BUILDING SHOOK. EXPERTS TOLD ME THEY'D NEVER HEARD THE LIKE OF THAT SHELLING.

AND THEN THIS MORNING, THE SEEMINGLY ENDLESS DRONING IN THE AIR SWELLED AGAIN. THE AMERICAN AIRFORCE HAD TAKEN OVER.

FRONT SITUATIONER

BY WES GALLAGHER

COLOGNE, GERMANY, MARCH 8-(AP)-THE FIRST ARMY'S CROSSING OF THE RHINE ALTERED THE WESTERN FRONT MILITARY SITUATION OVERNIGHT, AND OPENED THE POSSIBILITY OF SHORTENING THE EUROPEAN STRUGGLE BY MONTHS.

AS A RESULT, THE FIRST, NINTH, AND THIRD U.S.ARMIES AND THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY MAY CHANGE OVER FROM THEIR LIMITED OPERATIONS OF CLEARING OUT THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE TO THE MORE CONTINUOUS AND AMBITIOUS PROJECT OF FORCING THE RIVER BEFORE THE GERMANS HAVE TIME TO ORGANIZE ANY SEMBLANCE OF ORGANIZED DEFENSE.

THE RAPID THIRD AND FIRST ARMY ADVANCES SOUTH OF COLOGNE CAUGHT THE GERMANS BY SURPRISE. IT IS APPARENT THAT THEY HAVE HAD NO TIME TO REORGANIZE THEIR SCATTERED FORCES EAST OF THE RIVER AT ANY POINT.

MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT DID NOT HAVE SUFFICIENT TROOPS TO HOLD THE GERMAN BORDER DEFENSES. IN THE ALLIED DRIVE TO THE RHINE BY FOUR ARMIES

HE LOST AT LEAST A THIRD TO A HALF OF WHAT FEW HE HAD.

THUS WITH DISORGANIZED FORCES TOTALING LESS THAN HE HAD TO HOLD A STABILIZED FRONT, THE NAZI FIELD MARSHAL IS FACING IF NOT AN IMPOSSIBLE TASK AT LEAST THE MOST DIFFICULT TASK OF THE WAR.

THIS IS THE TASK OF TRYING TO SEAL OFF THE FIRST ARMY BRIDGEHEAD AND AT THE SAME TIME THROWING UP A DEFENSE ALONG THE ENTIRE LENGTH OF THE RIVER.

ONLY TWO POSSIBILITIES SEEM OPEN TO THE GERMANS IN TRYING TO HALT THE FIRST ARMY THREAT TO RUN THROUGH THE CENTER OF GERMANY. ONE IS TO PULL TROOPS FROM THE RUSSIAN FRONT. THE OTHER IS TO ABANDON THE ITALIAN FRONT AND PULL THE 27 GERMAN DIVISIONS OUT OF THERE.

THE FIRST STEP APPEARS EXTREMELY UNLIKELY IN VIEW OF THE NEW RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE ALONG THE ODER TOWARD BERLIN, WHICH BERLIN REPORTS, ESPECIALLY SINCE THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND STRIPPED THE WESTERN FRONT TO MEET THE LAST RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE.

IT IS KNOWN THAT THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND HAS CONSIDERED FOR SOME TIME THE PLAN OF ABANDONING THE ITALIAN FRONT AND ATTEMPTING TO HOLD A LINE IN THE ALPS WITH A SKELETON FORCE.

WHETHER THESE TROOPS COULD NOW BE BROUGHT UP TO BOLSTER THE EASTERN AND WESTERN FRONTS QUICK ENOUGH TO MEET THE NEW THREATS REMAINS TO BE SEEN. EVEN IF BROUGHT OUT OF ITALY THEY PROBABLY COULD REACH THREATENED POINTS ONLY ONE DIVISION AT A TIME. THEY MIGHT WELL BE DESTROYED PIECEMEAL WITHOUT HAVING APPRECIABLE EFFECT ON THE SITUATION, AS IN NORMANDY.

THIS PIECEMEAL EMPLOYMENT OF RESERVES HAS BEEN CHARACTERISTIC OF THE GERMAN ARMY DIRECTION FOR MANY WEEKS AND SEEMS TO INDICATE THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND HAS HIT THE BOTTOM OF THE SOLDIER BARREL.

THUS AMERICAN TROOPS ARE ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE IN A POSITION TO DELIVER A DEATH BLOW WHILE OTHER ALLIED FORCES IN TENS OF THOUSANDS

MAR 9 - 1945

ARE ALONG THE RIVER THREATENING VON RUNDSTEDT EVERYWHERE. HE HAS FAR FEWER FORCES THAN HE HAD TO HOLD THE SAME ALLIED TROOPS WEST OF THE RHINE TWO WEEKS AGO, WHEN HE FAILED.

IF HE HAD TIME, SAY TWO WEEKS OR A MONTH, TO REORGANIZE AND SPREAD ALONG THE RIVER BANK HIS AVAILABLE TROOPS, BOLSTERED BY INCOMING DIVISIONS FROM ITALY, HE MIGHT PUT UP A MUCH MORE FORMIDABLE BATTLE.

MAR 9 - 1945

BUT GEN.EISENHOWER HAS NOT GIVEN HIM THIS TIME.

VON RUNDSTEDT NEEDS EVERY MAN AND ANY BRIDGEHEAD NO MATTER HOW SMALL WILL GOBBLE UP HIS AVAILABLE TROOPS IN CONSTANT FIGHTING, LEAVING HIM NEITHER MEN NOR TIME TO ORGANIZE THE REST OF THE RIVER DEFENSES.

THIS WILL MAKE OTHER AMERICAN DROSSINGS WHEN THEY COME MANY TIMES EASIER THAN THEY WOULD HAVE BEEN IF THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND HAD BEEN GIVEN A QUIET THREE OR FOUR WEEKS WITH NO LOSSES TO ORGANIZE THE SITUATION.

A39

MOST MILITARY MEN, IN FORECASTING A LONG SUMMER WAR, BELIEVED THAT ONCE ACROSS THE RHINE IT WOULD TAKE WEEKS OF BITTER BATTLING REALLY TO BREAK THROUGH INNER GERMAN DEFENSES.

AMERICANS ALREADY ARE INTO GERMANY'S INNER DEFENSES AND THE NEXT FEW DAYS MAY WELL BRING A DEFINITE TURNING POINT OF THE WAR.

THE GERMANS HAVE NO MORE TERRITORY TO TRADE. THEIR LAST GREAT NATURAL BARRIER IS FORCED. IT IS A QUESTION OF STAND AND FIGHT OR LOSE ALL.

NIGHT LEAD CROSSING

MAR 9 - 1945

BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 8-(AP)-VETERAN DOUGHBOYS OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' FIRST U.S.ARMY POURED ACROSS THE RHINE SOUTH OF COLOGNE TODAY AND DEEPENED THEIR ONE-DAY OLD BRIDGEHEAD, ESTABLISHED WITH DRAMATIC SPEED AND EXTREMELY LIGHT CASUALTIES AFTER THE FALL OF COLOGNE.

THE FIRST INFANTRYMAN ACROSS REACHED THE EASTERN SHORE AT 4:30 P.M. YESTERDAY--A PATHFINDER FOR OTHERS WHO HAVE RACED ACROSS SINCE AND SEIZED A GOOD HOLD ON THE EAST BANK.

THIS SUDDEN CROSSING OF THE MOST FORMIDABLE NATURAL BARRIER ON THE WESTERN FRONT GAVE THE FIRST ARMY A FIRM TOEHOLD ON ENEMY TERRITORY WHICH MOST MILITARY EXPERTS DID NOT THINK COULD BE REACHED FOR DAYS.

THE GERMANS WERE IN SUCH CONFUSION AFTER THEIR FRANTIC RETREAT BEFORE HODGES' MEN ACROSS THE COLOGNE PLAIN THAT THEY NEVER WERE ABLE TO MAKE A REAL STAND.

THERE WAS LITTLE ARTILLERY OR MORTAR FIRE ON THE CROSSING SITE DURIN THOSE FIRST 24 HOURS AND THAT IN ITSELF WAS PROOF OF THE ENEMY'S DISORGANIZATION AND UNPREPAREDNESS FOR THE ASSAULT.

A23

THE GERMANS DID NOT EVEN HAVE PREPARED POSITIONS ON THE FAR SIDE OF THE STREAM AND THE SPEARHEADING UNITS OF DOUGHBOYS QUICKLY FANNED OUT AND BEGAN DEEPENING THIS UNEXPECTED BRIDGEHEAD WHILE THE HIGH COMMAND MOVED WITH SPEED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THE SITUATION WHICH DEVELOPED FAR SWIFTER THAN WAS ANTICIPATED.

AS A RESULT OF THE BRIDGEHEAD BEING SECURED--AND IT IS NO MILITARY SECRET THAT WE ARE OVER THE RIVER IN STRENGTH--TROOPS RUSHED UP TO STRATEGIC POSITIONS SO THAT THE BRIDGEHEAD CAN BE EXPLOITED IN FULL.

FOR MONTHS, MILITARY EXPERTS HAVE BEEN PLANNING THE CROSSING OF THE RHINE. ELABORATE PLANS HAD BEEN MADE FOR LARGE SCALE AMPHIBIOUS OPERATION MUCH ON THE SAME BASIS AS THE EXPERTS PLANNED THE AMPHIBIOUS ASSAULT ON THE BEACHES OF NORMANDY. IT WAS GENERALLY ACCEPTED THAT ONCE OUR ARMIES GOT TO THE RHINE THERE WOULD BE A PAUSE FOR REGROUPING AND RESHUFFLING TO GET SET FOR THE GIANT EFFORT TO BRIDGE THE STREAM. THE MOST OPTIMISTIC THOUGHT IT WOULD BE AT LEAST MONTHS BEFORE THE CROSSING COULD BE MADE.

A24

BUT THE DOUGHBOYS WHO GOT ACROSS THOUGHT OTHERWISE AND THE RESULT IS THAT SPIRITS ARE SOARING TONIGHT ALL THROUGH THE ARMY. HODGES HAS NO INTENTION OF LOSING THIS VALUABLE HOLD ON THE EASTERN BANK AND IS STRENGTHENING IT AS FAST AS MEN AND MATERIAL CAN BE MOVED UP.

FIRST ARMY CENSORSHIP CLAMPED A STRICT BLACKOUT FOR THE TIME ON THE PLACE OF CROSSING. THIS WAS THE FEELING WHICH SWEPT THROUGH THE FIRST ARMY TODAY

30.24 — 22739

AS NEWS OF THE RIVER CROSSING FILTERED DOWN FROM ARMY TO DIVISIONS TO BEWHISKERED, BEGRIMED DOUGHBOYS OUT IN THE FRONTLINES. THEY HAD BEEN DREADING THAT CROSSING, FOR SPANNING A RIVER THE SIZE OF THE RHINE IS A DANGEROUS COSTLY TASK AND THEY KNEW IT.

"THIS MEANS WE'VE GOT 'EM LICKED MONTHS SOONER THAN WE MIGHT HAVE OTHERWISE," ONE OFFICER SAID.

LT. COL. ROBERT EVANS OF DAVENPORT, IA., SAID:

"IF WE CAN HOLD THAT BRIDGEHEAD IT MEANS THE WAR IS MONTHS NEARER THE END."

AND THAT'S THE WAY THE DOUGHBOYS FELT ABOUT IT, TOO.

THE CROSSING OF THE RHINE HAD BECOME MORE A SYMBOL OF COMING VICTORY THAN MOST OF THEM HAD REALIZED, FOR THE MEN FELT THAT ONCE ACROSS THE RIVER THEY WOULD BE ON THE HIGHROAD TO THE HEART OF GERMANY.

SECURITY FORBADE DISCLOSING EXACT LOCATION OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, BUT SUBSTANTIAL FORCES HAVE BEEN THROWN ACROSS THE RIVER SOUTH OF COLOGNE AND THE DOUGHBOYS HAVE A FIRM FOOTING ON THE EAST BANK.

A204

THE CROSSING WAS ANNOUNCED JUST TWO DAYS AFTER FIRST ARMY TROOPS CAPTURED THE GREAT RHINELAND CITY OF COLOGNE AND 13 DAYS AFTER HODGES LAUNCHED HIS OFFENSIVE ACROSS THE ROER RIVER.

THE RHINE CROSSING, IT CAN BE DISCLOSED, WAS MADE WITH SUCH SUDDENNESS THAT THE ENEMY WAS CAUGHT UNPREPARED AND THERE WAS LIGHT OPPOSITION.

"IF WE CAN HOLD THAT BRIDGEHEAD IT MEANS THE WAR IS MONTHS NEARER AN END," SAID LT.COL.ROBERT EVANS OF DAVENPORT,IA.

THIS SENTIMENT WAS ECHOED BY MANY SOLDIERS WHO HAD LOOKED ON THE RHINE AS ONE OF THE GREATEST OBSTACLES TO BE FACED BY THE ARMY SINCE THE BEACHES OF NORMANDY.

A207

THE FIRST CROSSING WAS MADE AT 4:30 P.M. YESTERDAY AND IN THE HOURS SINCE A STEADY STREAM OF MEN AND MATERIAL HAS POURED OVER ONTO THE EASTERN BANK AND MOVED FORWARD IN A DRIVE TO GET ENEMY ARTILLERY OUT OF THE RANGE OF THE CROSSING SITE.

DURING THE FIRST 24 HOURS THERE HAS BEEN VERY LITTLE ARTILLERY OR MORTAR FIRE ON THE BRIDGEHEAD, INDICATING COMPLETE CONFUSION OF ENEMY FORCES AAS THEY FLED BACK ACROSS THE RIVER BEFORE HODGES' DRIVING DIVISIONS.

MJ228PEW

MAR 9 - 1945

THE DRAMATIC ACHIEVEMENT CAPPED AN OFFENSIVE LAUNCHED FEB. 23 WHEN THE U.S.FIRST AND NINTH ARMIES SMASHED ACROSS THE ROER, KNOCKING THE GERMANS OFF BALANCE SO BADLY THAT THE HIGH COMMAND EVER SINCE HAS BLACKED OUT MOST OF THE MOVEMENTS OF THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES TO KEEP THE ENEMY CONFUSED.

IT WAS OBVIOUS THE GERMANS WERE ONCE MORE CAUGHT OFF GUARD BY THE SUDDENNESS, AND THE BOLDNESS OF THE RHINE CROSSING, WHICH EISENHOWER HIMSELF ONCE SAID WOULD BE EQUIVALENT TO A MAJOR NAVAL OPERATION. THE FIRST WAVES FOUND OPPOSITION LIGHT.

THE NEWS SWEPT SWIFTLY THROUGH DIVISION AFTER DIVISION, CHEERING BATTLE-GRIMED VETERANS WHO FELT THAT THE END OF THE BLOODSHED IN EUROPE WAS JUST THAT MUCH NEARER.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS AFTER THE FIRST TROOPS SET FOOT ON THE EAST BANK, ENEMY ARTILLERY AND MORTAR FIRE STILL WAS SPORADIC.

IT WAS A GREAT DAY FOR THE U.S. FIRST ARMY AND MARKED ONE MORE "FIRST" FOR THAT BATTLE-SEASONED ORGANIZATION. IT WAS THE FIRST ASHORE IN NORMANDY, THE FIRST TO ENTER GERMANY, AND THE FIRST TO BREAK THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE.

ON THE NORTH END OF THE FRONT, THE U.S.NINTH AND CANADIAN FIRST ARMIES WERE BEATING THE GERMANS BACK INTO A WEST BANK POCKET NOW EIGHT MILES LONG AND AT MOST ONLY FIVE MILES WIDE.

THE CANADIANS LAUNCHED A NEW ATTACK ON THE NORTHERN ANCHOR OF XANTEN, WHERE THE GERMANS WERE FIGHTING BITTERLY TO KEEP OPEN THE LAST CROSSINGS OF THE RHINE.

ON THE SOUTH, THE NINTH ARMY WAS LOCKED IN A BRUISING STRUGGLE FOR THE TWN OF OSSENBER

MAR 9 - 1945

FOR THE TOWN OF OSSENBERG, TWO MILES NORTH OF THE FALLEN CROSSING POINT OF RHEINBERG.

THE POCKET SOUTH OF RHEINBERG WAS VIRTUALLY CLEARED BY NINTH ARMY TANKS, BUT ONLY AFTER HEAVY CASUALTIES ON BOTH SIDES.

RHEINBERG, GERMANY, MARCH 8-(AP)-WHITE FLAGS POPPED OUT LIKE SHEETS ON A WASH DAY LINE TODAY AS THREE GERMAN VILLAGES SURRENDERED TO 35TH U. S. INFANTRY DIVISION DOUGHBOYS WHO ALSO HURDLED THE ALTER CANAL EAST OF HERE AND THUS BROUGHT THE ENTIRE NINTH ARMY SECTOR FLUSH AGAINST THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE.

OSSENBERG, MILLINGEN AND HUCK WERE THE SURRENDERED TOWNS BUT IN OSSENBERG THE GERMANS FOUGHT A BITTER, REAR GUARD ACTION BEFORE THE TOWN CAPITULATED.

"SOON ALL OF KRAUTLAND WILL BE A COUNTRY OF PLAIN WHITE FLAGS," COMMENTED PFC. DOM FRISUNE OF 2370 SECOND AVE., NEW YORK CITY, AS HIS 320TH REGIMENT SET OUT TO OCCUPY MILLINGEN AND HUCK. THESE ARE TINY, RED-BRICKED GERMAN VILLAGES WHOSE CHURCH STEEPLES KNIFE INTO THE MIST SHROUDED HORIZON.

THE SECOND BATTALION OF THE 137TH REGIMENT RAN INTO MORE SMALL ARMS AND MORTAR FIRE AT OSSENBERG "THAN ANYTHING WE HAD ENCOUNTERED PREVIOUSLY," ACCORDING TO ITS COMMANDER, LT. COL. ALBERT M.BUTLER OF PASADENA, CALIF.

BUTLER'S MEN FOUGHT IN AND OUT OF OSSENBERG FOR TWO DAYS AFTER COL.WILLIAM MURRAY OF NOGALES, ARIZ., THE REGIMENTAL COMMANDER, DECIDED TO SLUG IT OUT WITH THE JERRIES WHO FOUGHT A BITTER REARGUARD ACTION TO PERMIT EVACUATION OF MEN AND EQUIPMENT ACROSS THE WESEL BRIDGEHEAD.

BUTLER HAS BEEN IN THE LINE ALL BUT TWO WEEKS SINCE ST. LO AND IF HE SAYS AN OPERATION IS TOUGH, HE KNOWS WHEREOF HE SPEAKS.

MILLINGEN AND HUCK FELL TO A FOOTWEARY TASK FORCE THAT HAS SLOGGED MORE THAN 60 MILES TO REACH THIS SECTOR. COL.BERNARD BYRNE OF BRADENTON, FLA., SENT HIS FIRST BATTALION, LED BY LT.COL.WILLIAM WALTON OF LONG BEACH, CALIF., INTO HUCK AND THE SECOND BATTALION, LED BY LT.COL.WARREN T.HANNUM, JR., OF SAN FRANCISCO, CALIF., INTO MILLINGEN.

EDWARD D.BALL

WITH THE THIRD U.S. ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 8-(AP)-THE THUNDER OF BIG GUNS SHELLING FERRIES TRYING TO EXTRICATE TRAPPED GERMANS FROM THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE RIVER TODAY SOUNDED THE OPENING OF THE BATTLE OF THE RIVER ON THE THIRD U.S. ARMY FRONT.

THE ARTILLERY SIMULTANEOUSLY SHELLED COBLENZ.

THE TRAFFIC IN SHELLS WAS ALL ONE WAY--THE GERMANS FAILED TO REPLY.

CRASHING SALVOS ECHOED THROUGH THE RHINE VALLEY, ENVELOPED BY A CLAMMY, BLUE-WHITE MIST WHICH HID THE RIVER'S SURFACE. FROM HILLS ACROSS THE RIVER THERE WAS SILENCE, UNACCOUNTED FOR EXCEPT BY THE POSSIBILITY THAT THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION'S DASH TO THE RIVER WAS SO FAST THE GERMANS WERE CAUGHT UNPREPARED FOR AN IMMEDIATE DEFENSE.

MAR 9 - 1945

WHILE AMERICAN TANK CREWS TOOK A BREATHER AWAITING THE ARRIVAL OF THE INFANTRY, THE GERMANS WERE TAKING ADVANTAGE OF THE MIST AND SENT MOTOR DRIVEN FERRIES ACROSS THE STREAM FOR REMNANTS OF THEIR FORCES WEDGED ALONG THE RIVER'S EDGE. THEY ALSO STILL HAD A RAILROAD BRIDGE INTACT MIDWAY BETWEEN COBLENZ AND ANDERNACH AND A VEHICULAR BRIDGE AT COBLENZ WHICH HAD BEEN REPAIRED AFTER BEING BOMBED.

FROM HEIGHTS ABOVE THE RIVER TOWN OF WESSENTHRUM, 10 MILES NORTHWEST OF COBLENZ, AMERICANS WERE SLAMMING ARTILLERY INTO FERRY TERMINALS AND ACROSS THE MOSELLE INTO COBLENZ ITSELF, LYING IN THE TRIANGLE FORMED BY THE MOSELLE AND RHINE RIVERS.

OVERRUN AND LEFT BEHIND BY OUR SWIFT, 65-MILE THRUST TO THE RIVER WERE REMNANTS OF THREE GERMAN DIVISIONS WANDERING IN HOPELESS CONFUSION BETWEEN THE KYLL AND THE RHINE RIVERS. DOUGHBOYS ARE COMBING THEM OUT OF THE WOODS TODAY.

THESE CAN BE ADDED TO SOME 4,000 PRISONERS ALREADY TAKEN. GERMAN EQUIPMENT LOSSES TO THE FOURTH ARMORED, WHICH HAD A BIGGER DAILY AVERAGE DURING THE DRIVE THAN ANYWHERE IN FRANCE, INCLUDED AN ESTIMATED 400 MOTOR TRANSPORTS, 150 TRACTOR DRAWN GUNS, 15 TANKS AND HUNDREDS OF HORSE DRAWN VEHICLES.

AGAINST THESE LT. COL. CREIGHTON ABRAMS' SPEARHEADING COMBAT COMMAND LOST ONLY FOUR TANKS AND 50 CASUALTIES, INCLUDING EIGHT DEAD.

MAR 9 - 1945

WITH THE THIRD U.S. ARMY ON THE RHINE --FIRST ADD SHELLING (BY BALL) X X X EIGHT DEAD.

CONTRIBUTING TO THE FOURTH'S LOW LOSSES WAS THE USE OF LOUDSPEAKERS MOUNTED ON TANKS WHICH DROVE TO THE EDGE OF GERMAN TOWNS AND CALLED UPON THE TOWNS TO SURRENDER OR BE SHELLED. MANY WERE FESTOONED QUICKLY WITH WHITE FLAGS.

FROM TWO 90TH DIVISION DOUGHBOYS CAPTURED BY THE GERMANS AND RESCUED BY TANKMEN CAME A STORY OF ENEMY ROUT AS SEEN BEHIND THE GERMAN LINES.

"WE WERE FORCED TO PUSH A TWO-WHEELED CART WITH PRISONERS OF EVERY OTHER NATIONALITY FROM RUSSIANS TO SERBS," SAID ONE LIBERATED PRISONER, A STAFF SERGEANT. "THE GERMANS WERE HYSTERICAL. ALL THEY WANTED TO KNOW WAS WHERE OUR TANKS WERE.

"THEIR HORSES WERE DYING FROM EXHAUSTION. THEY JUST FELL DEAD FROM PULLING HEAVY LOADS. YOU COULDN'T CALL THIS A RETREAT. THEY DID NOT TAKE OFF IN COLUMNS OR ANYTHING LIKE THAT. ONE GUY WOULD TAKE OFF THIS WAY, ANOTHER THAT WAY. IT WAS EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF AND THE HELL WITH THE NEXT GUY."

ONE OF THE BUSIEST MEN ALONG THE RHINE TODAY WAS SGT. ROY CARTER, A RADIO TECHNICIAN WHO PUNCHED A TELETYPE PRINTER IN THE ASSOCIATED PRESS KANSAS CITY OFFICE FOR 15 YEARS.

"THESE ARMORED GUYS," HE SAID, "KEEP IN CONTACT BY RADIO--AND IT LOOKS LIKE EVERYONE HAS RECEIVERS AND TRANSMITTERS--AND WHEN THEY THROW A PUNCH LIKE THIS ONE, THEIR EQUIPMENT TAKES A TERRIFIC BEATING."

"LET THE TANKERS HAVE THEIR GLORY," SAID CPL. PAT LAPEARL OF PONTIAC, MICH., "BUT WHEN IT'S TIME FOR THE CLEANUP AND RIVER CROSSINGS THEY SEND FOR US DOUGHS."

WHILE PAT WAS CHANGING A JEEP TIRE PUNCTURED BY A SHELL FRAGMENT, MAJ. HARRY ROCKEFELLER OF ASBURY PARK, N.J., EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE 51ST ARMORED INFANTRY BATTALION, TOOK A NEUTRAL STAND IN THE ARMOR VERSUS INFANTRY DISCUSSION.

BUT IT WAS NOT SO WITH THE MAJOR'S DRIVER, PVT. LEROY DIEFFENBACH OF MYERSTOWN, PA. HE BELIEVES THAT IF IT WEREN'T FOR THE ARMORED INFANTRY, NOBODY WOULD GET ANYWHERE.

COLOGNE, GERMANY, MARCH 7-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS GAZED ACROSS THE RHINE TO THE EAST FROM SHATTERED, CAPTURED COLOGNE TODAY, AND AN OFFICER SPOKE THEIR THOUGHTS:

"KNOW WHAT I'D LIKE TO DO?" ASKED MAJ.JOHN DEAN OF 3700 NORTH CHARLES ST., BALTIMORE, MD. "I'D LIKE TO HIT ACROSS THE RHINE AND GET THIS THING OVER WITH FAST."

IT SEEMED STRANGE TO STAND ON THE WESTERN SIDE OF THE RIVER AND KNOW THAT THE ENEMY WAS IN THOSE BUILDINGS A FEW HUNDRED YARDS AWAY--AT LEAST EVERYONE SUPPOSED THE ENEMY WAS THERE ALTHOUGH THERE WAS NO ANSWERING FIRE TO SHELLS WHICH U.S.ARTILLERY POURED ACROSS THE STREAM.

MAJOR DEAN, WHOSE FAMILY OWNED THE SAN FRANCISCO CHRONICLE, SAT BEFORE A STOVE IN THE BASEMENT OF A BOMBED BUILDING AS HE SPOKE OF GETTING THIS OVER WITH IN A HURRY.

BUT THERE ARE NO BRIDGES IN COLOGNE OVER WHICH TROOPS CAN CROSS. ALL FIVE OF THE GREAT SPANS HAD BEEN DUMPED INTO THE STREAM BY ALLIED BOMBINGS, INCLUDING THE HOHENZOLLERN BRIDGE WHICH WAS THE LAST DESTROYED.

SOLDIERS TALKED CHIEFLY ABOUT THE FEEBLE GERMAN EFFORT TO HOLD COLOGNE. AMERICANS SUFFERED FEW CASUALTIES, ONE UNIT HAVING ONLY TWO MEN KILLED IN FIGHTING THROUGH TOWN TO THE RIVER BANK.

MOSCOW, MARCH 8-(AP)-REPORTS OF HEAVY ARTILLERY FIRE AND FIERCE LOCAL ACTIONS BY RUSSIAN FORCES IN THE KUESTRIN AND FRANKFURT SECTORS HINTED TODAY THAT A NEW GRAND OFFENSIVE AGAINST BERLIN MAY BE SHAPING UP.

MARSHAL GREGORY K. ZHUKOV'S NEXT BIG OBJECTIVE IS THE GERMAN CAPITAL BUT THE EXACT POINT WHERE HE WILL SEEK A BREAKTHROUGH WAS STILL A MATTER OF GUESSWORK AS HIS ARTILLERY LAID DOWN HEAVY BARRAGES ON ENEMY POSITIONS ALONG THE EAST BANK OF THE ODER.

MEANWHILE, HIS TANKS, LIGHT ARTILLERY AND TOMMYGUN ASSAULT SQUADS PUNCHED TO THE ODER'S EDGE BETWEEN DAMSCHER LAKE AND THE ODER HAFF, AFTER CAPTURING THE FLANKING POINTS OF GOLLNOW AND STEPENITZ.

RAIL AND HIGHWAY COMMUNICATIONS ON THE WEST SIDE OF THE RIVER JUST BELOW STETTIN HAVE BEEN BROKEN BY RUSSIAN SHELLING AND GUNNERS TODAY POUNDED POELITZ, TRAFFIC HUB SIX MILES DOWNSTREAM. RUSSIAN STORMOVIKS ATTACKED THE MAIN STETTIN-BERLIN ROAD.

ZHUKOV'S MOP-UP OF THE POMERANIAN SEABOARD OCCUPIED A CONSIDERABLE PART OF HIS ARMOR AND INFANTRY, BUT SOME DIVISIONS ALREADY HAVE BEEN RELEASED FOR NEW OPERATIONS WESTWARD TOWARD BERLIN.

THE BATTLE FOR STETTIN SHAPED UP AS TYPICAL OF THE GERMAN TACTICS OF CONVERTING CITIES INTO FORTRESSES FOR ISOLATED SUICIDAL ISLANDS OF RESISTANCE.

THE GERMANS CONCENTRATED ARTILLERY ON THE PORT'S PERIMETER AND RAPIDLY BUILT TRENCHES AND TANK TRAPS, AS THE RUSSIANS SWIFTLY MANEUVERED INTO VANTAGE POINTS FROM WHICH TO ATTEMPT AN EARLY ENCIRCLEMENT OF THE CITY.

MOSCOW, MARCH 8-(AP)-THE SOVIET UNION OBSERVED INTERNATIONAL WOMEN'S DAY BY PAYING TRIBUTE TODAY TO RUSSIAN WOMEN FOR THEIR TREMENDOUS CONTRIBUTIONS TO THE WAR EFFORT.

IT IS DOUBTFUL IF ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD HAVE WOMEN PLAYED GREATER PART IN THE WAR THAN THEY HAVE IN THE LAND OF THE RED STAR. IN FEW IF ANY COUNTRIES HAVE WOMEN CONTRIBUTED MORE TO THEIR HOMELAND.

AS MAGNIFICENT AS THE WOMEN OF BRITAIN HAVE BEEN DURING THE BLITZ ATTACKS AND THROUGH THE LONG, DREARY YEARS OF WAR, AS SPLENDID AS THE WOMEN OF AMERICA HAVE BEEN IN THE FACTORY LINE, ANY PERSON WHO HAS BEEN IN RUSSIA MUST TAKE HIS HAT OFF TO THOSE WHO WEAR SKIRTS IN THE SOVIET UNION.

THEY DRIVE TANKS IN THE THICKEST FIGHTING. THEY FLY BOMBERS OVER THE TOUGHEST TARGETS. THEY LOAD BOMBS ON ICY AIRFIELDS. THEY BUILD AND REPAIR PLANES. THEY LOAD BY HAND THOUSANDS OF TONS OF CARGO.

THEY MAN MACHINE GUNS ON THE FRONT. THEY FIRE ANTI-AIRCRAFT, THEY EVEN RIDE HORSES IN CAVALRY UNITS.

THE PERCENTAGE OF WOMEN ON COLLECTIVE AND STATE FARMS RUNS FROM 85 TO 90 PER CENT. THEIR PERCENTAGE IN FACTORIES RUNS FROM 60 TO 85 PER CENT. IT'S ABOUT 70 PER CENT IN COMMUNICATIONS, SUCH AS RAILWAYS AND MOTOR TRANSPORT.

RUSSIAN WOMEN HAVE BEEN HEROES OF THE SOVIET UNION'S HIGHEST INDIVIDUAL HONOR FOR GALLANTRY ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE. THEY HAVE BECOME MOTHER HEROINE IN THE OFFICIAL ROLLS OF THEIR COUNTRY BY BRINGING 10 OR MORE CHILDREN INTO THE WORLD.

THEY HAVE BEEN NURSES TO THE SICK AND WOUNDED AND BY THE THOUSANDS THEY HAVE GONE DOWN INTO MINES TO DIG COAL AND FUEL. AND TODAY, DESPITE THE HOLIDAY, RUSSIAN WOMEN ARE WORKING AS ON ANY OTHER DAY.

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS,GUAM,FRIDAY,MARCH 9 (AP)-A COORDINATED DRIVE BY THREE AMERICAN MARINE DIVISIONS SUPPORTED BY AIR, AND AND SEA BOMBARDMENT THREATENED TODAY TO SPLIT THE REMAINING JAPANESE ON IWO JIMA AS THE BITTER CAMPAIGN FOR THIS ISLAND FORTRESS NEARED A SUCCESSFUL CONCLUSION.

EXTREMELY SLOW GAINS, SUCH AS HAVE CHARACTERIZED THE FIGHTING FOR MANY DAYS, WERE EXPECTED AS THE LEATHERNECKS FOUGHT HAND TO HAND FOR EVERY PILLBOX AND EVERY CAVE.

THE SCORE OF ENEMY OPPOSITION ON THE RIGHT FLANK WAS WIPED OUT WEDNESDAY BY THE THIRD MARINE DIVISION'S CAPTURE OF ANOTHER HILL 362. THIS ONE, THE THIRD OF THAT HEIGHT TO BE SEIZED, IS EAST OF THE TOWN OF MOTOYAMA.

BELOW THIS POSITION THE FOURTH MARINE DIVISION PICKED UP 100 TO 200 YARDS IN ITS NORTHWARD DRIVE WHICH IS CLEARING THE COASTLINE.

ADVANCES OF ABOUT 500 YARDS WERE SCORED WEDNESDAY IN THE CENTER OF THE LINE BY THE THIRD DIVISION AND ON THE LEFT BY THE FIFTH MARINE DIVISION. THE GAINS WERE MADE IN THE FACE OF INTENSE SMALL ARMS AND MACHINEGUN FIRE.

MAR 9 - 1945

AP WAR CORRESPONDENT MORRIE LANDSBERG REPORTED THAT A TANK BATTALION FIGHTING WITH THE THIRD DIVISION REPELLED A SUICIDAL CHARGE MADE AGAINST ARMORED VEHICLES BY JAPANESE CARRYING LONG POLES ON WHICH EXPLOSIVES WERE MOUNTED. NOT A SINGLE TANK WAS DAMAGED BUT MANY ENEMY SOLDIERS WERE KILLED.

VICE ADM.RICHMOND K.TURNER, OVER-ALL AMPHIBIOUS COMMANDER, VISITED THE VOLCANIC ISLAND THURSDAY, INSPECTED ITS SHATTERED DEFENSES, TOOK NOTE OF ITS POSSIBILITIES AND CHATTED WITH MARINE COMMANDERS.

THE RESOLUTION, IN EFFECT WILL CALL UPON ARGENTINA TO CHANGE THE POLICIES THAT RESULTED IN HER EXCLUSION FROM THE FAMILY OF AMERICAN NATIONS. AN ARGENTINE DECLARATION OF WAR ON THE AXIS APPEARED TO BE A REQUISITE TO GENERAL RECOGNITION, ALTHOUGH THIS WAS NOT SPECIFICALLY MENTIONED.

THE STATEMENT, APPROVED LAST NIGHT BY THE FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE 20 NATIONS REPRESENTED HERE, WAS FRAMED AS AN ANSWER TO AN ARGENTINE REQUEST OF LAST OCTOBER FOR A CONFERENCE TO CONSIDER HER DIPLOMATIC ISOLATION.

THE RESOLUTION "DEPLORED THAT THE CIRCUMSTANCES" WHICH KEPT ARGENTINA FROM PARTICIPATING IN THE MEXICO CONFERENCE HAVE NOT UNDERGONE "ANY CHANGE TO JUSTIFY THAT THIS CONFERENCE" MOVE TO REESTABLISH, "AS IS ITS GREATEST WISH, UNIFORMITY IN THE POLITICAL SOLIDARITY OF ALL THE AMERICAN STATES."

EZEQUIEL PADILLA, MEXICAN FOREIGN MINISTER, WAS EMPOWERED TO RANSMIT THE DECLARATION TO THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT THROUGH THE PAN-AMERICAN UNION.

MAR 9 - 1945

AFTER LONG AND HEATED DEBATE, THE UNITED STATES' PROPOSED "ECONOMIC CHARTER OF THE AMERICAS" WAS APPROVED YESTERDAY AFTER BEING STRIPPED OF ITS FREE TRADE AND TARIFF REDUCTION CLAUSES.

THE DOCUMENT URGES THAT THE VARIOUS GOVERNMENTS WORK TO RAISE THE LIVING STANDARDS IN THEIR COUNTRIES, THAT TRADE DISCRIMINATIONS BE ELIMINATED, AND THAT TRADE BARRIERS OF ALL KINDS BE REMOVED. THE GENERAL EFFECT OF THE CHARTER IS EXPECTED TO BE A GRADUAL, REGULATED INDUSTRIALIZATION OF THE LATIN AMERICAN NATIONS AFTER THE WAR.

(ADVANCE FOR USE AT 11:15 P.M., EASTERN WAR TIME TONIGHT, THURSDAY, MARCH 8)

(ADVANCE) (WX) MEXICO CITY, MARCH 8-(AP)-TEXT OF A RADIO TALK TONIGHT BY UNITED STATES SECRETARY OF STATE EDWARD R. STETTINIUS, JR., OVER THE COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM AND STATION XEW, MEXICO CITY, ON THE RESULTS OF THE INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE: (ABOUT 900)

I BELIEVE THAT ALL OF THE TWENTY DELEGATIONS TO THE INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE ON PROBLEMS OF WAR AND PEACE IN MEXICO CITY SHARE MY OPINION THAT THE CONFERENCE HAS ACHIEVED TRULY HISTORIC RESULTS.

WE HAVE REAFFIRMED OUR WARTIME COLLABORATION IN THE STRUGGLE AGAINST AXIS COUNTRIES, STRENGTHENED OUR SYSTEM OF INTER-AMERICAN COOPERATION, AND ASSURED THE PARTICIPATION OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS IN THE EFFORT TO ORGANIZE THE WORLD FOR PEACE AND SECURITY.

THE CONCLUSIONS REACHED HERE WILL CONTRIBUTE TO THE SUCCESS OF THE CONFERENCE OF UNITED NATIONS AT SAN FRANCISCO IN APRIL, AND THEY ALSO FORESHADOW THE MORE COMPLETE AND PERFECT ORGANIZATION OF THE INTER-AMERICAN SYSTEM AT THE CONFERENCE OF AMERICAN STATES TO BE HELD AT BOGOTA IN 1946.

AMONG MANY NOTABLE ACHIEVEMENTS AT THIS MEXICO CITY CONFERENCE, AT LEAST SIX SEEM TO BE OF EXTRAORDINARY SIGNIFICANCE.

FIRST, WE HAVE AGREED TO STAMP OUT EVERY VESTIGE OF NAZI INFLUENCE IN THIS HEMISPHERE AND HAVE DECLARED THE FORMAL ADHERENCE OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS TO THE DECLARATION OF WAR CRIMINALS MADE IN OCTOBER 1943, BY GREAT BRITAIN, THE UNITED STATES AND THE SOVIET UNION. NO AXIS WAR CRIMINAL WILL BE ABLE TO ESCAPE PUNISHMENT BY TAKING REFUGE IN THIS HEMISPHERE.

SECOND, AFTER FULL DELIBERATION, TWENTY AMERICAN REPUBLICS HAVE ENDORSED THE DUMBARTON OAKS PROPOSALS AS A BASIS OF THE CHARTER FOR WORLD ORGANIZATION TO BE WRITTEN AT SAN FRANCISCO. THE THOUGHTS AND RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS WILL BE BROUGHT TO THE ATTENTION OF EACH OF THE UNITED NATIONS AND TO THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE ITSELF. THE WORLD CAN REST ASSURED THAT THE AMEICAN REPUBLICS ARE PREPARED TO JOIN WITH OTHER UNITED NATIONS IN THE SUCCESSFUL ESTABLISHMENT AND MAINTENANCE OF THE WORLD ORGANIZATION.

X24WX

THE THIRD GREAT ACCOMPLISHMENT OF THIS CONFERENCE IS THE ADOPTION OF THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC--NAMED FOR THE HISTORIC CASTLE WHICH WAS THE SCENE OF OUR MEETINGS--BY WHICH THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS WILL UNITE TO RESIST AGGRESSION WHETHER FROM WITHOUT OR WITHIN THIS HEMISPHERE.

THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS, IN ACCORDANCE WITH THEIR RESPECTIVE CONSTITUTIONAL PROCESSES AND WARTIME POWERS, HAVE AGREED TO ACT TOGETHER IN THE USE OF WHATEVER MEASURES, INCLUDING FORCE IF NECESSARY, THAT MAY BE REQUIRED TO PREVENT OR SUPPRESS AGGRESSION IN THIS HEMISPHERE.

OF COMPARABLE IMPORTANCE IS THE AGREEMENT TO STRENGTHEN AND REORGANIZE THE INTER-AMERICAN SYSTEM, AND TO PREPARE IT FOR WHATEVER NEW RESPONSIBILITIES IT MAY ASSUME WITHIN THE WORLD ORGANIZATION. CLIMAXING THE STEADY GROWTH OF INTER-AMERICAN FRATERNITY AND COOPERATION DURING A CENTURY, IT IS NOW AGREED THAT CONFERENCES OF AMERICAN STATES WILL BE HELD REGULARLY AT FOUR-YEAR INTERVALS; THAT THERE BE REGULAR ANNUAL AND SPECIAL EMERGENCY MEETINGS OF FOREIGN MINISTERS; THAT THE PAN AMERICAN UNION WILL BE GIVEN INCREASED POWERS. A NEW INTER-AMERICAN ECONOMIC AND SOCIAL COUNCIL IS CREATED, AND THE FUNCTIONS OF NUMEROUS EXISTING INTER-AMERICAN AGENCIES OF JURIDICAL, MILITARY, SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC CHARACTER ARE EXTENDED OR EMPHASIZEDM PARTICIPATION OF WOM

MILITARY, SOCIAL AND ECONOMIC CHARACTER ARE EXTENDED OR EMPHASIZED. PARTICIPATION OF WOMEN'S ORGANIZATIONS IN INTER-AMERICAN ACTIVITIES HAVE BEEN ENCOURAGED.

FIFTH, IN THE FIELD OF ECONOMIC COOPERATION AND SOCIAL WELFARE, AN ECONOMIC CHARTER OF THE AMERICAS AND A DECLARATION OF MEXICO HAVE STATED THE PRINCIPLES AND GUIDING PURPOSES OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS. THE REPUBLICS REPRESENTED HERE HAVE REDEDICATED THEMSELVES TO THE HIGH PRINCIPLES OF HUMANITY AND TO PRACTICAL MEASURES AS WELL, DESIGNED TO RAISE THE STANDARD OF LIVING OF THEIR PEOPLES IN AN ENVIRONMENT OF PEACE, LIBERTY AND SECURITY.

X25WX

AGREEMENTS HAVE ALSO BEEN REACHED ON WORKABLE MEASURES TO PROTECT THE ECONOMIES OF THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS DURING THE DIFFICULT PERIOD OF TRANSITION FROM WAR TO PEACE.

SIXTH, EVERY ONE OF THE TWENTY AMERICAN REPUBLICS REPRESENTED AT THIS CONFERENCE HAS JOINED IN A RESOLUTION STATING A UNITED POLICY TOWARD ARGENTINA. UNANIMOUSLY, THESE TWENTY AMERICAN REPUBLICS HAVE CALLED UPON THE ARGENTINE NATION TO UNITE WITH US IN OUR COMMON STRUGGLE AGAINST THE AGGRESSORS AND SO TO GUIDE ITS POLICIES THAT IT MAY BECOME ELIGIBLE TO SIGN THE DECLARATION BY THE UNITED NATIONS AND ADHERE TO THE FINAL ACT OF THIS CONFERENCE. IT IS OUR COMMON DESIRE THAT ARGENTINA BE ABLE TO RESUME HER TRADITIONAL PLACE IN THE FAMILY OF THE AMERICAN NATIONS AND RESTORE IN FULL MEASURE THE SOLIDARITY OF THIS HEMISPHERE.

FOR THESE AND MANY OTHER ACHIEVEMENTS, I WISH TO PAY TRIBUTE TO THE VISION AND STEADFASTNESS OF THE STATESMEN OF OTHER AMERICAN REPUBLICS AT THIS CONFERENCE. WE OFFER OUR PARTICULAR GRATITUDE AND OUR FELICITATIONS TO HIS EXCELLENCY MANUEL AVILA CAMACHO, PRESIDENT OF MEXICO; TO THE HONORABLE DR. EZEQUIEL PADILLA, FOREIGN MINISTER OF MEXICO; TO SENOR DON MANUEL TELLO, SECRETARY GENERAL OF THE CONFERENCE AND HIS MANY ABLE ASSISTANTS.

THE LABORS OF THIS CONFERENCE HAVE BEEN FOLLOWED WITH CONSTANT INTEREST AND GOOD WISHES BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES, WHOSE LONG AND EARNEST EFFORT TO FOSTER FRIENDSHIP AND COOPERATION AMONG THE AMERICAN REPUBLICS IS SO WELL KNOWN TO US ALL. IN OUR AGREEMENTS HERE, I BELIEVE, WE HAVE GIVEN CONCRETE EXPRESSION TO THAT SPIRIT OF THE GOOD NEIGHBOR WHICH HAS LONG SINCE FOUND ACCEPTANCE AMONG ALL THE PEOPLES OF THE AMERICAS.MLL (END ADVANCE FOR USE AT 11:15 P.M. SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 8-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT SENT THE FOLLOWING MESSAGE TO THE ENLISTED MEN AND OFFICERS WHO RETURNED HERE TODAY FROM THE PHILIPPINES WHERE THEY HAD BEEN PRISONERS OF WAR OF THE JAPANESE UNTIL RELEASED BY THE RANGERS JAN. 30:

"IT GIVES ME SPECIAL PLEASURE TO WELCOME YOU BACK TO YOUR NATIVE SHORES, AND TO EXPRESS, ON BEHALF OF THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES, THE JOY WE FEEL AT YOUR DELIVERANCE FROM THE HANDS OF THE ENEMY. IT IS A SOURCE OF PROFOUND SATISFACTION THAT OUR EFFORTS TO ACCOMPLISH YOUR RETURN HAVE BEEN SUCCESSFUL.

"MAY GOD GRANT EACH OF YOU HAPPINESS AND AN EARLY RETURN TO YOUR HEALTH."

THE JAPANESE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY REPORTED TODAY THAT THE DIET (PARLIAMENT) WOULD RECONVENE ON SUNDAY AND PREMIER GEN. KUNIAKI KOISO WOULD BE ASKED TO OUTLINE PROGRESS IN CARRYING OUT "DECISIVE WAR POLICIES," EXPLAIN "COUNTERMEASURES BEING PLANNED FOR DISASTERS" AND THE GOVERNMENT'S ATTITUDE TOWARD THE "CURRENT SITUATION".

THE DOMEI DISPATCH, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID THE THREE QUESTIONS WOULD BE ASKED BY A SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE OF THE IMPERIAL RULE ASSISTANCE POLITICAL SOCIETY, PARLIAMENTARY WING OF THE IMPERIAL RULE ASSISTANCE ASSOCIATION (IRAA).

RECALL OF THE DIET AFTER LESS THAN A MONTHS RECESS RESULTED FROM AGITATION FOR DIRECT ASSURANCE OF KOISO'S "DETERMINATION TO COPE WITH THE GRAVITY OF THE WAR SITUATION" AND FOR FORMATION OF A NEW TOTALITARIAN PARTY TO REPLACE THE IRAA.

DOMEI SAID THE PARLIAMENT WOULD ACT ON EMERGENCY WARTIME MEASURES AFTER THE GOVERNMENT CLARIFIES ITS WARTIME POLICIES.

THE CALL, WHICH THE NEWS SAID WAS ONE OF THE FIRST BETWEEN THE UNITED STATES AND ROME SINCE RESUMPTION OF SUCH COMMUNICATION LAST FRIDAY, WAS ANSWERED BY MSGR. WALTER S. CARROLL WHO TOLD CONWAY HE WOULD COMMUNICATE CONWAY'S QUESTIONS TO THE POPE AND CABLE BACK THE REPLIES.

THE FIRST QUESTION WAS: "HAS HIS HOLINESS ANY IDEAS ON GREATER COOPERATION BETWEEN THE VATICAN AND THE UNITED STATES FOR POSTWAR SECURITY OR FOR THE PLANNING OF POSTWAR PEACE?"

THE PONTIFF REPLIED: "THE VATICAN IS WILLING AND ANXIOUS AT ALL TIMES TO AFFORD THE FULLEST COOPERATION TO ANY UNDERTAKING AIMED AT ESTABLISHING JUST AND ENDURING PEACE AND AT ADVANCING THE WELFARE OF HUMAN SOCIETY."

MAR 9 - 1945

THE SECOND QUESTION WAS: "HOW ARE CONDITIONS IN ITALY AND WHAT, IN THE OPINION OF HIS HOLINESS, CAN THE UNITED STATES DO TO AMELIORATE OR HELP CONDITIONS THERE?"

THE POPE ANSWERED: "THE VATICAN IS DEEPLY CONCERNED OVER THE TRAGIC FATE OF THE POOR UNFORTUNATE VICTIMS OF WAR EVERYWHERE AND WOULD VIEW WITH PARTICULAR SATISFACTION AND APPRECIATION ANY EFFORTS EXPENDED TOWARD IMPROVING THEIR LOT AND TOWARD PROVIDING THEM WITH THE POSSIBILITY OF A DECENT LIVELIHOOD."

BALTIMORE, MARCH 8-(AP)-WHEN LIEUTENANT GENERAL GEORGE S.PATTON ORDERED THOUSANDS OF HIS MEN TO SWIM ACROSS THE SWIFT AND COLD SURE RIVER WITH THEIR EQUIPMENT, HE KNEW IT COULD BE DONE--AND JUST TO PROVE IT, HE DID.

THE STORY OF PATTON'S INSPIRING SWIM ACROSS THE 150-FOOT SURE, A WATER OBSTACLE UNDER HEAVY ENEMY FIRE NEAR THE MEETING PLACE OF THE LUXEMBOURG, GERMAN AND BELGIAN BORDERS, WAS TOLD BY ONE OF THE MEN WHO FOLLOWED HIM--STAFF SERGEANT THOMAS J.DEFIBAUGH OF CUMBERLAND, MD.

DEFIBAUGH SAID THAT DESPITE THE HAIL OF ENEMY MACHINE GUN AND ARTILLERY FIRE, THE SURE HAD TO BE CROSSED QUICKLY SO THAT THE FOURTH DIVISION COULD TAKE THE TOWN OF BETTENDORF ON THE OPPOSITE BANK, RELIEVING PRESSURE ON THE TRAPPED AMERICAN FORCES AT BASTOGNE LAST DECEMBER.

THE SOLDIER, TOURING BALTIMORE WAR PLANTS WITH OTHER BASTOGNE HEROES, SAID THE TROOPS FIRST BEGAN TO CROSS THE RIVER IN THREE-MAN BOATS. CHUNKS OF ICE IN THE WATER GAVE EVIDENCE OF THE SURE'S TEMPERATURE.

"AFTER A WHILE, HOWEVER," DEFIBAUGH SAID, "GENERAL PATTON CALLED THE BOATS BACK AND ORDERED THE MEN TO SWIM ACROSS WITH RIFLES, BAZOOKAS AND EVERYTHING THEY COULD CARRY BECAUSE THEY WERE 'SITTING PIGEONS' FOR THE GERMANS WHILE IN THE BOATS, SITTING TWO OR THREE FEET OUT OF THE WATER."

GENERAL PATTON REASONED THAT TROOPS SWIMMING THE RIVER WOULD PRESENT MUCH SMALLER TARGETS TO THE ENEMY.

TO SHOW HIS MEN THAT THE RIVER COULD BE SWUM, GENERAL PATTON JUMPED INTO THE WATER AND SWAM TO THE OPPOSITE BANK AND THEN SWAM BACK, DEFIBAUGH CONTINUED. "THOUSANDS OF TROOPS FOLLOWED HIM," THE STAFF SERGEANT CONCLUDED.

Accomplishments of Inter-American Parley in Mexico City

Special to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, March 8—Partial texts and summaries of the most important resolutions adopted by the Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace, which ended today, follow:

Political and Military Defense

Argentina

The Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace resolves:

(1) Deplore that the Argentine Nation has up to the present time not found it possible to take steps that would allow it to participate in the Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace, with the conclusions of which the principle of the solidarity of the hemisphere is consolidated and extended.

(2) To recognize that the unity of the Nations of America is indivisible and that the Argentine Nation is and always has been an integral part of the Union of American Republics.

(3) To manifest its desire that the Argentine Nation may put itself in a position to express its conformity with and adherence to the principles and declarations resulting from the conference of Mexico—principles and declarations that enrich the juridical and political heritage of the continent and enlarge the scope of American public law, to which on so many occasions Argentina has made notable contributions.

(4) To renew the declaration established at Havana, amplified and stressed in the Act of Chapultepec, and demonstrated in the association of the American republics as members of the United Nations, to the effect that the conference considers that complete solidarity and a common policy among the American States in the face of any menace or acts of aggression on the part of any state against an American State are essential to the security and the peace of the continent.

(5) To declare that the conference hopes that the Argentine Nation will cooperate with the other American nations by identifying itself with the common policy pursued by the latter and by orienting its own policy until it achieves its incorporation into the United Nations as a signatory of the joint declarations drawn up by them.

(6) To declare that the final act of the conference is open to adhesion by the Argentine nation, provided always that it be in accord with the criteria of this resolution, and that his Excellency, Dr. Ezequiel Padilla, the chairman of the conference, be empowered to communicate the resolutions of this Assembly to the Argentine Government through the Pan American Union.

Act of Chapultepec

The Governments represented at the Inter-American Conference on the Problems of War and Peace, declare * * *

That every attack of a State against the integrity or the inviolability of the territory or against the sovereignty or political independence of an American State, shall, * * * be considered as an act of aggression against the other States which sign this act * * *

That in case acts of aggression occur, or there may be reasons to believe that an aggression is being prepared by any other State against the integrity and inviolability of the territory or against the sovereignty or political independence of an American State, the States signatory to this act will consult amongst themselves in order to agree upon the measures it may be advisable to take.

That during the war and until the treaty recommended in Part II hereof is concluded, the signatories of this act recognize that such threats and acts of aggression constitute an interference with the war effort of the United Nations, calling for such procedures within the scope of their constitutional powers of a general nature and for war as may be found necessary * * *

That the principles and procedures contained in this Declaration shall become effective immediately inasmuch as any act of aggression or threat of aggression during the present state of war interferes with the war effort of the United Nations to obtain victory. * * *

The Inter-American Conference on Problems of War and Peace therefore recommends:

That for the purpose of meeting threats or acts of aggression against any American Republic following the establishment of peace, the Governments of the American Republics should consider the conclusion, in accordance with their constitutional processes, of a treaty establishing procedure whereby threats or acts may be met by the use of force if necessary.

The above declaration and recommendations constitute a regional arrangement for dealing with such matters relating to the maintenance of international peace and security as are appropriate for regional action in this hemisphere. But that arrangement and the pertinent activities and procedures shall be consistent with the purposes and principles of the general international organization, when established.

Dumbarton Oaks and San Francisco

The Inter-American Conference declares:

That the Dumbarton Oaks proposals constitute a basis for an invaluable contribution to the setting up of a general international organization which may permit the achievement of a just, peaceful order and the welfare of all nations, which the American republics are striving to attain [and, therefore, the] resolve:

(1) That the Secretary of the Conference transmit to the states which formulated the Dumbarton Oaks proposal and to the other nations invited to the forthcoming conference at San Francisco and to that conference itself, this resolution and the reports with the documents thereto attached containing the views, comments and suggestions which, in the judgment of the American republics presenting them, should be taken into consideration in the formulation of the definitive charter of the projected organization, especially the following points regarding which a consensus exists among the American republics represented in this conference that did not participate in the Dumbarton Oaks conversations:

(a) The aspiration of universality as an ideal toward which the organization should tend in the future;

(b) The desirability of amplifying and making more specific the enumeration of the principles and purposes of the organization;

(c) The desirability of amplifying and making more specific the powers of the General Assembly in order that its action as a fully representative organ of the international community may be rendered effective, harmonizing the powers of the security council with such amplifications;

(d) The desirability of extending the jurisdiction and competence of the International Tribunal or Court of Subjects;

(e) The desirability of creating an international agency specially designed with promoting and directing an oral cooperation between nations;

(f) The desirability of solving controversies and questions of an inter-American character in accordance with inter-American methods and procedures;

(g) The desirability of giving an adequate representation to Latin America in the Security Council.

Permanent Military Agency

The Inter-American Conference recommends:

(1) That the Governments consider the creation at the earliest possible time of a permanent agency formed by the representatives of each one of the General Staffs of the American Republics for the purpose of proposing to the said Governments measures for a better military collaboration between all the Governments and for the defense of the Western Hemisphere.

(2) That the Inter-American Defense Board continue as an agency of inter-American defense, until the establishment of the permanent body provided for in this recommendation.

War Crimes and Elimination of Subversive Activities

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) To recommend that the Governments of the American Republics do not give refuge to individuals guilty of or responsible for or accomplices in the commission of such crimes.

(2) To recommend that the Governments of the American Republics shall upon the demand of any of the United Nations * * * surrender individuals charged with the commission of such crimes to the United Nations making the request, or to the custody of the agency of the United Nations which may be established for trial and punishment of such criminals. * * *

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

To reaffirm the determination of the participating Governments to prevent individuals or groups within their respective jurisdictions from engaging in any activities fomented by the Axis Powers or their satellites for the purpose of prejudicing the individual or collective security and welfare of the American Republics recommend;

(1) That the participating Republics, individually and collectively, intensify their efforts to eradicate the remaining centers of Axis subversive influence in the hemisphere, whether such influence is exercised by the Axis Powers or by their satellites or by the agents of either.

(2) That the participating Republics take effective measures to prevent Axis-inspired elements from regaining or securing any vantage points within the territory subject to their respective jurisdictions from which such elements might disturb or threaten the security or welfare of any Republic. * * *

Strengthening the Inter-American System

The conference of American Republics cooperating in the war effort resolves:

(1) That the International Conference of American States shall meet ordinarily at four-year intervals * * * and the ordinary meetings of the Ministers of Foreign Affairs shall be held annually upon call by the Governing Board of the Pan American Union. * * *

(2) The Governing Board of the Pan American Union shall be composed of one ad hoc delegate designated by each of the American Republics, which delegate shall have the rank of Ambassador and shall enjoy the privileges and immunities thereof but shall not be part of the diplomatic mission accredited to the Government in whose territory shall be the seat of the Pan American Union.

(3) In addition to its present functions, the Governing Board of the Pan American Union shall (among other things) take action within the limitations imposed upon it by the International Conference of American States or pursuant to the specific direction of the meetings of Foreign Ministers on every matter which affects the effective functioning of the inter-American system and the solidarity and well-being of American Republics. * * *

Tribute to Canada

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) To pay a tribule of admiration and gratitude to Canada for its magnificent war effort in the defense of the American Continent;

(2) To express its wish that the collaboration of Canada with the Pan-American system shall become ever closer.

Free Access to Information

The Inter-American Conference recommends:

(1) That the American Republics recognize their essential obligation to guarantee to their people free and impartial access to sources of information;

(2) That with this assurance in view they undertake, upon the conclusion of the war, the earliest possible abandonment of those measures of censorship and of control over the services of the press and radio which have been necessary in wartime to combat the subversive political tactics and espionage activities of the Axis States . . .

Summaries of other resolutions in the field of political and military defense are as follows:

Control of Armaments

This resolution proposes that the American Republics adopt necessary measures to reserve to their Governments the control over the manufacture and distribution of armaments within their territory as well as the international traffic in arms.

Atlantic Charter

The Governments of America reaffirm the principles and purposes of the Atlantic Charter.

Crimes of Aggression

This resolution recommends that American Governments that have not done so adopt legislation making it a national crime to support or aid a non-American State that has attacked an American State.

Declaration of Mexico

This resolution reaffirms the principles governing the relations between the American States, emphasizing the primacy of international law and the non-recognition of gains acquired by aggression.

Economic Questions

Economic Charter of the Americas

The American republics collaborating in the war effort * * * declare their firm purpose to collaborate in a program for the attainment of:

(1) The continuation of mobilization of their economic resources until the achievement of total victory.

(2) An orderly transition of the economic life of the Americas from war to peacetime conditions, with joint action looking to the maintenance of the economic stability of the American republics during such transition period.

(3) A constructive basis for the sound economic development of the Americas through the development of natural resources, industrialization, improvement of transportation, modernization of agriculture, development of power facilities and public works, the encouragement of investment of private capital, managerial capacity and technical skill, and the improvement of labor standards and working conditions, including collective bargaining, all leading to a rising level of living and increased consumption.

The American republics in the attainment of these ends, recognizing that these objectives form a fundamental aspiration of peoples everywhere and given the cooperation of like-minded nations, declare as their guiding principle:

[Here the economic charter lists ten principles that will govern their policies, including equality of access "on equal terms to the trade and raw materials of the world"; elimination of excesses of economic nationalism; restriction of private business arrangements that obstruct international trade; just and equitable treatment for foreign enterprises and capital; the promotion of the system of private enterprise.]

Economic Adjustment in Transition Period

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) That the supply and acquisition of basic products and strategic materials be continued, consistent with war requirements, by the American Nations with the same determination as has been manifested up to now until final victory is attained.

(2) That the American Governments recognizing the problems and purposes herein recited and their common interests in and responsibilities for the minimizing of serious consequences which may result to the economies of their countries through reduction in the procurement of certain basic products and strategic materials during the period of transition, agree:

(a) That when during the transition period it should finally become necessary to effect reductions in the volume of procurement under agreements with Governments or by Government agencies for the acquisition of certain basic products and strategic materials which are likely seriously to affect the stability of the economy of one or more producing countries, the affected country or countries and the country or countries purchasing such products and materials shall adopt, through bilateral arrangements, measures designed to minimize, during the transition period, the adverse consequences to the economy of the countries concerned by orderly adjustment of the procurement contracts or by any other suitable means. * * *

(b) That all effort shall be made to attain, as rapidly as possible, the re-establishment of normal commercial trade in these commodities.

(c) To formulate appropriate plans, by common agreement, as far in advance as the uncertainties of war permit, so that each country shall enjoy the maximum of time for its readjustment in connection with reduction in the procurement of basic products and strategic materials for war.

Economic Control

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) That the special control which has been or may be unavoidably imposed on international trade owing to the war situation shall be eliminated in the interest of the development of trade in the post-war period as soon as possible and in a manner compatible with the most efficient prosecution of the war, having regard for the fact that at the end of hostilities the temporary maintenance of such restrictions might be necessary, but only for general purposes directly related to the transition from war to peace or to the economic stability of the country in question during such period.

(2) That each American Government adopt a gradual procedure for the modification of its laws, measures and emergency orders designed to protect the national economic status, having regard for the rate at which means of production and transportation worn down as a result of the war or rendered obsolete in view of technical improvements are expanded.

Social and Cultural Relations

Declaration of Social Principles

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) To consider of international public interest the enacting by all the American republics of social legislation that will protect the working class and that will embody guarantees as well as rights on a scale not inferior to the one recommended by the International Labor Organization.

(2) To establish in all countries of the hemisphere a minimum living wage, computed in accordance with the living conditions pertaining to the geography and economy of each American country; that this salary be elastic and related to the increase in prices, so that its remunerative capacity protects and increases the purchasing power of the worker.

(3) To develop the application of social insurance for illness, old age, disablement, death, maternity and unemployment.

(4) To provide for services of preventive medicine, protection of women and children, nutrition and the enactment of necessary legislation to establish adequate means of hygiene, industrial insurance and professional risks.

Racial or Religious Discrimination

The Inter-American Conference resolves:

(1) To reaffirm the principle recognized by all the American States of equality of rights and opportunities for all men regardless of race or religion.

(2) To recommend to the Governments of the American Republics that, without prejudicing the freedom of the spoken or written word, they make in their respective countries every effort to prevent all acts which tend to provoke discrimination between individuals by reason of their race or religion.

Democratic Education

The Inter-American conference resolves:

(1) To recommend to the Governments of the American Republics the most careful deletion from the official textbooks used in their schools of everything which might tend to jeopardize the inter-American system.

(2) To recommend to the Governments of the American republics that they exercise the greatest vigilance to see that the teachings in their schools are based on the principles of peace, justice, freedom and equality that are found in the bases of the inter-American system.

(3) To recommend to the Governments of the American republics the deletion from official textbooks used in their schools of everything which sustains directly or indirectly racial or totalitarian theories or which might therefore be susceptible of compromising the friendly relations existing between the States of the Continent.

Summaries of other resolutions in the social and cultural fields are the following:

Essential Rights of Man

This resolution calls on the American States to declare themselves in favor of a system of international protection of the rights of man, and it charges the Inter-American Juridical Committee with the preparation of a draft declaration of these rights, which shall be submitted to all the Governments of the Continent within the next six months.

Equal Rights for Women

This resolution recommends that, "within the conditions peculiar to the respective countries," each country should adapt its legislative system to the objective of abolishing "any existing discriminations by reasons of sex."

Protection of European Children

This resolution recommends that the international American institutes for the protection of children give special attention to the manner in which the American republics may help in taking care and providing opportunities for the European children who are homeless.

DOUGHBOYS SEIZE BONN

First, Third Armies Link West of Rhine Trapping 50,000 Germans.

Boetmer

PARIS, Saturday, March 10.—(AP) The first major battle of the U. S. First army's Rhine bridgehead was taking form today as German columns converged on the American toehold east of the river and began pumping heavy shells at the bridge on which the crossing was made.

A field dispatch said the enemy forces were seen approaching the scene last night with all lights on—presumably evidence of violent reaction to the Allies' growing threat to inner Germany.

In a dispatch sent from the bridgehead at 2 a. m., Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said "there is no doubt that the Germans are making a supreme effort to bring up available strength to throw in a counter-attack designed to drive the Americans back across the Rhine."

Battle Lost for Nazis

But he expressed the view that the Germans already had lost the race. The First army is steadily strengthening the bridgehead with what he called an "awesome display of power."

The Americans smashed the first tank-led counter-attack at the bridgehead yesterday. To the south the First and U. S. Third armies linked up west of the Rhine, trapping an estimated 50,000 Germans to the west.

Men, guns, tanks and supplies poured into the expanding bridgehead 28 miles south of Cologne across the great Ludendorff bridge, officially disclosed to have been taken intact.

German planes in ones, twos and threes tried repeatedly to knock out the bridge during the day, but were shot down or driven off by [illegible] alert anti-aircraft gunners guarding what for the moment is the key to the whole battle against Germany on the west.

Supreme headquarters blacked out the scope of the advance, but it was possible that a breakout on the road to Berlin might be disclosed at any hour.

(A Blue network correspondent broadcast from the front that the bridgehead had been doubled in size and width since yesterday and that "a number of towns and villages" had been captured).

Bonn, Rhineland city of 101,000 fell to the First army north of the middle Rhine bridgehead, and the Third army to the south battled within four miles of the traffic center of Coblenz after sweeping the enemy from the Coblenz plain west of the Rhine.

Remagen Span Seized Intact; U.S. Foothold Now Believed 5 Miles Deep, More Than 5 Wide

Paris, March 9 (AP)—The American 1st Army steadily reinforced and built up its Rhine bridgehead today at a point south of Cologne which the Germans said was Remagen, 227 miles southwest of Berlin.

The Germans said the Americans had captured a bridge intact at Remagen. The Ludendorff span there is a double-track railroad bridge capable of bearing tanks, trucks and foot troops. A Berlin military spokesman said the 1st Army troops found the bridge, which, "by chance," was not destroyed.

Remagen is about halfway between invested Bonn and threatened Coblenz. Of the crossing, the Berlin radio said:

"At Remagen, the Americans succeeded in crossing to the eastern bank of the Rhine. These relatively weak U.S.A. forces could penetrate on the eastern bank of the Rhine. Their advance guards were, however, halted by German bolt positions before the town of Linz." Linz is 3 miles east of Remagen, where the Ludendorff railway bridge was reported intact only two days ago

Bad Godesburg, the resort town three miles south of Bonn where Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain held their second meeting in 1938 to arrange "peace in our time," was captured by the First Army's Ninth Infantry division and Doughboys cleared the west bank of the Rhine as far south as Remagen.

Blow Bridge at Bonn

The only bridge at Bonn was blown today by the Germans after they had shot up some of their own tanks with artillery in a determined effort to prevent an American crossing.

On one of the blackest days for Germany since Hitler plunged Europe into the Second World War within a generation, the Allies handed the enemy more bad news by disclosing that the U. S. 15th army now was on the Western front at an undisclosed sector.

Under Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, a corps commander on D-day, the New 15th gave Gen. Eisenhower nine armies—five of them American—for the showdown battles of Germany.

The Germans counter-attacked Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army bridgehead in force for the first time today with elements of an armored division, but were hurled back. It was estimated that the bridgehead now was 10 or more miles wide.

Obviously, the German high command was marshalling all available forces to attempt to drive the Americans into the Rhine. Allied heavy bombers carried out two obliteration raids on Kassel, a rail city 110 miles east of the bridgehead, to keep enemy communications snarled.

It was considered likely here that the Americans were well over five miles beyond the river, for field dispatches told of the Americans boring steadily deeper into Germany while mountains of supplies, and strong reinforcements were built up to the rear.

Seize Ludendorff Bridge

More than 48 hours after the crossings, Supreme headquarters took the wraps off the story of the bridgehead—one of the most dramatic of the war—and disclosed that daring American troops seized the Ludendorff double-track road and railway bridge intact at Remagen.

They then speared across the stream and captured a town on the superhighway leading northeastward to the Ruhr basin.

While the Ninth Armored division, which took the bridge, exploited its advantage today, other First army forces sped eight and 12 miles farther south and met the Third army's 11th armored division at Brohl and at the Rhine ferry of Andernach, which has a population of 10,000.

Third army troops moved so swiftly for this junction that they captured a general and his staff at Andernach, took 4,000 prisoners along its front and seized such huge quantities of booty that a front dispatch said it probably would take days to estimate it.

West of them in the Eifel mountains, five or more German divisions were caught in a gigantic sack, with roads north, east and south under the guns of converging First and Third Army infantry and tanks.

The U. S. Third army drove north along the Rhine to a point within eight miles of a junction with the First army, and was laying siege to the Rhineland city of Coblenz (pop. 80,000). To the west, German resistance collapsed in the Eifel mountains and an estimated 50,000 troops were left stranded with all Rhine bridges in the area destroyed.

On the north, the Canadian First army was crushing the last German stand in the Wesel area after seizing the anchor town of Xanten. The Germans said eight British divisions were preparing to storm across the Rhine and strike for the Reich's northern plain outflanking the Ruhr's industries.

In the middle Rhine, the Americans had captured virtually all the Rhine transit center of Bonn, and the Germans had blown the bridge there and two others at Coblenz, fearful that new crossing attempts were imminent.

Ninth Army Resting

In fact, one German commentator said the U. S. Ninth army which made the Roer breakthrough, had been resting for three days and might drive across the Rhine in new offensive at any hour.

But for the moment the main efforts on both sides were concentrated on the Remagen bridgehead, which the Germans admitted was made possible by their failure to blow the 1,200 foot Ludendorff bridge in one of the most monumental blunders of military history.

Supreme headquarters let it be told that the bridge fell Wednesday to Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard's Ninth Armored division after a sensational 25-mile dash from Euskirchen at such high speed that the Germans had no time to organize a defense.

Even as the first Americans ran boldly out on the bridge at 3:50 p.m.—10 minutes before the enemy planned to blow it—waiting Germans threw the plunger that touched off one batch of explosives and caused superficial damage.

Before the Germans could try again, wires had been ripped, armored infantry had stormed across, hundreds of Germans threw down their arms, and the Americans seized a 300-foot bluff at the eastern end of the bridge.

Other heights were captured which left the Germans without direct observation of the crossing area, and the bluff itself protected the vital bridge from direct fire.

First east bank town to fall was Erpen, across the Rhine from Remagen and on a superhighway leading northeastward toward the munitions factories of the Ruhr basin.

The Germans said the Americans struck north and south but were checked at Linz, a mile south of Erpel.

At Remagen the Rhine is more than 1,000 feet wide and banks are steep.

Bridgehead Believed 5 Miles Deep, More Than 5 Wide

Supreme Allied headquarters continued strict secrecy This much was known, however, through the more than 45 shrouded hours since the infantry crossed at 3.50 P.M. Wednesday in one of the greatest military strokes since the invasion of Normandy.

Hodges was pouring troops by the thousands [17 words censored] into the east-bank bridgehead, which presumably was a good 5 miles deep and wider than that.

Up to latest reports at supreme headquarters—covering action well into yesterday evening—the Germans had been able neither to rally enough strength for a fighting stand nor to get enough troops to the danger point for serious counterattacks, although three small ones were made.

The Rhine crossing was made and the bridgehead was expanded under some mortar and small arms fire. This was neither heavy nor particularly effective.

Drive East Would Flank Ruhr Basin

Remagen is 30 miles south-southeast of Cologne and 20 miles northwest of Coblenz, where American 3d Army elements stood a bare 4 miles away.

No great German cities lie immediately beyond Remagen, but a drive eastward would flank the Ruhr Basin. A smash northward would overrun its cities and factories, which, near the start of the war, supplied Hitler with three fourths of his arms. A drive southward up the Rhine would encircle the whole Saar industrial district and the Palatinate.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's aggressive 3d Army overran two thirds of the Coblenz Plain and seized Miesenheim, 15 miles south of Remagen. With the 1st Army, he was rapidly forging a trap on perhaps 50,000 Germans caught in his audacious plunge to the Rhine near Coblenz two days ago.

On the lower Rhine, the Canadians captured Xanten, and compressed the west Rhine bridgehead opposite Wesel down to a 20 square mile triangle.

Capture Of Bonn And Bad Godesberg Near

Just north of Remagen, 1st Division men were cleaning out Bonn; they drove to the Rhine inside the city overnight. Resistance was strong, but the city was being cleared block by block by infantry-tank combat teams. The Bonn bridge was blown up, and was within sight of the infantrymen who were on the river. The fall of Bonn could not long be delayed.

The troops were also fighting for the last fourth of Bad Godesberg, 3 miles up river from Bonn.

The exploits of the 1st and 3d armies constituted one of the greatest victories in the career of Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, commanding the 12th Army Group. He had administered a rapid succession of defeats to Field Marshal von Rundstedt, including the crossing of the Roer, the capture of Cologne and now the Rhine crossing, and the possible destruction of five or six German divisions caught between his armies, commanded by Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges and Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr.

Indications Of The Bridgehead's Size

Briefing officers at supreme headquarters explained that the use of the term "bridgehead" for the Rhine crossing means that the foothold is secured beyond the range of the enemy's light artillery. The main German light fieldpiece is a 77-mm. gun, with a range of 4 miles. This would suggest that the bridgehead had been pushed at least 4 miles east of the Rhine and about 8 miles along its eastern banks, covering perhaps a minimum of 32 square miles.

Frontline correspondents made this clear: The bridgehead was secure. It was constantly receiving streams of reinforcements. The Germans were confused. Opposition was light and desultory at first. Three counterattacks made when the Germans realized what had happened were repelled. One of these forced the Americans back 500 yards from a command post, but the 1st Army veterans recoiled and threw the Nazis back.

Names Of Air Targets Withheld

Supreme headquarters said simply: "Our units have reached the Rhine and crossed it to establish a bridgehead on the east bank, south of Cologne."

Even the aerial section of General Eisenhower's communiqué carefully avoided clues to the bridgehead's location by failing to name exact targets. It said merely: "Striking at the enemy's communications leading to the area of our bridgehead over the Rhine south of Cologne, medium and light bombers attacked targets in a number of towns."

The 1st Army troops east of the Rhine in the area between Cologne and Coblenz were in the Westerwalde, where wooded hills rise to 2,000 feet. The terrain is tough and obscured, but both the 1st and 3d armies have overcome worse country.

No Fixed Fortifications

So far as is known, no fixed fortifications, such as the Siegfried Line, or fortress cities lie ahead. The German positions are believed to be largely old-style trenches, scattered pillboxes and blockhouses and the like—with little steel and concrete.

At Remagen, 12 miles south of Bonn, the east bank of the Rhine rises abruptly beyond Erpel in the hill country just south of the Ruhr. A superhighway through Erpel connects with the Ruhr road network to the north.

By the time supreme headquarters discloses specific news of the bridgehead the 1st Army may be well under way with a breakout.

The weather began to break in favor of the Allies. Skies were clearer after three days of drizzling rain.

Most Of Xanten In Ruins

The dramatic Rhine crossing overshadowed all other developments along the 450-mile front from the Alps to the North Sea. General Eisenhower has at least 79 divisions on the assault line. Seven armies are on the Rhine.

The Wesel pocket at the northwest corner of the Ruhr was cracking under the pressure of the Canadians and British and Americans of the 9th Army. Xanten fell after a week of the most violent fighting, remindful of the Normandy battles around Caen. Most of the town, built around a Thirteenth Century Cathedral, was demolished.

Possible Berlin Route

In this pocket the attacking Allies faced one of the fiercest concentrations of heavy artillery and mortars since D-day but closed steadily on the German parachute troopers, estimated two days ago to number 20,000. Mingweis, on the Rhine, and Beek, just west of the river, were taken.

Should the Rhine be crossed at Wesel, the Allies would gain a network of fine roads for bursts into the flat north German plain toward Berlin. This would allow flanking of the Ruhr from the north.

The 9th Army, attacking the Wesel pocket from the south, fought in and around Ossenberg and Huck, both within artillery range of the Ruhr city from the south.

Probably considerably less than fifteen miles separated the 1st and 3d armies between Coblenz and Bonn, for Patton's tanks and foot troops were moving swiftly and enveloping town after town. His fourth armored division patrolled the Rhine above Coblenz and his 11th Armored Division was striking toward a merger with Hodges's 9th Armored Division moving south and southwest of Bonn.

'Brave Sarge' Gets It Crossing Rhine

Across the Rhine, March 8 [AP—Delayed]—The saddest story of the Rhine crossing is the story of the young sergeant who didn't quite make it.

"He was one of the finest and bravest men we ever had," said Lieut. K. P. Larson, Duncan, Okla. "Everybody liked and respected him.

"He had been recommended for a battlefield commission and word that it had been approved had come through; but we were moving up fast and had a battle on our hands, so he was to have received his commission formally today.

Shells Hit Near By

"He was in one of the first groups to make the crossing over the Rhine."

Larson was telling the story in an old house serving as a command post and as he talked German shells were whistling overhead and exploding less than 100 yards down the road.

Just after one burst an officer came in, poured himself a small drink of Rhine wine from a bottle on the table and said:

"That last one killed one of our doughs moving up." The other officers nodded, but there just didn't seem to be anything to say. They all knew the next shell might have their own numbers on it.

First One Killed

"This sergeant," Larson finally went on, "was in front of his men guiding them across the river, when German ack-ack gunners in hill positions on the other side spotted them and turned their 20-millimeter guns on them. They're wicked things when used against infantry.

"The first one to catch it was the sergeant. He was killed. He never got his commission and he never lived to see what we did to the Jerries trying to hold us up."

Larson paused to take a gulp of wine, and then said hurriedly with that strange shyness men feel in expressing admiration for battle comrades:

"He was a good, hard-working boy. It hurt me to see him go."

Dash Across Rhine Led By Sergeant From Ohio

Lieut. Burrows, of Jersey City, Also in Van in Crossing

ON THE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD, March 9 (AP).—A gangling embarrassed former butcher boy Holland, Ohio, received the praise today of his commanding general for leading the heroic charge across the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen and completing the capture of the span which gave the United States 1st Army the first Allied bridgehead across the Rhine.

A careful check disclosed that Sergeant Alexander A. Drabik actually was the first American to step on the east bank of the Rhine. Behind him came ten riflemen shooting as they ran in a wild dash which surprised the Germans before they could blow the bridge.

This takes none of the glory from Lieutenant Emmet J. Burrows, of Jersey City, whose platoon was in the fight also and helped capture Remagen Bridge.

Brigadier General William M. Hoge, of Lexington, Mo., praised Drabik's heroism as the greatest single factor in establishing the bridgehead and singled him out as the man who deserved the most individual credit. It was Hoge's "Combat Command B" which took the bridge.

Prepared for Demolition

The bridge had been prepared for demolition and small explosions in the great steel structure occurred even as a company of American armored infantrymen stormed across through German anti-aircraft gun fire, staking their lives on a desperate gamble to grab the bridge intact.

Before German engineers could make further efforts to destroy this vital causeway to Berlin, American Doughboys and tanks swept over in power. They quickly knocked out a number of 20 millimeter ackack guns guarding the bridge, took hundreds of prisoners from disorganized retreating German units who had just pulled across the bridge themselves a few hours before and drove on without pause to take the village of Erpel and push on.

The first troops rushed over at 3:50 p. m. Wednesday and for seven hours one battalion of armored infantry held the bridge alone. They also seized a 300-foot bluff at the eastern exit and drove the Germans off surrounding heights giving direct observation on the crossing area.

The security news blackout still prevents telling the full story of the bridge capture in detail but military observers rate it as a classic case of quick thinking exploitation of an enemy blunder—an example of ingenuity and daring which Americans like to think is a native characteristic on or off the battlefield.

Doughboys Exploited Nazi Blunder to Capture Bridge

Daring Attack by Yanks Has Changed Entire Picture of War.

By HAL BOYLE

ACROSS THE RHINE, March 9—(AP) The capture of the bridge at Remagen, which took advantage of a cataclysmic German fumble was a classic example of brilliant daring and quick thinking in the American tradition.

There were just ten minutes to spare. The Yanks made the most of them, and in the next few hours changed the entire picture of the war. Here is the story:

Spearheading over the biggest barrier remaining before final victory climaxed a spectacular sweep from Euskirchen to the Rhine by the Ninth armored division under command of Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard of Toledo, O.

The bridge was taken by combat command "B" led by Brig. Gen. William H. Hoge of Lexington, Mo., builder of the Alcan highway across Western Canada to Alaska.

Decision Made by Hoge

The decision to try to seize it was made by Hoge after a hurried conference near the water's edge with a task force commanded by Lt. Col. Leonard Engeman, Minneapolis, Minn., and Maj. Murray Deevers of Hagerville, Ark., commander of the 27th armored infantry battalion.

In the drive from Euskirchen Hodge's men had taken more than 1,000 prisoners and destroyed or captured scores of enemy vehicles and even the Rhine did not look big to them.

"The task force," said Capt. Charles Gillett of Newport, Ky., "had been given the secondary mission to take the bridge if possible but no one really expected to. German army engineers usually see that you don't get a chance to reach the bridges intact, but this time we moved so fast we caught them by surprise.

"They had prepared the bridge for demolition but their traffic had been coming over from the west bank all morning.

"Our men had to move fast because a prisoner told them that the German engineers would blow the bridge at 1600 hours (4 p.m.)."

It was then 3:50 p. m., and the Yanks had only 10 minutes to go.

Tanks Blast Gun Positions

American tanks began banging away at enemy gun emplacements on the other side to provide a covering fire and from a lofty perch on the western entrance to the bridge Capt. Charles A. Caswell of Kanapolis, Kans., called down for a smoke screen to hide the Yanks from the enemy artillery.

The first group over was Company "A" of the 27th Armored Infantry Battalion, commanded by Lt. Karl Timmerman of West Point, Neb., and Division officers said they believed the first man actually across was platoon leader Lt. Emmett J. Burrows, whose wife lives at 2917 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, New York city, and whose father lives at 92 Stuyvesant Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

Doughboys still were racing over the span when dynamite left by the Germans to destroy the bridge began to explode. Several infantrymen were killed or wounded, but American engineers cut all the wires they could find and the march across continued as soon as the injured had been taken care of by medics.

Three engineers were killed by sniper fire as they repaired the bridge before the avalanche of tanks and men rolled over and crushed all further resistance near the eastern approaches to the bridge.

Since then the Germans have thrown sporadic artillery fire—up to 30 rounds an hour—at the bridge and made four attempts to knock it out from the air.

At 5:30 p. m. yesterday three Junkers 87's and one Messerschmitt tried to dive bomb the 1,300-foot structure. All four planes were shot down by powerful ack-ack batteries.

This morning at eight o'clock a lone Focke-Wulfe 190 tried to skip-bomb the span. The plane escaped through overcast. An hour later three more Nazi fighter bombers dived toward the bridge and all three were shot down. And at 12:40 p. m. four German planes tried separately to dive-bomb the bridge.

How Yanks Took Remagen Bridge

By HOWARD COWAN

Across the Rhine, March 9 (AP)—One of the great dramatic moments of the war occurred late Wednesday when a nervy band of American infantrymen dashed onto the 1,300-foot road and rail bridge at Remagen and jerked loose the wires attached to tons of German-set explosives only ten minutes before the vital span was to have been blown up.

"I expected to see it blow up right in our faces," said Major Murray Deevers, commander of the 27th Armored Infantry Task Force which captured the bridge in spectacular fashion and saved Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's armies a costly amphibious operation.

Some Did Go Off

Some explosives did go off while the Americans were on the bridge, but the damage caused was superficial, and in a matter of seconds after the span was seized, tanks of the 9th Armored Division were dashing across and fanning out on the east bank. The bridgehead was won.

A company of infantry led by Lieut. Emmet J. Burrows seized the bridge. Lieut. John Mitchell, of Pittsburgh, Pa., found the cache of explosives and disconnected the wires. The first tanks went rumbling across at 3.50 P.M. German civilians said the structure was to have been blown at 4 P.M.

Bridge Is Repaired

Word that the bridge was won spread like wildfire throughout the frontlines, and before nightfall the roads leading to Remagen were alive with weapons and vehicles of every description. Hundreds of tanks and guns and streams of truck-borne infantry headed for the scene.

It might have been a rehearsed display of American armed might.

Only one-way traffic was possible over the bridge for several hours, but engineers, working under fire, then repaired the slight damage to its surface and released the full torrent of men and machines.

MAR 10 1945 23833

Some tank crews, too impatient to wait, trained their guns across the river and blasted the Germans on the east bank from the streets of Remagen. Field guns hastily wheeled up to the west bank also joined in throwing a sheet of fire across to protect the bridge, and the terror-stricken residents of Remagen fled to the fields behind the town.

German Guns Open Up

The Germans, once they recovered from the paralysis which seized them at the catastrophic turn of events, opened up with field guns, but a steep cliff at its eastern end made it difficult for them to bring their shells directly down on the span.

Major Deevers, commander of the armored infantrymen who accomplished the "miracle of Remagen," admitted it was strictly a gamble and said none of his men had the slightest idea they would bring it off so successfully.

Many, many times since the Allies invaded Normandy they have driven up to bridges in similar manner—just in time to see them go up in a burst of smoke and fire.

So stunned were the Germans by the act of the Americans in dashing out onto the explosive-laden structure that two prisoners actually were taken on the bridge itself. Within two hours hundreds of other prisoners were laying down their arms and confusing the situation on the east bank.

The inhabitants of Erpel on the east bank, believing they were secure behind the great Rhine moat, had made no move to evacuate, but they quickly produced white flags and set them flapping from the buildings.

A German medical officer surrendered to Chaplain William Gibble of Henryetta, Okla., and asked him to take over the town. He led Captain Gibble to the Erpel hospital, where there were 600 German wounded and a few Americans.

man artillery fire.

All through the night masses of men and supplies moved over the crossing to meet the great counter-attacks that the Germans are certain to make unless they are ready to concede that the war is lost.

The Germans fumbled. They were caught by surprise—caught flat-footed by this great gamble which has turned into a brilliant coup.

Could Have Been Impregnable

There is rugged beauty at the scene of this crossing—sherr bluffs and rolling hills above the river. That very ruggedness could have made the spot all but impregnable, had the Germans been ready. But the best they could muster was the intermittent artillery fire.

The narrow and winding roads to the crossing were jammed with military traffic. Patient infantrymen in jeeps traveled at snail's pace in drizling rain. Military police sweated, shouted and swore at the jams on every crossroad, but the doughboys paid little attention.

Mud, Jokes—And Tension

These weer tired and muddy men in mud-spattered vehicles. They joked because all American soldiers joke in the shadow of danger. They knew they were going to cross the Rhine, and everyone wanted to be among the first, and they joked about this. But there was tenseness in this elation. They are certain the Germans still have a last effort in store and none of these Americans wants to get killed now, with victory so clearly in sight.

Even in such a historic event as the crossing of the Rhine, the infantrymen were resigned to the truth of that old army adage: "Hurry up and wait."

The Beauty Is Marred

They had little eye for the beauty around them—the deep valleys with quaint villages nestled among them, the towering church spires, the imposing cliffs—because that beauty has been disturbed. Scores of knocked-out German vehicles and military equipment lit-

Nazi Fire Taking Toll

The crossing grew more dangerous by the hour. The German big gun fire, sporadic though it may be took its toll.

The Yanks streaming toward the crossing site can see a procession of American ambulances going in the opposite direction.

An officer in an open jeep holds a lady's umbrella over his head with one hand, to keep off the rain, while he studies a map. Several soldiers forget the somber things to come, for the moment, and wear silk top hats found in some bombed-out ruins. Veterans stretch out in trucks and catch some badly needed sleep.

Soldiers In The Doorways

As the column crawls through a village near the river you notice for the first time the doughboys standing watchful-eyed in the doorways. You know then that German shells have been bursting nearby.

The road curves slowly down from the last tree-crowned hill and as it turns suddenly you see an open space criss-crossed by empty German trenches. There is one small knocked-out German anti-tank gun. Then, around a bend, with shocking suddenness you see the Rhine itself in all its majesty, sweeping as far as the eye can reach among the rounded hills and the cliffs.

"There she is!" shouts a soldier.

Every man in the long column looks out at this magnificent river, whose lifegiving beauty and productivity have caused immeasurable grief throughout centuries of war. Beyond its spring-flooded waters lies the way to Berlin and victory and home.

A German shell crashes into the crossing site far below, where hundreds of tiny men and tiny machines work their way across the river. Seconds afterward the noise of the shellburst echoes up.

As the column winds slowly down the steep hills, hundreds of doughboys, spaced 20 feet apart, begin trotting in double columns toward the crossing point. More shells crack and explode in black towers of debris.

On the other bank infantrymen crouch as they move forward into battle.

"It won't be long now!" a doughboy calls.

Beauty, Turmoil Of Rhine Crossing Described

By Harold V. Boyle

With the U.S. 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 9 (AP)—Long columns of Americans were plowing across the Rhine today because the Germans blundered and gave up one of the most bridgeheads in military history.

The Yanks jogged into the bridgehead despite sporadic Ger-streets of the villages. Dead lie in their freshly shed hey were too late in getting back across the Rhine.

The German civilians stare in consternation at the parade of American might, but they show little sympathy for their dead soldiery. These people are too sick of war to care much now who gets killed. They only hope dully that the war will be over soon.

Covering Rhine Crossing Hard Task For Writers

By Harold V. Boyle

With the 1st Army Across the Rhine, March 8 [AP—Delayed]—Covering the crossing of the Rhine was the hardest journalistic marathon of the war—a marathon won by Howard Cowan, of the Associated Press, who was the first field reporter to cross the stream with 1st Army troops.

Cowan not only was the first correspondent to get across—by a margin of minutes—but was also the first to get back with the story.

Many newsmen jeeped several hundred miles in the race to the Rhine when word came through that the Yanks were crossing.

14 Hours For 225 Miles

It took 14 hours for Jack Thompson, of the Chicago Tribune; Harry Austin, of the Sydney (Australia) Morning Herald, and myself to make a 225-mile trip through traffic jams, over side roads and around detours.

We had two flat tires and had to hoof the last two and one half miles.

There were all sorts of mishaps. Chris Cunningham, of the United Press, and Bill Downs, of Columbia Broadcasting System, also had two flat tires and had to get an extra one from an ordnance outfit to get back.

Two Get Lost

The toughest luck befell Gladwin Hill, of the New York Times, and Andy Rooney, of Stars and Stripes, who got lost on the return trip and almost drove through the German lines. They got back at 1.30 A.M. after an eight-hour drive.

"We were gone altogether 17½ hours," said Rooney, "and spent only twenty minutes actually getting the story. The rest of the time we spent in the jeep.

Newspaper men assigned to the 1st Army returned to the press camp after a long day of jeeping over muddy roads with enough diluted German real estate on their faces to start a potato farm.

The story was so hot, however, they had no time to get rid of the accumulated topsoil until they had finished pounding out their accounts of this most surprising and enterprising military adventure of the war.

Cities Seen First-Hand

By J. W. Gallagher

Cologne, March 9 (AP)—The American dash to the Rhine has lifted the lid of German secrecy on the effects of Allied air raids, permitting ground observers to assess for the first time the full extent of the damage inflicted.

A check of Cologne, Rhine industrial capital; Krefeld, textile and silk center; Muenchen Gladbach, one of the smaller Rhine industrial cities, and the Rhine River port of Neuss, opposite Duesseldorf, shows:

1. That American and British strategic air force claims gleaned from photographs—such as the estimate that Cologne was 60 to 80 per cent destroyed—are conservative.

Won't Break Morale

2. That bombings of cities will not break German civilian morale, but will so disrupt life in a city and discourage workers that factories cannot operate with even a fraction of efficiency.

3. That big incendiary raids cause considerably more vital damage than high explosives.

4. That bombing of railroad yards has not yielded the results expected, largely because of the extremely efficient German repair system.

5. That bombing of roads has been virtually useless in trying to stop traffic in a country like Germany, where there are hundreds of good roads. Only in rare cases of such bottlenecks as the Rhine bridges has the bombing of bridges been productive.

75,000 Still In City

Some 75,000 to 100,000 persons are estimated to be still living in Cologne, which had a prewar population of nearly a million.

Wandering about the city you wonder where they are living.

The inner circle, bounded by the Kaiser Wilhelm ring, is virtually wiped out. It is difficult to describe such devastation.

But if a New Yorker should wake up some morning to find every building in Manhattan just a shell and the streets piled with rubble—with no water, no lights, no gas and not a pane of glass in the whole island—the situation would be comparable to that in Cologne.

70,000 Killed Or Injured

From the center of the city and around the port the devastation dwindles off in the suburbs, where there are some buildings with just a hole or two in them.

Germans in the city estimate that raids have killed or injured 70,000 persons—30,000 of them last summer and fall.

Every factory has been hit once or twice. Some are out of commission permanently. None has been operating since last September 1. They could not keep enough workers in the plants for efficient operation.

Deutz Plant Destroyed

Cologne had such vital war production plants as the Hambaldt Deutz Motor Works, which built airplane and tank motors and employed 22,000. This plant was destroyed. The Germans say the same destruction is happening in the rest of the Ruhr towns.

When the RAF first hit Cologne with a 1,000-bomber raid in May, 1942, it caused tremendous damage. But the Germans were ready.

Repair crews by the thousands poured in and not only had the factories operating again in a remarkably short time but also did some work on workers' homes and the city itself.

Start To Lose Ground

Throughout most of 1943 this repair process kept fair pace with raids. Then the raids got heavier and American strategic bombers joined the attack. The repair crews started to lose ground. They gave up trying to repair the city and concentrated on factories, but they still lost ground steadily.

Workers were paid for their wrecked homes in cash by the Government. Having plenty of money and nothing to buy, they did not want to work. The Gestapo tried to make them.

But incessant raids burned all the city's records and the Gestapo had no way of checking. Attendance at the Deutz plant fell from 22,000 to 9,000, and finally to 2,000.

City Dead Since Last Fall

Meanwhile, the German manpower shortage drained off repair crews into other occupations, principally the army.

Finally, last fall the repair crews gave up altogether. From then on the city was dead. Only a few essential city industries remained in operation.

By far the largest amount of damage was caused by fires. Residents said big fires sometimes burned for days.

This was particularly true in Krefeld, which is about 50 per cent destroyed. Most of the buildings were burnt-out hulks from incendiaries.

Worse Than Stalingrad

The damage suffered by Cologne was far greater than Stalingrad, observers who saw both have said.

The freight yards at Cologne and Krefeld are not nearly as cluttered with wrecked cars as those in France. The expert work of the German repair system is clearly in evidence.

That German railroads have been "harassed" but not crippled by Allied air raids, is the opinion of both Germans on the spot and military men studying results on the ground today.

Reich Hasn't Escaped

A consoling factor for those who felt that Germany would escape without having the destruction of warfare touch her—a look at Cologne or any of the hundreds of captured towns would convince anyone that the war already has been brought home to the Germans.

It has been estimated that it will take five years to clear the rubble from Hamburg—the worst-bombed city in the world. It certainly will take three or four years to clear Cologne before rebuilding can start.

Full Effect Of Raids On Rhine

YANKS CONTROL COBLENZ PLAIN

WITH THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION NEAR COBLENZ, March 9—(AP) The Fourth Armored division tonight controlled the Coblenz plain west of the Rhine.

This division has made no attempt to enter Coblenz, a city of 80,000 population at the junction of the Rhine and Moselle river.

Instead, the Americans are concentrating upon a mop-up of the plain and the destruction of huge quantities of equipment abandoned along the west bank of the Rhine.

This whole area was as quiet as a mid-western town on Sunday afternoon. Occasionally, the Germans on the east bank of the Rhine left fly with antiaircraft guns, but that was no noisier than automobiles backfiring.

Hundreds of Germans are still streaming into the Fourth Armored areas, carrying white flags and anxious to be taken prisoner.

The official count of prisoners already was well beyond 4 000.

The roads to the Coblenz area are choked with liberated slave laborers, walking away from the forward area, lugging suitcases and blankets. They greeted passing Americans with salutes or fingered Victory signs.

This morning artillery supporting the Fourth Armored sank a ferry jammed with Germans trying to flee across the Rhine to Neuied from Weissenthurm. Scores probably were drowned or killed.

So much booty has been abandoned by the Germans that it probably will take days for an inventory.

Lt. Col. Harry E. Brown, St. Louis, whose wife lives at Indianapolis, Ind., said American casualties were "exceedingly light."

Gestapo Cruelty Seen In Cologne Prison

Cologne, March 9 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Oswald F. Hedley, of the United States Public Health Service, in charge of public health for the AMG in this occupied city, said today he had found "eloquent testimony to Gestapo inhumanity" at the Gestapo prison here.

"I thought I had seen everything in the course of my profession," said the Boston physician, "but what the Gestapo did to the 80 inmates in its prison got me down. All were near starvation. Thirty are hospital cases, suffering fro tuberculosis, pneumonia, typhus and extreme malnutration.

Political Prisoners

"Only a few were Germans and these were political offenders, the rest were Poles, Russians, Frenchmen and Belgians, four were already dead."

In many sections of the city dead lie in the streets. Hedley said he found fifteen dead in one hospital.

Since bombed-out civilians have been living in cellars and public shelters, there is a danger of communicable diseases. The water supply is a further menace, for the public water works is not functioning and civilians are using wells of doubtful purity.

Enough civilian doctors remain in Cologne to handle the medical situation, but transportation is difficult for them. This problem must be solved in co-operation with other AMG departments.

AMERICAN TROOPS CLEAR BONN AFTER SHORT STRUGGLE

BONN, Germany, March 9—(AP) American doughboys cleared this seat of German culture to the banks of the Rhine today after a short fight, sharply accentuated by resistance of troops in a German replacement center who had only to march from the barracks to get into their first battle.

They flunked their test.

"They just had to march from the barracks to get in their first battle," said Maj. Sam Carter of North Attleboro, Mass., an officer with the "Fighting First" Division which cleared most of the city.

He said it was all over at one o'clock this afternoon.

But the resistance of these Nazi troops prolonged the battle for the city a couple of hours after the First Division started popping away at the replacement center and its commandant ordered its garrison to battle.

"They were pretty hard to handle because of the model positions they had dug for schooling. But we took care of them in a couple of hours. About 100 surrendered," said Maj. Carter.

Though the Germans put up more fight than they did at Cologne, casualties were extremely light. They came mostly from a rip roaring artillery duel fought by opposing forces across the Rhine, long after the last Nazi in Bonn had given up.

After the city's streets were cleared to the river, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodge's men took up positions from which they could observe everything on the opposite bank.

Late in the afternoon two tugs were seen getting up steam. They headed upriver in the direction of the Remagen bridgehead. Later a column of troops started winding down toward the tugs—about 200. American artillery scattered the Germans and then got direct hits which wrecked both vessels.

It was a screwy picture in Bonn after resistance ceased.

A Calypso singing Jewish lad from New York's Bronx talked the mayor out of swastika flags which flew from the top of city hall.

"It was respectable scrounging," insisted Capt. Maxie Zera, First Division Public Relations Officer. "I told him I wanted a flag, and whadda ya know? He brings me all three—with the poles."

Natives greeted American doughboys fresh from battle with beautifully colored tourists' guides printed on slick paper—and in English.

The First got some dandy specimens for the prisoner cage out of Bonn.

A Nazi colonel, who stared icily from pale, blue eyes, was using a telephone when he was taken. He was charged with defending the north edge of the city.

"I was calling higher headquarters to report that tanks had broken through when one of your very brave soldiers stuck a pistol in my back," he said, explaining his capture.

A 21-year-old girl who had been in the German army six years also was taken. Six other Wehrmacht men confessed they didn't care much if they were captured. They were pretty disgusted with war.

For three years the prisoners had tended the "Bonn deception board"—a dummy set up intended to fool RAF night bombers into thinking a trick lighting pattern in the woods outside the city was Bonn. When raiders approached one pulled a switch, lighting up the dummy city. The other five grabbed buckets of water and ran to the woods to put out fires to be caused by the bombs.

In those three years there were plenty of raids. The lights went on every time and the bucket brigade rushed to the woods. But every time the bombs fell on Bonn, they said—"even after we used sparklers and colored lights."

GEN. GEROW HEADS NEW 15TH ARMY

PARIS, March 9—(AP) American armed might in Euorpe has been increased by an additional army, the U. S. 15th, under command of Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, former commander of army ground forces in Britain and onetime chief of the War department's war plans division, Supreme headquarters announced tonight.

Gerow, 56-year-old native of Petersburg, Va., was commander of the Fifth corps in the U. S. First army at the time of the Normandy campaign when the First army was under Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, now 12th army group commander.

Gerow's new command increased Gen. Eisenhower's forces to nine armies. On the Rhine are the U. S. First, Third, Seventh and Ninth, the British Second, the Canadian First and the French First. The Allied First Airborne army has not been reported in the current campaign.

The 15th's presence on the Western front was disclosed at ceremonies in which Gen. Alphonose Pierre Juin, chief of staff of the French armed forces, presented Legion of Honor decorations to eight American generals, including Gerow, for their part in the liberation of France. Other generals decorated were Bradley, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, First army commander; Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., Third army; Lt. Gen. James H. Doolittle, U. S. 8th air force; Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, Ninth army; Lt. Gen. Lewis H. Brereton, Allied First airborne army, and Maj. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenburg, U. S. Ninth air force.

Moscow, March 9 (AP)—The great hope expressed here tonight was that now that the Americans are across the Rhine, they will move on Berlin and take up the battle there alongside the Russians. The general impression here is that withdrawal of German forces from the west has made the Allied advance possible.

300 SUPERFORTS HAMMER TOKYO, START HUGE FIRES

Japs Admit Flames Set by U.S. Raiders Still Unchecked.

CONGESTED AREA HIT

All-Incendiary Raid Is Switch from Previous Strategy.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Saturday, March 10 — (AP) A record force of more than 300 Superfortresses spilled an estimated 1,300 tons of incendiaries in a 10 square mile congested area of Tokyo today and one returning flier said "hellish fires were spread across the twisted town."

Tokyo radio acknowledged that flames set by raiders shortly after midnight still were unchecked at dawn.

The first incendiaries quickly touched off an inferno which sent smoke as high as 10,000 feet.

Jap Capital Aflame

"We saw two or three square miles all aflame before we left," reported Col. Carl R. Storrie, of Denton, Tex., an observer on one of the B-29s.

The target was a rectangular section extending roughly four miles from north to south and three miles from east to west.

The Tokyo railroad station, just east of the Imperial palace, was in the area attacked. The average population within the 10-square miles is 103,000 to a square mile.

Gathering reports of the raid, Brig. Gen. Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th airforce, said fleets of 1,000 or more B-29s will be put over the Japanese homeland if that is necessary to win the war.

The huge bombers struck from bases on Guam, Saipan and Tinian.

For an hour and a half, they poured incendiary bombs upon the sections of the city selected for destruction.

The bomb load, unofficially estimated here at 1,300 tons, was the largest ever dropped on Tokyo, and the force was the largest of the Superfortresses ever put into the air. The raid was the first large night attack on Japan's homeland. There was a previous light raid.

Announcement that this was an all-incendiary raid stirred speculation whether it might mean a departure from the previous strategy—a switch from strategic to area bombing. There was no official comment on this score but one officer said General Le May called it "just bombing and bombing."

This officer further quoted Le May as saying: "A fight is a fight—if you see an opening you take it."

Hit Congested Area

The area struck today is regarded as more congested and more subject to sweeping damage than the 240 blocks devastated in the heart of Tokyo in the Feb. 25 strike.

It was also the first announced all-incendiary strike at the Japanese capital.

The weather was clear and the bombardiers could see their targets. They reported fires rapidly spreading in the target area—10 square miles of small industrial plants and other military targets in the center of the city.

After hearing the initial reports, Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May said at his 21st Bomber Command headquarters: "I can say with conservatism that this looks good from our point of view and grim from the point of view of the enemy.

"There is a conflagration in Tokyo tonight."

(Tokyo radio admitted "some fires" were burning and in another broadcast quoted a Japanese Imperial headquarters spokesman as consoling the people with a reminder that citizens of London, Berlin and other cities had "courageously fought air raids and survived them.")

It was the 12th attack by B-29's from the Marianas on the Japanese capital. The largest previous attack was by more than 200 of the big bombers Feb. 25.

Le May remained up all night at his headquarters to follow the progress of the raid and greet the returning crews. He did not attempt to guess the size of the Tokyo conflagration.

The flight time of today's raid was about 15 to 16 hours and took a small army—more than 3,500 men—over Japan.

Hit 10 Square Miles

The target assigned and hit by the massive force was an area of 10 square miles in the center of Tokyo. It contains scores of small industries, factories and other military targets and a population of about 1,000,000.

It is considered the most congested area in the capital. In character it varies from sections comparable to a downtown business section in an American city, with administration buildings and many important business houses, to tightly packed residences.

Fire breaks, cut through the section in anticipation of incendiary raids, apparently failed to stop the spread of the flames.

The weather over the city during the 90-minute attack was a complete contrast to the heavy overcast and obscuring fog which forced B-29s to rely on precision instruments in the last two raids, March 4 and Feb. 25.

At headquarters, General Le May followed intently the reports of the earliest fliers leaving the target.

"Small fires," said the first to report.

"Large fires," came later reports.

"Conflagration," was the thrilling word received when only half the planes had reported.

Caught flat-footed as the first raiders swooped in, the Japanese sent up meager fighter opposition. Pilots reported heavy anti-aircraft fire, however.

Not a single plane had been lost as of Le May's latest word.

1,000-Plane Raids Predicted

GUAM, March 10 (Saturday) (AP) (Via Navy Radio).—Japan can expect "fleets of 1,000—or more—B-29s" over its homeland if that many are required to complete the Superfortresses part in winning the war, Brigadier General Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th Air Force, here from Washington, said today.

Commenting on the B-29 new record raid on the enemy capital with 300 Superfortresses, he said:

"Just how many B-29s will be required for this job is dependent upon many things—most of them, perhaps, have to do with conditions inside Japan itself. One thing is certain, however, and that is, if fleets of 1,000—or more—B-29s are required to do the job, the 20th Air Force will provide them."

RUSSIANS SEIZE PART OF KUESTRIN, POUR ACROSS ODER

Extend Bridgeheads on West Bank in Prelude to Berlin Assault.

PERIL PORT OF STETTIN

Reds Advance 17 Miles in Pomerania, Approach Danzig City.

LONDON, Saturday, March 10—(AP) The Germans said last night that the Russians had captured part of the Oder fortress town of Kuestrin, 38 miles east of Berlin, and were pouring reinforcements by day and night across the river on both sides of that stronghold in a flaming prelude to the battle for the Nazi capital.

Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's First White Russian army troops were reported in enemy broadcasts to be extending their west bank Oder bridgeheads and trying to link them up "to create a jumping board for further operations against Berlin."

Reds Peril Stettin

While the Soviet High command ignored for the third day these Nazi reports of heavy battles on the Berlin front, the regular Soviet communique announced that Red army forces had rolled within five miles of the docks of Stettin, Pomeranian capital and Berlin's main port, and were only nine miles from Danzig city.

The Pomeranian strongholds of Stolp, Schlawe, Ruegenwalde, and Stolp-Muende, all fell to the Russians yesterday, along with 200 other localities as Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian troops gained up to 17 miles and hurled the Germans into a shrinking 257-square mile trap along the Baltic coast.

These rapid Soviet strokes in the north and northeast, in which Moscow said that a total of 16,500 Germans had been killed or captured in two days, were preliminary steps in the approaching showdown battle for Berlin.

But the Germans said that Zhukov's central forces had fought their way into the heart of Kuestrin and were engaged in fierce struggles on a 21-mile front from Kienitz, west bank village 10 miles northwest of Kuestrin, down to the area west of Lebus, 11 miles south of Kuestrin.

Adolf Hitler was said to have visited the Oder front several days ago on a morale-raising tour, apparently in the belief that the all-out assault toward Berlin was imminent, if not already begun.

The DNB agency said that Soviet troops had been thrown back from Seelow, 10 miles west of the Oder and 25 miles from greater Berlin, after penetrating to that town on Thursday. Seelow is 11 miles southwest of Kuestrin.

In the attack toward Stettin Zhukov's northern wing gained three to five miles yesterday on a 30-mile arc east of the lower Oder river stronghold, and Berlin said spearheads of three Soviet armies were battling in Stettin's suburbs.

Reds take Wolfshorst

At the top of the assault arc Moscow said its troops took Wolfshorst, only a mile from the narrow Oder channel between Papen Wasser and Dammscher See leading to Stettin. At this point the Russians were only five miles northeast of Poelitz, west bank crossing town a few miles north of Stettin.

In the direct frontal assault toward Stettin another Soviet column captured Muehlenbeck, three miles southeast of the crossing town of Altdamm and within five miles of Stettin's big ship basins.

Further south the Russians took Woltin and Wierow, two to three miles east of Grejfenhagen, another crossing town. The Germans said Nazi troops had abandoned Greifenhagen, 11 miles south of Stettin, during Thursday night, fleeing across the Oder.

Zhukov's troops captured 3,900 more Germans in this mop-up of the Oder's east bank, making a two-day total of 5,000, the Soviet bulletin said. A divisional commander was among the prisoners.

Rokossovsky's troops in the northeast struck forward on a winding 90-mile front from captured Ruegenwalde on the Baltic Pomeranian coast to Rheinfeld, "Polish corridor" village only nine miles southwest of Danzig city and 15 miles south of the former Polish naval base of Gdynia.

Stolp, 12-way communications hub in Pomerania, was the biggest prize of the places taken, and a midnight Soviet bulletin said that 4,000 Germans were slain in its streets.

The Germans now have only one major stronghold left in northeastern Pomerania, the communications hub of Lauenburg, farther east along the Stettin-Stolp-Danzig railway. Its fall also appeared imminent because the Russians seized Darsin and Gross Gluschen, towns on the trunk railway and highway only 12 miles southwest of Lauenburg.

Death Struggle Urged

Berlin said that "five or six" Russian armies were involved in the tremendous push on surrounded Danzig, and the Nazi gauleiter in the former free city, Albert Forster, again called on the people there to fight to the death.

Rokossovsky's troops captured 1,500 more Germans, making an announced two-day total of 4,500, in addition to killing thousands of others.

In one week the combined First and Second White Russian armies have overrun more than 8,000 square miles of Pomerania, an area larger than the state of Massachusetts, swiftly clearing their northern flank for a resumed drive to the west.

Violent street fighting raged inside Kuestrin after the Russians broke in from the northwest, Berlin said. A late Nazi report indicated that the Russians virtually had conquered the new part of the town and said the entire area was under furious assault.

"Some German strongpoints in the 'new city' are still holding out with the last grenade and the last bullet," a front report said. "Other sectors of the Kuestrin region are being attacked equally heavily."

The enemy said the Russians "undoubtedly are preparing a large-scale offensive along the Oder between Kuestrin and Crossen, 45 miles to the southeast, and declared the ferocious assault on Kuestrin was intended to knock out that vital crossing town before the main lunge.

Close quarter combat also still raged at Guben, east bank Neisse river town 51 miles southeast of Berlin, the Germans disclosed. One broadcast said that "Gueben was liberated," although the Russians never have claimed the stronghold. The Neisse river is a southern continuation of the Oder defenses in front of the Reich capital.

Adolf Hitler visited the Oder front east of Berlin a few days ago, conferring with generals and meeting troops "who came straight from their trenches to be introduced to him," Nazi broadcasts said.

This was the first official German report on Hitler's movements since Feb. 25 when it was announced he had decorated the Reich labor chief at his headquarters. German newspapers were said to have published pictures of Hitler and the Oder front commanders studying maps.

Russians Fight Way Back To Kuestrin

London, March 9 (AP)—Troops of Marshal Gregory Zhukov in their offensive toward Berlin have fought into Kuestrin a second time, the Germans reported today, and a bitter battle is raging in the ancient streets of the Oder River fortress.

Russian tanks and infantry attacked seventeen times from the northwestern part of the city—which the Germans said yesterday had been bypassed on the north and south by the Russians who had driven across the Oder to within 25 miles of Berlin—but were finally driven back to the suburbs, a German broadcast announced.

Kuestrin, 39 miles east of Berlin, was first reported penetrated about a month ago, before the momentum of Zhukov's drive from Warsaw was spent.

Not Confirmed By Moscow

The Russians, however, had not yet confirmed officially the crossing of the Oder—an announcement which would signal that the Allies in the east as well as in the west have joined battle with the Nazis in the heart of Germany.

To the north the Russians pushed forward from an arc 8 miles southeast, east and northeast of Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin and rushed up boats and landing craft for an assault across Dammscher Lake, which fronts Stettin on the east.

Moscow dispatches said a crossing, which would outflank Stettin on the north and threaten a northern sweep around Berlin, might already have been made along the canalized section of the Oder between the lake and Stettin Bay.

Retreating Nazis Bombed

Soviet bombers loosed a torrent of bombs and fire on German troops falling back into Stettin and destroyed an important bridge near Altdamm, the Stettin suburb on the east side of the Oder outlet.

The Germans admitted the assault had reached the port's "outer defense zone" and declared German naval forces had joined the battle along Stettin Bay.

RECORD RAID BY MOSQUITOS

Berlin Hit By More Than 1,000 Tons Of Explosives

London, March 9 (AP)—The biggest force of RAF Mosquitos ever sent to Berlin dumped more than 1,000 tons of explosives on the battered capital tonight after 1,000 United States heavy bombers had smashed by daylight at the central German rail junction of Kassel. It was the eighteenth consecutive night attack on Berlin.

Enemy planes, the German radio warned, were over Brandenburg province, in which Berlin is located, early in the night and another force was crossing western Germany.

The 8th Air Force, which sent 1,000 Fortresses and Liberators on a many-pronged attack during the day, lost ten bombers and five escorting fighters in the operations. The RAF lost three bombers out of about 1,000 which smacked Kassel last night.

Italy Planes Join Attacks

Heavy bombers from Italy joined today's attacks, striking communications systems at Graz in southern Austria while fighter bombers hit at rail targets from Vienna to Italy.

Bad weather curbed operations of the 2d Tactical Air Force, but reconnaissance pilots ranging near the American bridgehead across the Rhine below Cologne said they could see no enemy movement in the direction of the American hold on the east bank.

Kassel's vast rail yards, with main lines radiating to the Ruhr and eastern Germany, the large Heddernheim propeller and castings plant at Frankfurt-am-Main, and a tank works were chief objectives of 8th Air Force bombers, which also struck freight yards at Frankfurt, Munster, Rheine and Osnabruck.

Benzol Plants Raided

Attacks on the latter cities were aimed at blocking rail lines which Germany now is forced to use for the transportation of steel, coal and war supplies since other more direct lines are cut.

Maintaining the pace, an RAF force of about 300 Lancasters sped to the northeast corner of the Ruhr and attacked two benzol plants at Datteln while fighter planes and light and medium bombers sprang from forward bases on the Continent to join in the battle of the Ruhr and the Rhine.

Before noon United States 9th Air Force planes had made 600 trips, centering their attacks on communications and supply targets near Wiesbaden, in the Rhine bend southeast of Coblenz, and making protective cover flights over the American 1st Army beachhead on the east bank of the Rhine.

Four Rail Yards Blasted

More than 350 Marauders, Invaders and Havocs pounced on four railway yards and two depots in the Wiesbaden area. One depot consisted of fifteen warehouses where tank engines were being overhauled.

A group of eight Air Force fighters, escorting the Marauders, shot down two enemy planes. The Fortresses and Liberators which hit Kassel and Frankfurt in clear weather swung over their targets without aerial opposition, but met intense flak.

This suggested that the Germans might have pulled some guns from the Ruhr in an attempt to ward off obliteration assaults. Little anti-aircraft fire has been noticed in flights over the Ruhr in the last few days—an area once known as "death valley" to the flyers.

Walked Right Across

Describing the Kassel raid, Lieut. Col. Allison Brooks, of Pasadena, Cal., leader of a fighter scouting force, said: "The bombs walked right across the target today. They must have hit something big, because there was a terrific explosion right in the middle of the yards."

The RAF not only paid attention to Kassel last night but attacked the Blohm and Voss submarine building yards at Hamburg, and bombed Berlin for the seventeenth

Kassel Is Hammered By Night And Day

London, March 9 (AP)—The German industrial city of Kassel, heavily bombed by the RAF last night, was attacked again today by the main force of a 1,000-bomber fleet sent out by the United States 8th Air Force.

In the night raids the British also hit submarine-building yards in Hamburg and unspecified objectives in Berlin. German radios began warning of the approach of daylight bombers shortly after 8 A.M.

Targets In Hungary

The United States 15th Air Force struck a heavy blow at German communications yesterday in Hungary, hitting railroad yards at Komarom, 20 miles in advance of Russian ground forces, and blocking all through lines at Hegyeshalom, near the Austrian frontier 45 miles west of Komarom. The Italian-based flyers were carefully briefed against dropping bombs in areas where the Russians might be.

American aircraft from Italy have flown over the Russian front before in recent weeks as the western bombing program was meshed with the Red Army assault, but the Komarom attack was the first so close to the scene of battle. Komarom lies 40 miles northwest of Budapest.

Bombing Effective

Only a small force of Liberators hit the Komarom railyards, but Air Force headquarters said reconnaissance showed all tracks were cut or blocked and 40 units of rolling stock were destroyed or damaged.

The German radio said Allied bombers from Italy were striking the Reich again today.

At midmorning, 8th Air Force Flying Fortresses and Liberators smashed at already battered rail yards and two tank-manufacturing plants at Kassel. The plants had recently been repaired and put into partial production.

Other U.S. Targets

Other American bombers fanned out over western Germany, hitting railway targets at Osnabruck, Muenster, Rheine and Frankfurtammain. The entire fleet was given cover by about 400 Mustangs and Thunderbolts.

In the night attacks, the British who lost 67 aircraft on three previous nights, reported only four planes missing. The RAF operations included attacks on Hannover and Hagen, in northern Germany.

Kassel, situated about 115 miles east of Cologne and a major target for the British night raiders, was at least 60 per cent destroyed by previous bombings. Some of the city's industries—including important aircraft and locomotive works—have been reported partly restored and it was these the RAF attacked.

Submarine Yards

At Hamburg, the main objective was the Blohm-Voss submarine yards, where new-type U-boats are being assembled.

Berlin was again the target of Mosquito bombers, which dumped two-ton blockbusters on the German capital for the seventeenth consecutive night.

The German radio indicated that Allied fighters and medium bombers from advanced bases on the Continent were operating full strength over the front today after two days of comparative inactivity because of the weather.

Before noon fighter-bomber formations were reported mauling Nazi positions from Wesel to Coblenz. Their main job was to hinder the movement of German troops and equipment in or out of the battle zone.

defense of the nation" under penalty of being punished as deserters.

The decree, broadcast by DNB, hinted that the utmost confusion prevailed in the Reich. The order had the multiple purpose of scraping the manpower barrel, rounding up deserters and calling back soldiers lost from their units.

Ration Books Cut Off

To enforce compliance with the decree, which applied even to Nazi party "political leaders and subleaders," it was provided that "pension payments and ration books would be distributed only to those who can prove their proper registration."

The new decree declared that "many people have sought shelter in the interior of the Reich during the last few weeks," and that "workers and officials have lost their working places and soldiers were cut off from their units," suggesting chaotic conditions inside Germany.

List Of Measures Decreed

"In order to give them a chance to intervene actively in the defensive struggle of the nation," the decree stated, "the following measures have been taken:

1. No furlough for deeds of bravery except in the case of ill health.

2. The declaration of unfitness of men in enemy-occupied territory is no longer valid. (This apparently was a summons to 4-F's in the overrun provinces to try to reach the interior of the Reich.)

3. All members of the Wehrmacht who are not with their units—including men on furlough and on commando missions—must register with their respective authorities.

4. All persons who have left their residence since January 1, 1945, must register immediately with the police. Men of the age groups 1884 to 1929 must report to their military authorities. Political leaders and subleaders must report to their district command as well.

5. Payments of welfare organizations and ration books will be distributed only to those who can prove their proper registration to all authorities.

6. Every host must see to it that the registration of his guest is in order.

7. Suspects who fall under suspicion of trying to shirk their military or labor duties are to be reported to the nearest police station.

8. Whoever fails to register will be treated as a deserter. Not only the culprit but also his abettor will be punished.

The American crossing of the Rhine was not told to the German people until late this afternoon in a DNB home-service broadcast. This attributed it to a "surprise thrust, which, by a lucky chance, succeeded in capturing an undestroyed railroad bridge."

Failure to destroy the bridge was laid to confusion in "German river defenses." The broadcast said successful German counterattacks had been opened immediately against the bridgehead. The Germans said other Allied crossing attempts were imminent.

At the same time, the Germans radio announced that Hitler, in an effort to buck up the defenders of Berlin, had visited the Oder River front in the East. The time and exact place of Hitler's visit were not revealed.

Germans Not Told Of Rhine Bridgehead

London, March 9 (AP)—The German high command kept from the German people today the news that American troops have established a bridgehead on the east bank of the Rhine.

The communiqué which is read to all the German people admitted that German forces had been pushed across the Rhine at Cologne, but otherwise told only of fighting on the west side.

A Transocean dispatch acknowledged that American forces had crossed, and said the bridgehead was opposite Remagen, about halfway between Bonn and Coblenz. This dispatch was beamed overseas for foreign consumption.

Transocean asserted the crossing was made only at one point by "relatively weak" forces.

The German communiqué said: "In the sector of Cologne the Americans succeeded in pushing back our forces to the eastern Rhine bank, while the garrison of Bonn is offering furious resistance. In the Rhine-Moselle triangle enemy tanks gained ground, particularly in the direction of the lower Moselle."

Hitler Visits Oder Front

London, March 9 (AP)—The German radio said today that Hitler had visited the Oder River front.

The Transocean Agency said he had "convinced himself personally of the fighting spirit of the German soldiers on the Oder."

"A number of photos of the visit have been published in the German press," it added.

The broadcast also said that Hitler had assured himself of German defensive measures. It did not specify the date of the visit.

BRITISH HAVEN GIVEN RADESCU

Ex-Romanian Premier Flees To Bucharest Embassy

London, March 9 (AP)—Nicolae Radescu, who resigned as Romanian Premier while under attack from Moscow, has been given refuge in the British Embassy in Bucharest from his "political opponents," a Foreign Office spokesman said today.

He told British officials that his life was in danger.

"We considered his appeal justified," the Foreign Office representative said, "and gave him refuge."

The spokesman said the British had notified the Soviet and American governments and the Allied Control Commission in Bucharest that Radescu had been given sanctuary.

Tass Reports "Astonishment"

A Tass dispatch from Moscow quoted Bucharest newspapers as saying there was widespread "astonishment" that Radescu had fled from his residence and that the British had given him shelter. The Soviet press made no comment of its own.

Another Tass dispatch from the Romanian capital reaching Moscow said the first meeting of the new Government of Peter Groza, who succeeded Radescu, was held Wednesday and that the Premier had announced all departments of the Government would be purged quickly of pro-Fascists.

The Left-Wing National Democratic Front, which looks toward Moscow for support, clamored for Radescu's resignation last week after street skirmishes between its members and the Romanian police.

Radescu Under Moscow Fire

The Moscow radio had repeatedly attacked Radescu for not ridding the country of Fascist elements. Following the street clashes the Moscow radio said the police had fired on unarmed peaceful demonstrators.

A few days before Radescu's Government fell Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Vice Foreign Commissar, arrived in Bucharest for a first-hand investigation of conditions.

Fascist Purge Demanded

Since Romania was occupied by the Russians there have been a series of governments, none of which was able to carry out its administrative duties or establish a broad democratic regime.

Both Moscow and the National Democratic Front have been insisting that the country could not operate democratically until the Fascist elements inside and outside the Government were eliminated.

During a Foreign Office press conference today attempts to define just who were Radescu's "political opponents" brought only negative answers from the spokesman, who explained that all he knew was that the former Premier showed up at the British legation and said his life was in danger and the British took him in.

Meanwhile, Premier Groza in a message to Prime Minister Churchill today said the "turning of Romania into a democracy has started." Similar telegrams were said to have been sent to Marshal Stalin and President Roosevelt.

Radescu In Bucharest Legation, British Say

London, March 9 (AP)—The British Foreign Office said today that the former Romanian Premier Nicholae Radescu had taken refuge in the British legation in Bucharest against his political opponents.

A spokesman said Radescu told British officials his life was in danger, and "we considered his appeal justified."

London Dock Strike Ends

London, March 9 (AP)—Approximately 10,000 dock workers and stevedores returned to their jobs in the port of London today after a nine-day strike.

German General Killed in East

LONDON, March 9 (AP)—The German radio announced tonight that Lieut. Gen. Wolf Dietrich Ritter von Xylander, Chief of Staff of an army group on the Eastern Front, had been killed in action on the same day he received the Knight's Cross.

BRITISH USING NEW ROCKET GUN

LONDON, March 9—(AP) A new type ground rocket projector described as "one of the war's most devastating weapons" now is being used in barrage work as medium artillery by British and Canadian troops on the Western front, was disclosed today.

The barrage is laid down by groups of the rocket projectors—each group consisting of 12 guns with 32 barrels each. These 384 barrels give a concentrated firepower comparable with that of more than 280 5.55-inch guns of the orthodox type.

Although considerably smaller, each missile fired by the rocket projectors is described as comparable with the 100-pound shell fired by the 5.5-inch guns.

A battery of rocket projectors can be handled by less than 200 men while the equivalent fire power with 5.5-inch guns would demand approximately 3,000 men, but the War Office said the rocket does not replace the gun because it lacks the necessary accuracy.

"For the purpose of laying down a barrage of fire, however," the announcement said, "the rocket is a deadly weapon, as the enemy is now discovering."

SYRIA, LEBANON PROTEST LACK OF INVITATION

LONDON, March 9—(AP) Seeking complete recognition as independent democratic countries, Syria and Lebanon formally protested today to the Big Three against the fact they were not invited to the United Nations world security conference next month in San Francisco.

Camille Chamoun and Dr. Mejil Armanazi, ministers to London of Lebanon and Syria, respectively, filed a protest with Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. The American and Russian governments also were informed of the two countries' regret that they had not been invited.

Chamoun said in an interview that both Syria and Lebanon still hoped they would be invited "in justice to our cause."

The ministers argue that the two nations have been helping the Allies since 1941.

In recent weeks both Lebanon and Syria have repeatedly stated they do not recognize the French mandate and consider themselves entitled to recognition as free countries without the supervision of outside powers. They have objected to giving France a "predominant position" in the Levant, which Gen. deGaulle recently suggested.

Soldier Throws Away Rifle, Gets 18 Months

Bordon, Hampshire, England, March 9 (AP)—Private W. H. Smith, a Canadian soldier, has been sentenced to eighteen months' detention by a field general court-martial for throwing his rifle and two kit bags into the sea when boarding a troopship en route to England, it was announced today.

Smith told the court that he deliberately threw his equipment overboard in hopes military police would take him off the ship.

FIFTH ARMY MEETS HEAVY GUN FIRE

Yanks Close Within Mile Of Vergato, Nazi Stronghold

Rome, March 9 (AP) — United States 5th Army troops on the Central Italian front below Bologna closed within a mile of Vergato on the east today from the occupied town of Carviano through tightening German resistance and heavy artillery fire.

Allied headquarters said the Germans dumped a heavy concentration of artillery and mortar fire onto the roads over which the Yanks were moving supplies into their new positions in the Castel d'Aiano area.

Vergato is 17½ miles southwest of Bologna on the road to Pistoia and has been one of the Germans' main stronghold on the approaches to Bologna for months.

5th Commands Approaches

The 5th Army now holds positions commanding the approaches to the town. East of Carviano there were a series of sharp clashes between patrols as the Germans probed Allied positions in the rugged Italian terrain in that sector.

As the fighting northeast of Mount Belvedere simmered down the Germans showed extreme sensitivity to Allied patrols on the more eastern curve of the arc below Bologna, dropping heavy concentrations of shells among Allied advance positions and on raiding parties.

Air Force In Action

To the east, along the Adriatic coast, activity of the 8th Army was confined mainly to patrols into the German lines.

While heavy bombers were concentrating on Nazi communications in Hungary, Austria, Yugoslavia and northern Italy, medium and light bombers of the Mediterranean Allied Tactical Air Force kept up the campaign against enemy targets along the Brenner Pass rail line and in direct support of the ground forces with assaults on enemy targets immediately behind the battleline.

Allied coastal planes also attacked shipping in the Adriatic area, the Allied communiqué said.

Belgium's Food Supply Chaotic

Brussels, March 9 (AP)—Premier Achille Van Acker announced today he would submit a bill asking special powers for a limited time to deal with what he called "a state of anarchy" existing in Belgium's food supply system.

Goebbels Finds Life Hard

MADRID, March 9 (AP).—A copy of "Das Reich," Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels's weekly, received here today, contained this plaint: "We go to the barber's and find it not overcrowded, for once. The barber starts to cut our hair with electric clippers when the electricity goes off, and we must go home with only half a haircut."

1,200 Freed Yanks Start Home

Moscow, March 9 (AP) — The United States military mission said today that 1,200 United States officers and enlisted men liberated by the Red Army from German prison camps had left Odessa en route home.

NET TIGHTENS ON MANDALAY

British, Indian Troops Fighting Way To Heart Of City

Calcutta, March 9 (AP)—British and Indian troops in 30 hours of street fighting inside Mandalay have driven to the area of Government House in the Fort Dufferin compound in the heart of the storied Burma city, Allied headquarters announced tonight.

Hand-to-hand fighting raged in three sections of the city of 135,000. While the original storming force of the 19th Division surged in steadily from the north, Maj. Gen. T. W. O. Rees led another column in an encircling drive across the Mandalay Canal, which enters Mandalay from the northeast and passes along the east side of Fort Dufferin.

Battle For Mandalay Hill

Heavy fighting was in progress for Mandalay Hill, which rises abruptly near the northeast corner of Fort Dufferin, and on the adjoining race course. Japanese resistance was heavier than had been expected, but Indian infantry was making steady progress and mopping up carefully as it approaches the center of the city.

Fort Dufferin, a great square built to guard the inner city, is inclosed by brick walls 26 feet high and running approximately one and a quarter miles each way. A broad moat 75 feet wide surrounds the wall. The old Royal Palace, as well as the British Government House, are inside the huge inclosure.

50,000 Japs Pocketed

It was felt at headquarters here that Allied troops were in position to take their time and reduce Mandalay with the fewest possible casualties, now that it has been officially estimated that 50,000 Japanese troops are hopelessly pocketed in the city and in the surrounding territory of central Burma, awaiting death or capture.

Tightening the noose on Mandalay, the British 2d and the 20th Indian divisions on the east bank of the Irrawaddy, 30 miles southwest of Mandalay, began driving toward the city and advanced several miles despite strong opposition.

Lashio Airfield Used

The last Japanese snipers were being cleared out of Lashio, rail terminus 135 miles northeast of Mandalay, and the first Allied plane landed on the city's airfield only 24 hours after it fell to Chinese troops.

An artillery shell thrown into Lashio by the withdrawing Japanese landed within 25 yards of Lieut. Gen. Daniel I. Sultan, American commander in the Burma-India theater, and Lieut. Gen. Sun Li-jen, commander of the Chinese 1st Army, as they inspected the newly captured city. Neither general was injured.

British Advance Mile Inside Mandalay

Calcutta, India, March 9 (AP)—Hand-to-hand fighting raged in three sections of Mandalay today as British and Indian troops surged another mile into the heart of Burma's second city.

After 30 hours of continuous fighting in the city, forward elements of the British 14th Army reached the area of Government House beside Fort Dufferin.

Other battles raged on the race course and on Pagoda Hill east of the city, and some troops had penetrated into the area of the rifle range between Pagoda Hill and the race course.

Japs Face Encirclement

Fort Dufferin is inside the old walls of the city. In the center of the area stands the old palace on its raised brick platform.

Fifty thousand Japanese defenders of Mandalay and its surrounding area were faced with an increasing threat of encirclement as Allied forces 80 miles south, on the north, northeast and west consolidated their Irrawaddy bridgeheads and other positions astride central Burma's communications.

COMMUNISTS ASK THE REMOVAL OF CHIANG KAI-SHEK

CHUNGKING, March 9—(AP) China's Communists today called Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek a despot and a dictator and declared he should be removed and punished.

A statement, issued from Communist headquarters here, apparently dispelled any lingering hopes of an early settlement of China's political problems. It was the most incisive attack on the Generalissimo since the central government began fresh negotiations with the Communists last May.

Written as a reply to Chiang's March 1 announcement that a national assembly would be called in November to give China a constitutional government, the statement said such an assembly would be a "congress of slaves" and accused Chiang of plotting to swallow the Communist armies.

(Chiang, in his March 1 announcement, implied that the calling of the assembly would be contingent upon the Communists' willingness to place their armed forces at the disposal of the central government in the war against Japan.)

The Communist statement, written by an unidentified correspondent of the party's official news agency, charged that Chiang had given a false picture of his negotiations with the Communists and said he spoke "like a lunatic" when he suggested that an American officer be placed in command of Communist troops, under Chiang's over-all command.

It accused Chiang of indulging in "gangster talk" and insisted on immediate termination of his "dictatorship." Free elections for memberships in the national assembly were demanded.

This was the first open suggestion that Chiang be removed from China's leadership since the united front was formed in 1937 to fight Japan.

"If a coalition government is formed, Chiang Kai-Shek may still be allowed to occupy a seat in the government to allow him to correct his former mistakes and atone for his crimes," the statement said.

Chinese Force Foe to Flee

CHUNGKING, March 9 (AP).—The Chinese high command said today that counter-attacking Chinese troops had successfully assailed Japanese positions seven miles west of Paoching, enemy stronghold sixty-three miles west of Hengyang, inflicted heavy casualties and forced the enemy to retreat toward Paoching.

In the southeast, in Kiangsi Province, Chinese attacking from a southwest direction have reached the suburbs of Suichwan, lost American air base city.

YANKS SEALING JAPS IN CAVES

Luzon Shimbu Line Crumbling Under MacArthur Tactics

Manila, Saturday, March 10 (AP)—Several thousand Japanese have been suffocated in a fantastic maze of caves 14 miles east of Manila by a clever campaign of closing tunnel entrances, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today in a communiqué which was silent on Japanese reports that Mindanao has been invaded.

The communiqué mentioned a 107-ton bombing of Zamboanga, on the southwest coast of Mindanao, but did not substantiate Tokyo broadcasts that Allied troops invaded that point Friday after a bombardment by two task forces.

Cave Defenses As Jap Tombs

MacArthur described at great length the intricate cave defense of the Shimbu Line east of Manila and the manner in which Yanks are sealing them with small loss to the attackers.

Saturation bombardments by planes and artillery, ground attacks with phosphorous grenades and flame throwers, followed by planting of demolition charges are turning the trick.

By virtue of the successes, the Shimbu Line is crumbling with tough American foot soldiers now sitting atop its first line of defense and knocking on the door to the second.

Once it is smashed, the Japanese will be broken up into small disconnected parties, doomed to a campaign of attrition.

Yanks In Enveloping Movement

The new gains constitute an enveloping movement against the southern anchor of the Antipolo-Wawa (Shimbu) Line.

MacArthur said the 1st (dismounted) Cavalry Division and the 6th Infantry Division have made substantial gains on the south flank of the defense-studded line in the vicinity of Bayanbayanan.

The enemy line "consists almost entirely of caves in the hillsides closely spaced for interlocking fire."

"A cave normally consists of a 10-foot shaft large enough for a man to climb up or down a rope ladder," MacArthur said in emphasizing the difficulty of the operation.

137 Such Caves Taken

"At the foot of the shaft, a small tunnel leads to a compartment some 20 by 30 fet. Four or five lateral tunnels lead from the compartment. Just before a lateral reaches the surface slope of the hill, it makes a sharp bend to prevent shells from entering the tunnel."

In the last 48 hours, 137 such caves have been taken and 446 outlets blown up "with practically no loss" to the Americans.

The method of attack has been to confine the enemy with air and artillery saturation bombardments, then to send forward small demolition groups with flame throwers, white phosphorous and demolition grenades.

Occupants "Suffocated To Death"

First the laterals are sealed off with several hundred pounds of explosives. The vertical shaft then is blown from the top of each cave. Thus the cave occupants are "suffocated to death and destroyed."

Each cave can hold as many as 25 Japanese.

The Shimbu Line is in the Marikina watershed sector east of Manila.

Luzon Yanks have seized launching devices the Japanese used to fire eight-ton rockets. They fired three rockets simultaneously, each with seven propellent charges. Loaded with picric acid, the rocket had range of between four and five miles.

MacArthur said "It is an extremely powerful weapon but its accuracy is very doubtful."

South of Manila in the Batangas area, 11th Airborne division units secured the highway between Lake Taal and Balayan bay and captured the towns of Taal and San Nicholas.

Yanks Closing On Baguio

Manila, March 9 (AP)—American forces on Luzon today were closing in on Baguio, summer capital of the Commonwealth, and widening their holdings on the South Coast.

The severe wounding of Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, commander of the 1st Cavalry Division, was made known today. He was wounded on the battlefront northeast of Manila, February 28 by a grenade thrown by a Japanese soldier who had been left for dead.

Fragments hit the veteran cavalryman in the abdomen, but the medical staff said his recovery was certain.

Aringay Captured

MacArthur reported that 33d Division Yanks on Luzon advanced 12 miles up the west coast to capture Aringay, due west of Baguio. This gave the Americans control of a line reaching within 10 miles of the summer capital.

An American force was last reported within 5 miles of Baguio on the south, moving north from Camp Four.

On the south coast of Luzon, Yanks of the 11th Airborne Division and the 158th Regiment of the 8th Army captured the town of Lemery in a 13-mile sweep eastward along a good highway fringing Balayan Bay. This increased the pressure on Japanese, who are being cut off from escape routes in southern Luzon.

Shimbu Line Battle

Heavy fighting continued in the Shimbu Line sector east and northeast of Manila. In three days bombers of all sizes have dropped more than 1,000 tons of bombs on enemy entrenchments along this line, stretching from Antipolo to Wawa.

In wide sweeps of China Sea shipping, heavy United States bombers sank or damaged eleven freighters, including a 10,000-ton tanker sent to the bottom off Formosa.

Low-flying Mitchell medium bombers bombed and strafed Hainan Island, off the northern French Indo-China coast, and battled 25 Japanese fighters in the biggest air fight of this theater since the Luzon invasion.

Five enemy fighters were shot down and four others probably destroyed. Three American bombers were lost. In addition, twelve Japanese planes were destroyed or seriously damaged on the ground as the raiders swept the air base at Samah, leaving the target covered with smoke.

U.S. Mindanao Landing Told By Tokyo

London, March 9 (AP)—American forces have landed on Mindanao Island after a heavy bombardment from a naval task force which included four battleships and twenty other craft, the Tokyo radio said today.

This broadcast was in German. Another Tokyo broadcast, in Italian, said the Americans "attempted to land troops," but "up to the evening of March 9 no landing had taken place at any point."

The Tokyo broadcast, heard here, gave this "flash":

"Enemy trying to land at Zamboanga at Mindanao since March 8.

"The landing was preceded by a heavy bombardment. On March 8 in the morning 30 enemy ships appeared from the west. Soon afterward three cruisers, four battleships, twenty other ships and twenty landing boats were lying off Zamboanga.

"Signal For Landing"

"In the afternoon enemy forces with one battleship and two cruisers appeared from the West and other forces including two cruisers approached Zamboanga from the East. Three cruisers appeared at Lecort and took Zamboanga and Lecort under fire. This gave the signal for the landing.

"At about 8 o'clock Thursday morning the enemy approached from the west with a surface force of twenty warships," the broadcast went on, giving details.

"Two hours later, an enemy surface force composed of three battleships, four cruisers, twenty small craft, and twenty landing craft were sighted, and they immediately began mine sweeping operations.

Two Surface Forces

"At 1 P.M., a surface force, with one battleship and two cruisers as its mainstay, approached from the west while an additional surface, west with an additional surface force, with two cruisers as its mainstay, approached from the east.

"Meanwhile, three enemy cruisers, under cover of a substantial air force, shelled Zamboanga, showsigns of landing although no landing signs of landing although no landings were made up to Thursday night."

Japanese broadcasters are usually first to report a major American invasion in the Pacific, although they occasionally make their announcements a day or so ahead of the actual landing.

Second Largest Island

Mindanao is the second largest of the Philippine group. Zamboanga is the principal city. It had a prewar population of 131,455, with extensive community facilities and the Army maintained installations there following the early days of island occupation.

Mindanao, southernmost of the Philippines, was the island where the Japanese expected Gen. Douglas MacArthur to strike first when he returned to the Philippines. MacArthur took the enemy by surprise when he bypassed their supposedly strong Mindanao defenses to land on Leyte.

Mindanao is the site of the greatest Japanese prewar penetration of the Philippines. Davao and the rich surrounding agricultural territory were predominantly Nipponese.

On Surrounding Islands

American forces are on Palawan Island, west of Mindanao, and on Leyte and Samar islands, to the north. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has reported guerrillas active on Mindanao.

The Japanese radio once reported that United States forces invaded the Island of Jolo, southwest of Zamboanga, but there has been no American confirmation.

Zamboanga is the site of an ancient Spanish fortress from where the military went forth to subdue the tribesmen in the days when Spain ruled the Philippines.

Japs Neglected Roads, Bridges On Luzon

By Fred Hampson

Central Plains Command Port, Luzon, March 9 (AP)—You need do no more than follow the American troops down this rich valley from Lingayen to Manila to see why Japan has muffed her chance at empire.

When the 14th Corps troops made their Blitz to the capital, they ran into all sorts of blasted bridges. But at least half of the big bridges—the ones that gave the greatest trouble—hadn't been blown up by the Japanese at all. They were the unrepaired remnants of bridges the Americans blasted in their withdrawal in 1941. The Japanese had never repaired them, although they were the economic arteries of one of the richest areas captured by Nippon.

In the main, the Japanese replaced them with flimsy makeshift spans reachable only via tortuous detours scarcely able to support heavy traffic, and almost every one was a constant bottleneck.

Wire Black With Rust

At Bamban, for example, the parallel railroad and highway trestles had been dropped into the river. I saw them first from the air and remarked to the pilot "the Japs did a good job on those two."

But when I passed through Bamban with the troops later I saw my error. The steel wire reinforcing that hung from the jagged broken concrete blocks was black with old rust. The Japanese didn't perform that artistic job of demolition at all—we did back in 1941.

Two big spans linking rich Tarlac and Pangasinan and the northern provinces to Manila's ship piers via rail and road—hadn't been repaired in three years. Down between them on the river's surface was their solution, a one-way small piling treadway on a pontoon. They didn't get around to blowing that one up but even so our engineers had to strengthen it before big stuff could move across.

Bridges Compared

When we looked that area over, Major Reginald Jackson, of Toledo, Ohio, used words of the major league baseball scouts after watching a raw left-hander: "Japan as an empire builder is several seasons away."

My retort was that after she has been pushed all the way through this current meat grinder she'll be a hundred seasons away.

I backtracked the troops after reaching Manila and I can tell you this—that after 26 days, the supply men and engineers of the 14th Corps of the United States Army had better bridges between Lingayen and Manila than the Japanese had after three years.

The bridges were only part of the answer.

Between Calumpit and Malolos, the National road—the Lincoln highway of Luzon—contains a 5 or 6 mile segment that was not hard-surfaced. You ought to ride that stretch in a jeep after three years of Japanese maintenance. We drove over it never more than 10 miles an hour. I was so bounced and bumped that the canteen in my belt was bent.

These were physical evidences that a would-be empire builder had sliced himself off a chunk that his protuberant incisors couldn't even nibble at.

The greater answer was in the eyes of the people.

There was the old shopkeeper at Balintawak on the outskirts of Manila who dashed up to the jeep of Maj. Gen. Robert S. Beightler, 37th Division commander, with an armful of cold beer.

He saw the two stars on our jeep, jumped up and down, waived his arms and yelled "Welcome, welcome. No more Japs. No more of those . . . Japs. No more of those little . . ."

Eloquent Testimonial

Again he waved his arms and hunted for stronger words.

"Hallelujah, Hallelujah. No more . . . Japs."

There—it occurred to me—was an Asiatic small-business man, perhaps representative of the business core of Asia, celebrating with American oaths the end of Japan's program of "Asia for the Asiatics."

The bitterness, the utter hatred, they had wrought among these people in three years was, when you thought it over, far more eloquent testimonial to their failure than the bridges they didn't rebuild."

IWO JAPS KEEP UP GRIM RESISTANCE

Marines Forge Ahead Slowly In Face Of Intense Fire

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Saturday, March 10 (AP)—Grinding ahead from rock to rock, American Marines today fought against continuing bitter resistance for the tiny northern corner of Iwo Jima which the Japanese are trying to hold at all costs.

The hour for the issuance of this morning's Tokyo communiqué passed without its appearance. There was no word to indicate whether this suggests a stalemate or a blackout of significant developments unavailable to the enemy.

As the all-out drive to conclude the invasion went into its fifth d the Leathernecks held all but t extreme northern end of the volcanic island and a sector several thousand yards long on the northeast coast.

The 4th, 3d and 5th Marine divisions were strung across the battle line from east to west in that order. Although the terrain was almost prohibitive, some use was being made of tanks in ferreting out the enemy troops from pilboxes and caves.

Japs Keep Up Intense Fire

From their sheltered positions the Nipponese poured out an intense curtain of small-arms and machine-gun fire, augmented by mortars.

Rocket and strafing attacks by carrier aircraft and pin-point shelling by American warships standing offshore supported the Marines. It was necessary, however, to rely largely on flame throwers, grenades and hand-to-hand combat to dislodge the Japanese remnants from their numerous strong points.

"Small advances in all sectors" were made through Thursday, said the official communiqué covering that day's fighting.

Within Mile Of Kitano Point

Field dispatches said the 5th Division had driven along the northwest coast to within a mile of Kitano Point. The 3d was atop a cliff overlooking the ocean, only 300 yards off the northeast coast but still 1,500 yards from Kitano Point, the island's northern tip. The 4th, which had been making slight progress up the east coast, was still but a short distance from its invasion beachhead.

Possibility that the 4th might have cracked the resistance ahead, however, was seen in a report from that division saying some Japanese were observed withdrawing from caves immediately ahead.

With American air and naval forces in complete control above and around this strategic island 750 miles from Tokyo, the Japanese were without hope of rescue or reinforcement.

Yanks Advance Rock By Rock On Iwo Jima

Aboard Admiral Turner's Flagship, Iwo Jima, March 9 [AP—Via Navy Radio]—Japanese remnants contested the American advance "rock by rock" today in the slow-moving continuation of the Marine effort to dislodge the enemy from sheltered positions in the rugged northern part of Iwo Jima island.

The Marines have all of the island with the exception of the extreme northern end and a sector several thousand yards long on the northeast coast.

The 5th, 3d and 4th Marine Divisions, stretched across the island in that order, reported only small gains yesterday.

Taken By Surprise

The enemy was surprised temporarily by a Marine attack but rallied in time to impede the push by Leathernecks seeking to squeeze out Japanese troops in the two main sectors of the north.

The 4th Division on the northeast coast reported some Japanese withdrawing from caves on their immediate front where the opposition has been continuously heavy.

Fifth Division men were slowly reducing enemy pillboxes but were subjected to heavy mortar fire. Tanks were called in to help knock out the positions from where the fire was coming.

Same Pattern Followed

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 9 (AP)—The battle for Iwo Jima is assuming the pattern of the final phases of American conquests of other Pacific islands—but it may be several days before correspondents can flash "Iwo secured."

The Japanese have adopted desperation tactics such as preceded collapse of their organized resistance on Guam and elsewhere.

Frontline dispatches tell of small banzai charges; of suicidal attacks against American tanks by Japanese armed only with poles to which were attached explosive charges; of enemy troops confined to a great extent in dugouts and caves honeycombing precipitous coastal cliffs; of the discovery of Japanese bodies floating in the surf.

Sees Destruction Of All

In Washington, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz told correspondents he expected Japanese resistance on Iwo would continue "until the last Jap is killed, wounded or captured."

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskin's 3d Marine Division fought yesterday to a cliff top overlooking the Pacific, only 300 yards off the northeast coast. They still were 1,500 yards, however, from Kitano Point, northern tip of the island. Their own ranks hard hit by casualties, the Marines yet must conquer 5,000 or 6,000 enemy troops.

Japs Cling To Caves

Ahead of the 3d Division, Japanese were well-entrenched in cliffside caves and dugouts.

These enemy troops, and others similarly dug in ahead of the 5th Marine Division in the northwest and the 4th Marine Division on the east, probably will have to rely chiefly for defense upon machine guns, rifles and grenades, although there may be some big enemy guns in working condition in the cliffside caves.

Japs Claim U.S. Iwo Losses Are 30,000

San Francisco, March 9 (AP)—The unconfirmed claim that American Marines on Iwo have sustained "nearly 30,000 casualties" was made by Tokyo radio today in a broadcast intercepted here.

The last official Navy report from Guam, covering only the first three days of an operation now nineteen days old, placed Marine casualties on Iwo at 5,372, including 644 killed.

Turner Bans Toll Row

Aboard Admiral Turner's Flagship, Iwo Jima, March 8 [AP—Delayed]—Admiral Richmond K. Turner said today he was "not going to get into any controversy" over casualties in the Iwo Jima campaign.

The subject was brought up at a press conference by a correspondent who remarked: American newspapers soon "will start writing editorials about the casualties on Iwo Jima."

"There are some people who are trying to sell the idea that the Marines wasted lives," the correspondent told Admiral Turner. "I think you ought to make the point stronger about the Iwo defenses being heavier than expected.

Figures Recalled

It was called to Admiral Turner's attention that the last fatality figure for Iwo announced by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz was around 500 and that Navy Secretary Forrestal announced in Washington that the casualty total was more than 2,000 as of last Saturday.

Admiral Turner said, "I am not going to get into any controversy. Naturally we are concerned with losses. But so are we all." He added that the press had the right to criticize but that he didn't want to become embroiled over the number of men killed in the bitter fighting ashore.

Indulgence in wholesale rape by the Japanese led to a number of uprisings which were suppressed with the greatest brutality, the freed men added.

Several hundred men were liberated by daring dashes through Japanese-held sectors of Dutch New Guinea to Inland prisoner camps.

2,000 Beheadings Laid To Japs

Melbourne, March 9 (AP)—Liberated Dutch and Indonesian prisoners of war newly arrived in Australia say the Japanese, realizing they cannot hold the Indies, have embarked on a wanton campaign of mass tortures, rape and slaughter.

They said that more than 2,000 civilians were beheaded in April, 1944, in Dutch Borneo, among them thirteen native rulers.

Indonesian intellectuals and civil administrators assertedly are being exterminated.

In Java, the Nipponese discovered subversive organizations among the Indonesian railway staffs, and mass murders followed.

Rat-Eating Encouraged

The liberated men said the food situation was so acute that the Japanese were encouraging the people to eat rats.

Stettinius Hails Parley Achievements

Mexico City, March 9 (AP)—Edward R. Stettinius, United States Secretary of State, declared last night that the Inter-American Conference had "given concrete expression to that spirit of the good neighbor which has long since found acceptance in this hemisphere.

In a statement issued at the final session of the conference, he predicted that the agreements reached here would "contribute much" to the World Security Conference in San Francisco.

"Under the resolutions adopted here," he said, "no Axis leader, official or agent who is guilty of crimes against law and civilization in this war will be able to escape punishment by finding refuge in this Hemisphere."

In a final address, Joaquin Fernandez y Fernandez, Chilean Foreign Minister, hinted at possible Latin-American action at the San Francisco conference.

"We want," he said, "Latin-American countries to have adequate representation on the security council and we want strengthened authority for the assembly."

Bolivia Seeks To Stop Illicit Rubber Export

La Paz, Bolivia, March 9 (AP)—The United States-operated Rubber Development Corporation announced the Bolivian Government would make available $30,000 to finance a plan to curb the illicit export of rubber from the country.

The principal features of the plan now under study call for extensive vigilance of the frontiers, particularly that with Argentina where a flourishing contraband business has been built up in recent months, as well as the establishment of official license papers which must be carried by every truck coming from the producing zones.

Producers also would be obliged, under the plan, to declare the available stock of rubber on hand.

JAPS IN INDO-CHINA SEIZE KEY POSITIONS

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tokyo radio broadcast an Imperial communique Friday saying the Japanese in the puppet state of Indo-China have seized all "key establishments and facilities" from resisting French armed forces.

The Japanese said they have decided "to defend the land single-handed and thereby to wipe out hostile influences."

The Federal Communications commission intercepted the broadcast.

The communique referred to "repeated treacherous actions" by French authorities in "secretly attempting to join hands with the anti-Axis."

It also referred to the "unpardonable disloyalty to the joint-defense of 1941 on the part of the French Indo-China authorities."

The enemy communique, issued from Hanoi, said the French had refused a Japanese plan for joint defense.

Then:

"Our army immediately started action and disarmed part of the French Indo-China forces and the armed police which resisted us."

Japs Seize Indo-China Reigns

London, Saturday, March 10 (AP). The Japanese wiped out the last vestige of French control over the puppet state of Indo-China early today, taking over full administration of the land after charging French officers had tried secretly to join hands with the Allies.

Moving swiftly, the Japanese Army seized all key installations and facilities from "resisting" French and announced they would defend the land "single-handed," said a Tokyo broadcast.

The broadcast charged that during a conference of French Indo-China wartime military leaders in Hanoi February 20, "many of them were known to have strongly advocated immediate launching of an armed attack on Japan."

French officials were accused of "secretly co-operating with the United States air forces in the Philippines, China and India, as well as with enemy submarines," and added that American planes had dropped supplies to French forces in the colony "a number of times between February 20 and February 22."

Although the colony had been occupied by the Japanese since before Pearl Harbor, Tokyo has announced repeatedly that administration was left up to French officials there, and this was the first outward break between them and the Japanese.

Even now, the broadcast from Tokyo said, "outwardly, French Indo-China authorities appear to maintain friendly relations, as heretofore."

But the broadcast added that there is "undeniable evidence that they are secretly scheming to get into contact with the enemy, thus making it necessary for Japan to keep a close watch over them."

Jap Army Shakeup Reported By Domei

San Francisco, March 9 (AP)—Lieutenant General Prince Tsunenori Kaya, member of the Japanese Supreme War Council and commander of the Tokyo Division, has been appointed president of the Army Staff College in a shakeup of ranking Nipponese army officers, the Domei news agency reported today.

He succeeds Gen. Shizuichi Tanaka who was appointed commander of the Eastern Army District, replacing Gen. Keisuke Fujie whose new post was not announced.

The Domei dispatch, intercepted intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission, announced Lieutenant Generals Shozo Kawabe, commander of the Central Army, and Seiyichi iKta, now "on active duty," had been elevated to full generals.

Japan's war minister, Field Marshal Gen Sugiyama, told his people today that "the enemy" obviously was "contemplating a plan to invade this divine land."

He called for "steel-tight unity" among the armed forces, the Government and civilians, to meet what he termed Japan's "unprecedentedly grave war position."

Sumatrans Expecting Early Yank Landing

San Francisco, March 9 (AP)—An American landing on Sumatra within the next few months is expected by the people of that Dutch East Indies island presently held by the Japanese, an official Dutch news agency dispatch from Colombo, Ceylon, said today.

"Even Japanese seem to share this opinion," said the Aneta agency dispatch, which was based on reports from Sumatra-born Chinese who had escaped from the island.

Many Troops to Get Furloughs, Discharges After Nazi Defeat

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP) The Army plans to bring at least part of the troops in Europe back to the United States for furloughs before sending them to the war in the Pacific. Some discharges are planned.

The first official disclosure of the program came tonight from Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, chief of Army service forces. In an address over the Columbia Broadcasting system on the third anniversary of ASF, Somervell said the problem of redeploying forces after V-E day will be the most difficult yet faced by the War department.

Somervell's outline was presented this way:

"We will face a big load in moving troops back to this country, handling their furloughs, re-equipping them and shipping them to the Pacific. There will be a movement of men and supply directly from Europe to the Orient."

The general said that "we have closed about one-fourth of the capacity of the posts we manage in the United States and are holding them ready for troops back from Europe for redeployment or return to their homes."

The War department insists, however, that it is utterly impossible to estimate at this time the number of soldiers who will be discharged after victory in Europe.

Approximately 5,000,000 now are deployed in all overseas theaters, with perhaps slightly more than 3,500,000 across the Atlantic.

ROOSEVELT MAKES FRIENDLY MOVE TO GEN. DE GAULLE

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP) President Roosevelt held out the olive branch to General Charles De Gaulle today.

Whether De Gaulle would grasp it is a question. At the moment his problem seems to be clutching for straws in France's suddenly confused relations with Russia.

Makes Move to Reporters

The President made his gesture when a group of visiting French newspapermen stayed behind after his regular news conference for presentation.

They were stopped by long custom for initiating any newsworthy talk so the Chief Executive took the lead.

With friendly words for the man who snubbed him on his way home from Yalta by declining to meet him at Algiers, the President advised the French visitors not to pay any attention to the talk about himself and De Gaulle.

We're great friends, the President was quoted as saying, adding that when De Gaulle was over here for his last visit last year they had a great time.

He also said that as far as the matter of his going to see De Gaulle in Paris was concerned he was too busy even to have time to see General Eisenhower. But he expressed regret that he had not been able to go to France.

American diplomats hoped this gesture of friendship might evoke equal warmth in response but were by no means certain it would.

The belief here now is that the real test of French policy on collaboration with the big powers will come in the world security conference at San Francisco. There is considerable concern lest France seeks to dissident countries which ship of dissident countries which may try to upset Dumbarton Oaks plans.

However, there is evidence that France's main concern at the moment is with Russia. De Gaulle has the task not only of fitting his nation into the European scene, where Russian power promises to be dominant for years to come, but also of dealing with a very lively Communist element inside France.

Reds Hit De Gaulle

Maurice Thorez, secretary general of the Communist party in France, today lambasted the De Gaulle government for its failure to help sponsor the San Francisco conference.

"This attitude does not conform to the well conceived interests of our country," Thorez said.

Here is a significant sequence of events leading up to the present state of French relations:

1. When De Gaulle was first approached on the possibility of a meeting with the President he was very receptive to a meeting, not only in France but evidently anywhere within reason.

2. At that time he hoped to be included in the Big Three talks at Yalta. When he was excluded he was evidently inclined to blame President Roosevelt. He decided not to meet the President any place outside Paris.

3. Later it turned out that it was Premier Stalin, with his estimate of political power in terms of military forces, who vetoed De Gaulle's attendance at Yalta. Furthermore it was Moscow which turned down French proposals to reserve certain rights for changing the Dumbarton Oaks plan before France would agree to sponsor the invitations.

4. The Russian attitude, following the line that the Big Three powers were working together and that any Franco-Soviet alliance was subordinate to Big Three cooperation, appears to have been a shock to the French government which had depended heavily on its special relations with Moscow.

5. While the future course of French policy is not predictable here it would appear that De Gaulle's task now is to reorient his relations from primary dependence on Moscow to many-sided cooperation with the leading Allied nations.

WARN STASSEN TO SOFT PEDAL VIEW ON PEACE

Some Senators Bar Plan for Higher-level World Rule at Present.

THEY REGARD IT AS UNTIMELY

Commander Says Allied Nations Should Build Government Based Upon Justice.

Washington, March 8 (A. P.).—Capitol Hill foreign policy makers cautioned Commander Harold E. Stassen today to soft-pedal his advocacy of a gradually developed higher level world government.

Senator George (D.-Ga.), acting chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said that he fears the raising of controversial issues might "do great hurt to the immediate peace objectives Ex-Gov. Stassen so ably champions."

Other Senators in both parties expressed similar views after reading the former Minnesota Republican Governor's speech in his home State last night. In it Commander Stassen outlined his personal world peace attitude in advance of the April 25 San Francisco United Nations Conference he will attend as a delegate.

Hatch in Accord.

Senator Hatch (D.-N. M.), asserting he is "in thorough agreement with everything Gov. Stassen advocates," added:

"I strongly concur in the gradual development of a higher level of government, but the process must be gradual."

"There is great doubt whether the world is ready for a world-wide government," remarked Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) "There is grave danger that in seeking to achieve too much, nothing will be accomplished."

Senator Bridges (R.-N. H.) said that he considers Commander Stassen's proposal that every nation agree on just and fair trials "a most worthy objective that could well be one of the agreements reached through the United Nations organization."

The view that he is not prepared "to junk the United States of America for any idealistic plan for a super government" came from Senator Bushfield (R.-S. D.).

Talks On Poland Eyed As Key To Peace Moves

Washington, March 9 (AP)—Senators watched the Moscow negotiations on a provisional Polish government today for advance signs of the kind of Big Three nation co-operation they may expect at the world security conference.

Calling the Moscow meeting a testing ground, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) told a reporter the results will demonstrate to him, at least, how far Russia is willing to go in accepting American and British viewpoints on political matters vitally affecting the Soviet.

"This is the acid test of our ability to co-operate with the Russians and the British on questions of international security," Vandenberg said.

Recognition Of Others

He added that the three countries must recognize the sensibilities of the others, "and the quicker we can all get this habit the safer will be the peace of tomorrow."

Vandenberg, one of the eight American delegates to the San Francisco security conference in April, told the Senate yesterday that if American, British and Russian representatives at Moscow do not set up a government that is "truly a representative Polish coalition," they may sacrifice American support of the results.

Vandenberg's indorsement of British Foreign Minister Eden's warning to the Soviet-supported Lublin poles not to persecute backers of the London exile government was applauded today by Senator Ball (R., Minn.).

Free-Election Test

Ball said he is inclined also to agree with the Michigan Senator's appraisal of the critical nature of the Moscow decisions. He noted, however, that any government agreed upon there must stand the test of the free elections guaranteed by the Yalta agreement between President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin.

Vandenberg took occasion in the Senate to reiterate his theme that decisions made in the expediency of war often lack justice and must be reviewed by the peace machinery.

While Senator George (D., Ga.) said he sympathized with this viewpoint, he added that many of the agreements now being made are likely to become final.

Allies Pressing War On U-Boats

Washington, March 9 (AP)—German U-boats sank "a moderate number" of Allied merchant vessels in February, but anti-submarine forces destroyed more undersea raiders than in January.

This was reported tonight in the monthly Anglo-American statement on submarine and anti-submarine operations. The monthly report, as issued under the authority of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill, said:

"During the month of February a moderate number of Allied vessels fell victim to U-boat activity. However, the anti-submarine forces were successful in destroying more enemy submarines this past month than in January.

"Despite satisfactory results now being obtained in the war on undersea raiders, our forces must maintain increasing vigilance because any enemy with a large number of submarines always possesses a potential threat."

Submarines Sink 12 Craft

U. S. Includes Escort Carrier and Destroyer in Far East Toll

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP).—American submarines have sunk twelve more enemy vessels, including an escort carrier and a destroyer, in Far Eastern waters, the Navy announced today.

The announcement raised to 1,057 the total of enemy vessels of all types sunk by American submarines, including 112 combatant and 945 non-combatant craft.

Non-combatant ships listed in today's announcement included a large cargo transport, a large tanker, two medium cargo transports, five medium cargo vessels and a small cargo transport.

Navy Sinks Two PT's In Error; 'Loss Light'

Washington, March 9 (AP)—Two United States motor-torpedo boats have been sunk in the Philippines by another United States vessel as a result of mistaken identity, the Navy announced today.

Skippers of the two vessels, the PT-77 and PT-79, both were saved. Other casualties were light, the Navy said. Normal complement of a PT boat is from eleven to fifteen men. Next of kin of all casualties have been notified.

Salvage Vessel Lost

Loss of the small salvage vessel Extractor in a similar accident was announced March 1 by the Navy.

Lieut. (jg) Frank A. Tredinnick, Jr., Wakefield, Mass., was skipper of the PT-77, and Lieut. (jg) William G. Hartman, Cheektowaga, N.Y., was skipper of the PT-79.

The announcement raised to 218 the number of naval vessels sunk since the start of the war and to 272 the total lost from all causes, including those listed as overdue and presumed lost or destroyed to prevent capture.

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, March 8 (A. P.).—The War Department announced today the names of 2,168 casualties in the European war area.

In all of these cases next of kin have been notified previously and have been kept informed directly by the War Department of any change in status.

Arms Losses 500 Millions

New York, March 9 (AP)—Ordnance equipment valued at $500,000,000 has been lost by American armies in Europe since the Normandy invasion, Brig. Gen. Stewar E. Reimel, New York ordnance district chief, said today.

He enumerated the losses as a estimated 6,205 combat vehicles 34,250 general-purpose vehicles 166,885 rifles and other small arms 23,871 mortars and machine guns and 75,245 binoculars, watches and compasses.

The ordnance chief said the highest loss was about $200,000,000 in tanks.

Earlier Shutdown Of Canol Work Urged

Washington, March 9 (AP)—The Senate War Investigating Committee called on the Army today to move up a scheduled June 30 shutdown of the Canol project in northwestern Canada.

Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) quoted Interior Secretary Ickes as saying that by dropping the whole thing now and transferring 281 of Canol's skilled workers to specific refineries, aviation gasoline production could be increased 2,000 barrels daily.

"In view of the urgent need for aviation gasoline, we cannot afford to waste manpower at Canol any longer," Mead said.

Canada and the United States soon will name representatives to appraise the property. Under a recent agreement, Canada holds the option of purchasing Canol at its commercial value.

Soviets Improve Fighter Planes

Washington, March 9 (AP)—The Russians, unusually reticent about their aircraft, now say officially they have improved their fighter planes in speed, climb and firepower since the war began.

Col. Vasili Miloserdov, writing in the Soviet Embassy's information bulletin, says Red fighters are more than 50 per cent faster than 1941 models, will climb more than twice as fast and have 40 to 50 per cent more firepower. Furthermore, "the Soviet air force is now equipped with all types of planes necessary to satisfy demands of the present war."

Lightest Fighter

The Yak-3 is described in the article as "the world's lightest fighter of its class" with a speed "far higher than that of all the enemy's serial planes." The same qualities are claimed for the Lavochkin-7, powered with an air-cooled engine and designed as a fighter bomber.

Miloserdov said that the Germans tried but failed to build a plane to equal the Russian assault plane, the Ilyushin-2 or Stormovik, used for strafing and low level bombing.

Great Lifting Capacity

The Typolev-2 is claimed to be "vastly superior to most foreign bombers in lifting capacity" without exceeding in weight or size other bombers in its class.

The Russian officer made no mention of American warplanes. The Soviet has been the heaviest recipient of lend-lease aircraft.

MINERS' STRIKE VOTE ATTACKED

Producers Ask NLRB To Halt Plan Of Lewis

Washington, March 9 (AP)—The Southern Coal Producers Association, employing one third of John L. Lewis's mine workers petitioned the NLRB today to halt plans for a strike vote among the miners March 28.

Lewis on February 26 served notice on the National Labor Relations Board that a dispute exists within the meaning of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act, and the board interpreted the act as leaving it no discretion. Accordingly, NLRB is preparing to take the strike vote.

The Southern Coal Producers Association challenged that interpretation of the act and said a vote was not automatically required.

Notice Filed As Parley Began

Lewis's notice was filed with the start of negotiations with the nation's operators on a new contract to replace the one expiring March 31.

The question to be submitted to the 400,000 coal miners is whether they want to go on strike April 1 in the absence of a new agreement.

The petition, signed by Edward R. Burke, former Nebraska Senator, and John C. Gall, questioned Lewis's contention that there could be a dispute at this stage of the negotiations, and asserted Lewis's notice was "wholly null and void and should be so declared by the board."

Is Powerful Group

The Southern organization is a powerful arm of the bituminous operators' group, which includes the Northern Appalachian, Illinois, and Western units, all involved in the current negotiations.

A spokesman for all the operators said the move might indicate that the Southern association will carry its challenge of the board's interpretation of the Smith-Connally Act into court if necessary. Such a court test might be obtained in a Federal district court suit for injunction.

Denies Dispute Exists

"By no stretch of the imagination can it be truthfully alleged that even a dispute as to the terms of a future contract presently exists," the petition read.

Lewis's demands, "no matter how controversial," are not in themselves a "labor dispute," the petitioners contended.

The filing of the notice in itself "threatened seriously to interfere with war production," they added.

Wage Talks Concluded

Lewis and representatives of bituminous coal operators completed their first general discussion of all eighteen United Mine Workers wage demands in "record time" today.

Ezra van Horn, conference chairman, Cleveland operator and spokesman for the sixteen-member committee negotiating a new contract, said the miners and producers completed preliminary discussion of the last six demands.

TABER ATTACKS CCC OPERATIONS, DEMANDS PROBE

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP) Three employees of the Commodity Credit corporation have been "separated" from their jobs, it was disclosed today, after Rep. Taber (R-NY) asserted that a situation exists which "transcends Teapot Dome."

On the House floor Taber and Rep. Keefe (R-Wis) demanded searching investigation of what Keefe termed reports that speculators with inside information on CCC operations have made "millions and millions of dollars" in the grain market.

Frank Hancock, CCC head, told reporters of the three separations from service as he listened to the discussion from a gallery seat. Since he took over the agency January 1, Hancock said, investigations have been in progress and Marvin Jones, head of the War Food administration, has requested the Federal Bureau of Investigation to make an inquiry.

To support what he said was his belief there have been leaks from the CCC to Chicago grain speculators, Taber cited again price quotations at Chicago for September 26, 1944.

"Before the grain market opened," he said, "the government announced that it would buy on May 1, 1945, at full parity price all wheat under loan that remained unredeemed. This came as a surprise and caused a five-cent advance in wheat that day.

"From September 9 to September 25, there was a steady rise in the price of wheat and the spread reached a height of 14 1-5 cents per bushel. There was a very large volume of purchases and those purchases were dropped on the market immediately after the announcement on the 25th at a very large profit."

"Is it possible to infer anything other than that there had been a leak in the operations of the Commodity Credit corporation and that those with the tip-off made an enormous profit in getting rid of the wheat at the high prices?" he asked.

There were indications also, the New Yorker said, of "a leakage and a profit on the part of speculators" in the egg market, in the CCC raisin program and in the rye market.

Four days before the War Food administration announced early last year that it would sell 200 carloads of eggs, Taber declared, the egg market dropped two cents per dozen, and after the announcement it dropped another two cents.

"I understand that there was a large short sale of eggs just before the announcement," he added.

"Why did they buy 450 tons of raisins from a particular New York broker in 1943?" he asked. "These raisins were not bought to take care of military camps. They must have been bought for some purpose not in the public interest."

Without saying who made it, Taber said "A charge has been made that twenty million pounds of lard was allowed to spoil in Cincinnati about a week ago and instead of having it renovated and turned over to the bakers and other producers of food who could use it for that purpose it was sold for soap—and now we are faced with a situation where the lard is again rationed and it is impossible to buy it."

When Representative Michener (R-Mich.) suggested that Jones and Hancock issue a statement "telling the truth," Representative Patman (D-Tex.) replied:

"Tell the truth about what? No charges have been made. All is rumor."

STRIKE IS ENDED IN BRIGGS PLANTS

DETROIT, March 9—(AP) Resumption of war production Monday in seven plants of the Briggs Manufacturing Co., closed for eight days by a strike of 13,000 employes, was voted tonight at a meeting of the strikers.

The workers, who twice previously rejected back-to-work proposals, agreed by a 10 to 1 margin to terminate the work stoppage, which had tied up output of plane assemblies and other war materiel, after hearing pleas that they return to their benches from officers of the local and international union.

More than 2,500 unionists attended the meeting.

Supporting a back-to-work movement were Walter P. Reuther and Richard T. Frankenstein, vice presidents of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), and John J. Murphy, president of the striking local 212, UAW-CIO.

Murphy had told the Regional War Labor Board he would "do everything in my power" to get the strikers to adhere to a board's back-to-work directive. The RWLB order, issued last Wednesday, also directed the company to reinstate seven employes, discharged by the company after the work stoppage started.

Negotiation between the company and union on reinstatement of eight other workers, whose discharge precipitated the strike, was directed by the board. The company charged the workers with fomenting previous strikes.

DAVIS AND TAYLOR BEGIN NEW JOBS

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP) A couple of guys who have been trying to quit public office for months wound up today taking on new and bigger jobs.

William H. Davis, chairman of the War Labor board since it was established three years ago, took the oath as economic stabilization director.

The WLB vice chairman, George W. Taylor, was sworn in as chairman.

Both sought to resign last fall and were talked out of it by President Roosevelt. Said Taylor:

"For a couple of guys who were trying to go home, we sure made an awful mess of it."

There was quite a ceremony. More than 100 employes of the WLB crowded into the board room to watch, some even standing on tables in the rear.

Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme court, his unruly, sandy hair sticking out like a well-worn brush, strode in with a copy of the oath in his hand.

Davis, whose gray locks are just as unruly, shook hands and averred that he "swears," he doesn't "affirm." Then Taylor, who keeps his hair cut crew style, had his inning.

Lloyd Garrison, a public member of the board, made a speech declaring that the entire WLB setup had a "deep sense of personal loss" in the departure of Davis. He said some nice things about Taylor, too.

Secretary of Labor Perkins came in late and got into the informal atmosphere, sitting on a desk. Later somebody found a chair for her.

Davis told the Board and staff:

"I'm not able to make a speech and particularly in this room where I never was permitted to."

It is the room where the WLB fights out its intramural arguments.

"One of my regrets," said Davis, "is that the country is going to find out that it wasn't me that made the War Labor board work."

He referred to the "driving force" of Taylor, and said in his new job he will "try to do as well as I can so I won't get completely in disgrace."

He said as stabilization director "we're going to get along all right; we know one another's language."

Taylor said he didn't know anybody he'd rather see in the stabilization job than Davis and said he willl do the best he can as Davis' successor.

WILLIAMS CLAIMS RACE ISSUE USED BY HIS OPPONENTS

WASHINGTON, March 9—(AP) Aubrey Williams, fighting for Senate confirmation as Rural Electrification administrator, told reporters today his racial views "have become practically the dominant issue."

He quoted Senator Bilbo (DMiss) as having written a constituent:

"We do not want this Negro lover on this job."

Williams said, "I deplore the fact that the racial issue has been so clearly drawn by a member of the United States Senate."

President Roosevelt's nomination of the former National Youth administrator to head the REA was given an unfavorable vote, 12 to 8, in the Senate agriculture committee. The Senate may vote on confirmation next week.

New Milford [illegible] Aids Him

Williams' news conference was arranged by a group called "friends of Aubry Williams." It is headed by Eliot D. Pratt of New Milford, Conn., an associate of Williams in the National Farmers union.

This committee issued a "tentative standing" of senators in the fight. Called flexible by Williams, it showed 43 senators for confirmation, 41 against and the rest of the 96 doubtful.

A week ago an Associated Press canvass of senators showed that, among those willing to state their position, 42 were opposed and 31 were favorable to the nomination.

Williams said "senators are shifting because they are hearing from back home, I suppose."

Several Endorse Williams

Williams' friends said that among the endorsements received recently were those from President William Green of the AFL; the Right Rev. Luigi Ligutti of Des Moines, Iowa, executive secretary of the National Rural Life Conference; Mark Ethridge of Louisville; President A. F. Whitney of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen; Marshall Field of Chicago; Publisher David Stern of the Philadelphia Record; President Philip Murray of the CIO; James G. Patton of the Farmers Union; Judson King of Washington, and James McGill, of Valparaiso, Ind.

Reporters noted that some of these were especially active in the fight to make Henry Wallace Secretary of Commerce, but Williams discounted the suggestion of any special connection.

STANDARD OIL SUED BY OPA

Indiana Firm Charged With Overceiling Gasoline Sales

Chicago, March 9 (AP)—The Office of Price Administration, in a suit which it said "may involve millions of dollars," today charged the Standard Oil Company of Indiana with selling gasoline at overceiling prices and asked that the company be required to cease all gasoline sales 30 days after a court order or maintain proper pricing records.

The suit, filed in the Hammond division of the United States District Court of northern Indiana, did not state the amount of damages. However, Rae E. Walters, regional OPA administrator, said it "may involve millions of dollars, since it alleges overceiling prices on gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products throughout the nation."

Chester Bowles, national OPA administrator, in a statement released here termed the suit part of an action "to eliminate refiners' overcharges on gasoline, fuel oil and other petroleum products in the Middle West and to relieve the squeeze on jobbers and retailers."

Complaint Against Standard

Bowles referred to suits for injunctions and treble damages previously filed against four of the country's largest petroleum refiners. He asserted that overcharges "are expected to run into several millions of dollars."

The corporations are the Hughes Oil Company, the Texas Oil Company, the Globe Oil and Refining Company and the Sinclair Refining Company.

The complaint filed against Standard Oil contends the company failed to keep records showing the basis upon which it determined maximum prices for its petroleum products since February 19, 1944, neglecting to keep them available for inspection by the OPA.

It also charged that since September 16, 1942, the company has sold petroleum products for which it was unable to determine maximum prices without making proper application to the OPA covering this type of sale.

The company issued a statement, saying: "This suit is based on a difference of opinion as to whether the pricing law and regulations permit ceiling prices for certain petroleum products to be set on what is known as the GJ Group-3 basis, or whether they must be based on the last sale of similar classification within the 60-day period prior to October 15, 1941; also on differences regarding the proper method of classifying customers."

The statement added "Standard Oil Company has at all times endeavored to obey the OPA regulations, although this has been difficult in some instances owing to the uncertainty as to their applicability and meaning.

"Practices Now Permitted"

"We believe trial of the cases will demonstrate that Standard's pricing methods were entirely correct and proper, or if not, it was because of the honest belief that the company had properly interpreted the price regulation, and without any intent to violate applicable law or regulations.

"The acts complained of in this suit took place some time ago and were in conformity with practices which are now expressly permitted by subsequent amendments to the price regulation," the statement said.

Six Adventists Tried By Army Court Martial

Refused to AttendGuardMount on Saturday Before Sundown

WASHINGTON, March 9 (AP).—The War Department reported today that six Seventh-Day Adventists at Camp Barkeley, Texas, had been court martialed for refusing to obey an officer's command.

It made its report to Senator Frank P. Briggs, Democrat, of Missouri, who had asked an inquiry into complaints that Charles O. Eastham, of Poplar Bluff, Mo., had been sentenced to six months at hard labor for refusing to drill on his Sabbath.

An investigation was said by the department to have shown:

Eight Adventists refused to attend guard mount scheduled for 6:15 p. m. on Saturday, Dec. 23, 1944, because Saturday was their Sabbath and they could not perform such duty prior to sunset, which on that date was at 6:40 p. m.

The commanding general explained to the men on Dec. 27 that the Army's policy was to give the men every opportunity to observe Saturday as their Sabbath to the same extent that men observing Sunday were given an opportunity to worship.

Those who observe Sunday as the Sabbath do not get a full twenty-four hours off duty but have to perform guard duty and kitchen police.

The Adventists were told that, although no other soldier could have every Sunday off, Adventists regularly had been allowed the full twenty-four-hour period from sundown Friday to sundown Saturday, except when they were detailed to guard duty and had to attend guard mount.

Only two of the eight said they were willing to attend the ceremony of guard mount, and the other six were court martialed.

While on patrol duty the Adventists were not required to carry arms on their Sabbath.

Eastham was sentenced to six months at hard labor and $33 of his monthly pay was forfeited for six months.

LONDON, MARCH 9-(AP)-STRONG SENTIMENT FOR THE QUICK CREATION OF AN "INTERMINGLED" INTERNATIONAL POLICE FORCE TO BACK THE MANDATES OF THE WORLD SECURITY LEAGUE WAS DEVELOPING TODAY AMONG SOME OF EUROPE'S SMALLER NATIONS WITH THE PROBAABILITY THEY WILL PRESS THEIR CASE AT THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE.

A HIGH-PLACED OFFICIAL OF ONE OF THESE GOVERNMENTS--RELUCTANT TO PERMIT THE USE OF HIS NAME "IN ADVANCE OF THE HEARING"--SUGGESTED IN AN INTERVIEW THAT SUCH A FORCE COULD BE USED FOR POLICING GERMANY FOR AN INDEFINITE PERIOD ONCE COMPLETE MASTERY OVER GERMANY COULD BE ACHIEVED AND THE INITIAL OCCUPATION PERIOD ENDED.

THIS, HE ARGUED, WOULD SERVE A DOUBLE PURPOSE OF PREVENTING A PREMATURE ENDING OF THE PERIOD OF OCCUPATION WHILE PROVIDING A TRAINING GROUND FOR WELDING SUCH AN INTERNATIONAL ARMY INTO A COORDINATED FORCE READY TO ACT IMMEDIATELY TO PUT DOWN ANY THREAT TO THE PEACE.

HE ACKNOWLEDGED FRANKLY THAT THE PLAN WAS PROMPTED IN PART BY THE PERSISTENT BEHIND-THE-SCENES BELIEF IN MANY QUARTERS OF EUROPE THAT A POWERFUL DEMAND WILL ARISE FOR THE RETURN HOME OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS SOON AFTER VICTORY, AND THAT SUCH SENTIMENT WILL BE DUPLICATED IN PART IN BRITAIN.

UNLIKE MANY OF THOSE WHO ADVOCATE AN INTERNATIONAL POLICE FORCE WITH RESERVATIONS, HE CONTENDED THAT THE MEN AND MATERIEL EARMARKED FOR THE LEAGUE'S USE IN TIME OF NECESSITY--GROUND TROOPS AS WELL AS AIR FORCES--SHOULD BE TRAINED TOGETHER UNDER AN INTERNATIONAL HIGH COMMAND.

HIS PROPOSAL WOULD BE IN DIRECT OPPOSITION TO THE PLAN GENERALLY REGARDED AS HAVING THE SUPPORT OF THE MAJOR POWERS--ONE UNDER WHICH THE VARIOUS SECURITY LEAGUE MEMBERS WOULD AGREE TO CONCERTED ACTION IN TIME OF A CRISIS BUT WOULD TRAIN THEIR OWN NATIONALS SEPARATELY.

THE OFFICIAL EXPLAINED THAT THE SMALLER COUNTRIES--UNABLE IN MONEY OR MANPOWER TO SUPPORT A LARGE STANDING FORCE--OBJECTED TO THE LATTER PLAN FOR FEAR IT WOULD:

MAR 10 1945

1--DEVELOP, RATHER THAN CURB, THE SPIRIT OF NATIONALISM.

2--FOSTER A SPIRIT OF RIVALRY IN DEVELOPING MORE DEADLY WAR WEAPONS.

3--FORCE THE SMALL COUNTRIES INTO A POSITION OF DEPENDENCE UPON THEIR BIG NEIGHBORS WITH THE RESULTANT LOSS OF ECONOMIC--AND PERHAPS EVENTUALLY POLITICAL FREEDOM, AND

4--BY THIS DEPENDENCE NULLIFY THE AIM OF THE WORLD SECURITY LEAGUE ON THE GROUNDS THAT THE LITTLE COUNTRIES, IN EFFECT, WOULD BE FORCED TO VOTE WITH THEIR PROTECTING POWER AND THUS GRADUALLY SHAPE AND SOLIDIFY SPHERES OF INFLUENCE.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT [illegible]RD COWAN TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME HOW THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE WAS CAPTU[illegible] WITH THE INTREPID AMERICANS EXPECTING IT TO BLOW UP IN THEIR FA[illegible] AT ANY MINUTE.

SECONDS AFTER INFANTRY LED BY LT.EMMETT J.BURROWS CAPTURED THE BRIDGE IN THE MIDST OF EXPLOSIONS DESIGNED TO DESTROY IT, TANKS OF THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION WERE RACING ACROSS. WIRES WERE RIPPED FROM EXPLOSIVES ATTACHED TO THE BRIDGE WHILE IT WAS UNDER FIRE.

COMPANY A OF THE 26TH ARMORED INFANTRY, COMMANDED BY LT.KARL TIMMERMAN, WEST POINT, NEB., WAS THE FIRST TO REACH THE EAST BANK.

STAFF OFFICERS SAID THAT IN 48 HOURS TANKS AND INFANTRY ESTABLISHED A FIRM HOLD ON THE EAST BANK AND WERE DRIVING DEEPER INLAND AS STREAMS OF SUPPLIES AND REINFORCEMENTS HURRIED ACROSS.

THE GERMANS SO FAR HAVE BEEN ABLE TO OFFER ONLY DESPERATE LOCAL RESISTANCE, WHILE THE ENEMY HIGH COMMAND TRIES TO MASS FORCES FOR A COUNTERATTACK STRONG ENOUGH TO DRIVE THE AMERICANS BACK INTO THE RIVER.

IF CALCULATIONS THAT THE BRIDGEHEAD NOW IS FIVE MILES DEEP AND 10 MILES WIDE ARE CORRECT, THEN A LARGE NUMBER OF EAST BANK GERMAN TOWN HAVE BEEN OVERRUN.

GERMAN BROADCASTS SAID THE AMERICANS HAD MOVED ARTILLERY ACROSS THE RHINE AND THAT A FIERCE BATTLE RAGED AT LINZ.

SIMULTANEOUSLY WITH ITS BUILDUP OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, THE FIRST ARMY MOPPED UP MORE TRAPPED GERMANS ON THE WEST BANK.

TWELVE MILES NORTH OF REMAGEN, THE FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION CLEARED ALL BUT THE SOUTH SECTION OF THE CITY OF BONN, BIRTHPLACE OF BEETHOVEN AND "THE HARVARD OF GERMANY."

ON THE SOUTH, LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY VIRTUALLY SLAMMED THE DOOR ON THE GERMANS IN THE EIFEL MOUNTAINS BY DRIVING UP EIGHT MILES SOUTH OF REMAGEN, CAPTURING EN ROUTE A GERMAN GENERAL AND HIS ENTIRE DIVISION STAFF AT THE FERRY TERMINAL OF ANDERNACH.

ANDERNACH IS 12 MILES NORTH OF COBLENZ, AND THE THIRD ARMY WAS FOUR MILES FARTHER NORTH AT BROEHL, EIGHT MILES FROM REMAGEN.

A FRONT DISPATCH SAID THE AMERICANS NOW [illegible]OMINATED THE RHINE FROM [illegible]BLENZ NORTHWARD.

CAREFUL THAT THE HARD-RIDING THIRD ARMY DID NOT DUPLICATE THE FIRST ARMY'S FEAT, THE GERMANS BLEW THE HIGHWAY BRIDGE AT COBLENZ AND A RAILROAD SPAN NEAR ANDERNACH.

TWO THIRDS OF THE 16-MILE LONG PLAIN BETWEEN COBLENZ AND MAYEN HAD BEEN CLEARED, AND ALL ALONG THE 65 MILES FROM TRIER TO COBLENZ THE GERMANS WERE BEING PRESSED BACK AGAINST THE MOSELLE RIVER.

THE GERMAN AGENCY DNB SAID GEN.EISENHOWER INTENDED TO SEND THE THIRD ARMY SOUTHWARD ACROSS THE MOSELLE RIVER FOR A CONCERTED ATTACK WITH THE U.S. SEVENTH ARMY WHICH WOULD PINCH OFF THE RICH SAAR COAL AND STEEL-PRODUCING REGION.

ONE GERMAN COMMENTATOR ALSO DECLARED THAT ON THE NORTH SECTION OF THE FRONT, THE U.S. NINTH ARMY OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON "HAS PAUSED FOR THE LAST THREE DAYS, MAKING PREPARATIONS FOR A NEW ONSLAUGHT AND IT CAN BE EXPECTED THIS STORM WILL BREAK AT ANY HOUR."

DNB GUESSED THAT ANOTHER RHINE CROSSING WOULD BE ATTEMPTED IN THE XANTEN AREA, WHERE IT SAID AT LEAST SEVEN OR EIGHT BRITISH SECOND ARMY DIVISIONS HAD BEEN BROUGHT UP WITH SPECIAL ENGINEERING FORMATIONS "ENTRUSTED WITH THE TASK OF PREPARING A CROSSING OF THE LOWER RHINE."

IT WAS IN THIS AREA THAT THE GERMANS WEST OF THE RHINE WERE FIGHTING MOST FIERCELY.

XANTEN FELL ONLY AFTER DAYS OF THE MOST SAVAGE FIGHTING, AND FORCES PRESSING ON A MILE EAST CAPTURED BEEK, FIVE MILES FROM THE FERRY CROSSING AT WESEL.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, BRITISH FORCES CAPTURED THE SOUTHERN STRONGPOINT OF ALPEN AND THE GERMANS WERE FLEEING THE FOUR BY FIVE-MILE POCKET IN BARGES, AT LEAST 15 OF WHICH WERE DESTROYED BY WAITING FIGHTERBOMBERS.

IN A MATTER OF SECONDS AFTER THE INFANTRY COMPANY COMMANDED BY A JERSEY CITY LIEUTENANT, EMMET J.BURROWS, HAD SEIZED THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION WAS RACING ACROSS AND FANNING OUT IN ALL DIRECTIONS.

THE GREAT RUHR BASIN WAS IN IMMINENT PERIL OF BEING OUTFLANKED; THE VERY HEART OF GERMANY WAS MENACED.

SOME EXPLOSIONS ACCOMPANIED THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION DASH ACROSS THE RHINE AND CAUSED SLIGHT DAMAGE TO THE BRIDGE. WIRES TO EXPLOSIVE CHARGES WERE CUT SWIFTLY BEFORE ANY MORE THAN SUPERFICIAL HARM WAS DONE.

REPA[illegible] UNDER GERMAN FIRE WERE STARTED IMMEDIATELY.

ERPEL (POP:1,000), AT THE EAST END OF THE BRIDGE, WAS SWIFTLY OVERRUN AND THE TANKS AND FOOT TROOPS SWARMED INTO THE BALSATIC CLIFFS AND ROLLING GREEN RHINELAND HILLS BEYOND. A GERMAN MEDIC SURRENDERED THE TOWN AND 600 WOUNDED GERMANS AND A FEW AMERICAN PRISONERS IN IT.

THE GERMANS WERE STUNNED ALMOST INTO PARALYSIS. HUNDREDS LAID DOWN THEIR ARMS. WHITE FLAGS FLAPPED ALONG THE ENTIRE ROUTE OF THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION'S CHARGES.

WHEN NIGHT FELL WEDNESDAY, ALL ROADS WEST OF THE RHINE LEADING TO THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE WERE CHOKED WITH TRUCKS OF TROOPS AND SHELLS, TANKS, SELF PROPELLED GUNS--EVERY VEHICLE AND WEAPON IN EASY REACH.

THE STEADY STREAM OF EASTBOUND MILITARY TRAFFIC SUCH AS THE RHINE HAD NEVER EXPERIENCED SINCE NAPOLEON CROSSED 140 YEARS AGO CONTINUED THROUGH THE NIGHT, YESTERDAY AND TODAY.

ONLY ONE-WAY TRAFFIC CROSSED THE BRIDGE FOR HOURS UNTIL A SIZABLE FORCE OF INFANTRY AND ARMOR WAS ACROSS. ENGINEERS WERE REPAIRING AND STRENGTHENING THE SPAN--ONCE TERMED MORE VALUABLE TO GEN. EISENHOWER THAN COLOGNE OR ANY OTHER RHINELAND CITY.

THE 9TH ARMORED DIVISION REACHED THE RHINE AFTER A 25-MILE DASH FROM EUSKIRCHEN.

MAR 10 1945

IT WAS THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION, COMMANDED BY MAJ. GEN. JOHN W.LEONARD, WHICH HELD OUT AT BASTOGNE ALONGSIDE THE 101ST AIRBORNE DIVISION LAST DECEMBER.

THE DECISION TO TAKE THE BRIDGE WAS MADE AT A HURRIED CONFERENCE NEAR THE WATERS EDGE BY BRIG.GEN.WILLIAM .HOGE OF LEXINGTON, MO., COMMANDER OF COMBAT COMMAND B WHICH CARRIED OUT THE DECISION, LT. COL.LEONARD ENGEMAN OF MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., TASK FORCE COMMANDER, AND MAJ.MURRAY DEEVERS OF HAGERVILLE, ARK., COMMANDER OF THE 27TH ARMORED INFANTRY BATTALION.

MAR 10 1945

FOR SEVEN HOURS AFTER THE FIRST TROOPS RUSHED ACROSS A SINGLE BATTALION OF ARMORED INFANTRY HELD THE BRIDGE AS WELL AS THE BLUFF AT THE EASTERN EXIT AND THE SURROUNDING HEIGHTS.

BY GERMAN ACCOUNT, THE AMERICAN FIRST ARMY HAD BEEN HALTED BEFORE THE CASTLED EAST BANK TOWN OF LINZ, THREE MILES EAST OF REMAGEN AND 276 MILES SOUTHWEST OF BERLIN.

THE BUILDUP IN THE ROLLING GREEN RHINELAND HILLS WAS SWIFT AND UNDER A PROTECTIVE COVER OF FIGHTER BOMBERS AGAINST RESISTANCE WHICH THE SURPRISED ENEMY STILL HAD BEEN UNABLE TO STIFFEN.

OTHER THAN THAT, NO DETAILS WHATEVER WERE RELEASED AT SUPREME HEADQUARTERS OF THE GROUND DEVELOPMENTS IN THE CROSSING WON MORE THAN 48 HOURS AGO. NOR WOULD CENSORS AT THE FRONT PASS DETAILS OF THE GREAT MILITARY COUP WHICH HAD STAGGERED THE WEHRMACHT CRITICALLY OFF BALANCE.

GERMAN RESISTANCE FINALLY COLLAPSED IN THE HUGE EIFEL MOUNTAINS POCKET BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES AS HEMMED IN DIVISIONS BROKE FROM THEIR LINES AND RACED FOR THE RHINE.

THE THIRD ARMY WAS SHELLING COBLENZ AND WAS LAST REPORTED FOUR MILES AWAY. REPORTS MANY HOURS LATE PLACED PROBING TANK COLUMNS OF THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES ONLY 15 MILES APART SOUTH OF REMAGEN.

THE BRITISH, CANADIAN AND U.S. NINTH ARMY WHITTLED DOWN THE VIOLENTLY DEFENDED WESEL BRIDGEHEAD TO THE NORTH AND CAPTURED XANTEN, FABLED BIRTHPLACE OF WAGNER'S SIEGFRIED.

BONN, BETWEEN COLOGNE AND COBLENZ, WAS IN ITS LAST HOURS OF NAZI RULE AS THE FIRST DIVISION CRASHED THROUGH ITS ANCIENT STREETS TO THE RHINE, WHERE THE ENEMY BLEW THE RHINE BRIDGE.

DRABIK WAS CALLED FROM HIS PLATOON TO COME TO HOGE'S COMMAND POST TO BE INTERVIEWED. HE STOOPED AS HE ENTERED THE DOORWAY, BENDING HIS SIX-FOOT FRAME, AND THEN STOOD FIDGETING IN EMBARRASSMENT. HE HAD NEVER BEEN INTERVIEWED BEFORE AND HE DIDN'T QUITE KNOW WHAT TO MAKE OF THIS SUDDEN ATTENTION.

IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT DRABIK NEVER THOUGHT ABOUT THE JOB HE DID AS BEING ONE OF THE MOST DRAMATIC HEROIC ACTIONS OF THE WAR. AND THERE WERE NO FLOURISHES TO THE SIMPLE STORY HE TOLD.

HE SAT DOWN AND CRADLED THE M-1 GUN IN HIS ARM AND CLASPED IT WITH BIG BONY HANDS STILL GRIMY FROM COMBAT. HIS DARK BROWN HAIR WAS MATTED AND THERE WAS A THREE-DAY REDDISH STUBBLE ON HIS CHIN.

"WELL," HE SAID, "IT WAS LIKE THIS. LT.TIMMERMAN (LT.CARL TIMMERMAN, WEST POINT, BEM) TOLD US TO GO ACROSS THE BRIDGE, WITH THE FIRST PLATOON LEADING. I'VE GOT THE THIRD PLATOON OF A RIFLE COMPANY.

"WE HAD FOUGHT THROUGH REMAGEN TO THE RIVER AND OUR COMPANY WAS AT THE EDGE OF TOWN ABOUT 200 YARDS FROM THE BRIDGE. I DON'T KNOW WHAT TIME IT WAS BECAUSE I LOST ALL TRACK OF TIME THESE PAST FEW DAYS.

"I WAITED UNTIL THE FIRST PLATOON GOT ON THE BRIDGE BUT THEY WERE HELD UP BY MACHINE-GUN AND SNIPER FIRE FROM THOSE BIG STONE TOWERS AT THE EASTERN END OF THE BRIDGE. WHEN I BROUGHT MY MEN UP THE FIRST PLATOON WAS KEEPING THE GERMANS IN THE TOWER BUSY, SO I WENT BY THEM AND YELLED TO MY MEN TO GO ACROSS, FIRING INTO THE TUNNELS IN THE HILL AT THE END OF THE BRIDGE.

AND SOME OF THEM WERE LYING ON THE FLOOR OF THE BRIDGE. THEY HAD THE GERMANS PRETTY WELL DOWN WITH THEIR FIRE, SO THEY COULDN'T GET A GOOD SHOT AT US.

"WE RAN DOWN THE MIDDLE OF THE BRIDGE, SHOOTING AS WE WENT. I DIDN'T STOP BECAUSE I KNEW IF I KEPT MOVING THEY COULDN'T HIT ME. MY MEN WERE IN SQUAD COLUMN AND NOT ONE OF THEM WAS HIT.

"ALL OF THEM ARE GOOD BOYS. EIGHT OF US HAVE BEEN TOGETHER SINCE I WENT INTO THE ARMY IN NOVEMBER, 1942.

"WE HAD A MACHINE-GUN SQUAD COMING UP BEHIND US TO CLEAN OUT THE TUNNEL IN THE HILL, BUT THEY WERE NOT FIRING BECAUSE THERE WAS TOO MUCH DANGER THEY WOULD HIT US.

MAR 10 1945

"WHAT WERE THE GERMANS FIRING AT US? WELL, I SWEAR I DON'T REMEMBER. IT'S FUNNY BUT THERE WAS SO MUCH SHOOTING I DON'T EVEN REMEMBER WHETHER THERE WAS ANY ARTILLERY.

"I KEPT THINKING IF WE COULD KEEP THE GERMANS ON THE RUN AND WIN OUT, THEN WE COULD CROSS THE RHINE ON THEIR OWN BRIDGE.

"THAT'S WHAT I KEPT THINKING. I DIDN'T THINK MUCH ABOUT THEM BLOWING UP THE BRIDGE WHILE WE WERE ON IT ALTHOUGH I FIGURED ANYTHING COULD HAPPEN. ALL I WAS WORRYING ABOUT WAS GETTING OVER AND ORGANIZING THE OTHER END SO WE COULD GET OUR ARMOR AND MEN ACROSS.

"WE GOT PAST THE TOWERS ALL RIGHT AND THE FIRST PLATOON CAME IN BEHIND US AND CLEANED THEM OUT. THEN I GOT TO THE END OF THE BRIDGE TO SEE IF ANY OF THE ENEMY WAS AROUND. WE LEFT THE GERMANS IN THE TUNNEL TO THE MACHINE-GUNNERS.

"WE RAN DOWN ABOUT 200 YARDS AND THEN I GOT MY MEN INTO A SKIRMISH LINE TO HOLD THE ENEMY IF THEY DID COME. WE TOOK COVER IN SOME BOMB CRATERS. THEN WE JUST SAT AND WAITED FOR THE OTHERS TO COME IN.

"THAT'S THE WAY IT WAS."

AS HE SAID THIS, THE 34-YEAR-OLD BUTCHER, WHO WORKED IN FLOGERS PACKING HOUSE IN TOLEDO BEFORE HE WENT INTO THE ARMY, SETTLED BACK IN HIS CHAIR, THOROUGHLY RELIEVED THAT HE DIDN'T HAVE TO TALK ANYMORE.

PARIS--INSERT ~~LEAD~~ GEROW AFTER FOURTH GRAF ENDING X X X AIR FORCE.

THE SHAEF ANNOUNCEMENT DISCLOSED NOTHING ELSE ABOUT THE MAKE-UP OF THE 15TH ARMY, WHICH HAS NOT YET BEEN REPORTED IN COMBAT.

THE FACT THAT IT IS A NEW ARMY DOES NOT NECESSARILY MEAN THAT IT IS COMPOSED WHOLLY OF NEW TROOPS, FRESH BUT INEXPERIENCED.

THE 15TH, ALTHOUGH RELATIVELY NEW, IS KNOWN TO INCLUDE SOME OF THE MOST EXPERIENCED DIVISIONS ON THE WESTERN FRONT--VETERAN UNITS SWITCHED TO IT FROM OTHER ARMIES.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE NEW CREATION OF THE 15TH SIMPLY MEANS THAT ANOTHER ARMY WILL BE THROWN INTO COMBAT IF NECESSARY AND SERVES NOTICE ON THE GERMANS THAT CONTINUED RESISTANCE IS USELESS IN VIEW OF THE AMERICAN POTENTIALITIES.

GEROW, AS COMMANDER OF THE U.S. ARMY GROUND FORCES IN BRITAIN HAD THE TASK OF TRAINING AMERICAN TROOPS FOR THE INVASION.

HE TOOK COMMAND OF THE GROUND FORCES IN 1943 AND ACQUIRED THE REPUTATION OF BEING A HARD-WORKING, PERFECTIONIST WHO LIKED TO BE WITH HIS MEN IN THE FIELD RATHER THAN AT A DESK.

BEFORE ASSUMING THIS IMPORTANT COMMAND, HE HAD SERVED FROM BEFORE PEARL HARBOR UNTIL FEBRUARY, 1942, AS CHIEF OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S WAR PLANS DIVISION, A POST IN WHICH HE WAS SUCCEEDED BY GEN.EISENHOWER.

A98

LEAVING THAT POST, HE THEN COMMANDED THE 29TH (BLUE AND GRAY) DIVISION AND PARTICIPATED IN SOME OF THE ARDUOUS TRAINING EXERCISES IN THE SOUTH.

[illegible] IN FRANCE AT THE TIME OF THE INVASION

AS COMMANDER OF THE FIFTH CORPS IN FRANCE AT THE TIME OF THE INVASION OF NORMANDY, HE WAS HONORED BY LT.GEN.BRADLEY FOR THE VICTORY AT CHERBOURG. HE RECEIVED THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO HIS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL.

HIS CAREER RECALLS THE WORDS OF STONEWALL JACKSON BEFORE THE BATTLE OF CHANCELLORSVILLE, "THE INSTITUTE WILL BE HEARD FROM TODAY."

FOR LIKE STONEWALL JACKSON AND CHIEF OF STAFF GEN.GEORGE C.MARSHALL, GEROW IS A GRADUATE OF VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE, "THE WEST POINT OF THE SOUTH."

GEROW HAS A RECORD OF SERVICE ON THE MEXICAN BORDER, IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR, IN THE PHILIPPINES AND CHINA AS WELL AS AT VARIOUS ARMY POSTS THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES.

HE HAS SERVED WITH BOTH THE INFANTRY AND THE SIGNAL CORPS AND HAS STUDIED EXTENSIVELY AT VARIOUS ARMY SCHOOLS FROM THE WAR COLLEGE DOWN.

DURING HIS COMMAND OF THE 29TH, IT WAS HIS MEN'S BOAST THAT:

"HE'S A FIELD SOLDIER."

HE WON THIS ACCOLADE DURING THE CAROLINA MANEUVERS OF 1942 WHEN HE WORKED AS HARD AS THE PRIVATE IN THE FIELD. HE WAS UP AT DAWN, SHAVED BY LANTERN AND PLAYED THE WAR GAMES FOR "KEEPS." HE OFTEN TOLD HIS OFFICERS HE WOULD NOT BE SATISFIED WITH ANYTHING SHORT OF PERFECTION--AND HE WAS AROUND TO SEE THAT OPERATIONS WERE PERFORMED THAT WAY.

GEROW, THE SON OF A RETIRED RAILROAD CONDUCTOR, IS KNOWN BY HIS MIDDLE NAME OF TOWNSEND TO HIS OLD CRONIES BACK IN PETERSBURG, VA., AND AFFECTIONATELY AS "GENERAL GEE" TO THE MEN HE COMMANDS. HE'S NOT THE ONLY ARMY MAN IN THE FAMILY. HIS BROTHER IS BRIG.GEN.LEE SAUNDERS GEROW.

THE OPERATION TOOK PLACE WEDNESDAY.

A177

CIVILIANS SAID THE BRIDGE WAS TO GO AT 4 P.M. THE TANKS GOT THERE AT 3:50 P.M.

LT.JOHN MITCHELL OF PITTSBURGH, PA., FOUND THE CACHE OF EXPLOSIVE AND QUICKLY DISCONNECTED THE WIRES.

MEN WERE CALLED UP TO START REPAIR OF THE SUPERFICIAL DAMAGE, WHILE THE BRIDGE STILL WAS UNDER FIRE.

THAT WAS HOW THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION CAPPED A PATTONESQUE TANK DASH FROM THE ROER RIVER TO THE EASTERN BANKS OF THE RHINE.

MAJ.MURRAY DEEVERS, COMMANDER OF THE 27TH ARMORED INFANTRY TASK FORCE, WHICH GOT THE BRIDGE, SAID IT WAS STRICTLY A GAMBLE, AND THAT NONE OF THE MEN HAD THE SLIGHTEST IDEA IT WOULD BE SO COMPLETELY SUCCESSFUL.

"I EXPECTED TO SEE IT BLOW UP RIGHT IN OUR FACES," HE SAID.

THAT HAD BEEN THE EXPERIENCE OF THE ALLIES IN OTHER BRIDGING OPERATIONS SAVE AT NIJMEGEN IN HOLLAND WHERE AMERICAN PARACHUTE TROOPS, TEAMED WITH THE BRITISH AND CAPTURED ANOTHER BRIDGE IN MUCH THE SAME WAY.

HUNDREDS OF TANKS AND GUNS, TRUCKLOAD AFTER TRUCKLOAD OF INFANTRY CHATTERING EXCITEDLY OVER THE SUDDENNESS OF THE EVENT, WERE HEADING FOR THE SCENE.

SOME OF THE TANKS DID NOT EVEN WAIT TO CROSS THE RIVER. THEY POKED THEIR SNOUTS IN THE AIR AND BLASTED THE GERMANS FROM THE STREETS OF REMAGEN. THE DIN WAS TERRIFIC, COUPLED WITH THE ROAR OF FIELD GUNS ON THE HILLY WEST BANK. RESIDENTS OF REMAGEN, TERROR-STRICKEN, FLED TO THE OPEN COUNTRY--BACK TO TERRITORY ALREADY CLEARED BY THE AMERICANS.

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 9--(AP)-ELEMENTS OF THE U.S. FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES HAVE JOINED UP IN THE VICINITY OF BROHL, EIGHT MILES SOUTH OF REMAGEN.

UNITS OF THE ELEVENTH ARMORED DIVISION OF LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY MADE THE CONTACT WITH ELEMENTS OF LT.GEN.COURTNEY H. HODGES' FIRST ARMY NOT ONLY AT BROHL BUT AT A FERRY CROSSING AT ANDERNACH, FOUR MILES FARTHER SOUTH.

THE JOINING OF TWO ARMIES TRAPPED THE REMNANTS OF A NUMBER OF GERMAN DIVISIONS SLOW TO ESCAPE TO THE EASTERN BANKS OF THE RHINE.

(A DISPATCH FROM THE THIRD ARMY FRONT LAST NIGHT SAID AT LEAST FIVE DIVISIONS STILL WERE BELIEVED TO BE IN THE EIFEL MOUNTAINS, AND A REPORT FROM THAT FRONT TODAY SAID THE BAG OF PRISONERS HAD REACHED 4,000 WITH HUNDREDS OF OTHERS STILL COMING IN.)

NOW THEIR ONLY WAY OUT LIES BACK TO THE PRISONER OF WAR CAMPS.

THE LINK-UP PUT THREE AMERICAN ARMIES, THE FIRST, THE NINTH AND THE THIRD, IN CONTROL OF 100 MILES OF THE RHINE WEST BANK STRETCHING FROM OSSENBERG ON THE NORTH TO ANDERNACH ON THE SOUTH.

THE STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF THIS CONTINUOUS FRONT--ENABLING THE AMERICANS TO SHIFT AND CONCENTRATE FORCES AT WILL--IS OBVIOUS FROM A GLANCE AT THE MAP.

BROHL, A VILLAGE EIGHT MILES SOUTH OF REMAGEN, BRIDGE CROSSING SITE, IS KNOWN CHIEFLY AS A DEPOT FOR STONE QUARRIES IN THE AREA.

ANDERNACH, FOUR MILES FARTHER SOUTH, IS A MALT MANUFACTURING CENTER WITH A POPULATION OF MORE THAN 10,000.

FIRE FROM THIS SAME GUN POSITION HAD THIS MORNING CRACKED INTO A HOUSE WHERE THE SECOND BATTALION COMMANDER HAD SOUGHT COVER AND HE TOLD HOW THE ROOM SUDDENLY WAS DEMOLISHED, KILLING SEVEN AND WOUNDING EIGHT OF HIS MEN.

"WHEN THE SHELLS STARTED POPPING WE RAN INTO THIS BUILDING," SAID MAJ. HARRY PARKER OF EMPORIA, KANS. "AND WE WERE JUST INSIDE WHEN TWO DIRECT HITS FLATTENED IT."

OBVIOUSLY SHAKEN BUT STILL DIRECTING THE BATTLE, THE 27-YEAR-OLD KANSAN TOLD HOW SEVERAL OF HIS DOUGHBOYS WERE BURIED ALIVE WHEN THE DEBRIS FROM THE EXPLOSION FILLED THE BASEMENT ENTRANCE. HE KEPT PRAISING THE NEGRO TANK UNIT SUPPORTING HIM.

ASSAYING THE RESULTS OF FIGHTING FROM D-DAY TO FEBRUARY 23, ALLIED HEADQUARTERS SAID TODAY THAT OF THE DESTROYED DIVISIONS FOUR CONSISTED OF PARACHUTE TROOPS COMPLETELY WRITTEN OFF.

SEVEN OF THE DIVISIONS WERE REFORMED ONLY TO BE DESTROYED A SECOND TIME. ARMORED FORCES ESTIMATED TO EQUAL 10 PANZER DIVISIONS ALSO HAVE BEEN DESTROYED TWICE AS FAR AS COMBAT EFFECTIVENESS IS CONCERNED, ALTHOUGH THE DESIGNATIONS OF GERMAN PANZER UNITS ALWAYS ARE CONTINUED. AS FAR AS IS KNOWN, 32 OF THE DIVISIONS NEVER WERE REFORMED.

MUNIST PARTY IN FRANCE, TODAY ASSAILED THE GOVERNMENT'S FOREIGN POLICY AND ITS REFUSAL TO HELP SPONSOR THE WORLD SECURITY CONFERENCE AT SAN FRANCISCO.

"I REGRET THAT THE PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT OF OUR COUNTRY DID NOT ACCEPT THE PROPOSAL OF THE BIG THREE," HE SAID, "AND DID NOT TAKE HER PLACE AMONG THE SPONSORING POWERS FOR THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE WHER THE BASIS FOR A SOLID AND DURABLE PEACE WILL BE LAID.

"THIS ATTITUDE DOES NOT CONFORM TO THE WELL-CONCEIVED INTERESTS OF OUR COUNTRY."

THE REMARKS BY THOREZ CAME SHORTLY AFTER PUBLICATION HERE OF REPORTS FROM MOSCOW THAT THE SOVIETS WERE DETERMINED TO SUBMIT THE RECENT FRANCO-RUSSIAN ALLIANCE TO THE GENERAL SECURITY SCHEMES OUTLINED AT YALTA. THE FRENCH, ON THE OTHER HAND, HAVE BEEN INSISTING UPON AMENDING THE DUMBARTON OAKS PLAN TO PROVIDE THE ALLIANCE A SPECIAL PLACE IN THE SECURITY PROGRAM.

ROME, MARCH 9-(AP)-HEAVY BOMBERS OF THE U.S.15TH AIR FORCE ATTACKED GERMAN COMMUNICATIONS YESTERDAY IN THE HUNGARIAN CITY OF KOMAROM WITHIN 20 MILES OF THE RUSSIAN LINES, ALLIED HEADQUARTERS ANNOUNCED TODAY.

MAR 10 1945

AMERICAN AIRCRAFT FROM ITALY HAVE FLOWN OVER THE RUSSIAN FRONT BEFORE IN RECENT WEEKS AS THE WESTERN BOMBING PROGRAM WAS MESHED WITH THE RED ARMY ASSAULT, BUT THE KOMAROM ATTACK WAS THE FIRST SO CLOSE TO THE SCENE OF BATTLE. KOMAROM LIES 40 MILES NORTHWEST OF BUDAPEST.

ONLY A SMALL FORCE OF LIBERATORS HIT THE KOMAROM RAILYARDS, BUT AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS SAID RECONNAISSANCE SHOWED ALL TRACKS WERE CUT OR BLOCKED AND 40 UNITS OF ROLLING STOCK WERE DESTROYED OR DAMAGED.

CREWS OF THE BIG BOMBERS WERE CAREFULLY BRIEFED AND TOLD NOT TO UNLOAD THEIR EXPLOSIVES IF VISIBILITY WAS BAD.

MOSCOW, MARCH 9-(AP)-RED ARMY BOMBERS LOOSED A HEAVY ATTACK TODAY ON GERMANS RETREATING [illegible] O STETTIN, DESTROYING A VITAL BRIDGE NEAR ALTDAMM, EASTERN GATEWAY OF THE BIG PORT FOR BERLIN AT THE MOUTH OF THE ODER RIVER.

A LARGE ENEMY COLUMN MOVING ACROSS THE BRIDGE WAS THROWN INTO CONFUSION AND THE SOVIET BOMBERS AND STORNOVIKS STRAFED THE GERMANS MERCILESSLY.

WHILE THE AIR FORCE STEPPED UP ITS ATTACKS, RUSSIAN GROUND TROOPS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE ASSEMBLED BOATS AND LANDING CRAFT ALONG THE BANKS OF THE DAMMSCHER SEE, FARTHER NORTH, WHERE A CROSSING TO THE WEST SHORE MAY ALREADY HAVE STARTED IN AN OUTFLANKING MANEUVER ON STETTIN.

THE RED ARMY TROOPS WERE REPORTED WORKING SWIFTLY UNDER CONSTANT ARTILLERY FIRE IN MANNING THE AMPHIBIOUS THRUST TOWARD THE AREA BETWEEN STETTIN AND POELITZ, ON THE WEST BANK OF THE ODER ESTUARY NINE MILES TO THE NORTH.

AT THE NORTHERN TIP OF THE DAMMSCHER SEE SOVIET UNITS HAVE PUSHED INTO THE REGION WHERE THE IHNA RIVER FLOWS INTO THE ISTHMUS AND WERE ENGAGED IN HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING.

THE GERMAN COMMAND IS WELL AWARE THAT ANY PENETRATION HERE OR ACROSS THE SEE INSURES AN OUTFLANKING DRIVE ON STETTIN FROM THE NORTH AND MAY SET UP A POWERFUL SPRINGBOARD FOR A NEW DRIVE ON THE GERMAN CAPITAL THROUGH PERHAPS RELATIVELY VULNERABLE DEFENSES.

THE RUSSIAN HIGH COMMAND, MEANWHILE, CONTINUED THE NEWS BLACKOUT ON DEVELOPMENTS ON THE CENTRAL FRONT EAST OF BERLIN, WHERE THE GERMANS REPORTED RED ARMY UNITS WEST OF THE ODER AND ONLY 25 MILES FROM THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

THE TENOR OF FRONT DISPATCHES, HOWEVER, INDICATED THE RUSSIANS MAY BE PREPARING TO EMPLOY THEIR HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL ENCIRCLING OPERATIONS AGAINST BERLIN. A DISPATCH IN IZVESTIA POINTED TO REPORTS THAT THE RUSSIANS HAVE KILLED OR CAPTURED 300,000 GERMANS DURING JANUARY AND FEBRUARY IN THIS TYPE OF MILITARY STRATEGY.

PRESSURE AGAINST STETTIN ALSO WAS MAINTAINED BY THE RED ARMY FROM THE EAST AND SOUTHEAST.

DESPITE HUNDREDS OF OBSTACLES AND MILES OF MINED ROADWAY THE RUSSIANS MANAGED TO SNAKE THEIR WAY WESTWARD DOWN THE STARGARD-STETTIN HIGHWAY AND BREACH THE OUTER BELT OF DEFENSES BEFORE ALTDAMM, EASTERN GATE OF THE BALTIC PORT.

FARTHER SOUTHEAST THE RUSSIANS MOVED ON HILL POSITIONS DURING THE NIGHT AND BY MORNING HAD DUG IN HALFWAY UP THEM.

OTHER SOVIET TROOPS HAD A FIRM GRIP ON THE ODER'S EASTERN BANK IN THE REGION OF GREIFENHAGEN, ABOUT 10 MILES SOUTH OF STETTIN.

CALCUTTA, MARCH 9-(AP)-THE ALLIED ENTRY INTO MANDALAY CULMINATED A SIX-WEEK CAMPAIGN OF CLOSELY INTEGRATED ACTION BY AIR AND GROUND FORCES, THE EASTERN AIR COMMAND REVEALED TODAY.

MAJ.GEN.GEORGE E.STRATEMEYER'S COMMAND, WHICH INCORPORATES BOTH RAF AND U.S. ARMY AIR FORCES, FLEW MORE THAN 17,000 COMBAT SORTIES IN THE SIX WEEKS PRECEDING THE STORMING OF MANDALAY. CARGO AND TROOP-CARRYING AIRCRAFT FLEW AN EQUAL OR GREAT NUMBER OF SORTIES IN FERRYING IN UPWARDS OF 50,000 TONS OF SUPPLIES AND THOUSANDS OF TROOPS, HEADQUARTERS SAID.

LIAISON PLANES FLYING TO AND FROM LITTLE FIELDS AT THE FRONT EVACUATED THE WOUNDED AND CARRIED IN HIGH PRIORITY SUPPLIES IN EMERGENCIES.

HEADQUARTERS SAID THE EAC PERFORMED THESE MAJOR FUNCTIONS DURING THE MANDALAY DRIVE:

1. KEPT THE GROUND FORCES ADEQUATELY SUPPLIED WITH AMMUNITION AND EQUIPMENT.
2. TACTICAL AIRCRAFT OPERATING AT THE DIRECTION OF FORWARD GROUND FORCES DESTROYED JAPANESE STRONGPOINTS IN LOW LEVEL ATTACKS, CUTTING DOWN ALLIED CASUALTIES.
3. RECONNAISSANCE AIRCRAFT KEPT GROUND COMMANDERS INFORMED OF THE MOVEMENT OF JAPANESE FORCES WITH HOUR BY HOUR VISUAL AND PHOTOGRAPHIC REPORTS.
4. MOSQUITOS, BEAUFIGHTERS, THUNDERBOLTS, HURRICANES AND MITCHELLS FLEW CONSTANT MISSIONS AGAINST ENEMY FRONT LINES.
5. LONG-RANGE B-24S AND B-25S WRECKED JAPANESE SUPPLY LINES ALL ALONG THE 1,000-MILE-LONG ARTERIES FROM THAILAND, FRENCH INDO-CHINA AND SOUTHERN BURMA PORTS.

BY CLYDE A.FARNSWORTH (700)

KUNMING, CHINA (BY MAIL) (AP)-CONCURRENTLY WITH THE RE-SHAPING OF THE AXIS OF OPERATIONS OF THE 14TH U.S. AIR FORCE THERE HAVE BEEN IMPORTANT CHANGES IN AND PROMOTION OF KEY PERSONNEL, SOME OF A SECRET NATURE, SOME WHICH CAN BE DISCLOSED.

THE REORIENTATION OF THE 14TH, GEARED AS IT WAS TO LOSS OF ITS CENTRAL LINE OF SOUTHEASTERN CHINA BASES, INCLUDING SUICHUAN, KANCHOW, NAMYUNG AND SINCHENG, PERMITTED RELEASE OF SUCH TACTICAL STARS AS LT.COLS. EDWARD O.MCCOMAS AND JOHN C.HERBST FOR WELL-EARNED LEAVES TO THE STATES.

MCCOMAS, OF WINFIELD, KANS., AND HERBST, OF LOS ANGELES, HAVE SHOT DOWN MORE JAPANESE PLANES THAN ANY OTHER PILOTS OF THE 14TH. THEY COMMANDED P-51 SQUADRONS AT SUICHUAN AND KANCHOW WHICH, WITH THE YELLOW SCORPIONS SQUADRON AND FIGHTER OUTFITS OF THE CHINESE-AMERICAN COMPOSITE WING, HAVE COLLECTED A TERRIFIC TOLL RECENTLY IN ENEMY SHIPPING, AIRPLANES AND LOCOMOTIVES.

HERBST WHO WAS PROMOTED TO LIEUTENANT-COLONEL JUST BEFORE HIS LEAVE, HAS DOWNED 18 PLANES AND MC COMAS 14.

LIEUT.COL.CHARLES H.OLDER OF 813 WEST ROXBURY DRIVE, BEVERLY HILLS, CALIF., NOW EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF A 14TH AIR FORCE FIGHTER GROUP, HAS A GRAND TOTAL OF 18 1/4, BUT GOT 10 1/4 OF THESE WITH THE OLD AVG.

MCCOMAS' DEPARTURE WAS FOLLOWED CLOSELY BY THAT OF HIS DEPUTY COMMANDER IN THE BLACK LIGHTNING SQUADRON, MAJOR JOHN E.MEYER, PROMOTED FROM CAPTAIN JUST BEFORE HE LEFT. MEYER HAD FULLY RECOVERED HIS VISION AFTER AN OPERATION FOR REMOVAL OF FIFTEEN TINY IMBEDDED GRAGMENTS OF A JAPANESE ANTI-AIRCRAFT SHELL FROM HIS EYES.

HIS RETURN FROM THE MISSION ON WHICH HE WAS INJURED, AN ATTACK AT ENRTAKAO AIRFIELD ON DEC. 26, GUIDED BY THE BARELY DISCERNIBLE WINGTIP AND THE RADIOED VOICE OF A COMRADE, FIRST LIEUT.JOHN F.EGAN OF FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA., IN ANOTHER P-51, WAS ONE OF THE REMARKABLE EXPLOITS THAT HAVE ENRICHED THE TRADITION OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE.

MAJ.GEN.C.L.CHENNAULT HAS FREQUENTLY DRAWN UPON HIS OLD AVG VETERANS TO FILL JOBS IN HIS EXPANDING AIR FORCE. RECENT ARRIVALS INCLUDE MAJOR BERT M.CARLETON OF 3203 BRYKER DRIVE, AUSTIN, TEX., AND MAJOR L.G.HESTON, WHOSE PARENTS LIVE AT GRANTS PASS, ORE. BOTH ARE NOW ASSIGNED TO THE OPERATIONS SECTION OF CHENNAULT'S HEADQUARTERS.

COL.JOHN H.WILLIAMSON OF NINETY SIX, S.C., UNDER WHOM THE TROOP CARRIER SQUADRON WAS DEVELOPED FROM THE 14TH'S OLD TRANSPORT SECTION, IS ANOTHER RECENT HOME-GOER. THE SQUADRON NOW IS COMMANDED BY MAJ. ANDREW D.NORRIS OF ROUTE EIGHT, PORTLAND, ORE.

UNDER WILLIAMSON THE SQUADRON PERFORMED ITS MOST EXACTING MISSIONS, SUPPLYING KANCHOW AND SUICHUAN IN FLIGHTS ACROSS THE JAPANESE CORRIDOR.

OTHER RECENT DEPARTURES INCLUDE COL.LOUIS R.HUGHES, JR., OF ROUTE NINE, KANSAS CITY, MO., (WIFE LIVING AT 2855 ROYAL PALM, MIAMI, FLA.) WHO COMMANDED THE 51ST FIGHTER GROUP.

THERE ARE SEVERAL COMPOSITE WINGS IN THE 14TH. EACH A MINIATURE AIR FORCE, INCORPORATING BOTH FIGHTERS AND MEDIUM BOMBERS. ONE OF THESE, FORMERLY REFERRED TO AS THE EASTERN WING, WAS COMMANDED BY BRIG.GEN.CLINTON D. (CASEY) VINCENT, NOW ON LEAVE TO THE STATES.

THE COMPOSITE WING COMMANDED BY BRIG.GEN.JOHN C.KENNEDY OF SAN ANTONIO, TEX., (WIFE LIVING AT 159 ST.PAULS ROAD, HEMPSTEAD, LONG ISLAND, N.Y.), PROVIDED THE CHINA-SIDE SUPPORT FOR MILITARY OPERATIONS IN NORTHERN BURMA, IN ADDITION TO FORAYS INTO THAILAND AND FRENCH INDO-CHINA.

THE COMPOSITE WINGS WORKED WITH THE 308TH HEAVY BOMBARDMENT GROUP. MAJ.JAMES E.MAHER OF MIAMI BEACH, EXECUTIVE OFFICER OF THE 308TH, RECENTLY LEFT FOR THE STATES AFTER A CHINA TOUR OF NEARLY TWO YEARS.

KENNEDY, 50, RECENTLY FLEW A P-51, FOR THE FIRST TIME. THE REPUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICE MADE A STORY OF IT BECAUSE KENNEDY FLEW THE FAST FIGHTER AFTER MERELY STUDYING A TECHNICAL MANUAL "TO FIND OUT WHAT ALL THE GADGETS WERE FOR." THE GENE

KENNEDY, 50, RECENTLY FLEW A P-51, FOR THE FIRST TIME. THE PUBLIC RELATIONS OFFICE MADE A STORY OF IT BECAUSE KENNEDY FLEW THE FAST FIGHTER AFTER MERELY STUDYING A TECHNICAL MANUAL "TO FIND OUT WHAT ALL THE GADGETS WERE FOR." THE GENERAL COULDN'T SEE HOW THAT MADE MUCH OF A STORY--"ONE AIRPLANE IS PRETTY MUCH LIKE ANOTHER EXCEPT FOR THE GADGETS," HE SAID.

RECENTLY RETURNED FROM A LEAVE THAT CARRIED HIM TO THE EUROPEAN THEATER, BRIG.GEN.WINSLOW C.MORSE OF 2710 W. 76TH ST., LOS ANGELES, (WIFE LIVING AT VALPARAISO, EGLIN FIELD, FLA.) HAS RESUMED COMMAND OF THE CACW WHICH WAS HEADED IN HIS ABSENCE BY COL.T.ALAN BENNETT OF 1009 CHICHESTER AVE., ORLANDO, FLA.

CHANGES IN SUBORDINATE COMMANDS IN ONE WING OF THE 14TH, A NORTHERN-BASED FIGHTER WING CALLED RANDALL'S RAIDERS (AFTER BRIG.GEN. RUSSELL E.RANDALL, COMMANDING), HAVE ADDED TO THE HOMEGOING LIST.

COL.CHARLES G.CHANDLER, JR., OF 142 WEST FAIR OAKS, SAN ANTONIO, TEX., A GROUP COMMANDER FROM THAT WING, AND MAJOR JAMES J.ENGLAND OF 318 E.GASTON ST., SAVANNAH, GA., WHO HAS BEEN COMMANDING THE YELLOW SCORPIONS SQUADRON, WENT HOME AFTER CHENNAULT PINNED THEM WITH LEGION OF MERIT AWARDS FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE.

NORSTAD SAID.
M "JUST HOW MANY B-29S WILL BE REQUIRED FOR THIS JOB IS DEPENDENT UPON MANY THINGS--MOST OF THEM, PERHAPS, HAVE TO DO WITH CONDITIONS INSIDE JAPAN ITSELF. ONE THING IS CERTAIN, HOWEVER, AND THAT IS, IF FLEETS OF 1000---OR MORE---B-29S ARE REQUIRED TO DO THE JOB, THE 20TH AIRFORCE WILL PROVIDE THEM."
NORSTAD IS HERE AS A REPRESENTATIVE OF GENERAL OF THE ARMIES H.H.ARNOLD, COMMANDING GENERAL OF ARMY AIR FORCES AND OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE, TO CONVEY PERSONALLY TO MAJ.GEN.CURTIS LEE LEMAY, COMMANDER OF THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, SOME IDEAS AND PLANS FOR THE FUTURE B-29 PACIFIC PROGRAM.
LAST NIGHT'S RECORD RAID ON TOKYO WAS THE FIRST ANNOUNCED USE OF GUAM, ALONG WITH SAIPAN AND TINIAN, AS A BASE FOR B-29 RAIDS. THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS HERE SENT A

NORSTAD DISCLOSED THAT RECENT B-29 BOMBINGS OF THE ENEMY'S HOMELAND WERE CAREFULLY COORDINATED WITH "DRAMATIC AND EFFECTIVE" ATTACKS BY NAVY CARRIER TASK FORCES BY DIRECTION OF THE JOINT CHIEFS OF STAFF. HE SAID DETAILS WERE WORKED OUT HERE BETWEEN LEMAY AND NAVAL OPERATIONAL STAFFS.
BRINGING ARNOLD'S PERSONAL CONGRATULATIONS TO LEMAY AND PERSONNEL OF THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND FOR AN EFFECTIVE JOB, PARTICULARLY IN THE LAST TWO WEEKS, NORSTAD SAID LEMAY'S COMMAND "IS JUST BEGINNING TO HIT ITS STRIDE. IT IS NOT AS BIG YET AS IT IS GOING TO BE. THERE STILL IS ROOM FOR MORE BASES IN THE MARIANAS. WITH THE HELP OF ALL THE VARIOUS ARMY AND NAVY AGENCIES IN THE PACIFIC OCEAN AREAS, THESE BASES WILL BE BUILT."
NORSTAD WAS REMINDED THAT ARNOLD HAD STATED UPON CREATION OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE THAT HE DID NOT EXPECT B-29S TO WIN THE WAR SINGLE HANDED.
"HIS COMMANDERS IN THE FIELD REITERATED THIS AGAIN AND AGAIN" NORSTAD SAID. "EFFECTIVENESS OF CLOSE COORDINATION OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE PROGRAM OF STRATEGIC BOMBING WITH TACTICAL MOVES OF NAVAL AND ARMY SEA AND GROUND FORCES NOW HAS BEEN CLEARLY DEMONSTRATED IN TERMS WHICH MAY READILY BE UNDERSTOOD BY EVERYONE--INCLUDING THE JAPANESE."

MINDANAO WOULD BE THE 21ST PHILIPPINE ISLAND INVADED BY MACARTHUR'S TROOPS SINCE THE INITIAL LANDINGS ON LEYTE AND NEARBY SMALL ISLANDS IN OCTOBER, 1944.
THE TOKYO REPORT SAID THE LANDING AT ZAMBOANGA WAS PRECEDED BY A HEAVY NAVAL BOMBARDMENT, STARTED MARCH 8 BY BATTLESHIPS, CRUISERS AND OTHER AMERICAN WARSHIPS.
MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE SAID 33RD DIVISION TROOPS ON LUZON ISLAND MADE NEW GAINS IN THE VICINITY OF BAGUIO, PHILIPPINE SUMMER CAPITAL AND REPORTED HEADQUARTERS OF JAPANESE GEN.TOMOYUKI YAMASHITA.
THE YANKS REACHED ARINGAY, ON THE WEST COAST, AND SECURED A LINE REACHING TO WITHIN 10 MILES OF BAGUIO.
ON SOUTHERN LUZON, THE 11TH AIRBORNE DIVISION AND ATTACHED 158TH INFANTRY REGIMENT ADVANCED 13 MORE MILES ON BALAYAN BAY'S NORTH SHORE TO CAPTURE LEMERY.
THE WOUNDING BY A JAPANESE HAND GRENADE OF MAJ.GEN.VERNE D. MUDGE, COMMANDER OF THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION, WAS MADE KNOWN. MEDICAL OFFICERS SAID HE WOULD RECOVER. THE GENERAL WAS WOUNDED FEB.28 IN THE BITTER FIGHTING IN THE SIERRA MADRE FOOTHILLS, EAST AND NORTHEAST OF MANILA.
ZAMBOANGA, THE POINT OF THE REPORTED INVASION OF MINDANAO, IS ON THE TIP OF THE WESTERN PENINSULA JUTTING SOUTH AROUND MORO GULF. IT IS THE ISLAND'S CAPITAL AND PRINCIPAL CITY, WITH A PRE-WAR POPULATION OF 131,455.
DAVAO CITY, EASTWARD ACROSS THE ISLAND ON DAVAO GULF, WAS THE CENTER OF A LARGE PRE-WAR COLONY OF JAPANESE, NUMBERING SOME 25,000.
THE ISLAND PRODUCES MOST OF THE PHILIPPINE'S HEMP. ITS OTHER CHIEF PRODUCT IS SUGAR CANE.
GUERRILLAS HAVE BEEN ACTIVE ON THE ISLAND. IN HIS DEC.16 COMMUNIQUE MACARTHUR REPORTED THEY HAD "INVESTED NUMEROUS IMPORTANT COASTAL POINTS AND ENEMY-HELD AIRFIELDS AND HAVE LIBERATED THE ENTIRE PROVINCES OF LANAO AND MISAMIS OCCIDENTAL." MACARTHUR NAMED COL. WELDELL W.FERTIZ OF THE U.S.ARMY ENGINEER CORPS AS THE GUERRILLA LEADER ON THE ISLAND.

ANOTHER LEADER IS TOMAS CABILI, SECRETARY OF DEFENSE ON THE NEW PHILIPPINE COMMONWEALTH CABINET. HE WAS STILL ON MINDANAO WITH HIS IRREGULARS WHEN THE CABINET WAS SWORN IN AT MANILA THURSDAY.
THE JAPANESE EXPECTED MACARTHUR TO MAKE HIS FIRST PHILIPPINE INVASION ON MINDANAO. INSTEAD, HE BYPASSED THE ISLAND TO STRIKE LEYTE.
MINDANAO, WITH ALREADY INVADED PALAWAN, WOULD WIDEN THE AMERICAN THREAT TO JAPANESE-HELD BORNEO, JUST TO THE SOUTH.

U.S.PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, GUAM, MARCH 9-(AP)-(VIA NAVY RADIO)-ALTHOUGH THE ROLE THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET WILL PLAY IN THE ASSAULT AGAINST JAPAN HAS NOT YET BEEN DISCLOSED IT IS KNOWN THAT A LARGE PART OF THAT FLEET IS READY FOR ACTION.

THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET IS A SELF-CONTAINED UNIT PREPARED TO FIGHT AS A SEPARATE TASK FORCE UNDER ADM. CHESTER W. NIMITZ WITH A FULL COMPLEMENT OF CARRIERS, BATTLESHIPS, CRUISERS, DESTROYERS AND ITS OWN FLEET OF SERVICE AND SUPPLY SHIPS.

ITS ACTING AS A SEPARATE TASK FORCE WOULD AVOID THE DIFFICULTY OF ATTEMPTING TO MATCH BRITISH SHIPS IN THE SAME FORMATION WITH THE SOMEWHAT FASTER AND LONGER RANGE AMERICAN WARSHIPS--IN THE SAME MANNER THAT OLDER AMERICAN VESSELS ARE OPERATED SEPARATELY FROM THE SPEEDIER NEW-CLASS WARSHIPS.

BRITISH UNITS ARE MORE THAN WELCOME IN THE PACIFIC, ADM. RAYMOND A. SPRUANCE CLEARLY INDICATED AT A RECENT PRESS CONFERENCE. HE COMMENTED BZXXNOADO

HE COMMENTEEEEEEEEEEEEEEE

HE COMMENTED "NO ADMIRAL EVER HAS ENOUGH SHIPS AND WE WILL USE ALL WE CAN LAY OUR HANDS ON."

GIVING THE BRITISH POINT OF VIEW, PETER BURCHETT OF MELBOURNE AUSTRALIA, NAVAL CORRESPONDENT FOR THE LONDON DAILY EXPRESS, SAID "THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET HAS BEEN COMPLETELY CONVERTED TO TROPICAL OPERATION. IT IS A BIT SLOWER THAN THE AMERICAN, BUT IT IS A FAST TASK FORCE IN EVERY WAY COMPARABLE TO THE AMERICAN.

"THERE IS A DIFFERENCE IN CRUISING RANGE AND TECHNIQUE, [illegible] THAT DIFFERENCE

BUT WITH BRITISH UNITS IN A SEPARATE TASK FORCE, THAT DIFFERENCE IS NO PARTICULAR PROBLEM.

"BRITISH SHIPS HAVEN'T QUITE THE RANGE OF AMERICAN UNITS, NOR ARE THEIR CREWS SO EXPERIENCED IN SPEEDY REFUELING AT SEA, ALTHOUGH THE BRITISH FLEET HAS REFUELED AT SEA FOR A NUMBER OF YEARS USING SOMEWHAT DIFFERENT METHODS.

"AMERICAN FLEET UNITS ADAPTED THEMSELVES TO BRITISH METHODS IN THE MEDITERRANEAN AND NORMANDY INVASION. BRITISH UNITS SHOULD BE EQUALLY ADAPTABLE TO AMERICAN TECHNIQUES. AMERICANS MADE GOOD USE OF AUSTRALIAN AND NEW ZEALAND UNITS EARLY IN THE WAR AND UNDOUBTEDLY WOULD BE ABLE TO EMPLOY ENGLISH WARSHIPS TO GOOD ADVANTAGE."

BURCHETT SAID THE BRITISH PACIFIC FLEET WOULD GET MOST OF ITS SHELLS, BOMBS AND OTHER ARMAMENT FROM ENGLAND AND ITS FOOD AND MUCH OF ITS EQUIPMENT FROM AUSTRALIA AND NEW ZEALAND. HE ADDED THAT THE FLEET HAD ITS OWN CARRIER BARRACUDA TORPEDO PLANES "BUT MAY GET FIGHTERS FROM THE UNITED STATES ON A NORMAL LEND-LEASE BASIS."

SHIMBU LINE WITH PIPS

BY RICHARD BERGHOLZ

WITH SIXTH DIVISION, LUZON, MARCH 9-(AP)-THE VAUNTED SHIMBU LINE, WHERE THE JAPANESE PLANNED TO HOLD OUT EAST OF MANILA, IS BEGINNING TO CRACK.

STRONG ENEMY DEFENSES ALONG THE RIDGES AND HILLS EAST OF THE MARIKINA RIVER WERE ASSAULTED IN A COORDINATED AMERICAN DRIVE YESTERDAY, AND BY NIGHTFALL A HOLE HAD BEEN PUNCHED IN THE JAPANESE FIRST LINE EAST OF MARIKINA TOWN AND ITS CONCRETE-SURFACED AIRFIELD.

ELEMENTS OF THIS JUNGLE-TRAINED DIVISION ADVANCED NEARLY 1,000 YARDS INTO THE JAPANESE POSITIONS AND REPORTED SURPRISINGLY LITTLE RESISTANCE. THEY FOUND SOME CAVES AND PILLBOXES ABANDONED. THIS MAY HAVE BEEN DUE TO A TERRIFIC ARTILLERY BOMBARDMENT. ONE OBSERVER SAID AS MANY AS 400 JAPANESE WERE SEEN RUNNING ABOUT DURING THE BARRAGE.

AFTER THE YANK SPEARHEAD HAD SECURED HIGH GROUND, ITS OBJECTIVE IN YESTERDAY'S ADVANCE, THE JAPANESE FAILED TO MAKE ANY CONCENTRATED COUNTERATTACK. THEY FIRED ONLY ABOUT TEN ROUNDS OF ARTILLERY SHELLS ON THE AMERICAN POSITIONS DURING THE NIGHT.

THE TOUGH AMERICAN FOOT SOLDIERS HAVE AT LEAST TWO MORE ENEMY LINES AHEAD OF THEM. ONCE THEY COMPLETE A BREAK THROUGH THE SHIMBU FRONT, THE ENEMY PROBABLY WILL SPLIT UP INTO SMALL PARTIES WHICH WILL BE DOOMED TO A CAMPAIGN OF ATTRITION.

(NY) THE GLORY OF BEING THE FIRST ACROSS THE RHINE DANGLED LAST NIGHT BETWEEN TWO TYPICAL YANKEES.
SGT.ALEXANDER A.DRABIK, A BIG GANGLING FELLOW FROM HOLLAND, OHIO, WAS CALLED INTO DIVISIONAL HEADQUARTERS AT THE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD AND, WROTE AP WAR CORRESPONDENT DON WHITEHEAD, APPLAUDED FOR BEING NO. 1 ACROSS IN AN EPIC OF HEROISM.
THIS DEVELOPED AFTER LT.EMMET BURROWS OF JERSEY CITY, N.J., WAS ACCLAIMED BY OFFICERS OF THE 27TH ARMORED INFANTRY BATTALION FOR GETTING TO THE EAST BANK OF THE RIVER FIRST.
NO MATTER WHO GOT ACROSS FIRST, IT WAS A CLOSE RACE. WHITEHEAD WROTE THAT IMMEDIATELY BEHIND DRABIK CAME 10 RIFLEMEN SHOOTING ON THE RUN IN AN ASSAULT THAT BEWILDERED THE GERMANS.
A CLOSE CHECK, WHITEHEAD SAID, SHOWED THAT DRABIK GOT THERE FIRST BUT ADDED THAT THIS TOOK NONE OF THE GLORY FROM BURROWS, WHOSE PLATOON WAS IN THE FIGHT AND HELPED CAPTURE THE REMAGEN BRIDGE INTACT.
CALLED BACK FROM HIS PLATOON YESTERDAY, DRABIK WAS PRAISED BY BRIG. GEN.WILLIAM M.HOGE OF LEXINGTON, MO., FOR HEROISM AND SINGLED OUT AS THE MAN WHO EARNED THE MOST INDIVIDUAL CREDIT.
HAL BOYLE AND HOWARD COWAN, AP CORRESPONDENTS ALSO WRITING FROM THE SCENE, REPORTED THAT OFFICERS SAID THEY BELIEVED THAT BURROWS WAS THE FIRST ACROSS, GAINING THE EAST BANK AT THE HEAD OF HIS PLATOON.

AMERICAN FORCES HAVE LANDED ON MINDANAO ISLAND AFTER A HEAVY BOMBARDMENT FROM A NAVAL TASK FORCE WHICH INCLUDED FOUR BATTLESHIPS AND 20 OTHER CRAFT, THE TOKYO RADIO SAID TODAY.

MINDANAO IS THE SECOND LARGEST ISLAND OF THE PHILIPPINES.

A TOKYO BROADCAST, HEARD IN LONDON BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS, GAVE THIS "FLASH:"

"ENEMY TRYING TO LAND AT ZAMBOANGA AT MINDANAO SINCE MARCH 8."

IT ADDED:

"THE LANDING WAS PRECEDED BY A HEAVY BOMBARDMENT. ON MARCH 8 IN THE MORNING 30 ENEMY SHIPS APPEARED FROM THE WEST. SOON AFTERWARD THREE CRUISERS, FOUR BATTLESHIPS, 20 OTHER SHIPS AND 20 LANDING BOATS WERE LYING OFF ZAMBOANGA.

MINDANAO IS THE SECOND LARGEST OF THE PHILIPPINES GROUP. ZAMBOANGA IS THE PRINCIPAL CITY. IT HAD A PREWAR POPULATION OF 131,455 WITH EXTENSIVE COMMUNITY FACILITIES AND THE ARMY MAINTAINED INSTALLATIONS THERE SINCE THE EARLY DAYS OF ISLAND OCCUPATION.

THE TOKYO BROADCAST POINTED OUT SIGNIFICANTLY THAT THE AMERICAN FLEET WAS CARRYING OUT MINESWEEPING OPERATIONS AND "SHOWING SIGNS OF A LANDING ATTEMPT." IN AN EARLIER BROADCAST TOKYO DECLARED THE BOMBARDMENT "IS BELIEVED TO BE A PRELUDE" TO A LANDING.

JAPANESE BROADCASTERS ARE USUALLY FIRST TO REPORT A MAJOR AMERICAN INVASION IN THE PACIFIC, ALTHOUGH THEY OCCASIONALLY MAKE THEIR ANNOUNCEMENTS A DAY OR SO AHEAD OF THE ACTUAL LANDING.

A DOMEI JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY INTERVIEW WITH THE GENERAL, BROADCAST BY TOKYO RADIO TODAY, INDICATED THAT YAMASHITA, CONQUEROR OF SINGAPORE, WAS EXASPERATED AT HOMEFRONT DOUBTS OR IMPATIENCE CONCERNING HIS ATTACK PLAN.

YAMASHITA, WHO HAD PROMISED TO DEAL GEN. DOUGLAS MACARTHUR A CRUSHING BLOW AND FORCE HIM INTO UNCONDITIONAL SURRENDER, ORIGINALLY SAID HIS PLAN WAS "TO LURE THE ENEMY INTO THE LUZON PLAIN AND THE MANILA SECTOR AND THEN DESTROY HIM BY LAUNCHING ATTACKS FROM ALL DIRECTIONS."

NIMITZ (320) 17ad MAR 10 1945

WASHINGTON,MARCH 9-(AP)-MULTIPLE, POWERFUL BLOWS AGAINST JAPANESE OUTPOSTS BEFORE ANY HOMELAND INVASION SHAPED UP TODAY AS THE NAVY'S LIKELY COURSE OF PACIFIC ACTION.

FLEET ADMIRAL CHESTER W.NIMITZ, COMMANDER IN CHIEF OF THE PACIFIC FLEET, REVEALING HIS PRESENCE IN WASHINGTON AT A NEWS CONFERENCE LATE YESTERDAY, SAID THE NAVY "IS STRONG ENOUGH TO GO ANYWHERE IN THE PACIFIC IT WANTS TO GO."

"IT MIGHT EVEN BE POSSIBLE TO SEIZE A POSITION" ON THE JAPANESE HOMELAND, HE ADDED, "BUT IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT TO KEEP SUCH A POSITION SUPPLIED" WITHOUT A "BROADER BASE" THAN ANY NOW AVAILABLE.

"OUR POLICY," NIMITZ TOLD NEWSMEN, "IS TO TAKE NO CHANCES UNLESS THEY MIGHT LEAD TO SUCH GREAT RESULTS THAT THE CHANCE IS WARRANTED. EVERY MOVE WE MAKE WE MAKE WITH PLENTY OF FORCE, AND WE PROPOSE TO CONTINUE UNTIL WE ARE SURE THE REMAINDER OF THE JAPANESE FLEET IS NO LONGER A THREAT. AT THE PROPER TIME WE WILL BE ABLE, BY REASON OF SUFFICIENT POWER, TO ENGAGE IN MULTIPLE OPERATIONS WHICH WILL HAVE THE EFFECT OF SPEEDING UP THE CONDUCT OF THE WAR."

IN PLANNING THE FINAL ASSAULT ON THE JAPANESE EMPIRE, HE SAID, "WE WILL NEED MORE THAN ONE POSITION--WE WILL NEED A NUMBER OF POSITIONS. IT MAY WELL BE THAT SOME OF THESE WILL BE IN CHINA."

RUSSIAN BASES, HE AGREED, WOULD BE "USEFUL TO US."

NIMITZ SAID HE HAS BEEN IN WASHINGTON SINCE LAST SATURDAY FOR ONE OF HIS PERIODIC CONFERENCES WITH FLEET ADMIRAL ERNEST J.KING, CHIEF OF NAVAL OPERATIONS. HE BRUSHED ASIDE SUGGESTIONS THERE MIGHT BE SOME SIGNIFICANCE IN THE FACT HIS VISIT COINCIDES WITH THOSE OF SUCH OTHER PACIFIC PERSONALITIES AS: ADMIRAL WILLIAM F.HALSEY,JR., COMMANDER OF THE THIRD FLEET; LT.GEN.ALBERT C.WEDEMEYER, CHIEF OF STAFF TO GENERALISSIMO CHIANG KAI-SHEK; AND MAJ.GEN.PATRICK J.HURLEY, U.S.AMBASSADOR TO CHINA.

LOOKING AHEAD, THE FIVE-STAR ADMIRAL SAID:

"AS LONG AS JAPAN CAN MAINTAIN SEA CONNECTION WITH THE MAINLAND IT CAN DRAW SUPPLIES OF COAL,MINERALS AND FOOD. THE JAPANESE ARMY IS STILL VERY POWERFUL. I DON'T KNOW ITS STRENGTH, BUT NOT MUCH OVER 10 PER CENT OF THE ARMY HAS BEEN COMMITTED IN VARIOUS ISLAND OPERATIONS TO DATE. ITS FORTUNATE GEOGRAPHICAL POSITION MAKES IT VERY DIFFICULT TO VISUALIZE AN EARLY DEFEAT."

GEROW

(NY) WASHINGTON, MARCH 9-(AP)-LT.GEN.LEONARD TOWNSEND GEROW, COMMANDER OF THE NEW 15TH ARMY IN EUROPE, HAD THE TASK OF TRAINING U.S. GROUND FORCES FOR THE INVASION.

HE WAS NAMED COMMANDER OF U.S. ARMY GROUND FORCES IN BRITAIN IN JULY, 1943, AND IMMEDIATELY ACQUIRED THE REPUTATION OF BEING A HARD-WORKING GENERAL WHO LIKED TO SPEND MOST OF HIS TIME WITH HIS MEN IN THE FIELD RATHER THAN AT HIS DESK.

HE TOOK THAT COMMAND AFTER HAVING SERVED FROM BEFORE PEARL HARBOR UNTIL FEBRUARY, 1942, AS CHIEF OF THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S WAR PLANS DIVISION, A POST IN WHICH HE WAS SUCCEEDED BY GEN.EISENHOWER.

LEAVING THAT POST HE TOOK COMMAND OF THE 29TH (BLUE AND GRAY) DIVISION AND PARTICIPATED IN SOME OF THE ARDUOUS TRAINING EXERCISES IN THE SOUTH.

SHORTLY AFTER THE INVASION OF NORMANDY IT WAS DISCLOSED HE WAS IN COMMAND OF THE FIFTH CORPS IN FRANCE. HE WAS HONORED BY LT.GEN. OMAR N.BRADLEY FOR THE VICTORY AT CHERBOURG. HE RECEIVED THE OAK LEAF CLUSTER TO HIS DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL FOR HIS BRILLIANT LEADERSHIP OF THE CORPS.

HIS CAREER RECALLS THE WORDS OF STONEWALL JACKSON BEFORE THE BATTLE OF CHANCELLORSVILLE, "THE INSTITUTE WILL BE HEARD FROM TODAY!".

FOR GEROW, LIKE STONEWALL JACKSON, AND CHIEF OF STAFF GEN.GEORGE C.MARSHALL, IS A GRADUATE OF VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE, "WEST POINT OF THE SOUTH."

THE 56-YEAR-OLD NATIVE OF PETERSBURG, VA. HAS BEHIND HIM A RECORD OF SERVICE ON THE MEXICAN BORDER, IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR, IN THE PHILIPPINES AND CHINA, AS WELL AS AT VARIOUS ARMY POSTS THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY.

HE HAS SERVED WITH BOTH THE INFANTRY AND THE SIGNAL CORPS, AND HIS EXTENDED STUDIES AT VARIOUS ARMY FINISHING SCHOOLS, FROM THE WAR COLLEGE DOWN.

IT WAS NOT LONG AFTER HE BECAME COMMANDER OF THE 29TH THAT HIS MEN GAVE HIM THEIR ACCOLADE:

"HE'S A FIELD SOLDIER," THEY SAID.

DURING THE CAROLINA MANEUVERS OF 1942, HE WAS ONE OF THE HARDEST WORKERS ON THE FIELD. HE'D BE UP AT DAWN, SHAVING BY LANTERN LIGHT IN HIS TENT, AND HE PLAYED THE WAR GAMES WITH MUCH GRIMNESS.

SON OF A RETIRED RAILROAD CONDUCTOR, "GENERAL GEE" IS KNOWN BY HIS MIDDLE NAME OF TOWNSEND BY OLD FRIENDS BACK IN PETERSBURG. HE'S NOT THE ONLY ARMY MAN IN THE FAMILY:--ONE OF HIS BROTHERS IS BRIG.GEN.LEE SAUNDERS GEROW.

HE MARRIED THE FORMER MISS MARY LOUISE KENNEDY OF ST.PAUL. THEY HAVE NO CHILDREN.

WESEL BRIDGEHEAD COLLAPSES. ENEMY CUT OFF; AMERICANS GAIN MILE ON EAST SIDE OF RHINE; CENTER OF TOKYO DEVASTATED BY FIRE BOMBS

GERMANS UNABLE TO HALT MIGHTY AMERICAN DRIVE

Doughboys Strike Out for Hills Commanding Rhine River.

MOP UP IN EIFEL AREA

Allies Close Wesel Escape Route, Enemy Quitting Holland.

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Paris Sunday, March 11. — (AP) American troops gained almost a mile in the Remagen bridgehead east of the Rhine yesterday while collapse of the German west bank bridgehead opposite Wesel and the mop-up of trapped pockets in the Eifel region dealt new blows to the apparently fast-ebbing German defense which may foreshadow an early end of the war in Europe.

The Yanks across the Rhine at Remagen made their advances—deepening and lengthening their already powerful bridgehead—against the desperate opposition of enemy armor and infantry rushed there in a frantic effort to prevent the U. S. First army forces from rolling up the entire German Rhine line from the rear.

On the basis of Associated Press front dispatches from Remagen early today, the Americans are punching inland and along the river. The Germans, beset by battered communications and lowered morale, have not yet brought sufficient strength into the bridgehead area to halt the attackers.

Nazis Trapped at Wesel

A dispatch from the U. S. Ninth army front said that a spearhead regiment of the 35th infantry division had cut off the last remaining escape route from the Wesel pocket late last night and had reached the approaches of a railroad bridge which reportedly was blown out.

From the Netherlands front came reports by reconnaissance pilots of extensive eastward movements of German troops north of the Waal Rhine. This may indicate that in the face of heavy reverses and possible naval attacks on the Dutch coast, the Germans have decided to abandon all of Holland south of the Zuider Zee in order to fall back on the Ijssel river and a better defensive position.

Such a withdrawal would mean the abandonment by the enemy of Holland's main cities of Amsterdam, Rotterdam, the Hague and Utrecht.

The Americans were striking out for the commanding hills some six miles east of the Remagen crossing as both sides massed men and tanks for the crucial battle at Germany's inner threshold. Only seven miles east of the river (and apparently a mile or less from the Americans' advance) runs one of Adolf Hitler's new superhighways to Cologne, an ideal avenue for a northward charge towards the Ruhr industrial basin.

Yanks Pour Across Rhine

The Germans said American shock troops were storming across the Rhine in assault boats in a bid to broaden the bridgehead. Supreme headquarters did not confirm this, but a field dispatch said enemy resistance was stiffening and at least one armored division was deployed against the American advance.

It was said at headquarters that the original bridgehead was being enlarged steadily.

The Germans had not yet tried to seize the initiative, more than three days after the Americans first crossed, and had not yet made a major counterattack, Associated Press Correspondent Hal Boyle wrote from east of the Rhine.

This was the Ardennes in reverse, with Field Marshal Rundstedt forced to make heavy commitment of reserves against this threat to the heart of the Reich at an hour when four other Allied armies were lined up on the Rhine in position to cross.

Still on the defensive, the Germans were building up artillery in a desperate effort to knock out the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen before the advancing American infantry and tanks drive their guns beyond reach of the crossing.

Alert U. S. Eighth Air Force fighters broke up an attempt by six enemy planes to bomb the bridge this afternoon in a spectacular air batle, 3,000 feet directly above the bridgehead while German and American antiaircraft gunners filled the sky with flak.

Artillery Pounds Bridgehead

Standing outside the bridgehead of 50 square miles, enemy medium artillery and tank guns blasted at the bridgehead and the bridge, across which U. S. First Army guns, men and tanks streamed in endless procession.

To the south, the U. S. Third army hammered within two miles of the Rhine city of Coblenz, and flushed 9,000 prisoners from the Eifel mountain trap which it shut on six enemy divisions by a junction yesterday with the First army.

On the north side of the trap, the First army seized 20 miles of the Ahr river, moving so swiftly that it took 20 carloads of military supplies at Ahrweiler, two flying bomb sites, an ordnance dump at Brueck, 14 miles west of the Rhine, and numerous U. S. jeeps and trucks taken by the Germans in the Ardennes breakthrough. Some prisoners were shirts of U. S. units mauled in that breakthrough. At Brueck in the heart of the Eifels, the First army was eight miles or less from a second junction with the Third army in the center of the trap. The First army's prisoner bag yesterday was 3,000.

On the north end of the front, a field dispatch said the long-held Wesel pocket on the west bank of the Rhine collapsed under combined blows of the Canadian First and U. S. Ninth armies.

As Allied forces drove within two miles of Wesel, in the northwest corner of the Ruhr, the Germans blew both bridges there and rear-guards fled across the Rhine by barges in a storm of bombs and shells.

This was the final act in the great battle west of the Rhine which Supreme headquarters estimated cost the enemy 100,000 men in prisoners alone since Feb. 23. Twenty-two German divisions were destroyed or so badly mauled they must be refitted.

Farther south, the Germans said their soldier wounded, the aged, women and children were moving east across the Rhine in long lines in flight from the Saar industrial basin and the Palatinate, the only two provinces still in enemy possession west of the Rhine.

Lined Up Along Rhine

Allied armies now were lined up on 150 miles of the Rhine's west bank from the Dutch border to near Coblenz and the Ruhr's great arsenal cities were learning to their cost what this meant as the Ninth army rocked them with giant 240-mm Howitzers.

Duesberg and Duesseldorf have been catching it for a week, and a front dispatch said that from now on, other cities within range, especially Essen with its sprawling Krupp munition works, would know no peace.

German attempts to slash into the Remagen bridgehead yesterday with the aid of tanks were repulsed, and since then the enemy has been reluctant to return to the suicidal attacks.

Today, Berlin said, American troops in assault craft crossed the Rhine in the area of Honnef, five miles up the superhighway toward the Ruhr from Remagen.

The Germans said fierce fighting was raging here, with Honnef changing hands repeatedly. These accounts placed Honnef at the north end of the bridgehead, with Linz, six miles to the south, at the other end, and said the holdings extended four and a half miles inland.

Supreme headquarters gave no hint of the size of the bridgehead except to say that it was steadily being extended and reinforced, and that the First army had firm control of heights east of the bridge.

A field dispatch said the fighting was of such urgency that American troops stepped from Ludendorff bridge into battle.

Roads stretching far back of the front were loaded with trucks, troops, guns, tanks, supplies, all hurrying toward the bridge, which now is the key to the final battles of Germany.

United States 9th Air Force fighters mounted constant patrol over the span, and the German air force not once during the day tried to repeat its futile and costly attempts of yesterday to knock out the bridge.

The lack of counterattacks since yesterday indicated that the German high command was waiting until more power could be marshaled before trying again, and pilots last night reported enemy infantry units rushing up the highways.

Berlin Admits Troops Have Widened And Deepened Remagen Hold

MAR 11 1945

Paris, March 10 (AP)—United States troops, rolling by thousands over the Rhine bridge at Remagen, repulsed a tank-supported Nazi counterattack today, and Berlin declared Americans were also crossing the river by boats 4 or 5 miles downstream and had entered Honnef.

The dispatch from the front said German reinforcements were racing up against the United States 1st Army's bridgehead, 50 square miles in size, for a showdown battle.

A Berlin broadcast said Americans in "storm rafts" were crossing the Rhine near Honnef, at the northern end of the bridgehead. Honnef is 5 miles north of Remagen, on a superhighway leading to the Ruhr.

Upstream near the west bank, United States 3d Army tanks struck within 2 miles of Coblenz, and a trap tightened on 20,000 Germans northwest of that city.

Germans Shelling The Bridge At Remagen

The Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen was under Nazi shellfire, but despite increasing resistance Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's men broadened their cross-Rhine foothold and held firm in the highlands east of the river.

United States 9th Air Force planes kept vigil over the bridgehead and attacked railways and roads east of the Rhine.

Allied armies were massed along a 150-mile stretch of the Rhine, and United States 9th Army 240-mm. guns hurled shells at long range into the Ruhr factories. The Krupp plant at Essen was within their range.

On the north end of the front, the Germans began pulling out of the Wesel pocket and Allied troops advanced as much as 2 miles today against light opposition.

The Germans blew up the road and railroad bridges across the Rhine at Wesel last night.

The German radio said Honnef had changed hands more than once. The Americans who crossed by boat were trying to link up with other forces moving down the river bank, it added.

Berlin Admits Expansion Of Bridgehead

Berlin said stiff fighting was continuing in the southern end of the bridgehead "especially east and north of Linz," upstream from Remagen, and said the 1st Army was held without gains there. It declared the bridgehead as a whole had been sealed off firmly.

Earlier Berlin broadcasts admitted that the Yanks had expanded the bridgehead to at least 6-mile width and 4½-mile depth. The bridgehead now extends from Linz, opposite Remagen, upstream to Honnef, Berlin said. It termed the position strong.

A dispatch from the front said several hundred Germans, buttressed by armor, were halted in a thrust against the Rhine bridgehead, which Allied reports said was at least 5 miles deep and 10 or more wide.

German convoys, desperately using headlights in night travel, converged on the bridgehead, and a major battle, perhaps a decisive one, impended.

The Berlin radio said today that the "bulk of German forces has taken up positions along the right bank of the Rhine" against the Americans striving to widen their foothold. The broadcast claimed that German counterattacks in the bridgehead area were causing considerable American casualties.

Ruebenach, 2 Miles From Coblenz, Taken

But the initial German attack had failed, and so great was the American power rolling over the bridge that a front-line correspondent declared "the Germans have already lost the race."

The 3d Army's 4th Armored Division seized Ruebenach, on a main road 2 miles northwest of tottering Coblenz, a city of 80,000 population.

Nazi broadcasts said that Germans pocketed south of Cologne between Rodenkirchen and Weiss were withdrawing to the Rhine's east bank protected by tank forces, but hinted that there was no hope of getting the tanks across the river.

On the north flank, British, Canadian and American troops reduced the German pocket at Wesel on the Rhine to a width of 5 miles and a depth of 3, capturing Veen and three other towns. Germans fought desperately while withdrawing to bridges still usable at Wesel.

Nazis Intensify Shelling Of Ludendorff Bridge

The Germans intensified artillery fire with which they were trying to knock out the Ludendorff Bridge, seized just a few minutes before the Germans could wreck it, and made four abortive bombing raids yesterday. Only a few days before the 9th Armored Division captured the bridge, Allied bombers had tried to wreck it to prevent the Germans from escaping across it.

The Rhine crossing had still not been announced today by the German high command communiqué, but some German home broadcasts have broken the news to the people of the Reich.

The 1st Army took 3,000 prisoners yesterday and the 3d Army's bag was estimated at 6,500 or more.

German demolitions sent the bridge at Bonn tumbling into the Rhine just before that city was captured. South of Remagen the Nazis blew up all bridges as far up the river as Coblenz.

The junction of the 1st and 3d armies was made between Coblenz and Remagen, at Brohl and Andernach.

The 3d Army's 10th Armored Division gained slowly but steadily in a drive down the Moselle northeast of Trier, and it appeared that the Germans would be squeezed back to positions south of that river all the way to Coblenz. From five to six Nazi divisions were pinned against the Moselle, but had an escape road southward to the Saar area.

In the Wesel pocket, British and Canadian troops cleared Veen, a main stronghold, and Luttingen and Bonning, while United States 9th Army men captured Drupt.

Allied planes destroyed 34 German barges clustered on the Rhine yesterday and damaged 63 more, most of them in the Wesel area.

Two Nazi Attacks Repulsed

On the 3d Army front, two weak German attacks were repulsed by the 10th Armored Division, 5 miles east of Trier, and by the 5th Infantry near Manderscheid, 15 northeast of Bitburg. Manderscheid and near-by Bettenfeld were captured by Americans.

The 90th Infantry took four towns 16 miles west of Mayen, and 10th Armored Division elements gained a mile northeast along the Moselle's bank, 7 miles northeast of Trier, and entered towns up to 12 miles northeast of that city. The 76th Infantry, advancing 1½ miles, seized Musweiler, and reached the vicinity of Grosslittgen, 13 miles north of Bitburg.

The Bridgehead Battle

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead, at the bridgehead, said there was no doubt that the Germans were making "a supreme effort" to marshal all their strength for a counterattack designed to drive the Americans back across the river.

He said it was a race between the Germans and Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges's 1st Army to get infantry and tanks to the scene, but after seeing the flow of American men and fighting tools moving up to the bridgehead "there can be only one reaction—the Germans have already lost the race."

"An Awesome Display"

"The bridgehead is growing stronger by the hour and the Remagen bridge has become the most important stretch of highway on any fighting front," he added. "All roads seem to lead to Remagen and all those roads are literally jammed with convoys moving toward the bridgehead in an awesome display of power."

The Nazis lobbed 155 and 210 millimeter shells at the bridge, and the shells whizzed over viciously as the doughboys made their run across the 400 yards of concrete and steel. Three Nazi planes dived in yesterday from low hanging clouds and dumped bombs, braving ack-ack fire that shot down four German aircraft making similar attempts Thursday night.

with a tricky light pattern had been set up in the woods outside Bonn in an attempt to deceive R. A. F. night raiders, six captured Germans disclosed here. It had been in operation for three years.

The lights went on each time there was a raid. One of the Germans pulled a switch. The five others took stations with buckets of water to put out any fires the bombs might cause.

But every time the bombs fell on Bonn—"even after we used sparklers and colored lights," a spokesman for the prisoners lamented.

YANK GUNS POUND KRUPP PLANT AREA

With the U. S. Ninth Army, March 10 (A. P.).—Long-range artillery of the Ninth Army stabbed deep into Germany's Ruhr valley today with 240-mm. shells. The Krupp armament plant at Essen, fourteen miles from across the Rhine from captured Homberg, was within the orbit of these big guns, which have a range much greater than the 155-mm. Long Tom weapon used so effectively in the Normandy campaign.

For days these 58,000-pound behemoths have been getting priorities on all roads between the Roer and the Rhine. Duisburg, Duesseldorf and other important German towns on the east bank of the Rhine have been under American artillery fire for a week.

The howitzers' 345-pound shells can plunk into Essen at the rate of one round a minute.

Command B, as related to Don Whitehead of the Associated press.]

By MAJOR BEN COTHRAN.

On the Rhine Bridgehead, March 10 (A. P.).—On the morning of Wednesday, March 7, we started a drive at 5 A. M., with Combat Command B pushing on Remagen and Combat Command A driving on our left flank.

While we were on the road the Old Man (Brig.-Gen. William M. Hoge of Lexington, Mo.) was talking about the bridge and the possibilities of taking it. Our artillery had been shooting only time fire on it because we didn't want to damage it.

The division commander (Major-Gen. John W. Leonard of Toledo, Ohio) had told us that if the bridge was intact, to put something across. Of course, that worried us—having the job of making a bridgehead with our force. A combat force is not such a big force, although it does sound imposing. This order was passed along to a task force commanded by Lieut.-Col. Leonard Engeman of Redwood Falls, Minn.

Everything Quiet and Peaceful.

We got to high ground overlooking Remagen about noon, and we could see German vehicles streaming across the bridge. Everything in the valley looked quiet and peaceful. On the other side we could see locomotives with steam up, preparing to move out. We were apprehensive because it just didn't look right. They knew we were coming, and this scene was too quiet to be comfortable.

Col. Engeman decided to knock out the town first before making a grab for the bridge. That's what he did, and then he called up doughboys to take the bridge.

As it developed our problem was not so much taking the bridge as getting something across to back up those two battalions of infantry who were across at daybreak Thursday.

That night in Remagen was rough, plenty rough. The streets were clogged with vehicles and tanks, and we had a hell of a time getting it sorted. The old man came in and stormed and shouted and shoved people around until they got moving.

Bridge Blocked Three Hours.

We wanted to get tanks and tank destroyers across in case counter-attack. The Ger-of a [illegible]. The Germans had managed to do some damage to the bridge, but the main charges had failed to explode.

Anyway, at that time the bridge could handle only one-way traffic. Then a tank destroyer slid off the bridging, and it took three hours to get it pulled out of the way.

The engineers did a terrific job on the bridge. The first thing they did was check for demolitions. They found several heavy charges which had not gone up because they were defective. The engineers ripped out all the wiring and then went to work repairing the damage to the bridge from minor explosions.

They were under the command of Lieut. John Mitchell of Brentwood, Pa.

They had the bridge repaired in a couple of hours and about midnight the first tank rolled across. By daybreak we had a company of tanks over to support the infantry and things were moving.

tank was manned by Sergt. William B. Goodson, Rushville, Ind.; Corporal William E. Richard, of Shrewsberry, W.Va.; Private Berthold Fried, of Shade Hill, S.D., and T/4 Robert A. Jones, of McKee, Ky.

Goodson was in command as the iron war horse crashed through the murky night. Fried was the cannoneer, Richard the gunner and Jones was at the controls.

Drabik Describes Crossing

Drabik was called to Hoge's command post yesterday to be interviewed.

Still grimy from combat and cradling an M-1 gun in his arm, the raw-boned Ohioan spoke in simple, matter-of-fact phrases of one of the war's most dramatic moments.

"It was like this," he said. "Lieutenant Timmerman (Lieut. Carl Timmerman, of West Point, Neb.) told us to go across the bridge, with the 1st platoon leading.

Company Near Bridge

"I've got the 3d Platoon of a rifle company. We had fought through Remagen to the river and our company was at the edge of the town about 200 yards from the bridge.

"I waited until the 1st Platoon got out on the bridge, but they were held up by machine-gun and sniper fire from those big stone towers at the eastern end.

"When I brought up my men the 1st Platoon was keeping the Germans in the tower busy. So I went by them and yelled to my men to go across—firing into the tunnels in the hill on the other side."

Men Keep Moving

Drabik said the 1st Platoon had the Germans "pretty well down" with their fire.

"We ran down the middle of the bridge, shooting as we went. I didn't stop because I knew if I kept moving they couldn't hit me. My men were in squad column and not one of them was hit."

A machine-gun squad came up behind as Drabik's riflemen ran forward 200 yards on the German side of the bridge and formed a skirmish line to "hold the enemy if they did come."

"We took cover in some bomb craters," Drabik said. "Then we just sat and waited for the others to come in. That's the way it was."

It was disclosed today that the American engineers who moved in and repaired the bridge were under the command of Lieut. John Mitchell of Brentwood, Pa.

Ohio Sergeant, 34, Is First Yank To Cross Rhine

On the Rhine Bridgehead, March 10 (AP)—A 34-year-old Ohio sergeant has been singled out as the man first across the Rhine in the daring establishment of the 1st Army's bridgehead.

Without detracting glory from other soldiers in the history making coup, Brig. Gen. William M. Hoge, of Lexington, Mo., whose armored forces took the Remagen Bridge, named Sergt. Alexander A. Drabik, butcher, of Holland, Ohio, as the outstanding hero of the day.

Hoge said yesterday a careful check disclosed Drabik actually was the first American to step on the east bank of the river, in the forefront of ten riflemen shooting as they ran in a wild dash which so astounded the Germans they failed to blow up the vital structure.

Lieutenant One Of First

Also in the vanguard of the first Americans over the river was Lieut. Emmet Burrows, Jersey City officer whose platoon was in the initial fighting.

The first tank to roll into the now solidly held bridgehead carried sons of four states.

Drabik Bothered Only By Girls

Toledo, Ohio, March 10 (AP)—Sergt. Alexander Drabik, credited as the first American to cross the Rhine, was described today as a quiet, hard working man who wasn't bothered by the task of slaughtering pigs, but "the most bashful guy you ever saw when it comes to meeting girls."

Walter Drabik, a cousin, said: "I used to see him help his father stick pigs on the farm, and later he stuck pigs at the slaughter house. Nothing ever bothered him except girls. He is the most bashful guy you ever saw when it comes to meeting or talking to girls."

Mother "Very Proud"

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Drabik were proud of their youngest son, the only member of the family in service. Silver-haired, frail Mrs. Drabik when first told the news anxiously turned to her husband. He quickly told her in Polish of her son's exploit.

She replied and her son, Victor, 38, translated: "She says she is very proud."

Besides Victor, the sergeant has two brothers and five sisters, all reared on the 80-acre farm home in Holland, 10 miles west of here. Alexander worked as a meat cutter and in a slaughter house here before his induction in October, 1942.

EISENHOWER IS ACCLAIMED

Congratulations Pour In On Victory And Rhine Crossing

Paris, March 10 (AP)—Congratulations poured in to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today on Allied victories in Germany and the American crossing of the Rhine.

Prime Minister Churchill hailed "the great victory won by the Allied armies under your command by which the defeat or destruction of all the Germans west of the Rhine will be achieved."

Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal: "The United States Navy joins the nation in admiration for the feats of the armies under your command and particularly sends its congratulations to the 1st Army on its historic crossing of the Rhine."

House's Congratulations

Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the United States House of Representatives: "At the request of the House of Representatives, unanimously expressed, I send to you, your officers and the men of all the services under your command our congratulations and thanks for the magnificent victories recently achieved on the Western front."

Churchill praised the "remark-

Text of the Churchill telegram:

"Let me offer you my warmest congratulations on the great victory won by the Allied armies under your command by which the defeat or destruction of all the Germans west of the Rhine will be achieved.

"No one who studies war can fail to be impressed by the admirable speed and flexibility of the American armies and groups of armies and the adaptiveness of the commanders and their troops to the swiftly changing conditions of modern battles on the greatest scale.

"I am glad that the British and Canadian armies in the north should have played a part in your far-reaching and triumphant combinations."

Eisenhower's Reply

In reply, Eisenhower said:

"On behalf of the Allied force I thank you sincerely for the warmth of your congratulations on our latest advances. These successes have stemmed from the gallantry and devotion of all ranks of all services and from the precision and power with which each successive blow of ground and air have been struck.

"The attraction of sizable enemy formations to the north to meet the attack launched by the 21st Army Group on February 28 resulted, as planned, in increasing the vulnerability of the enemy to the devastating later attacks of the 9th, 1st and 3d armies. With perfect team play, every Allied unit of every service has performed its allocated part of its own further distinction and to the dismay of the enemy."

Bonn About Destroyed By Yanks And Germans

Bonn, Germany, March 10 (AP)—Bonn, the birthplace of the composer Ludwig van Beethoven, the opening notes of whose fifth symphony have been used by the Allies as a symbol for victory, is just about destroyed.

The university area, too, was hard hit from the searing artillery duels of the final battle and the mighty air blows which had preceded it.

But the city itself was not as badly hit as Cologne, though the Germans put up more fight here than they did at the larger city, much destruction and some of the bloodshed were brought about by German guns which roared across the Rhine long after Bonn itself had been given up.

Nazis Have Lost 50 Generals on Western Front

18 Dead Include Marshals Rommel and Kluge; 32 Others Are Prisoners

By The Associated Press

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, March 10.—The war has cost the German Army fifty generals on the western front alone, eighteen of them killed and thirty-two captured, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

In addition, the Wehrmacht has lost three colonels in command of divisions, four admirals and one vice-admiral. Among the generals captured were six full generals, twelve lieutenant generals and fourten major generals.

The dead include two field marshals, Erwin Rommel and Guenther von Kluge, the latter a suicide. Rommel, victim of an Allied air attack in France, was commander of German Army Group B. Kluge was commander in chief in the west.

The sixteen others killed were: Freiderich Dollman, 7th Army; Erich Marcks, 84th Corps; Hans Friederich von Funk, 47th Panzer Corps (possibly a suicide); Fritz von Brodowski, commander of Clermont-Ferrand district; Viktor von Drabisch-Waechter, 326th Infantry Division; Wilhelm Falley 91st Infantry Division; Konrad Heinrich, 89th Infantry; Dietrich Krals, 352d Infantry; Heinz Hellmich, 243d Infantry; General Scherbening, 406th Division; Rudolph Stegman, 77th Infantry S.S. (Elite Guard) Gruppenfuehrer Fritz Witt, 12th S.S. Panzer Division; Alexander Michael Freiherr von Bassewitz, command not known; Ritter von Elber von Dawmans, chief of staff of 5th Panzer Army; Heinz Ongyldenfeldt, chief of staff of Army Group G, and Major General Oschmann, 388th Infantry.

Captured generals include: Dietrich von Choltitz, commandant of Paris district; Hans Eberbach, 7th Army; Ferdinand Neuling, 62d Corps; Bernard Ramcke commandant of Brest district Edwin Graf von Rothkirch, und Trach, 53d Corps; General Vierow Somme Corps.

Captured lieutenant generals include: Erwin Menny, 84th Division; Kurt Badinsky, 276th Infantry; Wilhelm Daser, 70th Infantry; Otto Elfeldt, 47th Infantry; Erwin Rauch, 343d Infantry; Hans Schaffer, 244th Infantry; Karl Wilhelm von Schleiben, 107th Infantry; Lieutenant General Heim, commandant of Boulogne district; Lieutenant General Heyking, 6th Paratroop Division; Lieutenant General Kittel, commandant of Metz district; Ernst Seyffardt, 348th Infantry, and Karl Spang, 266th Infantry.

Captured major generals include: Major General Stattler, second in command at Cherbourg; Major General Ullersperger, fortress engineer commander at Strasbourg; Major General Schramm, commander at Troyes; Major General Beiringer, 62d Corps; Major General Eberding, commander of 64th Infantry Division; Alfred Gutknecht, chief of motor transport troops on western front; Botho Elster, Field Command 541; Paul von Felbert, Field Command 560; Major General von der Mosel, chief of staff in the Brest district Otto Richter, commander of 198th Infantry; Christopher Graf Stollberg-Stollberg, commander of 136th Infantry; Major General Vaterbrodt, commandant at Strasbourg; Bock von Wuelngen, commandant at Liege; Karl Wahle, commander of the 47th Infantry.

18 German Generals Killed In West And 29 Captured

Paris, March 10 (AP)—Eighteen German generals have been killed on the Western front alone, it was disclosed today at supreme headquarters, and 29 have been captured.

The captured include six full generals, twelve lieutenant generals and eleven major generals.

Three colonels in command of divisions, four admirals and one vice admiral also have been bagged.

Rommel, Von Kluge In List

The dead generals include two field marshals—Erwin Rommel, victim of an Allied air attack, and Guenther von Kluge, who committed suicide.

Since the western Rhine offensive began February 28 Allied armies have taken more than 100,000 prisoners.

Rommel was commander of Army Group B, and von Kluge was commander in chief in the West.

16 Others Listed

The sixteen other generals killed were:

Friedrich Dollman, 7th Army; Erich Marcks, 84th Corps; Hans Friedrich von Funk, 47th Panzer Corps, who possibly was a suicide; Fritz von Brodowski, Clermont-Ferrand district; Viktor von Drabisch-Waechter, 326th Infantry Division; Wilhelm Fallay, 91st Infantry Division; Konrad Heinrich, 89th Infantry; Dietrich Krais, 352d Infantry.

Heinz Hellmich, 243d Infantry; General Scherbening, 406th Division; Rudolf Stegmann, 77th Infantry; S. S. Gruppenfuehrer Fritz Witt, 12th S.S. Panzer Division; Alexander Michael Freiherr von Bassewitz, command not known; Ritter von Elber von Dawmans, chief of staff of the 5th Panzer Army; Heinz Ongyldenfeldt, chief of staff of Army Group G; and Maj. ants in the tradition of United States prohibition days.

A number of soldiers have been downed by poisonous so-called cognac in Tongres alone.

In the Hasselt-Tongres-Maastricht region, raids by Belgian food controllers, excise officials and American military police have unearthed many small distilleries hidden in peasant cottages, farm attics and stables.

Liquor Tax Evaded

By evading the high tax on spirits and collecting as much as 600 francs from GI's for a quart of their dangerous faked brandy, moonshiners and bootleggers are getting rich, by Belgian peasant standards, as long as the law doesn't catch them.

The liquor is made amid filthy conditions with sugar beet and methylated spirits, and, in at least one instance, was fermented with manure.

American military police who made this discovery almost shot the culprit on the spot. Bottles of the bootleg bear labels with five stars instead of the three customary for good brandy.

Heavy fines and penalties haven's stopped the racketeers, as the cost of low-grade ingredients is extremely small and the profits are large, since American soldiers seem ready to pay almost any price for hard liquor and buy it in most cases by the gallon.

Nazi Reserves 'Facing Reds'

Moscow, March 10 (AP)—Col. Pavel Kolomeitsev, Russian tank expert, said today that "obviously (Field Marshal) Rundstedt has not sufficient reserves to close the gaps in the Western wall because these reserves are on the Eastern front.

"The German supreme command is not likely to remove these reserves," Kolomeitsev added in the army newspaper Red Star. He said the Western front offensive possessed "a decisive character" and that "the Allies aim to deliver a decisive defeat on the whole front west of the Rhine."

"It might have been expected that Cologne would be held," he wrote, "but the Allies took it in two days. The Germans simply went fleeing across the Rhine.

Nazis Report Normandy Raid

LONDON, March 10 (AP)—A Transocean broadcast said today that German forces had made a commando-type raid on the Normandy port of Granville, captured twenty-eight Allied prisoners, including an UNRRA official, freed sixty-five German prisoners, fired harbor installations, sunk six vessels and captured another.

Supplies Pour Into France

NANCY, France, March 10 (AP).—Almost 2,000,000 tons of war material has been brought into France through southern beaches and ports since Aug. 15, Lieutenant General Jacob L. Devers said today. The 6th Army Group commander reported that during the last four months alone 807,000 tons of food, oil, ammunition, vehicles and other supplies have been delivered to the French and American armies in this sector.

Tokyo Left in Ruins By Superfort Attack

15 Square Miles Burned Out in Greatest Air Blow Ever Dealt Any City.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, Sunday, March 11—(AP) At a cost of two bombers, more than 300 Superfortresses laid waste to 15 square miles of Tokyo's industrial and waterfront Saturday in a raid described unofficially by some officers as the most devastating single air blow ever dealt any city in the world.

The raid "left nothing but twisted, tumbled-down rubble in its path," said Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May whose B-29s only recently wiped out 240 city blocks of Tokyo in another devastating attack.

Photographs Show Results

The prepared statement by the 21st Bomber Command leader added that the devastating results were "incontrovertibly established by reconnaissance photographs taken on the afternoon of the strike."

As the full extent of the damage by the more than 300 B-29s, which struck the Japanese capital shortly after midnight Friday (8 a. m. Friday, Eastern War Time), was being assayed, other Superfortresses lashed out from India at the Japanese rail supply line in Malay Saturday.

LeMay said the photographs confirmed earlier reports from the returning pilots that the destruction had swept beyond the 10 square mile target area in the heart of the city.

The total of the ruined area was shown as 15 square miles, from which clouds of smoke had covered the returning B-29s with soot.

Many Fires Burning

Fires were still burning at seven points in Tokyo when the photographs were taken Saturday afternoon, hours after the night strike.

Three were blazing at the north end of the rectangle of destruction and four at the south end. On the south one burned on each side of the mouth of Sumida river waterfront and the other two midway between the mouths of the Sumida and Naka rivers.

Some officers claimed unofficially that the raid was the most devastating single blow ever laid by any war upon any city in the world.

The area of destruction, if laid upon Metropolitan New York, would cover all the industrial sections of Brooklyn and Queens and half their residential sections, plus Manhattan from the battery to Sixtieth street.

LeMay said the area destroyed was "clearly identifiable" in the photographs. Large scale photographs showed that the destruction had spread eastward from the designated 10-square mile target area another five square miles to the bulge of the Naka river.

Claim Palace Hit

The destruction extends roughly from the Imperial palace (which Le May said was not a target, although Tokyo radio reported it had been set afire) to the waterfront at the mouth of the Naka river, thence approximately four miles north.

LeMay added soberly: "I have something else to say at this time. What I have to say is not easy to say. I shall try to say it as if I were saying it to the people at home who belong to my officers and men and to whom my officers and men belong.

"I believe that all those under my command on these island bases have by their participation in this single operation shortened the war.

"To what extent they have shortened it, no one can tell. But I believe that if there has been cut from its duration only one day, or one hour, my officers and men have served a high purpose."

Eight "identifiable industrial and urban targets lie in the ruins," he added. They are the Ueno railroad station (damaged in a previous raid), the Rising Sun Petroleum terminal, the Ogura Oil company, the Nisshin Spinning mill, the Japan Machine industry, the Maranouchi Telephone exchange, Kanda Market and Hattori company.

Le May's statement added: "Hundreds of small business establishments, directly concerned with war industry, many important administration buildings and other thousands of home industries were also in the area now wiped out."

The 21st Bomber Command said it had no report of plane losses resulting from the raid, but added one or two may be missing and "some landed on Iwo Jima."

An earlier report from the 20th Air Force at Washington said two of the big bombers were lost.

Tokyo radio broadcast an imperial communiqué which said the flames spread to the imperial palace and court ministry. All fires, the communiqué said, were extinguished in eight hours.

The Russian Tass news agency reported Tokyo newspapers failed to publish today, indicating their plants were damaged or destroyed.

...hus of incendiaries on the ...causing "50 times more dam... than the record February 25 ... which devastated 240 city ...cks, said Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Power.

2 Bombers Lost

Only two of the huge bombers were lost to enemy action in the raid, the 20th Air Force said. The Tokyo radio claimed 15 B-29's were downed and 50 damaged.

"The area below me was literally a sea of flame," Power reported after two hours over Tokyo. "It was the greatest show on earth."

A Japanese communiqué asserted fires broke out at the Imperial Palace but were put out before 3 A.M. Previously Tokyo radio said flames reached the Emperor's stables. The communiqué claimed all fires were under control by 8 A.M.

500-Block Area

General Power told Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, that one 500-block area was engulfed by flames.

An estimated 1,030,000 Japanese lived in the target area.

The B-29's dropped an estimated 1,300 tons of bombs—every bomb an incendiary—in highly inflammable, congested central Tokyo where targets were railroad stations, small factories not sufficiently valuable for precision bombing and industrial workers' homes.

Carried Greater Load

Total tonnage of the raid of February 25, in which 200 Superforts took part, probably was little more than half of today's record, for which every Superfort carried a greater load than on any of the eleven preceding bombings of the enemy's capital.

Today's raid, devastating as it was, can be tripled in strength if necessary.

Brig. Gen. Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th Air Force, Washington, said fleets of "1,000 or more Superforts will be put over the Japanese homeland if that is necessary to win the war."

Tokyo radio reported fires still were burning many hours after the raid, begun at midnight Tokyo time.

Larger Area Than Planned

Power said the area turned into a veritable inferno was far larger than the ten square miles originally planned. Possibly fifteen square miles were fired, he said. The target area was approximately four miles by three.

Senior officer on the raid, Power piloted his own plane and remained over Tokyo to observe results. He told ground crewmen at the takeoff he would return at 10 A.M. He checked in at 10.01 and was greeted exultantly by both Lemay and Norstad.

The entire heart of Tokyo was a leaping tower of flame long before the last of the B-29's ceased showering their loads of incendiaries. Pilots described the scene as "a hellish sea of fire."

"There is no comparison with any of our previous attacks—it seemed at least 50 times as devastating," exclaimed Power.

Fires Charted

The General checkde each fresh outbreak of flame by dotting with a red pencil a chart he held in his lap. He handed it to Lemay. The chart literally was streaked with color—which extended beyond the originally plotted 10-square-mile sector.

Lemay conferred briefly with Power, turned to newsmen and stated flatly:

"This looks like the most successful attack we have made to date." Then he cautioned: "Don't get too enthusiastic until we see the photographs."

The Imperial Palace was at the edge of the chart which Power handed Lemay. It was menaced by flames but apparently was not burned, he reported, pointing out on his chart that fire did not quite reach it.

Power saw one section possibly 50 blocks by 10 converted into "literally a whole sea of flame."

Grew In Intensity

Corporal Leon White, of Jacksonville, Fla., gunner on another B-29, said the fire seemed to be spreading eastward across the Sumida River, which formed a natural boundary of the target area. He added that fires appeared to be smaller east of the river.

Few of the first pilots and crewmen returning to Guam saw enemy fighters in the air, although men

B-29's Leave Tokyo In 'Sea Of Fire'

Twenty-first Bomber Command, Guam, March 10 (AP)—A "hellish sea of fire," touched off by the greatest raid ever made by Superfortresses, engulfed the heart of Tokyo today and eddied up to the Imperial Palace grounds.

"It looked as if the whole town was burning," said one airman returning this morning from the first mass nighttime raid on the enemy capital. More than 300 B-29's poured in the lead plane, piloted by Capt. Ed Russell, of Stamford, Texas, watched some night fighters take off shortly after the first of the raiders struck. Anti-aircraft fire was described as light by the earliest crews to reach Tokyo.

[A later dispatch from Washington reported that anti-aircraft fire grew in intensity as the stream of B-29's continued steadily dropping their death-dealing loads.]

Sergt. Warren Sephton, of Patchogue, Long Island, N.Y., heard Radio Tokyo tell the Japanese that night fighters were driving the raiders off—but the Superforts were not hampered.

Tokyo said the raid lasted from midnight to 2.40 A.M., Japanese time.

There was no official comment on the fact this was an all-incendiary raid or whether it might indicate a change from strategic to area bombing. An officer quoted Lemay: "A fight is a fight—if you see an opening to take it."

Had Clear Weather

The bombing was visual. Clear weather prevailed over the target. Fires were visible for 85 miles—then were lost to sight because of thickening weather offshore.

Superforts from Saipan, Tinian and Guam participated. This was the first announced use of Guam as a B-29 base. Norstad said additional bases for the super-bombers would be constructed in the Marianas as the twenty-first command built up to 1,000-plane raids.

The Japanese, anticipating incendiary attacks, had built 31 miles of wide fire alleys and had the city's firebreak project about 70 per cent complete, reported Associated Press Correspondent Vern Haugland. However, pilots' accounts indicated the fire spread rapidly across these alleys—some of them 110 yards wide.

Boundaries Of Target Area

Boundaries of the target area were, on the north: Ueno Park eastward along the Joban railway to the Sumida River; East: Southeastward to a point halfway between the Ara and Sumida Rivers; South: From the Y-shaped mouth of the Sumida westward to the Tokyo station; then, West: Northward to Ueno Park.

To fight fires, the Japanese built reservoirs 80 to 100 yards apart in the cleared fire alleys. Tall structures gave fire watchers excellent vantage points. Fifty-yard wide strips surrounding several factories were cleared of all houses in some congested areas.

Business, commercial and Government districts which might be hard hit by effects of the inferno, border the target area on the west and south. Army and navy administrative planning headquarters also are in near-by areas.

[Tokyo newspapers did not publish today after the night Superfortress raid on the capital, the Soviet Tass news agency reported in a dispatch intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission. The report would indicate the newspaper plants were in the extensive fire area.]

JAPS REPORT RAID SET PALACE AFIRE

London, March 10 (A. P.).—An Imperial communique broadcast today by the Tokyo radio said a big raid on the Japanese capital by American Superfortresses had started fires in the Emperor's Palace.

"About 130 enemy bombers of the B-29 type appeared over Tokyo early in the morning of March 10 and indiscriminately bombed several districts of the city," the communique said. Fires started in several places.

"Fires in the Imperial Palace and the Court Ministry were extinguished by 2:55 A. M., the others by 8 A. M.

"Fifteen planes were shot down and another fifty were damaged."

New Incendiary Bomb Credited For Tokyo Fires

San Francisco, March 10 (AP)—Why flames spread so fast and leaped so high in Tokyo Saturday was made clear today when the Army's Chemical Warfare Service released a limited description of the M-69 incendiary bomb, designed especially for use in Japan.

Col. J. W. Lyon, commanding officer of the chemical-warfare procurement district, said the bomb is made up of a 500-pound aimable cluster, which looks much like any ordinary demolition bomb.

At about 5,000 fee. the cluster opens, releasing individual 6-pound bombs filled with jellied gasoline. Each small bomb spreads burning gasoline for some 30 yards around upon exploding.

Congested Area Hit

GUAM, March 10 (AP).—The target for today's bombing of Tokyo was a highly congested rectangular section extending four miles from north to south and three miles from east to west.

The imperial palace grounds mark the southwest corner of the target, and Ueno Park, largest in North Tokyo, is on the northern corner.

The most important landmark on the western border is the Tokyo railroad station, just east of the imperial palace. The northern boundary extends from Ueno Park and follows the Joban railway eastward to the Sumida River, then southeastward to the north-south line—the eastern boundary—which is halfway between the Ara and Sumida Rivers.

Mapmakers may plot the southern boundary from the Y-shaped mouth of the Sumida River westward to the Tokyo station. Within this area of approximately ten square miles the average population is 103,000 a square mile—probably the most congested in the world.

Anticipating incendiary attacks, the Japanese had built thirty-one miles of fire alleys—adjacent city blocks cleared of all buildings—throughout Tokyo, and apparently had the city's fire-break project about 70 per cent completed.

The alleys, 45 to 110 yards wide, run generally in an east-ward direction, since prevailing winds are north-south except in the summer. An outstanding exception is a 110-yard-wide fire alley running north and south between the Sumida and Naka Rivers, separating the densely populated Honjo Ward from the factory district to the east. This line follows roughly the eastern boundary of the target area.

The Japanese spaced reservoirs 80 to 100 yards apart in cleared fire alleys for fire-fighting purposes. They also erected tall structures for fire watchers. Areas fifty yards wide around several factory installations in more congested wards also were cleared of all houses.

The area of destruction, if laid upon metropolitan New York, would cover all the industrial sections of Brooklyn and Queens and half their residential sections, plus Manhattan from the Battery to Sixtieth Street.

Reporter Sees Tokyo Aflame, Smells Smoke

B-29 Passenger Watches Fire Raging Through Capital,

Making It Like Daytime

The following eyewitness report on the Tokyo B-29 raid was written by Martin Sheridan, a "Boston Globe" correspondent, and offered to the combined American press.

OVER TOKYO, March 10 (AP).—I not only saw Tokyo burning furiously in many sections but I smeled it as we plowed through huge clouds of smoke billowing high above the city.

NIGHT

The conflagration was so great that the bomb bay doors of this Superfortress, the underside of the fuselage and the gun blisters were blackened with soot.

Our navigator didn't have to give the pilot a bearing on Tokyo. Other bombers were ahead of us, and forty miles from the city we could see the reddish glow of fires already started.

As soon as we reached the Japanese mainland we saw scores of smaller fires, en route to Tokyo, and possibly set by the Japanese as diversionary ruses.

The Superfortresses went in singly, a complete change from their previous formation tactics.

Over the outskirts of Tokyo our plane tore through high, somber clouds of smoke and fires. The smoke seemed inside the plane. It smelled like the interior of a long-burnt building.

Suddenly there was an opening through the pall of clouds and there was Tokyo.

I have never seen such a display of destruction nor had such an experience.

Fires were raging in several multi-block areas and creating almost daylight conditions. In addition, there were hundreds of blazes throughout the waterfront area, most densely populated section in the world.

Another indication of the conflagration's intensity was the turbulent air conditions we encountered over the target. Our plane—named Patches and bearing a semi-nude painting on its nose—struck down-and-up drafts and bounced 2,000 feet in split seconds. Crewmen were tossed from their seats. Several struck their heads violently against the top of the plane. They were protected from injury by flak helmets.

Major Walter F. Todd, of Ogden, Utah, operations officer and command pilot, said he thought we were hit by flak, but speedy examination proved everything was operating satisfactorily. A moment later Second Lieutenant Leo P. Ziemiansky, of Buffalo, navigator, sang out: "Three, two, one, mark!" At the last word of the count the bombardier, Second Lieutenant Thomas C. Moss, of Aurora, Ill., dropped the "eggs" in the target area.

As a civilian noncombatant, my contribution was limited to a brown beer bottle—empty, of course.

Several searchlights played on the plane a few moments, but we saw no interceptors and only a few scattered flak bursts.

We did see the city getting a terrific plastering and they'll need a highly efficient fire department to put out the blazes.

During the night trip out, the plane passed through several sharp squalls which would pass quickly and then the sky would be full of lights of other bombers.

We passed too close to Haha Island, north of Iwo. The Japanese probed the sky with searchlights.

Second Lieut. Richard W. Metcalfe of Chicago, flight engineer, at midnight broke out a carton containing sandwiches, a few oranges and several cans of grapefruit juice.

The crew was perturbed about "stateside" stories describing facilities in a bomber for keeping chow hot and other stories of fabulous meals. "That doesn't happen in the Pacific," they said.

Worry Over Gasoline Supply

The plane commander, Second Lieut. Leon L. Ballard of Houston, Tex., has been a second lieutenant for twenty-one months. The co-pilot, Second Lieut. Melvin Barnes of Blackfoot, Idaho, has gone fifteen months without a promotion. Moss, the bombardier, has been "frozen" sixteen months as a second lieutenant. The flight engineer, Metcalfe, hasn't been promoted for nineteen months and Lieutenant Ziemianski has not progressed in seventeen months.

Others in the crew were: S/Sgt. Frank A. Gish of Chicago, Ill.; S/Sgt. Elmo G. Hodges of Smithville, Tex.; Sgt. Joseph F. Kelly (address not included), and Cpl. Emerson B. Burke of Sapulpa, Okla.

These men and their enlisted mates sleep on cots in Quonset huts and tents at their base, eat mediocre chow and yet fly one of the Army's most difficult missions without complaints. They have had twelve Superfortress missions.

They have been flying through miserable weather, minus fighter escorts and without complete weather and navigational aids.

I saw them in action this morning, under completely new conditions, and a crew couldn't have looked better.

The greatest worry after the target is left behind is stretching the gasoline supply over 3,300 miles (the round trip) and making it despite head winds and squally weather.

The hardest worker is the navigator, who fiddles with his instruments and charts every moment. His computation was on the nose and I can see Saipan again.

After Tokyo, Saipan appears beautiful.

Tokyo Papers Fail to Appear

Japanese Premier Warns People U. S. Attacks Will Be Intensified.

DAY

The Tokyo newspapers failed to publish today after last night's Superfortress raid on the capital, Tass, the Soviet news agency, declared in a radio dispatch intercepted by the FCC. The report would indicate that the newspaper plants were in the extensive fire area, A. P. added.

U.S. Will Invade Jap Mainland, Koiso Says

San Francisco, March 10 (AP)—Premier Gen. Kuniaki Koiso warned the Japanese tonight "the enemy will no doubt increase his bombings . . . and is planning for landings on the mainland."

Koiso, broadcasting eighteen hours after some 300 Superforts turned the heart of Tokyo into a blazing furnace, expressed sympathy for the suffering of his people "at the hands" of "most cruel and barbaric" America.

But, he added in the broadcast recorded here, "you must renew your determination and forge onward in the war."

Third Tokyo Warning

The Premier's warning of an imminent invasion was the third such warning to come today from Tokyo radio, which daily warns the Japanese that American naval task forces may soon start a preinvasion bombardment.

Field Marshal General Sugiyama, War Minister, said "the enemy is going to force an all-out decision as soon as possible and will land in the near future."

An unidentified Tokyo broadcaster, heard by the Blue network, unintentionally went further when he got mixed up in his English. He was obviously attempting to paraphrase Sugiyama's warning that an invasion was imminent but what he said was, "The enemy . . . is now attempting to make a landing on Japan proper."

Makes Casualty Claims

After claiming that Nipponese troops had inflicted 503,000 Allied casualties, plus 70,000 on Luzon and 30,000 on Iwo Jima, the broadcaster added:

"Due to heavy casualties, the enemy, trying to make a swift conclusion of this war, is now attempting to make a landing on Japan proper. The Japanese army on the other hand is inflicting decisive blows against the enemy and is awaiting for an opportunity to make a large-scale counteroffensive."

To Report To The Diet

Both Kioso and Sugiyama will report to the Eighty-Sixth Imperial Diet when it reconvenes tomorrow.

The Japanese Domei News Agency said Koiso will "express the determination and confidence of the Government in overcoming the present national crisis.

Suigiyama will make "a detailed report on the war situation."

FIERCE STREET FIGHTING RAGES INSIDE KUESTRIN

Reds Strive for Quick Clean-Up of Oder River Bastion.

SMASH INTO ALTDAMM

Soviet Forces Tighten Baltic Trap in 17 Mile Advance.

LONDON, Sunday, March 11—(AP) Russian troops began shelling the great shipping center of Stettin yesterday and drove four armored spearheads close to bombarded Danzig, while the Germans announced that Red army shock forces had captured half of Kuestrin, key Oder river fortress 38 miles east of imperilled Berlin.

In a new invasion of Danzig territory across the Nogat river from East Prussia the Russians drove to within 17 miles of the former free city. Other columns were 12 miles from their goal on the south, within 10 miles on the southwest, and 15 on the west. Soviet planes began attacking the city and port installations.

Seize Half of Kuestrin

A late German broadcast said the Russians had captured the northern half, or new city district, of Kuestrin, last big bridgehead held by the Germans on the east bank of the central Oder. Then the Russians fought their way across the Warthe river into the older section of the town on the south side.

"Murderous battles are raging for every single house and every single floor of every house," the enemy broadcast said. The Germans said the Russians were striving for a quick clean-up of the Kuestrin area so that they could shift thousands of troops northward for the developing siege of Stettin, main port for Berlin 67 miles northeast of the Reich capital.

The Soviet high command ignored the flaming battle around Kuestrin, where by German account the Russians also have bridgeheads on the west bank of the Oder above and below Kuestrin, and are threatening to trap the Nazi garrison on the eastern shore.

But in the north the Russians said their troops had pressed within three miles southeast of Altdamm, Oder river crossing town two miles from Stettin's great ship basins, with the capture of Franzhausen. The village of Klebow, six miles southwest of Altdamm and about the same distance south of Stettin, also was taken.

Gaining this high ground opposite the Pomeranian capital the Russians were reported in front dispatches relayed through Moscow to have begun shelling Stettin itself.

2,000 Prisoners Taken

The northern wing of Marshal G. K. Zhukov's First White Russian army captured 2,000 more prisoners, the Soviet communique said, and a dispatch said that Red army spearheads had broken into the streets of Altdamm.

The attack toward Stettin was a slow slugging match between hundreds of tanks, but far to the northeast Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army forces were making gigantic strides in narrowing the Baltic trap where thousands of Germans are pinned in the northeastern tip of Pomerania and the adjacent Gdynia-Danzig sectors.

Advancing up to 17 miles in 24 hours these troops overran more than 300 towns and villages and squeezed the Germans into a 1,750-square-mile pocket. The gains were so swift that it was indicated the Germans were retreating into the close-knit defenses around Gdynia and Danzig, important Nazi naval bases.

Premier Stalin in an order of the day announced the fall of Lauenburg, last big northeastern German stronghold in Pomerania. This 10-way junction town is 30 miles west of Gdynia, former Polish naval base, and 35 miles northwest of Danzig city.

The Russians also seized Landichow, seven miles north of Lauenburg, and a string of villages stretching 19 miles west to the Baltic coastal town of Schmolsin.

Fourteen miles southeast of Lauenburg, which is on the main Stettin-Gdynia-Danzig railway, the Russians overran Sierakowitz. Thirteen miles east of the latter point they toppled Kartuzy, an important road center only 15 miles west of Danzig and 17 miles southwest of Gdynia.

In their course through Kartuzy (Karthaus), it appeared that the Russians were striking toward the Baltic coast between Gdynia and Danzig in an effort to split the Nazi pocket into two more vulnerable sectors.

Smash Into Danzig

A late Moscow dispatch said that Soviet troops which on Friday had captured Rheinfeld, nine miles southwest of Danzig, had broken into the suburbs of the once free city and were bringing up Red artillery to shell the Baltic port.

Twelve miles south of Danzig the Russians captured Grossgolmkau, outflanking the big rail junction of Tczew, on the west bank of the Vistula river. Tczew itself was threatened with early capture by Russian seizures of Dolwin, six miles on the northwest, and Baldau, two miles on the south.

In the new drive into Danzig territory on the southeast the Russians captured 10 localities on a 22-mile front beyond Marienburg and Elbing, fallen East Prussian strongholds.

These included Junger, on the western end of the Frisches Haff (Lagoon), eight miles northwest of Elbing; the rail and road center of Tiegenhof, five miles to the southwest; nearby Ladekopp, 17 miles southeast of Danzig; and other points stretching down to Gross-Montau, on the east bank of the Vistula six miles southeast of Tczew.

Russian heavy bombers on Friday night set fires in both Danzig and Koenigsberg, besieged East Prussian capital, the communique said.

In Hungary, northeast of Lake Balaton, the Russians acknowledged that German forces had "wedged slightly" into Soviet defenses at the cost of heavy losses.

German troops on the southeastern approaches to Berlin gained ground near Guben, besieged Neisse River town fifty-one miles from the German capital, and at Forst, thirteen miles south of Guben, enemy broadcasts said.

Other German troops were reported by Berlin to have recaptured the junction town of Striegau, thirty miles southwest of the besieged Silesian capital of Breslau.

The Germans also said their troops had "recaptured" Ratibor, German Upper Silesian rail town sixteen miles north of Moravsk-Ostrava, Czechoslovakia's third largest city, which controls the gateway to the Moravian gap leading to Prague and Vienna. Moscow has never claimed Ratibor.

One Nazi commentator said the counter-attacks at Ratibor and elsewhere in Silesia were aimed at throwing off balance Marshal Ivan Konev's 1st Ukraine Army and prevent it staging an offensive toward the Moravian gap "as a companion piece to the impending great Russian offensive beyond the Oder" toward Berlin and central Germany.

Volkssturmers Kill Leader

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—The Moscow radio today quoted a member of the Volkssturm as saying one of his leaders was killed by the Home Guardsmen while making a pep talk asking them to show more enthusiasm. "After that, most of us surrendered readily to the Russians," the Volkssturmer was quoted as saying.

Reds Believed In Streets Of Altdamm

London, March 10 (AP)—Russian forces apparently have won some streets in Altdamm, the east-bank suburb of Stettin, and may have gained a foothold on the west side of the Dammscher Lake, just north of Berlin's Baltic port, Moscow dispatches reported today.

Stettin itself was under artillery fire for the first time, and the Russians also were firing shells into the defenses of Danzig, where the war started in 1939.

Lauenburg Captured

Marshal Stalin announced in an order of the day the capture of Lauenburg, 33 miles west of Gdynia, and Kartuzi, 15 miles west of Danzig.

Altdamm is 3½ miles east of Stettin on the east side of the Oder. Dammscher Lake is the lagoon-like water 2½ miles wide and 10 miles long northeast of Stettin through which the Oder gets to the sea.

Gunfire Called Intense

"Altdamm was subjected to intense artillery and mortar fire and the Russians appeared to have won some streets in this suburban town of Stettin," Associated Press Correspondent Eddy Gilmore in Moscow reported.

"Soviet storm units which have been moving out into the Dammscher Lake appeared to have won some places on the western bank under heavy artillery fire from guns firing from the eastern bank on Stolzenhagen, Frauendorf and Zuelenow."

Altdamm Trap Threatened

"The Germans are now in immediate danger of being cut off in Altdamm, for these storm units may be able to fight their way south down the Dammscher Lake and work their way in behind Altdamm," he continued.

Stolzenhagen, Frauendorf and Zuelenow are from 1½ to 4½ miles north of Stettin and about 1½ miles inland from the Dammscher Lake.

The Russians had won high ground in the region of Podejuck and Finkenwalde, 2 miles southwest of Altdamm and 4 miles southeast of Stettin, bordering the Oder's marshy banks, from which they could hurl shells into the city of 268,000 at will.

The German high command indicated that Marshal Zhukov's renewed offensive on both sides of Kuestrin was gaining ground in a slow grinding process aimed at reducing that Sixteenth Century fortress and clearing the way for the jump to Berlin.

Bridgehead Reported Narrowed

The German communiqué said the Nazi "bridgehead" at Kuestrin had been narrowed, and Berlin broadcasts suggested that Kuestrin was about to fall.

Berlin yesterday reported Russian tanks and infantry fighting in the streets of Kuestrin, 39 miles east of Berlin, and said the town had been partly overwhelmed.

By German account, Russian tanks and infantry still were pouring across the Oder on both sides of Kuestrin, although Berlin reported repulse of a spearhead which at one time had penetrated to Seelow, 25 miles east of Berlin.

Reported Inside Danzig

The Paris radio said Russians had fought into Danzig, the one-time Free City of 238,000 where some of the first shots of the war were fired the morning of September 1, 1939.

Moscow dispatches, however, reported the closest approach of Marshal Rokossovsky's tanks and cavalry was 6 to 8 miles after the capture of Rheinfeld, 9 miles southwest of the ancient port on the Vistula estuary.

This spearhead also was within 10 miles of Gdynia, the port which Poland developed between the two World wars as a rival to Danzig.

From captured Stolp and Stolpmuende on the Baltic, 67 miles west of Gdynia, another huge force of cavalry and tanks was moving eastward to join the battle for Poland's main port.

This advance was proceding across a series of irrigation canals and rivers.

Say Nazis Took A Gamble

Moscow dispatches said the Germans had taken a gamble in concentrating forces to protect Stettin, as they apparently had weakened their defenses along the Oder between Stettin and Kuestrin.

Significant advances were made west of captured Woltin, 4 miles east of Greifenhagen on the Oder's east bank, 11 miles upstream from Stettin. The Germans said they had quit Greifenhagen.

On the left flank of Marshal Konev's Silesian front the Germans claimed progress in counterattacks southwest and southeast of Breslau.

NAZIS URGED TO STAND FIRM

Churchill Dunkerque Speech Paraphrased By Goebbels

London, March 10 (AP)—Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, speaking on the Eastern front in an hour of rising peril to the Reich, called on German troops and workers today to stand fast, and disclosed that if they did so "our capitulation will never come."

Paraphrasing Prime Minister Churchill's famed speech after Dunkerque, where German armies were tramping in triumph across Europe, the Nazi Propaganda Minister declared at the west Silesian towns of Lauban and Goerlitz:

"We must fight them in the fields, in the forests, in our cities, at every street corner and in every house until they are bled white and cannot continue the struggle. Then the hour of our triumph will strike."

Exhorted To Fight Fanatically

Summoning the people to fight fanatically, Goebbels asserted that "there is nothing left to do but see it through in the east and west."

"We must not yield an inch of German soil without taking a bloody toll of the enemy," he cried.

"The enemy has left us in no doubt as to what he would do to us, to our women, our children, even our children's children if in this hour of destiny . . . we fail or lost courage—laid down our arms and abandoned our cause."

With the Russians across the Oder on the east, and the Americans across the Rhine on the west, German military commentators speculated that fresh blows were impending.

Simultaneous Blows Forecast

Capt. Ludwig Sertorius predicted the Canadian 1st, the British 2d and the United States 9th armies would make simultaneous attempts to cross the Rhine under command of Field Marshal Montgomery.

Sertorius said the "main weight of battle" still lay with this army group and that the United States 1st Army bridgehead at Remagen was in hilly countryside with less chance of exploitation than the northern German plain opposite Montgomery's forces.

A different view of the Remagen bridgehead was taken by Transocean Correspondent Guenther Weber, broadcasting from headquarters of Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt.

He said the Allies intended to build Remagen into a major operative base.

Both Weber and other commentators reported Americans had crossed the Rhine in assault craft 5 miles north of Remagen near Honnef, and Weber reported "street fighting is raging there again and still goes on now."

Allied Radios Also Active

Allied broadcasters likewise were active.

The Brussels radio said the Germans so far had shown no signs of any real counterdrive against the Remagen bridgehead. The Luxembourg radio said German prisoners were pouring in so rapidly that counting them had been delayed 48 hours.

The Paris radio quoted Lieut. Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, French 1st Army commander, as saying "we are preparing to cross the Rhine very soon in close collaboration with our Allies so as to hasten victory and go in search of French prisoners deported for forced labor."

Evidence Of Decay Seen In Germany

London, March 10 (AP)—There are increasing signs tonight that the process of economic and political decay in Germany is being accelerated sharply by the American and Russian drives.

Allied economic experts report that Hitler's belt-tightening home front is faced with a growing famine as a result of disrupted communications by the round-the-clock Allied aerial blows. These day and night attacks were coupled with Russian advances which deprived the Reich of roughly 16,000,000 tons of food.

The Signs Of Decay

Signs of decay inside Germany—each considered signficant in view of the Allied drives—were:

1. Allied economic experts said that on the basis of reports from inside Germany that country's food situation had deteriorated rapidly within the past weeks because of disorganized transport and the influx of millions of refugees from areas overrun by Allied armies and from cities leveled by British and American aerial bombing.

2. Hints that Hitler's widely spread armies face a shortage of ammunition and were operating on a "hand to mouth" basis.

3. A survey of Allied governments disclosed that Europe's resistance forces had reduced Germany's war weapon output in enslaved countries at least 40 per cent by sabotage and "go slow" tactics. Lost to the Germans also were war-weapon plants in France, Belgium, Yugoslavia and Poland.

4. Stoppage of Swiss coal and iron shipments and electric current into southern Germany and northern Italy as a result of the Allied-Swiss trade agreement signed in Bern this week.

Preparations To Take Over

In order not to be caught napping should Germany suddenly collapse, the Allies have speeded up moves in recent weeks for the occupation of the country.

Upward of 2,000 UNRRA workers have been concentrated on the fringes of the Reich to handle displaced European nationals.

Most diplomatic quarters believed the hurried trip to the United States of Robert Murphy, General Eisenhower's adviser on European affairs, to confer with President Roosevelt was connected with the possibility of an early disintegration of large parts of northern Germany.

However, a noted German physician who managed to elude the Gestapo and is now safely in this country told me it would be folly for the United Nations to hope for a revolution from within in view of the tight grip held on the people by Heinrich Himmler.

ROMMEL IN HITLER PLOT, BBC REPORTS

Broadcaster Not Sure He Was Killed By RAF Plane

London, March 10 (AP)—The BBC declared in a German language broadcast tonight that Marshal Erwin Rommel, "Hitler's favorite general," was one of the July conspirators against the Nazi leaders and would have asked the Allies for an armistice if the assassination plot had succeeded.

The Germans on October 15 announced Rommel's death of wounds suffered in France on July 17.

The bomb attempt on Hitler's life was announced by the Germans as having occurred July 20.

RAF Or Gestapo?

The British broadcaster, saying that more facts had now been ascertained about the scope and character of the conspiracy against Hitler, said the Propaganda Minister, Dr. Joseph Goebbels's statement that it was "a small and unimportant clique" had been shown to be a lie.

The BBC's German editor said "whether Rommel was in fact wounded in an RAF attack or whether he was got rid of by the Gestapo I do not know. In any case his elimination was very fortunate for the National Socalist regime."

France, Belgium Chiefs In It

The broadcaster, saying "information I gathered in Paris has now received complete confirmation from other sources," declared that besides Rommel, Generals Otto von Stuelpnagel and Alexander von Falkenhausen, German commanders in France and Belgium, were in on the plot.

Von Falkenhausen was dismissed from his Belgian command in December, reportedly for being "too easy" on saboteurs. Von Stuelpnagel was variously reported last August to have been injured by "terrorists" and to have committed suicide after the anti-Hitler plot failed.

Reich Outlaws Tobacco Raising

London, March 10 (AP)—The German Food Ministry today prohibited cultivation of tobacco in the Reich, decreeing that all land in Baden, the chief tobacco raising province, be devoted to growing potatoes. "In aonther year, German smokers may have no more cigarettes," a Berlin broadcast commented.

AIR BATTLE RAGES OVER RHINE BRIDGE

Nazi Planes Driven Away in Attempt to Bomb Span.

LONDON, March 10—(AP) Berlin reeled under a shower of blockbusters tonight in a swift followup of heavy day raids on the Reich and a spectacular air battle that put to flight German dive bombers trying to knock out the Remagen bridge and wreck the Americans' span across the Rhine.

Swift Mosquitos of the RAF bomber command gave Berlin its 19th consecutive raid by night and the German radio reported another formation over western Germany as the Mosquitos started home.

Battle Over Bridge

The aerial battle over the bridgehead at Remagen was the high spot in a day of close vigil the Eighth and Ninth airforces kept over that vital artery to the heart of Germany.

The Ninth itself sent out 1,000 medium and light fighter bombers to patrol the bridge and slash at enemy road and rail traffic, particularly along the Third army front south of Moselle. Six of 723 fighter bombers failed to return, but no losses were reported among 375 medium light bombers.

Marauders, Invaders and Havocs hit railyards at Lennep, Lippstadt, Niederscheld and Erndstebruck in the Ruhr and bombed main roads at Altenkirchen and Siegen to snarl the movement of enemy troops toward the First army's bridgehead.

Thunderbolts, dropping below a 2,500-foot cloud ceiling over the bridge, spotted six Messerschmitt 109s carrying heavy bombs and escorted by five Folke-Wulfe 190's flying above Linz in the bridgehead area on a beeline for the vital Rhine span over which the First army was pouring men and equipment.

Planes Attack Nazis

The Thunderbolts swooped down on the enemy planes despite bursting flak from free-shooting American ground gunners throwing everything they had into the sky to protect the bridge.

In a savage pass, the Thunderbolts shot down one divebomber, one Folke-Wulf escort, and then in a swirling battle forced the others to jettison their bombs and scatter.

Two Thunderbolts were lost in the short battle which twisted up to 3,000 feet just under the low clouds.

Approximately 100 'Bolts and Mustangs had been dispatched by the Eighth airforce to help fighters from the Ninth airforce in maintaining guard over the bridge during the afternoon.

They moved in after huge forces of the Eighth's planes, in a 200-mile procession, struck the Ruhr earlier in the day in a relentless campaign to paralyze transportation, and isolate the Ruhr battlefields from the rest of Germany.

Assaults by more than 1,830 8th Air Force bombers and fighters on critical rail targets within the Ruhr Valley and on its fringes were followed by another crippling daylight blow at the enemy's oil supplies by RAF Lancasters which hit a synthetic plant near Dortmund. The 8th lost one bomber and two fighters in today's operations.

Raids From Bases In Italy

Flying from bases in Italy, Thunderbolts of the United States 12th Air Force attacked enemy rail targets in northwestern Yugoslavia and southern Austria for the fourth successive day, while mediums continued assaults on the Brenner Pass line and the United States 15th Air Force hit rail bridges northeast of Verona.

While the 8th was attacking the Ruhr, its chief, Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle, received a telegram of congratulation from Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the United States Air Forces, addressed to all the 8th's combat and service personnel.

"During the last five weeks," the message said, "the number of sorties flown and the tonnage of bombs hitting the enemy, despite almost prohibitive weather during this period, add up to a most formidable sum. Complete defeat of the Germans is surely hastened by your perservance. Smashing of these communications routes also will surely curtail movement of German troops and supplies to the Western front."

Yanks, British Join In Raid On Reich

London, March 10 (AP)—More than 1,850 United States 8th Air Force bombers and fighters joined with hundreds of other American and British warplanes from forward bases on the Continent today in another grand-scale attack on German railways leading to the Ruhr battlefields.

The heavy bombardment group of British-based planes included more than 1,350 Flying Fortresses and 500 escorting fighters, also carrying bombs.

Some of the targets were within artillery range of the front lines.

9th Covers Bridgehead

Swarms of 9th Air Force planes kept a constant air canopy over American troops deepening their Remagen bridgehead across the Rhine.

Among the major targets attacked by the American heavy bombers were three railroad yards at Dortmund, 30 miles behind the Rhine. Numerous other rail objectives, including bridges, viaducts and sidings in the Soest and Paderborn regions, also were bombed.

As the planes repelled German airmen's attempts to hit the Ludendorff bridge—Lifeline to the bridgehead area—Allied heavy bombers from Britain again hit communications behind enemy lines.

18 Nazis Planes Bagged

Eighteen German planes were downed over the battlefront yesterday—fourteen by 9th Air Force pilots and four by the RAF. Seven were knocked down as they tried to break through for a crack at the bridge and troops on the other side.

Ninth Air Force divebombers, supporting the British tactical air force guarding Field Marshal Montgomery's forces fighting in the Wesel area, shot down eleven German planes.

Nine U.S. Planes Lost

Nine American and four RAF planes were lost.

Last night Berlin underwent its two hundred and thirty-eighth attack of the war and its eighteenth in succession by RAF Mosquitos. The Air Ministry said it was the heaviest attack of the present series, during which the Mosquitos have dropped more than 1,200 tons of bombs on the Nazi capital.

Other Mosquitos struck road and rail targets in the Ruhr and as far east as Magdeburg.

Five Railroad Centers Hit

Eighth Air Force bombers yesterday hit five railway centers handling urgent supplies from western Germany, at a cost of ten bombers. United States 15th Air Force bombers flew within 20 miles of Russian lines in Hungary and attacked Nazi communications for the third successive day.

British Spitfire bombers hammered rocket installations in Holland from dawn to dusk, refueling in France between assaults.

Dorothea Wieck Killed in Raid; Star of 'Maedchen in Uniform'

Actress, 37, Praised by Hitler, Dies in Dresden; Quit Hollywood in 1934

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—The German official news agency, D. N. B., said today that the German film actress Dorothea Wieck, who once won a personal compliment from Adolf Hitler, was killed in the recent Allied air raid on Dresden.

She was known to American film audiences for her role in the German picture "Maedchen in Uniform." She went to Hollywood after that production but returned to her native land in 1934, saying she was disappointed in the roles assigned to her at Hollywood.

Hitler, at a reception given by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels at which the actress was a guest, told her he had admired her many times on the screen and later he summoned the actress to his table at the reception.

Joined Paramount in 1933

Dorothea Wieck's portrayal of the sympathetic young school teacher in "Maedchen in Uniform" brought her wide critical acclaim in this country and abroad, and she was signed to a contract by the Paramount Company in 1933, a year after the German film was released here.

Upon her arrival here in April, 1933, she went immediately to Hollywood, where she was first cast in a movie titled "White Woman." Three months later she walked off the set of the picture, announcing that the role did not suit her. She was then assigned to "Cradle Song," which was released in November of that year. In "Cradle Song," she appeared as a young nun in a Spanish convent, who brings up an orphaned baby girl. Agai she won critical praise for her performance.

However, Miss Wieck continued to be dissatisfied with roles assigned her and only one other picture, "Miss Fane's Baby Is Stolen," was completed. She announced that she was leaving Hollywood for Berlin in March, 1934.

Born in January, 1908, in Davos, Switzerland, Miss Wieck was descended from Friedrick Wieck, Viennese music teacher, whose daughter was the wife of Schumann, the composer. After studying acting in Munich, she appeared with the Max Reinhardt Company in Vienna and in other stage and motion picture productions in Germany and Austria. She was married to Baron Ernst von der Decken in 1932. While the baron was visiting her in Hollywood, Miss Wieck found it necessary publicly to deny rumors that her husband was a power in the Nazi party.

Jeep Beats Nazi Car To B-17 Crew

London, March 10 (AP)—Five members of a Flying Fortress crew recently missed capture by seconds because an infantryman got there first with a jeep.

They crash-landed their flak-torn bomber in the middle of no-man's land northeast of Strasbourg. A jeep came tearing from the American lines and a German military car came racing from the opposite direction, but the jeep got there first.

"We had only a faint idea of where we were," said the pilot, Lieut. Earl D. Greenstreet, Kankakee, Ill., "and as we climbed out of the smashed plane we heard a lot of shooting and looked around.

"In the distance two motor vehicles were racing toward the plane. One came from the west and one from the east. The jeep from the west looked like it was going to take off.

"'Get the hell aboard in a hurry,' an infantryman yelled at us as the jeep skidded up tous. We lost no time.

"The jeep shot away like a scared rabbit and scattered rifle fire whistled around us. I looked back and saw a load of Germans pull up to the plane. By that time we really were rolling and got back to a first-aid station, where we waited forthe rest of the crew to be rounded up."

Soviet-Vatican Pact Reported Sought by U. S.

Papal Quarters Are Quoted as Pointing to Possibility of Friendly Relationship

LONDON, March 10 (AP).—The Rome radio, quoting what it said were Vatican City reports, said today that Vatican circles had authoritatively confirmed there have been American attempts to bring about a rapprochment between Russia and the Vatican.

The broadcast said Vatican circles pointed out that it is possible an agreement between the Vatican and Russia may be reached. Later, Rome radio said, this agreement could be strengthened to a concordat between the Holy See and Russia.

Political Role Criticized

MOSCOW, March 10 (AP).—"Izvestia," government newspaper, said today that "prominent members of the Catholic Church" sought to interfere in matters outside their jurisdiction in an effort "to mend their crumbling affairs by means of certain political combinations."

An article signed by B. Ilyin said: "When one hears the voices in numerous countries of individual Catholic functionaries blending in a melodious chorus, according to the rules of counterpoint, one asks one's self—who is the conductor?"

Ilyin attacked the Most Rev. Bernard Griffin, Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, for his advice to the Poles. (He told the Anglo-Polish Catholic Association in England, March 5: "Soviet Russia has done you a grievous wrong. But surely the greater the wrong, the greater the grounds for forgiveness. I appeal to you in the name of your great Christian traditions to give the Soviet Union a chance to redeem itself.")

Ilyin said the Catholic press in the United States had conducted a campaign against the bombing of Germany on the ground it showed another concession to the Soviet Union.

Norway Floats A Loan

London, March 10 (AP)—The Norwegian Government in exile announced tonight that the Bank of Norway had arranged with eleven New York banks for $16,000,000 credit to facilitate financing of essential Norwegian industries and trade after the war.

V-Bomb Hits Crowded Market, Toll Is Heavy

London, March 10 (AP)—A V-bomb which crashed recently on a crowded market in southern England took a heavy toll, it was revealed today. Additional damage and casualties were inflicted in southern England during the period from dawn yesterday until 7 o'clock this morning.

Immediately after the V-bomb hit the market, fire broke out, hampering rescuers. Acetylene torches and mobile cranes were needed to get through the tangled mass of steel girders and broken timber.

G2 Depot Five Takes Cage Title

London, March 10 (A. P.).—Led by T/Sergt. Bill Podany of Hazleton, Pa., and Pfc. Don Stitt of Portland, Ore., the G2 Depot team won the United Kingdom G. I. basketball tourney last night by beating the First Base Air Depot, 49 to 42. Podany and Stitt each scored 10 points.

Behind from the start and lagging by three points starting the last period, the G2 quintet spurted into the lead with six minutes left and won going away over their taller opponents.

Pfc. Bob Powell of Topeka, Kan., led the Air Depot with 11 points.

S/Sergt. Leo Mogus of Youngstown, Ohio, center on the 826th Convalescent team, received a trophy as the outstanding player of the tourney.

Belgium Freed Of Nazis: Monty

London, March 10 (AP)—Field Marshal Sir Bernard L. Montgomery told the people of Brussels in a broadcast today that no Germans remained on Belgian soil and "never will they return—never, never."

The commander of the Allied 21st Army Group, speaking at a front military ceremony which was recorded here, said that "if ever a nation brought misery to millions of good people, it was the German nation."

"She now is paying the full price of her tyranny," the commander said. "There is not the slightest doubt that final victory is assured. The only point which is still in doubt is to know exactly when."

French Assembly Asks Security Commitment

Paris, March 10 (AP)—The Consultative Assembly's foreign affairs committee demanded today that the French delegation to the San Francisco conference be committed completely to the principle of collective security in accord with the major Allies.

The assemblymen and Foreign Minister Georges Bidault argued at a closed meeting over France's refusal to become a San Francisco sponsor. Bidault said France preferred to be invited so as to have a free hand in offering amendments to proposed security measures. Vincent Auriol, committee chairman, disputed Bidault's thesis, arguing that Britain, one of the sponsors, intended to propose certain amendments.

Canadian Corvette Sinks Nazi Sub

London, March 10 (A. P.).—The Canadian corvette St. Thomas sank a German submarine lurking along the route of a recent Atlantic convoy, it was announced today.

Russians Sink 20,000 Tons

LONDON, March 10 (AP)—Aircraft of the Russian Baltic Fleet have sunk three German transports totaling 20,000 tons, a patrol ship and a high-speed landing barge in a raid of the port of Pillau, the Moscow radio reported tonight.

French Envoy to Australia

PARIS, March 10 (AP)—The French Foreign Office announced today the opening of separate diplomatic relations with Australia. Pierre Auge, chief of a regional resistance group, will be the Minister to Canberra; Australia designated Col. William Hodgson, former Cabinet member, as her envoy here. Gen. Charles de Gaulle received the credentials of Ministers Eric Boheman of Sweden, Auguste de Castro of Portugal and Mme. Adnhn Bey Adassy of Syria.

YANKS EXPLOIT ITALIAN GAIN

5th Army Pushes Up On Two Sides Of Vergato

Rome, March 10 (AP)—The United States 5th Army put a new clamp on the German stronghold at Vergato on Highway 64 leading to Bologna today, but the long Italian front through the Apennines remained generally quiet.

The Americans who have fought a long, brutal and costly campaign in Italy were fired with a new optimism by news of the Allied Rhine bridgehead, and there was a general feeling in Rome that the long-awaited break was close.

Meanwhile, the dangerous and monotonous patrolling of rugged mountain country south of Bologna continued with clashes that cost both sides casualties.

Find Ammunition Cache

One Allied patrol north of recently captured Monte Della Tarraccia found no enemies, but discovered caches of German artillery, mortar ammunition and guns.

The advance on Vergato was made by Americans exploiting yesterday's capture of Carviano. They pushed along the banks of the Reno River to within a mile of the town from both sides.

British 8th Army patrols met stiff opposition and had to retire after moving up the spit of land separating the Adriatic from the Valli de Comacchio at the extreme eastern end of the Allied line.

Striking at vital German communications in northern Italy, heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force attacked the Paronal rail bridge across the Adige River 3 miles northwest of Verona today.

The American attack followed an assault last night by the RAF on the structure, which carries the Brenner Pass rail line across the river at the foot of the Alps.

Roatta Recapture Denied

Rome, March 10 (AP)—An Italian Government spokesman denied today persistent rumors, some of which were broadcast by the Paris and other European radios, that Gen. Mario Roatta had been recaptured. Roatta escaped while awaiting trial on war-crimes charges.

A Government communiqué said earlier that demonstrators against the escape had fired on an automobile Thursday and killed a male passenger at Andria, near Foggia.

Italy Yanks Near Nazi Stronghold

Rome, March 10 (AP)—American 5th Army troops, closing in on the Nazi stronghold of Vergato southwest of Bologna, pushed to within a mile of the town from both sides today in gains along the banks of the Reno River.

Quickly exploiting yesterday's capture of Carviano, the Americans moved north a mile to Sabbioni and got control of all the dominating high ground on the Reno east bank as far as a mile north of Vergato, which has been holding out four months.

Penetrate Village

On the west side of the river the doughboys occupied high ground overlooking the town of Africa, 1 mile west of Vergato, and patrols stabbed into the village itself.

Farther west, beyond the Bologna-Pistoia highway, troops of the United States 10th Mountain Division fanned out north of captured Monte Torraccia, but encountered little resistance.

Eighth Army patrols penetrating deeper up the spit of land separating the Adriatic from the Valli de Comacchio on the extreme east sector of the Italian front, bumped into strong enemy positions and had to retire.

U.S. Bombers Raid Brenner Line Bridge

Rome, March 10 (AP)—Striking at German communications in northern Italy, heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force attacked the Paronal rail bridge across the Adige River 3 miles northwest of Verona today.

The American attack followed an assault on the structure last night by the RAF. The bridge carries the Brenner Pass rail line across the river at the foot of the Alps.

It last was hit February 28, but it had been repaired.

American-flown Thunderbolts of the United States 12th Air Force, meanwhile, pounded rail targets in northwest Yugoslavia and southern Austria for the fourth consecutive day.

Mitchell medium bombers attacked the Brenner line while fighter-bombers of the Desert Air Force attacked ammunition dumps in northeast Italy. One dump east of Milan was hit twelve times.

The Verona-Vicenza rail line was cut in seven places by a formation of Thunderbolts. Fifteen miles west of Vicenza 75 feet of track were knocked out.

Pope Pius To Address Christian Labor Group

Vatican City, March 10 (AP)—Pope Pius XII will address 5,000 members of the Italian Christian Labor organizations in Rome tomorrow.

The Pontiff also is preparing an address for delivery March 18 from a Vatican balcony to people of the Rome diocese at the conclusion of pentience exercises which have been taking place in the Roman parishes.

Pontiff's Confessor Ill

ROME, March 10 (AP)—Pope Pius XII's confessor, the Rev. August Merk, 76 years old, is gravely ill. The Jesuit priest, Professor of New Testament at Rome's Pontifical Biblical Institute, became the Pope's confessor two years ago.

30,000 Italians Freed to Fight

ROME, March 10 (AP).—The Italian government disclosed today that 30,000 Italian troops held in American and British prisoner of war camps in southern Italy had been released and absorbed into the new Italian army, some units of which are fighting alongside the Allies against the Germans.

Relief Program Signed With Italy

Rome, March 10 (A. P.).—The Italian Government and the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration signed an agreement yesterday for a $55,000,000 relief program through which refugees, mothers and children will receive medical aid and supplies.

Reports Of Roatta's Arrest Denied In Rome

Rome, March 10 (AP)—An Italian Government spokesman denied today persistent rumors, some of which were broadcast by the Paris and other European radios, that Gen. Mario Roatta had been recaptured. Roatta escaped while awaiting trial on war crimes charges.

A Government communiqué said earlier that demonstrators against the escape had fired on an automobile Thursday and killed a male passenger at Andria, near Foggia.

Rome, March 10 (A. P.).—Twenty-nine members of a clandestine Fascist organization have been arrested in Rome in a two-day roundup by Allied and Italian police, Brig.-Gen. Thoburn K. Brown, Allied commander in the Rome area, announced today.

TRANSYLVANIA IS RESTORED

Romanian Premier Notified Of Action By Stalin

Moscow, March 10 (AP)—Northern Transylvania, Hungary's share of Hitler's Balkan loot, has been restored to Romania.

Marshal Stalin informed Premier Petru Groza of Romania in a letter made public today that under terms of the September 12 armistice the 17,400-square-mile territory was being returned.

The Marshal informed Romania's new Premier that it was his Government's responsibility to keep order, protect minorities, and to see that war-front needs imposed upon Transylvania were met.

Called Sign Of Faith

Soviet newspapers, hailing the transfer as showing Soviet faith in Groza's new regime, declared that sabotage and terrorism in the province under the recent government of Premier Nicolae Radescu had made it impossible to restore the province earlier.

Groza and Gheorge Tatarescu, Foreign Minister, wrote Stalin that "it has been the ardent desire of the Romanian people to see themselves once again within the limits of Transylavnia, part of which was unjustly torn away from them."

"This province," their petition continued, "was liberated, thanks to the heroism of the Red Army, in close co-operation with the Romanian Army, and the Romanian people in northern Transylvania await impatiently the day of their return within the borders of Romania."

Groza Gives Pledge

Groza pledged his Government to "look after the rights of nationalities living there, being guided by the principles of democracy, equality and justice for the entire population" and promised to maintain order.

In reply, Stalin said:

"Taking into consideration the fact that the new Romanian Government, which has assumed the direction of the country, takes upon itself the responsibility for necessary order in the territory of Transylvania and guarantees the right of the nationalities and the proper functioning of all local institutions serving the needs of the front, the Soviet Government has decided to satisfy the petition of the Romanian Government and, in accordance with the armistice agreement of September 12, 1944, to agree to the establishment of an administration of the Romanian government in Transylvania."

Pravda said the Red Army had taken over the area under the Radescu government because the former regime "not only did not halt terroristic sabotage activities" but "shielded them."

"Izvestia," government newspaper, declared Transylvania was still virtually in the front zone, and said the fact that the Russians were turning the area over to the Romanians revealed Soviet trust "in the new Romania, and the Romanian people evaluated the significance of this generosity."

Transylvania, with a total of 40,530 square miles, had been a Balkan sore spot even before the end of the World War, when it was taken from Hungary and ceded to Romania.

senting less than half the entire area, but with ha population of 2,500,000, was returned to Hungary in August, 1940, when Hungary became a Hitler partner.

The population is about 58 per cent Romanian, although there are a million or more Hungarians. The area is rich in minerals, forests, has natural gas and some oil and is a fertile agricultural region.

Romania Given Transylvania Territory

Moscow, March 10 (AP)—Marshal Stalin has informed Premier Petru Groza of Romania that, in accord with the armistice terms of last September 12, northern Transylvania has been returned to Romania from Hungary.

The formal return of the territory awarded Hungary by Hitler was made public today in a disclosure of letters from Groza and his Foregin Minister, George Tatarescu, to Stalin, and the Soviet leader's reply.

Stalin informed Romania it was her responsibility to maintain order and protect minorities in the territory and to see that any war front needs imposed upon Transylvania were met.

The text of the Romanian letter:

"Mister Marshal—After the act of September 23, 1944, by which Romania joined the United Nations in order to wage war against the common enemies, it has been the ardent desire of the Romanian people to see themselves once again within the limits of Transylvania, part of which was unjustly torn away from them.

Thanks To Red Army

"This province was liberated with thanks to the heroism of the Red Army in close co-operation with the Romanian Army, and the Romanian people in northern Transylvania await impatiently the day of their return within the borders of Romania.

"The Romanian Government has the honor to petition the Government of the Soviet Union and to present to the supreme Soviet command a request that this desire of the Romanian people be carried out.

"The Romanian Government proposes, suggests and asserts that the administration it will set up in this province will look after the rights of nationalities living there, being guided by the principles of democracy, equality and justice for the entire population.

Keeping Of Order

"It (the Romanian Government) will also take into consideration maintenance and complete order so that nothing will interfere with the proper functioning of all institutions serving the battlefront.

"The Romanian Government hopes its petition will be met with sympathy and a favorable decision on part of the Soviet Government and the supreme command."

Marshal Stalin's reply:

"Mr. President—The Soviet Government has considered the request of the Romanian Government set forth in your letter of February 8 regarding the establishment of a Romanian administration on the territory of Transylvania.

Responsibility For Territory

"Taking into consideration the fact that the new Romanian Government which has assumed the direction of the country takes upon itself the responsibility for necessary order in the territory of Transylvania and guarantees the rights of the nationalities and the proper functioning of all local institutions serving the needs of the front, the Soviet Government has decided to satisfy the petition of the Romanian Government and, in accordance with the armistice agreement of September 12, 1944, to agree to the establishment of an administration of the Romanian Government in Transylvania.

"STALIN."

Nazis Ban Danish Paper

STOCKHOLM, March 10 (AP).—The Danish newspaper "Bornholms Avis" has been banned by the Nazis. It printed Kipling's line, "Come ye back, you British soldier, come ye back to Mandalay" over a D. N. B. announcement of the British entry into Mandalay.

Mandalay Foe Stiffens; Allies Get Half of City

Japanese Sniper Parties Destroyed Along Supply Lines; British 5 Miles Off

SOUTHEAST ASIA COMMAND Advanced Headquarters, March 10 (AP).—Half of the city of Mandalay, including its northern and eastern sectors, was in Allied hands today as the 19th Indian Division continued attacks on Japanese defenses in the center of the town.

Resistance increased as the enemy apparently recovered from the surprise achieved by the 19th in its southward plunge from Madaya, but it was not clear whether the Japanese action was merely a rear-guard fight to cover a retreat or whether the enemy intended to make a house-to-house fight for Mandalay.

Mandalay Hill, dominating the city on the east, was completely cleared of Japanese after sharp and bitter fighting. Disorganized parties of Japanese north and east of the city were being annihilated. These groups have been operating as snipers on the flanks of supply columns, but have not been effective in retarding Allied operations.

British Close on Mongmit

Northeast of Mandalay, elements of the 36th British Division closed in on Mongmit, an important road junction south of the Shweli River, the closest column being five miles from the town.

At Rangoon and Prome, supply dumps were raided by B-24s of the Strategic Air Force, but results were uncertain because of adverse weather. Planes of the United States 10th Air Force and British formations continued to support the Meiktila and Mandalay operations.

Heho and Toungoo airfields were hit and damaged in routine raids aimed at denying the Japanese use of the fields. Not a single enemy plane has been reported in the air over central Burma in the last twenty-four hours.

Key Point Falls In Mandalay

Calcutta, March 10 (AP)—Troops of the 19th Indian Division have captured Mandalay Hill, key defense feature at the northeast corner of Fort Dufferin, Mandalay's inner city, and other forces are closing in from the north on the Japanese garrison of 50,000, headquarters announced today.

Hand-to-hand fighting was raging in three sections of the city, which has a normal population of 135,000 and is Burma's second largest.

Advances On East Bank

A communiqué said the 2d and 20th Indian Divisions, driving toward Mandalay along the east bank of the Irrawaddy 30 miles from the city, occupied two more villages yesterday in the wake of an air attack.

In the Irrawaddy bridgehead west of Mandalay progress was made against stern opposition, headquarters said.

Meanwhile, heavy bombers of the Eastern Air Command made a heavy attack on Rangoon, Burma's capital and chief port.

Kuala Lumpur B-29 Target

A B-29 Base in India, March 10 (AP)—About 40 Superfortresses, making a round trip of about 3,500 miles, bombed the strategically vital Kuala Lumpur railroad yards on the Malaya Peninsula today.

"Generally excellent" results were announced by Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey, commander of the 20th Bomber Command.

The weather favored the Superfortresses, which had also attacked Kuala Lumpur on February 19, when its railway repair shops were obliberated by precision bombing.

Pilots reported that the Japanese offered considerable fighter opposition today.

[A Washington announcement of the raid said all of the B-29's returned safely. One of the Jap fighters was reported probably shot down.]

The Kuala Lumpur yards are one of the focal points of the Jauanese rail-supply system through which passes much of the tin, rubber and coal produced in Malaya.

Burma Yanks Get Manna From Heaven

Assam, India, March 10 (AP)—Burlap-wrapped ration packs are being dropped to soldiers of the Mars force in the forward area of the Northern Combat Area Command in Burma.

The Air Supply Service has found that enough fruit juice, milk, coffee, sugar, vitamins, cigarettes and other articles for one soldier for three or four days can be dropped at one time. Convalescent hospital patients help pack the rations.

Andaman Islands Shelled

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10 (AP)—Four destroyers shelled the northern Andaman Islands in the Bay of Bengal yesterday, the Tokyo radio reported today in a broadcast heard by the Blue Network. The British East Indian Fleet operates in these waters.

Foe Attacks Near Swatow

CHUNGKING, China, March 10 (AP)—The Japanese have opened an offensive against Chinese forces near the China coast about twenty-five miles northeast of the former treaty port of Swatow, the Chinese High Command announced tonight.

Battles were reported in progress five miles beyond Kityang, which is approximately twenty-three miles inland and upriver from Swatow, which the Japanese captured in 1938.

In Kiangsi Province Chinese troops met determined enemy resistance as they continued to attack Suichwan, one of the air base cities formerly used by the United States Fourteenth Air Force. Observers said the main value of the Chinese operations was in preventing the Japanese from using the air base, which fell to them early last month.

Fight for Swatow Rages.

Chungking, March 10 (A. P.).—The Chinese High Command announced tonight that fresh fighting had broken out in the East China coastal region with Japanese attacks against the former treaty port of Swatow. Fighting was said to be in progress about twenty - three miles inland from Swatow.

Chinese Report on Casualties

CHUNGKING, March 10 (AP).—Chinese casualties on the Yunnan-Burma front from Oct. 31, 1943, through Feb. 28, 1945, totaled 85,420, an army spokesman said today. Of the total 31,602 were killed, 49,731 wounded and 4,087 missing.

AMERICAN PLANES BLAST MINDANAO

MacArthur Silent on Invasion, Yanks Advance on Luzon.

MANILA, Sunday, March 11.—(AP) Hard-hitting Americans scored gains on mountainous battlefronts east and south of Manila while their airforce dealt heavy blows southward against Mindanao island and northward against strategic Balete pass on Luzon headquarters disclosed today.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's report ed a strong force of Liberators dropped 300 tons on Zamboanga, on Mindanao island, Thursday and Friday. It was the heaviest strike yet in that area, which the Japanese said was invaded Friday.

Elements of the First Cavalry, Liberators of Santo Tomas, thrust into Antipolo in the foothills 13 miles east of Manila against surprisingly light resistance.

A headquarters spokesman said the town was not fully secured.

Antipolo is the southern anchor of the strongly defended Shimbu line which the Sixth division to the north breached in a major push after prolonged and bloody fighting during the past three days. The Sixth gained approximately one mile from its position attained Saturday.

Fifty miles south of Manila the 158th regimental combat group made a nine mile gain against long range machine gun and rifle fire to secure the road net between Lake Taal and Batangas bay, southeast of Manila.

Rough terrain and the enemy defenses in the mountains are providing stiff opposition for the 25th and 32nd divisions to the north. More than one hundred supporting Liberators bombed installations at Balete pass, the entrance to Cagayan valley.

MacArthur again ignored Tokyo radio reports that American forces have landed at Zamboanga, key city on the southwest coast of Mindanao island.

For the second successive day he reported heavy bombing attacks on Zamboanga. Heavy bombers of Lt. Gen. George C. Kenney's Far Eastern command unloaded 300 tons of bombs to shatter defense points and supply depots. A bridge also was hit.

Fighter-bombers also struck Cotabato on Mindanao across the Moro gulf from Zamboanga.

Fliers reported large fires in fuel dumps were started at Zamboanga. One U. S. plane was lost in the attack.

At the same time Kenney's flyers continued hammering attacks on Borneo, striking Maggar airdrome at Balikpapan. A 2000-ton Japanese freighter was "effectively" attacked to the south.

U. S. airmen also supported ground activity on Luzon, ohe flight strafing and bombing Aparri airfield.

Indicative of the deadly effectiveness of our concentrated bombing and artillery fire was the discovery of 900 Japanese bodies in one sector of the Zambales foothills, the communique reported.

Shimbu Line Caves Being Sealed Off

Manila, March 10 (AP)—Silent on Japanese reports that big Mindanao Island has been invaded, Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today that several thousand Nipponese have been sealed up and suffocated in caves east of Manila by Yanks operating with phosphorous grenades, flamethrowers and demolition charges.

MacArthur's communiqué reported a second straight air attack with more than 100 tons of bombs on Zamboanga, Mindanao's biggest city on the southwest coast. But he offered no comment on enemy reports that troops landed there Friday under the guns of two bombarding task forces.

Tokyo Reports Fighting

[Tokyo radio said today that American troops from a naval task force landed at Zamboanga Friday and that "violent fighting is in progress at present."

[The broadcast, recorded at San Francisco, said the landing was preceded by a bombardment from naval guns. Mindanao is the second largest of the Philippine group.

[Tokyo said the invading troops were accompanied by tanks, and that United States aircraft participated in the invasion. The Japs, also said the United States force appeared off Zamboanga Thursday but did not attempt a landing until yesterday (Friday).]

Past First Line

The successes of the Yanks east of Manila carried them past the first line of a maze of caves and tunnels known as the Shimbu Line, the most heavily fortified defenses encountered on Luzon.

Estimates of "several thousand" dead Japanese there probably pushed the foe's casualties on Luzon to around 100,000.

The forces of Lieut. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita had laid careful plans to exact a fearful toll of Yanks in a frontal assault on the Shimbu Line.

MacArthur said this plan had been foiled by a systematic attack which doomed the Japanese to die in the caves "without taking any compensating toll from our troops."

First American artillery and plane attacks drove the Japanese into the depths. They were kept there by flame throwers and white phosphorous hand grenades. Thus covered, demolition squads planted explosives which sealed off the four or five lateral tunnels leading from each underground compartment. The ten-foot vertical shafts were closed with explosives.

One brigade of the First Cavalry Division in a forty-eight-hour period accounted for 137 caves and 446 outlets.

Japs Charge Hill Ten Times; All Massacred

By Richard Bergholz

At 6th Division Observation Post, Luzon, March 10 (AP)—"These Japs will do the damndest things when they pull off a banzai charge," a big infantry captain whose men have beaten off Japanese attacks for ten successive nights said today.

"We've stopped trying to figure them out," added Capt. Albert de Charlerois, of Monsey, N.Y. His infantry company has been sitting atop Hill 200 for eleven days. The hill was an important bastion in the heavily fortified Shimbu Line east of Manila and the Japanese want it back. They charged up its slopes every night except last night.

"Sheer Suicide"

"They haven't got a chance in the world of driving us off this hill with the tactics they use," De Charlerois said. "Look down there."

He pointed down steep slopes covered only with grass and low brush and went on, "In order to get to us they've got to come up the slippery, barren hill with us looking right down their throats.

"It's sheer suicide. The only way they might do it would be to pound us to pieces by artillery and rocket fire but they don't seem to have the stuff to do it.

Termed Massacre

"They come scrambling up the hill, climbing over each other, right smack into our fire. It's a massacre.

"In the second place the Japs aren't clever or smart in their attacks. For instance, we can always tell when an attack is coming. We hear the Japs start climbing out of caves and tunnels below us. Then they start flashing their little signal lights which apparently they use to get their attack organized.

Smell Them Coming

"Usually we can smell them coming. That's right—actually smell them. They've been living in caves so long that when they come out in the open that stench floats up to us and we know another little shooting match is coming up.

"So pretty soon we hear officers giving the Nips a little pep talk and of firing away. Most of them keep shouting all the time. It doesn't make sense, but we've seen it happen time after time.

Some Close Calls

"Our boys are sort of getting used to these banzai attacks. I guess you can't say we like them—nobody will ever like them—but we've learned it's a lot easier to kill Japs when they come to us in a clear field of fire than if we have to go get them."

There have been some close calls, as the night when 200 Japanese charged up the hill. A few penetrated first-line foxholes and kept going until they were killed. Two doughboys were wounded, none killed. Sixty-two Japanese dead lay in front of the foxholes.

BROOKLYN CARVER MADE VICTORY MAP

With the Twenty-fourth Infantry (Victory) Division in the Philippines (A. P.).—How a wood carver from Brooklyn used his patiently developed professional skill to materially aid the success of the Philippines invasion was revealed with the award of the Bronze Star to Private Carmelo S. Giacomazzo of 208 Stone avenue, Brooklyn.

A week before Private Giacomazzo's slugging Thirty-fourth Infantry Regiment embarked upon a decisive stage of the Philippines invasion, the former wood carver volunteered to fashion a detailed relief map of the difficult terrain beyond the invasion beaches. Higher headquarters had declared such construction impossible. But the soldier went to work, undaunted.

With papier-mache and plaster of paris, working from aerial photographs and inaccurate older maps, the Broolynite sweated through five days and nights. Then he called his superiors.

The officials studied the terrain model and then called the non-commissioned officers of the invasion force. The sergeants called in the men. All of them studied the model of the rugged area to be invaded.

Private Giacomazzo reaped the greatest triumph of his life when the invasion became a thundering success and officers pronounced his relief map as enormously helpful and most exact in every detail.

BATTLE END ON ISLE SAID TO BE NEAR

Main Group Of Enemy Pinned Into Area Half-Mile Square

Fleet Headquarters, Guam Sunday, March 11 (AP)—Overwhelming American superiority brought "the beginning of the end" on Iwo Saturday afternoon, with advancing Marines cutting the sharply reduced Japanese garrisons into three parts for the kill. The enemy's power to resist is crumbling.

The largest portion of the foe is in a half-mile-square area at Kitano Point, northernmost tip of the island.

4th Makes Big Gains

A communiqué today reported that the 4th Marine Division, which had been held back for days on the right flank, made big gains by 6 P.M. yesterday with patrols reaching the beach at Tachiwa Point, easternmost point of the 8-square-mile island.

That point is almost due east of Motoyama town but well south of points where the 3d Marine Division has spilled out onto the north east beaches.

The 4th apparently overran the village of Higashi just west of Tachiwa Point. Higashi is the Japanese word for east.

Below the Japanese half-mile pocket on Kitano Point, the 3d Marine Division holds or controls about 1,400 yards of the northeast shoreline.

Small Pocket On East Shore

Compressed by the 4th Division and some 3d Division troops along the eastern shore is a small pocket, perhaps 500 yards long, reaching 200 yards inland.

Just south of that, a larger pocket is 1,200 yards long and extends 300 yards inland.

The 4th Division, in order to reach Higashi, had to move over some of the worst enemy-held terrain.

Kitano Point, however, will be another hard nut to crack.

Gains All Along Sector

It had been Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates's 4th Division which was slowed up for long as Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's 3d Division in the center reached the northeast beaches and Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th advanced up the west side.

Today's communique said the 4th, which is fighting up Iwo's "bulge," made substantial advances all along its left flank sector.

The report of decreasing resistance suggested what staff officers have predicted—that it is the "beginning of the end" of the bloodiest, toughest fight of the Pacific war, now in its twenty-first day.

Still Shelled By Ships

Although the narrow warring front on the rocky north tip made pinpoint accuracy essential, warships still shelled the Japanese. Army planes based on Iwo's southern airfield, and carrier planes of the United States 5th Fleet, covered the advances.

But the remnants of a Japanese garrison estimated at 20,000 when the Marine invasion started 21 days ago still fought and made strong attempts to infiltrate American foxhole lines.

The 4th Division killed 564 Japanese while repulsing an infiltration attack supported by mortar and sniper fire Thursday night.

The attack was no wild banzai charge, but was a well organized effort by about 750 Japanese to sneak through American lines perhaps to destroy supply dumps or airfield installations in the rear. Some of the enemy soldiers carried demolition charges.

But Marine sentries discovered the enemy in time for quick action. While flares lighted the battlefield the Leathernecks cut down the Nipponese with grenades, machine gun and rifle fire.

Marines Smash To Northeast Iwo Beach

Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 10 (AP)—Elements of the 3d Marine Division have driven forward against "very stiff" enemy resistance to reach the northeast beaches of Iwo Island, splitting enemy forces which continue to hold strong points tenaciously, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

The drive for the beaches was completed yesterday afternoon by the Marines and the area widened in fighting up to noon today. Heavy artillery preparation softened up enemy positions for the attack while fleet units and Iwo-based aircraft gave support during the drive.

Infiltration Balked

Fourth Division Marines on the right of the American lines had previously repulsed large-scale infiltration attempts by the Japanese, killing 564 of the enemy while fighting off an enemy attack which was supported by very heavy mortar and sniper fire. "Resistance appeared to be diminishing, although the enemy was holding prepared strongpoints tenaciously and snipers were active," Nimitz reported.

The 5th Division on the northwestern beach is apparently now within 1,100 yards of Kitano Point, Iwo's northern tip.

The 3d Division breakthrough was about 2,000 yards from Kitano.

Jap Planes Retire

A small group of enemy aircraft approached the American positions early yesterday morning but retired without attacking. The Tokyo radio yesterday said the attackers had "heavily hit" the Americans.

Today's communiqué was the first since Friday.

The communiqué covered action through Thursday. A delayed front-line dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent James Lindsley described enemy rocket attacks Thursday night and an abortive Banzai charge easily repulsed by the Leathernecks early Friday.

Foe Using Knives

A dog-tired group of grimy, bearded Marines told Lindsley the "downright savagery of the fighting the past two days (they referred to Wednesday and Thursday) has not been equaled on Iwo Jima."

As the devildogs neared the sea on the north, the Japanese were being forced to come out and battle with grenades, small arms and knives.

The Marine staff officers noted increased activity by the enemy and welcomed it as perhaps signalling "the beginning of the end."

Draft Board To Raise AP Man's Classification

San Francisco, March 10 (AP)—Joe Rosenthal, Associated Press photographer, whose picture of the Marines in Iwo Jima raising the flag atop Suribachi is considered by many to be the outstanding picture of the Pacific war, may now get out of the 4-F draft classification.

It was poor eyesight that kept the 32-year-old photographer out of the armed forces. Now his draft board has sent word that his classification may be raised to 2-A (F) for men individually essential in an industry supporting the war effort.

The board volunteered this comment: "A registrant doing the work . . . this man is doing is deserving of better than a 4-F classification."

Secretary's Son Wounded On Iwo

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Second Lieutenant Raymond Wilmarth Ickes, United States Marine Corps, son of Secretary Ickes, was wounded at Iwo Jima March 7, it was learned today.

The Navy, upon inquiry, confirmed that he was wounded in the chest.

His wife, Mrs. Miralotta L. Ickes, lives at 8447 Woodcliff court, Silver Spring, Md.

Born June 23, 1912, at Evanston, Ill., young Ickes joined the Marine Corps as an enlisted man May 27, 1943. He was commissioned February 9, 1944, and went overseas with a replacement battalion in June, 1944.

Argentina May End Diplomatic Isolation

Buenos Aires, March 10 (AP)—Argentine Government officials indicated today they would take the opportunity offered in the inter-American declaration at Mexico City to end Argentine's diplomatic isolation.

However, some observers express belief that the administration of President Edelmiro Farrell faces a test in demonstrating its capacity of making a sudden, radical change in foreign policy.

Col. Juan Peron, Minister of War and Vice President, said Argentina would enter "a pre-electoral" period when the statue of political parties was fully approved. The statute is understood to be nearly completed. But Peron gave no dates.

Hostile Mob Traps Ecuador Delegates

Quito, Ecuador, March 10 (A. P.).—Delegates to Ecuador's constitutional convention were virtually trapped in the assembly hall last night by a hostile crowd which gathered outside as political tension mounted in the city.

Shots rang out inside the hall, but none was hurt, during discussion of an amnesty for political prisoners of the previous Ecuadorean regime.

ITEM ON MRS. LUCE STIRS CENSOR'S IRE

Bermuda, March 10 (A. P.).—The British Colonial Government has imposed a severe censorship on the Midocean News, declaring that the newspaper violated emergency security regulations in connection with the presence here of Clare Boothe Luce while the Republican Congresswoman was en route to Europe.

The News had criticized the Government's muzzling of the press on Mrs. Luce's presence in an editorial written by John R. Higgins, new American editor who was on his first day on his job. The editorial, referring to Mrs. Luce only as a very well known Republican Congresswoman, objected to the Government's refusal to explain why her presence was considered a security matter.

French Resist Japs In Indo-China

New York, March 10 (AP)—The Japanese news agency Domei said today in a Tokyo broadcast that "some French troops are still putting up resistance" in Indo-China after Japanese occupation forces, in a quick move last night, took over the full administration of the French colony.

The broadcast, recorded here by FCC monitors, said the French soldiers were barricaded in the citadel barracks at Hanoi.

In Chungking, Chinese quarters estimated the French garrison in Indo-China at 10,000 officers and men and said that a well-organized native underground was waiting for the proper time to strike the Japanese.

Thailand Affected

Domei

MAR 11 1945

MAR 11 1945 21799 30-24—23799

Domei said that in addition to seizing full control of French Indo-China, the Japanese had forced the government of neighboring Thailand to accept a three-point program, including pledges to seize and disarm all Frenchmen escaping across the border and to increase the flow of supplies to Japanese forces in Indo-China.

In announcing that the Japanese had assumed full control in the French colony, Tokyo accused the French of trying secretly to join hands with the Allies.

The broadcast charged French officials had co-operated with the United States air forces and American submarines and declared that American planes had dropped supplies to French forces.

The broadcast said French forces had failed to fire on American raiders and instead "they sheltered and accorded the best treatment to enemy airmen who baled out after their planes had been shot down by Japanese forces."

In a later broadcast reported by the OWI, the Domei agency said Vice-Admiral Jean Decoux, Governor-General of French Indo-China, was being held in protective custody.

The agency said key facilities were seized "in a blitz move" beginning yesterday at 10:40 P. M. and lasting until midnight. The only resistance occurred at Saigon, the broadcast said, where troops and the armed police finally "surrendered their arms in compliance with our army's demand."

Chennault Predicts Invasion Of Japan

New York, March 10 (AP)—Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault, commander of the United States 14th Air Force in China, said in a statement prepared for a Blue Network broadcast today that he could foresee no way in which the Japanese might prevent Allied landings on the home islands of Japan.

His statement, together with one from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, were made on the second anniversary of the 14th Air Force and broadcast from Chungking.

Claims Air Superiority

"I think I can say now that we enjoy air superiority over all of occupied China," Chennault said. "The Japanese . . . now are attempting to dig themselves in for a last stand in China, Manchuria and Korea, as well as their own islands.

"I can see no way they can avoid Allied landings in Japan. . . ."

The generalissimo extended "warmest congratulations and heartfelt gratitude for the magnificent part" the 14th has played and will continue to play "in the final defeat of our common Japanese enemy."

Havana, March 10 (AP)—Secretary of State Stettinius left on an Army transport plane for Washington today with members of his party, returning from the Yalta conference.

U.S. Combat Units And Commanders In The Various Theaters Of War

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Seventy-eight or more American army divisions have been identified as in combat against the Germans and the Japanese.

Fifty-one of these are deployed on the Western front, 20 in the Pacific and 7 in the Mediterranean theater. Obviously, more divisions are in all those areas, but have not been named.

A list of the identified divisions and the army groups, armies and corps of which they are a part, together with their commanders (in some cases commanders have not been identified):

Austrian Freedom Near, Grew Hints

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Joseph C. Grew, Acting Secretary of State, hinted today that the beginning of the liberation of Austria may be very near. He issued an appeal for the people of that Nazi-conquered country to join in the campaign for their own freedom.

The appeal was in a statement which Grew issued on the anniversary of the beginning of Hitler's "conquest of Europe" with the invasion of Austria on March 11, 1938.

Grew cited the Big Three declaration at Moscow in November, 1943, in which Austria was told that she had a responsibility to join in the fight against Hitler's Germany and "that in the final settlement account will inevitably be taken of her own contribution to her liberation."

"Crucial Period" Imminent

"It is the sincere desire of this Government to see re-established a free and independent Austria," Grew declared today, "in which the Austrian people themselves can guide their own destiny in harmony with the other peoples of the world seeking peace, security and well-being.

"This cannot be accomplished solely through the efforts of the outside world, but only if the Austrian people themselves are imbued with that ideal, and themselves strive for its realization.

"A crucial period, in which heavy responsibilities toward that end will rest upon Austrian patriotism, lies immediately before us."

WAR WON'T END WITH V-E DAY

Military Chiefs Fear Letdown

After Germany's Fall

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Surprised and cheered though they are by the unexpected crossing of the Rhine, American military leaders are approaching the end of the war in Europe with an attitude of apprehension.

For weeks they have been searching for some way to get these truths across to the American people:

1. There will be relatively few discharges; how many remains to be determined.

2. There will be some furloughs for men en route from Europe to the Pacific, but here again the number is uncertain.

3. And for untold hundreds of thousands there will be the swiftest possible direct transfer from the battlefields of Germany to the island approaches to Japan.

In general, it is planned as far as possible to give actual combat troops a few weeks at home before they go after Japan.

Dread Of War Weariness

The dread of the military leaders lies in their assumption that a kind of war weariness may set in after the first outburst of joy over victory in Europe.

It probably will take half a year to get those millions of men from Europe to the Pacific with adequate arms and supplies. There may be a period of relative quiet—although the commanders will prevent that if they can—in which people may begin to clamor for the return of troops to the United States.

In this would lie Japan's greatest hope of moderating the effects of her defeat, of gaining a compromise.

The High Price Of Victory

The enemy in the Pacific and Asia remains in a militarily powerful position. American military leaders have been hammering this home for months. What they have had trouble telling is the price which American will have to pay for victory.

The first payment will be continued fighting by the armies now struggling toward victory in Europe. Next, but of equal importance, will be the problem of maintaining war production at little if any below present levels.

Best estimates at the War Department are that the Japanese have 5,000,000 men in China. In time the Chinese could muster a very effective force against them, equipped with American arms and given modern training. But the impression here now is that so much time would be required that it would not be the most effective way to fight the Japanese.

Russia Could Change Picture

Apparently the idea of relying primarily on Chinese manpower has been heavily modified, if not abandoned. That means thousands more of American casualties and more months or years of separation of men from their homes.

The picture could be changed substantially for the better. The greatest change would be for Russia to come into the war against Japan. But if there is any evidence of any commitments by Moscow on this point, it never has become public.

BYRNES LIKELY AS TREATY AIDE

May Put Off Wish To Retire To Help League In Congress

Washington, March 10 (AP)—James F. Byrnes, director of war mobilization, may reconsider his decision to quit when the European war ends and stay on the job until the Senate acts on the projected world security organization, friends said today.

Byrnes tried to resign several months ago. When President Roosevelt persuaded him to stay on, he announced he would remain in office until after the German military collapse. He said he wants to enter private law practice, his profession before he became a member of the House, the Senate and the Supreme Court.

With signs pointing to a possible early termination of European fighting, former legislative colleagues predicted Mr. Roosevelt will ask his No. 1 home-front assistant to keep the Government post and help jockey the league treaty through the Senate.

Appointment Of Vinson

The President's appointment of Fred M. Vinson, the stabilization director, as Federal Loan Administrator lent some weight to this viewpoint.

It had been understood generally in Congress that if Byrnes persisted in leaving, Vinson would be promoted to the War Mobilization post. Whether the President would want to push William H. Davis, the new Stabilization Director, on up the ladder without more experience in his new job was a matter of conjecture.

MAR 11 1945

Friends also pointed to Byrnes's activities since he accompanied the President to the Yalta conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin as further indication that the War Mobilization Director might continue in the Government.

Defense Of Yalta Outcome

Quietly, the dimunitive South Carolinian has been busy since then building fences against an expected attack upon what he regards as the accomplishments of the Big Three meeting.

Byrnes's theme has been that the United States naturally did not get all it wanted at Yalta, but that the Russians and British exhibited what to him was a surprising willingness to compromise.

From long experience in Congress Byrnes knows about compromises. He talks the language of legislators who are confronted almost daily with the necessity for finding a common meeting place for almost wholly divergent views.

Beyond that, he can talk as friend to friend with Administration foes as well as Roosevelt supporters.

Lunch With Wheeler

Present at a recent luncheon when Byrnes took senators behind the scenes of the Yalta meeting was Senator Wheeler (D., Mont.), outstanding critic of the Administration's foreign policies. Wheeler intimated subsequently that Byrnes's report hadn't changed his views, but others said it never hurts to talk thing over in a friendly fashion.

Some credit for the apparently favorable reception of the Yalta report by a majority of members went to Byrnes. Senator Chandler (D., Ky.) said the Administration would feel the loss keenly if Byrnes doesn't stay on.

"So far as relations with Congress are concerned," Chandler declared, "his loss would be almost irreparable. He certainly can help get the world-organization treaty adopted."

Senator Maybank (D., S.C.), a friend of long standing, said Byrnes is keeping his own counsel about future plans, but added:

"I certainly hope he stays."

Lend-Lease Aid To Allies Totals Over 36 Billions

$1,175,000,000 Was Sent in January; Crowley Calls War Role of Agency Vital

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP).—Leo T. Crowley, Foreign Economic Administrator, wrote President Roosevelt today that lend-lease totaled $1,175,000,000 during January, bringing the total aid since the enactment of the law to $36,557,000,000.

The letter, which the White House made public, took note of the fact that tomorrow is the fourth anniversary of the land-lease act.

"The last four years," Mr. Crowley said, "have proved by experience that lend-lease is a vital and valuable instrument in the fighting and winning of this war.

"It has meant the maximum of effectiveness in the mobilization and use of the combined resources in men, materials and facilities of the United Nations.

"By bringing us more closely and more quickly to military success, lend-lease have saved untold thousands of our own as well as Allied young men and women whose lives remain in danger as long as the war continues."

Mr. Crowley reported that through January the Lend-Lease Administration had transferred abroad finished munitions valued at $18,542,000,000; war production and other industrial materials valued at $7,030,000,000; petroleum products worth $1,652,000,000, and $5,183,000,000 in foodstuffs and agricultural supplies.

Also furnished under lead-lease services were $4,151,000,000 toward training of air and navy personnel, repair of war and merchant ships, shipping and ferrying of planes.

Mr. Crowley said the United States is devoting about 15 per cent of its war budget to lend-lease.

While he gave no figures on reverse lend-lease he said:

"Our allies have been enthusiastically frank in speaking their appreciation of this (United States) assistance. In return, too, our own effectiveness has been greatly enhanced by the aid we have received from our allies under reverse lend-lease—food, hospitals, air fields, hospitalization, transportation, munitions, military information and other such essentials."

Post-War Plan For China Will Cost 2 Billion

MAR 11 1945

Industrial and Transport Development Outlined by American Advisers

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP).—Foreign Economic Administration officials disclosed today they have completed preparation of a $1,000,000,000 post-war industrialization plan for China, as well as another $1,000,000,000 transportation program.

The five-year program is in the hands of the Chinese government after more than a year's work by forty F. E. A. engineers and technicians, supplemented by the nation's best engineering and manufacturing talent.

Believed to be the first study of such proportions, F. E. A. officials said the plan was developed with this objective: "The making of the tools of industry with which China can mold her own future."

They emphasized that "it is not our official program for China. They asked us to help them work out a guide to the industrialization of China. And this is the result of our efforts."

The program calls for construction of 953 industrial plants. Recommendations for the internal transportation system would involve the expenditure of an additional $1,000,000,000.

Embracing ten volumes, the plan covers these subjects: mining and metallurgy, chemicals and basic processing, manufacture, power, transportation; production, processing and distribution of food; river control and irrigation and construction methods; industrial training and industrial hygiene; industrial research and the establishment of libraries of technical books.

The F. E. A. estimates that the plan will provide employment for 700,000 Chinese, but no attempt is made to gauge the number of persons who could be employed in development of the transportation system.

The F. E. A. plan is designed strictly for the post-war period, in contrast with the plan to increase China's war production drawn by Donald M. Nelson, Presidential adviser who has made two trips to that country.

No recommendations are made for financing of the plan.

"That's entirely up to the Chinese government," F. E. A. officials said, although they expressed the belief it could be financed either by government or private capital, or both.

Japan Talked In '30 of Tactics In War on U. S.

State Department Releases Papers for That Year Citing Navy Ratio Issue

WASHINGTON, March 10 (AP).—As early as 1930 Japan spread a smokescreen of propaganda and diplomatic doubletalk which may have helped to disguise its intentions in Asia and the Pacific.

This is suggested by the release today of State Department papers relating to American foreign affairs in 1930, the year of the naval disarmament conference in London.

The papers show that the Japanese were seeking at that conference to get the prevailing naval ratio (10-10-6 for America, Britain and Japan set by the Washington Naval Treaty in 1922) revised to 10-10-7. Japanese naval experts told American naval attaches in Tokyo that if Japan had anything less than 7 to America's 10 in naval strength it would inevitably lose any war in which the two powers might become involved.

The theory they spread was that in the event of war, America would seek a quick decision, because a war of attrition would use up American merchant shipping and lose American carrying trade to rivals.

The American fleet, they theorized, would go immediately from Pearl Harbor to Manila if war should be declared, and, as a counter measure, the Japanese would intercept them with a large fleet of submarines operating from the Marshall and Caroline islands.

All this was reported at the time to the State Department by William R. Castle jr., then American Ambassador in Tokyo.

He reported further that Masanao Hanihara, former Japanese ambassador to the United States, had called upon him with a story about how public opinion in Japan feared an American attack because it was believed American naval plans covered the possibility of war with Japan to compel Japanese acceptance of American ideas regarding China.

Hanihara told Mr. Castle that war with the United States would be the worst possible disaster for Japan and Japan could never think of it. Mr. Castle informed the department that Hanihara was obviously acting under instructions. He said he told Hanihara that "our aims approximated the Japanese as both countries wanted only a China which was substantially and politically sound.

Against this background, the events of the next eleven years stand out:

The next year, Japan struck in Manchuria, in a campaign of aggression against China which continues today.

In 1941, the Japanese struck first in the Pacific and attempted to force a decision themselves by knocking out Pearl Harbor and capturing Manila quickly.

Their alleged plans about using submarine fleets to stop American naval advance through the Marshalls and Carolines did not materialize. One of the great mysteries of this war is the little Japanese submarine activity that has been reported.

Morgenthau To "Sell" Bretton Woods Pact

Minneapolis, March 10 (AP). Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, arrived here today with the avowed purpose of selling the people of the mid-West on the Bretton Woods monetary pact.

"I intend to devote every moment I can spare from administrative duties to 'sell' the pact to the people, and through them to Congress," Morgenthau told a press conference.

"Congressional approval of the pact by April 25 when the United Nations' peace conference meets at San Francisco will help establish a solid foundation for that meeting. This is not a 'pressure' campaign as some Republican members of the Congress have sought to make it appear. I hope by full explanation to make benefits of the Bretton Woods treat yclear to everyone."

Stalin Trip To Frisco Parley Held Doubtful

Washington, March 10 (AP)—The Army and Navy Journal, commenting on reports that Stalin and Churchill might attend the United Nations meeting at San Francisco next month, today remarked editorially:

"It is doubtful if the Soviet leader would or could make such a trip—he requires rulers to come to him!"

The unofficial service publication also referred to what it called the "dog-in-the-manger attitude" of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Asserting that Russia, as an ally of France, "necessarily looked out for her interests" at Yalta, the Journal said:

"Therefore, it smacks of ingratitude to him (Stalin) for de Gaulle to reject Mr. Roosevelt's request for a conference."

Ball Calls Yalta Accord On Poles Best Possible

Terms Agreement With Russia Vital to Peace

PHILADELPHIA, March 10 (AP).—Senator Joseph C. Ball, Representative of Minnesota, said today that, although not everyone is satisfied with the Polish settlement at the Yalta conference, it is better to have it settled by three nations than one.

Speaking at a meeting of the Foreign Policy Association here, he said: "Most Americans think that the agreement on Poland violates the Atlantic Chapter, but it is the best settlement we could reach with Russia, and, if we are to build an international peace organization, we must have agreement with Russia."

He termed "realistic and practical" the compromises reached on voting procedure for the world security council.

Henrik de Kauffmann, Danish Minister to the United States, told the association that creating a machine for peace has not solved anything yet. The spirit in which we enter into the world organization is more important that the form of the agreement, he said.

Representative Helen Gahagan Douglas, Democrat, of California, another speaker, said: "We can no longer mind our own business by minding our business. If we pack up and go home now we will be walking out on the future of man."

THREAT IS NOTED TO WAGE CONTROL

WLB Industry Members Cite Fringe Wage Issues

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Industry members of the National War Labor Board asserted today that fringe wage issues are "threatening the flanks" of the Little Steel formula.

If not brought under control, they said, the attack may destroy the entire wage stabilization line.

The assertion came in a statement on a wage report to the President February 20, in which public members of the board recommended that no change be made now in the Little Steel formula but that wage controls be removed in the postwar period.

Called Weakest Segment

Declaring that permissible increases under the Little Steel formula largely have been granted, industry members termed demands for fringe increases as "now the weakest segment of our line" and called for their control under fixed standards.

Standards have just been fixed for four of the more common types of such fringe increases, and ceilings for others are reported now under consideration.

The Little Steel formula, limiting pay boosts to fifteen per cent of the rates of January, 1941, applies to basic wage raises. Fringe issues are those involving such side issues as vacation pay, shift differentials, provision of tools and safety equipment, and the like.

Issue Taken On Four Counts

While expressing agreement with the stand of public members on the Little Steel formula, industry representatives took issue on four counts with what they termed "unsound reconversion policies" recommended in the report.

Asserting that certain types of wartime wage increases are "wholly abnormal," the industry members said they "regard as unwise the suggestion that war-caused innovations be made postwar norms." Public members had declared that the Little Steel formula will have to give way in peacetime to a general rise in wage standards in order to maintain high-level production.

30. 24 — 23801

Adjustments Called "Pegs"

Wartime adjustment of wage-rate inequities between plants, industry members contended, has, in many cases, been "only a peg upon which to hang a concealed general wage increase." Commenting on the statement by public members that such adjustments would be an important part of postwar economic planning, the industry report stated:

"The over-all adjustment should . . . result in little or no over-all increase in the total wage bill."

Confusion Foreseen

A proposal by public members for postwar legislation pegging certain wage rates in key industries, the industry statement said, would make "rigid and inflexible" the entire national wage structure.

"Any attempt by the Government to formulate wage schedules for every industry," it added, "would bring only endless confusion and endless disputes. The functioning of the free enterprise system calls for flexible wage rates, free to adjust in accord with economic, not political, factors."

COAL MEETING FRICTION RISES

Lewis Charges "Bad Faith" To Southern Group

Washington, March 10 (AP)—John L. Lewis today charged Southern coal operators with "bad faith" in attempting to block a strike vote among the miners, creating the first evident friction in a week of contract negotiations.

Edward R. Burke, former Nebraska Senator and spokesman for the Southern Coal Operators Associations which yesterday petitioned the National Labor Relations Board to drop its plans for the vote March 28, said the "bad faith" charge was hurled at him in the morning conferences.

Interpretations Questioned

The producers' petition challenged the board's interpretation of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act which it said made it mandatory that a strike vote be taken 30 days after Lewis served notice on February 26 that there was a dispute now or on February 26.

Some operators saw in Burke's action the forerunner of an injunction appeal against the strike vote in the Federal District Court here, in the event the NLRB denies the petition.

Lewis demanded that all of today's proceedings be made available to the press, but the operators over-rode his motion. Rules of the conference require unanimous vote in these issues.

Controversial Demands

The negotiations began March 1 with three days of open session. The closed negotiations by committees of eight operators and eight United Mine Workers started Monday.

Ezra Van Horn, Cleveland operator who is conference chairman and spokesman for the entire negotiating group, said that in addition to discussing the petitions, the conference had gone into two of the most controversial of Lewis's eighteen demands—the ten per cent per ton royalty for the union, estimated to raise $60,000,000 for rehabilitation, health and "economic protection" of the members, and the elimination of the geographical differential which has existed between Southern and Northern operations.

Unfair Advantage Charged In Auto Plants Bargaining

Detroit, March 10 (AP)—A spokesman for organized labor in the nation's automobile industry charged today that management has taken unfair advantage of the union's no-strike pledge and "in too many instances refused to bargain collectively for the elimination of grievances."

The statements were made by Walter P. Reuther, vice president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO) in testifying before a Senate subcommittee investigating utilization of manpower in the production of war materiel in the Detroit area.

Reuther asserted there was much idle equipment in Detroit factories and said "the War Labor Board has blocked the efficient use of available labor by rigid rules which prevent the transfer of men to jobs requiring lower skill while maintaining the wage rate of the higher skilled jobs."

"Saw A Man Sleeping"

The committee also heard further testimony from George Romney, managing director of the Automotive Council for War Production, who charged that unions were "thwarting efforts to get productive efficiency" in automotive plants.

Senator Ferguson (R., Mich.) disclosed in questioning Romney that he had made an unheralded visit to some Detroit area war plants yesterday.

"I saw a man sleeping on an assembly line yesterday," he said. "What are industry and labor doing about this?"

"We have attempted to apply discipline, but have been thwarted by the unions," Romney said, adding:

"The United States Government manacles industry by an outdated and weakened labor policy."

Charges No Postwar Plan

He testified that management had lost, "to a degree," its power to manage labor's development of grievances, which he said were "used to promote strikes."

Reuther told the committee that "failure to plan now for full employment after the war is responsible more than any other single factor for the loss to war production in Detroit and other critical areas."

Asserting that the UAW-CIO was not satisfied with the volume of production in the area, Reuther [illegible] Manpower needs in the Detroit area can still be met by more efficient production scheduling and by proper allocation and utilization of available manpower, as well as by the establishment for the workers of a sense of security about tomorrow's job."

Authority For Foremen

Reuther termed a statement by Romney that labor had caused a 25 to 50 per cent cut in productive efficiency "something pulled out of the air for propaganda purposes." He said he believed that with proper co-ordination and scheduling and "proper consideration for the human equation, we probably could get fifteen per cent more production with the same manpower."

Reuther said a "satisfactory labor policy" could be built if foremen, general foremen, superintendents and plant managers had labor relations authority. They lack this authority at present, he said, with the result that many problems have to be submitted to corporation policy committees composed of officers who he said "had no knowledge whatever of factory conditions."

Denying that the UAW-CIO was attempting to take over management functions as charged yesterday by Romney, Reuther said:

"That is just a windmill set up by the companies to give them something to fight. The best proof that the CIO does not want any of the functions or prerogatives of management is that we have refused to accept foremen as members of our union because they are a part of management."

Asked by Senator Ferguson regarding his views on reported gambling in war plants, Reuther said:

"We do not condone gambling, and if men are laid off for gambling the UAW-CIO will not appeal their cases. It is my understanding, however, that supervisory representatives wink at gambling. If gambling is to be cleaned up it should be cleaned up completely."

Blames Wage Policy

An extremely serious foundry situation exists in the Detroit area, Reuther said, and is due primarily to an inadequate wage policy.

"Foundry production has been increased in the past through labor-management-Government co-operation in the elimination of bad working conditions and wage inequities. But generally management and its spokesmen in the War Production Board have been cool to such co-operation and the foundry manpower situation has become increasingly critical."

Reuther reiterated a UAW-CIO objective of equal pay for equal work in all plants of the car industry. He disagreed with Senator Ferguson that such a policy would result in a standardization of production volume and a subsequent "cartelization of industry," as Ferguson termed it.

STRIKE SHUTTING BIG RUBBER PLANT

Institute, W. Va., March 10 (A. P.).—The United States Rubber Company's processing division of the giant synthetic rubber installation here moved toward a complete shutdown today as a result of an unexpected walkout of maintenance employees.

About 100 maintenance men, members of the A. F. of L. Chemical Workers Union, left their jobs at noon and formed a picket line which stopped incoming night shift workers, it was said. The walkout made between 600 and 700 workers idle.

Hugh McDermott, a labor relations representative of the War Production Board from Cleveland, Ohio, said he had been told by company officials that the dispute arose over the discharging of an employee who struck his supervisor during an argument.

HEARING NEAR ON FEPC BILL

House Group To Air Stormy Issue On Wednesday

Washington, March 10 (AP)—An issue laden with political dynamite—whether Congress should outlaw racial and religious discrimination by employers—today was ticketed for a public airing by the influential House Rules Committee.

The bill, to establish a permanent Fair Employment Practices Committee, is in for a stormy session, even though its principles have the indorsement of both major parties.

Racial and religious organizations rallied a host of witnesses to appear before the Rules Committee when it opens hearings on the Administration-backed measure Wednesday.

Trouble Stretches Ahead

Some indication of the trouble that stretches ahead for the measure came from Southerners on the committee this week when the bill got a brief preliminary hearing.

"I wonder," said Representative Cox (D., Ga.), "if this bill isn't an attempt to break down all social distinction and make a melting pot out of the country. It's a thing that has to be gone into thoroughly."

Even Republicans shied away from definite commitments on the pending bill, which emerged from the Labor Committee several weeks ago.

Republican Leader Martin, of Massachusetts, told a reporter he is in favor of the principles of a fair employment practices law, but he wouldn't say he will back the present bill.

49,000,000 Seen Affected

Labor Committee members said the bill can have a bearing on the job-treatment of 13,000,000 Negroes, 5,000,000 Jews, 20,000,000 Catholics and 11,000,000 persons of foreign birth.

Among witnesses who will appear for the measure are officials of the Catholic Inter-Racial Council, the United Council of Church Women, the American Jewish Congress, the CIO and the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

At least one member of Congress will appear before the committee to fight the bill—Representative Fisher (D., Texas).

M.R.Young Named N. Dakota Senator

Bismarck, N.D., March 10 (AP)—Milton R. Young, 47-year-old Republican and farmer, is North Dakota's new United States Senator.

He was appointed last night by Gov. Fred G. Aandahl, Republican, to succeed the late Senator John Moses, Democrat, who died last Saturday at Rochester, Minn., after a long illness. Young, who lives in Berlin, N.D., will serve until the 1946 elections.

Tells His Stand On Peace

In a statement accepting the appointment, Young said he would be an "ardent supporter" of any program for the creation of "some sort of world organization for the preservation of peace."

"In North Dakota," said Young, "the great mass of public opinion unquestionably favors a policy under which the United States will take a leading part in the formation of some sort of world organization for the preservation of peace. As a member of the United States Senate . . . I will be ardent in my support of any program that looks to the creation of such organization.

Makeup Of Organization

"In my opinion, any organization to be effective in preservation of the peace must be backed by a well-officered, well-manned, well-equipped army and navy, and with air forces adequate to meet any situation. . . . The single objective of this organization must be the preservation of peace. . . ."

Young has been in politics since 1933 when he was elected to the State House of Representatives. He was elected to the State Senate in 1937 and has been there since.

Moses, who had been governor three times, defeated the veteran Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, in 1944, and was the first Democrat ever elected to Congress from North Dakota.

8,000th B-24 Bomber Leaves Assembly Line

Detroit, March 10 (AP)—The Ford Motor Company announced today that the eight thousandth B-24 bomber plane produced at the Willow Run plant will come off the assembly line next week.

The Willow Run plant currently is being converted for the manufacture of a revised version of the B-24 but there has been no interruption to production.

Senate Democrats' Margin Cut Again

Washington, March 10 (AP)—Democrats today hold their slimmest Senate majority since the Seventy-second Congress of 1931-33 following the appointment of a Republican to succeed the late Democratic Senator John Moses of North Dakota.

State Senator Milton R. Young, a farmer, was named last night by Gov. Fred Aandahl to fill Moses's unexpired term, hiking the Republican representation to 40. During the Seventy-second Congress they held 48 seats.

This leaves the Democrats with 55 senators. Senator La Follette (Prog., Wis.) holds the 96th seat.

The GOP picked up another seat recently when Senator Hart (R., Conn.) succeeded the late Senator Maloney, Democrat.

LONDON, MARCH 10-(AP)-AN AGREEMENT HAS BEEN REACHED BETWEEN BRITAIN AND GERMANY FOR A NEW EXCHANGE OF BRITISH AND GERMAN CIVILIANS, THE BRITISH FOREIGN OFFICE ANNOUNCED TODAY, ADDING THAT APPROXIMATELY 250 BRITISH NATIONALS WILL BE REPATRIATED FOR AN EQUAL NUMBER OF GERMANS.

THE SWEDISH VESSEL DROTTNINGHOLM WILL BE USED FOR THE REPATRIATION. THE EXCHANGE WAS ARRANGED AS A CONDITION FOR THE BRITISH GRANT OF SAFE CONDUCT TO THE DROTTNINGHOLM IN AN EXCHANGE OF TURKISH OFFICIALS IN GERMANY AND GERMAN AND ARGENTINE REPRESENTATIVES AT ISTANBUL.

BRITISH CIVILIANS TO BE REPATRIATED WILL BE BROUGHT FROM GOTHENBURG IN SWEDEN TO LISBON ON THE DROTTNINGHOLM'S OUTWARD TRIP FROM GERMANY. ABOUT HALF OF THE GERMAN CITIZENS TO BE EXCHANGED HAVE BEEN BROUGHT FROM CANADA TO ENGLAND.

LONDON, MARCH 10-(AP)-THE SECRECY OF AN ORDER OF SERVICE CIRCULATED AMONG CLERGYMEN BY THE ARCHBISHOPS OF CANTERBURY AND YORK FOR THANKSGIVING DEVOTIONS ON V-DAY WAS ATTACKED TODAY BY AN ENGLISH VICAR WHO DECLARED, "THIS IS ENGLAND, NOT GERMANY."

THE VICAR, DR. L. MACASSEY OF MAPLE DURHAM, OXFORDSHIRE, SAID:

"X X X THIS IS ORDERING A LOT OF PEOPLE TO AGREE TO A THING WHICH IS MARKED 'SECRET.' THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IS NOT GOING TO BE RULED BY GESTAPO METHODS.

"WE ARE FIGHTING FOR FREEDOM AND HAD BETTER GET STARTED BY HAVING FREEDOM IN OUR CHURCH. ONE OF THE INSTRUCTIONS I GREATLY OBJECT TO IS THAT THE WORDING IS NOT TO BE COMMUNICATED TO THE PRESS. FANCY PEOPLE TRYING TO MUZZLE THE PRESS OF GREAT BRITAIN!"

THE VICAR TERMED THE WORDING OF THE SERVICE "INNOCUOUS" AND SAID IT "SEEMS DESIGNED NOT TO EXCITE ANY OPPOSITION OR CRITICISM."

"I THINK," HE CONTINUED, "I SPEAK FOR A VERY GREAT MANY PEOPLE WHEN I SAY THAT AFTER THESE WEARY YEARS OF WAR, WE WANT A REALLY TRIUMPHANT NOTE OF THANKSGIVING.

"WE WANT TO SAY, LET GOD ARISE AND LET HIS ENEMIES BE SCATTERED, LET THEM ALSO THAT HATE HIM FLEE BEFORE HIM."

LONDON, MARCH 10-(AP)-STRIKES IN PROGRESS IN ENGLAND THIS WEEKEND HAVE HAMPERED BUS TRANSPORTATION, LOWERED COAL PRODUCTION AND AFFECTED THE OUTPUT OF VITAL WAR FACTORIES IN FIVE AREAS OF BRITAIN.

MORE THAN 3,000 DRIVERS AND CONDUCTORS OF BUSES SERVING SEVERAL TYNESIDE TOWNS CEASED WORK TODAY IN PROTEST OVER NEW WORKING SCHEDULES.

AN UNOFFICIAL SITDOWN STRIKE, SAID TO HAVE BEEN PRECIPITATED OVER THE MEALS IN THE COMPANY CANTEEN, CONTINUED AT THE BOULTON PAUL AIRCRAFT COMPANY IN WOLVERHAMPTON, INVOLVING HUNDREDS OF WORKERS.

SCOTTISH PIT FIREMEN, STRIKING OVER A WAGE DISPUTE, WERE REPORTED TRICKLING BACK TO WORK TODAY BUT 1,318 MEN STILL WERE OUT. ALL WERE EXPECTED TO RETURN MONDAY.

RAILWAYS AND HIGHWAYS EAST OF THE RHINE LEADING TOWARD THE BRIDGEHEAD WERE UNDER ALLIED MEDIUM AND FIGHTERBOMBER ATTACK, BUT THERE WAS LITTLE QUESTION THAT A BATTLE OF THE FIRST IMPORTANCE WAS IMPENDING.

THE BRIDGEHEAD TODAY WAS SIMILAR TO ANZIO AND THE FIRST NORMANDY BEACHHEADS IN THAT IT WAS IN EASY GERMAN GUN RANGE.

A202 Add Paris WFront (Kennedy) xxxx the highways.

IT DIFFERED IN THAT IT WAS PLANTED IN RUGGED MOUNTAIN COUNTRY LENDING ITSELF READILY TO DEFENSE AND HAD THE ADVANTAGE OF A BRIDGE LINKING IT WITH THE REST OF THE ALLIED ARMIES AND SUPPLY BASES.

THE BRIDGEHEAD UPSET GERMAN PLANS FOR DEFENSE OF THE RHINE LINE. THE HIGH COMMAND HAD TO WEAKEN POSITIONS ELSEWHERE TO CONTAIN IT, AND THIS WAS HAPPENING WHILE NAZI GUESSERS WERE PREDICTING IMMINENT CROSSINGS FARTHER NORTH.

ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT HAL BOYLE SAID FROM THE FRONT THAT THE GERMANS COUNTERATTACKED IN FORCE FOR THE FIRST TIME YESTERDAY WITH SEVERAL HUNDRED INFANTRYMEN SUPPORTED BY TANKS, BUT GOT NOWHERE.

LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S THIRD ARMY WAS STRIKING IN THREE DIRECTIONS --EASTWARD TOWARD COBLENZ, NORTHWARD INTO THE EIFEL TRAP, AND SOUTHWARD ALONG THE MOSELLE RIVER.

THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION SEIZED RUEBENACH, TWO MILES WEST OF COBLENZ, WHICH, WHILE ON THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE IS PROTECTED ON THE WEST BY THE BROAD MOSELLE RIVER, AS YET UNCROSSED IN THAT AREA.

BUT THE 75TH INFANTRY AND THE 10TH ARMORED DIVISIONS WERE DRIVING THE GERMANS BACK ACROSS THE MOSELLE AND IT SEEMED CLEAR THAT THE RIVER'S NORTH BANK SOON WOULD BE CLEARED ALONG ITS 65-MILE LENGTH BETWEEN THE FALLEN FORTRESS OF TRIER AND COBLENZ.

THESE FORCES HAD MOVED 14 MILES NORTHEAST OF TRIER TOWARD THIS GOAL. THE GERMANS SOUTH OF THE MOSELLE IN THE TRIER AREA WERE COUNTERATTACKING IN AN ATTEMPT TO BALK ANY SWEEP UP THE BROAD VALLEY TO THE RHINE, WHICH WOULD OUTFLANK THE VITAL SAAR BASIN.

THERE WAS NO OFFICIAL REPORT ON THE FIGHTING IN THE EIFELS, BUT THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE REPORTED FIERCE FIGHTING ON LAKE LAACHER, FIVE MILES WEST OF ANDERNACH, WHERE THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES MET ON THE RHINE YESTERDAY AND SLAMMED SHUT THE DOOR OF ESCAPE.

THE AMERICANS SEIZED OSSENBERG, STRONGHOLD ON THE SOUTH FLANK. THE BRITISH SWUNG IN FROM THE WEST AND TOOK DRUPT, THREE MILES NORTHWEST OF OSSENBERG.

CANADIAN UNITS BATTLING DOWN FROM THE NORTH WERE TWO MILES SOUTHEAST OF THE GERMANS' KNOCKED-OUT ANCHOR OF XANTEN AND WERE THREE MILES OR SO FROM A JUNCTION WITH THE BRITISH AT DRUPT.

THE GERMANS WAITED UNTIL THE LAST BIG GUN WAS WITHDRAWN ACROSS THE RHINE BEFORE BLOWING THE WESEL BRIDGES, BUT THEY HAD PLENTY MORE ON THE EAST BANK PLAGUERING THE ADVANCING ALLIES.

GECAN REARGUARDS WERE LEFT TO CROSS THE RHINE BY BARGE, AND 32 OF TH

GERMAN REARGUARDS WERE LEFT TO CROSS THE RHINE BY BARGE, AND 32 OF THESE WERE DESTROYED YESTERDAY, LEAVING SCORES OF ELITE TROOPS FLOUNDERING IN THE CURRENT.

A RECAPITULATION OF THE DESTRUCTION OF GERMAN DIVISIONS DESTROYED OR KNOCKED OUT OF ACTION SINCE THE BIG PUSH BEGAN FEB. 23 SHOWED BY ARMIES:

CANADIAN FIRST, ONE PARATROOP, ONE PANZER GRENADIER AND THREE INFANTRY DIVISIONS; U.S.FIRST AND NINTH, TWO PANZER AND SEVEN INFANTRY DIVISIONS; U.S.THIRD, ONE PARATROOP, SEVEN INFANTRY DIVISIONS.

THE FIFTH INFANTRY DIVISION, CLEANING UP BEHIND THE FOURTH ARMORED, LUNGED FORWARD 4 1/2 MILES AND THE 76TH INFANTRY MOVED AHEAD 1 1/2 MILES ON A 15-MILE FRONT EAST OF BITBURG AS THE 10TH ARMORED SCORED GAINS UP TO FIVE MILES IN THE TRIER AREA, REACHING NEUERBERG AND THE FELLER RIVER NEAR FELL.

MEANWHILE, THE SWEEPING OFFENSIVE CONTINUED TO GOBBLE UP MORE GERMAN PRISONERS AND HUGE STOCKS OF MATERIEL. THE CANADIANS BAGGED 700 PRISONERS FRIDAY AND THE NINTH ARMY HAS CAPTURED 2,221 IN THE PAST

THREE DAYS. THE THIRD ARMY'S BAG INCLUDED A NAZI DIVISIONAL COMMANDER AND THE WHOLE STAFF OF A FIELD HOSPITAL.

THE THIRD ARMY'S FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION ALONE IN FOUR DAYS COUNTED 4,207 PRISONERS AND HAS ESTIMATED THERE ARE 1,000 MORE NAZIS IN PRISONER CAGES WHO ARE NOT YET ENROLLED.

IN ADDITION DURING THIS PERIOD, THE FOURTH REPORTED DESTROYING OR CAPTURING 10 MARK SIX TANKS, 12 MARK FIVE TANKS, 14 MARK FOUR TANKS, THIRTY-NINE 88 MM. GUNS, 16 ANTI-TANK GUNS, TWENTY-NINE 75 MM. GUNS, 12 ACK-ACK GUNS, THIRTY-SIX 105 MM. GUNS, 417 HEAVY TRUCKS, 400 LIGHTER VEHICLES AS WELL AS MANY VOLKSWAGONS, MOTORCYCLES AND BICYCLES. TENS OF THOUSANDS OF SHELLS WERE TAKEN IN AN AMMUNITION DUMP OVERRUN.

THE "FIGHTING FIRST" DIVISION OF THE FIRST ARMY, COMPLETING THE CLEANUP OF BONN, CAPTURED 75 ARTILLERY PIECES, INCLUDING TWENTY-FIVE 88 MM. GUNS USED IN THE DEFENSE OF THE CITY WHERE AN ESTIMATED 50,000 CIVILIANS REMAINED AFTER THE NAZIS WERE DRIVEN OUT.

THE GERMANS APPARENTLY EXTRICATED MOST OF THEIR TROOPS FROM THE BITTERLY DEFENDED WESEL BRIDGEHEAD BEFORE DEMOLISHING THE BRIDGES.

BRITISH TROOPS ON THE NETHERLANDS FRONT RAIDED AN ISLAND IN THE WAAL RHINE, RETURNING WITH PRISONERS.

SOUTH ALONG THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE THE FIRST LINKED UP YESTERDAY WITH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY, TRAPPING ELEMENTS OF FIVE TO SIX GERMAN DIVISIONS, POSSIBLY 20,000 TROOPS. SUPREME HEADQUARTERS CLOAKED THE FULL SCOPE OF THE ADVANCE.

ANOTHER FIVE TO SIX NAZI DIVISIONS WERE PINNED AGAINST THE MOSELLE RIVER BY LT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON'S SWEEP TO THE RHINE. THEY HAVE AN ESCAPE ROUTE SOUTHWARD ACROSS THAT RHINE TRIBUTARY INTO THE GERMAN-HELD SAAR REGION.

ARRIVAL OF ADDITIONAL PATTON ARMOR ON THE RHINE PUT THE AMERICAN FIRST, THIRD AND NINTH ARMIES AND THE CANADIAN FIRST ARMY ON THE RIVER'S WEST BANK FROM THE DUTCH FRONTIER TO THE APPROACHES OF COBLENZ, A STRETCH OF MORE THAN 150 MILES BROKEN ONLY BY THE WESEL POCKET IN THE NORTH. THAT POCKET WAS BEING REDUCED STEADILY BY THE NINTH AND CANADIAN FIRST ARMIES.

THE RHINELAND CITY OF BONN NORTH OF THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD WAS CAPTURED BY THE FIRST ARMY. THE THIRD ARMY BATTLED WITHIN FOUR MILES OF THE COMMUNICATIONS CENTER OF COBLENZ TO THE SOUTH AFTER SWEEPING THE GERMANS FROM THE COBLENZ PLAIN WEST OF THE RHINE.

THE JUNCTURE BETWEEN THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES WAS EFFECTED EIGHT AND 12 MILES SOUTH OF REMAGEN AT BROHL AND THE RHINE FERRY TOWN OF ANDERNACH. A NAZI GENERAL WAS CAPTURED AT ANDERNACH. THE THIRD ARMY COUNTED 4,000 PRISONERS IN YESTERDAY'S BAG AND BOOTY SO LARGE A FRONT DISPATCH SAID IT WOULD TAKE DAYS TO ESTIMATE IT.

THREE MILES SOUTH OF BONN THE FIRST ARMY'S NINTH INFANTRY DIVISION CAPTURED BAD GODESBURG, WHERE HITLER AND PRIME MINISTER CHAMBERLAIN HELD THEIR SECOND MEETING IN 1938 TO ARRANGE "PEACE IN OUR TIME." THE ONLY BRIDGE AT BONN WAS BLOWN UP BY THE GERMANS.

ON THE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD, MARCH 10-(AP)-THE FIRST MAJOR BATTLE OF THE RHINE BRIDGEHEAD APPEARED SHAPING UP TODAY AS GERMAN REINFORCEMENTS DROVE TOWARD THE AMERICAN-HELD TERRITORY ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RIVER.

ARE POURING IN A STEADY FLOW.

THE GERMAN COLUMNS WERE SEEN APPROACHING LAST NIGHT WITH ALL LIGHTS ON -- EVIDENCE OF A VIOLENT REACTION TO THIS GROWING THREAT TO INNER GERMANY.

THERE IS NO DOUBT THE GERMANS ARE MAKING A SUPREME EFFORT TO BRING UP AVAILABLE STRENGTH FOR A COUNTERATTACK DESIGNED TO DRIVE THE AMERICANS BACK ACROSS THE RHINE.

IT IS A RACE NOW BETWEEN THE GERMANS AND LT.GEN.COURTNEY HODGES' FIRST ARMY TO GET INFANTRY, TANKS, GUNS AND SUPPLIES TO THE SCENE. BUT AFTER SEING THE FLOW OF MEN AND FIGHTING TOOLS WHICH ARE MOVING UP TO THE BRIDGEHEAD THERE CAN ONLY BE ONE REACTION--THE GERMANS ALREADY HAVE LOST THE RACE.

THE BRIDGEHEAD IS GROWING STRONGER BY THE HOUR, AND THE REMAGEN BRIDGE HAS BECOME THE MOST IMPORTANT STRETCH OF HIGHWAY ON ANY FIGHTING FRONT.

ALL ROADS SEEM TO LEAD TO REMAGEN AND ALL THOSE ROADS ARE LITERALLY JAMMED WITH CONVOYS MOVING TOWARD THE BRIDGEHEAD IN AN AWESOME DISPLAY OF POWER.

THE FIRST ARMY HIGH COMMAND IS LOSING NO TIME IN EXPLOITING THIS DRAMATIC SUCCESS ENGINEERED BY THE NINTH ARMORED DIVISION UNDER THE COMMAND OF MAJ.GEN.JOHN LEONARD, TOLEDO,OHIO, WHO ISSUED THE ORDER FOR THE TROOPS TO SEIZE THE SPAN.

THE BRIDGEHEAD HAS THE HIGHEST PRIORITY FOR ALL FIGHTING TOOLS AND MANPOWER, AND THEY ARE POURING FORWARD.

AS SOON AS A UNIT GETS ACROSS THE SPAN IT GOES INTO THE LINE.

"WE PUT THEM INTO ACTION AS SOON AS THEY COME OVER," SAID MAJ. BEN COTHRAN OF ROME, GA., FORMER CITY EDITOR OF THE KNOXVILLE, TENN., JOURNAL. "THERE'S NO TIME TO FOOL AROUND. AS SOON AS A MAN STEPS ON THIS BRIDGEHEAD HE'S GOT TO START FIGHTING."

THE GERMANS ARE TRYING DESPERATELY TO KNOCK OUT THE BRIDGE WITH HEAVY GUNS AND SUICIDE AIR RAIDS. FOUR PLANES MADE PASSES AT THE BRIDGE THURSDAY NIGHT AND ALL FOUR WERE SHOT DOWN BY ACK-ACK. THREE MORE DIVED IN YESTERDAY FROM LOW HANGING CLOUDS AND DUMPED THEIR BOMBS.

THE REMAGEN BRIDGE IS THE HOT SPOT OF THE ENTIRE WESTERN FRONT AS THE GERMANS POUR SHELLS IN INCREASING NUMBERS. THEY ARE LOBBING IN 155 AND 210 MILLIMETER SHELLS TRYING TO KNOCK OUT THIS SPAN, WHICH IS THE LIFELINE FOR OUR TROOPS AND ARMOR IN THE BRIDGEHEAD.

A26

AS THE DOUGHBOYS MAKE THE RUN ACROSS THE BRIDGE, SHELLS WHIZZ OVER VICIOUSLY AND THE TIME IT TAKES TO CROSS THE 400 YARDS OF CONCRETE AND STEEL IS PACKED WITH THE SUSPENSE AND DRAMA OF WAR.

THE TEMPO OF THE SHELLING INCREASED YESTERDAY AND NO ONE TARRIES ON THE SPAN UNLESS HE IS FORCED TO.

THE DOUGHBOYS GO ONTO THE BRIDGE ON A TROT AND NO ONE SLOWS DOWN TO A WALK UNTIL HE IS SAFELY ACROSS.

IN THE CENTER OF THE BRIDGE IS A DEAD GERMAN--HIS HEAD POINTED TO THE WEST AS THOUGH HE WERE RUNNING FORWARD TO HALT THE DOUGHBOYS WHEN THEIR FIRE CUT HIM DOWN. NO ONE HAS BEEN ABLE TO TAKE TIME OUT YET TO REMOVE THE BODY.

PRIORITY OF TRAVEL IS TOWARD THE EAST, AND ONCE A VEHICLE GETS ON THE BRIDGEHEAD IT MAY STAY FOR HOURS BEFORE THERE IS A BREAK IN TRAFFIC FOR WESTBOUND TRAVEL.

MOST OF THE WOUNDED ARE COLLECTED IN A HILLSIDE TUNNEL AT THE EASTERN END OF THE BRIDGE AND ARE CARRIED ACROSS BY LITTER BEARERS WHO BRAVE SHELLFIRE TO GET THE WOUNDED TO AMBULANCES ON THE WEST BANK.

"IT'S A PRETTY TOUGH JOB CARRYING THE WOUNDED OVER," SAID T/4 JAMES P.BUTLER, LONDON MILLS, ILL., "BUT WE ARE GETTING ALONG ALL RIGHT. SO FAR WE HAVE HAD SURPRISINGLY FEW CASUALTIES."

EVACUATION IS BEING DIRECTED BY CAPT. WILLIAM GIBBLE, HENRIETTA, OKLA., WHO ACCEPTED SURRENDER OF A GERMAN HOSPITAL IN THE LITTLE TOWN OF ERPEL. THERE HE FOUND THREE AMERICAN PATIENTS WHO HAD BEEN WOUNDED IN THE BATTLE OF THE BULGE AND WERE TAKEN PRISONER BY THE GERMANS. THEY ARE NOW ON THEIR WAY TO AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 10-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS INCREASED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD ACROSS THE RHINE TODAY BY HALF A MILE AGAINST GENERALLY STIFFENING RESISTANCE.

THE GREATEST GAINS WERE MADE SOUTHWARD AND SOUTHEASTWARD. AMERICAN SPEARHEADS WERE DRIVING TOWARD A RANGE OF HILLS BETWEEN THE RIVER AND A SUPERHIGHWAY TO COLOGNE, RUNNING ABOUT SIX MILES EAST OF REMAGEN.

THE GERMANS HAVE YET TO LAUNCH A MAJOR COUNTERATTACK, ALTHOUGH ONE ARMORED DIVISION HAS BEEN IDENTIFIED AMONG THE FORCES RUSHED UP TO TRY TO CONTAIN THE SPEARHEADING AMERICAN THREAT TO INNER GERMANY.

FOR THE GERMANS, THIS IS THE ARDENNES IN REVERSE--WITH FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT FORCED TO COMMIT ALL AVAILABLE RESERVES IN HIS ATTEMPT TO DESTROY THE BRIDGEHEAD.

IT IS POSSIBLE THAT MORE GERMAN DIVISIONS MAY BE THROWN AGAINST THE BRIDGEHEAD IN THE NEXT FEW DAYS. BUT THUS FAR, THE NAZIS HAVE NOT ATTEMPTED TO SEIZE THE INITIATIVE.

INCREASED WEIGHT IN SHELLING OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE AT REMAGEN INDICATES THE NAZIS STILL ARE BUILDING UP THEIR ARTILLERY IN A DESPERATE EFFORT TO KNOCK OUT THE ALLIED LIFE SPAN BEFORE ADVANCING AMERICAN DOUGHBOYS AND TANKS DRIVE THEIR HEAVY GUNS BACK BEYOND REACH OF THE CROSSING.

REPORTS SAID THAT THE VOLKSSTURM--HITLER'S CIVILIAN ARMY--WAS WIDELY USED FOR SENTRY DUTY ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE, AND MOSTLY DURING THE NIGHT, SO THAT REGULAR TROOPS COULD REST.

MORALE IS EXCEEDINGLY LOW WITH GERMAN TROOPS, WHO OPENLY ARE EXPRESSING DISGUST WITH THE WAR SITUATION, FOOD SHORTAGES AND LACK OF AMMUNITION.

ON THE FIRST ARMY'S SOUTHERN FLANK, WHERE THE LINK-UP YESTERDAY WITH THE THIRD ARMY POCKETED ELEMENTS OF SIX DIVISIONS, IT CAN NOW BE REVEALED THAT HODGES' ARMOR AND INFANTRY SEIZED A 20-MILE STRETCH ALONG THE AHR RIVER.

PRISONERS IN THIS AREA WERE FOUND WEARING AMERICAN SHIRTS WITH INSIGNIA OF AMERICAN UNITS MAULED IN THE ARDENNES BREAKTHROUGH LAST DECEMBER. MANY AMERICAN JEEPS AND TRUCKS WERE RECAPTURED.

TWO FLYING BOMB SITES ALSO WERE OVERRUN BY THE AMERICAN ADVANCE--THE FIRST FOUND IN THIS SECTOR.

LOW CLOUDS AND BAD VISIBILITY PREVENTED DIRECT TACTICAL SUPPORT OF THE GROUND TROOPS BY FIGHTER BOMBERS, ALTHOUGH A NUMBER OF BLIND BOMBING MISSIONS ON NAZI RAIL AND ROAD NETS LEADING INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD WERE MADE BY MEDIUM AND FIGHTERBOMBERS. THERE WERE NO REPORTS OF FURTHER GERMAN AIRFORCE ATTACKS AGAINST THE REMAGEN BRIDGE CROSSING.

THE FIGHTING FIRST INFANTRY DIVISION CAPTURED 5,200 PRISONERS DURING THE THREE-DAY ENVELOPMENT OF BONN, BEETHOVEN'S BIRTHPLACE. THIS DIVISION ALSO TOOK APPROXIMATELY 75 ARTILLERY WEAPONS, INCLUDING 25 OF THE 88-MM. SIZE, AND A NAUMBER OF 75 AND 25-MM. GUNS AND A FEW RUSSIAN 8.6 GUNS.

FIFTY THOUSAND CIVILIANS WERE REPORTED TO HAVE REMAINED BEHIND IN THE BONN AREA, FORMING ONE OF THE BIGGEST MILITARY GOVERNMENT PROBLEMS YET ENCOUNTERED ON THIS ARMY FRONT.

CENSORSHIP PERMITTED THIS DISCLOSURE TONIGHT AS THE FIRST ARMY FOUGHT TO WIDEN ITS REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD SOUTH OF COLOGNE WHILE THE GERMANS TRIED TO KNOCK OUT THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE WITH HEAVY SHELLFIRE.

SPEARHEADING THE FIRST ARMY'S DRIVE WAS NO NEW EXPERIENCE FOR COLLINS, HANDSOME 49-YEAR-OLD NEW ORLEANS SOLDIER WHOSE NICKNAME IS "LIGHTNING." HE COMMANDED THE 25TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN THE SOUTH PACIFIC, WHERE IT BECAME KNOWN AS "THE LIGHTNING DIVISION" BECAUSE OF ITS SWIFT MOVES IN THE JUNGLE.

THEN HE WAS GIVEN THE JOB OF SPEARHEADING THE GREAT ST.LO BREAKTHROUG WITH HIS SEVENTH CORPS, BLASTING OPEN A GATEWAY THROUGH WHICH THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES POURED ACROSS FRANCE. HIS CORPS WAS THE FIRST INTO BELGIUM AND THE FIRST INTO GERMANY.

MOSCOW, MARCH 10-(AP)-ONE YEAR AGO A SOVIET PLANE LANDED NEAR THE WRECKAGE OF THE GIANT POWER STATION AT NOVOYE ZAPOROZHE WITH THE FIRST DETACHMENT OF EXPERTS TO SUPERVISE RECONSTRUCTION OF THE GREAT DNEPR DAM.

TODAY PRESS DISPATCHES TOLD OF SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS IN THE TASK, DESCRIBED AS "PERHAPS THE MOST DIFFICULT IN THE SOVIET UNION."

THREE HUNDRED THOUSAND TONS OF BLASTED CONCRETE -- ENOUGH TO FILL 15,000 FREIGHT CARS -- HAVE BEEN REMOVED. A NUMBER OF THE 26 WRECKED PIERS WERE REPAIRED, BUT EXPERIENCE HAS SHOWN IT IS SIMPLER TO BUILD AN ENTIRELY NEW ONE THAN TO PATCH UP THE DAMAGE.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 17,500 TONS OF STEEL SECTIONS AND 14,000 TONS OF EQUIPMENT HAD TO BE ASSEMBLED. PART OF THIS WAS DONE IN THE LAST YEAR.

THE IMMINENT BREAKUP OF DNEPR ICE IS A CRISIS FOR WHICH SOVIET ENGINEERS HAVE BEEN PREPARING. THE WATER REGULATING MECHANISMS STILL ARE WRECKED, AND FLOOD WATERS WILL POUR THROUGH THE DAM AT THE RATE OF MORE THAN 15,000 CUBIC YARDS A SECOND.

TO SAVE THE POWER PLANT SITE ON THE RIGHT BANK FROM INUNDATION, A SPECIAL BARRIER HAS BEEN THROWN UP. A METAL BRIDGE WAS ERECTED TO CARRY TRAFFIC ACROSS THE RIVER DURING THE 70 TO 90 DAYS WHEN THE REGULAR ROAD ON THE INNER SIDE OF THE DAM WILL BE UNDER WATER.

CHUNGKING, MARCH 10-(AP)-JAPANESE AUTHORITIES HAVE DISARMED FRENCH AND NATIVE FORCES IN INDO-CHINA AND ARRESTED THE PUPPET GOVERNOR-GENERAL, VICE ADMIRAL JEAN DECOUX, IN FEAR THEY WOULD COLLABORATE WITH THE ALLIES. A CHINESE ARMY SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY.

MAR 11 1945

LATE CHINESE REPORTS SAID JAPANESE TROOPS ATTACKED FRENCH FORCES IN HAIPHONG, LANGSON, AND LAOKAY IN THE NORTHERN BORDER AREA OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA AND AT SAIGON LATE FRIDAY NIGHT. THE FIGHTING IN LAOKAY LASTED UNTIL NOON SATURDAY WHEN THE LAST FRENCHMAN WAS OVERPOWERED AND DISARMED.

CHINESE SOURCES ESTIMATED THE FRENCH GARRISON IN INDO-CHINA AT ABOUT 10,000 OFFICERS AND MEN, BUT SAID THAT, HAVING ELIMINATED ITS THREAT TO AID ANY ALLIED INVASION ATTEMPT, THE JAPANESE STILL FACED OPPOSITION FROM A WELL-ORGANIZED UNDERGROUND ARMY OF NATIVES. K

(THE OWI TODAY QUOTED THE TOKYO RADIO, WHICH HAD ANNOUNCED SEIZURE OF INDO-CHINA FRIDAY NIGHT, AS SAYING "SOME FRENCH TROOPS" STILL WERE RESISTING THE JAPANESE IN HANOI, WHERE THEY WERE BARRICADED IN THE CITADEL BARRACKS OF THE CAPITAL. ANOTHER BROADCAST, RECORDED BY THE FCC, SAID DECOUX WAS HELD IN PROTECTIVE CUSTODY AT SAIGON.)

CHINESE MILITARY AUTHORITIES SAID THE DIARMING OF INDO-CHINESE TROOPS WAS A PART OF JAPAN'S GENERAL PLAN FOR THE DEFENSE OF THE INDO-CHINESE AND CHINESE TERRITORY IT HOLDS AGAINST AN AMERICAN LANDING. IT ALSO WILL FACILITATE THEIR OPERATIONS IN CHINA, THEY ADDED.

THE CHINESE PRESS HAS POINTED OUT THAT INDO-CHINA WOULD BE A LIKELY PLACE FOR AN AMERICAN INVASION OF THE ASIATIC MAINLAND BECAUSE IT HAS GOOD HARBORS AND BETTER INTERIOR COMMUNICATIONS THAN CHINA.

(OTHER JAPANESE BROADCASTS REPORTED BY THE OWI SAID FULL OCCUPATION OF INDO-CHINA MEANT "THE COLONIAL STATUS OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA HAS ENDED," AND:

("IT GOES WITHOUT SAYING THAT THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT HOLDS NO TERRITORIAL AMBITIONS AGAINST FRENCH INDO-CHINA. INSTEAD, BY WIPING OUT HOSTILE INFLUENCES, THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT NOW IS ABLE TO EXTEND WHOLE-HEARTED COOPERATION TO THE PEOPLE OF INDO-CHINA, WHO HAVE BEEN GROANING FOR MANY YEARS UNDER FOREIGN OPPRESSION."

(THE JAPANESE RADIO ALSO ANNOUNCED THAT THE JAPANESE AMBASSADOR TO THAILAND HAD FORCED THAT COUNTRY'S GOVERNMENT TO ADOPT A PROGRAM PLEDGING IT WOULD SEIZE AND DISARM ANY OF THE FRENCH WHO TRIED TO FLEE ACROSS THE BORDER FROM INDO-CHINA. IT SAID TOKYO WAS HOLDING OUT PROMISES OF EVENTUAL INDEPENDENCE TO INDO-CHINESE NATIVES IN RETURN FOR THEIR COOPERATION.)

KUNMING, CHINA, MARCH 10-(AP)-MEN OF MAJ.GEN.CLAIRE L.CHENNAULT'S 14TH U.S. AIR FORCE KILLED IN THE PAST YEAR DURING OPERATINGS WHICH DESTROYED MORE THAN 1,200 JAPANESE PLANES AND NEARLY 600,000 TONS OF ENEMY SHIPPING WERE REMEMBERED TODAY AT A REQUIEM MASS MARKING THE FORCE'S SECOND ANNIVERSARY.

SEVERAL HUNDRED OFFICERS OF THE AMERICAN MILITARY ESTABLISHMENT IN CHINA AS ELL AS OFFICIALS OF

IN CHINA AS WELL AS OFFICIALS OF OTHER FOREIGN MISSIONS CROWDED INTO THE LITTLE CATHEDRAL OF SAINT THERESE OF THE INFANT JESUS FOR THE CEREMONY.

CHENNAULT, IN AN ORDER OF THE DAY READ TO ALL UNITS AT BASES SCATTERED FROM THE LUSH VALLEYS OF THE FRENCH INDO-CHINA BORDER REGION TO THE BARREN HILLS OF NORTH CHINA, REVIEWED ACCOMPLISHMENTS AND SPOKE HOPEFULLY OF THE YEAR AHEAD.

"WHAT YOU HAVE DONE," HIS ORDER READ, "SPEAKS FOR ITSELF AND MAKES THE FUTURE REASONABLY PREDICTABLE. WE WILL CONTINUE TO DESTROY THE ENEMY WHENEVER AND WHEREVER WE FIND HIM UNTIL HE IS COMPLETELY DEFEATED."

THE MASS WAS CELEBRATED BY COL.JOHN S.KELLY, AYRSHIRE, IOWA, CHAPLAIN OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE, ASSISTED BY LT.COL.JOSEPH P. MCNAMARA, PROVIDENCE,R.I., CHINA THEATER CHAPLAIN; CAPT.ALBERT J.BUCKLEY, 3423 WALNUT ST., CHICAGO,ILL., CHAPLAIN OF THE 14TH FIGHTER GROUP; AND CAPT.JOHN E.ALBERT, BALTIMORE,MD., CHAPLAIN OF THE 14TH HEAVY BOMBER GROUP.

THE 14TH'S LOSSES DURING THE YEAR WERE NOT ANNOUNCED, BUT CHENNAULT'S ORDER SAID MORE THAN EIGHT JAPANESE PLANES WERE DOWNED IN AIR COMBAT FOR EVERY AMERICAN PLANE LOST. MORE THAN 500 OF THE 1,200 ENEMY AIRCRAFT DESTROYED WERE SHOT DOWN.

IN ADDITION TO THE HEAVY DESTRUCTION OF JAPANESE AIR AND MARITIME EQUIPMENT, THE 14TH KILLED MORE THAN 30,000 ENEMY TROOPS AND SOME 10,000 PACK AND CAVALRY HORSES.

CHENNAULT ALSO CITED THE FACT THAT THE 14TH HAD PROTECTED MORE THAN 2,000,000 CHINESE REFUGEES EVACUATING CENTRAL AND SOUTH CHINA.

"THEY MOVED," HE SAID, "UNDER THE SHELTERING WINGS OF THE 14TH AIR FORCE AHEAD OF JAPANESE ARMIES, FREE FROM WANTON STRAFING AND BOMBING AND AIDED BY OUR SURGEONS AND FLIGHT NURSES."

YANKS HITTING THE ENEMY'S SHIMBU LINE, A CHAIN OF CAVES AND EMPLACEMENTS BETWEEN ANTIPOLO AND WAWA IN THE HILLS 14 MILES EAST OF MANILA, HAVE SEALED SEVERAL THOUSAND JAPANESE TROOPS IN THEIR UNDERGROUND VHAMBERS AND PIERCED THE FIRST LINE OF THE DEFENSES, MACARTHUR SAID.

THE FIRST CAVALRY AND SIXTH INFANTRY DIVISIONS MADE GAINS AGAINST THE SHIMBU LINE, USING ARTILLERY TO DRIVE THE JAPANESE INTO THEIR CAVES AND TUNNELS, THEN CREEPING FORWARD TO CLOSE THE ENTRANCES WITH DYNAMITE AND LEAVING THE ENEMY TROOPS TO DIE IN THEIR SELF-DUG TOMBS.

THE YANKS ALSO CAPTURED INSTALLATIONS USED BY THE JAPANESE TO LAUNCH ROCKETS CAPABLE OF FLYING FOUR OR FIVE MILES. THE DEVICES COULD FIRE THREE ROCKETS SIMULTANEOUSLY. THE MISSILES, CONTAINING SEVEN PROPELLENT CHARGES AND LOADED WITH PICRIC ACID, WERE CONCEDED TO BE VERY POWERFUL, BUT OF DOUBTFUL ACCURACY.

TOKYO REPORTED WITHOUT CONFIRMATION THAT AMERICAN SUPERFORTS WERE USING BASES IN THE PHILIPPINES FOR STRIKES ON FORMOSA.

MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUES HAVE REPORTED DAILY STRIKES ON FORMOSA OR INTO THE CHINA SEA, BUT NEVER HAVE DISCLOSED THE KIND OF PLANE MAKING THE ATTACKS. TOKYO RADIO BROADCAST AN IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE WHICH SAID THE FLAMES SPREAD TO THE IMPERIAL PALACE AND COURT MINISTRY. ALL FIRES, THE COMMUNIQUE SAID, WERE EXTINGUISHED IN EIGHT HOURS.

THE RUSSIAN TASS NEWS AGENCY REPORTED TOKYO NEWSPAPERS FAILED TO PUBLISH TODAY, INDICATING THEIR PLANTS WERE DAMAGED OR DESTROYED.

PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO WARNED THE PEOPLE THAT "THE ENEMY WILL NO DOUBT INCREASE HIS BOMBINGS X X X AND IS PLANNING FOR LANDINGS ON THE MAINLAND."

THE MALAY RAID, ANNOUNCED BY THE 20TH AIR FORCE IN WASHINGTON, WAS BY A FORCE OF ABOUT 40 B29S. THEY BOMBED THE RAIL LINE AT KUALA LUMPUR WITH "GOOD RESULTS". ALL PLANES RETURNED TO THEIR INDIA BASE.

THIS STRIKE WAS BUT A TEASER IN COMPARISON WITH THE NIGHT ATTACK ON TOKYO BY THE LARGEST FORCE OF SUPERFORTRESSES EVER PUT IN THE AIR. THEY FLEW FROM BASES HERE AND ON NEARBY SAIPAN AND TINIAN.

TWO OF THE BIG BOMBERS WERE LOST OVER THE TARGET, ONE TO ANTIAIRCRAFT FIRE AND ONE TO AN ENEMY NIGHT FIGHTER.

MAJ.GEN. CURTIS LE MAY SAID AT HIS COMMAND HEADQUARTERS THAT "THIS LOOKS LIKE THE MOST SUCCESSFUL ATTACK WE HAVE MADE TO DATE."

BRIG. GEN.LAURIS NORSTAD, CHIEF OF STAFF OF THE 20TH AIR FORCE, WHO CAME HERE FROM WASHINGTON TO OBSERVE THE MISSION, SAID THAT "IF NECESSARY" FLEETS OF 1,000 OR MORE B-29S WOULD BE SENT AGAINST JAPAN.

BRIG.GEN.THOMAS S.POWER OF FORT WORTH, TEX., WHO FLEW WITH THE RAIDING PLANES, REPORTED THE TARGET AREA WAS LEFT "LITERALLY A SEA OF FLAME." HE ADDED: "IT WAS THE GREATEST SHOW ON EARTH."

MARTIN SHERIDAN OF THE BOSTON GLOBE, THE ONLY WAR CORRESPONDENT ON THE RAID, SAID THE SMELL OF BURNING TOKYO WAS STRONG. THE SMOKE, HE REPORTED, LEFT SOOT ON THE BOMB BAY DOORS, THE UNDERSIDE OF THE FUSELAGE AND THE GUN BLISTERS OF HIS PLANE.

"I HAVE NEVER SEEN SUCH A DISPLAY OF DESTRUCTION," HE REPORTED.

POWER SAID HE SAW ONE 500-BLOCK AREA IN THE SEA OF FLAME BELOW HIM.

"IT LOOKED LIKE THE WHOLE DAMN TOWN WAS BURNING," DECLARED CPL.LEON WHITE OF JACKSONVILLE, FLA., A GUNNER. HE SAID THE FLAMES APPEARED TO BE SPREADING EASTWARD ACROSS THE SUMIDA RIVER, NATURAL BOUNDARY OF THE TARGET AREA.

THE AREA DAMAGED--COVERING ABOUT 15 SQUARE MILES BY POWER'S EYEWITNESS CHARTS--IS IN THE VERY HEART OF TOKYO. THAT PART OF THE CITY HAS A POPULATION OF 1,500,000.

IWO JIMA, MARCH 9-(DELAYED)-(AP)-DOG-TIRED MARINES JUST BACK FROM THE FRONT LINES FOR A LITTLE REST SAID TODAY THAT THE FIGHTING OF THE LAST TWO DAYS HAD BEEN DOWNRIGHT SAVAGERY.

THEY SAID ITS FEROCITY HAD NOT BEEN EQUALLED BEFORE ON IWO JIMA, WHICH PROBABLY MEANS IT WAS BY FAR THE BLOODIEST IN THE HISTORY OF THE MARINE CORPS.

SINCE D-DAY THE LEATHER NECKS HAD BEEN TRYING TO COME TO CLOSE GRIPS WITH THE JAPANESE, WHO HAD BEEN HIDING IN STRONGLY ENTRENCHED POSITIONS. AS THE AMERICANS EDGED THEM TOWARD THE SEA THEY WERE FORCED TO COME OUT, AND THE BATTLE DEVELOPED TO THE POINT WHERE SMALL ARMS, GRENADES AND EVEN KNIVES PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART.

PVT. EDWIN J. BLUM, (19 ALBANY POST ROAD), MONTROSE, N.Y., SAID THE ENEMY STARTED A BANZAI CHARGE EARLY TODAY BUT WAS DISCOURAGED BY A CURTAIN OF FIRE FROM THE YANKS.

"THERE WERE THREE OF US IN A FOXHOLE MANNING A MACHINE GUN," SAID BLUM. "A BUNCH OF JAPS APPEARED ON A RIDGE A FEW YARDS AWAY AND STARTED TOSSING GRENADES AND YELLING. WE CUT LOOSE ON THEM, KILLING AT LEAST FIVE, AND THE REST RETIRED."

BLUM SAID HE REACHED YESTERDAY FOR A FRESH BOX OF MACHINEGUN AMMUNITION AND AN ENEMY MORTAR CHARGE STRUCK THE BOX, EXPLODING IT, BUT HE WAS UNHARMED. SHORTLY BEFORE THAT, HE SAID, A MORTAR SHELL LANDED IN HIS FOXHOLE BUT TURNED OUT TO BE A DUD.

PFC. JAMES LAMBERT, LEWISTON, IDAHO, REPORTED ANOTHER BANZAI CHARGE LAST NIGHT.

"THE JAPS HAD BEEN THROWING GRENADES AND SNIPING ALL NIGHT," HE SAID. EARLY IN THE MORNING 50 OR 60 OF THEM MASSED ATOP A RIDGE JUST AHEAD OF US. THERE WAS MUCH YELLING AND SCREAMING. THEN THE WHOLE GANG STARTED FOR US. WE WERE READY AND CUT LOOSE WITH EVERYTHING WE HAD. WE KILLED ABOUT THIRTY. THE REST WENT OFF SCREECHING."

PFC.L.V.GRIFFIN, WHOSE WIFE CATHERINE LIVES AT (169 HENTY ST., LONG ISLAND,N.Y. (CABLE COPY) SAID UP TO NOW IT HAD BEEN A CASE OF ROOTING THE JAPANESE OUT OF HOLES. "BUT NOW THEY'RE COMING OUT, AND IT'S AWFUL ROUGH. BUT THE BOYS ARE FEELING BETTER, NOW THAT THEY CAN SEE WHOM THEY'RE FIGHTING.

PVT. STURGES J.DUCOING (COPY) WHOSE WIFE ESTELLE LIVES AT (1739 ALMOMASA AVE.), NEW ORLEANS, LA., SAID SEVERAL MEN APPROACHED HIS FOXHOLE THIS MORNING AND WERE CHALLENGED FOR THE PASSWORD. RECEIVING NO ANSWER, THE MARINES OPENED UP. THEN JAPANESE CHARGED THE HOLE.

"WE KILLED A LOT OF THEM," DUCOING SAID, "AND THE REST RETIRED. LAST NIGHT AND EARLY THIS MORNING THE JAPS AND THE MARINES WERE TOSSING GRENADES AT EACH OTHER, OFTEN FROM LESS THAN 15 YARDS DISTANC."

SINCE THEN SOME SOME SMALL NIPPONESE GROUPS HAVE BEEN OBSERVED MOVING TOWARD THE BEACH IN THE FOURTH DIVISION'S SECTOR, WHICH MAY BE THE FIRST SIGN OF DISORGANIZATION.

THE PATROL UPON REACHING THE BEACH CELEBRATED BY WASHING OFF THE ACCUMULATED GRIME OF SEVERAL DAYS' FIGHTING.

SMITH'S MEN OF THE 21ST MARINES ENCOUNTERED NO IMMEDIATE RESISTANCE IN MOVING DOWN THE HIGH CLIFFS TO THE BEACH BUT AS THEY WERE WASHING A HAIL OF HEAVY MORTAR FIRE FELL ABOUT THEM FROM WELL CONCEALED JAPANESE POSITIONS.

THE PATROL RECEIVED A HEARTY "WELL DONE" FROM MAJ.GEN.GRAVES ERSKINE, COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE THIRD DIVISION, FOR SEPARATING THE ENEMY DEFENSE FORCE INTO TWO PARTS.

THE JAPANESE REMNANTS--POSSIBLY SEVERAL THOUSAND OUT OF THE ORIGINAL ESTIMATED FORCE OF 20,000--ARE NOW BEING

(WX) IWO JIMA (DELAYED)--FOX COMPANY'S COMMAND POST IS IN A SHELL CRATER ON THE LEFT SHOULDER OF A CLIFF, ON THE FORWARD SLOPE OF HILL 362.

ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THAT SHOULDER OUR MEN DON'T LIVE LONG AND THE STRETCHER BEARERS ARE WORKING OVERTIME.

THE MEN IN THE COMMAND POST ARE OF THE SECOND BATTALION, 28TH MARINES, THE REGIMENT WHICH TOOK MOUNT SURIBACHI AND RAISED THE STARS AND STRIPES OVER THE VOLCANIC CRATER. BUT THAT WAS A LONG TIME AGO, AND THIS IS ANOTHER WAR ON ANOTHER END OF THE ISLAND.

TWENTY-FIVE YARDS UP THE SLOPE IN FULL VIEW OF THE C. P. THERE IS A CAVE FULL OF JAPS. FOX COMPANY HAS BEEN THERE SINCE 8 A.M. TODAY AND THE JAPS KEEP THROWING GRENADES INTO THE C. P.

"WILL THE FOLKS BACK HOME KNOW WHAT IT'S LIKE OUT HERE?" ASKED PRIVATE FIRST CLASS S. E. OLKOSKI, 30, OF ZIEGLER, ILL.

"ARE YOU CORRESPONDENTS TELLING THEM WHAT IT'S LIKE?"

I SAID WE WERE TRYING, AND CROUCHED LOWER AS SHELL FRAGMENTS AND PIECES OF ROCK BEGAN TO RAIN AROUND US.

PRIVATE N. O. O'NAN, 31, OF 237 NORTH DONADLE ST., EL RENO, OKLA., DROPPED INTO THE C. P. HE WAS ON TOP OF THE CLIFF TRYING TO SET OFF A DEMOLITION CHARGE IN THE CAVE WHEN MORTAR FIRE CHASED HIM OFF.

CORPORAL WALLACE D. MILLER, 20, OF BOX 251, R. F. D 3, ALEXANDRIA, VA., COMPLAINS BITTERLY THAT OUR TANKS ARE MOVING UP AND DRAWING MORTAR FIRE.

THERE ARE TWO WEST VIRGINIANS, PRIVATE FIRST CLASS JAMES HERRON, 20, OF ROUTE 2, FAIRMOUNT, AND PRIVATE ROBERT M. BREWER, 23, OF WILLIAMSON. BOTH OF THEM EXPRESSED A PREFERENCE FOR THE HILLS OF WEST VIRGINIA TO THE HILLS AROUND THEM.

I ASKED HOSPITAL APPRENTICE FIRST CLASS A. W. O'BRYAN, 19, OF 236 EAST PACIFIC COAST HIGHWAY, LONG BEACH, CALIF., HOW THE FIGHTING IN THIS SECTOR COMPARED WITH MOUNT SURIBACHI.

"IT'S A LOT ROUGHER HERE" HE SAID. "THE TERRAIN MAKES

OTHERS DISAGREED. FIRST SERGEANT JOHN PLATT 39, OF 2408 HARTRANFT AVE., PHILADELPHIA, SAID THAT "SO FAR THIS ISN'T AS BAD AS SURIBACHI."

"I'D GIVE A LOT TO BE WALKING DOWN FIFTH AVENUE RIGHT NOW," SAID PRIVATE FIRST CLASS GEORGE F. SCHOTT, 25, OF 25 STANFORD AVE., WEST VIEW, PITTSBURGH, PA.

CAPTAIN ARTHUR H. MAYLOR JR., 24, OF 22 FERGUSON AVE., PORT JARVIS, N. Y., CAME DOWN FROM THE BIG ROCK WHERE HE HAD BEEN STANDING. THE LAST TIME I SAW HIM WAS EIGHT DAYS AGO ATOP MOUNT SURIBACHI, WHERE HE WAS DIRECTING THE MOPPING UP OF THE FEW JAPS WHO WERE LEFT THERE.

BACK AT THE BATTALION COMMAND POST MAJOR THOMAS B. PEARCE JR., 28, OF 1808 CATAWBA AVE., COLUMBIA, S. C., SAID:

IWO JIMA--DELAYED)--MARINE DEATHS ON THIS, THE BLOODIEST BEACHHEAD IN MARINE CORPS HISTORY, WOULD HAVE BEEN FAR WORSE BUT FOR THE HEROIC WORK OF NAVY HOSPITAL CORPSMEN.

THEY HIT THE BEACH WITH THE FIRST ASSAULT WAVES, BRAVING THE HEAVIEST ARTILLERY, ROCKET, AND MORTAR BARRAGES IN THE PACIFIC, TO RESCUE WOUNDED MARINES.

ONE VETERAN MEDICAL UNIT, LEAD BY LIEUT. GEN. G. RICE OF SEATTLE, WASH., HIT ITS FOURTH BEACH IN A YEAR WITH CRACK SPEARHEAD UNITS.

THE CORPSMEN ATTACHED TO THIS BATTALION SAW MORE THAN THEIR SHARE OF DEAD AND WOUNDED IN THEIR THREE PREVIOUS CAMPAIGNS--IN THE MARSHALLS AND AT SAIPAN AND TINIAN IN THE MARIANAS. BUT IWO JIMA, WHERE THE VETERAN OUTFIT LANDED ON A STEEP BLACK BEACH WITHOUT COVER, WAS THE WORST OF ALL.

SOME MEN NEEDED AS MANY AS FOUR PLASMA UNITS TO PULL THEM THROUGH.

STRETCHER-BEARERS WERE FORCED TO WALK THROUGH A HAIL OF FIRE TO BRING THEIR PATIENTS BACK TO AN EVACUATION CENTER. HOSPITAL JEEPS COULD NOT BE USED OVER THE ROUGH, HEAVILY-MINED BEACH.

IWO JIMA, MARCH 4-(BY MAIL)-(AP)-NO MATTER HOW MANY TIMES WE SEE THEM, WE ARE INVARIABLY JARRED BY THE APPEARANCE OF THE FEW JAPANESE PRISONERS TAKEN IN A BATTLE LIKE THIS.

UNTIL YESTERDAY, WE HAD TAKEN ONLY NINE PRISONERS ON THIS ISLAND FORTRESS. SUDDENLY, WE DOUBLED THAT FIGURE. TODAY, WE HAVE 18 OF THEM, NEATLY TUCKED BEHIND A BARBED WIRE ENCLOSURE IN A FOXHOLE NEAR THE IWO JIMA PRESS CLUB.

JAPANESE PRISONERS CAN BE DIVIDED INTO TWO GROUPS. THE FIRST ARE EITHER SULLEN OR SO BADLY FRIGHTENED THEY SAY NOTHING AND STARE OFF INTO SPACE WITH A PECULIAR DEAD PAN EXPRESSION. THE SECOND GRIN AND SCARAPE AS MUCH AS TO SAY IT WAS ALL A HARMLESS JOKE FROM THE BEGINNING AND THEY HOPE THEY WON'T BE TAKEN TOO SEVERELY TO TASK.

WHILE THERE ARE REPORTS OF SOME BIG JAPANESE ON THE ISLAND, OUR 18 PRISONERS ARE ALL STANDARD SIZED, FEW OF THEM MUCH OVER FIVE FEET TALL. THEY LOOK UTTERLY INCAPABLE OF PUTTING UP A MAN-SIZED FIGHT. JAMES B. INDSLEY OF THE ASSOCIATED PRESS SAYS THEY ARE LIVING PROOF THAT A GUN MAKES ALL MEN THE SAME SIZE.

JAPANESE PRISONERS ARE TRATED IN ACCORDANCE WITH RULES LAID DOWN BY THE GENEVA COVENANT. CORPORAL GENE JONES OF WASHINGTON, D.C. AND PFC STAN LACEY OF NEW YORK CITY ARE STILL INDIGNANT THAT THE OFFICERS WERE ALLOWED TO KEEP THEIR SWORDS.

SAN FRANCISCO,MARCH 10-(AP)-A JAPANESE BROADCASTER STUMBLED OVER HIS ENGLISH TODAY AND SAID "THE ENEMY X X X IS NOW ATTEMPTING TO MAKE A LANDING ON JAPAN PROPER," WHEN OBVIOUSLY HE DIDN'T MEAN A WORD OF IT.

THE STATEMENT, APPARENTLY INTENDED TO REITERATE THAT AMERICAN NAVAL FORCES OPERATING IN JAPANESE WATERS THREATEN AN INVASION, WAS CONTAINED IN A TOKYO RADIO REVIEW OF THE CURRENT WAR SITUATION HEARD BY THE BLUE NETWORK.

CONTEXT OF THE TOKYO REPORT, AS RECORDED BY THE BLUE NETWORK, MADE IT CLEAR THAT THE PROPAGANDA BROADCAST WAS NOT REPORTING AN ACTUAL INVASION ALREADY UNDERWAY. EITHER THE RADIO WAS AGAIN WARNING THAT AMERICAN FORCES WHICH HAVE BEEN OPERATING IN JAPANESE WATERS FOR WEEKS ARE PREPARING TO INVADE NIPPON, OR THE JAPANESE BROADCASTER HAD TROUBLE EXPRESSING HIMSELF IN THE ENGLISH LANGUAGE.

THE REPORT WAS MADE IN CONNECTION WITH THE TOKYO'S CELEBRATION OF THE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF JAPANESE ARMY DAY. AFTER CLAIMING THAT NIPPONESE TROOPS HAD INFLICTED 503,000 ALLIED CASUALTIES, PLUS 70,000 ON LUZON AND 30,000 ON IWO JIMA, TOKYO ADDED:

AN AMERICAN LANDING IN THE JAPANESE HOMELAND "IN THE NEAR FUTURE" WAS PREDICTED SATURDAY BY LEADERS OF NIPPON LESS THAN A DAY AFTER A RECORD MISSION OF SOME 300 YANK SUPERFORTRESSES LEFT THE HEART OF TOKYO IN FLAMES.

RADIO TOKYO, WHICH BROADCAST THE PREDICTION, ALSO TOLD OF FIRES SWEEPING THE CAPITAL, INCLUDING THE IMPERIAL PALACE, AND MADE THESE REPORTS:

JAPANESE FORCES HAVE SEIZED FULL CONTROL OF FRENCH INDO-CHINA AND ARE FIGHTING SOME FRENCH TROOPS STILL RESISTING.

AMERICAN FORCES LANDED AT SAMBOANGA, ON MINDANAO ISLAND IN THE SOUTHERN PHILIPPINES, FOLLOWING NAVAL GUN BARRAGES, AND BITTER FIGHTING WAS IN PROGRESS.

B-29S, OPERATING FROM THE PHILIPPINES, RAIDED FORMOSA.

BRITISH WARSHIPS SHELLED THE ADAMAN ISLANDS IN THE BAY OF BENGAL.

THE TOKYO BROADCASTS WERE RECORDED BY THE FCC. THE REPORTS CONCERNING THE PHILIPPINES LACKED AMERICAN CONFIRMATION, AS DID THE ADAMAN ATTACK.

PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO WARNED THE PEOPLE OF JAPAN THAT "THE ENEMY WILL NO DOUBT INCREASE HIS BOMBINGS XXX AND IS PLANNING FOR LANDINGS ON THE MAINLAND."

FIELD MARSHAL GEN.SUGIYAMA, WAR MINISTER, PREDICTED AN AMERICAN LANDING IN JAPAN PROPER "IN THE NEAR FUTURE."

KOISO SYMPATHIZED WITH THE SUFFERING OF HIS PEOPLE AT THE HANDS OF "CRUEL AND BARBARIC" AMERICA AND CALLED ON THEM TO "FORGE ONWARD IN THE WAR."

THE NIPPON WAR MINISTER SAID "THE WAR SITUATION IS NOW VERY SERIOUS FOR JAPAN."

IN SEIZING INDO-CHINA THE JAPANESE ASSERTED THE FRENCH THERE WERE TRYING SECRETLY TO JOIN HANDS WITH THE ALLIED NATIONS.

AN IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE REPORTED THAT THE B-29S STARTED FIRES IN THE EMPEROR'S PALACE. IT TERMED THE BOMBING INDISCRIMINATE AND SAID THE FIRES IN THE CITY WERE EXTINGUISHED ABOUT EIGHT HOURS AFTER THE RAID. ONE TOKYO RADIO REPORT SAID NEWSPAPER IN THE CAPITAL WERE NOT PUBLISHING,INDICATING THEY WERE IN THE FIRE ZONE.

THE JAPANESE CLAIMED THAT 15 OF THE SUPERFORTS WERE SHOT DOWN AND 50 DAMAGED. (OFFICIAL AMERICAN REPORTS SAID TWO B-29S WERE LOST TO ENEMY ACTION.)

TANKS, GUNS POUR ACROSS RIVER ON PONTOON BRIDGES

Hodges' Forces Gain Mile to Tighten Grip on Bridgehead.

CRUSH WESEL POCKET

Occupation of Virtually All Reich West of Rhine Completed.

By Wireless

PARIS, Monday, March 12. —(AP) American First army troops surged steadily ahead today, expanding their bridgehead on the east bank of the Rhine, now nine miles wide by three miles deep — with magnificent air and artillery support holding enemy resistance to a minimum.

The Americans have overrun eight towns in the bridgehead area, an Associated Press front dispatch said.

NIGHT

Supreme Allied headquarters, in reporting that the First army still was surging forward, said the Allies had liquidated the last Germans in the stubbornly defended salient at Wesel and completed occupation of virtually all of the Reich territory west of the Rhine and north of the Moselle.

Hodges Gains Mile

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army Doughboys—exploiting the advantage gained by the surprise surge across the Rhine Wednesday—pushed forward more than a mile at several places in the bridgehead opposite Remagen.

A dispatch by Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead from the bridgehead, disclosing the seizure of eight German towns on the Rhine's east bank, said the Americans were hauling big artillery pieces across the river to add further sinew to their steadily tightening clutch on the Rhine's east bank.

The Germans said the American bridgehead was 11 miles wide — two miles more than the claims of SHAEF—and declared that the First army had thrown several emergency bridges across the river to supplement the use of the Ludendorff railroad span, seizure of which gave the Americans their opportunity.

Supreme Allied headquarters, partly stripping the security cloak from the bridgehead—possible evidence that the critical hours were past—said it was three miles deep and nine miles wide, with the Americans in possession of eight east bank towns, one of them unidentified.

As this push menacing Germany's inner citadel began to fan out, a new threat rose to the enemy's Rhine line on the north, where the Allies were massing men and guns for a possible new crossing behind a dense smoke screen rising for 40 miles along the river west of Wesel.

Wesel Pocket Crushed

The Canadian First, Ninth armies crushed the last Germans in the Wesel pocket. Now five Allied armies were linked solidly along 150 miles of the Rhine from the Dutch border to within a mile of Coblenz.

The U. S. Third army on the south took a 15-mile grip on the Rhine and threatened the last enemy holdings west of the Rhine in the Saar and palatinate by seizing control of 48 miles of the Moselle river's north bank between Coblenz and Trier on the southwest.

At least 22 more German towns were overrun by the Third army.

The U. S. First and Third armies pressed possibly 23,000 German troops in the Eifel mountains north of the Moselle into a sack of probably 100 square miles, less than a tenth of its size when the trap was sprung Friday.

Final liquidation seemed near for this pocket, along with the 17 miles the Germans still hold on the north bank of the Moselle.

In 17 days since the Americans broke across the Roer, Allied armies had all but fulfilled Gen. Eisenhower's orders to destroy every German west of the Rhine in a triangular section of western Germany 65 miles wide at the base and 165 miles from north to south.

Now the Germans were battling fiercely to hold back an avalanche of thousands of First army troops, bolstered by artillery, tanks and guns already across the Rhine and threatening to break out for the Ruhr's arsenals, or for Berlin.

Yanks Seige Daltenberg

Most southerly town reported captured in the bridgehead was Daltenberg, three miles south, of Remagen. The Germans said the Americans had sped six miles south of Remagen into the center of Hoenningen. They also reported loss of Leusdorf, a mile south of Daltenberg, but this was not mentioned in American field dispatches.

On the north, the Americans were fighting in Honnef, five miles north of Remagen. Among the towns captured was Linz, a shipping port with a population of 5,000 two miles south of Remagen.

The Germans aimed two light counterattacks at the bridgehead during the day, one supported by tanks, but artillery broke them up.

The enemy's artillery fire, intense yesterday and last night, fell off noticeably as a result of American gunners' counter-battery fire. For an hour in the afternoon, not a shell fell in the bridgehead, compared with a previous rate of fire as high as 50 rounds per hour.

Similarly, not a single German plane appeared over the bridgehead during the day, as American fighter planes threw an aerial umbrella over the positions.

Saturday, out of 47 enemy planes that showed up, 23 were shot down by anti-aircraft guns massed in the bridgehead, and five others probably were downed.

American medium, light and fighter-bombers laid a curtain of steel around the bridgehead throughout the day, hammering road and rail routes leading to the battle area.

The Germans were being beaten back from artillery range of the bridgehead's lifeline, the Ludendorf bridge. Correspondent Whitehead reported from the front that enemy fire, intense yesterday and last night, had begun to slacken.

In the first estimate of the size of the bridgehead, Whitehead put it at 3 miles deep and 9 miles wide, with the towns of Erpel, Linz, Rheinbreitbach, Unkel, Bruchhausen, Ohlenberg and Dattenberg in American hands.

The Germans declared the Americans had made a sudden 5-mile spurt southward.

Armor Pours Across River

Whitehead said that in the four days since the Americans first crossed the Rhine, many thousands of troops had entered the bridgehead along with armor, artillery and mobile tank destroyers in a push that the Germans had been unable to check.

It was the story of the Normandy beachhead all over again, he said. Once across, the 1st Army rapidly built up reserve strength and now it was lashing out, driving the enemy steadily out of range of the landing.

Nazis Claim Gain At Honnef

Berlin radio said American forces in a surprise attack from the Remagen bridgehead overran at least three east-bank Rhenish towns, struck 6 miles southeast of Remagen and stormed into the center of Hoenningen.

Eleven miles to the north, enemy reports said, the Americans had been driven from half of Honnef, but that General Hodges, "supported by a strong air umbrella," was attempting to break out of the encircling ring.

The Allied communiqué announced the Germans were directing considerable artillery fire at the Ludendorff bridge.

Moreover, if American engineers have succeeded in throwing pontoon bridges across the Rhine—which is likely in view of the German reports—the importance of Ludendorff bridge to the Allies naturally lessens.

To reach Hoenningen, the Americans would have overrun Linz, 6 miles to the north, where the Germans yesterday located the south end of the bridgehead, and Daltenberg and Leusdorf.

Nazis Tell Of Other Bridges

The Germans admitted loss of the two latter towns by saying American tanks and infantry tried to push inland from both these Rhine-bank points.

A German front correspondent reported Hodges's engineers had succeeded in throwing "a number of emergency bridges" across the Rhine in the Remagen area despite bombing and artillery fire.

"Almost all units of the United States 1st Army are either wholly or in considerable part concentrated in this area," one enemy account said.

In concert with the 3d Army, the 1st was constricting the lines around the large German force cut off to the southwest in the Eifel Mountains. This force was believed still to number 23,000 after large blocks of it had been rounded up.

Patton Heads For Saar

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army in its southward lunge seemed headed for bigger stakes—the capture of the rich Saar steel and coal basin and the Palatinate of Bavaria, both now by enemy account being emptied of women, children and those too feeble to fight.

These two regions, the last the Germans hold west of the Rhine, are garrisoned by strong forces manning the only part of the Siegfried Line that still exists as a defense entity.

With the factories of the Ruhr already under United States 9th Army artillery fire, the loss of the Saar would be a blow to the enemy, and the stoutness of his defense on its northward approaches in the Moselle valley and on the south against the United States 7th Army testifies to his concern.

By capturing 18 miles of the Moselle's west bank, stretching from within a mile west of Coblenz southwestward to captured Carden, Patton was in position to cut in behind these defenses by forging across the broad Moselle River.

Patton still had opened no attack on Coblenz, a city of 80,000 protected on the west and north by the Moselle and its confluence with the Rhine. It was being shelled, however, and had lost much of its tactical importance because its bridges were destroyed.

When the 9th Army cleared the last pocket of resistance at Fort Blucher, opposite Wesel, there was not a German west of the Rhine from Bonn northward to the sea.

From all indications, the Germans managed to evacuate most of their forces from the Wesel pocket in good condition, a front dispatch said.

50,000 Nazis Captured

The German high command was shifting its troops, artillery and tanks along the east bank of the Rhine to meet the next Allied blow, which enemy broadcasts insist will be the main one and will aim for the north German plain on the high road to Berlin.

The liquidation of the German stand came four months and two days after Gen. H. D. G. Crerar's Canadian 1st Army opened the attack from the north.

U.S. FLAG FLIES OVER RHINE

Stars And Stripes Raised At Colorful Cologne Ceremony

With U.S. 1st Army on the Rhine, March 11 (AP)—The Stars and Stripes fluttered over the Rhine today for the first time since 1922 after a colorful ceremony at Cologne almost within rifle-shot of the enemy on the east bank of the river.

Maj. Gen. J. Lawton (Joe Lightnin') Collins led divisional generals of his 7th Corps, their assistants, chiefs of staff and artillery officers into the Sports Platz of the battered city.

Troops See Ceremony

The flag-raising ceremony was held before massed troops representing the 104th, 8th and 1st Infantry divisions and 3d Armored Division.

These were the divisions of the now famous 7th Corps which spearheaded the 1st Army's drive from the Roer River, smashed enemy defenses ir the Cologne plain, and captured the Reich's fourth largest city.

Massed in the concrete grandstand for the flag ceremony were more than 2,500 soldiers. They overflowed onto the turf of the amphitheater under gray skies as P-47's circled overhead on guard against any possible German sneak raid.

There were platoons from each division as well as others representing Artillery, Cavalry, the Signal Corps, Engineers and the medics. Their standards made bright splashes of color under the dull skies.

Band Plays March

Thirty-five silver rings shone on the standard of the 4th Calvary, representing citations from half a dozen wars.

As General Collins stepped out in front of his troops and faced the honor guard, colors were brought forward and the band played a triumphant march.

Collins briefly reviewed the battles from Normandy's beaches to the Rhine—many of them spearheaded by his 7th Corps—and then the colors were raised slowly on the flagpole in the northeast corner of the Sports Platz to signal one of the 1st Army's greatest victories.

2 German Armies Captured In Month

With U.S. 1st Army on the Rhine, March 11 (AP)—American and Canadian troops have captured the equivalent of two German armies in little more than a month.

A total of 123,178 prisoners of war fell to the 1st, 3d and 9th United States armies and the Canadian 1st in that period. This is equal to two armies of two corps each, the corps comprising three divisions of 10,000 men each.

Since the Roer River offensive February 23, the 1st has taken 33,795 prisoners and the 9th 29,378. Since February 1, the 3d has captured 40,000 and the Canadians, 20,000.

NEW INSIGNIA ISSUED

U. S. Command Officers Now Wear Green Band on Shoulders

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY in Germany, March 11 (AP)—Command officers of the United States Army now are authorized to wear a narrow green band beneath their shoulder insignia.

One of the first to attract attention to the new insignia was Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson, commander of the United States Ninth Army, who recently was photographed with the band on his shoulder.

The band is authorized for commissioned officers of all ranks who actually command troops, to distinguish them from officers who operate only in an executive capacity.

British War Reporter Is Killed in Rhine Battle

Lawless of 'Telegraph' Is 48th Allied Correspondent to Die

LONDON, March 11 (AP).—Peter Lawless, a war correspondent for "The London Daily Telegraph," with the United States 1st Army, has been killed on the western front, it was announced here tonight.

Walter Farr of "The London Daily Mail," and William Troughton, of the "The London Daily Express," who were with Lawless, were injured slightly.

Lawless was wounded fatally Saturday when he crossed the Rhine to the Remagen bridgehead. He was struck by shell splinters in the leg and stomach and died fifteen minutes later. The three correspondents were caught in the thick of the bridgehead fighting.

Lawless, fifty-five years old, served as "Daily Telegraph" correspondent with the Royal Air Force in France during the first year of the war, then became a captain in the Army Intelligence Corps. He resumed war reporting last summer. He won the British Military Cross in the first world war.

[Lawless was the nineteenth British correspondent killed in the war. One is missing. Twenty-nine American correspondents or photographers have been killed and two are missing.]

Report Japan's Third Largest City In Flames Following Major Raid

21ST U. S. BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, Monday, March 12—(AP) Another great fleet of American B-29 Superfortresses turned Nagoya, Japan's third largest city and most important aircraft production center, into an inferno today while the fires of Saturday's record raid on Tokyo still smouldered.

The weather was clear, just as on the Tokyo raid, returning crews reported. Immense destruction appeared certain.

3000 B-29s Attack

Some 300 of the big bombers, about the same number as raided Tokyo 48 hours earlier, swarmed over crowded Nagoya shortly after midnight. It was another low-level, all-incendiary raid.

Bombs were dropped — just as they were over Tokyo shortly after midnight on Saturday—at elevations around 5,000 feet.

The B-29s usually bomb from very high altitudes.

Some 2,000 tons of the incendiaries were scattered over Nagoya.

"It looks like the boys did a pretty good job again," said Brig Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of Guam-based B-29s. The raiding planes also flew from Saipan and Tinian.

Sgt. R. E. Williams of Springfield, Mass., tail gunner of the sixth plane over the target declared that even then "hellishly big fires were burning in the northwest part of the target area and also across the south part."

"The weather was perfect and we couldn't miss," reported Lt. Frank Hermes of Cincinnati, Ohio, special instruments operator on the first plane returning here.

He added that "big fires were burning in the target area and we hit the target right on the nose."

Meet Little Opposition

Lt. George H. Lane of Paterson, N. J., and Clarksville, Tenn., navigator, reported the bomber started its target run at 6,800 feet. "We saw no fighters and there was not much ack ack but plenty of searchlights," he said.

Capt. V. L. Chandler of Everett, Wash., pilot of the fourth bomber of the target, said: "There were three fires already burning when we got there. We started the fourth. They were growing fast in size.

"As we made our run, we saw many more bombs dropping. The weather was better than over Tokyo. It was a swell mission."

Lt. Allie Thacher of Pear Valley, Tex., pilot of the sixth plane to reach Nagoya, said he saw fires spreading from six or eight centers. He didn't see any Japanese fighters.

The incendiaries fell over a congested five-square mile area in the center of the city.

Headquarters revealed today that the Saturday Tokyo strike, which employed 2,300 tons of bombs and left 15 square miles of the city in flames, was the first time the Superforts had bombed at the 5,000 level. The planes are designed for high altitude work.

The daring of the venture may have contributed to the baffling of the enemy's defenses.

Only 2 Planes Lost

In the Tokyo raid only two planes were lost over the target, probably to flak.

Today's Nagoya strike was the fastest follow-up major attack on the Japanese empire yet staged by the Superforts.

Ground crews began readying most of the planes for this mission immediately after they returned from Tokyo, and about two-thirds of the Tokyo attack crews made the same 3,000-mile round trip to hit Nagoya.

At least seven big fires still blazed in the heart of Tokyo at 11:30 a. m. Sunday (Japan Time) following the Superforts' pre-dawn Saturday visit, reconnaissance disclosed.

The Nagoya target area is dominated by aircraft industries but also produces important railway equipment, machine tools, bearings, tanks, motor vehicles and processed foods.

The city, lying at the head of foot-shaped Ise bay, has an important port. It is not, however, the best of the harbors on Honshu island.

Through disruption of rail traffic the incendiary attack is expected to have an immediate effect on aircraft production and other industries, and to affect other vital war activities.

10-MILE RED GAIN MADE NEAR DANZIG

Soviet Forces Near Bay In Drive To Split Enemy

London, March 11 (AP)—A 10-mile eastward advance by Soviet forces operating west of Danzig brought them within 8 miles of the Bay of Danzig today in their drive to split the German defenders of Danzig and Gdynia.

The 2d White Russian Army captured Koelln, 12 miles northwest of Danzig and 9 miles southwest of Gdynia, the Soviet communiqué announced.

Push Along Vistula Bank

Gains southeast of Danzig also were reported in the communiqué. Soviet forces pushing northward along the eastern bank of the Vistula River captured Liessau, 19 miles southeast of Danzig.

A supplemental report from Moscow early today added that other Soviet forces were pushing eastward northwest of Gdynia and fighting on the approaches to Neustadt, 13 miles from Gdynia and 10 from the coast, threatening the port with imminent encirclement.

The Moscow bulletin was silent regarding operations at Stettin, the Baltic port northeast of Berlin, where fierce fighting is in progress, according to German accounts, but it announced another push north to the Baltic coast which toppled the town of Leba, 16 miles northwest of captured Lauenburg.

The communiqué also reported that Marshal Zhukov's 1st White Russian troops were fighting the trapped enemy garrison in the eastern part of Kolberg, near where 1,600 prisoners were taken Saturday.

Broadcasts from Berlin indicated the Eastern front from Danzig and Stettin southward to Hungary was flaring with army, SS (Elite Guard) and Volkssturm attempts to check the Russian advances.

Every Yard Contested

The Germans proclaimed determination to make a death stand in every important city. Contesting every yard of soil, they fell back to Danzig, Gdynia and into Stettin, defending each suburb and outlying strong point behind hastily built barricades and gun positions.

On the eastern outskirts of Stettin, the Germans were braced with additional reserves, tanks and artillery in an attempt to prevent a cave-in of the "Oder wall" north of Berlin. Hundreds of Soviet guns concentrated on Stettin's suburban areas of Altdamm, Finkenwalde and Podejuch.

Fire On Bridges In City

Heavy Russian batteries installed on wooded hills overlooking Stettin from the southeast laid down harassing fire on four bridges across the Oder river inside the city.

Most of Stettin's prewar population of nearly 300,000 has fled westward, but hastily mobilized labor gangs constructed tank barricades and converted shops, river warehouses and municipal buildings into forts for the street fighting to come.

Upstream and downstream from Stettin, Marshal G. K. Zhukov probed for bridgeheads on the river's west bank from which to launch a pincers movement on the city from the rear.

Claims Attacks Repulsed

Col. Ernest von Hammer, Nazi military commentator, claimed in a broadcast today that the Germans had repulsed Russian attacks between Frankfurt and Kuestrin due east of Berlin, although he admitted street fighting raged in Kuestrin.

German reports also acknowledged the Nazi withdrawal toward the Bay of Danzig in the Polish Corridor, but insisted that the Russians had been unsuccessful in splitting the German front.

Von Hammer said strong Russian tank spearheads were hammering between Kartuzy (Karthaus) and Zuckau, as well as between the Vistula and Nogat rivers, and claimed 59 Red Army tanks had been knocked out.

Push Across Delta

The wide delta of the Vistula, thickly veined with irrigation canals, was being crossed from east to west by a column of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's forces which last was reported by Moscow about 19 miles from Danzig.

Siege preparations similar to those of Stettin were reported under way in Danzig under a blanket order from Heinrich Himmler to carry on defense at all costs.

Marshal Konstantin N. Rokossovsky, meanwhile, pushed on west and northwest of Danzig and promised to cut through quickly to the coast between it and Gdynia. In its larger aspects, the joint offensive by Zhukov and Rokossovsky appeared to have virtually concluded its prime aim of crushing the German army east of the Oder.

Hammer reported a new battle has started south of the Upper Silesian industrial area as the Russians resumed attacks in the direction of the Moravian Gap.

Hungary Fighting Renewed

"The Germans expected the Silesian attack," he asserted, "and according to reports so far available, the Russians were thrown back at all points with great losses."

The Germans spoke of continued success in counter-attacks against Marshal Ivan S. Konev's and Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's armies in Silesia, Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

"Germans advancing to the southeast of Lake Balaton (in Hungary) have reached the Sio Canal on a broad front and compressed the last Russian bridgehead," Hammer said. "Between Lake Balaton and the Drava, fighting has flared again." . . .

The Moscow communique said Soviet troops had repulsed attacks by large forces of German armor and infantry northeast and east of Lake Balaton and said that 153 enemy tanks were knocked out Saturday in that area by artillery and mines.

German Commentator Max Krull said that defensive fighting by the Germans on the eastern front had cost the Russians nearly 10,000 tanks since the Red Army offensive began Jan. 12.

BERLIN BOMBED FOR 20TH NIGHT

Air Fleets Also Pound Essen, Kiel, Bremen, Hamburg

London, Monday, March 12 (AP)—Speedy RAF Mosquitos stung Berlin last night for the twentieth consecutive night in the round-the-clock battering of the Reich, dumping 4,000-pound blockbusters into the already ravaged capital.

The night assault followed a two-pronged daylight blow yesterday in which more than 1,000 RAF bombers hurled 5,000 tons of explosives on Essen, war-plant city just ahead of the United States 9th Army, and 1,200 American bombers attacked submarine plants at Kiel, Bremen and Hamburg.

The American daylight raiders dumped 3,500 tons of bombs on the three ports in one of the war's greatest blows against the German U-boat building program.

Canadians In Essen Raid

Then the RAF daylight force, largest in recent weeks, sent destruction shuddering through Essen, home of the Krupp Works and a key railway and communications center in the Ruhr.

Large numbers of Lancasters and Halifaxes of a Canadian group helped the RAF sow destruction on Essen. RAF losses were not disclosed immediately.

The bombers were escorted by strong forces of fighters. Returning crewmen reported large fires from which smoke billowed to great heights above Essen.

While the heavies mauled Essen and the submarine centers, the United States 9th Air Force ranged over Germany, stabbing at communications and supplies. Fighter-bombers flew 579 and medium bombers 660 sorties without loss.

Arms Dumps Bombed

The mediums struck two ammunition dumps in the Ruhr, raked four airfields near Giessen and attacked enemy communications. No enemy aircraft were sighted by the 9th's force as the fighter-bombers provided continuous air cover for the bridgehead over the Rhine at Remagen.

Essen is within range of United States 9th Army heavy artillery along the Rhine in the Duisburg area, and is less than 15 miles from the river.

Front dispatches have hinted the Allies soon might attempt a Rhine crossing in this area.

The RAF said "well over 1,000 aircraft" participated in the Essen attack, escorted by more than 200 Mustangs and Spitfires.

The American fleets hitting earlier at the northern ports totaled nearly 2,000 bombers and fighters.

Four U.S. Planes Missing

One bomber and three fighters are missing from the American force.

B-25's of the United States 12th Air Force, flying from bases in Italy, attacked a rail bridge in Austria near Brauburg, 115 miles southeast of Munich and 50 miles north of Udine. It was the first attack by the Mitchell medium bombers on Austrian targets.

Other Mitchells continued attacks on Brenner Pass rail-line targets, and other Allied warplanes struck targets along the Italian front lines.

Oil refineries adjacent to the U-boat yards at Bremen and Hamburg, used for on-the-spot fueling of the underseas packs, also were hit by the 1,200 heavy bombers and 750 fighters of the United States 8th Air Force, which wheeled through terrific flak.

200-Mile-Long Bomber Train

Preliminary reports said there was no German fighter opposition to the 200-mile-long bomber train which swept in over northern Germany and split into three forces.

Bombing by the 800 Flying Fortresses and 400 Liberators was done through thick clouds, but was extremely concentrated.

The Blohm and Voss shipyards at Hamburg and the Deschmiag yards at Bremen are two of Germany's largest producers of latest-type submarines.

Kiel, hit by Liberators, has three U-boat yards.

The continent-based United States 9th Air Force flew 750 bomber and fighter-bomber sorties before midday Sunday, concentrating on protecting the Remagen bridgehead.

Marauders Attack

More than 350 Marauders, Invaders and Havocs bombed four German airfields in an arc 40 to 75 miles beyond the bridgehead area, and two communications centers 20 to 30 miles east of the American crossing.

Fighter bombers flew protective cover over the bridgehead and battered highway centers beyond it.

The blow on Kiel was the first by the 8th Air Force since last September 12. Bremen and Hamburg were bombed February 24.

"The flak at Bremen was the heaviest I have seen over Germany in a long time," said Major Charles Bordner, of Stephensville, Texas.

"Black smoke boiled up after we dumped our load at Hamburg. Ack-ack fire was the heaviest I've seen over Hamburg in four missions there," said Sergt. Robert Vess, of East Liverpool, Ohio.

SWISS CITIES HIT AGAIN

4 Persons Killed by Unidentified Planes—Basle, Zurich Struck

LONDON, March 11 (AP) — The Swiss Government announced tonight that four of its nationals were killed and many injured and extensive damage was caused when planes of undetermined nationality bombed several localities in Switzerland.

A broadcast Swiss communiqué said that large fires were started in Basle by twenty incendiaries dropped from a single plane, rails were cut and fifty freight cars destroyed and the freight station damaged by high explosive bombs at Wolf, and that extensive damage to houses and an agricultural school was caused when six planes unloaded bombs on Zurich.

HILLS BALKAN AIR CHIEF

Former Air Ministry Official Succeeds Marshal Elliot

LONDON, March 11 (AP)—Appointment of Air Vice Marshal George Holroyd Hills as commander of the Balkan Air Force was announced tonight by the British Air Ministry.

Marshal Hills, director of policy at the Air Ministry since 1943, succeeds Air Vice Marshal William Elliott, now chief executive at the Ministry of Aircraft Production.

ALLIES 'DRUNK WITH VICTORY,' HITLER SAYS

Exhorts German Troops To Fight Fanatically Until Foe "Gets Tired"

London, March 11 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, declaring the Allies are "drunk by their orgy of victory" and intend to destroy the German nation, exhorted Germans today to fanatical resistance until the Allies "get tired and will yet be broken."

"The year 1918 will not be repeated," declared a manifesto in Hitler's name marking the 10th anniversary of military conscription. It was broadcast from Berlin.

Offering a pallid hope of distant victory, Hitler asserted "only those suffer defeat who are unworthy of winning victory" and indicated Germany would fight on in guerrilla resistance if her armies were smashed.

"We witness both in the East and in the West what our people would have to face. Our task is therefore clear: To put up resistance and to wear down our enemies so long that until, in the end, they will get tired and will yet be broken. Everybody has therefore to fulfill his duty."

"It is my unshakable determination and it must become the unshakable will of us all to show the world no worse example than our forefathers have given," said the proclamation dated at Hitler's headquarters.

"The year 1918 will not be repeated. We know the fate Germany would meet otherwise. Drunk by their orgy of victory, our enemies have clearly announced their war aims — extermination of the German nation.

"Even if fate has turned against us now, there can be no doubt that these reverses can be overcome, as so often before, with steadfastness and courage, with endurance and fanaticism."

He declared there "can be but one command:

"To defy all dangers with iron determination and to do everything to bring about a turn for the better, and for this purpose to strengthen the power of resistance of our nation and its armed forces both materially and spiritually.

"Just as great must be our fanaticism in the destruction of those who are trying to resist our aims."

German military conscription ordered in March, 1935, "gained Germany the means necessary for her self-defense, without which there would be no Germany by now," Hitler said, and if Germany had remained militarily impotent, "Europe already would have fallen now to Bolshevism."

Again Hitler played the old themes that Germany had rearmed only after "our enemies" spurned German proposals for disarmament, that a "Jewish alliance between capitalism and Bolshevism" menaces Europe, and that Russia "built up a gigantic armed force with the outspoken aim to suddenly attack Europe, which was made powerless by the Jews."

Text of Order

LONDON, March 11 (AP).—The complete text of Adolf Hitler's order of the day, as broadcast by the Berlin radio, follows:

"Soldiers:

"In the peace treaty of Versailles the same enemies we have to fight now forced us to disarm completely and to keep a ridiculously small professional army instead of the armed forces of the people.

"We received the solemn promise that this disarmament would be the first step of a general disarmament. It was only a swindle and trickery. The moment Germany had definitely laid down her arms the time for blackmail and looting began.

"The peace treaty ordered the dismemberment of Germany. Our enemies armed as never before, Russia at the head of them. Screened before the eyes of the outer world, this state has built up a gigantic armed force with the outspoken aim suddenly to attack Europe, which was made powerless by the Jews.

"You, my soldiers fighting in the East, know the extent of this rearmament. Had Germany remained in a state of military impotence, all Europe already would have fallen now to Bolshevism—a war of extermination against the peoples of Europe would have been in progress for years.

Recalls "Defense" Orders

"Recognizing the danger facing the future of our Continent, I gave orders to make Germany fit for defense the moment I took over power, so that we had no longer to face a light-hearted attack. It happened, however, only after I had made numerous offers for a general disarmament, for limitation of the air force, for eliminating a war of bombing, to eliminate heavy artillery and tanks, to limit the number of troops to a minimum and so on, and all of the proposals were turned down by our enemies.

"This refusal of our enemies showed at the same time their brutal intentions. Ten years have passed since the days in March, 1935, when Germany introduced compulsory military serivce.

"This feat gained Germany the means necessary for her self-defense, without which there would be no Germany by now. The Jewish alliance between capitalism and Bolshevism which threatens Europe today has in the mean time drawn the veil from the armaments to destroy our Continent.

"In spite of this the German Reich, betrayed by most of her allies, has carried on the war for six long years. Germany has achieved successes of unique greatness. Even if fate has turned against us now, there can be no doubt that these reverses can be overcome as so often before, with steadfastness, and courage, with endurance and fanaticism.

"There is no great state which in its history did not go through the same ordeal. Rome in the second war against the Carthaginians, Prussia in the seven years war against Europe—there are only two examples of many.

"It is my unshakable determination and it must become the unshakable will of us all to show the world no worse example than our forefathers have given. The year 1918 will not be repeated. We know the fate Germany would meet otherwise. Drunk by their orgy of victory, our enemies have clearly announced their war aims: extermination of the German nation.

"Today, when the tenth anniversary of the introduction of compulsory military service is approaching, there can be but one command:

"To defy all dangers with iron determination and to do everything to bring about a turn for the better and for this purpose to strengthen the power of resistance of our nation and its armed forces both materially and spiritually.

"Just as great must be our fanaticism in the destruction of those who are trying to resist our aims.

"If a big nation like the German, with its 2,000 years of history, does not lose its faith in success and is carrying out its duties with fanaticism in good times and in bad, then the Almighty will not withhold his blessing.

"The God of the earth is helping only those who are determined to help themselves.

"We witness both in the east and in the west what our people would have to face. Our task is therefore clear, to put up resistance and to wear down our enemies so long that until, in the end, they will get tired and will yet be broken. Everybody has therefore to fulfill his duty.

"Given at headquarters, March 11, 1945. Signed, Adolf Hitler."

Nazis Denounce Roatta As Traitor To Fascism

London, March 11 (AP)—Gen. Mario Roatta, former chief of the Italian staff who escaped from a military hospital in Rome a week ago while awaiting trial for war crimes, found himself without friends tonight as the Germans denounced him as a "traitor" to fascism.

A Paris radio broadcast yesterday that Roatta had been rearrested has not been confirmed.

There have been reports—also unconfirmed—that Roatta would attempt to join his old crony, Mussolini.

Benes on Way Home After 6 Years of Exile

LONDON, March 11 (AP).—At the end of six years' exile, President Eduard Benes has left England to set up a government at Kosice (Kassa), second city of Czechoslovakia, it was disclosed today. He was accompanied by Mrs. Benes and a dozen members of his government and personal staff and will be joined at Moscow by other Cabinet members and Czechoslovak politicians.

At a farewell ceremony attended by high British officials Benes thanked England for her hospitality since he arrived here in October, 1938.

French Food Minister Assailed

LYON, France, March 12 (AP).—Several thousand persons, massing today in the center of this third largest city of France, demanded the resignation of Food Minister Paul Ramadier, a prompt improvement of the supply organization and a purge of Vichy holdovers within the rationing administration. The meeting was convoked by the leftist Labor Union Federation of the Rhone Valley.

Stage Door Canteen Is Opened In Paris

Paris, March 11 (AP) — Parisian society mixed with soldiers of the Allied nations last night in opening a French link to the chain of stage door canteens. A group of Parisian civic leaders established the canteen in a dance hall on the Champs Elysees and modeled it after the Noel Coward, Marlene Dietrich and Maurice Chevalier attended the opening.

Notables attending the opening night ceremony included the British Ambassador Alfred Duff Cooper and Lady Diana, Capt. Edward Molyneux, Mrs. Anthony Eden, Vice Admiral Alan G. Kirk, commander of the United States naval forces in England, Danielle Darrieux, film star, and Gaston Palewski, chief secretary to General de Gaulle.

PUPPET JAP RULE SET UP IN ANNAM

Protectorate Said To Declare Independence Of France

Paris, March 11 (AP)—The German radio today broadcast a Tokyo announcement that Annam, a protectorate of French Indo-China where the Japanese now are taking over full control, had proclaimed its independence from France and pledged "close co-operation with Japan." Annam extends nearly the full length of Indo-China's eastern coastline.

The Japanese moved to take full administration of Indo-China on the ground that French officials there secretly were scheming to get in contact with Allied forces, and because of Nipponese fears of Allied landings there.

The Japanese commander in Annam announced full approval of the Annam declaration, which "brings the small state completely into Japan's Greater Asiatic sphere," Japanese dispatches relayed by Berlin said.

Due To Resistance Forces

Japanese seizure of French Indo-China was aimed at native resistance forces which had been instructed to strike against their oppressors when the time was ripe, a French Provisional Government communiqué declared tonight.

The French Government now is in close touch with the United States, British and Netherlands governments with the view of coordinating Allied action against the Japanese with Indo-Chinese resistance groups, the communiqué added.

Germans Tighten Vergato Defense

Rome, March 11 (AP)—The Germans have tightened up their bitter defense of Vergato, a central Italy strong point southwest of Bologna, against the northward push of the 5th Army, an Allied communiqué reported today.

The 5th, standing to the east and the west of the town on the Bologna-Pistoia highway, ran into increasing resistance overnight as Field Marshal Albert Kesselring battled to hold the town which has staved off repeated attacks since last fall.

Meanwhile, the United States 10th Mountain Division seized two peaks — Monte Belvedere and Monte Valbura—3 miles southwest of Vergato, and 8 miles north of another Monte Belvedere they captured at the start of their current drive.

Yanks Fail At Fornaci

American patrols tried to break into Fornaci, northeast of Vergato, but each time ran into fierce small arms and machine gun fire and were forced to turn back.

The pace quickened also in the Apennine Mountain line directly south of Bologna. Unexplained enemy movements were observed north of Monte Grande, but American artillery and mortars hammered the Germans.

The 8th Army front along the Adriatic was marked by patrol action on both sides. One Allied patrol knocked out an enemy strong point northeast of Fusignano. Patrols mixed in the mountains below Tossignano, south of Highway 9.

The United States 15th Air Force sent heavy bombers on an hour-long attack on the Paronal railroad bridge across the Adige River on the Brenner line, without loss of a plane. Photographs showed a span at the north end of the bridge was demolished and both approaches cut in many places.

Mediums of the United States 12th Air Force slashed at the Brenner line also, hitting a bridge diversion at Ora and cutting a diversion at San Michele.

Brazilians piloting Thunderbolts cut rails at four places at Verona, fired an ammunition shed north of Modena and destroyed six railroad cars and cut rails in six places near Trento.

POPE VISIONS NEW ORDER

Pontiff Addresses Catholic Workers' Groups

Vatican City, March 11 (AP)—Pope Pius XII today declared the time had come to contemplate a "new order of productive forces of the people" wherein the welfare of the community is placed above that of labor or capital.

The Pontiff, in an audience given members of the Catholic workers' organization meeting here, said capital-labor accords which were confined merely to an agreement between the two parties were not a "stable principle of social order" because they might lead to exploitation either of labor or of capital. His 2,000-word message was in Italian.

On Socialization

The Pope said socialization was justified only when the "common welfare" really required it as an only means to repair the abuses or avoid the waste of a nation's productive forces. Even then, he added, just socialization requires that all interested parties receive indemnities.

"Democratization of economy," the Pontiff asserted, "is menaced as much by the economic despotism of anonymous conglomerations of private capital, as by the preponderant strength of organized multitudes ready to use their power contrary to the justice and rights of others."

For Common Welfare

Declaring it was time to abandon empty phrases, the Pope appealed to all men to recognize a "higher unity" as binding all who collaborate in production.

"That is to say . . . their duty to provide together, in stable fashion, for the common welfare and needs of the entire community," he said.

Noting that workers' syndicates now are being formed in Italy, the Pontiff said their activities must be confined to representing and defending labor in making contracts. He cautioned that if they go beyond that function and "assume . . . the right of disposing freely of labor . . . as occurs elsewhere," the conception of the syndicate would be altered or destroyed.

After the address, in which the Pope reiterated economic principles set forth by him in a world broadcast last September, he imparted the apostolic blessing to the Catholic workers.

Zimmerman Finishes Third in Rome Golf As Two Italian Pros Tie for First Place

ROME, March 11 (AP)—The old "practice makes perfect" dictum told the story in the Rome open golf championship today as a pair of Italian professionals who have been able to keep their game sharp clashed for the title with 298. Al Zimmerman, Portland (Ore.) pro, who could get in only five practice rounds at more than two years with the Navy, finished behind with 301.

After scoring 151's—four strokes off the pace—in the first two rounds, Alfonso Angelini, discharged from the Italian Army when his feet froze in the Russian campaign, and Cesidio Croce, mustered out when Italy capitulated in September, 1943, posted identical 73-74's in the final thirty-six holes today. They'll play off eighteen holes tomorrow for the $250 first prize and $120 second share out of a pot of $800, made up from two-dollar entry fees plus $200 given by the club in this strangest of all golf tournaments.

Zimmerman was the popular hero, however. A gallery of some 500 spectators trailed after the naval technician who sported a strictly un-GI baseball cap, a gray sweatshirt and a pair of sky-blue slacks. Zimmerman duplicated his first two 75's with an identical third round over the sharp dips, slopes and tricky greens of this layout, virtually in the shadows of Alben Hills.

Al had a hot streak on the way out in the final round. He birdied the first, fifth and sixth holes as he found his putting touch. He returned to the same steady golf the rest of the way around, winding up with a last round 76, good enough for the $90 third money and the Ben Loving cup, honoring the Petersburg, Va., pro killed at the Fifth Army front.

Back of Zimmerman came two more Italian professionals, both former Italian open champions—Pietro Manca, who had 303, and Ugo Grappasonni, the half-way leader, who blew up with an 81 final round for a 304.

Sixth was Pvt. Tom Bolt, southwestern simon pure star from Abilene, Tex. He was low scoring amateur with 306, although playing his first golf in two and a half years.

Pfc. Chester Sanok, GI baker from Belleville, N. J., wound up seventh with 310 and as low amateur from southern Italy won the Henry Styer Cup given in memory of the Lexington, N. C., amateur killed in the Italian campaign. Sanok was one stroke better than Allan Dailey, a former British Ryder Cup squad member.

Other 72-hole scores included:

Lieut. Charles Dudley, Greensville, S. C., 312; Aubrey Turrentine, Durham, N. C., and Sgt. Joe Vileno, Scarsdale, N. Y., both 313; Sgt. William Robinson, Philadelphia, 314; Capt. Jonas B. Wells, St. Louis, 316; Corp. Earl Howell, Richmond, Va., 318; Corp. John Smith, Marshall, Tex., 324; Navy Chief Specialist Harry Welch, High Point, N. C., 325.

Pvt. John L. Kozikowski, Greenvale (Long Island), 327; Sgt. Chester Taylor, Lake Champlain, N. Y., 328; Lieut. Milo Whisler, Portland Ore., 331; Sgt. Lewis Adesso, Ithaca, N. Y., 333; Sgt. Zeke Carello, Carbondale, Ill., 334; Pfc. Jack Rivers, Wilmington, Del., 336; Sgt. Robert Albright, Seattle; Pfc. Wallace Powell Jr., Kansas City, and Sgt. George Derosia, Ticonderoga, N. Y., each 337.

Sgt. Jerry Hughes, Brooklyn, 338; Sgt. Fred Knoderer, Kansas City, 339; Pfc. Roscoe Sherard, Atlanta, 340; Pfc. Rollie Rachel, Mansfield, Ohio, 344; Fred Wilson, Clarksburg, W. Va., 348; Corp. Joe Harvey, Deal, N. J., 351; Pvt. Al Banuet, San Francisco, 355.

800 Board Exchange Ship

Stockholm, March 11 (AP)—Approximately 800 Britons, Argentines, Turks and Portuguese began embarking today at Goeteburg aboard the repatriation ship Drottingholm, which will sail at midweek. The last group, including 60 Turkish diplomats, reached Goeteburg today by ferry from Denmark.

Report Romanian Reforms

Reds Play Up Army Pay Rise and Promise of Land to Soldiers

MOSCOW, March 11 (AP).—Reforms proposed for the Romanian Army and peasants were prominently reported today by the Soviet press. The dispatches, from Bucharest, said Minister of War Vasiliu Rascanu had announced the pay of soldiers would be increased and service men would be given first preference in the redistribution of landed estates.

Rascanu was reported to have pledged himself to eliminate from the army all "parasitical elements and those who oppose new ideas which will be the foundation of the new world."

Monastery Concealed German Radio Factory

Moscow, March 11 (AP)—Foreign slave labor was secretly used to produce radio equipment for the German armed forces in a factory located behind the walls of a Catholic church and monastery in Paradies, a small village in Brandenburg province, the Russian Army newspaper Red Star said today.

A Russian war correspondent and photographer investigating two golden doors behind the church altar discovered the entrance to the workshop located in the adjacent monastery, the paper said. It was filled with lathes, tools and supplies.

Numerous Italian, Czechoslovakian, French and Polish technicians formed the factory staff, said the Red Star correspondent. The factory had been transferred from western Germany to the monastery to escape Allied bombing. The foreign workers were housed in the upper floor of the monastery and assertedly were forbidden to appear on the streets under the threat of death.

3,413 Freed Prisoners Leave Odessa For Home

Moscow, March 11 (AP)—Nearly 10,000 American, British and French ex-prisoners of the Germans are awaiting repatriation at Odessa, Pravda said today, reporting that 3,413 sailed for home last week.

Last Wednesday and Thursday 969 United States soldiers and 227 officers left the Russian Black Sea port in steamers which also carried 1,391 Britons and 826 French nationals.

At present there are 2,000 United States soldiers and 250 officers in Odessa which has been turned into a transit camp for Allied nationals liberated in western Poland and eastern Germany by the Red Army.

One evacuation plane left Poland with eleven United States Army men and two British soldiers, Pravda reported, listing the Americans, without home addresses, as follows: Captains James, Dix, Ralph Anderson, Richard Kimball; Lieutenants Harold Zukor, William Buchals, Selif Goodman, John Aldofield, Frank Handler; Sergeants John Blaskow, Henry Andrews and Gilbert Hand. They were scheduled to continue to the United States by plane.

JAPS CLEARING SHANGHAI AREA

Chiang Calls On Chinese To Gird For Decisive Battle

Chungking, March 11 (AP)—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek told China today to gird for a decisive battle against Japan on the mainland amid reports that the enemy already was evacuating Japanese civilians and Chinese residents from Shanghai, apparently fearful of that great city's vulnerability to an American landing.

In a message commemorating the twentieth anniversary today of the death of Dr. Sun Yat-sen, the generalissimo told the Chinese they henceforth would have to shoulder a heavier responsibility in the war and exhorted them to double their war effort.

Mortal Blows Inflicted

Chiang declared Japan already had suffered mortal blows on land and sea, and that the Japanese strategy now was to prolong the war on the mainland in the hope of averting the collapse of her empire.

"A decisive battle on the mainland is drawing close," he said.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, first President of the Chinese Republic, was given posthumously the title of "father of the Chinese Republic" by the Nationalist party which Chiang heads.

Meanwhile, Chinese reports asserted that Japanese authorities had ordered all of their nationals from Shanghai and had set a deadline for 1,000,000 Chinese to leave the teeming city.

Refugees Flee To Manchuria

The Japanese evacuation already has begun, these reports said, and trains running northward were crammed with refugees. Japanese civilians from various towns along the strategic Shanghai-Nanking railroad also were ordered to evacuate, the Chinese sources said.

The evacuees apparently were headed for the Japanese puppet state of Manchuria. Chinese ordered to quit Shanghai reportedly were forbidden to carry valuables.

There were many indications the Japanese believed an American landing might be attempted in the vicinity of Shanghai and defensive preparations were reported in full swing, particularly in the Hangchow Bay region.

3-Power Conferences Held In Chungking

Chungking, March 11 (AP)—A series of three-power conferences on future phases of the war against Japan was disclosed today after the departure of Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in chief in southeast Asia.

Mountbatten was here Thursday through Saturday at the invitation of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek. He talked several times with Chiang and with Chinese and American staff officers.

Mountbatten declined to discuss the conversations, but it was believed the main subject discussed was the collaboration between the southeast Asia command and the China theater in coming operations.

An authoritative Chinese statement said complete agreement on all problems relating to further co-operation between the China theater and the Southeast Asia Command had been reached.

Gen. Hegenberger Named Head of 14th Air Force

Pioneer in Instrument Flying Succeeds Gen. Glenn

KUNMING, China, March 11 (AP)—Brigadier General Albert F. Hegenberger, of Castle Island, Boston, one of the pioneers of Army aviation, has succeeded Brigadier General Edgar E. Glenn as chief of staff of the United States 14th Air Force.

Glenn, a native of Kansas City, Kan., has returned to the United States for another assignment. He was chief of staff of the 1st Air Force at Mitchel Field, N. Y., before coming to China in March, 1943. His home is at 67 Hilton Avenue, Garden City, N. Y.

Hegenberger, like his predecessor a first world war graduate of the aviation section of the Army Signal Corps, was a partner of Lieutenant L. J. Maitland in the first non-stop flight from the United States, from Oakland to Hawaii, in 1927. In 1932, Hegenberger won the Collier Trophy for the first blind flight without a check pilot and solely on instruments, at Dayton.

Hegenberger was graduated from the Command and General Staff School and helped organize the Hawaiian Air Force. He served as chief of staff of the 2d Air Force for a year preceding his assignment to join Major General Claire L. Chennault's 14th Air Force. He arrived at Kunming last Feb. 7.

JAPS ISOLATED IN MANDALAY

Escape Routes To East Menaced, All Toward South Cut

Calcutta, March 11 (AP)—Veteran troops of the Indian 19th Division have tightened their grip on Fort Dufferin inside Mandalay, the Southeast Asia Command announced today.

At the same time headquarters disclosed the British 36th Division had captured Mongmit, 92 miles northeast of Mandalay, threatening Japanese escape routes to the east.

An additional threat to the Japanese were Chinese troops fanning west, south and east from Lashio, 140 miles northeast of Mandalay at the head of the old Burma road.

Routes To South Cut

British and Indian troops south of Mandalay in the Meiktila area increased their hold on the vital Thazi railway. The capture of Meiktila cuts all Japanese escape routes to the south, leaving them only torturous routes to the east toward Thailand and Indo-China.

There are no east-west roads capable of carrying vehicular traffic between Mandalay and Meiktila and the enemy troops caught in the Pakkoku-Meiktila-Mandalay triangle now face the choice of surrendering, a suicide fight or of abandoning their equipment for the long trek over forbidding mountain terrain toward Thailand.

In Mandalay some 50,000 Japanese troops were putting up fanatical resistance. Allied forces hold Mandalay hill, a key defense position at the northeast corner of Fort Dufferin, and fighting was reported on three sides of the bastion.

BATTLE FOR IWO IN FINAL PHASE

Marines Capture Most of Northeast End, Fierce Fighting Rages.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Monday, March 12—(AP) Most of the rugged northeast end of Iwo Jima was captured by U. S. Marines yesterday, and the remaining Japanese defenders were fighting viciously to hold the northern tip of the strategic island only 750 miles from Tokyo.

Resistance in the 1,000-yard deep triangle at the northeast was described as heavy in Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique today, but Maj. Gen Keller E. Rockey's Fifth division leathernecks were pressing forward with naval gunfire and artillery support.

Battle Near End

The bloody battle for Iwo clearly was in its final phase as the Third and Fourth Division Marines, in their 21 day of fighting, drove through Japanese lines to reach the beaches and capture most of the cliff-fringed northeast coast.

A single small pocket of Japanese was bypassed by Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth Division. This enemy force, in an area possibly 800 yards by 200, was still holding out at nightfall.

Japanses mortar and artillery fire was not mentioned today. The enemy's gun emplacements had been largely overrun, and the Marines now had to cope with frantic fire from automatic weapons and other smaller arms.

Admiral Nimitz said the Fourth division and Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third "drove through enemy lines to capture most of the east coast of Iwo island on March 11."

Heavy artillery and naval gunfire gave close support.

Previous reports had told of the Japanese showing signs of disorganization.

Bombers Hit Chicki Jima

Army fighter planes, operating from the southern air field on Iwo, raided Chichi Jima and Haha Jima in the Bonin islands, less than 200 miles north of Iwo. They scored hits on Chichi's airfield and harbor installations.

Liberator bombers of the strategic air force, Pacific ocean areas, also attacked the airfield on Chichi Saturday.

Marine planes started fires among Japanese positions in the Palaus and raided Yap, in the Western Caroljnes.

Morrie Landsberg, Associated Press correspondent at Iwo, said the Nipponese appeared to be milling about in disorganized groups under hammering by the Fourth Marine division on the right flank.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' Sunday communique credited the Fourth, whose front had lagged behind those of the Third in the center and the Fifth on the left, with substantial gains Saturday afternoon which carried up to Tachiiwa point, easternmost area on Iwo.

Nimitz said Japanese resistance, which repeatedly had been characterized as heavy up until Friday afternoon, was "decreasing at numerous points." Landsberg's dispatch spoke of light resistance to the Fourth's advances "indicating that the Japanese fight has played out somewhat."

The Fourth division by Friday night had compressed one group of the enemy into a pocket extending 300 yards inland from a 1,200 yard stretch of the east coast.

Farther north, a smaller pocket, 200 yards inland and 500 yards along the shore, stood against Leathernecks of the Fourth and others of Maj. Gen. Erskine's Third division. Erskine's men by Friday night controlled 1,400 yards of the northeast shoreline.

A third enemy pocket about a half mile square around Kitano point, northernmost spot on Iwo, confronted other Marines under Marines under Erskine and the Fifth division.

YANK FORCES ARE LANDED ON MINDANAO

MacArthur's Announcement Notes Speedy Capture Of 4 Villages

Manila, Monday, March 12 (AP)—Veteran 41st Division infantrymen under Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe, invaded Mindanao Island in the southern Philippines Saturday, landing against light opposition at Zamboanga after a thorough naval and air bombardment.

They quickly captured four coastal villages and drove toward the Zamboanga municipal center and the Wolfe airdrome, whose seizure would put American planes only 200 miles northeast of Japanese-held northern Borneo.

Strengthens Sea Blockade

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the operation today, saying the move strengthened the American blockade of the South China Sea and further severed Japan from her stolen East Indies empire.

The amphibious operation by units of Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger's 8th Army was at the southeasternmost point on Mindanao, second largest island of the Philippines. The invasion craft hit the beaches after mines had been swept from the 12-mile-wide Bisalan Strait.

General Doe's infantrymen, veterans of the Palawan invasion on February 28, secured the villages of San Mateo, San Jose, Calarian and San Roque and stabbed eastward along the coast toward the civic center of Zamboanga, only 2 miles away. It undoubtedly already is in American hands.

Actually In City Limits

The Yanks actually were in Zamboanga city the moment they set foot ashore, for the city covers 600 square miles, the entire end of the peninsula. In area it is one of the largest cities in the world.

The Tokyo radio said the Japanese garrison on Mindanao had "intercepted the enemy forces, and fierce fighting continues at this time." The Japanese said also that Yanks landed on Thursday on Basilan Island, across the narrow strait from Zamboanga. Basilan Island is about 35 miles long and 25 wide.

MacArthur said most of the enemy garrison was "caught off guard and has fled to the hills in disorder."

Control West Shore

He declared that "we now control the entire length of the western shores of the Philippine islands, from the northwestern tip of Luzon to the southwestern tip of Mindanao—a distance of approximately 800 miles."

American reconnaissance planes were already operating in the South China Sea, MacArthur said.

Mindanao was the twenty-first Philippine island invaded. It is 1,200 miles east of Singapore and 1,200 miles north of the Netherlands East Indies.

Mindanao is 1,200 miles east of Singapore and 1,200 miles north of the Netherlands East Indies.

On Luzon the First cavalry and Sixth infantry divisions were continuing the systematic reduction of Japanese pillbox and cave positions along the stubborn Shimbu line east of Manila.

Clear Verde Island

The 11th airborne division and the 158th regimental combat team kept up their drive along the southern short of Luzon, clearing the north end of the Verde island passage between Luzon and American-held Mindoro.

Other Yank units on Luzon put a tighter squeeze on Baguio, Summer capital of the Philippines.

Heavy bombers dropped 80 tons of explosives on waterfront facilities at Formosa, encountering no interception. A patrol bomber attacking shipping off the northwest coast of Borneo sank or damaged a 1,000-ton freighter-transport, a coastal vessel, a schooner and two tugs.

Zamboanga was hit with 300 tons of bombs Thursday and Friday as Liberators joined warships in the pre-invasion pounding. Barracks and supply areas were set afire.

Zamboanga is a city of 132,000 on the extreme southwest tip of the "beak" which appends to turkey-shaped Mindanao.

Mindanao has been one of the hotbeds of guerrilla resistance to the Japanese since shortly after the enemy overran Luzon.

In recent months the guerrillas, often led by American army officers and supplied by submarines, have confined the Mindanao Japanese to the larger cities and garrison strongholds.

FILIPINOS BURNED BY FOE

Americans Find New Evidence of Japanese Atrocities

MANILA, March 11 (AP)—A spokesman for Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today the discovery of evidence that the Japanese military in Manila had blown up a building in which there were approximately 500 of their own wounded and then "used vast quantities of gasoline to further burn and attempt to destroy all evidence."

The incident, the spokesman said, occurred Feb. 8 in the mined Philippine Women's College building.

"There is a growing volume of evidence," he said, "that death by burning is a typical practice of the Japanese military."

A Japanese diary found in Manila told how the author participated in burning in the Intramuros of Filipinos described as guerrillas. The document referred to the burning of a group of 1,000 early in February.

ECUADOR CABINET QUITS

Resignations Follow a Stormy Session of Congress

QUITO, Ecuador, March 11 (AP)—The Ecuadorian Cabinet resigned tonight but President José Maria Velasco Ibarra refused to accept the resignations.

These developments followed a stormy session of the Constitutional Congress in which wild shots were fired from the spectators' gallery and police dispersed 300 persons who were milling around the assembly hall. The convention then adjourned at 3 A. M.

The assembly had given the President power to grant amnesty to political prisoners who were without major responsibility for the acts of the regime of former President Carlos Arroyo Del Rio, now in exile.

Shots in Ecuador Assembly

Fired by Spectators As Ibarra Wins Power of Amnesty

QUITO, Ecuador, March 11 (AP).—At a stormy session during which shots were fired in the spectators' galleries, a constitutional assembly today gave to President Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra power to grant amnesty to certain political prisoners. The convention adjourned at 3 a. m. after police dispersed 300 persons who milled around the assembly hall. No one was injured by the shots fired during the debate.

The President was authorized to grant amnesty to persons who were without major responsibility for the acts of the regime of former President Carlos Arroyo del Rio, who preceded Velasco Ibarra in office and now is in exile.

COLOMBIA CATHEDRAL USED AS BOMB CACHE

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 11 (AP)—Several hundred homemade hand grenades were found in sacks beside an organ in the cathedral here today following rumors of a projected uprising against the government of President Alfonso Lopez.

A special judge was assigned to investigate the case and Archbishop Ismael Perdomo tonight expressed the church's disapproval of any subversive movement against the President.

In a formal statement the Archbishop said he was painfully surprised at the discovery and promised canonical sanctions against those responsible for the act, which he called criminal and sacrilegious.

The search of the cathedral was carried out in cooperation with the Catholic hierarchy.

The Government newspaper, Liberal, said twenty persons had been arrested, many of them Conservatives who make up the Opposition party, and that firearms and ammunition had been found in their homes.

The Partido Socialista Democratico, formerly the Communist party, issued a statement urging the working classes to aid President Lopez "against elements instigated by the fascist fifth column," and the Bogota radio urged members of the liberal party to stand by the President.

VARGAS WON'T RUN, HE SAYS

Not Candidate, Brazil's President Asserts

Rio de Janeiro, March 11 (AP)—President Getulio Vargas announced today he would not be a candidate in Brazil's forthcoming election—the first to be held since he became head of the Government in 1930.

Speaking to newsmen at a testimonial luncheon, Vargas declared: "I ask nothing for myself. I am not a candidate."

The President, who was interrupted repeatedly by applause, said he would not abandon his post "either through violence or aggression," and would turn over the office "to my legally chosen successor."

"I shall not deceive the people of Brazil," he added.

Promised Elections "Soon"

Vargas promised the elections "soon' in a "calm atmosphere."

Following his decree amending the Constitution, the President gave evasive answers when asked whether he would be a candidate. It was indicated at that time he would be available should he be drafted by a political party. Today's declaration still leaves that possibility open.

Whether Vargas would be a candidate had been one of the hottest questions in Brazil's presently intense political activity. Opposition forces to date have presented a united front behind Air Maj. Gen. Eduardo Gomes, but Gomes has not said whether he would accept.

Visit By Valadares

The subject of candidates received a new twist over the week end with a visit to Sao Paulo by Benedito Valadares, governor of the state of Minas Gerais. He told newsmen he went there to find a "patriotic solution to the question of presidential succession." The opposition has claimed that Valadares has been acting for the government trying to set up a third candidate and split the opposition.

Vargas announced March 1 that he would fix within 90 days the date for a general election and modified the constitution—which he established in 1937—so as to return to the people the direct vote in the election of president, governors of states, parilament and state legislative assemblies.

Today's luncheon was attended by about 600 newsmen from all over Brazil for the announced purpose of paying homage to Vargas for the newsmen's minimum wage law decreed last Nov. 17. The President devoted most of his speech to tracing social security measures, his government, and his reasons for establishing a minimum wage scale for newspaper offices throughout Brazil.

He got prolonged cheers when he insisted upon the rights of editors, copyreaders, and reporters for higher wages, and greater security guarantees.

Pilot Jack Kenny Missing

OTTAWA, March 11 (AP).—Pilot Officer Jack Kenny, son of Josef Kenig, of 102 West Seventy-third Street, New York, is missing after air operations, the Department of National Defense for Air announced today.

Jap Legislator Killed In Bombing Of Tokyo

San Francisco, March 11 (AP)—Friday's record 300-Superfortress raid on Toyko killed Yoshitaka Furuya, 67, veteran member of the Japanese House of Representatives.

Furuya was on duty as a volunteer fire fighter, said Domei (Japanese) news agency in a broadcast to occupied Asia intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission.

Furuya, nine-term veteran of the Diet since first elected in 1915, had been councilor in the Railway Ministry and parliamentary vice president in the Home Ministry.

JAP PREMIER SEES INVASION

"Sacred Motherland" May Be Battleground, Diet Told

San Francisco, March 11 (AP)—Japanese Premier Kuniaki Koiso, addressing the Imperial Diet today, warned the people of Nippon that they must prepare for the time when their "sacred motherland" will become a battleground.

The remarks were reported by the Japanese agency Domei in a broadcast.

Koiso declared "the present war situation is very serious." He called upon the Japanese people to renew their confidence in "sure victory" and to prepare to fight in "defense of the national structure and the sacred motherland, whatever hardships may be in store for them."

Hints At Indo-China Invasion

Speaking of the situation in French Indo-China, where Japanese moved to take complete control last week, Koiso said the military situation had "become so intensified that a full-scale invasion of the region may be expected at any minute."

The report did not make clear whether Koiso meant that he thought an Allied landing there was imminent, or whether he referred to possible additional Japanese operations in that area.

The Premier spoke of "reckless enemy advances'" in the Philippines and on Iwo Jima and said American air-raids by Superfortresses and carrier-based p[illegible] on the Japanese homeland, reached "serious proportions." But, he added, his Government would speedily adopt "bold measures" to meet the situation.

Sees Invasion As God-Sent

Koiso said "judging from the past enemy strategy of reckless advance on the basis of material superiority, the enemy may in the near future start a blind, direct advance to our mainland in his desperate effort to end the war as soon as possible." An invasion of Japan proper, he said, would be "the God-sent opportunity for the decisive battle. . . .

"If the enemy should invade waters near our mainland we will crush him on the sea. If he should attempt to land, we will intercept him at the water's edge and drive him back into the sea. If he should finally succeed in landing, we will annihilate him with sledge-hammer blows.

"Geographical advantage will be with our side because the battle will be fought on our home ground. There will be solid unity among us. . . .

"What is more, we can count upon the brilliant strategy of our high command and the grim determination of our officers and men to defend the country to the last.

". . . I am more than confident that we will never allow the enemy to stay on our sacred motherland alive."

War And Naval Ministers Speak

Koiso's pledge of "bold measures" to meet the critical war situation was seconded by War Minister Gen Sugiyama and Navy Minister Mitsumasa Yonai.

Sugiyama told the Diet that an attempt to invade the Japanese homeland would be a "God-given opportunity" for Nippon suicide airmen and "new weapons" to send enemy warships and transports "to the bottom of the sea." In event of an actual landing, he added, "we have a sure program of destroying them all."

The War Minister spoke of the "distinguished leadership" of Gen. Tomyuki Yamashita, Japanese commander in the Philippines, and Lieut. Gen. Tadamichi Kuribayashi, commander on Iwo Jima. He said the fights there were delaying actions and that Japanese "bleeding" tactics have already cost the Americans 70,000 casualties on Luzon and 20,000 on Iwo.

Sugiyama read this message from his Iwo commander: "Despite the gallant fighting put up by my men, a part of the islan[illegible] has been lost to the enemy for which I am filled with great trepidation, especially when I think of the future of our sovereign and our country, and if this airbase, so close to our capital, should be lost to the enemy, I feel my heart bursting."

In a message to the House of Representatives, the Iwo general said the battle there was "becoming more and more grim and sanguinary," but pledged his garrison "to crush the enemy."

Admiral Yonai said "it was regrettable" that no serious losses could be inflicted upon the United States fleet task force which recently sent carrier planes to raid Tokyo.

JAPS ALL BUT CUT FROM EAST INDIES

Nimitz Says Time Is Near When South Lifeline Is Gone

San Francisco, March 11 (AP)—Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz today said the time is almost at hand when the Japanese will be unable to operate any shipping whatever to the Netherlands East Indies or to their holdings on the South China Sea."

American submarines are operating freely along the China coast now and "our fleet is approaching the extreme westward part of the Pacific Ocean."

The Admiral made the statements at a press conference here after his daughter, Mary, had christened the U.S.S. Buck at a destroyer launching at Bethlehem.

U.S. Fleet Rules Sea

The United States fleet has taken command of the sea and can go where it needs to go, but the Japanese still have their Asiatic continent land lines and their army is 90 per cent intact, Nimitz said, in warning that after the war in Europe is over the United Nations still will "have to go all-out to destroy or defeat Japan."

He added that it would take overwhelming sea, land and naval power to cut Japan off from the Asiatic mainland which supplies her food, coal and critical war supplies, and pointed to the narrowness of the gap of sea between the Continent and Nippon itself.

Anxious For Foe's Fleet To Appear

As to the Japanese fleet, it is "so inferior in strength in comparison to the United States fleet that it must choose its time to come out. Our policy is to keep so concentrated a fleet that no matter when this time may be, we will have a large reception committee.

"Nothing would suit our plans better than to have the Japanese fleet attempt to interfere with our operations. It would mean early destruction of what is left of that naval force; simplify our job in the Pacific; result in multiple operations instead of single ones."

Final Battle Under Army

Amplifying remarks made recently at a press conference in Washington, the Admiral reiterated that there is no conflict between the Army and the Navy, no jealousy of command; that each has its own task.

Although the Japanese homeland is in the area now under his command, he said the battle against the Nipponese after initial amphibious operations there or on the Asiatic mainland obviously would be an Army job, with the Army command directly responsible to the joint chiefs of staff.

Nimitz added that the Navy under his command still would have the transport and supply job and also would be responsible to the joint chiefs of staff.

BYRNES CREATES COMMITTEE FOR EXPORT CONTROL

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP) A committee to program American exports so that they will not reduce United States capacity to fight or interfere with essential domestic needs, was set up today by War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes.

Leo Crowley, Foreign Economic administrator, was named chairman of the committee which will consist of representatives of the Department of State, War Shipping Administration, War Production board, War Department, War Food Administration and Navy department.

Committee to Control Exports

"It is to be understood," said Byrnes in a letter to Crowley, made public at the White House, "that no agency of the government may enter into formal or informal commitments for the export of supplies other than for essential military purposes such as direct Lend-Lease and supplies in the wake of battle, to foreign countries, without first receiving the approval of this committee."

On the committee, besides Crowley, will be: Will L. Clayton, assistant secretary, State department; Capt. G. Conway, War Shipping administration; Lt. Gen. Brehon Somervell, War department; Judge Marvin Jones, War Food administration; Capt. L. H. Strauss, Navy department.

The total stated requirements of the various agencies for the April-June quarter considerably exceed the prospective supplies of these particular food items.

Asked Byrnes' Help

Itself unable to effect an allocation satisfactory to the various claimants, the WFA has turned to Byrnes for assistance in trimming demands to the size of the supply.

It has been the policy of the WFA to ask the Army and the Foreign Economic administration to submit figures quarterly on quantities of various foods they expect to need for the coming quarter. The FEA represents Lend-Lease countries and the United Nations Relief and rehabilitation administration. The WFA itself acts as representative for civilians.

Once all agencies have submitted estimates, the WFA makes allocations from supplies expected to be available. Usually military demands come first, civilian needs second, Lend-Lease third and foreign relief last.

The matter or allocating supplies has become complicated with the advance of the Army in Europe. Having taken on the task of relief feeding in many areas, the Army has been increasing its demands rather sharply.

On the other hand, UNRRA has been making plans to take over relief feeding in some areas now being supplied by the military, and the Lend-Lease administration has made moves to help supply France.

All this has resulted in a heavier impact on the American food supplies.

WFA officials believe there may be some duplication in the stated requirements.

The whole problem will be discussed at conferences this week to be attended by representatives of the Army and the Navy, the WFA, the Foreign Economic administration, and Byrnes' office.

Complicating the task of meeting war foods requirements are prospects of a 20 to 25 per cent reduction this year in production of meats, 10 to 15 per cent in fats and vegetable oils, and a 10 per cent reduction in supplies of sugar.

SENATE BACKING IS EXPECTED FOR SECURITY PLANS

Survey Shows Only 20 Members Oppose Dumbarton Oaks Principles.

AWAIT COAST PARLEY

New Senator from North Dakota to Back World Peace Organization.

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP) A quiet checkup has convinced administration lieutenants that as of today fewer than 20 votes would be cast in the Senate against a world security treaty patterned on Dumbarton Oaks principles.

Avoiding formal polls, administration supporters have been busy since the Yalta conference sounding out sentiment, particularly among the newer members. They have known pretty well for some time what most of the veterans think about plans for a world league to keep the peace by forceful means, if that method becomes necessary.

Sources which can not be identified publicly at present say that as the situation now stands it seems doubtful more than a half dozen Democrats and twice as many minority members can be counted in opposition to the fundamental doctrine laid down at Dumbarton Oaks.

They concede there may be arguments about details, protests about methods and criticism of personalties. But it is their contention that there presently is sufficient strength to obtain a two-thirds vote of approval for a treaty.

Roll Call Certain

Senate consideration of such a world-shaping document is likely to end with a roll call in which just about every member of the Senate who isn't physically incapacitated at the time will cast his vote. If all 96 participated, opponents would need 33 votes to defeat it.

MAR 12 1945

It is emphasized, however, that the calculation of a maximum of 20 "no" votes is based on present conditions and on the assumption the Dumbarton Oaks agreement will be carried to fruition at the San Francisco security conference without major changes.

Appointment of Milton R. Young to the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Moses (D-ND) last week placed in the Republican ranks a member who said he is an "ardent supporter" of a world peace organization.

Backers of the peace league proposals have not forgotten that the original Senate opposition which defeated American participation in Woodrow Wilson's League of Nations was small. But they argue that there is one radical difference this time. The Senate will be considering peace measures while there is fighting going on, at least in the Pacific, and not after hostilities have ended.

Those senators who don't want the United States to join any international organization that could conceivably infringe on this country's right to decide when it shall fight, frankly expect the San Francisco meeting to develop some controversies which will carry over into Senate treaty consideration.

Differences Expected

Perhaps the most potent of these lies in the differences that may arise over the roles of small and large nations in the organization. Foreign-rooted minorities loom large in the voting strength of several states.

Adherents hope that the extent of power to be given an American delegate to the proposed security council will not become an issue at San Francisco. They want the question decided in legislation apart from the treaty.

The Yalta agreement on council voting procedure apparently was favorably received by the majority in the Senate. But its grant of power to the large nations to veto the use of force against any country is likely to be discussed at length.

Any of these questions or something entirely new can arise to upset present administration calculations.

Truman Sees Senate Okay Of Yalta Plan

New York, March 11 (AP)—Vice President Harry S. Truman predicted tonight the Senate would indorse the "Big Three" Yalta peace plan, which, he asserted, would be further implemented at the forthcoming San Francisco United Nations conference.

Speaking at the forty-first anniversary dinner of the New York Advisory Board of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society, of Denver, Col., Truman said he discussed the Yalta agreements and plans for world peace with the President when the latter returned from the Crimea.

"At the San Francisco conference we intend to implement that peace and in the Senate of the United States we intend to indorse that peace," Truman said. "We are going to look forward to the most glorious period in the history of the world."

First Navy Unit Citation Given Old Cruiser Helena

Washington, March 11 (AP)—The first Navy unit citation has been awarded the light cruiser Helena for outstanding heroism against Japanese forces in the Solomon Islands-New Georgia area in 1942 and 1943.

The Helena was lost in Kula Gulf in July, 1943. A new light cruiser bearing the name is now under construction.

The newly created citation was established December 20, 1944, by James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, with the approval of the President.

The vessel's citation said in part: "Her brave record of combat achievement is evidence of the Helena's intrepidity and the heroic fighting spirit of her officers and men."

Her Skippers During Actions

Officers who commanded the vessel during the actions for which she was cited, were, successively:

Capt. Gilbert C. Hoover, Bristol, R.I., who commanded the Helena during the Battle of Cape Esperance and the Battle of Guadalcanal.

Rear Admiral (then Captain) Charles P. Cecil, Louisville, Ky., who commanded her during her final engagement in Kula Gulf.

All personnel serving on the Helena during one or more of the three engagements mentioned in the citation will be authorized to wear the Navy unit commendation ribbon.

Morgenthau On Money Pact

Minneapolis, March 11 (AP)—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, tonight urged congressional ratification of the Bretton Woods monetary agreements as a "necessary first step toward getting and keeping foreign markets for thousands of American products."

Unless the agreements become operative, he said, "the strides toward peace and security at Dumbarton Oaks, at Mexico City and at Yalta, as well as the further steps that will be taken at San Francisco, may end only in frustration.

"Peace to be secure must rest on the firm foundation of thriving industry within nations and profitable and expanding commerce between them."

Speaks To "Sell" Pact

His address was prepared for a meeting of the Foreign Policy Association and the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce Association. It was one of several speeches which Morgenthau said he is making to "sell" the Bretton Woods pact "to the people and, through them, to Congress."

The agreements reached at a conference of 44 nations in Bretton Woods, N.H., last July form "an essential segment of the peace program," Morgenthau said.

They proposed the establishment of an international bank for reconstruction and development of war-torn nations and an international monetary fund to perfect a system of fair monetary practices between countries.

Cites Soviet Subscription

Morgenthau said Russia's $300,000,000 subscription to the bank on the final day of the conference—in addition to her original $900,000,000 subscription—was "a symbol of her determination to co-operate wholeheartedly with us and the other United Nations in the task of reconstruction and development."

"The Bretton Woods program offers currency stability to facilitate trade, and credit protection for sound international loans," the Secretary said. "Both will benefit the American people through an increased and more stable market for their products.

"Of course (the agreements) by themselves are not going to restore our foreign markets . . . but they are a necessary first step . . ."

FOOD PLAN AWAITS ACT OF 2 NATIONS

Ratification Required To Put Program In Operation

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Ratification by only two more nations is needed to put into operation the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations, L. B. Pearson, Canadian Ambassador, revealed today.

Pearson, chairman of the United Nations interim commission on food and agriculture, which was formed at the Hot Springs (Va.) international food conference in 1943 and authorized to draw up a constitution and tentative program for the new organization, said eighteen nations had agreed officially to accept the plan.

Twenty Acceptances Required

Twenty acceptances are needed to bring the constitution into force.

Nations which have accepted are: Australia, Belgium, China, Czechoslovakia, Dominican Republic, Egypt, Guatemala, Haiti, Honduras, Iceland, India, Mexico, Netherlands, Nicaragua, Norway, Philippines, Poland and the United Kingdom.

Acceptance for Poland came from the Polish Government in exile in London, Pearson told a questioner. He added: "This occurred last October."

Not Submitted To Congress

The plan has not been submitted to the Congress of the United States for approval, although President Roosevelt indicated in his February 2 message on the Bretton Woods proposals that it would be soon.

Pearson said action was pending in a number of other countries.

All 44 nations participating in the Hot Springs conference a year and a half ago have been represented on Pearson's interim commission.

DEFENDS CARE OF VETERANS

Negroes' Voice At Frisco Asked

Hines To Discuss Hospitalization At Session Today

Washington, March 11 (AP)—Brig. Gen. Frank T. Hines, Veterans' Administrator, said today he will "go into the whole question of veterans' hospitalization" tomorrow with commanders of three veterans' organizations.

Asserting "our hospitals are on a par with any in this country," General Hines answered recent criticism against his administration in a radio interview.

Representative Philbin (D., Mass.), last Wednesday introduced a House resolution for a congressional investigation of what he called "alleged intolerable conditions and irregularities" in the treatment of hospitalized war veterans.

Investigations Under Way

Hines said today he is making "a thorough investigation of every hospital."

"In addition," he said, "in order that all the facts may be known to the American people, I have invited the national commanders of the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans and the Veterans of Foreign Wars to meet with me tomorrow here in Washington and go into the whole question of veterans' hospitalization.

"I know, too, that millions of veterans who have been treated in veterans' facilities during the past twenty years will also make their views known.

Facts To Be Publicized

"And I intend that the facts, and all the facts, developed shall be given to the public, without any attempt to embellish or belittle."

Of assertions that the death rate in veterans' hospitals is high, General Hines said:

"Many of our patients are old. They are the fighters of former wars and they seldom go to a hospital until they are in a very bad physical condition. It is not unusual for many of these old-timers to die but I'll challenge anyone to say that the death rate among younger men, and particularly veterans of this war, is any higher in a veterans' administration facility than it would be in any other hospital in the country."

Hines said that 29 World War veterans, or less than two per cent, have died at Mount Alto, a veterans hospital here.

Detroit, March 11 (AP)—Representative Powell, New York Negro Democrat, said today it was a "must" that his race be represented at the San Francisco United Nations conference.

In an address prepared for delivery under auspices of the Research Bureau for Negroes' Postwar Economic Security, Powell said:

"The Negro can no longer be considered as a minority. He is living in the 'One World' that the late Wendell Willkie envisioned and, as a member of 'The Century of the Common Man' proclaimed by (Commerce Secretary) Wallace, he belongs not only to the one billion people of the darker races but also to the . . . peoples of other races who are determined to build a people's world."

He proposed leaders of each national Negro organization, himself, and his Negro Congressional colleague, Representative Dawson (D., Ill.), be chosen to attend the San Francisco conference, which opens April 25.

GEN. DONOVAN TO BE QUERIED

House Group To Ask About Army Policy On Communists

Washington, March 11 (AP)—A House committee will question Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan tomorrow about reports that some Communist sympathizers are working in his office of strategic services.

Donovan was called to appear before a subcommittee of the House Military Affairs Committee which is investigating army policies toward commissioning Communists.

"We want to explore the whole field and get all the information possible," Subcommittee Chairman Thomason (D., Texas), said.

To Be Re-Examined

In addition to Donovan, the subcommittee will re-examine War Department officials who testified earlier that there were no Communists in important uniformed or civilian posts within the department.

Maj. Gen. Clayton Bissell, head of Army Intelligence, told the committee several days ago there were no Communists in the Army as officers.

Against Army Policy

He said it was against army policy to commission persons whose loyalty to the United States has been questioned.

The committee recalled him for further examination Tuesday, however, following a published assertion that ten Communists held commissions in either the Army or Navy. Bissell said that to his knowledge, no person ever affiliated with the Communist party held an officer rating in the Army.

Commando Kelly to Wed Today in Columbus, Ga.

Date Is Anniversary of Hero's Medal of Honor Award

ATLANTA, March 11 (AP).—Technical Sergeant Charles E. Kelly, better known as Commando, who slew forty Germans in twenty minutes and won the Congressional Medal of Honor, will be married in Columbus, Ga., tomorrow, he announced here today.

Sergeant Kelly met his bride-to-be, Miss May Boish, of Pittsburgh, here yesterday. He had declined to say where the ceremony would be performed until today. The wedding was set for tomorrow, he said, because March 12 "means something to me—it's the anniversary of the day I won that medal."

The medal was given Sergeant Kelly a year ago for his feat in holding an Italian town against the Germans single handed. Kelley said he used mortar shells hand grenades, tank guns and practically every other Army weapon in bringing down the forty Nazis.

Sergeant Kelly is an instructor in heavy weapons at Fort Benning, near Columbus. He came here on a three-day pass and presumably will have to report back for duty soon after the wedding tomorrow.

The couple passed the afternoon sight seeing, including a trip to the zoo at Grant Park.

EXTORTION TRIAL DEFENSE IS READY

Unionists' Attorneys Silent On Their Argument Today

New York, March 11 (AP)—Joseph S. Fay and James Bove, building trades union officials, charged with extorting more than $250,000 from firms constructing New York city's $300,000,000 Delaware water supply project, will have their day in court tomorrow, but their defense was still their attorney's secret.

The State, in a seven-count indictment voted 22 months ago, charged that Fay, 51, vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers (AFL), and Bove, 44, former International vice president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union of America (AFL) had conspired to extort $703,000 from the contractors and had extorted $420,000 from the firms.

Charged With Plotting Threat

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, in an opening statement last Monday to a jury selected from a special panel, charged that Fay and Bove sought to levy a flat one per cent tribute by threatening labor trouble and picket lines.

Chief Defense Counsel John W. McGeehan countered with a statement to the jury that the defendants would maintain that any monies received by them were given without threats.

Throughout the week officials of contracting firms were on the stand as prosecution witnesses.

Says He Gave $50,000

John S. MacDonald, former vice president of Association Contractors, Inc., which held a $21,333,333.33 contract on the aqueduct, testified Fay and Bove sought $250,000 from the corporation, informing him that "if we did go along, there would be no labor troubles." He said he personally had given Bove $50,000 in cash.

Another firm associate, Thomas J. Walsh, testified he had given Fay and Bove a total of $212,000 at a rate of $3,500 a month, but he said on cross-examination that neither defendant had threatened him with strikes or picket lines.

Miles I. Kilmer of the New York firm of Mason and Hanger, which held a $15,000,000 contract, testified he paid the men $36,000 in three instalments.

Says He Paid For "Good Job"

Louis R. Perini, president of a Wellesley, Mass., firm with a $2,800,000 contract, said he agreed to pay between $25,000 and $35,000 after a $50,000 demand for a guarantee of "good laborers, good men, no strikes and no lockouts."

At that point, McGeehan announced during a noon recess of court that the defense would be predicated upon a section of the penal code which makes it a misdemeanor to offer money to a duly appointed representative of labor to influence his decisions.

District Attorney Hogan, in a surprise move when court convened Friday, rested the State's case.

Supreme Court Justice William H. Munson denied McGeehan's routine motions for a dismissal of the indictment on the ground of insufficient proof.

MINE OPERATORS HIT BOARD RULING

WASHINGTON, March 11.—(AP) Rebuffed by the National Labor Relations board in trying to stop a nation-wide miners' strike vote, Southern coal operations probably will challenge the Board's ruling in the courts.

The operators awaited formal notice from the Board that it had rejected their petition before announcing the next step. It was learned authoritatively last night that the board, acting with extraordinary speed, had voted unanimously to deny the petition without hearing.

Under consideration today was a proposal that the other bituminous operators groups—Northern, Western and Illinois—join with the Southern Coal Producers association in any court action the latter might take. The Southern unit represents about one-third of the industry.

Edward R. Burke, head of the Southern association, said "we consider it an outrage in this supreme hour to stop production of coal while 400,000 miners go to the polls and vote on the question of whether they want to tie up all coal production."

"It ought not to be permitted to happen," Burke, former Nebraska Senator, said. "If there is any way we can stop it we propose to do so."

Filed Friday by Burke and John C. Gall, the petition provoked the first open controversy of the week-old negotiations for a new contract between John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers and the nation's bituminous operators. The present contract expires March 31.

The proposed strike vote, prompted by Lewis' notice of February 26 that a dispute existed under terms of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes act is scheduled for March 28.

Synthetic Rubber Needed

U. S. Production Must Increase Sharply in Two Years

WASHINGTON, March 11 (AP).—Production of synthetic rubber in the United States must continue to rise sharply this year and next in order to meet military and essential civilian requirements.

The Rubber Reserve Company, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, announced today that the 1945 schedule is for 1,000,000 long tons. The 1946 schedule is for 1,200,000 tons. Last year's output was 763,255 tons.

Production for each of the next two years will exceed average annual world consumption in the ten years before the outbreak of war. Largest world consumption for any pre-war year was 1,108,000 tons in 1939.

3 DEAD AND 9 MISSING IN ARMY PLANE CRASH

MONTAUK, POINT, L. I., March 11.—(AP) Three Army fliers were killed and nine others are missing in the crash of a heavy bomber off Montauk Point late Saturday, the First Service Command announced tonight.

The plane was on a combat training flight from Westover Field, Chicopee, Mass., the Army said.

Coast Guard and other rescue craft recovered two bodies today and the family of a third victim was notified of his death. Search continued for the others.

The bodies recovered were those of Lt. M. B. Tolle, 24, Hillsboro, Ohio, the pilot, and Cpl. T. W. Ayres, 19, Sussex, N. J., radio operator. The family of Cpl. R. L. White, 20, of Milton, Mass., was notified of his death.

LONDON, MONDAY MARCH 12-(AP)-RED ARMY SPEARHEADS THRUSTING EAST AND NORTH IN THE TERRITORY NORTHWEST OF DANZIG ARE SHREDDING NORTHEASTERN POMERANIA INTO SMALL, ISOLATED SECTORS AND THREATENING TO SEPARATE THE TRAPPED GERMAN DEFENDERS OF DANZIG AND POLAND'S PRE-WAR PORT OF GDYNIA, MOSCOW DISCLOSED LAST NIGHT.

GERMAN BROADCASTS INSISTED THAT THE NAZI FRONT BETWEEN DANZIG AND GDYNIA HAD NOT BEEN SPLIT, BUT THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST FROM MOSCOW REPORTED RUSSIAN TROOPS WERE WITHIN EIGHT MILES OF THE BAY OF DANZIG BETWEEN THE TWO CITIES, HAVING CAPTURED KOELLN, 12 MILES NORTHWEST OF DANZIG AND NINE SOUTHWEST OF GDYNIA.

A SUPPLEMENTAL REPORT FROM MOSCOW EARLY TODAY ADDED THAT OTHER SOVIET FORCES WERE PUSHING EASTWARD NORTHWEST OF GDYNIA AND FIGHTING ON THE APPROACHES TO NEUSTADT, 13 MILES FROM GDYNIA AND 10 FROM THE COAST, THREATENING THE PORT WITH IMMINENT ENCIRCLEMENT.

NEITHER THE REGULAR SOVIET COMMUNIQUE NOR THE SUPPLEMENT GAVE ANY REPORT OF OPERATIONS OF THE RED ARMY AT BESIEGED STETTIN, THE BALTIC PORT NORTHEAST OF BERLIN WHERE MARSHAL G.K.ZHUKOV'S FORCES ARE BATTERING AT STRONG NAZI DEFENSES.

THERE WERE NO FRESH REPORTS FROM EITHER SIDE OF THE PROGRESS OF BATTLES ON THE ODER RIVER LINE DUE EAST OF BERLIN. THE LAST NEWS OF THAT SECTOR WAS A GERMAN REPORT THAT THE SOVIETS HAD TAKEN HALF OF THE FORTRESS CITY OF KUESTRIN AND THAT FIGHTING IN THE STREETS CONTINUED.

THE MOSCOW REPORTS STRESSED GAINS OF THE SECOND WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY NORTHWEST OF DANZIG AND ADVANCES OF OTHER SOVIET FORCES SOUTHEAST OF THE FORMER FREE CITY.

THE LATTER, PUSHING NORTHWARD ALONG THE VISTULA RIVER'S EAST BANK AND SMASHING GERMAN DEFENSES BASED ON THE NETWORK OF CANALS IN THE DANZIG DELTA, CAPTURED LIESSAU, 17 (CORRECT) MILES SOUTHEAST OF DANZIG, AND TOPPLED THE GERMAN STRONGPOINT AND RAIL JUNCTION OF NEUTEICH, WIPING OUT THE EQUIVALENT OF A BATTALION OF ENEMY INFANTRY.

TO THE NORTHWEST, MARSHAK KONSTANTIN K.ROKOSSOVSKY'S TROOPS SPEARED 16 MILES NORTHWEST FROM CAPTURED LAUENBERG AND TOOK LEBA, "AN IMPORTANT STRONGHOLD ON THE BALTIC SEACOAST."

OTHER UNITS, ADVANCING EASTWARD MORE THAN 12 MILES, KILLED MORE THAN 2,300 GERMAN OFFICERS AND MEN AS THEY TOPPLED DEFENSES AT KOELLN AND PUSHED TOWARD NEUSTADT.

SECOND LEAD BRIDGEHEAD

BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 11-(AP)-THE U.S.FIRST ARMY EXPANDED ITS REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD EAST OF THE RHINE TODAY TO THREE MILES DEEP AND NINE MILES WIDE AND BROUGHT ARTILLERY ACROSS THE RIVER FOR HEAVY FIRE IN SUPPORT OF TANKS, TROOPS AND TANK DESTROYERS.

LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES FIRST ARMY NOW HELD EIGHT GERMAN TOWNS ON THE EAST BANK, AND ITS PUSH TO THE NORTH AND SOUTH DEPRIVED THE GERMANS OF CLOSE OBSERVATION OF THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, REMOVING SOME OF THE DANGER TO THAT BRIDGEHEAD LIFELINE.

ADVANCES ON THE BRIDGEHEAD HAVE GONE SLOWLY, BECAUSE OF THE NECESSITY OF GETTING SUFFICIENT STRENGTH ACROSS THE RIVER, BUT NOW WITH ARTILLERY ACROSS TO GIVE CLOSE SUPPORT TO TROOPS, TANKS AND TANK DESTROYERS, THE PRESSURE SHOULD BEGIN TO TELL.

TOWNS CAPTURED INCLUDE ERPEL, LINZ, RHEINBREITBACH, UNKEL, BRUCKHAUSEN, OHLENBERG AND DALTENBERG.

THE GREATEST ADVANCES, NOW BACKED WITH STRONG ARTILLERY AND TANK SUPPORT, WERE TO THE SOUTH, WERE A 2,000-YARD ADVANCE WAS MADE IN THE AREA FROM WHENCE MUCH OF THE GERMAN ARTILLERY FIRE ON LUDENDORFF BRIDGE WAS COMING.

FROM MIDNIGHT UNTIL 2:45 P.M. THE GERMANS PUMPED 217 ROUNDS OF ARTILLERY INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD, MOST OF IT DIRECTED AT THE GREAT LUDENDORFF BRIDGE, WHICH IS THE LIFELINE OF TROOPS, ARMOR, AND ARTILLERY AND THE MASSED FIGHTING FORCES PACKED INTO THIS HOLD ON THE EASTERN SIDE OF THE RHINE.

FROM MIDNIGHT TO 6 A.M., ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRED 50 ROUNDS ONTO THE BRIDGEHEAD. FROM 7 A.M. TO 10 A.M., ANOTHER 73 ROUNDS EXPLODED, 24 MORE IN THE NEXT HOUR, AND 53 BETWEEN 11 A.M. AND NOON. LATER 17 MORE CAME OVER.

THE PUSH TO THE NORTH AND SOUTH DEPRIVED THE GERMANS OF CLOSE OBSERVATION OF THE BRIDGE, AND REMOVED SOME OF THE DANGER TO THE SPAN WHICH HAD BEEN UNDER INTENSE FIRE FOR THE LAST TWO DAYS. THERE IS NOT SO MUCH DANGER OF A HIT ON THE BRIDGE FROM GUNS TO THE EAST SINCE A HILL RISES ABRUPTLY FOR 300 FEET AND AFFORDS A SHIELD AGAINST ARTILLERY FIRE FROM THAT DIRECTION.

HODGES CONTINUED TO BUILD UP STRENGTH IN THE BRIDGEHEAD. IT CAN BE DISCLOSED THAT IN THE LAST FOUR DAYS MANY THOUSANDS OF TROOPS HAVE CROSSED INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD WITH ARMOR AND ARTILLERY IN A SURGE WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO SLOW.

THIS PHASE OF THE OPERATION IS MUCH LIKE THAT DURING THE EARLY STAGES OF THE NORMANDY INVASION. ONCE ASHORE, THE FIRST ARMY RAPIDLY BUILT UP RESERVE STRENGTH AND THEN LASHED OUT TO EXPAND ITS HOLD AND PUSH ENEMY ARTILLERY OUT OF RANGE OF THE LANDING. THAT IS WHAT HODGES NOW IS DOING.

RHEINBERG, GERMANY, MARCH 11-(AP)-SGT.ANTHONY L.MAZZOLI OF WATERLOO, N.Y., INCHED DOWN TO THE BANKS OF THE RHINE RIVER NEAR WESEL TODAY AND SAW THAT THE RETREATING GERMANS HAD BLOWN THE LAST OF THEIR NINE BRIDGES ALONG THE U.S.NINTH ARMY FRONT.

IT WAS DARK AND SHIVERY ON THE RIVER'S BANKS--AND THE WATER WAS COLD BUT, ON HIS RETURN, MAZZOLI SAID WITH SOME SPIRIT:

"WELL, THERE'S THE RIVER. DO WE SWIM OR WAIT FOR A BOAT?"

MAZZOLI PROBABLY WON'T BE ASKED TO SWIM THE BIG STREAM BUT HIS WILLINGNESS TO TAKE THE PLUNGE TYPIFIES THE AGGRESSIVE ATTITUDE OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.(TEXAS BILL) SIMPSON'S HARD-HITTING ARMY.

MAJ.GEN. CURTIS E.LE MAY, COMMANDING THE 21ST BOMBER COMMAND COMMENTED ON THE INCREASING NUMBER OF SUPERFORTS IN RECENT ATTACKS ON JAPAN AND PROMISED THAT THE RISE IN NUMBERS WOULD CONTINUE.

"ALL THE JAPS HAVE TO LOOK FORWARD TO IS THE TOTAL DESTRUCTION OF THEIR INDUSTRIES. CITIES AND OTHER VITAL TARGETS DEVOTED TO THEIR WAR EFFORT," LE MAY SAID.

TODAY'S STRIKE WAS THE EIGHTH ATTACK ON NAGOYA.

EARLY IN JANUARY BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS SAID PREVIOUS BLOWS HAD BLASTED THE KOKUKI AIRCRAFT FACTORY ON NAGOYA'S WATERFRONT 70 PER CENT OUT OF COMMISSION.

THE KOKUKI FACTORY, ONE OF THE MITSUBISHI COMPANY'S OLDEST PLANTS, WERE A LARGE PORTION OF JAPAN'S FIGHTERS AND BOMBERS WERE MANUFACTURED. ALSO WAS SEVERELY DAMAGED IN A DEC.18 RAID. PHOTOGRAPHS SHOWED NINA BUILDINGS DESTROYED AND 38 OTHERS DAMAGED OUT OF A TOTAL OF 9[illegible] IN THE ESTABLISHMENT.

THE POPULATION OF NAGOYA PROBABLY IS AROUND 1,500,000 WITH A HIGH PERCENTAGE OF ALL WORKERS ENGAGED IN SOME PHASE OF AIRCRAFT PRODUCTION.

IN AND AROUND THE CITY LIES THE SOURCE OF PROBABLY 40 TO 50 PER CENT OF THE TOTAL JAPANESE OUTPUT OF FIGHTING AIRCRAFT AND COMBAT PLANE ENGINES.

THE TARGET AREA FOR TODAY'S RAID WAS A TRIANGULAR SHAPED CENTRAL CORE BOUNDED ON THE EAST AND SOUTHEAST BY THE CHUO RAILROAD LINE AND ON THE WEST AND SOUTHWEST BY THE TOKAIDO MAIN LINE, SO A SUCCESSFUL INCENDIARY ATTACK ON THE AREA WOULD DESTROY OR DELAY

30-24— 23825

ESSENTIAL FREIGHT TRAFFIC ON THESE PRINCIPAL RAIL ARTERIES.

A GREATER POPULATION MASS LIVES IN THE TARGET AREA THAN IN THE CITY AS A WHOLE. IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT 75,000 PERSONS LIVE IN EACH SQUARE MILE OF THE PART OF THE CITY HIT BY THE BOMBS, AS AGAINST 20,000 PER SQUARE MILE FOR THE ENTIRE METROPOLIS.

THE TARGET SECTION INCLUDED THE PRINCIPAL COMMERCIAL DISTRICT AND THE CITY GOVERNMENT CENTER. IT HAD SOME MANY-STORIED BRICK AND STONE PUBLIC STRUCTURES AND GROUPS OF LARGE DEPARTMENT STORES, OFFICES BANKS AND OTHER BUSINESS BUILDINGS. THESE WERE GENERALLY OF MODERN FIRE-RESISTANT CONSTRUCTION, BUT THEY ARE CROWDED EVERYWHERE BY CLOSE-PACKED BLOCKS OF HIGHLY INFLAMMABLE HOMES, MANY OF WHICH WERE SMALL FACTORIES OR "HOME INDUSTRIES."

IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE PREVAILING WINDS OVER THE TARGET WOULD SPREAD THE FIRES TO INCLUDE A MUCH GREATER AREA, AS HAPPENED AT TOKYO WHERE ONLY 10 SQUARE MILES WERE ACTUALLY HIT BUT 15 BURNED.

WHILE TOKYO ATTEMPTED TO MODERNIZE AFTER THE 1923 EARTHQUAKE, NAGOYA DID NOT, AND IT IS BELIEVED THAT THE CITY IS 90 TO 95 PER CENT WOODEN CONSTRUCTION.

NAGOYA HAS NO FIREBREAKS, AS HAS TOKYO, OTHER THAN THOSE PROVIDED BY THE WINDING SHONAI RIVER, SEVERAL CANALS, THE HORI RIVER AND SOME WIDE STREETS WHICH CONNECT THE CITY WITH WAR PLANTS IN OUTLYING DISTRICTS AND WITH THE NORTH COAST OF HONSHU ISLAND.

WITH 6TH DIVISION, LUZON, P.I., MARCH 10-(DELAYED)-(AP)-AIRPOWER, IN GREATEST STRENGTH TO DATE IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC WAR, IS BEING EMPLOYED TO GIVE CLOSE SUPPORT TO GROUND OFFENSIVES AIMED AT CRACKING THE POWERFUL JAPANESE SHIMBU LINE EAST OF MANILA.

GEN.DOUGLAS MACARTHUR'S COMMUNIQUE TODAY REPORTED 1,000 TONS OF BOMBS WERE DROPPED ON THE JAPANESE LINE IN THREE DAYS. A THOUSAND TONS UNLOADED IN SUPPORT OF GROUND FORCES MAY BE SMALL POTATOES COMPARED TO OPERATIONS IN THE EUROPEAN THEATER, BUT OUT HERE IT IS UNUSUAL.

THE FIFTH AND 13TH AIR FORCES HAVE LONG PROVIDED CLOSE GROUND SUPPORT IN ADDITION TO LONG RANGE BOMBING AND BEACHHEAD COVERAGE. BUT WHEN IT COMES TO LAYING BOMBS RIGHT IN FRONT OF ADVANCING INFANTRY, THIS IS THE FIRST TIME SUCH CLOSE SUPPORT HAS BEEN USED EXTENSIVELY.

MAJ.A.W. LONG OF (206 ROCKWELL TERRACE) FREDERICK, MD., 5TH AIRFORCE SUPPORT AIRCRAFT PARTY COMMANDER, SAID THERE WERE THREE MAIN REASONS WHY THIS TYPE OF ACTION IS NOW UNDER WAY.

"IN THE FIRST PLACE," HE SAID, "THIS IS THE FIRST TIME WE'VE REALLY HAD PLENTY OF PLANES OF VARIOUS TYPES AND CAPABILITIES TO REALLY DO THE JOB. WHEN WE ASK FOR THEM NOW WE GET THEM QUICKLY AND GENERALLY IN THE NUMBERS REQUESTED.

"SECONDLY WE HAVE FOUND AIR SUPPORT IS THE BEST WAY TO SOFTEN UP DEFENSES LIKE THIS SHIMBU LINE, WHERE THE JAPS ARE FIRING ARTILLERY FROM REVERSE SLOPES UNREACHABLE BY OUR ARTILLERY.

"THIRD, WE CAN THROW IN PLENTY OF BOMBERS WITHOUT WORRYING ABOUT FIGHTER PROTECTION BECAUSE THERE WAS ONLY A NOMINAL THREAT OF INTERCEPTION AT THE START OF THE LUZON CAMPAIGN AND NONE NOW."

THE SUPPORT IS WORKING SO WELL, LONG SAID, THAT ONE BATTALION COMMANDER WHO FOUND HIS TROOPS STOPPED AND PINNED DOWN BY ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE CALLED FOR AERIAL ASSISTANCE. TWENTY MINUTES LATER DIVE BOMBERS PINPOINTED THE TARGET, SILENCING THE ARTILLERY FIRE AND OPENING THE WAY FOR THE INFANTRY TO ADVANCE.

THE KEY TO EFFECTIVE OPERATION OF SUPPORTING AIRCRAFT PARTIES IS THE FORWARD CONTROLLER WHO STICKS WITH THE ADVANCE UNITS AT OBSERVATION POINTS AND GUIDES PILOTS.

PILOTS AND BOMBARDIERS HAVE ACHIEVED REMARKABLE ACCURACY ON THE SHIMBU LINE. IT TAKES LOTS OF SKILL PLUS SOME LUCK TO PLANT A 1,000-POUND BOMB IN THE MOUTH OF A CAVE, BUT IT HAS BEEN DONE. ONE BOMB HIT RIG TT

ABOARD ADMIRAL MARC A.MITCHER'S FLAGSHIP IN JAPANESE WATERS (DELAYED)-(AP)-THE DAY AFTER HE FLEW OVER TOKYO AND BOMBED AN ENGINE FACTORY LT.H.W.WILEY, OF WASHINGTON PARK GARDENS, SPRINGFIELD, ILL., HAD A DREAM.

"I DREAMED OF A NEW WAY TO SELL WAR BONDS," HE SAID. "WHEN YOU DROP A BOMB, THE ARMING WIRE REMAINS IN THE PLANE. THESE ARMING WIRES ARE FROM TWO TO FOUR FEET LONG; JUST A PIECE OF WIRE WITH A SMALL FASTENER AT THE END. WE SAVED A GREAT MANY OF THEM FROM THE TOKYO RAID.

"A LOT OF PEOPLE WOULD LIKE TO HAVE SUCH WIRES AS SOUVENIRS AND I DREAMED WE COULD SELL A LOT OF WAR BONDS IF WE PILOTS OFFERED TO SEND THE FOLKS BACK HOME AN ARMING WIRE FROM A ROCKET BOMB AS A PRIZE FOR EACH $100 BOND THEY PURCHASED, AND A WIRE FROM A 500-(097, $ 94 LARGER BOMB FOR EACH $1,000 BOND PURCHASED.

"WE COULD ATTACH A NOTE SIGNED BY THE PILOT STATING THE TIME AND PLACE THE BOMB WAS DROPPED AND WE WOULD EVEN PAINT THE NAME OF THE BOND PURCHASER ON THE BOMB BEFORE IT IS DROPPED.

"WOULDN'T THAT SELL SOME BOMBS?"

LT.M.M.STONE, OF RICHMOND HILL, GA., AND RALEIGH,N.C., BELIEVED THAT IT WOULD, SO THEY ARE SUGGESTING IT TO THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

MEANWHILE, IF ANYONE IS INTERESTED IN TOKYO SOUVENIRS, THE TWO PILOTS HAVE A FEW TO SEND TO CHAMBERS OF COMMERCE OR OTHER CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS IF THEY WILL GUARANTEE THEY WILL GO TO BOND PURCHASERS. (B20KX CORRECT)

AMERICANS SEIZE TWO MORE TOWNS IN EASTWARD PUSH

First Expands Bridgehead to Five Miles Deep, 11 Miles Wide.

PATTON DRIVES AHEAD

40,000 Troops Employed in Drive Threatening Ruhr Basin.

Bestmaf

PARIS, March 12.—(AP) The U. S. First army jumped off early today in the first big Allied assault east of the Rhine, scored gains up to two and a half miles, and expanded its bridgehead to nearly five miles deep and 11 miles wide.

NIGHT

At least two more towns were seized, bringing to 23 the number captured on the east bank since the Americans charged across the Ludendorff bridge from Remagen Wednesday.

The Germans said Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had thrown 40,000 troops, including two armored and two infantry divisions, into the push which placed the Ruhr's factory cities in their gravest peril of the war.

Yanks Drive Eastward

The greatest American advance was eastward. More than four miles almost due east of Remagen bridge, tanks and infantry seized Ginsterhahn and Hargarten, slashed across a German lateral supply line, and pressed to within three miles of a super highway to the Ruhr.

Previously the Americans had driven five miles north into Honnef on one main highway to the Ruhr, and were less than 25 miles from the southern region of the 600-square mile basin teeming with war factories. One counterattack was beaten back at Honnef today.

Eleven miles south of Honnef forces driving south fought into Hoenningen, six miles southeast of the Ludendorff bridge.

Patton Drives Ahead

Third army troops of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., advanced another 4 1-2 miles eastward along the north side of the Moselle river to reach the vicinity of Reil, giving Patton's forces control of all the north bank of the river except for a ten-mile gap from Reil to Kochem.

Other units gained the same distance in an eastward drive across the tip of the Germans' dwindling Moselle salient. More than 10 towns were cleared during the day.

In the last week the Third army has captured 16,000 of the 50,000 prisoners taken on the Western front. Associated Press Correspondent Edward D. Ball said the Third army had destroyed one-half the combat strength of the German Seventh army during the Eifel operations now drawing to a close. Since the Ardennes collapse the Germans have lost 185,000 prisoners, or the equivalent of 20 divisions, Ball said.

Action was brisk on the First army's bridgehead, with some German planes slipping through beneath the clouds and American fighter cover to strafe the ground forces, but the new attack continued unabated.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said the attack rolled over the steep, wooded hills of the Westerwald in the blackness of 5 a.m.

Nazis Hit Back

At first the Americans were met by small arms, self-propelled guns and a few tanks, but later the Germans threw crack units into the line and began striking back with small counter-thrusts.

The Germans were hurled from height east of the Rhine and to the south. This robbed them of direct observation of their artillery fire, which was cratering the bridgehead and had scored a number of ineffectual hits on the Ludendorff bridge, the Remagen lifeline.

Boats shuttled men and supplies across the Rhine to lift some of the load from the bridge, and the Germans said Hodges had established "many Rhine crossings" north of the bridge.

Whitehead said that Hodges had so much power massed across the river that only a major counter-assault would budge it.

German broadcasts said the Americans also were attacking northeast of Honnef, which lies astride one of the main roads to the Ruhr, and said the furious fighting around Honnef was so fluid that it was not known which side now held the town.

Honnef is five miles north of Remagen, and is the closest approach to the southern end of the Ruhr.

Enemy broadcasts predicted that soon Field Marshal Montgomery would lash out across the Rhine north of Wesel in a grand scale offensive to clamp a giant pincers on the Ruhr.

A news dimout settled over most of the Western front, where for 150 miles along the Rhine Gen. Eisenhower holds the initiative and has armies in position to cross at any number of points.

One enemy account said the British Second army was making "frantic preparations" for a crossing between the Dutch border and Emmerich, nine miles to the east.

Artillery Guns Duel

Artillery duels raged across the river, the enemy said, as German batteries tried to knock off balance what the Nazis apparently believed would be a large-scale Allied offensive.

There was little news seeping through from the U. S. Third army front, where Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces drew up assault lines a mile from Coblenz and to the west had broken the once huge Eifel mountain trap containing 23,000 Germans into two small packets.

Patrolling flared on the dormant U. S. Seventh army front at the foot of the Saar basin and in northeastern France, with German raiding parties trying to get details on the mounting American strength in that sector.

Gains in the Remagen bridgehead overnight were measured in hundreds of yards, but they were important ones since they were clearing the Germans from dominant heights and prepared the way for today's attacks.

Every yard gained decreased the accuracy of enemy artillery fire, which in the five days since the Americans crossed has been the main opposition.

This country into which the Americans are charging is known as the Westerwald, densely wooded hills 600 to 900 feet high guarding the south flank of the Ruhr and the north German plain.

Foe Reports 40,000 Americans East Of The Rhine

MAR 13 1945

Long

Paris, March 12 (AP)—First Army troops, lashing out an hour before dawn today in their first co-ordinated attack since seizing their Rhine bridgehead, deepened and widened their foothold by more than a mile.

Backed by tanks and heavy artillery that had been concentrated in the bridgehead, the infantry went into action at 5 A. M. The thrust to the east carried beyond Ginsterhahn, 3 miles east of Linz on a valuable north-south road. The doughboys got within 3 miles of the Autobahn, a superhighway running to the Ruhr.

40,000 Across, Nazis Say

Today's gains expanded the bridgehead to a depth of 4½ miles and a width of 11 miles, and the Germans said Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges had succeeded in building up his force east of the Rhine to four divisions, or more than 40,000 men.

Hargarten, 3½ miles east of the Ludendorff Bridge, was overran in the advance and the Americans were fighting in Hoenningen, 4¼ miles south of Linz, Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead reported.

Slowly but steadily streams of American arms moved across the Rhine—much by the shell-raked Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen and some by assault boat—in a race against German artillery still trying night and day to wreck the span.

Hodges Crosses River

General Hodges crossed the bridge by jeep yesterday and one German shell landed within 50 feet of him. He spent an hour east of the Rhine. German heavy and medium guns were firing methodically in an attempt to score a knockout hit on the bridge.

Berlin broadcasts said two American tank and two infantry divisions were deployed east of the Rhine between Honnef and Hoenningen. Honnef is 44 miles southeast of Duesseldorf.

British Drive Also Forecast

The Germans said a large-scale British drive to cross the lower Rhine was also imminent. Increased artillery fire and scouting were noted in the 40 miles of smoke-screened country between Emmerich and Nijmegen.

It was not likely that at this stage of the Remagen bridgehead operation Hodges was still depending on the Ludendorff span alone. Pontoon bridges could easily have been thrown across the Rhine along the stretch held by the Yanks, which supreme headquarters many hours ago said was at least 9 miles wide.

Supreme headquarters maintained silence not only about the bridgehead but also about the Eifel pocket where the 1st and 3d armies were mopping up the last of some 23,000 Germans who failed to escape across the Moselle and Saar rivers.

3d Army Takes 14 Towns

The 3d Army besieged Coblenz from positions at the city's outskirts.

Other 3d Army soldiers cleared all the west bank of the Moselle except a 15-mile gap between Cochem and Erden and captured fourteen towns.

[The German DNB news agency said the German Moselle bridgehead at Niederbreisig, Brohl and Newied had been evacuated "according to plan." Reuter heard this broadcast.]

3,996 More Prisoners

The 1st and 3d armies took 3,996 prisoners yesterday.

The whole 150 miles of the west bank of the Rhine from Coblenz to Nijmegen was firmly in Allied hands.

Medium and light bombers cut through heavy clouds and attacked five freight yards and a communication center in an arc from the Ruhr to south of Coblenz. Fighter-bombers patrolled the Rhine bridgehead and struck road and railway junctions in the rugged Westerwald just behind the front.

Flareups On 7th's Front

The long-quiet 7th Army front along the south fringe of the Saar district saw flares of local action, reflecting the increased menace to the Germans between the Moselle River and the Alsace border. American moves near the Maginot fortress of Bitche provoked heavy rains of mortar and artillery fire. German raiding parties were broken up near beleaguered Saarbruecken and in the Haguenau area above Strasbourg.

Hodges had thrown so many men, cannon and tanks into the Westerwald east of Remagen that nothing less than a major German attack could budge his men—and there was no indication that the Nazis woud be able to organize such an attack from the ashes of their defeat west of the Rhine.

Eight Cross-Rhine Towns Taken

At least eight German towns east of the Rhine were under the American flag.

"The surprise of the crossing was so complete that the Germans have been unable in five days to organize a counterattack in any strength," Correspondent Don Whitehead reported from 1st Army headquarters. Whitehead said the main weight of the American drive was being hurled south, the direction from which the Germans were firing on the bridge.

A street battle was under way in Honnef, 5 miles north of Remagen on the east-bank road to Cologne and the Ruhr. Other 1st Army troops were advancing south along the river road beyond Linz along the Lorelei rock stretch of the Rhine gorge and inland beyond Bruchhausen and Ohlenburg into the Westerwald black rock hills.

Ehrenbreitstein Ahead

Although the 3d Army was besieging Coblenz, it still had to cross the mouth of the Moselle River before fighting into the main part of the city. Across the Rhine from Coblenz, the rock fortress of Ehrenbreitstein was a formidable Nazi bastion. Ehrenbreitstein is Germany's Gibraltar of the Rhine.

A patchy fog covered the whole Western front at dawn but appeared to be lifting at places in mid-morning.

The Germans reported more Rhine crossings established north and south of the Rhein-Breitbach in the bridgehead just south of Honnef.

CLOSE CALL FOR HODGES

Shell Lands On Bridgehead 50 Feet From Him

MAR 13 1945

By HOWARD COWAN

With U.S. 1st Army across Rhine, March 11 [AP—Delayed]—From the traffic around this bridgehead, you'd think somebody had struck oil.

And in the thick of this traffic, Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges came across for an hour's inspection of the bridgehead which his soldiers were pushing out on the flanks. He came in the midst of a shower of enemy shellfire, and one shell landed within 50 feet of the commander. No one was hurt.

The Germans still are shelling the entire countryside, refusing to give up the thought they can knock out the Remagen bridge. If the air forces could get one decent day in the skies, they could pulverize the perimeter of the bridgehead.

Fingers Of Flame

I flew across the Rhine into the bridgehead area. Long lines of vehicles were snaking up. Behind us, big guns of the heavy artillery outfits barked steadily. Noise echoed up and down the valley.

Low mist hanging over the bridgehead area collared some of the hills that rise from the east bank. Fingers of flame spurted out from American gun positions south of the bridge and high in the hills. A German shell landed in the river and a column of water spouted high.

The little town of Remagen has taken a terriffic pounding from German shells. But the streets are full of civilians and soldiers and vehicles.

I crossed the river in an artillery spotter's cub, piloted by Major James Townsend, of Stanton, Ky. Capt. Robert Maxwell, of Pittsburgh, brought my bedroll and typewriter.

They Land Anywhere

It's amazing the way these cub pilots get around. They land anywhere. Major Townsend's outfit rushed down to the bridgehead with the big guns the morning after the 9th Armored Division seized the bridge. Since then, they have been all over the front lines.

Lieut. Randall E. Pack, of Indianapolis, had a close call yesterday. He was flying Lieut. David J. Read, of Oswego and Syracuse, N.Y., on an observation mission when a Focke-Wulf 190 whined in to make a pass at the bridge.

Ack-ack opened up and, Townsend said, "for a minute the cub and Focke-Wulf were flying alongside each other." The cub slipped down and flew so low that it bounced off a hill. The German went on in with its bomb for the bridge, but missed.

Gen. Hodges Has Narrow Escape Across Rhine

By Howard Cowan

East of the Rhine, March 11 [AP—Delayed]—Lieut. Gen. Courtney Hodges crossed into the east Rhine bridgehead today amid a rain of enemy shells. One shell landed within 50 feet of the 1st Army commander.

The General spent an hour inspecting the bridgehead, which his troops were extending on the flanks while meeting rock-hard pressure in the middle. No one was wounded when the shell exploded.

The Germans have not given up the idea that they can knock out the Remagen bridge. They are shelling the entire countryside in an effort to hit it, but the American stuff still keeps moving across. Twice in the past 30 minutes single German planes have come down the river and made passes at the structure.

One Clear Day Needed

One good clear day to enable American fifhter-bombers to batter the perimeter of the bridgehead would make all the difference in the world.

Hodges's forces have a powerful punch building up, but the Germans must have a great deal of power moving in here to meet it. If the sun would dispel the smoky mist that drapes these hills so that Mustangs and Thunderbolts could go to work on some of the German tanks and guns, the march to Berlin from the west would be on.

Sooner or later this will happen and everyone from rifle-toting Yanks to the generals is confident—but say the folks back home should not get too excited for a while.

More High Ground Vital

The 1st Army does not have all the high ground it needs—a fact that the enemy realizes. That is why tanks and infantry of every description have been scraped together and thrown around it.

Meanwhile one of the most serious problems is what to do with German civilians—or at least those in civilian clothes. It is strange the number of empty Wehrmacht uniforms the Americans keep finding in the area.

Food Problem Acute

The food problem is becoming acute and it is a cinch that the Army does not intend to stop the flow of ammunition and gasoline to the troops just to haul food for the Germans.

So the citizens of Erpel, Honnef, Linz and the other villages in the bridgehead may be sent over to the west bank.

Boats are busy ferrying material across the river, leaving the bridge for infantry, tanks, jeeps and other vehicles.

Md. Boy Takes 15 Nazis In Last Act Of Roer Drive

MAR 13 1945

By Robert Eunson

Rheinberg, Germany, March 12 (AP)—They had come to the Rhine at Buderich, seventeen days out from that flaming jumpoff across the Roer.

A boy from Hagerstown, Md., named Bernard Hopp, inched forward. In the darkness he saw German helmets moving in a slit trench ahead. He was on them in an instant and back came fifteen prisoners. Hopp had only this to say:

"I was scared, but I acted on the belief the Krauts wanted to surrender."

Culminated Drive

Staff Sergeant Anthony L. Mazzoli, of Waterloo, N.Y., crawled back from the edge of the Rhine.

"There's a river down there," he reported. "Do we swim or do we wait for a boat?"

The doughboys in Hopp's and Mazzoli's squad didn't know it then, but their coming to the banks of the great west German river culminated Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's great Roer offensive which, in those seventeen days slashed 500 square miles out of German soil, made prisoners of 28,607 Nazis and occupied 350 German towns.

It was 10.30 Saturday night when a company of the 134th Regiment set out for the river itself. Lieut Charles H. Buchanan, of West Des Moines, Iowa, sent Mazzoli's squad out in the lead by a good 100 yards.

Earlier that day the company had climbed atop spearhead tanks and rode them into Buderich where more than 100 prisoners were taken as the last Nazi citadel west of the Rhine in this area fell to the Americans. Going down to the river was the last act.

Then Hopp saw those German helmets and picked up his fifteen prisoners. Mazzoli's squad moved on to Fort Blucher, three stone buildings standing on the Rhine. They edged to the river and took another ten prisoners.

Then Mazzoli saw the river and what used to be a railroad bridge, hanging broken in the rushing current. Ten Germans were there. They surrendered.

Mazzoli and his squad dug in so close to the Rhine they could hear its waters swirling along the muddy bank.

They're waiting for that boat.

68 Americans Ordered to End Cologne Chaos

Task in Battered City Is A.M.G.'s Biggest; Looted Two Days by Civilians

COLOGNE, March 12 (AP).—Forty-two American officers and twenty-six enlisted men, all trained in city administration, are embarked upon the biggest job yet tackled by the Allied Military Government in Germany—that of bringing order out of the chaos at Cologne, once a city of 725,000 population and now inhabited by probably 100,000 virtual cave dwellers.

For two days while the Cologne A. M. G. detachment was awaiting orders from higher up to start functioning, there were no police or city officials on duty in the terribly battered city. As a result, many German civilians looted abandoned homes and warehouses for food and clothing.

Today a group of seventy low-ranking city administrative officials were found huddled in a subteranean shelter by Captain Albert C. Schweizer, of 390 West End Avenue, New York. They had been given strict orders last Monday by the Nazis that under no circumstances were they to continue functioning after the Americans came.

As soon the A. M. G. took over, it clamped down on the looting. Cologne must stand on its own legs, without material American help, and therefore its resources must be guarded carefully, inventoried and then rationed.

The Gestapo's horrible prison presented another major problem. Despite medical attention, three-fourths of the prisoners died of starvation. Before the remaining tortured inmates, numbering about eighty, can be turned loose, they must undergo a medical check-up, because there is evidence of typhus in the city.

Luftwaffe Attacks Cub Planes

WITH THE UNITED STATES NINTH ARMY, Germany, March 12 (AP)—The once-powerful German Air Force has declared war on the Cubs, the tiny American planes used as artillery spotters. For the first time, Luftwaffe fighters are being sent out solely to attack these small slow craft that spot for our big guns shelling the factory cities of the Ruhr.

Commandos Raid Dutch Islands

Twenty-first Army Group in Europe, March 12 (A. P.).—A small force of British Commandos last night raided Schouwen Island, north of Walcheren, and the Beveland Islands, off the Dutch coast, and killed several Germans.

Cap'n Bill Gets The Shivers

East of the Rhine, March 11 [AP—Delayed]—Capt. Bill Yarbrough, of Little Rock, Ark., will remember for a long time the first rest he got in the bridgehead across the Rhine.

Yarbrough directed traffic at the Remagen bridge for two days without sleep. When finally he was relieved he was too tired to do anything but walk back into a tunnel at the east end of the bridge and hunt for a place to stretch out.

Halfway into the inky blackness of the passage he saw a handcar still on the rails. Two fellows were stretched out on it with blankets thrown over them. He crawled in between them but he could not go to sleep right away for shivering from the cold.

"All of a sudden, I wondered why they weren't shivering too," he said. "I raised up and looked under the blankets. They were dead Germans."

Foe Won't Billet Wehrmacht?

With U.S. 9th Army, Germany, March 12 (AP)—Reports to the United States 9th Army today said some tattered remnants of German divisions reaching the east bank of the Rhine near Wesel were having difficulty finding billets because civilians and police were forcing them from small towns, fearing the Allies otherwise would bomb and shell their homes.

Russians Capture Kuestrin

Key Point Falls After Week's Hard Fighting —Reds Ring Danzig and Reach Gulf.

London, March 12 (A. P.).—Kuestrin has been captured by the Red Army, Marshal Joseph V. Stalin announced tonight.

The fall of the Oder River Fortress was announced in an order of the day addressed to Marshal

Gregory K. Zhukov, commander of the First White Russian Army, arrayed along the Oder from Crossen to the Stettiner Haff.

Street-by-street Assault.

The key strongpoint, which the Germans had said must be liquidated before the Russians would begin the actual assault on Berlin, fell after a week of bitter fighting which culminated in street-by-street destruction of the citadel by dive-bombers, artillery and assault teams with bazookas, mortars and flame-throwers.

Meanwhile, Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky closed a tight ring around Danzig and smashed to the Gulf of Danzig, at a point twelve miles north of Gdynia. Marshal Stalin announced the fall of three cities—Putzig (Puck), twelve miles north of Gdynia; Wejherowo, twelve miles northwest of Gdynia, and the Vistula River communications center of Tczew, seventeen miles south of Danzig. Gdynia and Danzig are twin ports on the Baltic, at the head of the one-time Polish Corridor.

Meanwhile, the Russians were reported to be carrying out a large-scale regrouping of their armies preparatory to a massive push on the Berlin front aimed at linking up with Allied armies somewhere in the Elbe Valley, in central Germany.

Four Russian infantry divisions, supported by tanks and self-propelled guns, knifed into the Berlin defense field west of the Oder River tonight while other Soviet assault forces battered at Danzig and Stettin, the German radio announced. The Germans said that the Russians were attacking Berlin's defenders from bridgeheads south of Kuestrin and approximately forty miles east of the capital and had succeeded in merging all their separate thrusts "into a single attack on a broad front." There was no confirmation from Moscow of the assault toward Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said that the Russians might bypass Berlin as a knot of resistance in the drive to cut Germany in two and that the Elbe, which slices diagonally across Germany from Prague, in Czecho-Slovakia, to Hamburg, on the North Sea, might be as important in Soviet plans for future operations as the Vistula and Oder in past and current drives.

Forces Shifted

Moscow dispatches hinted that large forces of Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian Army were being shifted to the Oder from Pomeranian and Polish fronts to share the Oder battle line with Marshal Gregory Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army.

Rokossovsky had shortened his front vastly by a hard-driving offensive in Pomerania which had reduced the German-held pocket along the Baltic east of the Oder to a 35-by-20-mile area around Danzig and Gdynia.

He was speeding his assault on these two ports with an impatience which suggested that even larger parts of his armies might soon be freed for the climactic battle along the Oder.

Already, the Germans said today, the Russians were broadening their attacks east of Berlin. Four rifle divisions, with tank support, attacked repeatedly on a broad front between the two Oder River fortresses of Kuestrin and Frankfurt, the German radio said.

Probably taking advantage of the regrouping process on the Russian side, however, the Germans claimed a number of local successes.

They declared they had smashed back over the Warthe River into the new part of Kuestrin, 40 miles east of Berlin. The Germans say a furious battle has been raging for seven days, with Kuestrin as its focal point.

From Stettin the Germans also reported armored counterattacks which knocked out 28 Soviet tanks and regained a bridgehead on the east side of the Dievenow River, a link between Stettin Bay and the sea.

Berlin denied that the Russians had been able to gain a foothold in Altdamm, the Stettin suburb across the Order from the Baltic port.

Gdynia, prewar Polish port opening into Danzig Bay 12 miles northwest of Danzig, was threatened with encirclement as other Soviet troops striking east through Pomerania approached Neustadt (Wejherowo), Nazi stronghold north of Gdynia, a late Soviet war bulletin reported.

Capture of Gdynia and Danzig would leave the Nazis with only Pillau and Koenigsberg, on the opposite side of Danzig Bay, as escape ports for the scores of thousands of German troops trapped in eastern Pomerania, the Danzig Free City area and East Prussia.

Kuestrin Falls To Red Forces

Russians Launch New Drive from Bridgeheads, Nazis Report.

CLOSE ON DANZIG

MAR 13 1945

Oder Bastion Captured After Fierce Street Fighting.

LONDON, Tuesday, March 13—(AP) Kuestrin, the fortress city 38 miles northeast of Berlin on which the Nazis hinged their central Oder river line defenses, fell to the Red Army yesterday and its capture was announced by Premier Stalin even as the German radio was reporting a new Russian offensive from bridgeheads west of the river.

The new drive, unconfirmed by Moscow, merged thrusts from several Soviet crossings of the Oder south of Kuestrin "into a single attack on a broad front," the enemy broadcasts said.

Extend Oder Bridgeheads

Nazi commentators claimed this offensive was not a drive on Berlin itself, but was aimed at "extension of the Russian bridgeheads and at getting the Oder crossings out of range of German artillery."

Stalin's order of the day announcing the capture of Kuestrin was preceded by another order which disclosed that German defenses northwest of Danzig had been smashed by the Second White Russian army and that Soviet forces were closing in rapidly on the great port city itself.

The regular communique broadcast from Moscow indicated that only small isolated pockets of Germans remain to be mopped up in northeastern Pomerania on the approaches to Danzig.

Kuestrin fell to Marshal G. K. Zhukov's First White Russian army after a week of bloody street fighting. Much of the city, situated on the Oder's east bank at its confluence with the Warthe river, was destroyed as Soviet dive-bombers, artillery, mortars and flame-throwers blasted out the Nazi defenders.

A special broadcast from Moscow early today said the forces commanded by Zhukov smashed three defense belts around Kuestrin, stretching almost eight miles between the Oder and Warthe. These belts, the broadcast continued, included great numbers of pillboxes, trenches, anti-tank ditches, minefields, barbed wire entanglements and tank traps, and additional defenses were located in marshland east of the city.

Reds Flank Town

Some Soviet units flanked the town from the north, while others approached from the south.

German efforts to relieve the Kuestrin garrison with air attacks were beaten off by the Red air force while the troops ground forward through the streets.

The broadcast said victory came to the Russians "after repeated counterattacks by fresh German regiments and battalions, hurriedly moved up from the west, had been beaten off."

Berlin, usually well ahead of the Russians in announcing Eastern front developments, had not yet acknowledged the loss of Kuestrin early today.

There were many reports of fighting west of the Oder from Berlin. However, one of them implied that rumors were sweeping a frightened German populace, as it denied that Soviet airborne troops had landed near Berlin.

"Our troops," war reporter Hugo Murero broadcast, "have to face a hurricane of fire from 70 batteries and incessant bombing. The enemy attacked 25 times in regiment strength with tank support and, although he reached our lines here and there, he did not succeed in breaking through."

With the fall of Kuestrin, which had a pre-war population of 22,000, Zhukov's forces were arrayed along 120 miles of the Oder's east bank from Crossen, 65 miles southeast of Berlin, to the Stettiner Haff, the lagoon into which the river empties north of the besieged port of Stettin.

Smash Toward Stettin

Meanwhile the Russians pressed their heavy attacks on Stettin, Danzig and Gdynia.

In an earlier order of the day, Stalin announced the capture of Tczew (Dirschau), 19 miles southeast of Danzig on the west bank of the Vistula river; Neustadt (Wejherowo), 13 miles northeast of Gdynia, and Putzig (Puck), a coast town 12 miles northwest of Gdynia and 10 northeast of Neustadt.

The drives which toppled Neustadt and Putzig split the last sizable portion of northeast Pomerania held by the Germans and virtually completed the Second White Russian army's campaign in that area except for mopping up.

Battle Around Stettin

Berlin's Baltic port of Stettin remained under siege, but there was no fresh news of fighting there from Moscow. Enemy reports said the Red Army was attacking Stettin from two directions with at least four infantry armies and supporting armored forces.

While Stettin's suburb of Altdamm was stormed from the east and northeast, the Germans were thrown back at Klebow, 7 miles to the south, and were forced to abandon Buchheide, 4 miles south of Altdamm, they said. The Berlin radio added that other fierce battles developed at Hornskrug, 5 miles northeast of Altdamm, and in the Christianenberg area.

"If the hopes of Russian fighting men are realized," Daniel De Luce, Associated Press correspondent, wrote from Moscow, "Berlin may become only an isolated pocket of resistance to be liquidated while the main front rolls west toward a juncture with Allied armies.

"Little more than 300 miles now separate the Allies on the Rhine from Soviet bridgeheads across the Oder."

BOMBERS SMASH RUHR INDUSTRIES

British Heavies Pound Dortmund, Yanks Hit Swinemuende.

LONDON, March 12—(AP) Great fleets of American heavy bombers and the largest force of British heavies ever used in daylight formed a mighty armada of more than 2,550 planes which ravaged Germany's communications and industries from the Ruhr to the Baltic sea today, partly in direct support of Russia's armies.

As the war's greatest sustained aerial assault raged through its 28th day, the RAF, in the developing campaign to obliterate the Ruhr's industrial cities, sent more than 1,200 big Halifaxes and Lancasters to unload 5,000 tons of bombs on Dortmund. At the same time 650 American heavies blasted the German naval base of Swinemuende, clogged with seaborne reinforcements for Russian-besieged Stettin.

Huge Force Hits Dortmund

The British Air Ministry said the force hurled against Dortmund was even larger than the 1,200-plane attack unloosed Sunday on Essen—which would make the Dortmund attack the biggest yet in daylight by the RAF.

By smashing at Dortmund, the bombers made impassable, "at least for the time being," a vital center for transportation of critically needed coal from the Ruhr, without which German railways will be in desperate position, an RAF commentator said.

In addition to the Swinemuende strike, the U. S. Eighth air force sent 700 bombers and 750 fighters against six railroad yards between Frankfurt-on-Main and the Ruhr, while Liberators and Flying Fortresses from Italy attacked oil installations in the Vienna area.

One U. S. bomber and three fighters were missing from today's attacks. In the last six days, the Eighth has dispatched some 10,200 planes and lost only 28, fifteen of them bombers.

Only one flight in the protective clouds of fighters sighted enemy aircraft today. Four U. S. Mustangs pounced on four Messerschmitt 109's near the Danish border and shot down all of the Nazi craft.

The German radio warned the attacks were continuing tonight, reporting a "weak formation of fast bombers" approaching western Germany.

In the spectacular attack on Swinemuende the American force poured 3,250 five hundred-pound demolition bombs on military and naval installations in an effort to block the enemy's main supply route to Stettin, 35 miles to the southeast.

Although there was no confirmation from Allied sources, it appeared obvious that the assault was made at the request of the Russians, whose forces are surging toward Stettin from a distance of only 15 miles. The thunder of the bombardment—closest direct support American heavy bombers have yet given the Red army—probably was heard by the advancing Russian ground troops.

Bombers Over Stettin

The German radio reported bombers over Stettin itself, indicating the Fortresses and Liberators may have wheeled over the Pomeranian capital before roaring on to Swinemuende, which is on the outer harbor of Stettin in Pomeranian bay.

Recent reconnaissance has shown Swinemuende, one of the Nazis' best Baltic ports, full of activity. Despite its importance, the bombing fleet encountered only meager flak over the target and was not challenged by the German air force.

The British attack on Dortmund followed the pattern of yesterday's 1,000-bomber blow at Essen, 30 miles from Dortmund. Allied air officers estimate that 450 square miles of the Ruhr industrial basin now have been devastated, along with 65 other German cities outside the area.

While the main force of American heavyweights made the nine-hour 1,400-mile round trip to Swinemuende, 700 other Britain-based bombers and 750 fighters ripped rails and rolling stock at Siegen, Betzdorf, Dillenburg, Wetzlar, Friedburg and Marburg. The Italy-based heavy bombers hit railyards and bridges southwest of Vienna on the main line into northeast Italy.

A dispatch from Rome said the Brenner pass rail line between Germany and Italy had been closed to traffic for 45 straight days as a result of sustained bombing.

3,100 RAF, U.S. Planes Pound Nazi Towns

London, March 12 (AP)—More than 1,000 RAF Lancasters and Halifaxes dropped 5,000 tons of bombs on Dortmund today while 2,100 American warplanes battered the Baltic seaport of Swinemuende and other targets.

The main force of Britain-based American heavy bombers—650 strong—dropped 1,625 tons of high explosives on the German U-boat and naval base in direct support of Russian armies reported only 15 miles away. Swinemuende is 35 miles northwest of besieged Stettin.

The remainder of the huge American armada split up for attacks on railway yards behind the Western front.

An RAF spokesman also credited Allied bombers based in Britain with laying waste to more than 450 square miles of the Ruhr.

Naval Base For Stettin

Swinemuende is the naval base

and outer harbor for Stettin and is only 15 miles from where the most advanced Russian troops were last reported. Red Army troops, meanwhile, were hammering at the gates of Stettin.

The remainder of the bomber fleet split up for attacks on railway yards behind the desolated Ruhr Valley, the 8th Air Force announcement said.

Knocking out Swinemuende would hamper the sea supply route to the Stettin front. The rail and river links between Stettin and Berlin already are badly battered.

1,350 Heavy Bombers

The total force sent out by the United States on the twenty-eighth successive day of attacks on the Reich was better than 1,350 heavy bombers with an escort of 750 fighters.

In addition to the Baltic attacks, other heavies battered half a dozen towns between Frankfurt-on-Main and the Ruhr, which turn out the bulk of the German war materials. They included Siegen, Betzdorf, Dillenburg, Wetzlar, Friedburg and Marburg.

Returning to the assault against Germany's oil sources, United States 15th Air Force Liberators and Flying Fortresses from Italy bombed installations in the Vienna area while medium bombers ranged over northern Italy, blocking the Brenner Pass rail line for the forty-fifth straight day. Other Italy-based heavy bombers attacked railyards and bridges southwest of Vienna on the main line into northeast Italy.

28th Day Of Offensive

It was the twenty-eighth day of the Allied aerial offensive. Before noon sirens were sounding in every section of the northern Reich from Holland to Stettin and from Vienna to Munich in the southern Reich as bombers thundered in from Italy.

Allied Bombing Might Is Shown In Rhine Cities

Eisenhower Asserts Troops Find Town After Town Shattered by Air Blows

LONDON, March 12 (AP).—Allied armies advancing into the former industrialized area of the German Rhineland "are everywhere confronted with striking evidence of the effectiveness of bombing campaigns" by British and American air forces, General Dwight D. Eisenhower declared in a message to Air Marshal Sir Arthur Travers Harris, chief of the Royal Air Force Bomber Command, it was disclosed today.

"City after city has been systematically shattered," General Eisenhower said. "Against these, our artillery is often used to blast out pillboxes, snipers and hidden tanks, but it could scarcely add to the completeness of the material destruction. Here and there, possibly because of their relative unimportance as industrial centers, certain towns have been largely spared."

General Eisenhower declared: "The effect on the war economy of Germany has obviously been tremendous—a fact that advancing troops are quick to appreciate and which unfailingly reminds them of the heroic work of their comrades in the Bomber Command and the United States air forces."

Replying, Air Marshal Harris disclosed General Eisenhower's letter was written March 6, after the general had made a tour of some of the most recently occupied towns. Sir Arthur praised his Royal Air Force men, and equally American airmen, "to whom we demand the right to be the first to pay the greatest tribute."

1,635 Raid Casualties

London, March 12 (AP)—Enemy air action against Britain during February caused 1,635 civilian casualties, including 484 killed, the British Ministry of Home Security announced tonight.

This was 102 fewer deaths and nearly 500 fewer injured compared with January figures, but was higher than December.

FIGHTER DETAILS REVEALED

New Tempest Plane Has Speed of 435 Miles an Hour

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—The Hawker Tempest Mark V, first of the Tempest fighter plane series to be put into production, has a maximum speed of 435 miles an hour and a ceiling of 36,000 feet, it was announced by the Air Ministry today.

Its tactical radius is 500 miles, although this can be extended through use of auxiliary fuel tanks. Armament consists of four 20-mm. cannon in the wings. The plane has a 2,400-horsepower engine and a four-bladed propeller, a bullet-proof windscreen and armor forward and aft of the pilot. It scored its first victory in the air June 8, 1944.

Viper, Set To Bite Copilot, Is Killed

London, March 12 (AP)—A Royal Canadian Air Force Dakota transport flew high over mountainous territory in Burma with a deadly viper threatening the crew members.

The snake suddenly emerged from behind the instrument panel and was poised to strike the copilot, Flying Officer M. H. Spencer, of Midland, Ont. The navigator, Flying Officer N. S. Collins, of Rossland, B.C., whipped out a Gurkha knife and snicked off the reptile's head.

The story reached London today through the RCAF public relations department.

The snake was discovered earlier in the flight but had crawled behind the panel "and no one volunteered to reach in for it," one crewman was quoted.

"Suddenly it was partly coiled around the control pedal beneath Spencer's foot, ready to strike at his ankle."

Spencer said he "went straight up in the air at least four feet" when he observed the viper at his feet.

Collins heard his shout and dashed up with a knife.

'Slaves' To Depart 'Friends': Goebbels

London, March 12 (AP)—The German propaganda minister, Dr. Joseph Goebbels told the Reich's foreign workers today that "one day you will leave us but not with hatred but as real friends."

The German Transocean agency said Goebbels spoke before "a large delegation of European workers, including representatives from almost every nation on the continent."

"A hostile world believed it could form an underground organization among foreign workers against the Reich, but these hopes came to nothing," Goebbels said. "The test came when the Russians invaded the Reich from the east, but thousands of foreign workers took roads westward. . . ."

London, March 12 (A. P.).—Adolf Hitler, in a grim, phrase-juggling proclamation marking the tenth anniversary of Nazi military conscription, yesterday offered the German people no more than the forlorn hope the Allies will "get tired and yet be broken."

He renewed the Nazi plea of "fanatical resistance," bolstering his appeal with the assertion that the Allies, "drunk by their orgy of victory," were intent on "extermination of the German nation."

The proclamation, broadcast from Berlin, said "the year 1918 will not be repeated."

36 Nazis Who Escaped Are Sought In Britain

London, March 12 (AP)—Thirty-six escaped German war prisoners were sought today in one of Britain's biggest manhunts.

The men were part of a group of 70 Germans, many of them SS men and airmen, who tunneled under three rings of barbed wire before dawn Sunday and escaped from a camp in Wales. Thirty-four were recaptured quickly.

Hundreds of men combed more than 100 square miles of wooded countryside around the camp. The Army announced "a thorough check has been made of all arms in the camp and district and no military weapons are missing."

HOPES FOR A NEW AUSTRIA

Vansittart Calls on People to Determine Own Future Role

LONDON, March 12 (AP)—Lord Vansittart, one of the leading advocates of a stern peace for Germany, said tonight he hoped to see a new Austria built as a useful member of European society.

In a broadcast to the people of Austria on the anniversary of the German Anschluss of 1938, he asked:

"Haven't we all had enough? Haven't you Austrians in particular had an overdose? Now that you are under Nazi rule, who do you think of pan-German imperialism? I know the answer, but it is of vital importance that you should give the answer yourselves."

Nazi Propagandist Killed

London, March 12 (AP)—The German DNB agency said tonight that Eugen Hedamovsky, the Reich's propaganda radio chief, had been killed on the eastern front while serving as leader of an SS (Elite Guard) company.

'Bill Of Rights' To Be Asked By Small Nations At Frisco

London, March 12 (AP)—An international "bill of rights" probably will be sought at the San Francisco world security conference by some of Europe's smaller nations, and a world free press will be high on their "must" list of safeguards against political, economic or military subjugation.

Demand for removal of all barriers against untrammeled transmission of news has increased among the little countries' representatives here in direct proportion to disappointment over the Yalta agreement giving the big powers immunity against the league's military action in any war in which they are aggressors.

Vote Plan Held Practical

An informal survey of opinion among London's diplomats, however, showed an increasing tendency to regard the agreement on the league voting procedure as practical—not utopian—on the theory that the future of the peace, as well as of the league, depends upon the big powers' continued accord.

But while they may finally accept this conclusion, the little countries maintain that the chief purpose of the new league must be to set up international standards of conduct—rules of good behavior among nations—and find means for insuring adherence through the pressure of world opinion.

How can this be done? Will it work?

An influential official of one small country, who declined use of his name but asserted that he had heard diplomatic representatives of other European countries had been working privately on the problem, undertook the answers.

He contended the first step must be agreement on a formal charter, setting down in plain language the "rights" of all countries to security against military or economic aggression and creating machinery for swift league decisions in all disputes between nations.

Public Opinion As Whip

The league's ability to make its decisions stick—especially if they involve a "big power"—will depend, he argued, on the strength of public opinion both inside and outside the countries involved in the disputes.

"That," he maintained, "is where a world free press becomes an important factor. If we can guard against the suppression of true facts, if we can prevent a one-sided portrayal of a situation, if we can make sure all people have access to the reasons behind the league's decisions, then we won't have to worry about public opinion. Dictators and aggressors have a poor chance of misleading enlightened people."

Britain Refuses Visa To Chevalier

London, March 12 (AP)—Maurice Chevalier has been refused a visa to enter England for a series of shows at a reported salary of $4,000 a week, the British Home Office disclosed today.

The French star, who lived in France throughout the German occupation, was reported recently to have been exonerated of any suspicion of collaboration with the Nazis.

Producer Jack Hylton, who had arranged an exchange of British-French theatrical talent, said he had been given no reason why Chevalier was not permitted to enter and that he could not understand why the action was taken.

A diplomatic correspondent for the British Press Association commented that "visas for entry into Britain are granted only to persons likely to contribute toward the British war effort. It has been decided, I am informed, that Chevalier would not come within this category."

Tom O'Brien, president of the British Federation of Theater Unions and general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine (motion picture) Employés, declared that the "theatrical profession is staggered" by a report that Chevalier was to get some $4,000 weekly.

Britain Bars Chevalier

London, March 12 (AP)—The British Home Office said today that Maurice Chevalier, who had been booked by Producer Jack Hylton for a series of shows, had been denied a visa to enter England.

Hylton first disclosed the hitch in his plans for an exchange of British-French theatrical talent. The Home Office subsequently confirmed that it had refused Chevalier a visa, but said:

"As a matter of fact, the case is not closed. It is true he has been denied a visa, but there may be further developments."

Hylton said "no reason has been given and I am at a loss to understand what it should be."

Chevalier has been reported exonerated of any suspicion of collaboration with the Germans during the occupation.

Benes En Route To Czecho-Slovakia

London, March 12 (A. P.).—President Eduard Benes is en route to Kosice, second city of Czecho-Slovakia, to set up a government after six years of exile in London.

Calls His France Very Sick Country

Paris, March 12 (AP)—Demands were voiced in the Assembly today for postwar reforms which would improve the public health of France.

The appeals came in a debate on the $400,000,000 budget for the Public Health Ministry and pictured France as literally a very sick country.

A committee spokesman said that during the winter infant mortality increased by 40 per cent.

A health committee spokesman said France's birthrate in 1938 was the world's lowest, with deaths exceeding births by 29,999.

FRENCH FIGHT IN INDO-CHINA

Paris Reports Resistance Moves Made Under Orders

Paris, March 12 (AP)—In its first communiqué on "operations in Indo-China," the French general staff for national defense declared tonight that French soldiers were resisting the Japanese in the northern sector of Tonkin "in accordance with orders."

The general staff said orders to resist were radioed to the garrisons in Indo-China as the result of the Japanese aggression March 9 when Tokyo dissolved French authority in the colony, arrested French officials and seized public buildings.

Assembly Expresses Hopes

Meanwhile, the Consultative Assembly interrupted discussion of a public health budget to adopt a resolution of sympathy for the population of Indo-China "in these most difficult hours."

The assembly expressed hope that inter-Allied co-operation will permit the French provisional government to give Indo-Chinese resistance to groups as much assistance as possible as soon as possible.

Colonial Minister Giacobbi said the Japanese aggression had been expected for sometime and the government already had taken measures to offset the move, adding that the French garrison was waging a hard fight not without hope."

PRINCE SAYS 'IKE' 'TOOK' HIS PIANO

But Headquarters Claims Eisenhower Didn't Do It

Paris, March 12 (AP)—Prince George of Greece and Denmark, cousin of King George II of Greece, returned to his Paris home from London today after four years absence and announced that the house was in order except that the piano was missing.

The prince said the Germans occupied the house and left the furnishings intact but when the Americans took over, "General Eisenhower took my piano away and it's probably used now in some officers' mess for hammering out jazz tunes."

He Didn't Take It

At Eisenhower's headquarters it was quickly ascertained that the commander in chief had not taken the piano.

An investigation showed that the prince's home, like many other buildings from the Germans fled, had been formally requisitioned by the American army and used for a short period as an officers' billet. The piano had been moved to an enlisted men's club for concerts, but authorities said this was done in a regular manner and a receipt issued for the instrument.

A complaint was filed by the prince's agent and headquarters said the piano was returned to the prince's house a few days ago.

Princess Marie Bonaparte accompained her husband on the return to Paris. The prince said the Germans apparently had respected the furniture because his wife was a Bonaparte.

DEFEND ITALY, GERMANS TOLD

Kesselring Orders Troops To Fight For "Every Inch"

Rome, March 12 (AP)—Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has ordered German troops to defend "every inch" of Italian territory as though they were fighting on the soil of Germany itself, it was disclosed today as enemy resistance stiffened greatly along the entire United States 5th Army front.

"You do not defend Italy in these battles but Germany itself," said the order, which was found on a Nazi prisoner. "Not one inch of ground must be surrendered to our enemies without a battle. Officers and men alike must be permeated with this thought.

Withdrawal Rumors Offset

"I know that the troops, and particularly the commanders, are convinced of the necessity of this campaign."

Kesselring's appeal gave direct contradiction to rumors abroad that the Germans planned to withdraw from northern Italy soon and take up new position in Hitler's last-ditch fortress in southern Germany and Austria.

Germans Battle For Vergato

Allied patrols all along the front found the Nazis extremely sensitive to their probing, and the weight of enemy machine-gun and mortar fire from inside the highway stronghold on Vergato, southwest of Bologna, indicated the Germans intend to put up a protracted fight for the town.

Vergato, on the Bologna-Pistoia highway in the heart of the Apennine Mountains, has been virtually isolated by American troops who have driven within a mile of its outskirts on the west, south and east.

Not only did the German defenders lay punishing fire on American positions along the Reno River south of the town but they counter-attacked sharply against Yank forces northeast of Vergato, near Salvaro.

The Allied air assault has closed the Brenner Pass rail line to through traffic for 44 consecutive days.

Patriots in northern Italy have intensified their campaign against Kesselring's communications in northern Italy.

Yanks Slowed Up Near Vergata

Rome, March 12 (AP)—The 5th Army push toward the German stronghold of Vergato, southwest of Bologna, slowed today as Allied headquarters reported increased German resistance along the 5th's entire front.

Patrols probing enemy strength met their greatest opposition along the winter mountain line before Bologna.

Vergato, on the Pistoia-Bologna highway, has been outflanked, but its defenders continued to battle strongly.

Yanks Caught In Mortar Fire

Any hope that the Nazis would give up Vergato under threat of encirclement appeared blasted when American troops along the Reno River south of the town caught heavy mortar and machine-gun fire from the stronghold early yesterday.

The Germans also attacked American positions northeast of Vergato, near Salvaro.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring has instructed his troops to defend "every inch" of Italian territory, an order taken from a captured Nazi soldier disclosed. "You do not defend Italy in these battles but Germany itself," the order said. "Not one inch of the ground must be surrendered to our enemies without a battle. Officers and men alike must be permeated with this thought. I know that the troops and particularly the commanders are convinced of the necessity of this campaign."

FLIERS FREE LIVE BOMBS

2 Bombardiers on Mission Over Italy Court Death in Exploit

ROME, March 12 (AP)—Two B-25 bombadiers risked their lives yesterday in the open bomb bays of their planes to release fuse bombs left dangling from their shackles when turbulent air currents jarred their craft.

Sgt. Thomas B. Qualls of Madisonville, Ky., released two bombs and Sgt. Edmund T. Langley Jr. of Mobile, Ala., freed one. The planes were on missions over northern Italy.

It was the second time this month that Qualls had volunteered for a similar operation. A week ago flak hit an incendiary in the bomb bay, setting it afire and damaging the release mechanism. Qualls climbed into the bomb bay and kicked out the smoking bomb.

GIGLI GETS WILD OVATION

Tenor Gives First Public Concert Since Rome's Liberation

ROME, March 12 (AP)—Beniamino Gigli, former Metropolitan Opera tenor, received a wild ovation from Romans and Allied troops when he appeared today in his first public concert since Rome's liberation.

Visibly moved by his reception, he sang four songs in a benefit performance for war refugees at the Adriano Theatre. Last June Gigli was barred by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Johnson, military governor of Rome, from singing for Allied troops after Romans had attacked the tenor's allegedy German sympathies.

Gigli said then that he had never had any interest in politics but was an artist who had performed for the Fascists and for the Germans and "now that the Americans and the British are here I would like to sing for them, too."

Last month the Council of the Musicians Syndicate decided that charges against him were "exaggerated, non-existent or brought by rival singers."

Roatta Gets Life Term; Still Being Sought

Rome, March 12 (AP)—Gen. Mario Roatta, former Italy Army chief of staff, was sentenced to life imprisonment as a Fascist supporter today while police continued their search for him through Allied-held Italy. His escape during his trial last week precipitated a political crisis.

The high court of justice gave 24-year sentence to Fulvio Suvich, former Italian Ambassador to the United States, and Lieut. Gen. Count Francesco Jacomoni, former Lieutenant Governor (viceroy) of Albania. Philippo Anfuso, present Ambassador of Mussolini's rump government to Germany, received the death sentence in absentia.

G.I. PAPER STAFF PROTESTS CURBS

Seeks Freedom In "Stars And Stripes" Letter Column

Rome, March 12 (AP)—The entire staff of enlisted men on the Rome edition of the Stars and Stripes, United States Army newspaper, has protested against newly imposed restrictions on the paper's "mail call" column of letters from readers.

The restrictions, they contend, would make the column a device for "official instruction and orientation."

A written protest was handed to Major Robert Neville, publications officer, after a directive, which the Stars and Stripes staff contended circumscribed the field of discussion in published letters, had been issued from United States Army headquarters in the Mediterranean theater.

For Official Replies

It is understood here that the directive insisted letters on controversial subjects should be published only when official replies could be made in the same issue.

Stars and Stripes staff members declined to discuss the subject. The controversy over the degree of free expression the troops should have in the paper came to light only when a war correspondent, visiting the Stars and Stripes office, saw a protest posted for the signatures of the soldier editors.

For Free Expression

Col. Kenneth W. Clark, American public relations officer, in a telephone call from American field headquarters, told the Associated Press he understood some proposal limiting subjects in the mail-call column had emanated from a "lower echelon."

He declared that top-rank American officers were insistent that the Stars and Stripes remain a vehicle for free expression for the troops.

In their formal protest the staffmen contended it would come as a blow to American soldiers to learn they "cannot be trusted to use their own forum of expression with full freedom."

The letter column has long been a widely read and loudly argued daily feature, in which enlisted men and officers alike have been wont to air their views and seek information on such diversified matters as the Chaplin paternity case, postwar military training and new ways of preparing field rations for jaded palates.

Spanish Envoy In Berlin Quits

Madrid, March 12 (AP)—Gines Vidal y Saura, Spanish ambassador to Berlin, has quit his post "for reasons of health," Spanish newspapers reported tonight.

Von Papen Reported Prisoner of Allies

Stockholm, March 12 (A. P.).—The former Turkish Minister to Berlin, Kemal Koc, told interviewers today that there were reports in Germany that diplomat Franz von Papen became an Allied prisoner when his estate in the Saar area was overrun. There has been no hint from other Allied quarters of such a capture, although the estate was seized several months ago.

ANTI-WAR RIOTING IN MUNICH RUMORED

Stockholm, March 12 (A. P.).—Aftontidningen, in a dispatch attributed to German sources, said today that riots broke out in Munich, birthplace of Nazism, last night in protest against the continuance of the war.

"Latest reports indicate the Bavarian capital is completely cut off from the rest of the world," it added.

The story said that cordons of soldiers had been thrown around the Munich City Hall and that all post, telephone and telegraph communications had been severed. The dispatch said that street fighting started on Sunday evening during exercises marking the German Heroes' Day.

Munich Riots Reported

New York, March 12 (AP)—Riots and street fighting occurred yesterday in Munich, birthplace of the Nazi party, the Tidningen, of Stockholm, said today in a dispatch reported to the OWI. The disturbances were in connection with the observance of Heroes' Day, German equivalent of Army Day.

The newspaper gave this account:

A "marked revolutionary spirit reigned in the city." Railway traffic, post and telegraph no longer functioned. German tanks drove through the streets in an effort to quell the disturbances, which continued late last night.

Pravda Warns Finns On Coming Elections

Moscow, March 12 (AP)—The Communist party newspaper Pravda declared today that the parliamentary elections in Finland next week end "are not to be considered an internal affair of the Finns," and that United Nations public opinion was closely watching to see whether there will be a "complete victory for the principles adopted at the Crimea Conference."

"The young Communists party which became legal only in October is the second-largest in number of members among the Finnish parties today," Pravda asserted.

The newspaper declared the election campaign by "democratic" parties was being hampered by lack of meeting places and newspapers, although Premier Juho Paasikivi had appealed to the country to afford equal facilities for all parties.

Pravda said some leaders of the older parties, while making formal declarations of good relations with the Soviet Union, are counting on a moment when they can return to an anti-Soviet policy. It added the warning that they must understand that friendship with the Soviet Union is the main guarantee of Finnish independence.

SOVIET EDITORS MEET U. S. FREE-PRESS GROUP

MOSCOW, March 12 (AP) — A three-man committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, visiting Soviet Russia during a tour to urge post-war freedom of news exchange, went on a sight-seeing trip to the Kremlin today after a four-hour discussion last night with editorial heads of the Soviet press.

A "free and frank exchange of views" took place at a dinner given by W. Averell Harriman, United States Ambassador, and attended by Foreign Vice Commissar S. A. Lozovsky, the director of the official news agency Tass, and editors of Pravda, Izvestia, Red Star, Trud, Komsomolskaya Pravda, the Moscow News and the magazine War and the Working Class.

The Americans expressed satisfaction at having had an opportunity to talk at length with their Russian colleagues.

The meeting lasted past midnight and a majority of the Soviet representatives conversed in English without need of interpreters. Several had lived in the United States.

Tonight the American committee will inspect the publishing plant of Pravda, most modern in Moscow.

The committee may issue a statement before leaving for India and China at the end of the week.

FREED ALLIES REACH PORT

Britons and Others Rescued by Russians Are on Way Home

CAIRO, Egypt, March 12 (AP)—Deliriously happy Allied troops, the first batch of thousands liberated from German captivity by the Russians, arrived at a Middle East port today en route home.

The former prisoners included 427 British, four Norwegians, egiht Palestinians, eight Egytians, one Frenchman and a Pole.

Some aboard the ship were captured during Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt's December offensive and were released by the Russians from German prisoner-of-war camps in Poland after only a month in captivity.

Allies 'Bomb' Macedonia With Red Cross Supplies

Destitute Get Aid From Air Through Units in U. S.

ABOARD A MERCY BOMBER OVER MACEDONIA, March 12 (AP).—For thirty-five minutes today we bombed Drama, a destitute Greek town in an almost inaccessible valley in the Macedonian mountains, with children's sweaters, socks, shawls and layettes while the happy people jammed the streets and fields.

The people had been notified yesterday by leaflets dropped from a plane that the supplies were coming. They were told to set up a committee to distribute it on the basis of need without regard to race, religion or political affiliation.

Three Royal Air Force Wellingtons roared over Drama just after mid-day today and dropped the clothing, which was contributed by Red Cross chapters in American cities. Two other Wellingtons visited the near-by town of Serrai. In all, eight tons of badly needed clothing for women and children were dropped on the two towns.

SULTAN FLOUTS SPAIN

Names Successor to Tangier Judge Accused as Fascist

TANGIER, March 12 (AP)—The Sultan of Morocco has ignored Spanish authority in Tangier by appointing Giovanni Apostoli of Rome to replace a judge removed because of alleged fascist political activities. Signor Apostoli succeeds Fernando Malmussi, who continues to live in Tangier with his American wife.

Tangier, commanding the approach to Gibraltar Strait from the Atlantic, was occupied in 1940 by Spain, which ousted the international authority shared by Spain, Great Britain, France and Italy.

Signor Malmussi was ousted after the Italian Government in Rome had so ordered, the judges of the Tangier international courts had voted unanimously and the Sultan had issued an imperial decree revoking his judgeship. All three stages were necessary for revocation. The Sultan's action was believed strongly influenced by the French at Rabat.

JAPANESE LANDING IN FUKIEN FOILED

Chinese Smash Bid 40 Miles Below Foochow — Battle Inside Suichwan Rages

CHUNGKING, China, March 12 (AP)—A Japanese attempt to land a small force on the Fukien coast about forty miles south of enemy-held Foochow has been frustrated by Chinese forces, field dispatches said today. About 100 of the invaders were killed and the others driven off.

Two Japanese warships covered the landing, which apparently was an attempt to extend the Japanese protective area along the coast as part of the enemy's plan against possible American landings from the Pacific.

At the same time other official Chinese reports declared severe fighting was raging inside Suichwan, former site of a United States Fourteenth Air Force base in Kwangsi Province. The reports said Chinese troops had broken into the city in their current drive against Japanese forces in southwest China.

A United States Fourteenth Air Force communiqué said American and Chinese fighter planes had bombed and strafed three Japanese villages east of Lohochai, north of Hankow on the Peiping-Hankow railroad, and that B-25s bombed a highway bridge at Kep, northeast of Hanoi in French Indo-China. Other American bombers attacked enemy targets in the harbor of Tourane in French Indo-China, probably sinking a large tanker.

Jap Landing Near Foochow Frustrated

Chungking, March 12 (AP)—Chinese forces have frustrated a small-scale Japanese attempt to land on the coast of Fukien province about 40 miles south of Japanese-held Foochow, killing 100 of the enemy and driving off the rest, Chinese field dispatches said today.

The landing attempt was covered by two Japanese warships and probably represented an effort to expand the enemy's protective area around Foochow as a safeguard against a possible American landing, the dispatches declared.

Other unofficial Chinese reports said Chinese forces had broken into the city of Suichwan in Kiangsi province, former site of an important advanced base of the United States 14th Air Force. Severe fighting was said to be continuing inside the city.

U.S. Engineers To Help China Improve Roads

Chungking, March 12 (AP)—American Army engineers who built the new India-China supply road have been assigned to aid in improvement of highways east of Kunming, China terminus of the Burma Road, Maj. Gen. Gilber Cheves announced today.

Cheves, chief of the United States Army Service of Supply in the China theater, said the engineers would devote their attention chiefly to the highway from Kunming, capital of Yunnan province, to Kweiyang in Kweichow province, 250 miles to the northeast.

Kweiyang is about 200 miles south of Chungking.

The engineers which will have charge of this work are commanded by Col. Robert F. Seedlock, of Lakewood, Ohio.

U. S. ADVISER IN CHINA

A. T. Kearney, War Production Specialist, to Aid Chungking

CHUNGKING, China, March 11 (AP)—A. T. Kearney, former regional director of the United States War Production Board at Chicago, made his first official appearance in Chungking today as new adviser to the Chinese Production Board. He was accompanied by Edward P. Brooks, on leave as vice president in charge of factories for Sears, Roebuck & Co.

Howard Coonley, deputy chief to Donald M. Nelson's mission to China, will return to the United States soon.

So far, eight of the twenty American specialists being sent here to assist the Chinese WPB have arrived in Chungking.

Moat Protects Mandalay

Calcutta, India, March 12 (AP)—A moat 75 yards wide and fircely resisting Japanese soldiers continued today to hold back British foot soldiers from Fort Dufferin in Mandalay, although artillery had blasted three breaches in the walls of the fortress.

Some progress was reported by a Southeast Asia command communuqué, but the Japanese still held stubbornly to that main center of resistance.

MANDALAY MOAT BALKS ATTACKERS

Calcutta, March 12 (A. P.).—Allied artillery has smashed three breaches in the walls of Fort Dufferin in the heart of Mandalay but the 75-yard wide moat so far has proved an effective barrier to the entry of British footsoldiers. Japanese intrenched in the 1½-mile square fort which incloses the Royal Palace are resisting fiercely.

Troops which crossed the Irrawaddy at Myinmum, forty miles west of Mandalay, scored a major advance after three weeks of hard fighting, reached the vicinity of Myotha, twenty miles southwest of Mandalay, and took control of a road leading north to within twelve miles of Mandalay. British armor which sprang a coup by slashing to Meiktila, seventy-five miles south of Mandalay, is having a field day on the network of roads radiating from that strategic base athwart Mandalay's chief communications. More than 400 Japanese were killed at two roadblocks on the road to Mahlaing, twenty miles northwest of Meiktila.

Northeast of Mandalay Chinese troops advanced five miles from Lashio down the railway to within 125 miles of Mandalay and about thirty miles from Hsipaw.

JAPS COMPRESSED INTO TWO POCKET

Enemy Holds Out in Rugged Hills as Marines Close In.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Tuesday, March 13—(AP) Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine division reduced the size of the last sizable pocket held by the Japanese around Kitano point on the northern end of Iwo Monday but enemy resistance there still continued stiff, headquarters said today.

A smaller pocket on the northeast coast continued to hold out against Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third Marine division and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth division.

The Navy communique's wording made it evident, however, that in a large sense the Iwo operation, 23 days old today, is in its mopup stage.

Warships of the Fifth fleet shelled the small rugged portion held by the enemy on the north tip and army fighters, based on southern Iwo, gave the Leathernecks close support.

Other Army fighters flew north to keep enemy bases in the Bonins neutralized Monday.

Eleventh army air force Liberators bombed the Kuriles north of the Japanese homeland Sunday, hitting Suribachi on Paramushiro and Kataoka on Shumushu, leaving fires which sent up smoke for 15,000 feet.

Marine aircraft attacked Babelthuap, in the Palau islands, and bypassed enemy bases in the Marshalls.

Make Small Gains

The Fifth's gain was small and had to be made foot by foot against a bitterly resisting foe. However, there were indications that Japanese power to resist on the island is weakening steadily.

The smaller enemy pocket is south of Tachiiwa point, easternmost part of Iwo.

The Army fighters which went to the Bonins encountered considerable anti-aircraft fire over Chichi island.

On a rugged butte on the northeast corner of Iwo Jima may be fought out the final, bloody battle for this tiny but highly strategic island which has taken so large a toll of American Marines.

Remnants of the Japanese garrison, perhaps several thousand, are concealed in the caves and recesses of this rocky cliff. Death in battle, suicide or capture faces them as there is no hope of rescue or reinforcement.

The butte, a hundred or more feet high, forms a rocky wall several hundred yards back from the water's edge. The ground slopes more or less sharply from the base of the cliff to the ocean. The shoreline bends in to within probably a hundred yards of the northern end of the butte.

Indications Monday were that the showdown was close at hand. Tough but battle weary Leathernecks concentrated tanks, flamethrowers and demolition units for the assault, reported AP War Correspondent Morrie Landsberg.

Battle Nears End

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 12 (AP)—The battle for Iwo Jima appeared all but over as United States Marines drove the Japanese to last-stand positions.

Most of the remaining Nipponese were squeezed into a 1,000-yard triangle on Kitano Point, northern tip of the island.

Leathernecks of Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th Division, moving up the west coast, had sealed off the Kitano Point position.

A fleet communiqué said these Marines were "gaining slowly" against "heavy resistance."

Two Bases Strafed

Meanwhile, United States Army fighter planes from the southern Iwo airfield strafed Chichi Jima and Haha Jima in the Bonin Islands north of Iwo, today's communiqué said.

The Japanese on Kitano Point were expected to fight on to the last man—meeting death under American fire or by retreat into the sea or suicide.

Their resistance was fanatical, but signs of disorganization preceded the latest American gains.

Reporting from the field Saturday, Morrie Landsberg, Associated Press correspondent, said the Nipponese appeared to be milling about in disorganized groups.

Only Remnants Remain

The force on Kitano was but a battered remnant of the original Japanese garrison of Iwo, which was estimated at 20,000 on D-day.

A week ago today the Marines had counted 14,456 Japanese dead. No later figure has been announced, but it is certain other thousands have fallen since.

Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal announced in Washington a week ago that 2,050 Marines had been killed.

MARINES CLOSE ON IWO JAPS

Troops Bring Up Armor for Final Blow.

Landsberg

Aboard Vice-Admiral Richmond K. Turner's Expeditionary Force Flagship Off Iwo Jima, March 12 (A. P.).—Battle-weary Marines brought up tanks, flamethrowers and demolition units today for what may be the final assault on a long, high bluff in the northeastern tip of Iwo Jima, where the major force of the surviving Japanese are still intrenched.

The many caves which spot the cliffs could conceal several thousand if that many survived the long battle.

After twenty-two days of the most bitter fighting in Marine history, the Japanese have been driven into a rugged area which roughly is about one mile deep and takes in two miles of coastline. A small pocket also remains to be cleaned up on the northeast sector, but for all practical purposes the entire east coast is now held by Americans.

Two patrols of the Fourth Division, commanded by Major-Gen. Cates, penetrated to the northeast beach and found mines and boobytraps but no enemy troops.

Japs Still Shell Beach.

With the support of heavy artillery and naval gunfire, Marines Sunday pushed slowly to the vicinity of the high cliff where possibly the largest remaining force of Japanese is holed up for the final stand.

The Japanese still have some heavy weapons. Their shells or rockets landed all the way from the central airfield to beyond Suribachi crater Saturday.

Some of the heavy guns are believed to have been knocked out after they were spotted by an artillery observation post.

Many snipers are still working behind Marine lines.

John Lardner Hurt on Iwo

IWO JIMA, Feb. 26 (Delayed) (AP).—John Lardner, injured by a rock sent flying into his groin by a Japanese sniper's bullet two days ago, was the seventeenth casualty among civilian and marine combat correspondents in the first week of fighting on Iwo Jima. Lardner, thirty-three, correspondent for North American Newspaper Alliance and "Newsweek" and "New Yorker" magazines, was painfully but not seriously hurt.

Bulldozer Climbs Iwo Volcano

By Morrie Landsberg

Iwo Jima, March 12 (AP)—There was some excitement on this island when a B-29 made a forced landing on the southern airstrip, but that wasn't a patching on what happened the other day.

A bulldozer got to the top of Mount Suribachi!

It really did. I saw it and so did thousands more who looked and marveled and some said: "Well, I'll be horn-swoggled."

555 Feet High

The Marines were fighting the Japanese in the north and there was that 20-ton bulldozer sitting on the crater of the volcano.

The fact would have been reported sooner except nobody knew the names of the men who made the historic climb of the 555-foot-high mountain at the southern end of Iwo.

The men are Seabees Albert L. Patterson, 34, Danville, Ark., and E. C. Cagle, 33, Pauls Valley, Okla.

The Seabees have been allotted three weeks to build a road to the summit but Chief Warrant officer Jack Purcell, Santa Barbara, Cal., who bosses the 29-man road gang, said: "We'll have it finished in ten days easy."

Corpsman Slits Marine's Throat To Save His Life

By TECH. SERGT. NOLLE T. ROBERTS

[Marine Combat Correspondent]

Iwo Jima [AP—Delayed]—A navy medical corpsman saved the life of a wounded Marine corporal here by slitting his throat—a feat described by a doctor as a demonstration of the "most amazing presence of mind I have ever seen under fire."

The corpsman was Pharmacist Mate (second class) Floyd L. Garrett, 23, Gadsden, Ala. He held the severed end of the wounded Marine's jugular vein in one hand while he slit the skin of the throat so that he could reach enough of the vein to apply a hemostat. An instrument used to compress a bleeding vessel.

The name of the wounded man was withheld pending notification of his next of kin.

Would Have Bled To Death

"The man would have undoubtedly bled to death in a matter of minutes if it had not been for Garrett's amazing presence of mind," the battalion medical officer, Navy Lieutenant (jg) C. L. Arford, of Sterling, Col., said.

"I have never seen anything like it before.

"When the man was evacuated, he had every chance of surviving."

The doctor explained that medical men often perform the same operation in hospitals, but pointed out that Garrett had no assistance, poor light, and was under fire from enemy mortars at the time.

"Besides, it takes a lot of guts for a non-professional to start cutting on a man, even to save his life," he added.

YANKS OCCUPY ZAMBOANGA AND AIRFIELD

M'Arthur Reports Strong Positions Overrun

Manila, Tuesday, March 13 (AP)—Yanks of Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Infantry Division overran strong Japanese positions on southwestern Mindanao Sunday as they captured the civic center of Zamboanga and a strategic airfield only 200 miles northeast of Borneo.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today the Americans, who invaded the second largest island on the Philippines on Saturday, 24 hours later were "overrunning strong steel and concrete pillbox and artillery positions with only minor losses."

Japs Not Reorganized

MacArthur said the Japanese at Zamboanga, caught off guard by the amphibious landing, had not yet been able to organize their defenses.

The airfield captured was near San Roque, about 4 miles west of the Zamboanga governmental seat. The village of San Roque was seized along with four others shortly after the invasion.

The Yanks previously overran a smaller airstrip, Wolfe Field, in their lightning sweep from the invasion beaches. The San Roque airdrome, considerably larger, is one of the best in Mindanao.

Suited For Medium Bombers

There was no mention of fighting for the San Roque airdrome, which has an airstrip 4,000 feet long, or enough to accommodate medium bombers.

Russell Brines, Associated Press correspondent, reported the Japanese were using mortars from hill positions with good effect, however. A headquarters spokesman said the Yanks faced moderate machine-gun and mortar fire as they entered the city center.

The ground forces were supported by both air and naval units which also attacked enemy installations on Basilan Island, 12 miles south of Zamboanga.

American heavy bombers swept the airfield at Jolo, main city of the Sulu Archipelago, southwest of Mindanao.

Commanders Listed

These American commanders handled the Mindanao invasion team:

REAR ADMIRAL FORREST B. ROYAL, 6th Amphibious Group.

VICE ADMIRAL THOMAS C. KINKAID, 7th Fleet.

REAR ADMIRAL RUSSELL S. BERKEY, 7th Fleet warships.

LIEUT. GEN. ROBERT L. EICHELBERGER, 8th Army.

MAJ. GEN. JENS A. DOE, 41st Division.

COL. WILLIAM J. MORRONEY, 163d Infantry.

LIEUT. COL. HAROLD M. LINDSTROM, 162d Infantry.

On Luzon, troops of the 1st Cavalry Division and 6th Infantry Division continued to advance on the front east of Manila. The dismounted troopers captured high ground beyond the town of Antipolo.

Repulse Counterattacks

Doughboys of the 6th Division repulsed several counterattacks and smashed into the hills southeast of Montalban.

On the southwest Luzon front, elements of the 11th Airborne Division approached the shore of Lake Tall.

The 32d Infantry Division, pushing through the mountains of Northeast Luzon, reached a point within 4 miles of Balete Pass.

Fighters and light bombers attacked communication routes on the Balete Pass road. Others supported ground operations in all sectors, which included the 11th Corps area where the 38th Division continued mopping up of the Zambales foothills.

Toll Of Japs Rises By 1,092

An additional 1,092 Japanese have been killed or found dead during the past week, the communiqué said, on Leyte, Burias and other islands in the Samar Sea.

Night harassing attacks by patrol planes continued around Formosa.

Blockading air patrols ranging the China Sea probably sank two Nipponese freighters totaling 15,000 tons.

Three enemy ships totaling 17,000 tons, including a 10,000-ton tanker, were destroyed or severely damaged off French Indo-China by air patrols.

Borneo was given an 89-ton pounding by heavy bombers which struck at Jesselton, Labuan, Sandakan and Miri Miri airdromes. Three enemy ships were damaged east of Balikpapan by a night patrol bomber.

General MacArthur reported in his Monday communique that the invasion of Mindanao greatly strengthened the blockade of Japan's life line through the south China sea. Zamboanga is only 200 miles northeast of British Borneo.

Yanks Capture Airfield On Mindanao

Manila, March 12 (AP)—Tank-equipped Yanks swept over Wolfe airstrip Saturday afternoon one half mile inland from their invasion beach on the southwest tip of Mindano Island and were driving rapidly toward important San Roque airfield, a mile and a half northwest of Zamboanga.

[A later front-line dispatch reported that the Americans had crossed two thirds of San Roque airstrip.]

First opposition was light. The Japanese offered Maj. Gen. Jens A Doe's jungle-seasoned 41st Division troops of the 8th Army intermittent machine-gun and mortar fire but it did not slow the American advance.

An eight-day air bombardment by the 13th Air Force and a two-day naval shelling by Vice Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's 7th Fleet units preceded the twenty-first Philippine Island invasion landing.

Zamboanga harbor was cluttered with wrecked Japanese ships and the town's larger buildings were blasted or burned.

Coastal Towns Fall

The coastal towns of San Mateo, San Jose, Calarian and San Roque were captured in short order in the well-ordered advance.

Wolfe Airfield, which is 200 miles from Japanese-held oil-rich Borneo Island, was one of the first military objectives of the attack. The San Roque field has a 4,000-foot bomber runway.

The invasion convoy was unmolested by either Japanese planes or submarines in its 400-mile voyage.

In announcing the invasion, Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today that the operation strengthens the American blockade of the South China Sea and further cuts Japan off from her holdings in the East Indies.

City Of 132,000

The Americans actually were in Zamboanga city the moment they stepped ashore, for the city proper covers the entire end of the Zamboanga Peninsula, about 600 square miles. In area it is one of the largest cities in the world. Its population is about 132,000.

Mindanao, where guerrillas have been extremely active for years, is the second largest of the Philippines and the most southerly, jutting into the Celebes Sea. Its principal city and port, Davao, is on the east coast 250 miles from Zamboanga.

General MacArthur said "we now control the entire length of the western shores of the Philippine Islands from the northwestern tip of Luzon to the southwestern tip of Mindanao, a distance of approximately 800 miles.

Near Borneo

Mindanao is 1,200 miles north of the Netherlands East Indies and only slightly more than that northeast of Singapore. Perhaps significantly, the Zamboanga peninsula is within easy fighter-plane range of Borneo. Northern Borneo airdromes have been bombed incessantly in recent months.

On Luzon island, meanwhile, the 1st Cavalry and 6th Infantry divisions pressed their systematic reduction of Japanese caves and pillboxes along the bitterly contested Antipolo-Wawa line on the Marikina watershed east of Manila.

To the south, the 11th Airborne Division and the 158th Regimental Combant Team drove farther eastward along the southern Luzon shoreline, clearing the northern part of the Verde Island passage between Luzon and Mindoro.

Formosa was pounded with 80 tons of explosives. No interception was encountered. A single patrol bomber sank or damaged a freighter-transport, a coastal ship, a schooner and two tugs off Borneo.

Yanks Two Miles From Town Of Zamboanga

By Russell Brines

With American Forces at Zamboanga, Mindanao, March 11 [AP—Delayed]—Tank-led Yank infantrymen drove within 2 miles of Zamboanga town today in a swift morning push from the invasion beaches, which are being plastered with Japanese mortar fire.

The 162d and elements of the 163d regiments crossed the Baliwasan River 2½ miles west of the town of Zamboanga, proceeding onward and fanning out to the northeast, simultaneously crossing two thirds of San Roque airstrip, the principal airfield in the area.

Wolfe Field Taken

Within a half hour of landing on the southwestern tip of Mindanao Saturday, the infantrymen, led by tanks, took small Wolfe airstrip—the first main objective. There was only scattered machine-gun and sniper fire initially.

Artillery spotting planes began operating from the overgrown Wolfe airstrip while it was still under Japanese artillery fire from positions in the near-by hills.

American casualties in the first 24 hours were light.

After a relatively quiet landing by the Yanks, the Japanese fought back with concentrated artillery and mortar fire from their hillside positions and with machine-gun and mortar fire from nests along the principal roads.

Company Pinned Down

One company of the 162d, pushing westward along the coast toward Caldera Bay, was pinned down overnight by strong Japanese positions in coconut groves, but the Yanks crossed the river this morning after a destroyer bombarded the Japanese positions for a half hour at close range.

The first wave of the 41st Division, seasoned in Southwest Pacific campaigns, landed 3 miles west of the town of Zamboanga.

The new amphibious operation is designed to capture Zamboanga peninsula and secure control of the Sulu Sea and the Basilan Strait, the third major entrance into central Philippine waters from the Pacific.

Emergency Airstrip

The Wolfe airstrip, lying directly behind the landing beaches, was an uncompleted United States field, with a 3,000-foot runway that the Japanese utilized as an emergency strip.

The more important San Roque Field is a mile and a half northwest of the town and has a longer coral runway. Both fields and adjacent roads are heavily cratered by United States bombings.

Sixteen damaged Japanese planes were sighted by scout planes on San Roque Field.

The 400-mile convoy trip was uneventful.

Heavier Opposition Seen

Heavier opposition may develop behind Zamboanga town.

The amphibious operation was carried out under the command of Rear Admiral Forrest B. Royal, of Arlington, Va., commander of the 6th Amphibious Group.

The operation against this second largest island in the Philippines was relatively small.

Throughout the movement of the convoy, the 13th Air Force provided complete air cover and hit Zamboanga with an estimated 1,000 tons of bombs in the ten days preceding the invasion.

Warships under Rear Admiral Russell S. Berkey plastered the beaches and special targets two days before the opening of a two-hour-lang prelanding bombardment to soften the beaches.

Watched From Flagship

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the 8th Army, and Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe, of Carmel, Cal., commanding the 41st Division, watched the landing from a flagship.

The 163d Infantry, commanded by Col. William J. Morroney, was the first regiment ashore. These doughboys were followed by troops of the 162d Regiment, under Lieut. Col. Harold M. Lindstrom.

Minesweepers, which swept inshore two days without finding mines, reported that some Japanese had survived the terriffic bombardment. These replied from shore positions with heavy machine guns.

Pleased At Swift Gains

Field officers expressed satisfaction at the swift American gains and said they believed the principal immediate objectives including the town of Zamboanga would be taken soon.

Thereafter will be in the slow, bitter job of eliminating the main Japanese positions on the flanks and mountains overlooking the tip of the peninsula.

From the positions the Japanese mortars are spraying the landing beaches, hampering the unloading operations and harassing traffic along the two east-west roads.

Japs Rifling Airstrip

Yank artillery ashore and warcraft in the bay are directing counterfire against the Japanese artillery, which is still rifling Wolfe Airfield.

American air support continued, with Lightnings making strafing runs assisted by Marine planes based on a guerrilla-constructed airstrip north of Zamboanga town.

Infantrymen advancing toward the town crossed the Baliwasan River by fords when they discovered that the main wooden bridge was mined.

Roads also were heavily mined and guerrillas reported numerous booby traps in Zamboanga town.

Many Japs Killed On Shimbu Line

With the 6th Division on the Shimbu Line, Luzon, March 11 [AP—Delayed] — Doughboys digging Japanese out of caves and tunnels in this heavily defended Japanese line east of Manila had a field day yesterday.

A handful of Yanks holding this particular ridge killed 61 Nipponese trying to get out of a cave and polished off at least 35 others in hot little fights on the slopes of the ridge.

Tall, quiet Pfc. Astor Dobson, of Milan, Ind., described the slaughter of Japanese caught in the cave:

"We had reached the top of the ridge and were probing around a reverse slope. We knew the whole ridge was riddled with caves—all these hills are—so we were keeping our eyes peeled.

Saw Eyes Through Boughs

"I saw some tree boughs spread like camouflage over what I thought might be a cave mouth. I had moved up within a few feet of the boughs to have a look when I was startled to see a pair of eyes blink underneath the cover. Boy, I don't know why this joker didn't let me have it, but it didn't take me long to polish him off.

"I pulled the branches away and saw it covered a cave mouth. Suddenly I realized the body was moving—in fact, somebody was pulling the dead Jap back into the tunnel.

"There's someone else in there," I stuttered.

Found Air Vent

"We looked the area over. Soon we found a hole in the hill which we decided was an air vent for the tunnel. So I got in a good spot just above the cave mouth and got my Browning automatic rifle ready for action, while others dropped a couple of white phosphorous grenades down the air vent.

"Man, oh, man! That really smoked 'em out. They came out running and screaming to high heaven. Some had their clothes burning. Many carried hand grenades and a lot fired their rifles wildly. A few dropped demolition charges on each side of the cave mouth, but they didn't do much damage.

"It Was A Slaughter"

"I kept that BAR spitting into their backs as they poured out of the hole. It was a slaughter."

Pfc. Emmett Keyser, of Los Angeles, added:

"Dobbie probably didn't tell you this, but he had a special reason for getting himself a mess of Nips. The day before his brother was wounded up here. Blood oozed over the BAR clips he was carrying. Dobbie got those five clips—they were the first he used when the Japs started pouring out."

Foe's Resurrection Brief

WITH THE SIXTH DIVISION, on Luzon, March 11 (Delayed) (AP)—This is a report by one outfit: "One Jap killed. Circumstances unusual. A detail of dead Japs were interrupted when one dead one arose and headed for the tall timber. His resurrection was short-lived."

MOST OF MINDANAO HELD BY GUERRILLAS

MANILA, March 12 (AP)—Well-organized American and Filipino guerrillas have controlled much of Mindanao Island for two and a half years.

Zamboanga, within three miles of the American invasion beachhead, is one of only three or four Mindanao areas that the Japanese occupied in strength.

Americans who have come from Mindanao in recent months reported that the Japanese never penetrated most of the island and that the guerrillas moved freely ouside the principal coastal areas and set up headquarters prominently in town.

The guerrilla organizations were supplied by American submarines before American forces returned to the Philippines last fall. The supplies, carried on the backs of the guerrillas and other Filipinos, were distributed over large areas.

The principal Japanese garrison on Mindanao is at Davao, pre-war hemp stronghold, 250 miles east of Zamboanga. Davao's sheltered port makes it the leading city of the island. It has been the target of heavy American bombings for months.

Much of Mindanao's interior mountain region is unexplored and malaria-ridden.

Zamboanga was a major battlefield during the Spanish-American War. With other parts of Mindanao, it is the home of the belligerent Mohammedan Moros, who fought so saveagely during the insurrection against America. The city once was headquarters of Moro pirates of the Sulu Sea. The Spaniards constructed a great fortress there.

HUGE FIRES STILL BURNING IN NAGOYA

MAR 13 1945

Superforts Smash Aircraft Plants in Incendiary Attack.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, Guam, March 13—(AP)—(Via Navy Radio) Fifteen fires still were burning in Nagoya, chief aircraft production center of Japan, 12 hours after a terror-spreading middle of the night incendiary raid by more than 300 B-29 bombers.

Reconnaissance photographs disclosed today the greatest single item in the official list of flame-swept targets was the Aichi aircraft works' Eitoku plant. A total of 358,000 square feet (nearly 14 per cent of the roof area) was destroyed. This included complete gutting of one of the main sub-assembly buildings.

Smoke at the time the photographs were made at noon yesterday still obscured a large portion of the city but the 21st bomber command does not expect to find "any extensive damage under the smoke," said Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the 21st, after viewing the pictures.

Major damage was done in five areas centered about two miles south of Nagoya castle but the flames evidently were controlled just as they started to merge.

Moderate damage was reported at the Hokoku machinery company plant and minor damage to the Atsuta factory of the Nagoya arsenal; to harbor facilities, to the Daido Electric Steel plant, Tsukiji plant, to the Nisan chemical plant and the Sumitomo light metals plant.

Fires still were burning at the Daido, at the harbor and at the Nissan chemical plant.

Lemay said, however, the strike was not as successful as the Tokyo mission 48 hours earlier, when more than 300 B-29s devastated the heart of the Japanese capital. Neither did the fires spread as rapidly as in Tokyo, he added.

Latest information raised to 16.7 square miles the extent of destruction of Tokyo, Lemay said. Last estimates were 15 square miles.

Among additional targets now disclosed as destroyed in Tokyo were Niss Steel Mfg. Co., Fujikura Electric Cable works, Tokyo Gas Co. (Suranachi branch,) Tokyo Kozia Co. and Tsukiji market and warehouse.

Damage to Nagoya "certainly was not inconsiderable," Lemay acknowledged.

He said all but one of the raiders returned. Only two were lost over Tokyo.

Nagoya Burning 10 Hours After B-29 Raid

Twenty-first Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam, March 12 (AP). Speeding over their target at only 5,000 feet altitude, 300 giant B-29's poured 2,000 tons of incendiary bombs on Nagoya, Japan's greatest warplane producing center and third largest city, today.

[In Washington the 20th Air Force officially termed the attack "as successful as the assault on Tokyo" two days earlier.]

Japanese imperial headquarters admitted that fires were still burning in the Nagoya business section ten hours after Marianas-based Superforts began raiding the city immediately after midnight.

One Superfort Lost

Only one B-29 was lost over the target in the raid despite the low level of the attack and the number participating. All other planes returned safely, 21st Bomber Command headquarters announced.

The enemy communiqué said B-29's were over the city from midnight until 3.20 A.M. It claimed 22 Superforts were shot down and 60 damaged.

"Fires that started at various points in the city," the Japanese communiqué said, "were nearly brought under control by 10 A.M."

Tokyo reported flames spread into the general area around the Atsuta shrine, one of the ten large Shinto shrines in Japan, but the holy places were not damaged.

Raging Fires

Pilots said they started raging fires that converted a 5 square mile area into a hellish inferno and raged unchecked hours afterward.

The first Superfortresses struck Nagoya just after midnight, Tokyo time—barely 48 hours after their record 2,300-ton incendiary raid on a 15 square mile area of central Tokyo. Fires from Saturday's holocaust still were smoldering in the Japanese capital.

Some of the first pilots returning from Nagoya said the raid did not appear as destructive as Saturday's devastation of the heart of Tokyo. However, many saw only the earliest fires started.

When two thirds of the B-29's were back on their fields, Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, said "it apparently was a very good raid."

Far From Full Strength

"All the Japs have to look forward to is the total destruction of their industries, cities and other vital targets devoted to their war effort. But one thing I want to emphasize: we are still a long way from attainment of our full strength."

Nagoya produces 40 to 50 per cent of all of Japan's warplanes and combat-plane engines. Also in the bombed area were factories producing important railway equipment, machine tools, bearings, tanks, motor vehicles and processed foods. The city also has an important port.

Also hard hit were war-vital railroads and rail yards.

Population Of Target Area

Nagoya has a population of 1,500,000, a high percentage of whom are engaged in some phase of aircraft production.

Nagoya had not undertaken the fire prevention and fire fighting projects begun in Tokyo shortly after the war started.

Capt. Earl A. Russell, Stamford, Texas, said antiaircraft fire was "a lot rougher than over Tokyo" but other flyers said they saw "nothing but searchlights."

The raid demonstrated the 21st's ability to mount such two gigantic strikes at the enemy's vital industrial centers only two days apart.

Many In Both Raids

Two-thirds of the crews which started Tokyo's conflagration were right back over Nagoya.

It's difficult to compare damage inflicted on Japan's generally poorly constructed buildings with that on Germany's factories, but Lieut. George Perrin, Jr., of Greenstown, Ohio, who flew 29 missions over Germany, speculated:

"I think we caused more damage in this raid and the Tokyo raid than any we've made in Europe."

Headquarters disclosed the normally high-level bombers adopted the low-altitude tactics for the first time for the Tokyo raid. It also stated the total bomb tonnage dropped on the capital was 2,300, increasing early estimates by 1,000 tons.

ing maintenance or repair on the return from Tokyo.

Eight hours later, the air crews—which in the combined Tokyo-Nagoya attacks flew about 105,000 man air hours—were spilling fire on Nagoya.

Most of the airforces consider it "good" when half the aircraft used on a mission is reconditioned within four days, pointed out Col. C. S. Irvine, of St. Paul, Nebr., deputy chief for supply and maintenance under Maj. Gen. Curtis Lee Lemay, commanding general of the 21st.

B-29 Crews Went Without Food, Sleep to Ready Ships for Raid

21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Tuesday, March 13—(AP) Headquarters disclosed today how B-29 ground crews, working night and day without sleep and in some cases without meals, made it possible for 300 Superfortresses to hit Nagoya within 48 hours after more than 300 of them fired the heart of Tokyo.

As the first B-29s landed at their home bases from the Tokyo raid, ground personnel were informed the planes had to be made flyable again within less than 36 hours.

They pitched in to perform a maintenance miracle.

Scarcely had the pilots taxied the big bombers into the hardstands (hard-surfaced parking places) and cut the switches before ground crewmen leaped to the tasks necessary after each mission. The statistics—about 350,000 man hours' work—tell the story coldly. The Japanese at Nagoya felt the results warmly.

Besides refueling and "bombing up," the ground crews had to tune up and in some instances change engines. They had to clean and repair guns, repair battle damage, check and re-check all parts. Within 12 hours, more than 78 per cent of all B-29s getting attention were ready to go again. By zero hour, the total had been raised to 90 per cent of the sky giants requir-

Japs Pla[illegible]ider Use Of Aluminum Money

San Francisco, March 12 (AP)—The vice ministers in Premier Kuniaki Koiso's Cabinet approved the "general issuance of aluminum currency" at today's meeting, the Tokyo radio said today.

Such aluminum currency has been issued in Japanese-conquered countries.

The subject of "lighter" money was weighted with a heavy discussion of "measures for the relief of air raid damages," the broadcast, recorded here, said.

KOISO WARNS JAPS INVASION IS LIKELY

By Associated Press.

Though warning Japan's population that the Japanese homeland "will surely become an actual fighting ground," Premiere Kuniaki Koiso assured his critics in the House of Representatives yesterday that Japan was ready to deal with invading forces whether they come by land or sea or air. The Tokyo radio quoted the Premier as saying that his government had devised a "great-scale plan for revision" of the air-defense facilities and that it is "already under way."

Premier Koiso said that "if the enemy should invade waters near our mainland, we will crush him on the sea. If he attempts to land we will intercept him at the water's edge and drive him back into the sea.

"If he should finally succeed in landing, we will annihilate him with sledge-hammer blows." The broadcast was recorded by the FCC.

SINGAPORE RAIDED BY 40 SUPERFORTS

Washington, March 12 (A. P.).—Superfortresses hit at industrial targets in the Japanese-held Singapore area today in a daylight raid. Approximately 40 B-29s struck at factories adjacent to the big naval base at the tip of the Malay Peninsula. They flew from India bases of Brig.-Gen. Roger M. Ramey's Twentieth Bomber Command.

This was the sixth time Singapore had been hit and the results were proclaimed good. All the planes returned. Some of today's bombing was done by precision instruments through cloud undercast. Both fighter and anti-aircraft opposition were moderate.

India-Based B-29's Hit Singapore

Washington, March 12 (AP)—India-based Superfortresses struck Japanese-held Singapore for the sixth time with "good" results today.

A 20th Air Force headquarters communiqué issued after the raid said all aircraft returned to their bases.

An earlier announcement described the force of B-29's from Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey's 20th Bomber Command as "medium"-sized and said industrial targets at the big naval base were struck at.

Instruments Used

Some of today's bombing was done by precision instruments through cloud undercast, the communiqué reported. Both fighter and anti-aircraft opposition was moderate.

The raid came two days after another in Malaya—a successful attack in similar strength against vital rail installations at Kuala Lumpur, some 200 miles north of Singapore.

B-29's last hit Singapore on March 2, when approximately 40 of the big planes participated.

ROOSEVELT SENDS AIR PACT TO SENATE

Treaty Would Establish World Council—Republicans Ready to Fight Temporary Accords

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP)—President Roosevelt today sent to the Senate the International Aviation Treaty establishing an Aviation Council and affirming each country's control of the air above it.

The President's message read:

"With a view to receiving the advice and consent of the Senate to ratification, I transmit herewith a certified copy of a Convention on International Civil Aviation, concluded at the International Civil Aviation Conference on Dec. 7, 1944, and signed in the English language by the respective plenipotentiaries of the Governments of the United States of America, the Philippine Commonwealth and certain other countries, as explained more fully in the report by the Acting Secretary of State, which report I transmit herewith for the information of the Senate."

Simultaneously, Republicans indicated they will fight to force withdrawal of temporary world air agreements.

Senator White of Maine, the Republican leader, said he may ask the Foreign Relations Committee to act Wednesday on his motion requesting the State Department to halt its attempt to put into effect interim agreements signed, along with the treaty, at the World Aviation Conference in Chicago last year.

Led by Senator Brewster of Maine, a conference delegate, the Republicans have contended that the temporary agreements are in fact treaties and cannot be put into effect by Executive action alone.

Mr. Brewster said he was opposed to some of the policies in the temporary agreements. He contended that if they are put into effect fifty-four nations would be entitled to fly planes into this country, discharge and pick up passengers, without having to obtain certificates of necessity and convenience from the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The State Department already has announced American acceptance of the temporary agreements.

Submission of the treaty came after the committee instructed Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky last week to ask Mr. Roosevelt informally to hasten action on the permanent document.

MEXICO CITY PACTS LAUDED

Called Beacon To United Nations by Connally

MAR 13 1945

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, today described the inter-American agreements of Mexico City as a beacon to guide the United Nations at San Francisco next month.

The Texan, a delegate to both Mexico City and San Francisco, reported to the Senate on the sessions in the southern republic just one day ahead of a preliminary meeting of the group which will represent this country in the United Nations meeting, beginning April 25.

Refers To Chapultepec

Referring to the Act of Chapultepec, Connally said:

"This is a forerunner of what we hope will happen at San Francisco. This is a beacon which shall enable the states at San Francisco to see the roadway to peace."

He spoke just after Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, one of a Republican group selected by President Roosevelt as members of the San Francisco delegation, had invited suggestions from service men on how to set up the organization of the future peace in the United Nations meeting.

Meeting Called Today

Tomorrow's meeting of the American delegation was called by Secretary of State Stettinius, and Connally said he assumed the purpose was organization and discussion of preliminary plans. One of those in attendance will be Lieut. Com. Harold E. Stassen, Republican, former Governor of Minnesota, called back from naval duty in the Pacific to take part.

Connally told the Senate that the Act of Chapultepec "adopts the Monroe Doctrine as a multilateral doctrine."

"The conference gives unity of purpose, so that all republics of this hemisphere are united to resist interference from abroad in the Western Hemisphere," he said. "But it goes beyond that. No ambitious power in this hemisphere can contemplate the conquest of another republic in this hemisphere.

Argentina's Course

"We do not ignore the organization of the over-all international organization on peace and security. We propose that the regional organization shall be integrated and co-ordinated with the world organization."

Connally said the situation produced by Argentina's course during the war had been "most irritating, not only to our own State Department but to the other American republics."

The resolutions adopted at Mexico City, he continued, left Argentina at liberty to subscribe to the Chapultepec pronouncements and the United Nations' declarations, whereupon she could be restored to full "partnership and brotherhood."

Suggestions Invited

Vandenberg's invitation for peace organization suggestions from service men came in a letter to Gov. Dwight H. Green of Iillinois.

"I want them directly represented when we sit at the final peace table," Vandenberg wrote. "Meanwhile I invite them to a top priority in advising me of their immediate views in respect to my own duties as a delegate at San Francisco."

Senator Austin (R., Vt.), another delegate to Mexico City, said the establishment of a regional peace organization would not endanger formation of a world peace organization. He added:

"The principles of the Dumbarton Oaks plan were approved, and Dumbarton Oaks provides for settlement of disputes by regional action where appropriate."

Austin said "fears" were present among the Mexico City delegates owing to reports of mobilization on borders. He did not go into details, but there have been reports of Argentine troops on the Chilean frontier.

GI Peace Ideas Welcomed

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) said today he will give "top priority" to suggestions from members of the armed forces on proposals to be laid before the world security conference.

Vandenberg is one of the eight American delegates to the April San Francisco meeting. He and others of the group will meet tomorrow morning with Secretary of State Stettinius for organization and a preliminary review of their duties.

In a letter to Republican Gov. Dwight H. Green of Illinois, Vandenberg said he welcomed Green's posposal that uniformed men and women who are fighting the war have a voice in making the peace.

Soldier-Vote Support

The Michigan Senator said it was "elemental" that their views should have weighty consideration. For that reason, he said, he had supported "maxmium opportunities for the armed forces to participate in the last election—since the chief 'voice' available to citizens in our Republic is in the free choice of representatives to speak for them in the forum of government."

"In this spirit," Vandenberg wrote, "I shall also continue to demand that all peace settlements, including temporary decisions unavoidably required by the exigencies of war, shall finally be submitted to these representatives for approval by constitutional process."

Reference To Stassen

He was glad to note, Vandenberg added, that the armed forces are represented on the delegation by one of their number—obviously alluding to Commander Harold E. Stassen.

"I want them directly represented when we sit at the final peace table," Vandenberg said. "Meanwhile, I invite them to a top priority in advising me of their immediate views in respect to my own duties as a delegate at San Francisco."

Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, one of the delegates, said he assumed the group would organize at the meeting with Stettinius tomorrow and discuss preliminary plans for the San Francisco meeting, which begins April 25.

Senator Connally (D., Texas) said that the hemispheric agreements made at Mexico City will not bind American republics to follow an identical course at the San Francisco conference.

Compatible With Oaks Plan

He told a reporter that in his opinion the Act of Chapultepec is "entirely compatible" with the security principles laid down at Dumbarton Oaks.

While the interests of the American republics would be similar in many respects, he said, none is bound to follow any particular course at the security conference, adding:

"We want to avoid the danger of appearing to the other nations of the world as a bloc."

Lubin Gets Post

Meanwhile, Stettinius announced the appointment of Dr. Isador Lubin as United States representative on a three-power reparations commission to be established in Moscow.

In his first news conference since returning from a 26,000-mile trip in which he attended the Crimea conference and the inter-American meeting at Mexico City, the Secretary said creation of the reparations commission was the first step in implementing the decisions reached at Yalta.

Amount And Kind

The commission, composed of representatives of the Soviet Union and Britain as well as the United States, will determine the amount and kind of reparations to be exacted from Germany for devastation wrought by the Wehrmacht.

Dr. Lubin, economist and statistician, who has been on leave from his position as commissioner of labor statistics to serve on the White House staff during the war, will leave for Moscow shortly, Stettinius said, adding that he knew of no man better qualified to represent the United States on the commission.

Bring M'Arthur Home For Talk, Taft Requests

MAR 13 1945

Washington, March 12 (AP)—Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said today that Gen. Douglas MacArthur should be brought to Washington to help determine final strategy to defeat the Japanese.

Noting that Fleet Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, the Navy's Pacific commander-in-chief, has just been here, the Ohio Senator said he regards it as "significant" that MacArthur has not been summoned here since the war began.

"Knows How To Fight Japs"

"I think the high command should bring General MacArthur home and consult him on the plans to beat the Japanese," Taft said. "I think he has shown he knows how to fight the Japs as well as the Navy knows how to fight in its own area."

There has been much speculation in Congress over the choice of a supreme commander for the final drive on Tokyo. Nimitz and MacArthur are regarded as possibilities, along with Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff.

In any event, Senator George (D., Ga.) said he thinks MacArthur's experience ought to be utilized.

"Remarkable Care"

"He is the best man they have for directing land fighting," the Georgian declared. "He has demonstrated remarkable care and thought for his troops. In every case his landing losses have been small, which pretty well argues to a layman that he knows the Japanese and how to fight them."

Senator Johnson (D., Col.) takes the view there may be a lot of clean-up work to be done in the Philippines and other island areas and that MacArthur is "almost irreplaceable" for that task.

"I think he has done a great job," the Colorado Senator said. "He has proved himself the foremost military leader in the kind of war that has had to be fought in the Pacific."

Committee To Hear Patterson

Johnson said the Military Committee, of which he is a member, has been given no information about any decisions that may have been made on the Pacific command.

Some members indicated that the question might be broached today when Under Secretary of War Robert Patterson and Lieut. Gen. Thomas T. Handy, deputy chief of staff, appear before a closed session.

France Pays 40 Millions

MAR 13 1945

Washington, March 12 (AP)—France today paid a $40,000,000 installment on materials shipped to French North and West Africa during the last two years.

Christian Valensi, president of the French Supply Council, made the payment by check to Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator.

31 Millions Due

This brought total payments to $153,668,907. The value of shipments to French North and West Africa from February, 1943, through January 31, 1945, has been placed at $185,402,935. The difference between this value and the total payments thus far made—about $31,000,000 — represents items now in negotiation.

The lend-lease of civilian supplies to French North and West Africa will end June 30. Private trade or French mission procurement thereafter will handle exports from this country.

British Hospital Trains Carrying U. S. Wounded

Ships Also Assigned Under Reverse Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP).—Leo T. Crowley announced today the British government has assigned at least forty hospital trains to carry wounded American troops in Europe and England under reverse lend-lease.

The Foreign Economic Administrator said the cost of operating the trains as well as building them is borne by the British. In addition, Mr. Crowley said, British trains of the same type have been allocated to United States Army service as needed and have been used at the rate of about one a day.

"A number of British ships also have been assigned under lend-lease to move the American wounded," Mr. Crowley said. "These include three hospital ships and five hospital carriers. British crews are employed in manning all the hospital ships and two of the hospital carriers."

LUBIN APPOINTED TO COMMISSION ON REPARATIONS

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP Dr. Isador Lubin, economist and statistician, was appointed today as American member of the Reparations commission.

Created by the Big Three at Yalta, the commission will meet in Moscow in about a month to decide how Germany should pay for the devastation caused by her armies throughout Europe.

The appointment immediately raised the question of what other countries would be represented on the commission, other than Britain, Russia and the United States. To this question the State department had no immediate answer.

The United States expects little or nothing from Germany in the way of reparations but every country which has been actively engaged in the war with the Nazis and, particularly Russia, is looking to the Reich for assistance in rebuilding. It will be up to the commission to decide how much can be taken out of Germany in the way of supplies and industrial equipment and how much factories which may remain can produce for shipment to the devastated lands.

There is no question of payment in money, apparently. The Big Three agreement at Yalta was that Germany should be "obliged to make compensation for this damage in kind to the greatest extent possible."

Lubin expects to leave for the Russian capital in about three weeks. The 48-year-old economist is a member of the White House staff on assignment as chief of the statistical analysis division of the munitions assignment board, working under the combined chiefs of staff. He returned only last week from the liberated areas of western Europe where he surveyed immediate relief and primary rehabilitation needs of France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

Most of his years in government service have been spent as commissioner of labor statistics in the Labor department, a job from which he is on leave while working on the White House staff.

Presumably the Reparations commission will deal only with machinery and industrial production and exclude from its considerations the use of Germany labor in Russia. France and other countries which may ask such manpower to help them recover from war damages. President Roosevelt said two weeks ago he did not think the question of German labor for use in Russia would come under reparations although he thought it a good idea to have the German troops help clean up some of the terrible destruction they had wrought.

The question of what countries will be on the commission may turn out to be a fairly touchy one. Small European nations which have suffered at the hands of the German invaders may demand a full voice in the consultations.

Credit Agency Bill Is Voted in House, 359 to 8

C.C.C.'s Borrowing Ceiling Is Raised to 5 Billions; Investigation Is Pledged

WASHINGTON, March 12 (AP).—A new lease on life for the Commodity Credit Corporation was voted today by the House after Administration assurance of vigorous dealings with any employee found involved in speculation "scandals."

The legislation, approved 359 to 8, boosts the borrowing power of the agency, which supports farm prices, from $3,000,000,000 to $5,000,000,000, half a million dollars above the amount set by the Senate.

Passage came without a fight on consumer food subsidies, an issue on which many previous C. C. C. battles have turned.

Not content with Administration promises that any C. C. C. employees found involved in "scandals" would be dismissed and legal proceedings would be taken, Republicans shouted demands that Congress itself investigate charges, made in the House by Representatives Taber, Republican, of New York, and Frank B. Keefe, Republican, of Wisconsin, that certain unnamed C. C. C. employees had enabled speculators to "make millions" through tip-offs on impending government actions affecting commodity prices.

A Republican effort, led by Representative Jesse P. Wolcott, Republican, of Michigan, to cut in half the Administration request for a $2,000,000,000 increase from C. C. C.'s present borrowing power of $3,000,000,000 was defeated on a virtually party line vote, 153 to 125.

Another Republican amendment, to limit the extension to only one year, was defeated, 119 to 101.

The legislation now goes to a House-Senate conference committee for adjustment of differences.

The eight voting against the measure, all Republicans, were Representatives Ellsworth B. Buck, New York; Cliff Clevenfer, Ohio; Clare E. Hoffman, Michigan; Robert Jones, Ohio; Robert W. Kean, New Jersey; Robert F. Rich, Pennsylvania; Frederick C. Smith, Ohio, and Thomas D. Winter, Kansas.

In a letter to Congress today, following last week's outburst on charges of "scandals" in C. C. C., War Food Administrator Marvin Jones wrote:

"I want to assure you . . . that we are going to the bottom of these charges, secure the facts and, if any evidence is found of improper conduct on the part of any official or employees, I shall promptly remove them and shall ask that proceedings be instituted to punish them if the facts justify such action."

Frank Hancock, C. C. C. head, previously had disclosed that three C. C. C. employees had been "separated" from their jobs.

Chinese Envoy, Roosevelt Confer

Washington, March 12 (AP)—The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Wei Taoming, conferred with President Roosevelt today about matters pertaining to the war effort and international security.

Aside from those matters, the Ambassador told reporters afterward, he could say that China is vitally interested in two things:

1. The forthcoming San Francisco conference of the United Nations to draft a charter for a world security organization. The Chinese envoy said that "we will do everything we can to contribute to its success."

2. A national assembly in China next November at which all parties will share in shaping a "democratic constitutional regime" for the country.

VINSON TAKES OVER ALL JONES'S POSTS

Washington, March 12 (A. P.).—The Reconstruction Finance Corporation announced today that Fred M. Vinson, Federal Loan Administrator, has been elected a director and chairman of the board of five RFC subsidiaries.

In each case he succeeds Jesse Jones, who was removed as Secretary of Commerce and Federal Loan Administrator by President Roosevelt. Charles B. Henderson is chairman of the RFC.

The subsidiaries now headed by Mr. Vinson are: Defense Plant Corporation, Defense Supplies Corporation, Metals Reserve Company, Rubber Reserve Company and War Damage Corporation.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. Wins Croix de Guerre

Washington, March 12 (A. P.).—Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., former Republican Senator from Massachusetts, has won the French Legion of Honor and the Croix de Guerre with Palm, Minority Leader Martin told the House today.

"That he may return to us at the end of the war in good health, with even richer honors, is the sincere wish of his many friends," Mr. Martin said.

BARS LEND-LEASE FOR POST-WAR AID

Washington, March 12 (A. P.).—TThe House Foreign Affairs Committee today voted to prohibit the use of the lend-lease program for foreign post-war relief, rehabilitation or reconstruction.

This language was written into legislation to extend the lend-lease act which is scheduled for House debate beginning tomorrow.

The amendment, which Representative Bloom (D.-N. Y.), the chairman, said was adopted unanimously, resulted from Republican fears that the lend-lease program would be used for foreign post-war rehabilitation. It does not prevent foreign governments from purchasing supplies sent abroad under lend-lease and no longer needed for the war effort.

ADMITS U. S. SENDS PULP TO ENGLAND

Washington, March 12 (A. P.).—Two Congressmen told a House committee today that Great Britain is outsmarting the United Staes in secuiring newsprint supplies.

Representatives Brown (R.-Ohio) and Murphy (D.-Pa.) advanced this contention while questioning Arthur Bevin, head of the Foreign Economic Administration's paper and lumber section, before a subcommittee investigating paper shortages.

Mr. Bevin acknowledged that:

1. The United States is shipping wood pulp to the British now, although they are getting larger supplies than previously from Canada and this country's Canadian imports have been cut.

2. The British have already made an agreement with Sweden and are negotiating one with Finland for paper and pulp, but this country has not made any such move.

"Britain is taking good care of their end of this situation," Mr. Murphy declared. "But it looks like no one's taking care of America."

Supreme Court Refuses To Rule Now on Ward Case

WASHINGTON, March 12—(AP) Two cases springing from disputed orders of the War Labor board failed to get into Supreme court today.

The row over government seizure of Montgomery Ward & Co. properties was, in effect, handed over to the Circuit Court of Appeals when the Supreme court declined a review at this time. This meant the case cannot reach the high court again before next Fall.

Both sides sought to appeal directly to the Supreme court from a Chicago Federal district court decision that Army seizure of plants in seven cities was illegal. It was carried out by presidential decree to back up WLB orders.

In the second case, the United States Gypsum Co. asked an injunction and a broad judgment to define requirements of an WLB directive of 1942 concerning overtime, Ohio, p

The court's simple order gave no reason for denying review, but the government had contended the case fell within principles of two others in which the court had declined action. In those cases it had been held that the law does not provide for review of such WLB orders, and that sufficient grounds for injunction were lacking, the government said.

Prominent in each set of WLB orders was maintenance of union membership which requires the company to discharge an employe who leaves the union.

The Supreme court split 5-4 in ruling against the Northwestern bands of Shoshone Indians who wanted $15,000,000 from the government for taking their ancestral lands in Idaho, Utah and Nevada.

The majority opinion of Justice Reed said the Congressional act authorizing the suit narrowed the issue to the question whether the government had recognized Indian title to the lands in the 1863 treaty of Box Elder, Utah territory.

The court found that the parties to the treaty did not intend by it to acknowledge title and, since any rights the Shoshones possess in the land did not come from that treaty, the Indians cannot recover under the terms of the Congressional act.

Justices Murphy and Douglas, in vigorous dissenting opinions joined by Justice Frankfurter, contended that the treaty, which gave Federal right of way across the lands, was a recognition of Indian ownership. Justice Roberts also dissented.

The court agreed to review several other cases, including:

Legality of conviction in Salt Lake City of nine members of a cult which believes in plural marriages; six on Mann act charges and three under the Lindbergh kidnaping law.

Validity of the Hatch act provision forbidding Federal employes from taking active part in political campaigns. A review was requested by the United Federal Workers of America (C.I.O.) which had tried to enjoin enforcement of the section.

APPROVAL URGED OF MONETARY PLAN

MINNEAPOLIS, March 12—(AP) Treasury Secretary Morgenthau tonight urged Congressional ratification of the Bretton Woods monetary agreements as a "necessary first step toward getting and keeping foreign markets for thousands of American products."

Unless the agreements become operative, he said, "the strides toward peace and security at Dumbarton Oaks, at Mexico City and at Yalta, as well as the further steps that will be taken at San Francisco, may end only in frustration. Peace to be secure must rest on the firm foundation of thriving industry within nations and profitable and expanding commerce between them."

His address was prepared for a meeting of the foreign policy association and the Minneapolis Civic and Commerce association. It was one of several speeches which Morgenthau said he is making to "sell" the Bretton Woods pact "to the people and, through them, to Congress."

The agreements reached at a conference of 44 nations in Bretton Woods, N. H., last July form "an essential segment of the peace program," Morgenthau said. They proposed the establishment of an international bank for reconstruction and development of war torn nations and an international monetary fund to perfect a system of fair monetary practices between countries.

Morgenthau said that Russia's $300,000,000 subscription to the bank on the final day of the conference—in addition to her original $900,000,000 subscription — was "a symbol of her determination to cooperate wholeheartedly with us and the other United Nations in the task of reconstruction and development."

"The Bretton Woods program offers currency stability to facilitate trade, and credit protection for sound international loans," the secretary said. "Both will benefit the American people through an increased and more stable market for their products.

"Of course (the agreements) by themselves are not going to restore our foreign markets x x x but they are a necessary first step toward getting and keeping those markets for thousands of American products."

canal, Major General Vandegrift sat down and wrote to the boys.

And as the 5th Army pressed on to Rome, Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark wrote, saying that he was "making arrangements to have your letter to Marshal Tito delivered to him somewhere in Yugoslavia."

And way back in the North African campaign, British Marshal Montgomery answered: "I need the prayers of you boys." He sent the boys' letter to his brother, Chaplain Colin Montgomery, who later visited the class while in this country.

"Comforting And Inspiring"

A letter from Maj. Gen. Roy S. Geiger, of the Marines, during bitter fighting on Guam, said: "It is comforting and inspiring . . . to know that we are never forgotten in your prayers."

There are dozens of other letters—from Generals Eisenhower, Patton, Hodges, Marshall; Admirals Nimitz, Halsey; French General Juin and Archibald Wavell, Viceroy of India. Sixty-three in all.

Each Sunday the boys meet and pray, individually, for the Allied leaders. There are 143 now on their list.

Allied Chiefs' Letters Thanking Boys For Prayers Total 63

Atlanta, March 12 (AP)—Back in 1942, as the Japs crept toward the doors of Australia, Gen. Douglas MacArthur wasn't too busy to sit down and write to a small group of boys in Atlanta to thank them for their prayers.

"With Divine guidance," General MacArthur wrote, "we cannot fail."

So the twelve boys in James Worthington's Sunday-school class, at Capitol View Methodist Church, began praying for the Allied leaders. And they wrote to them, telling of their prayers.

May Preserve Collection

Thus far the boys have a collection of 63 letters from generals and statesmen. A movement has been started to preserve the collection at Emory University here.

"Not one of those who received our letters failed to reply," said Worthington. "What impressed me most was the dates of the letters. Many, as borne out by news dispatches, were written in the midst of battle."

'COMMANDO' KELLY MARRIES MAY BOISH

PHENIX CITY, Ala., March 12.—(AP) Tech. Sgt. Charles E. 'Commando" Kelly and Miss May Boish of Pittsburgh, Pa., were married here this afternoon at the Russell county courthouse.

Probate Judge Claude D. Gullatte performed the ceremony and among the spectators was Kelly's commanding general when he won the Congressional Medal of Honor for bravery overseas, Maj. General Fred L. Walker. General Walker now is commandant at Fort Benning, where Kelly is stationed.

The couple left this little town, adjacent to Columbus, Ga., for parts unknown after the wedding, telling newsmen that "where we're going is a secret." But Kelly has to be back at Fort Benning, on the outskirts of Columbus, at 8 a. m. tomorrow.

Mackenzie King to Attend

WILLIAMSBURG, Va., March 12 (CP).—Canada's delegation to the San Francisco Conference on World Security, opening April 25, will be headed by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, he said here today.

Mr. King, here for rest and relaxation, said he will not remain in San Francisco for the whole period of conference. Other members of the Canadian delegation will be announced in Parliament, which opens next Monday, the Prime Minister said. He said in Ottawa last week that members of opposition parties will be represented in the delegation.

6,200 Tanks Lost

$500,000,000 U. S. Ordnance Destroyed Since D Day

CHICAGO, March 12 (AP).—Losses of ordnance equipment alone since D Day in Europe have totaled more than $500,000,000, Colonel John Slezak, chief of the Chicago Ordnance District, announced today.

This valuation covers some 6,200 tanks; 34,250 general purpose vehicles; 166,900 rifles and other small arms, and 23,000 mortars and machine guns, Colonel Slezak reported. Tank losses alone were valued at more than $200,000,000.

Ruling In Alcoa Case Is Reversed

New York, March 12 (AP)—A three-man circuit court ruled today that the Federal court had erred in finding that the Aluminum Company of America and its subsidiaries were not monopolizing interstate and foreign commerce in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Today's unanimous opinion, which Judge Learned Hand wrote and in which Judges Augustus N. Hand and Thomas W. Swan concurred, returned the case to the Federal court for further proceeding.

The circuit court, sitting as members of the United States Supreme Court under special legislation, stated in its opinion that Alcoa operated a monopoly in violation of Section 2 of the anti-trust law. The opinion left it to the district court to determine whether "eventually some form of dissolution would be proper."

The opinion stated that the Government "was seeking to show that many transactions, neutral on their face . . . had no motive except to exclude others and perpetuate its (Alcoa's) hold upon the ingot market.

"Upon that effort success depended in case the plaintiff (the Government) failed to satisfy the court that it was unnecessary under Section 2 to convict Alcoa of practices unlawful of themselves. The plaintiff has so satisfied us and the issue of intent ceases to be important.

". . . Alcoa meant to keep and did keep that complete and exclusive hold upon the ingot market with which it started. That was to monopolize the market, however innocently it otherwise proceeded. So far as the judgment held that it was not within Section 2, it must be reversed."

The opinion also stated the Aluminum Company of Canada cartel agreement with a number of foreign firms in 1936 violated the "restraint of trade" section of the Anti-Trust Act.

NAVY CLEARS SAILOR ACCUSED OF SEDUCTION

NEW YORK, March 12—(AP) The Third Naval district headquarters announced late today that Chief Pharmacist's Mate Frederick Brooks, who had been accused of seduction of an Italian girl while serving overseas, had been restored to full duty.

The Navy said that while its official announcement did not specify that charges on which Brooks had been held were dropped, "it is safe to assume so."

Brooks, who was about to receive a medical discharge before his detention on a ship at Pier 92, North River, was removed to the Naval hospital at St. Albans, Queens, for treatment of a nervous condition, the Navy added.

AFL OFFICERS' DEFENSE RESTS

Neither Defendant On Stand In N.Y. Extortion Case

New York, March 12 (AP)—Defense of Joseph S. Fay and James Bove, AFL labor officials, to charges of conspiracy and extortion of more than $250,000 from contractors on New York city's $300,000,000 Delaware Water Project, rested today without either defendant taking the stand.

Summations are scheduled to begin tomorrow morning before a State Supreme Court justice, William H. Munson, and the jury of eleven men and one woman.

The defense rested its case after thirteen representatives of contracting firms gave testimony for Fay and Bove and two labor officials said the defendants had aided in halting a strike on the water project.

Paid Meals, Wages, Bills

Fay is vice president of the International Union of Operating Engineers. Bove, former vice president of the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union of America, is secretary-treasurer of Local 60 of the union.

Joseph P. Madden, secretary-treasurer of Local 122, Construction Workers Union, Jersey City, N.J., the final defense witness, said he sent 200 to 250 members of his union to the water project in July, 1939, to act as counterpickets on a series of strikes called in jurisdictional disputes:

He testified the men stayed about ten days and that Fay paid their wages, hotel bills and meal checks.

Counterpickets Sent

Earlier, James P. Kenny, Independent Sandhog Workers Union business agent, said he had sent between 700 and 1,000 men to the project to do counterpicketing.

The character witnesses called by a defense attorney, Robert J. Fitzsimmons, at the morning session said they did not know that Fay was president of an international engineering company, that he owned a third interest in the international holding corporation, or that project contractors were threatened with strikes unless they did business with Fay's firms.

The trial began last Monday, 22 months after the two men had been indicted.

The prosecution rested its case Friday, when Justice Munson directed acquittal of both defendants on one count charging $12,000 extortion and on a portion of another count which charged extortion of $125,000. He denied a defense motion for directed acquittal on the portion of the count charging attempted extortion of the $125,000.

UMW STRIKE VOTE COST TO BE $300,000

NLRB To Hire 4,000 Extras At $11.80 A Day For At Least 3 Days

Defense of AFL men rests in extortion case.....Page 5

Washington, March 12 (AP)—The biggest strike vote ever taken by the National Labor Relations Board—the March 28 ballot among 400,000 United Mine Workers—will cost $300,000, the NLRB estimated today.

The board will hire a minimum of 4,000 special agents, for at least three days, at $11.80 a day, to handle the vote, which results from John L. Lewis's notice that a dispute with the nation's bituminous coal operators existed on February 26.

MAR 13 1945

NLRB To Bear Cost

The cost of taking the strike vote will be borne by the NLRB. It may be necessary, however, a spokesman said, to seek a deficiency appropriation from Congress to meet the cost of the miners' election.

The companies and the unions have been invited by the NLRB to place watchers at the polls where the strike vote will be taken, and in event that they do, that will be the only cost to them, an NLRB source said.

Results of the ballot will be announced here on March 29. The bituminous contract expires March 31. Meantime the contract negotiations were interrupted today while operators formulated counteroffers to Lewis's eighteen demands. The negotiations are due to resume Wednesday. The operators are unable to complete their reply to Lewis's demands before that time.

Coal Men's Attempt Fails

An effort by the Southern Coal Producers Association to block the vote was rejected today by the board, in concert with the War Labor Board and Labor Department, which also had to pass on whether a dispute really existed within the meaning of the Smith-Connally War Labor Disputes Act.

In refusing the Southern coal operators' petition to abandon the strike vote, the NLRB, War Labor Board and Labor Department determined that the dispute existed and that Lewis's strike notice was "valid and effective" under Section 8 of the War Labor Disputes Act.

Only Lewis can now stop the poll, unless the Southern operators, appealing to the courts, are successful in establishing proof of injury as result of the ballot.

Combing The Field

The board disclosed it was combing the field for manpower and womanpower to conduct the vote. Every government agency with knowledge of available personnel has been asked to aid in securing agents.

These include the War Manpower Commission, REA, OPA, Agriculture Department, State and Labor departments, as well as county election officials, ministers, teachers, college students, insurance agents and court officials whose time could be spared.

The Question

The voting machinery is under direction of Oscar S. Smith, director of the field division, which normally employs 140 field examiners. These examiners will oversee general operations of the poll in 100 or more geographical areas into which the nation has been divided.

The vote will be taken on the miners' own time, before or after working hours, to eliminate possible loss of production.

The question appearing on the ballot, prescribed by statute, will be:

Do you wish to permit an interruption of war production in wartime as a result of this dispute?

At larger operations voting booths will be set up at the mouth of the mine, and booths will be centrally located for employés at a number of smaller mines.

UNION CHARGES PACKARD FIRM HOARDING LABOR

DETROIT, March 12 — (AP) A charge that the Packard Motor Car company hoarded labor was made today by a labor spokesman testifying before the Senate sub-committee investigating war production in the Detroit area.

The spokesman, Norman Matthews, United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) regional grievance director and former president of Packard Local 190, U.A.W.-C.I.O., also asserted:

Claim Loafing Condoned

Through the hoarding of labor the management has condoned loafing in the plant."

It was in the Packard factory that Senator Ferguson (R.-Mich.), a member of the sub-committee, said he saw one man asleep, two others playing checkers, only one in a group of 100 working, and a number of women congregated on a stairway 45 minutes before quitting time last Friday.

Most of today's testimony concerned production and working conditions in the Packard factory. The witnesses included George T. Christopher, Packard president, and department foremen, U.A.W.-C.I.O. stewards and some production workers.

Questions by Senator Ferguson regarding the incidents of last Friday afternoon brought from a union steward, a department foreman and a plant worker statements that there was an "implied understanding" that the workers were not expected to work after they had reached quotas determined by time studies.

M. M. Macauley, Packard plant control manager, told the committee the Packard plant efficiency currently was about 70 to 72 per cent of potential, and added that the last hour of both 10-hour shifts is practically wasted. He said attempts to discipline men who did little or no work in the last hour would precipitate a strike overnight.

75 Strikes in Year

An assertion that there had been 75 strikes in the Packard plant last year and seven thus far in 1945 was made by Col. Raymond C. Anthony, Army Air forces representative at the factory. He said union stewards did very little production work and that if foremen worked the union probably would make a grievance of the fact.

Anthony said there was both voluntary and involuntary idleness in the plant, and Richard Bohn, a department foreman, testified that on one or two occasions there had been idleness because of a shortage of material.

"Is there an implied or express understanding between you, the union steward and the employes that the employes, even though not on piece work, do not have to work after they get up to their production quotas?" Senator Ferguson asked.

"That is what is done," Bohn answered.

The committee interrupted testimony by President Christopher to hear that of the production workers, stewards and foremen, but indicated it planned to recall him.

Many Major Movie Studios Tied Up By Widespread Strike

Hollywood, Cal., March 12 (AP)—Silence descended on the movie capital's big sound stages, one by one, today as the most serious strike in its history threatened to engulf the industry.

Four major studios shut down during the day—R.K.O., Warner Brothers, 20th Century-Fox and Pathé, while Paramount, Universal, Columbia and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer continued to operate.

Advised that the War Labor Board in Washington had instructed some 15,000 employés to return to work before it would act further on petitions by the producers for a review in the three-cornered controversy, Herbert Sorrell, president of the Conference of Studio Unions, responded:

"When the producers comply with the WLB arbitrator's award we will go back to work. Until then, there is no reason for us to go back. The producers haven't complied with the WLB award, so we say to hell with them."

Producers Issue Statement

The producers issued a statement tonight, claiming they are caught helplessly in a jurisdictional dispute" between the two unions. It added:

"A temporary award was made by the WLB arbitrator purporting to give jurisdiction over the set decorators to Local 1421, but pointing out that a final jurisdictional determination would have to be made by the National Labor Relations Board.

"To have observed that temporary award would have precipitated an immediate and serious work stoppage because the producers were notified by Richard Walsh, of the IATSE, that he had appealed the decision and that in the event of such recognition by the producers he would instruct his membership not to report for work.

Charge Of Stalling Made

"The producers had no option but to appeal to the NLRB for a final settlement which would be binding on all parties in the case. NLRB proceedings now are in progress. Without awaiting the result, and also without waiting for the WLB to act upon the producers' appeal, Local 1421 resorted to a strike. The producers will abide by whatever decision is made by the NLRB."

Sorrell and other union leaders charged the producers were "stalling" and had refused to abide by a WLB ruling that gave the painters union control of the decorators. The producers, however, have petitioned the War Labor Board for a review.

There is no issue of wages or hours involved in the strike.

Meanwhile, pickets instead of autograph hunters patrolled the studio gates, and there were predictions that 30,000 workers would be idle within a few days unless the controversy was settled.

The Screen Actors Guild had made no decision on the controversy, pending a general meeting, and left it to the individuals "conference or contract" as to whether he walked through the picket lines.

The actors are not affiliated in any way with the conference. However, members of the Screen Players Union—comprising extras and stunt men—were refusing to cross picket lines.

Producers, who hold the purse-strings on the industry's $2,500,000 a week pay roll, have a nine-month backlog of unreleased film on hand.

N. Y. FIRST STATE IN UNION TO PASS ANTI-BIAS BILL

ALBANY, N. Y., March 12—(AP) New York today became the first state in the union to enact a law making religious or racial prejudice in selecting workers a punishable offense.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey, after a 45-minute public ceremony in the executive chamber, signed the Ives-Quinn anti-discrimination bill at 1:25 p.m., before approximately 200 persons.

Similar legislation is being considered by seven other states and also by Congress. New York's law is effective July 1.

"x x x By this act the state declares the simple principle that in employment there shall be no discrimination by reason of race, creed, color or national origin," Dewey said. "It expresses the rule that must be fundamental in any free society—that no man shall be deprived of the chance to earn his bread by reason of the circumstances of his birth."

Dewey now must name the five-member commission created by the measure to investigate workers' complaints of discrimination by employers, labor unions or employment agencies. Each commission member will receive $10,000 annually.

The commission is directed to conciliate, when possible, and to issue "cease and desist" orders, when necessary. Violation constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by a $500 fine or a year's imprisonment, or both. Commission findings will be subject to court review. Employers of fewer than six persons, religious, charitable, social and fraternal organizations are exempt.

Dewey took five minutes to sign the bill, using 22 pens to represent the letters and punctuation of his signature (approved, Thomas E. Dewey). He gave the first pen to assemblyman Irving M. Ives, Republican majority leader, chairman of the temporary commission on discrimination and co-sponsor of the measure.

Before the Legislature approved the measure, opponents attacked it on the ground prejudice could not be eliminated by law.

Senator Elmer F. Quinn, Democratic minority leader, sponsored the measure with Ives.

$5,000 GIFT REJECTED BY FREEDOM HOUSE

NEW YORK, March 12 — (AP) The board of directors of Freedom House today declined a $5,000 donation by the Communist Political association to the Willkie Memorial Building fund by a 14 to 1 vote, and in a letter to Earl Browder, CPA head, told him that his organization was the only one to give a "political implication" to a gift.

J. Raymond Walsh, research director of the CIO Political Action committee, CIO economist, and radio commentator, was the only one of the board members to vote against returning the $5,000 donation.

In the letter to Browder accompanying the returned check, Herbert Bayard Swope, Freedom House treasurer, declared "the Communist Political association was the only donor to give their contribution a political implication and the only one of the thousands who have contributed to accompany the gift with a release to the press."

Over 4,000 contributions to the fund have been received so far, it was announced after the board meeting at Freedom House.

LONDON, MARCH 12-(AP)-EVEN BAD WEATHER CAN'T STOP THE SATURATION BOMBING OF THE REICH, SAYS AN AMERICAN AIR OFFICER RETURNED FROM THE HEAVY ASSAULT ON SUINEMUENDE TODAY.

HORDES OF LIBERATORS AND FLYING FORTRESSES ASSAULTED THE NAZI NAVAL CENTER SUCCESSFULLY, ALTHOUGH THE ATTACK WAS MADE THROUGH A CLOUD OVERCAST.

"I DON'T THINK IT MAKES ANY DIFFERENCE IF THE TARGET IS COVERED BY CLOUDS," SAID MAJ. CHARLES BIGGS OF KINGS CREEK, S.C., "AS WE LEFT (THE TARGET AREA) WE SAW SMOKE HAD STARTED TO POUR UP. WHEN WE WERE 70 MILES AWAY, WE COULD SEE NINE COLUMNS OF SMOKE BLACKENING THE SKY."

A MUSTANG GROUP LED BY CAPT. OWEN FARMER OF 814 SOUTH NATIONAL AVE., FORT SCOTT, KANS., ENCOUNTERED THE ONLY ENEMY CRAFT IN TODAY'S SWEEPS--FOUR MESSERSCHMITT 109'S WHICH WERE ATTACKED AND SHOT DOWN OVER AN AIRFIELD NEAR THE DANISH BORDER.

SOME FORMATIONS OF BOMBERS AND THEIR SWARMS OF FIGHTER PROTECTION ENCOUNTERED INTENSE ACK-ACK FIRE AT SWINEMUENDE.

BERLIN SAID THE SWINEMUENDE NAVAL BASE AND STETTIN'S OUTER HARBOR HAD BEEN THE TARGET OF AIR ASSAULT BY ALLIED HEAVY BOMBERS, APPARENTLY IN SUPPORT OF MARSHAL G.K.ZHUKOV'S OFORCES WHICH HAVE WEDGED INTO STETTIN'S DEFENSES AT ALT DAMM AND WHICH THREATEN TO MAKE AMPHIBIOUS CROSSINGS OF THE ODER ABOVE AND BELOW THE PORT CITY.

ENEMY REPORTS AGAIN TOLD OF A RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE ON MARSHAL IVAN S. KONEV'S UPPER SILESIAN FRONT AIMED AT MORAVSKA-OSTRAVA AND SAID IT APPARENTLY WAS TIMED TO COINCIDE WITH ANOTHER SOVIET DRIVE ON THE SAME CITY FROM SOUTHERN POLAND. THIS DRIVE STILL HAS NOT BEEN REPORTED FROM MOSCOW.

BITTER FIGHTING CONTINUED BETWEEN THE DRAVA RIVER AND LAKE BALATON IN HUNGARY. GERMAN FORCES THERE APPEARED TO HAVE SPENT THEIR FORWARD MOMENTUM AND TO BE ENGAGED IN DEFENDING THEIR GAINS. THE GERMAN COMMUNIQUE CLAIMED ALL RUSSIAN COUNTERATTACKS HAD FAILED.

DISPATCHES FROM MOSCOW SAID INTEREST THERE WAS CENTERED ON THE NORTHERN END OF THE EASTERN FRONT AND THAT A MAJOR SHIFT OF RED ARMY FORCES SOUTHWARD FOR A GRAND OFFENSIVE TOWARD BERLIN WAS ANTICIPATED NOW THAT MOST ENEMY RESISTANCE BETWEEN THE VISTULA AND ODER RIVERS HAD BEEN SMASHED.

IT WAS PREDICTED THAT THE RUSSIANS WOULD SWING NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE NAZI CAPITAL, ENCIRCLE IT AND MOVE STILL FARTHER WESTWARD THROUGH THE REICH, EMPLOYING THE STRATEGY THAT HAS BEEN SO EFFECTIVE IN REDUCING OTHER ENEMY FORTIFIED CITIES TO IMPOTENCE IN THE RUSSIAN DRIVE.

THESE TWO PORTS WERE UNDER TERRIFIC PRESSURE TODAY FROM THE THIRD WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY, WHICH HAS SLASHED THROUGH EAST PRUSSIA FROM THE EAST AND THROWN A SIEGE ARC AROUND THE EAST PRUSSIAN CAPITAL.

COL. ERNST VON HAMMER, NAZI MILITARY COMMENTATOR, REPORTED THE NEW SOVIET THRUST WESTWARD FROM THE UPPER SILESIAN INDUSTRIAL AREA WITHIN 23 MILES NORTHEAST OF MORAVSKA-OSTRAVA, GUARDIAN CITY OF THE MORAVIAN GAP. MOSCOW HAS NOT CONFIRMED THE NEW ASSAULT, WHICH VON HAMMER SAID HAD BEEN ANTICIPATED BY THE GERMAN HIGH COMMAND AND AT LEAST TEMPORARILY CHECKED. Add London Russian xxx East Prussia.

THE RUSIANS CONTINUED AN OFFICIAL NEWS BLACKOUT ON DEVELOPMENTS ALONG THE CLOSEST APPROACHES TO BERLIN, FROM BESIEGED STETTIN AT THE MOUTH OF THE ODER RIVER, SOUTH TO FRANKFURT AND THE GUBEN-COTTBUSFORST TRIANGLE.

AT LAST REPORT THE RUSSIANS WERE POUNDING ALTDAMM, EASTERN GATEWAY TO STETTIN, WITH HEAVY SIEGE GUNS, AND DRIVING TO OUTFLANK THE VITAL PORT FOR BERLIN ON THE NORTH. THE GERMANS THREW IN HEAVY REINFORCEMENTS IN AN ATTEMPT TO PREVENT A CAVE-IN.

FAIRBANKS' PLANE WITH FIVE OTHERS TANGLED WITH 40 NAZI FIGHTERS IN A DOGFIGHT RECENTLY. THE AMERICAN'S PLANE WAS SHOT DOWN.

FAIRBANKS JOINED THE CANADIAN AIR FORCE IN 1941 AT THE AGE OF 18 IMMEDIATELY AFTER LEAVING THE ITHACA HIGH SCHOOL BECAUSE AT THAT TIME THE U.S. AIR FORCE REQUIRED A COLLEGE DEGREE. HE WAS AN INSTRUCTOR FOR A YEAR BEFORE BEGINNING COMBAT FLYING. HE WON THE DISTINGUISHED FLYING CROSS AND BAR IN 1944 AND WAS GIVEN COMMAND OF A SQUADRON IN FEBRUARY OF THIS YEAR.

A SQUADRON PILOT DESCRIBED HIM AS ABSOLUTELY FEARLESS AND AN EXPERT MARKSMAN WHOSE EVERY BURST COUNTED.

THE YOUNG PILOT HAD MANY NARROW ESCAPES. ONCE, STRAFING A LOCOMOTIVE, HE WAS CAUGHT IN THE CROSSFIRE FROM TWO FLAK CARS. HIS GAS TANK EXPLODED AND HIS RUDDER WAS BURNED AWAY WHILE HE WAS UPSIDE DOWN 100 FEET OFF THE GROUND.

"I THOUGHT I HAD IT," HE COMMENTED LATER, "BUT I FLOPPED AROUND FOR A BIT AND SKIDDED ALL THE WAY HOME FOR A GOOD LANDING."

THE GERMANS HAD MARSHALED TANKS AND ODDS AND ENDS OF TROOPS TO MAN THESE STRONG NATURAL POSITIONS AND PIN DOWN A BREAKOUT UNTIL MORE FORCES COULD BE BROUGHT UP FOR A FULL-SCALE COUNTERATTACK. THERE WAS NO EVIDENCE THAT THEY YET HAD BEEN ABLE TO ORGANIZE SUCH FORCES.

THE AMERICANS WERE FIGHTING UNDER AN UMBRELLA OF HUNDREDS OF U.S. WARPLANES, DISCOURAGING ENEMY BOMBERS WHICH MADE OCCASIONAL PASSES AT THE BRIDGE. ENEMY SUPPLY LINES EAST OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, LEADING FROM BERLIN AND THE RUHR, WERE SEARED BY 800 ATTACKING WARPLANES.

HODGES HIMSELF VISITED THE BRIDGEHEAD BY JEEP SUNDAY AND WAS CAUGHT IN THE INCESSANT ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE, ONE SHELL LANDING CLOSE.

WHILE THE GERMANS STILL WERE TRYING TO SHELL THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE INTO THE RHINE, THE BRIDGE'S IMPORTANCE DECREASES WITH EVERY PASSING DAY, FOR HODGES' ENGINEERS UNDOUBTEDLY ARE THROWING PONTOON SPANS ACROSS, AS THE GERMANS HAVE REPORTED WITHOUT ALLIED CONFIRMATION.

THE MOP-UP OF THE GERMANS IN THE EIFELS WEST OF THE RHINE WAS PROCEEDING UNDER A PARTIAL NEWS BLACKOUT BUT THIS ENTIRE CAMPAIGN WAS IN ITS LAST STAGE.

ONE POCKET NORTH OF MAYEN WAS CLEARED EXCEPT FOR A SMALL WOODED AREA OF TWO SQUARE MILES 13 MILES NORTHWEST OF COBLENZ.

A LARGER POCKET FARTHER NORTHWEST, WHICH SUPREME HEADQUARTERS SAID YESTERDAY HELD 23,000 GERMANS, WAS LIKEWISE BEING COMPRESSED.

TWENTY-FOUR MORE GERMAN TOWNS WERE CLEARED BY PATTON'S FORCES, WHO CLOSED UP TO THE NORTH BANK OF THE MOSELLE ON ALL BUT 10 MILES OF THE RIVER'S WINDING 65-MILE COURSE BETWEEN TRIER AND COBLENZ.

THE TENTH ARMORED DIVISION CRACKED INTO THE CENTER OF THIS FINAL ENEMY NORTH BANK STAND BY CROSSING THE ALF RIVER.

THE THIRD ARMY, THREATENING TO ROLL UP THE MOSELLE VALLEY FROM THE SOUTH, CAPTURED RIOL, SEVEN MILES NORTHEAST OF JUMP-OFF POSITIONS AT TRIER.

THE GERMANS WERE STILL RESISTING STRONGLY ON THIS FRONT, HOWEVER, AND THREW IN A COUNTERATTACK A FEW MILES SOUTH OF RIOL THAT DROVE THE AMERICANS FROM HIGH GROUND.

THE GERMANS ARE SENSITIVE ON THIS FRONT, FOR A PUSH ALONG THE SOUTH BANK WOULD OUTFLANK THE SAAR BASIN AND AT THE SAME TIME LAY BARE THE SOUTH FLANK OF COBLENZ, WHICH IS PROTECTED FROM THE NORTH AND WEST BY THE 600 TO 900-YARD WIDE MOSELLE RIVER.

BETWEEN THEM, THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES COUNTED 3,996 PRISONERS INTO CAGES YESTERDAY, WITH MANY STILL TO BE TABULATED. MOST OF THESE WERE COMING FROM THE DWINDLING EIFEL POCKET.

WITHIN THE LAST WEEK, THE THIRD ARMY CAPTURED 16,000 OF THE 50,000 GERMANS TAKEN PRISONER ON THE WESTERN FRONT.

IT WAS DISCLOSED THAT IN THE EIFEL CAMPAIGN, THE THIRD ARMY DESTROYED ONE-HALF OF THE COMBAT STRENGTH OF THE GERMAN SEVENTY ARMY.

THE TOTAL PRISONER HAUL OF ALL ALLIED ARMIES SINCE THE ARDENNES COLLAPSE WAS ESTIMATED AT 185,000 GERMANS, EQUAL TO ABOUT 20 DIVISIONS.

ON THE NORTH THE AMERICANS WERE FIGHTING IN HONNEF, FIVE MILES NORTH OF REMAGEN. TOWNS LISTED AS CAPTURED WERE DALTENBERG, ERPEL, LINZ, RHEINBREITBACH, UNKEL, BRUCHHAUSEN, AND OHLENBERG. ONE WAS UNIDENTIFIE AND POSSIBLY THIS WAS LEUSDORF.

MEANWHILE TO THE SOUTH THE U.S. THIRD ARMY SPEARED TO WITHIN A MILE OF THE BIG RHINE CITY OF COBLENZ AND TOOK A 15-MILE HOLD ON THE RHINE TO THE NORTH.

IN ADDITION LT. GEN. GEORGE S. PATTON'S TROOPS THREATENED THE LAST ENEMY FORCES WEST OF THE RHINE IN THE SAAR AND PALATINATE BY SEIZING CONTROL OF 38 MILES OF THE MOSELLE RIVER'S NORTH BANK BETWEEN COBLENZ AND TRIER. IT WAS DIVIDED INTO TWO HOLDINGS, ONE 18 MILES SOUTHWEST FROM COBLENZ AND THE OTHER 20 MILES NORTHEAST FROM TRIER. THE GERMANS HELD A 17-MILE STRETCH IN BETWEEN.

THE FIRST AND THIRD ARMIES WERE CLOSING IN ON ABOUT 23,000 GERMAN TROOPS IN THE EIFEL MOUNTAINS NORTH OF THE MOSELLE. THEY WERE BEING PRESSED IN A SACK OF PROBABLY 100 SQUARE MILES, LESS THAN ONE TENTH ITS SIZE WHEN THE ALLIES SPRANG THEIR TRAP ON FRIDAY.

A SUPERHIGHWAY SWINGS 15 MILES SOUTHEAST FROM WESEL, THEN TURNS NORTHEAST AND NORTH TO BERLIN, FOR A TOTAL DISTANCE OF APPROXIMATELY 350 MILES. ENEMY BROADCASTS DECLARED THE MAIN ALLIED THRUST WOULD BE ALONG THE ROUTE OVER THE NORTH GERMAN PLAIN.

ENEMY ARTILLERY FIRE INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA DECREASED AS THE AMERICANS REPLIED WITH SALVOS FROM BIG ARTILLERY PIECES HAULED ACROSS THE RIVER. U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE BOMBERS HAMMERED NAZIS AIRFIELDS IN AN ARC AROUND THE BRIDGEHEAD AND FIGHTERBOMBERS AFFORDED A PROTECTIVE COVER. THE LUFTWAFFE, WHICH LOST 23 PLANES TO AMERICAN ANTI-AIRCRAFT FIRE SATURDAY, FAILED TO SEND A SINGLE PLANE OVER YESTERDAY.

THE FIRST ARMY SEIZED EIGHT TOWNS ALONG THE RHINE'S EAST BANK NORTH AND SOUTH OF THE REMAGEN CROSSING, WHITEHEAD REPORTED. THE TOWN FARTHEST SOUTH WAS DALTENBERG, THREE MILES SOUTH OF REMAGEN, BUT THE GERMANS DECLARED THE AMERICANS WERE FIGHTING IN HOENNIGEN, SIX MILES SOUTH.

BELGRADE, MARCH 10-(DELAYED) (AP)--MARSHAL TITO'S FORMATION OF A NEW PROVISIONAL GOVERNMENT FOR YUGOSLAVIA, WHICH WAS SWORN IN TODAY, MARKS AN IMPORTANT POLITICAL MILESTONE ON THE ROAD BACK TO NORMALITY.

DESPITE THE FACT THAT PRE-REVOLUTIONARY CURRENTS ARE CREEPING THROUGH EUROPE AND THAT YUGOSLAVIA HAS BEEN TORN BY CIVIL WAR, THE NEW MINISTRY IS IN DIRCT LEGAL SUCCESSION TO ITS PREDECESSORS. THE OLD FORMS HAVE BEEN PRESERVED AND THE LEGITIMACY OF THE GOVERNMENT IS BEYOND QUESTION.

I WATCHED THE MINISTERS TAKE THE OATH OF FIDELITY TO THE PEOPLE THIS MORNING IN THE SAME ROOM WHERE TWO DAYS AGO THE REGENTS ASSUMED THE POWERS DELEGATED BY KING PETER. THIS WAS NO MERE RESHUFFLE OF PORTFOLIOS IN A PLAY OF POLITICAL PARTIES. IT WAS THE CONCLUSION OF LONG MONTHS OF NEGOTIATIONS TO END A PERIOD OF DIVIDED AUTHORITY.

THE MOST IMPORTANT FACT ABOUT THE NEW CABINET IS ITS REPRESENTATIVE CHARACTER. IT INCLUDES MEN OF ALL NATIONALITIES, ALL FAITHS, MEN FROM LONDON AND MEN FROM THE MOUNTAINS, MEN FROM MOST OF THE OLD PARTIES AND SOME VERY ABLE MEN NEVER ASSOCIATED WITH THE OLD FACTIONS.

A SURPRISE WAS THE INCLUSION OF MILAN GROL, PRESIDENT OF THE SERBIAN DEMOCRATS OF THE OLD CONSERVATIVE "RADICAL GROUP." GROL

OPPOSED THE DICTATORS AND JOINED THE LONDON GOVERNMENT, THOUGH HE WAS NEVER REGARDED AS FRIENDLY TO THE PARTIES. HIS ADHESION TO MARSHAL TITO MARKS A NEW STEP TOWARD NATIONAL CONSOLIDATION AND SHOULD DO MUCH TO ELIMINATE POTENTIAL OPPOSITION TO THE CABINET.

LEFT OUT ARE THE SERBIAN RADICALS, WHO HAVE NOT ADHERED TO THE ANTI-FASCIST FRONT, AND THE NATIONAL UNION OF ZHIVKOVITCH. THE SOCIALISTS ARE REPRESENTED BY DR.SUTEY FROM LONDON. THE SERB PARTIES ARE REPRESENTED. THE SLOVENE CLERICALS AND ANTI-CLERICAL HAVE BEEN GIVEN PORTFOLIOS.

MAR 13 1945

OF THE 28 MINISTERS ONLY SIX ARE MEMBERS OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY. TWO OTHERS MAY HAVE COMMUNIST AFFILIATIONS, BUT OF THESE AT LEAST ONE HAS BEEN A DEMOCRAT DEPUTY. THIS GROUP IS VERY ABLE AND INCLUDES, BESIDES MARSHAL TITO, ANDREAS LEBRANG, MINISTER OF INDUSTRY.

THERE ARE 16 SERBS AND MONTENEGRINS, EIGHT CROATS, FOUR SLOVENES, TWO MACEDONIANS AND ONE MOSLEM. THE CABINET CONTAINS PROFESSIONAL DIPLOMATS LIKE THE VETERAN JOSEP SHUBLAKA AND ALSO NEW MEN PROMINENT IN THE NATIONAL LIBERATION MOVEMENT. OUTSTANDING AMONG THE LATTER IS VICE-PREMIER EDO KARDELF, SLOVENIAN MARXIST, WHO SERVED A LONG TERM IN THE MINROVICIA GAOL FOR HIS POLITICAL VIEWS. AN AUTHORITY ON SLOVENIEN HISTORY AND PHILOSOPHY, KARDELF IS CONSIDERED BRILLIANT ORGANIZER AND IS VERY CLOSE TO MARSHAL TITO.

DR.SUBASIC, ONE OF THE SIX LONDON MINISTERS, TAKES OVER THE PORTFOLIO OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS. HE WILL HAVE TO WRESTLE WITH DIFFICULT EXTERNAL PROBLEMS, INCLUDING, THE CONTROVERSY WITH ITALY OVER THE POSSESSION OF THE CITY OF TRIESTE.

PRECEDE LONDON
BY DANIEL DE LUCE

MOSCOW, MARCH 12-(AP)-THE RED ARMY SUPREME COMMAND BEGAN TO SHIFT LARGE FORCES TO THE BERLIN FRONT TODAY AFTER SMASHING ENEMY RESISTANCE BETWEEN THE MOUTHS OF THE ODER AND VISTULA RIVERS.

ONLY A SMALL CHUNK OF TERRITORY AT THE NORTHERN EXTREMITY OF POMERANIA AND THE POLISH CORRIDOR REMAINED TO BE OVERRUN BY MARSHAL K.K. ROKOSSOVSKY'S ARMORED VANGUARDS BEFORE HE WOULD BE AVAILABLE FOR COMMAND OF A VITAL SECTOR OF THE FRONT FACING THE GERMAN CAPITAL.

IT SEEMED OBVIOUS THAT HE AGAIN WOULD TAKE A PLACE ON MARSHAL GREGORY K. ZHUKOV'S RIGHT FLANK, FROM WHICH HE WHEELED ACROSS EAST PRUSSIA IN MID-JANUARY AND THEN SPEARED INTO POMERANIA LITTLE MORE THAN A MONTH LATER.

THE REGROUPING RUSSIAN STRENGTH WAS EXPECTED TO MASS THE GREATEST CONCENTRATION OF MEN AND GUNS FOR OFFENSIVE OPERATIONS SINCE THE RED BANNER WAS FIRST CARRIED OVER GERMAN SOIL.

ZHUKOV NOW MANS MORE THAN A 130-MILE STRETCH OF THE ODER FROM WHERE IT ENTERS THE BALTIC TO ITS EASTWARD BEND ABOVE FUERSTENBERG. ON HIS LEFT FLANK MARSHAL IVAN S.KONEV HOLDS THE NEISSE RIVER LINE FROM ITS CONFLUENCE WITH THE ODER TO THE SUDETEN FOOTHILLS, A DISTANCE OF ABOUT 70 MILES.

BRINGING UP THE BULK OF ROKOSSOVSKY'S SECOND WHITE RUSSIAN ARMY GROUP FROM POMERANIA AND THE POLISH CORRIDOR ZONE TO THE ODER LINE WAS SEEN AS ADDING DECISIVE WEIGHT TO RUSSIAN DISPOSITIONS FOR THE NEXT OFFENSIVE.

MAR 13 1945

FOREIGN OBSERVERS IN MOSCOW BELIEVE THE GREAT GERMAN RIVER ELBE, WATER LINK BETWEEN PRAGUE AND THE NORTH SEA PORT OF HAMBURG, WILL BE AS SIGNIFICANT IN EARLY SPRING OPERATIONS BY THE RED ARMY AS WAS THE VISTULA LAST SUMMER AND THE ODER SINCE JANUARY.

THE ELBE RUNS FROM SOUTH TO NORTH ACROSS THE VERY HEART OF THE REICH, PASSING WITHIN 55 MILES TO THE WEST OF BERLIN. ZHUKOV HAS BEEN ONLY 25 TO 40 MILES EAST OF BERLIN FOR MORE THAN A MONTH.

IF THE HOPES OF THE RUSSIAN FIGHTING MEN ARE REALIZED, BERLIN MAY BECOME ONLY AN ISOLATED POCKET OF RESISTANCE TO BE LIQUIDATED WHILE THE MAIN FRONT ROLLS WEST TOWARD A JUNCTURE WITH ALLIED ARMIES.

LITTLE MORE THAN 300 MILES NOW SEPARATE THE ALLIES ON THE RHINE FROM SOVIET BRIDGEHEADS ON THE ODER. THE VIEW HERE IS THAT THE REAL DECISION IN THE BATTLE OF GERMANY WILL COME WHEN RUSSIAN, AMERICAN AND BRITISH FORCES JOIN UP AFTER SPLITTING THE REICH IN TWO.

ROKOSSOVSKY SPEEDED UP THE LAST PHASE OF HIS PRESENT ASSIGNMENT TODAY ALMOST AS THOUGH HE WERE WORRIED HE MIGHT MISS OUT SHARING IN THE CLIMACTIC BATTLE TO COME.

HIS TANKS AND CAVALRY CONTINUED TO FAN OUT THROUGH SCATTERED OPPOSITION IN THE COASTAL STRIP ABOUT 35 MILES WIDE AND 20 MILES DEEP, BETWEEN LAKE LEBA AND THE BAY OF DANZIG.

STRONG INFANTRY AND ARTILLERY FORMATIONS PRESSED CLOSER TO DANZIG AND GDYNIA, TWIN SEABOARD FORTRESSES. THEY ARE EXPECTED TO BE SCENES OF BITTER FIGHTING OF THE KIND NOW TAKING PLACE IN THE NAVAL PORT OF KOLB

AMERICAN FIELD OFFICERS WERE WELL PLEASED WITH THE SPEEDY INITIAL GAINS OF A MILE SCORED BY THE BATTLE-SEASONED DOUGHBOYS ON D-DAY SATURDAY AGAINST ONLY LIGHT OPPOSITION. BUT RESISTANCE MAY STIFFEN AS THEY CLOSE IN ON ZAMBOANGA, CITY OF 132,000 POPULATION. GUERRILLAS SAID THE CITY WAS WELL BOOBY-TRAPPED.

ASSOCIATED PRESS WAR CORRESPONDENT RUSSELL BRINES REPORTED THAT THE YANKS, LED BY TANKS AND UNDER JAPANESE MORTAR AND ARTILLERY FIRE, WERE WITHIN TWO MILES OF THE CITY AFTER A LIGHTNING SURGE FROM THE INVASION BEACH DURING WHICH THEY TOOK THE WOLFE AIRSTRIP AND FOUR VILLAGES AND CROSSED TWO-THIRDS OF SAN ROQUE, BEST AIRFIELD IN THE REGION.

THIRTY MINUTES AFTER THE LANDING, WHICH CAME ON THE HEELS OF FURIOUS AERIAL AND NAVAL GUN BOMBARDMENTS, AMERICAN ARTILLERY SPOTTER PLANES WERE USING THE WHOLE AIRSTRIP.

INITIAL AMERICAN CASUALTIES WERE LIGHT.

TROOPS OF THE 162ND AND 163RD REGIMENTS SPEARHEADED THE INVASION. THEY FANNED OUT FROM THE BEACHHEAD, SOME CROSSING THE BALIWASAN RIVER NORTHEASTWARD ON THE ROAD TO ZAMBOANGA AND OTHERS HEADING WEST FOR CALDERA BAY. THE LATTER DOUGHBOYS WERE PINNED DOWN OVERNIGHT BY JAPANESE GUNFIRE FROM STRONG COCONUT GROVE POSITIONS BUT GOT GOING AGAIN AFTER A DESTROYER OF THE SEVENTH FLEET MOVED IN CLOSE AND HAMMERED THE NIPPONESE.

JAPANESE MORTAR FIRE HAMPERED SHIP UNLOADING OPERATIONS. YANK ARTILLERY AND NAVAL RIFLES POURED SHELLS INTO THE NIPPON POSITIONS WHILE P-38S AND MARINE PLANES MADE STRAFING RUNS. THESE FLIERS WERE USING A GUERRILLA-CONSTRUCTED AIRSTRIP NORTH OF ZAMBOANGA.

MINDANAO IS AN ISLAND OF VAST AREA--36,906 SQUARE MILES, SECOND LARGEST IN THE ARCHIPELAGO--BUT IT WILL NOT BE NECESSARY FOR THE YANKS TO FIGHT FOR ALL OF IT, AS WAS THE CASE ON LEYTE AND LUZON.

THE PRINCIPAL JAPANESE GARRISON ON MINDANAO IS AT DAVAO, PRE-WAR NIPPON HEMP STRONGHOLD 250 MILES EAST OF ZAMBOANGA. DAVAO'S SHELTERED PORT MAKES IT THE LEADING CITY OF THE ISLAND.
IT HAS BEEN THE TARGET OF HEAVY AMERICAN BOMBINGS FOR MONTHS.

AN AMERICAN MILITARY GARRISON WAS MAINTAINED AT ZAMBOANGA UNTIL THE JAPANESE OCCUPIED THE CITY.

"NAGOYA LOOKED LIKE THE INSIDE OF A GREAT FURNACE," SAID LT.CLARK KOLLER, MCNABB, ILL., AIRPLANE COMMANDER WHO WAS ON HIS FIFTH MISSION OVER JAPAN.

THE NAGOYA RAID WAS "EQUALLY AS SUCCESSFUL AS THE ASSAULT UPON TOKYO," SAID A COMMUNIQUE ISSUED BY THE 20TH AIR FORCE IN WASHINGTON.
RETURNING CREWS REPORTED THAT THE TARGET AREA WAS FIVE SQUARE MILES. FIFTEEN SQUARE MILES IN THE CENTER OF TOKYO WAS DESTROYED, AS FIRES SPREAD BEYOND THE 10-SQUARE MILE TARGET AREA.
ONE B-29 WAS LOST OVER NAGOYA, IT WAS ANNOUNCED HERE. TWO WERE LOST IN THE TOKYO RAID.
ANOTHER FORCE OF APPROXIMATELY 40 SUPERFORTRESSES, FLYING FROM AN INDIA BASE OF THE 20TH BOMBER COMMAND, HIT FACTORIES ADJACENT TO THE JAPANESE-HELD SINGAPORE NAVAL BASE TODAY. THE RAID FOLLOWED BY TWO DAYS AN ATTACK ON KUALA LAMPUR, MALAY, 200 MILES NORTH OF SINGAPORE. THESE TWO STRIKES WERE ANNOUNCED IN WASHINGTON.
THE COMMUNIQUE ON THE NAGOYA MISSION SAID FIGHTER OPPOSITION WAS "LIGHT TO HEAVY AND FLAK RANGED FROM MEAGER TO INTENSE."
IT POINTED OUT THAT NAGOYA, SOME 200 MILES FROM TOKYO AND ON HONSHU ISLAND'S SOUTHEAST COAST, WAS "THE HOME OF THE WORLD'S LARGEST AIRCRAFT PLANT" AND HAD THE LARGEST SINGLE CONCENTRATION OF PLANE FACTORIES IN JAPAN.

SOME RETURNED B-29 CREWS HERE AND AT NEARBY SAIPAN AND TINIAN BASES SAID THE NAGOYA FIRES, SPREAD BY 2,000 POUNDS OF INCENDIARY BOMBS AFTER MIDNIGHT, WERE NOT AS IMPRESSIVE FROM THE AIR AS THE TOKYO CONFLAGRATION.

THE BOMBERS MADE THEIR TARGET RUNS AT THE EXTREMELY LOW ALTITUDE FOR THEM OF AROUND 5,000 FEET, JUST AS THEY HAD AT TOKYO 48 HOURS EARLIER.

SGT.BEN MOFFA OF (734 FEDERAL ST.) PHILADELPHIA, PA., WAS ABLE TO SHOOT OUT A JAPANESE GROUND SEARCHLIGHT WITH HIS 50 CALIBRE MACHINEGUN.

AN IMPERIAL JAPANESE COMMUNIQUE BROADCAST BY TOKYO RADIO SAID THE NAGOYA RAID CONTINUED FROM MIDNIGHT TO 3:20 A.M. AND THAT FIRES STARTED "AT VARIOUS POINTS IN THE CITY" WERE "NEARLY BROUGHT UNDER CONTROL BY 10 A.M." TOKYO RADIO REPORTED A LONE B-29 KEPT THE TOKYO AIR RAID SYSTEM IN A STATE OF ALARM FROM 9:00 TO 9:15 TONIGHT (TOKYO TIME)

COLONEL IRVINE SAID IT WAS LIKE "BAKING A CAKE--ONE MUST HAVE THE INGREDIENTS."

ONE INGREDIENT WAS MORALE. THE WILLINGNESS OF THE B-29 GROUND CREWS TO WORK AS LONG AS THEY COULD STAND WAS AN IMPORTANT QUALITY.

ANOTHER INGREDIENT WAS THE QUALITY OF THE MAINTENANCE SYSTEM SET UP WITH GENERAL LEMAY'S APPROVAL. IT WAS BASED ON A HIGH DEGREE OF SPECIALIZATION. MORE THAN 100 SPECIAL SKILLS ARE INVOLVED IN B-29 MAINTENANCE.

A THIRD INGREDIENT WAS THE HIGH ORDER OF SUPERVISION ON THE PART OF MAINTENANCE OFFICERS OF ALL UNITS.

"PROOF OF THE QUALITY OF THE WORK ACCOMPLISHED IN THAT 36 HOURS," COLONEL IRVINE SAID, "IS THE FACT THAT NOT ONE AIRCRAFT WAS LOST DUE TO ANY MATERIEL FAILURE" OVER NAGOYA.

1st Army 2 Miles From Frankfurt Highway; 300 B-29s Attack Osaka in Third Fire Raid

MAR 14 1945

AMERICANS PUSH WITHIN 2 MILES OF SUPERHIGHWAY

Great Six-Lane Road Links Frankfurt to Industrial Ruhr.

VITAL HEIGHTS FALL

Third Army Lashes Out in New Attack Near Saarburg.

PARIS, Wednesday, March 14 — (AP) The Germans attacked the American Remagen-Erpel bridgehead with at least 60 planes yesterday and fought stubbornly in the hills east of the Rhine river, but U. S. First army troops pushed relentlessly deeper and reached within two miles of the great six-lane superhighway linking Frankfurt-on-Main and the industrial Ruhr.

Gains made by American infantry were measured in yards, but it was pointed out that the advances gave the Doughboys control of important heights controlling the bridgehead, which was now being speedily built up with the help of a newly-erected pontoon bridge.

Throughout the day the skies were filled with dogfights as the enemy made frequent raids and fighters of the Ninth air force labored to keep them away from the bridgehead area.

Planes Attack Yanks

Half a dozen or more lightning-fast jet-propelled planes were among the enemy attackers in the Germans' strongest air effort since the Rhine crossing March 7.

American planes shot down ten, claimed five probables and damaged six while losing four of their own. Anti-aircraft gunners destroyed others, but no tabulation of their score was yet available. Monday, when the German raids were lighter, ack-ack batteries shot down 19 enemy planes.

While fighting flared over and around the bridgehead, the U. S. Third army lashed out in a new attack on a nine-mile front in the Saarburg area and advanced up to 2 1-2 miles.

Attack Rhine Salient

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's new thrust, spearheaded by the 94th division, was made on the Third army's right flank against the only sizeable salient still held by the Germans west of the Rhine. This drive extended from a point eight miles northeast of Saarburg to about six southeast. Resistance was said to be light to moderate.

On Patton's left flank Third army troops north of the Moselle river cleared eight more towns as they compressed the enemy there to a pocket four miles square.

The Third army processed a record number of 6,446 Germans captured during the day, exceeding its previous high of 4,992 set Aug. 10, 1944. Together the First and Third armies have taken approximately 40,000 prisoners in eight days.

From the headquarters of Field Marshal Montgomery came an announcement that the final prisoner count for the Rhine operations of the U. S. Ninth and Canadian First armies was 50,477 and that American forces in the 21st army group have taken 46,303 prisoners since the Germans' Ardennes breakthrough.

Weather improved during the day and tactical air forces flew 2,750 sorties, downing 22 German planes at a loss of four medium bombers and 13 fighters.

More than 150 Marauders and Havocs of the Ninth air force bombed an airfield near Frankfurt from which German planes were believed to be operating against the Remagen bridgehead.

A field dispatch tonight from Don Whitehead of the Associated Press disclosed for the first time that Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' First army engineers had succeeded in throwing a temporary bridge across the wide, swift river to share the burden with the shellscarred rail structure captured in dramatic fashion last Wednesday.

Today's bridgehead advances, while not great in yardage, drove the Nazis from high ground east of the Rhine from which their artillery observers had direct observation of both traffic-laden spans. The Germans made numerous small counterattacks, all of which were repelled.

70,000 Troops Cross River

Berlin broadcasts declared that 70,000 American troops had been jammed into the bridgehead and were waging a "ferocious" battle with tremendous air support in an effort to break out of the Westerwald mountains and plunge on toward Berlin.

One Nazi commentator said U. S. assault troops had crossed the Rhine in boats downriver from Remagen and had expanded the bridgehead to the north, being halted at Koenigswinter, two miles north of Honnef and about seven airline miles north of Remagen.

Bridgehead forces pressing south, he said, "penetrated into Hoenningen but were thrown back." Hoenningen is six miles southeast of Remagen, on the east bank of the Rhine. The enemy broadcasts thus indicated that American forces now hold some 13 miles along the east bank of the Rhine.

The U. S. Third army on the right reduced German holdings north of the Moselle river to a salient four miles wide by six deep, and between them the two mighty American forces virtually completed mopping up the Germans encircled in the Eifel mountains west of the Rhine, running their combined prisoner bag for the past eight days to 32,365 men.

With all except 24 square miles of German territory north of the Moselle now in Allied hands, the Third army's 94th Infantry division jumped off in a new attack across the Ruwer river southeast of Trier against resistance described officially as light.

Although the scope of this attack was not immediately defined, it is the first to be made on a divisional scale against what now is the only enemy salient west of the Rhine—a holding bounded roughly by the Moselle on the north, the Saar river on the west and the border between Germany and Alsace Lorraine on the south.

A concerted drive against this area from the north, west and south would serve a twofold purpose: First to threaten Germany's Saar basin and second to provide a diversionary attack to lighten the task of Allied forces involved in future crossings of the Rhine.

Nazi Strength Diverted

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' Remagen bridgehead already has diverted German strength that otherwise would have been held in reserve to help protect the great Ruhr factory areas which begin 23 miles to the north.

The crack 11th German Panzer division has been identified as one of the units facing Hodges' men in the rough terrain east of the Rhine, but the enemy is not believed to have more than 50 tanks and self-propelled guns in the entire bridgehead area.

As a result of this shortage of armor the Nazis have been using artillery as a principal method of resistance against the eastward surge and now have wheeled up heavy guns of 240 millimeters to throw shells into American positions.

What counterattacks the enemy has mounted in the past several days have been only in company strength and with little supporting armor—designed more to keep the Yanks from enlarging their foothold than with any idea of wiping it out.

Whitehead, who disclosed that Doughboys were less than two miles from the north-south Superhighway—built by Hitler as part of his grandiose scheme of conquest—said they also had captured a hill just north of Hoenningen.

1ST ARMY NEARS SUPERHIGHWAY TO RUHR AREA

70,000 Reported Across—Resistance Is Growing Nazis Counter.

MAR 14 1945

RUNDSTEDT REPORTED OUSTED

First and Third Armies Wipe Out Foe in Eifel Trap—Moselle Nearly Clear.

Long

Paris, March 13 (A. P.).—The First Army has thrown a pontoon bridge across the Rhine to its Remagen bridgehead and has driven to a point less than two miles from the six-lane Autobahn linking the Ruhr with Frankfurt-on-the-Main, a bridgehead dispatch announced tonight.

"The doughboys are slowly enlarging their bridgehead against stiff opposition and numerous counterattacks," said the dispatch from Don Whitehead of the Associated Press.

New gains deepened the bridgehead to nearly six miles at points along its eleven-mile breach in the German Rhine line. The Germans estimated that from 60,000 to 70,000 First Army troops were in the critical area—a maximum increase since yesterday of 30,000 Americans.

Hundreds of rocket-firing planes were reported to be assisting the attacking infantry.

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's troops captured a hill north of Hoenningen, 16 miles northwest of Coblenz, at the south end of the cross-Rhine salient.

Rundstedt Reported Ousted

Border reports reaching Switzerland said Field Marshal von Rundstedt had once more been deposed as supreme German commander in the west. These reports were without confirmation from Berlin, but one of the reasons for such a shakeup might have been the German fumble that allowed the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen to stand, permitting Americans to cross the Rhine with dry feet.

The German communiqué said the American 1st Army had captured several villages and heights east of the Rhine.

Von Model At Helm, Nazis Hint

"The most bitter fighting on the whole Western front is raging for the bridgehead," the Berlin radio asserted. "The battle is still developing and the Americans have not yet established an operative base in depth. Field Marshal Walther von Model (Rundstedt's former subordinate in the north and apparently his successor) is still busy bringing up reinforcements, and only then will Model attempt a concentric counterattack."

Honnef, at the north end of the bridgehead, was said to have changed hands several times in the last few days and the 1st Army was placed by the Germans at an unspecified position "northeast of Honnef."

Fighting Hardest In North

Gains eastward from the Rhine in the rugged hills, sheer cliffs and valleys of the Westerwald were relatively slow. The Germans were making their strongest stand at the north end of the bridgehead, where the Americans were only 23 miles from the edge of the Ruhr basin—Germany's greatest arsenal.

A 1st Army officer said resistance in the center of the bridgehead salient was moderate, and in the south was light.

Hodges's men won up to 2 miles yesterday and were fighting today from Honnef and Hoenningen. They had already taken 23 towns east of the Rhine.

Eifel Pocket Wiped Out.

A squeeze play by the Third and First armies has virtually eliminated the pocket of Germans in the Eifels west of the Rhine. Gains up to five miles were registered yesterday, and German holdings north and west of the Moselle River were squeezed down to six miles long and four wide. The two armies have captured 32,365 prisoners in the past eight days.

South of the Moselle, American attacks slowly were turning German chances of a river line stand. Cavalry units pushed seven miles east of Trier, and the Ninety-fourth Division carried its attack across the Ruwer River southeast of that city. The Nazis were unable to solidify their resistance.

Besieged Coblenz apparently was not yet under frontal assault, but Gen. Patton's men were in its outskirts and ready to storm the middle Rhine traffic center at any time.

MAR 14 1945

Nazis Jumpy In North.

Germans facing the Canadian First Army on the lower Rhine were reported extremely jumpy about north Holland, from which increasing numbers of troops were being taken to reinforce battered armies on the 150-mile line along the east bank of the Rhine from Nijmegen to Coblenz.

The Germans repeated that Field Marshal Bernard L. Montgomery had been ordered to launch an offensive across the lower Rhine.

Heavy low clouds again crimped air operations. Medium and light bombers, however, attacked the Rhine airfield north of the Ruhr—a base for jet propelled planes which have been raiding American lines. They bombed rail centers east of the bridgehead. Fighter-bombers also patrolled the sky over the bridgehead and, in one tangle, a Thunderbolt destroyed four jet planes.

Patton Cuts Moselle Pocket

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army narrowed the German hold on the west bank of the Moselle River to a pocket 6 miles long and 4 deep and mopped up Germans who failed to escape traps in the Eifel Mountains.

Besieged Coblenz apparently was not yet under frontal assault, but Patton's forces were in its outskirts and ready to storm it at any time.

The 3d Army took 4,508 prisoners yesterday, raising its total for eight days to 20,508. Another 108 Nazis were buried.

Nazis Weak In Holland

Germans facing the Canadian 1st Army on the lower Rhine were reported extremely jumpy about North Holland, from which increasing numbers of Nazi troops were being taken to reinforce the battered armies on the 150-mile line along the east bank of the Rhine from Nijmegen to Coblenz.

Holland evidently was left with insufficient troops for adequate defense. The majority of remaining Germans were strung along waterways from Arnhem to the North Sea.

The Allies have captured only about a fifth of the Netherlands. The Germans repeated that Field Marshal Montgomery had been ordered to launch an offensive across the lower Rhine.

German artillery scored numerous hits on the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen, sometimes momentarily halting the stream of men, tanks and guns moving across. The Nazis said four divisions had already crossed. The bridge still stood and was still in use. The Germans said pontoon bridges had also been thrown across. Assault boats, too, were in use.

Resistance stiffened somewhat in the Westerwald. Ginsterhahn and Hargarten fell yesterday in the push eastward toward the Autobahn. Cutting of that great concrete road paralleling the Rhine front would hamper German quartermasters.

Bullay Area Reached

With some armored support, the infantrymen moved north and south along the Rhine's east bank. Those fighting in Honnef for the third day threatened the Ruhr. Those in Hoenningen were only 16 miles from Coblenz.

The 3d Army's 10th (Tiger) Armored Division reached the Bullay area, 7 miles from Cochen. Both towns form boundaries of the Moselle River gap.

Only light resistance was encountered by other divisions mopping up traps that once held 23,000 Germans. Seven miles east of Trier the Germans dropped 4,100 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire on 3d Army men closing for the kill.

"Armor still has not gone into Coblenz," Associated Press Correspondent Thoburn Wiant reported.

The city of 58,000 is shielded by the 600 to 900-foot mouth of the Moselle, which enters the Rhine at the Coblenz limits.

Heavy clouds hung low over the northern half of the Western front at dawn. Skies to the south were clearer. In bad weather yesterday, 4,800 planes battered the whole Ruhr and a seal-off arc east of the Remagen bridgehead. Dortmund got one of the worst poundings any city ever took—4,000 tons of explosives in less than half an hour.

Half Of Nazi Bridge Raiders Shot Down

On the Rhine, March 13 (AP)—German pilots daring the barrage of American anti-aircraft guns guarding the Ludendorff bridge at Remagen have about a 50-50 chance of getting home.

In five days the Luftwaffe has sent over 135 planes, including Stukas, jets and Messerschmitt 109's, in atempts to blow down the bridge. Gunners have destroyed 66 and probably destroyed 14 others.

one was shot down in flames.

Jets Used In Attack

The Germans have sent every-thing over, including jets and a couple of Stukas. The weather is still hazy in the Rhine Valley, but a big wave of Allied fighter bombers went over this morning to raid be-hind the German lines.

Defenders of the bridge are awaiting anything the Nazis may attempt. Besides floating mines downstream, the Germans could try to use midget submarines against the piers.

Meanwhile, the doughboys were fighting over the toughest terrain yet encountered in the continental campaign.

Fought Into Gun-Sights

It has been uphill ever since they stepped off the east end of the bridge. They have fought right into the sights of German gun positions all day long, then gone sleepless through nights of fending off tank-led counterattacks.

The fighting is being done by troops not rested for a big push, but by men who had to enter the fray unexpectedly because of the lucky seizure of the Remagen bridge.

"I've yet to see an account which paints a full picture of the job these infantry soldiers are doing," the commander said today.

Services At Bridge

The first chapel services were conducted in the tunnel at the east end of the bridge the morning after it was won.

The chaplain had no Bible, so Major Paul Cox, of Chandler, Okla., loaned him one. Someone had driven away in the chaplain's jeep, containing all the chaplain's spare clothing as well as his Bible.

ized west front fighting in November, December and January.

Nazi Troops Change

There has been a definite change in the mental attitude of German troops, consistently demonstrated by the character of their resistance during the Allied drive to—and across—the Rhine. German morale has deteriorated, but seemingly not to the point where Nazi soldiers are ready to give up the fight entirely.

Rather, as one American who was in the thick of the recent offensive put it, they appear to be quite willing to fight as long as there is not too much danger of getting killed.

"They aren't ready to give up without a fight, but once we bypass or reach their positions they are perfectly willing to give up," he said. "They are quite happy to surrender with 'honor'. They shoot like hell until you reach them, then they appear content to be taken prisoner."

He contrasted this to the fierce November fighting along the Roer and the bulge battles, where many Germans fought to the last or else tried desperately to get away to fight again.

Almost every American officer believes that the Allies armies will have to fight all the way across Germany before ending major German resistance. As long as there is a free area with Nazi or SS men in control, the soldiers in it probably will fight, they say.

Expect Bitter Rhine Battle

Allied military men expect a stubborn defense along the Rhine, but once it is broken they see a fast-moving, fluid war something like the last rapid advance from the Roer to the Rhine, with comparatively few casualties and great numbers of prisoners.

This, of course, does not mean that some violent battles will not have to be fought in sectors, where SS armies or crack Nazi parachute units are encountered, but these struggles are expected to be the exception rather than the rule.

Moving all the way across Germany, over many natural obstacles and blown bridges, would take time, military men point out, even without opposition.

Encouraging the hope that the war will not run far into the summer is the attitude of German civilians. From all appearances, among the 500,000 or more who have been overrun by the U.S. First and Ninth armies, Hitler's appeal to fight in every house and every street has fallen on deaf ears. The civilians have been a surprisingly docile lot and nothing like Russian guerrilla warfare has been seen.

"They are so used to taking orders that they will take them from anybody," one field officer explained. "If we just have someone on hand to go into these towns and lay down the law when we have taken them, I don't think we will have any trouble."

This does not mean the Germans are welcoming the Allies with open arms. They aren't. But it does mean that German civilians and ordinary soldiers believe the war is hopelessly lost and once they are overrun they feel they might as well make the best of it instead of struggling on in a hopeless cause. Heavy Allied bombings have also played their part, undoubtedly, in taking the starch out of the German civilian's will to resist.

Fresh Food Rushed To Yanks On Rhine

Paris, March 13 (AP) — American troops fighting on the Rhine receive daily supplies of fresh meat and dairy products which are rushed to them by army refrigerator trucks.

The trucks, operated by the Army Transportation Corps from a cold-storage plant in Antwerp, deliver their cargoes at the Rhine within eight hours.

Allies See European War Ending by Early Summer

By WES GALLAGHER

WITH THE U. S. NINTH ARMY IN GERMANY, March 13—(AP) Many Allied military men now believe the European war will end early next summer, rather than next fall, after a gradual destruction of the enemy's remaining forces.

This opinion appears to be shared by German civilians interviewed behind the Allied lines. The idea of a sudden wholesale collapse, as a result of recent Nazi disasters, is generally discounted. However, military men do not expect a repetition of the violent warfare and stubborn defenses that characterized the Roer to the Rhine, with comparatively few casualties and great numbers of prisoners.

This, of course, does not mean that some violent battles will not have to be fought in sectors, where SS armies or crack Nazi parachute units are encountered, but these struggles are expected to be the exception rather than the rule.

Moving all the way across Germany, over many natural obstacles and blown bridges, would take time, military men point out, even without opposition.

Germans Fleeing Bonn Leave Funds Behind

Bonn, Germany, March 13 (AP)—The Germans fled in such confusion that they forgot a little matter of 8,000,000 marks—all the funds in the banks and city treasury of this Rhine city.

They also abandoned large food stores. Many home owners had stocked their shelves with bountiful supplies.

Ninety per cent of the University of Bonn, where members of the Hohenzollern family and other German aristocrats were schooled, has been demolished by Allied air raids.

Losses to the university's celebrated library of some 500,000 volumes have not been assessed, but presumably the Germans had removed the more valuable books and manuscripts.

Cathedral Damaged

The birthplace of Beethoven escaped a direct hit, although the building has been damaged.

The house has been closed to keep out trespassers and Major Edwin Boney, of Fresno, Cal., said no assessment yet had been taken of interior damage.

The city in general had been about 50 per cent damaged by raids.

The twelfth century cathedral is repairable, although damaged by near misses. Services are being held in the crypt.

Food Held Ample

The food situation is such that normal rationing still is being carried on. Only a few days before arrival of the Americans 52,000 ration cards were issued to Bonn residents. They still are being honored. The city is packed with civilians.

But that fact does not deter German artillerymen. Twenty civilians were killed or wounded as they walked the streets yesterday.

Only about 1,000 inhabitants took advantage of offers of transportation to the East with the German Army.

AMG Moves In

Allied Military Government officers who moved in behind the combat troops of the 1st Infantry Division found Bonn in much better condition than expected and far better than in Aachen. Civil administration still was functioning.

"We told the city officials for the time being to carry on as they had been," said Major Everett S. Cofran, of Washington, deputy administrator to Major Boney. "As fast as possible we will screen the top officials to weed out the rabid Nazis and dangerous characters."

Police Garb Changed

Virtually all the police remained when the United States troops arrived. The first thing Cofran did was to tell them to take off their uniforms, which are almost exact copies of the German army garb. Now they are wearing civilian coats and hats with an armband to show they are police.

Bonn civilians have been docile for the most part. Cofran said he had no trouble except from a few drunks who were attempting to drown the sorrow of defeat.

American troops found the city jail empty. The Germans had turned loose all the small-fry inmates. They had evacuated the long-term criminals to the east bank of the Rhine.

French 1st Army Casualties 42,000

Paris, March 13 (AP)—The French 1st Army, in a seven-month campaign, has lost about 10,000 killed and 32,000 wounded, its commander, Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, announced today. He described the losses — almost seventeen per cent of his effectives—as "very light."

He said the French lost 1,500 killed and 5,300 wounded out of 80,000 troops in an eight-day battle in Provence after the Riviera landings last August 15. In 60 days of fighting in the Vosges, the French lost 2,000 dead and 5,000 wounded out of 280,000 men.

In seven months since D-day in southern France, the French took 92,255 prisoners, de Lattre said.

France Decorates Yanks In Liberation

With the 1st Army on the Rhine, March 12 [AP—Delayed]—France honored 116 American officers and enlisted men today for the part they played in the liberation of the country.

Under gray skies near the shattered ruins of a former Nazi building, Gen. Louis Koeltz, chief of the French liaison mission, pinned the decorations on the tunics of 86 officers and 30 enlisted men "in the name of the Republic of France." The awards ranged from the Croix de Guerre to the Legion of Honor, officer grade.

Those receiving the Legion of Honor were Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, of New Orleans; Maj. Gen. W. B. Kean, of Birmingham, Ala.; Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose, of Denver; Maj. Gen. Donald A. Stroh, of Washington, D.C., and Maj. Gen. Walter H. Robertson, of Washington, D.C.

Osaka 'Sea of Flames' After Superfort Raid

MAR 14 1945

Japan's Second Largest City Hit with 2,000 Tons of Fire Bombs.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Wednesday, March 14—(AP) Osaka, factory-congested second city of Japan, was transformed into "a huge pit of fire" by more than 2,000 tons of incendiaries dropped today by a huge force of B-29s which on Monday completed burned out 47,600,000 square feet of industrial Nagoya.

The first Superfortress pilots back from Osaka, where they gave it the same devastating treatment accorded Tokyo Saturday, then Nagoya, Monday, reported four square miles of Osaka were a solid sheet of fire.

Their reports covered only the first three-quarters of an hour—before many of an estimated 300 B-29s had unloaded.

Lt. Joseph P. Carroll, of Jacksonville, Fla., flying in the "Lady Luck" said that seven minutes after his wave hit "the whole damn town seemed to be burning like a huge pit of fire."

Maj. Edgar Toole, of Casa Grande, Ariz., also aboard the "Lady Luck," made the preliminary estimate of four square miles engulfed.

Meanwhile, further reconnaissance photographs added 13,000,000 square feet to the total wiped out Monday at Nagoya. That made 47,600,000 in all or about 1,000 acres—roughly two square miles.

Better than Nagoya Raid

The Osaka blow was even "better than the Nagoya raid," said another returning flier, Col. Beverly Warren, of Omaha, Neb., who counted 13 fires as his plane went in at 7,000 feet altitude.

"In the early stage it didn't look as good as the Tokyo raid (when more than 300 Superfortresses spread fires burning over more than 16 square miles)," added Maj. Harry Marely, of Sacramento, Cal.

Flight Officer Cecil Thomas, of Vulcan, Mich., could see Osaka burning when his plane was 125 miles away.

The first 25 B-29s over Osaka set at least 19 big fires.

Japanese defense of one of its key cities was erratic.

"They didn't shoot at us much," said Capt. R. T. Eakes, of Philadelphia, Miss.

"They acted just like they had gotten out of bed, run to their guns and started shooting wildly."

The Osaka raid, like the big ones at Nagoya and Tokyo, was made in the early morning darkness.

The raiders were favored by a surface wind which spread the flames, although only a slight wind was encountered at the bombing altitude.

One pilot saw a Japanese fighter plane which declined to come close. Enemy searchlights by the scores stabbed the skies.

As in the other saturation attacks which left block after block in flames, Osaka's congested industrial area was the target of today's assault.

Blast War Factories

In the 10 square mile area brought under the Superforts' bombsights were factories turning out iron, steel and aluminum products, airplane propellors, machine tools and bearings plants.

The area also included countless thousands of ramshackle homes some of which likewise were small-piece workshops in Japan's war industry setup. It was estimated that the population in the target area averaged 61,000 persons per square mile.

The 2,000-ton bomb storm directed at Osaka also indicated the number of planes in the raid was similar to the 300 or more which dropped 2,300 tons on Tokyo, firing a 16.7 square mile area, and 2,000 on Nagoya, where Yank reconnaissance planes reported 15 fires were still burning many hours after the attack.

The stepped-up Superfortress assaults doubtless are doing great damage to aircraft and other plants which the Japanese are attempting to dismantle and transfer either to islands beyond B-29 range or to Manchuria.

Brig. Gen. Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th AAF, said last month aerial reconnaissance showed that some of Nippon's largest aircraft factories were being at least partially dismantled.

Superforts Set Osaka Ablaze With 2000 Tons of Fire Bombs

Incendiary Attack Is Aimed at City's Most Congested Area—Target Is Twice as Big as Nagoya.

Twenty-first Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam,

Wednesday, March 14 (A. P.).—American Superfortresses bent upon the destruction of Osaka's hidden factories put the torch to Japan's second largest city early today.

7 Nagoya War Plants Damaged In Raid

Target for this third mass low level incendiary attack by B-29s on Japanese cities within five days was Osaka's most inflammable and congested area. Two thousand tons of bombs were dropped, the heaviest bomb load yet to hit a Nipponese city. The area attached is twice as large as the Nagoya target in Monday's raid and was comparable to the ten square miles which constituted the target in the Tokyo raid of last Saturday.

A Twentieth Air Force announcement in Washington of the raid said it was made by a "very large force," indicating that upward of 300 of the B-29s attacked Osaka.

The raid thus was similar to the fire bomb attacks made on Tokyo and Nagoya which resulted in a great conflagration in Tokyo and in many big fires and damage in Nagoya, one of Japan's major airplane manufacturing centers.

Osaka has many important war industries. These include shipbuilding, electrical equipment, iron and steel works and oil refineries. The city is situated on the northeastern shores of the inland sea, about 250 miles southwest of Tokyo and near Nagoya and Kobe.

Details of the attack awaited reports of the first pilots to reach the target area.

Seven important war plants and harbor installation were damaged in the raid on Nagoya, reconnaissance photographs have shown. Fifteen fires were still burning in Nagoya yesterday, the reconnaissance flyers reported.

[United States Philippines-based aircraft raided Japanese installations on Formosa Monday the Tokyo radio reported today in an unconfirmed broadcast.

["About thirty enemy fighter planes" bombed the island in the morning and thirty-five bombers and several fighters struck Takao and Tainan in the island's southern section in the afternoon, according to the broadcast, recorded by the FCC.]

Guam, March 13 (AP)—Seven important war plants and harbor installations were damaged in yesterday's terrific incendiary bombing of Nagoya, reconnaissance photographs disclosed today.

Fifteen fires still were burning in the industrial city, which produces 40 to 50 per cent of all Japanese aircraft, when the photographs were taken twelve hours after 300 B-29's fired a 5 square-mile area.

Greatest damage was done to Aichi aircraft works' Eitoku plant. Maj. Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the 21st Bomber Command, said 358,000 square feet of the plant was destroyed. This was nearly fourteen per cent of the roof area. One of the main sub-assembly buildings was gutted completely.

Control Of Flames

Lemay said the flames evidently were controlled just as they started to merge from five areas in which most of the damage was done.

Meanwhile, India-based Superfortresses in "medium" force bombed industrial targets at Japan's big naval base at Singapore. A 20th Air Force headquarters communiqué from Washington said results from Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey's 20th Bomber Command were "good." Some of the B-29's bombed by precision instruments.

General Lemay said additional information increased to 16.7 square miles the Tokyo area devastated by more than 300 Superforts Saturday.

Only Three Planes Lost

Three B-29's were lost in the combined strikes—one over Nagoya and two over Tokyo.

Col. C. S. Irvine, of St. Paul, Neb., Lemay's deputy chief for supply and maintenance, credited ground crews with a superb job of reconditioning the B-29's to make the Nagoya raid possible only 48 hours after the Tokyo attack.

By zero hour, they had 90 per cent of the Tokyo raiders ready for the Nagoya takeoff.

ZHUKOV'S FORCES POUR ACROSS ODER IN BERLIN DRIVE

Reds Break Through Between Frankfurt and Kuestrin, Nazis Say.

CLOSE ON DANZIG

German Counterattacks Hurl Russians Back Near Stettin.

LONDON, Wednesday, March 14 —(AP) Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, achieving a breakthrough in a frontal assault toward Berlin, has pushed nearly 100,000 Russian troops across the Oder river between Frankfurt and newly-captured Kuestrin and has sent spearheads within 33 miles of the Reich capital, the Germans said last night.

The German DNB agency contended the breakthrough was only temporary but said nine Russian divisions now were fighting on the west side of the river on the 16-mile-wide, Kuestrin - Frankfurt front.

Big Guns Pound Nazis

While the broadcast Soviet communique made no mention of any crossings in that critical area, Moscow dispatches told of preparatory artillery fire by heavy Russian guns wheeled into positions in battered Kuestrin. Reports from the Russian capital indicated that three Russian armies were expected to make the massive assault on Berlin.

According to the Germans, Russian task forces are attempting to force open the forefield defenses of Berlin in these three areas:

Westward from Kietz on the Oder's west bank opposite Kuestrin.

In the bridgehead opposite Goeritz, six miles below Kuestrin.

In the Lebus bridgehead, six miles north of Frankfurt.

The Russians' breakthrough was secured in the Lebus bridgehead area, a Nazi commentator said, adding that fighting on the high ground commanding the Frankfurt-Berlin highway was heavy and fluctuating.

Sixty miles north of Kuestrin, Zhukov's armored and storm units steadily whittled down German positions east of the Oder in Stettin's eastern suburbs of Altdamm, Finkenwalde and Podjuch. The Germans claimed that counterattacks had thrown the Russians back near Greifenhagen, 11 miles south of Stettin.

The Second White Russian army on the bay of Danzig tightened its siege ring around the ports of Danzig and Gdynia. Midnight Soviet supplementary communique declared "fierce fighting" was raging on the rim of that fortified area.

Northwest of Gdynia the Russians cleaned out a 14-mile coastal area from the road junction of Rheda, four miles east of Wejherowo (Neustadt), northward to Chlapu, Moscow announced in a broadcast communique.

Reds Seize Chlapau

Capture of Chlapau put the Russians at the base of the Zatoka Pucka, a narrow neck of land jutting out 21 miles into Danzig bay north of both Gdynia and Danzig.

Advances of up to five miles were scored by the Russians in this operation, but no new gains were reported in the frontal drive on Gdynia which already has carried to within eight miles of that Polish Baltic port.

Below Danzig in the canal-cut Delta area east of the Vistula river, the Russians occupied seven towns including Neikirch, 14 miles southeast of the former free city. Soviet units previously had driven to within nine miles northwest and southwest of Danzig.

More than 1,000 prisoners were taken by the Russians in the fighting in the Gdynia-Danzig area.

Russian units which took Kuestrin Monday captured more than 3,000 German officers and men, including Col. Gen. Krueger, commandant of the Kuestrin fortress, the bulletin said.

As yet Moscow has not reported officially any crossings of the middle Oder in the Kuestrin-Frankfurt sector east of Berlin. Dispatches from the Soviet capital told of a Russian artillery barrage hurled across the river from Kuestrin and said the Soviet command was working out the tactical situation for a Berlin offensive in which three Red army groups soon may take part.

Enemy accounts said the Russians were attempting to force open the defenses of the Reich capital in three areas. One task force was reported striking westward from Kietz on the Oder's west bank opposite Kuestrin. A second was extending its holdings from a bridgehead opposite Goeritz, six miles below Kuestrin. A third was pressing forward from a similar bridgehead at Lebus, six miles north of Frankfurt.

The fall of rubbled Kuestrin, 38 miles east of Berlin, after five days of hand-to-hand fighting, opened up lateral communications skirting the Oder from the Baltic end of the First White Russian army's front down to the Neisse river, where Marshal Ivan Konev's First Ukraine army front begins.

Declaring that Soviet troops were attacking powerfully north of Frankfurt in an attempt to expand their Oder bridgeheads, the German high command said these assaults were being held.

The Nazi military commentator, Col. Ernst Von Hammer said later, however, that Zhukov's troops had scored a temporary breakthrough north of Frankfurt and that "heavy fluctuating "continued in the heights there. Zhukov apparently was seeking high ground for better artillery positions to shell the Frankfurt-Berlin highway.

Big highway and railroad bridges across the Oder from Kuestrin to Kietz have been wrecked since the first of February. The Oder is bordered by a low flat plain on either side in that area. Some five miles to the west, however, a small hilly ridge straddles the direct route to Berlin. The Germans have planted a minefield stretching for miles up and down the west bank of the river.

The Berlin radio said that Red Army forces were striking toward the capital from Kietz, on the Oder's west bank opposite fallen Kuestrin, from a bridgehead opposite Goeritz, six miles farther south, and from a third bridgehead at Lebus, twelve miles south of Kuestrin and four north of Frankfurt.

Capture of Kuestrin, thirty-eight miles east of Berlin and sixteen miles north of Frankfurt, was announced by Moscow yesterday, but the German High Command said that Nazis still were fighting in the southern fringes of that city, one of the three biggest fortresses guarding the path to Berlin.

The German communique declared that Russians were attacking powerfully north of Frankfurt in attempts to expand their Oder bridgeheads, but insisted the attacks were held.

Not Reported By Moscow

Moscow still had not officially reported any crossings of the Oder, but dispatches said three Red Army groups apparently were being disposed for an assault on the German capital.

The German communiqué told of breaches by Red Army troops beating toward Stettin from the north.

The 2d White Russian Army to the northeast battled within sight of the sharp church spires of Danzig, where the war began. Part of the civilian population and military garrison of Danzig has been evacuated by sea, Moscow dispatches said.

Nazis Reported Doomed

But Red Army planes now had blocked sea escape lanes, and a Soviet correspondent said "the end of German divisions trapped on the Danzig coast is drawing near." Some accounts said the Germans were fleeing in panic.

Farther east, the siege tightened on Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital. A large portion of the population apparently had escaped.

The German garrison of Kuestrin was believed to have comprised several battle sections, each made up of ten battalions of infantry and 100 guns. German remnants, chiefly officers, made a last stand in the old fort, Moscow said.

Nazis Across Oder Shelled

Russian guns poured shells across the Oder into strong German positions.

Final mopup of the city in the southeast triangle formed by the confluence of the Warthe and Oder rivers opened up lateral communications skirting the Oder from one end of Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's front to the other.

German Radio Reports

[The German radio declared the Russians already are across the stream in this area. One German broadcaster said yesterday that several crossings south of Kuestrin had been merged "into a single attack on a broad front."

[That rumors are sweeping the Berlin populace was indicated by one German broadcast denying that Soviet airborne troops had landed near the capital.]

Field dispatches make it plain that the Germans have assembled a great concentration of fighting reserves west of the Oder. Minefields stretch for miles up and down the river on the Berlin side. The big highway and railway bridges at Kuestrin have been wrecked.

A companion battle to his victory in Kuestrin still is being waged by Zhukov against another vital enemy bridgehead that embraces the eastern outskirts of Stettin.

Germans Say Nine Soviet Divisions Are Attacking West of Oder River.

London, March 13 (A. P.).—German broadcasts declared today that at least nine Soviet divisions had crossed the Oder River between Kuestrin and Frankfurt and were attempting to beat toward Berlin.

Nazis Decree Mass Killing

London, March 13 (AP)—Mass shooting of women and children in besieged Koenigsberg was decreed by the Nazi gauleiter after a petition was circulated asking that the city be surrendered to avoid further civilian suffering, the Moscow radio said today.

A broadcast by the Free German Committee quoted captured German soldiers as saying the city's inhabitants, living by tens of thousands in wet cellars, were dying of famine and pestilence.

RAF BATTERS RUHR AGAIN

Mosquitos Make 22d Consecutive Attack On Berlin

London, Wednesday, March 14 (AP)—RAF heavy bombers blasted targets in the Ruhr last night following up their raids against the same area by daylight yesterday, while Mosquitos made their twenty-second consecutive attack on Berlin, it was announced today.

The night blow, directed against the last main rail line leading into the Ruhr, marked the fourth time the four-engined British bombers had struck the Reich's rich industrial region in three days. After writing off Dortmund and Essen as dead cities after two of the RAF's greatest daylight assaults of the war, British bombers blasted Barmen, on the southern edge of the valley, yesterday.

United States 8th Air Force heavy bombers took their first day of rest in a week, but Flying Fortresses and Liberators from 15th Air Force bases in Italy bombed Regensburg, 90 miles northeast of Munich, the birthplace of Nazism. Their Mustang escorts strafed railroads on a wide sweep over the area between Munich and Regensburg.

20,000 Feet Of Smoke

Smoke rose 20,000 feet over Regensburg, where numerous aircraft factories are located.

Barmen is one of the smaller communication hubs in the Ruhr but it is growing in importance to the enemy as other rail centers are obliterated in the Allied aerial offensive. A force of 250 RAF heavy bombers with a fighter escort was used to smash the town.

Heavy weather over the Western front battle area hampered operations of the continent-based United States 9th Air Force, but medium and light bombers hit an enemy jet plane base at Rheine and attacked rail targets beyond the Remagen bridgehead while fighters patrolled the skies over the all-important bridge itself.

Rocket Sites Attacked

The RAF fighter command also kept up its attacks on rocket sites and rocket transportation routes in the Netherlands. British, Australian and Polish Spitfire pilots bombed and strafed buildings in the vicinity of the Hague.

Barmen lies just south of Essen, which was hit Sunday in the heaviest daylight air attack by the RAF up to that time. Then the bomber command increased the size of the daylight force and on Monday smashed Dortmund, the eastern gateway to the Ruhr, with more than 1,200 heavy bombers dumping in excess of 5,500 tons of bombs on the city in 29 minutes.

Sinistro Raided

United States 12th Air Force medium bombers and fighter-bombers hammered communication lines in northern Italy. B-25 pilots reported "good results" in the daily smash at the Brenner Pass line, which has been kept closed for the last 45 days.

Mitchells hit Sinistro, 30 miles north of Verona, and rail lines at Salorna, 15 miles above Trento, and also bombed the Perca rail bridge 20 miles from the Austrian border on a line feeding the Brenner route from southeastern Austria.

Fighter-bomber pilots reported 24 rail cuts at scattered points, and RAF Spitfires caused great explosions in an ammunition dump 10 miles north of La Spezia, sending up flames 2,000 feet. Thunderbolts caused fires and explosions in an ammunition dump at Parma and destroyed and damaged several buildings and a dump west of Bologna.

BARMEN BLASTED BY HEAVY BOMBERS

London, March 13 (A. P.).—R. A. F. heavy bombers battered the communicatnons hub of Barmen on the southern fringe of the Ruhr today after leaving Dortmund and Essen written off as dead from mammoth attacks in the two previous days.

Simultaneously, United States Fifteenth Air Force Flying Fortresses and Liberators from Italy bombed Regensburg, ninety miles northeast of Munich and the site of numerous German aircraft factories.

The assault on Barmen on the twenty-ninth day of the Allied air offensive followed an 1,100-plane raid with 5,000 tons of explosives yesterday on Dortmund, eastern gateway to the Ruhr. The bombs were unloaded in twenty-nine minutes.

It was the biggest daylight attack ever staged by the RAF, which also kept the mighty Allied aerial offensive rolling through the night by sending its Mosquito bombers against Berlin for the twenty-first successive night.

Planes Over Reich Again

Soon after daybreak today waves of Allied warplanes again swept over the Reich, continuing around-the-clock blows which General Eisenhower said are having a "tremendous," crushing effect on the enemy."

Dortmund is the second largest city in the industrial Ruhr Valley, and while previous bombings had just about knocked it out as a manufacturing center it was still serving as a major transportation hub. Nearly all troops and supplies bound for the Western front passed through the city.

Bombs Of All Sizes

The RAF literally threw everything into the attack—using practically every type of bomb from the smallest incendiary to the largest 12,000-pound earthquake bomb. More than half the big Lancasters and Halifaxes participating had 4,000-pounders in their bomb bays.

The aiming point for the beginning of the attack was the southern part of the city, but each successive wave of bombers dropped its cargo a little ahead of the last one until at the end a path of destruction was sowed right through the center of the city.

Clouds Lifted 1,000 Feet

Some pilots said clouds 5,000 feet above the ground were lifted 100 feet by the force of the explosions. Other crewmen reported smoke rising 8,000 feet.

Up to 1,000 heavy bombers of the United States 15th Air Force joined in the attack yesterday, dropping 1,650 tons of bombs through clouds on Nazi oil installations in the Vienna area. Other Italy-based bombers attacked German rail communications in Austria, Yugoslavia and northern Italy.

Dorothea Wieck, Film Star, Reported Alive

London, March 13 (AP)—The German news agency Transocean said today that the film star, Dorothea Wieck, reported Saturday to have been killed in the recent Allied bombing of Dresden, "is now known to be alive."

The actress, who was known to American film audiences for her role in the German film, "Maedchen in Uniform," once won compliments from Adolf Hitler for her acting. She was in Hollywood in 1934.

Russians Say Nazis Plan U-Boat Escape

London, March 13 (AP)—The German naval command is outfitting several of its largest U-boats "for flight of some of the highest Nazi leaders," the Moscow radio said in a German-language broadcast today.

German sailors were urged to sobotage these plans and "prevent the flight of those who are responsible for the war."

GI UNAWARE CREW IS GONE, FLIES ON

Goes 150 Miles In Burning Craft Before Bailing Out

A U.S. Bomber Base in England, March 13 (AP)—Sergt. Charles Sibray, 19, a Flying Fortress tail gunner from Odon, Ind., has flown 150 miles over Germany in a pilotless, burning plane and lived.

Now back at his base, Sibray told this story today:

The bomber was 150 miles inside the Reich after attacking a freight yard when a direct hit set the left wing afire. The pilot warned the crew to prepare to jump.

Sibray disconnected his interphone for a few seconds to kick open the emergency door from his rear turret and then returned to his guns. The long silence that followed worried him.

Didn't Dare Investigate

"It was strange to hear that dead silence, but I figured the men up front either were too busy or there was a flaw in the equipment," Sibray explained. "I didn't dare leave the tail unprotected to investigate."

An hour passed. The big plane kept flying smoothly toward France. Sibray thought the crisis had passed.

The plane reached German front lines and Nazi guns opened on the plane again. Sibray dutifully started calling out the proximity of flak bursts, some of which were uncomfortably close. Still there was no reply from the cockpit. He decided to investigate.

'Man, Was I Surprised'

"Man, was I surprised!" he recalled.

The bomber was deserted. Sibray rushed up to the nose, calling out names of various crewmen. His only answer was the ominous blink from the automatic pilot light. Sibray made his decision—to "hit the silk."

What happened to him after he reached ground was not explained.

HONOR COL. BROOKS

United States Eighth Air Force Headquarters, March 13 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Col. John A. Brooks, III, of Greenville, Ohio, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for leading a force of four Mustang fighters against a formation of 100 German ME-109s. Four of the Messerschmitts were shot down. The attack against overwhelming odds prevented Nazi fighters from getting through for an assault on a large formation of United States heavy bombers, Lieut.-Gen. Carl Spaatz, United States Strategic Air Force commander, said in citing Col. Brooks for "extraordinary heroism."

Flags Used To Identify Yank Flyers In Russia

A U.S. Bomber Base in England, March 13 (AP)—United States airmen on raids over eastern Germany carry foot-square American flags for identification in case they are forced down behind Russian lines. On the reverse side of the flag are the words in Russian: "I am an American."

The practice was started some time ago after several flyers who had come down on Russian soil reported they had experienced difficulty making Red Army soldiers understand they were not Germans.

READY TO CROSS RHINE IN FORCE

MAR 14 1945

Allied Armies Prepared, Grigg Tells Commons

London, March 13 (AP)—Sir James Grigg, Secretary for War, told the House of Commons today that Allied armies were preparing to cross the Rhine in force, then cautioned the cheering members against counting on a quick end of the war.

"The position now is that the north bank of the Moselle is rapidly being cleared of the enemy and our forces are preparing for the task of crossing the Rhine in force," he said.

"In spite of this miraculous betterment in our fortunes it would be unwise to act as if all were over, bar the shouting. In recent months we have had one false dawn and I am sufficient of a pagan not to want to provoke a nemesis."

Fresh Forces For Jap War

The War Secretary also told the House that after the final victory over Germany a substantial number of men in the British armed service with long periods of duty overseas would be released and men now in civilian "reserved occupations" would be called up.

Capt. Frederick Bellenger, a Laborite member, demanded that the Government announce "the purpose, size and cost of the armies we should need for the war in the Far East." Otherwise he said "it would be impossible to satisfy a large number of men in the forces that they really are needed. . . ."

Service men also want to know what contribution the Dutch and French are going to make toward recovery of their Far Eastern empires, Bellenger said.

Reiterates Pacific War Pledge

Sir James declared Britain's participation in the Pacifis war was "not only right but inescapable," but said it would call for a "very complicated and difficult process of redeployment" of troops.

"We are fighting this war for the establishment and maintenance of a principle," the War Secretary said. "The elimination of the greater plague spot in Europe cannot assure even the establishment of that principle, let alone its maintenance for all time, so long as the present Japan exists."

Wing Commander Archibald James, a Conservative member, expressed the hope the British Army "will not be called upon to bear more than its fair share in relation to the United States in the Pacific war."

Rebuffed On Manpower

The Conservative said he had sought from the Minister of Labor figures on the extent of the manpower mobilization in Britain as compared with that of the United Nations and had received an "impertinent and arrogant" reply that there was no advantage in comparing the war efforts of the United Nations.

Sir James declared that although the European land forces of the British Empire and the United States were roughly equal on D-day "it was not long before the latter exceeded our forces and at present they are probably more than twice those of the empire operating in this theater."

Effect Of Italy Campaign

In Italy, Sir James said, Allied forces "are even now containing enemy formations whose strength numerically we reckon to be upward of one third of the German forces in Europe other than those engaged against the Russians."

Turning to the problem of feeding the people of liberated lands, the War Secretary expressed fear that the demands in the coming months "may become almost overpowering." He said that in occupied Holland alone the population was "in desperate straits" with little prospect of help from local sources after liberation.

Sir James said Allied resources would be "strained to the utmost" to prevent starvation among the millions of displaced persons in Germany, "especially if our victory comes before the new harvest is gathered."

In the House of Lords meanwhile Lord Winster predicted that the United States "may have to break up many of the ships she has built" when the war's end creates a surplus.

Forecasting that the bulk of the world's cargo tonnage would be owned by the United States he said "the uncertainty over the disposal of American utility ships" was one of the main difficulties confronting the shipping industry.

Lord Leathers, Minister of War Transport, replied that he had no official intimation of what the American Government's intentions were, but said it seemed "probable they would sell to private owners a large number of Government-owned ships," with faster specialized craft sold mainly or wholly to American nations and Liberty ships "likely to be sold abroad."

Churchill Confident Of British Position

London, March 13 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill, asked whether he would suggest that the next major meeting of the United Nations be held in Britain, assured the Commons today that "we have no need to be anxious about obtaining our due share of international consideration in one form or another."

BRITISH REVEAL POSTWAR AIR PLAN

LONDON, March 13 — (AP) A master plan to turn the Empire's post-war air transport development over to three large companies, with steamship lines and railroads playing a major role in them, was advanced by the British government today and quickly brought charges of "monopoly."

The long-established British Overseas Airways corporation emerged as the dominant organization in the official plan, announced in a government white paper, with a world-girdling route assignment that includes the United States.

B.O.A.C. was also given a voice in the other two companies.

These are British-Latin American airlines, made up of five steamship lines operating Latin American services, and a United Kingdom-European service in which the principal participants will be railroads, short sea shipping lines, travel agencies "and other such pre-war operators who desire to participate."

Four independent pre-war airline operators charged the project meant monopoly and declared it unsatisfactory to them. They said they would be "robbed" of the good will and development costs previously invested in their air lines.

The plan was recently criticised in Commons by a member who declared that Lord Swinton, minister of civil aviation, had made a "secret deal" with the railroads and shipping lines to give them control of post-war commercial aviation and to prevent competition.

The white paper made clear that the government hoped to operate the international services with a minimum of competition and, as far as possible, without subsidies. The plan follows lines advanced by Britons at the Chicago Aviation conference, but there turned down. Subsidies, said the white paper, will be limited by "avoiding uneconomic competition, maintaining equilibrium between capacity and traffic offering, a fair division of services between the airlines engaged and an agreement as to freight and passenger charges."

British Setting Up 3 Air Firms

London, March 13 (AP)—Britain announced today that three air transport companies would be set up to carry on the empire's post-war civil aviation program. Steamship lines will play an important part in the program.

A White Paper disclosed that each company is to operate over noncompetitive areas and to have a combined organization for the training of personnel and the maintenance of aircraft.

Extensions To Orient

The British Overseas Airways Corporation will operate to the United States and the British Commonwealth, with extensions to China and other regions in the Orient. An outgrowth of Britain's prewar civil air transport companies, it will compete with other globe-girdling services, including Pan American Airways

A second company, to be known as the British Latin-American Airlines, will be established to serve South America. The majority of its participants will be British steamship lines in the South American trade before the war, although British Overseas Airways will participate.

European Service

The third organization will serve Britain and Europe. Its participants will include railway companies, short sea shipping lines, travel agencies, British Overseas Airways and others.

The plan recently was criticized in the House of Commons by a member who charged that Lord Swinton, Minister of Civil Aviation, made a "secret deal" with the railways to give them control of civil aviation to prevent competition.

The program gives Lord Swinton the authority to approve the appointment of boards of directors and the representatives of the British Overseas Airways Corporation on the boards of the other two companies.

U.S. Civil Air Policy Disputed By Senators

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Great Britain's disclosure of plans for world routes in civil aviation after the war finds the United States policy in sharp dispute among senators.

A big issue is whether there shall be a single American flight company operating internationally as a "chosen instrument" or a zone arrangement with regulated competition.

Also being argued is whether interim aviation agreements which have been accepted by the State Department on behalf of the nation, without prior approval by Congress, should be delayed. Some Republicans say that they ought to be held up, pending Senate action on a permanent aviation treaty.

No one at the Civil Aeronautics Board would comment on Britain's plan for turning empire aviation development over to three large companies, each with a big slice of the world.

The same attitude was taken by Pan American Airways, where a spokesman said this globe-girdling company regarded it as a policy matter for Congress.

Axis Prisoners Taken By British Exceed Million

London, March 13 (AP)—Lord Croft, Parliamentary Under Secretary of State for War, told the House of Lords today that Axis prisoners captured by troops of the British Commonwealth and Empire on all fronts during the war now exceeded 1,000,000.

He said that up to November 30, 1944, British casualties, including killed, wounded, missing and prisoners, totaled 1,043,000.

SEES CUT IN ARMY

London, March 13 (A. P.).—War Secretary Sir James Grigg told Commons today that victory over Germany would be followed by a substantial measure of release from Britain's armed forces, and a further call-up from civil life, including a substantial number of those who have hitherto been in reserved occupations.

After Germany's defeat, there will be a very complicated and difficult process of re-deployment against Japan, Sir James said.

Training Of British Army In Germany Is Favored

London, March 13 (AP)—Lieut. Col. Alfred Wise, Conservative member of Parliament, told the House of Commons tonight that he hoped the British peacetime army would be training in Germany for the next 20 to 25 years, at least.

Speaking of a lack of training grounds in Britain, he said, "there will be plenty of room there" (in Germany).

Raids On Britain Kill 484 In February

London, March 13 (AP)—Enemy air action killed 484 civilians in Britain during February and injured 1,151 others, according to figures compiled by the Ministry of Home Security.

This represented 102 fewer deaths and nearly 500 fewer persons injured than in January.

The Ministry announced that additional casualties and damage were caused by continued enemy air action during the 24 hours ending at dawn today.

25 Nazis Who Escaped May Try To Reach Eire

London, March 13 (AP)—The search for 25 escaped German prisoners spread to Bristol Channel ports tonight as hunters expressed belief the fugitives might try to board vessels for neutral Eire.

Two of the 25 prisoners who have been recaptured since 70 tunneled out of a camp in Wales last Sunday said they had hoped to stow away on a ship. Most of those captured had stores of food, some had maps and compasses.

As Scotland Yard joined troops, police and civilians in a plane-directed hunt of the area, the guard was reported strengthened over the west country bungalow where Rudolf Hess, former Hitler deputy, is confined.

25 Nazi Fugitives Still Loose In Wales

London, March 13 (AP)—An extensive manhunt was maintained today for 25 German prisoners, the last of a group of 70 still at large after their escape Sunday from a prison camp at Brigend, in Wales.

They had tunneled their way out of the camp, excavating tons of dirt in messkits and tin cans and scattering it widely over a field.

Residents of the area barricaded their homes and special guards were mounted in villages to prevent the prisoners from seizing civilian clothes.

Two of the fugitives were captured at Bonivlston, eight miles from Cardiff. They said they had hoped to stow away on a ship.

Empire Trade Issue Raised

London, March 13 (AP)—A drive to tighten the economic ties binding the British Commonwealth of Nations by securing an agreement on the controversial policy of preferential empire trade before the San Francisco world security conference was accelerated today.

This problem will confront Prime Minister Churchill and Eden when representatives of the British Commonwealth meet here early in April. The British leaders will attempt to convince the empire delegates that the future of their countries lies in close economic partnership.

It is expected that Churchill himself will propose developing that partnership as a basic principle of the Conservative party when he addresses the party's annual conference Thursday.

Imperial Preference Backed

The London Daily Express said editorially: "Imperial preference is the mainstay of our empire trade. That policy is only in its infancy. It should be developed even more toward empire economic unity or empire free trade."

Asserting that "no international agreement can be espoused if it cuts across the path," the Express added:

"If, for example, the currency agreement of Bretton Woods destroys imperial preference . . . the Conservative party should say: 'No. We are responsible people. We will do what we can. But we cannot contemplate such action, much as we should like to, even to oblige the Americans and their President.'"

Arguments Pro And Con

Supporters of the empire-preference-policy plan maintain that it is dictated by the war-spurred development of trade between the Americas and by indications that Russia plans to bring the Balkans within the Soviet economic sphere.

Its opponents, however, contend that an exclusive "buy-British" policy would stimulate the erection of restrictive trade barriers and prohibitive tariffs that might wreck all hopes of ending economic isolationism throughout the world.

Cotton In France For U.S. Tents

Paris, March 13 (AP)—The United States recently has supplied French factories with 26,000 bales of cotton for the manufacture of equipment for the use of American armies on the Continent, it was disclosed today. Seventeen French plants are under contract with the War Department for equipment including 44,000 tents.

FRENCH BATTLE FOR INDO-CHINA

PARIS, March 13—(AP) French troops, bitterly resisting Japanese attempts to take complete control of French Indo-China, are fighting delaying actions in the wild mountains west and north of Hanoi, the French general staff announced here tonight.

The communique, followed a cabinet announcement that an officer sent by the government "several months ago" was leading resistance against the Japanese in Indo-China, where "organized battles have been fought in Hanoi."

The French war bulletin admitted that garrisons in South Cochin-China and Annam were captured without much difficulty by the Japanese, who had placed greatly superior forces in strategic spots preparatory to the ultimatum demanding that the French surrender the civil administration along with military installations.

In some spots Japanese dispositions outnumbered the French by ten to one, the high command said.

Announcing that Gen. Charles DeGaulle would address the French nation tomorrow on the subject, the official French news agency said "the French government is in the closest possible touch with Allied governments, not only as regards sending a French expeditionary force to the Orient, but also the immediate furnishing of arms to French forces in Indo-China."

Disclosing that the French battleship Richelieu and several other warships have taken part in Pacific operations and predicting the fleet would be incorporated in the Allied Pacific fleet, the agency said France had asked the Allies for transportation to send troops to the Pacific theater.

The German radio meanwhile broadcast a Tokyo dispatch saying that King Sianouk of Cambodia had issued a "declaration of independence" and pledged cooperation with Japan following similar action by Annam last Sunday. Cambodia has been a French protectorate since 1863.

Indo-China, lying south of China, with the gulf of Tonkin and the South China sea on the east, and Thailand on the west, comprises the French protectorates of Cambodia, Annam and Tonkin.

Indo-China Resistance Admitted By Japs

San Francisco, March 13 (AP)—The Tokyo radio acknowledged today that Japanese troops were meeting continued resistance in the northern part of French Indo-China, but declared that the rest of the colony had been taken over in accordance with orders from Tokyo dissolving French authority.

An Associated Press dispatch from Paris last night quoted a French communiqué as saying that French troops in the northern sector of Tonkin were resisting the Japanese in accordance with orders radioed to the garrisons by the French general staff for national defense.

German Radio Reports Cambodia Secession

London, March 13 (AP)—The Berlin radio quoted a Tokyo broadcast today as saying the Kingdom of Cambodi had declared its independence from France and would collaborate with Japan in the Asiatic war.

Cambodia is the southwestern part of French Indo-China.

King Sianouk issued a statement nullifying the pact between France and Cambodia, which has been a French protectorate since 1863, "because of events taking place in Indo-China," the broadcast said. Similar action by Annam, the eastern part of Indo-China, was announced previously.

5,900-FT. PEAK FALLS TO YANKS

5th Army Troops There Beat Off Enemy Counters

Rome, March 13 (AP)—American 5th Army troops, straightening their Apennine battleline in northern Italy for future operations, have captured Monte Spigolino, a 5,900-foot peak 14 miles northwest of Pistoia, Allied headquarters announced today.

Several German counterattacks against the newly won American positions were beaten off. Monte Spigolino is about 3 miles east of Piansinatico, on Highway 12 running from Lucca to Modena.

Nazi Artillery Active

To the west and along the Ligurian sea coast the Germans heavily shelled Allied forward positions. Allied patrols made contact with the Germans along the coast.

South of Bologna 5th Army troops advanced about 300 yards, taking several houses less than a mile southwest of Monte Rumici. South of Salvara other units made small advances without encountering any enemy opposition.

P-T Boats Raid Genoa Gulf

North of Monte Belvedere, which 5th Army troops took at the start of the present campaign, an Allied patrol ran into heavy long-range German machine-gun fire.

Activity along the 8th Army front in the Adriatic region again was confined to patrol operations, with frequent clashes between small units.

A naval communiqué said two enemy lighters had been sunk and a third damaged during an attack by American P-T boats off Mesco Point, in the Gulf of Genoa northwest of Specia.

Yanks Seize New Peak In Italy

A New Cassino

New York, March 13 (AP)—Reconstruction of the ruined Italian town of Cassino will begin Thursday when the cornerstone of the first building will be laid, an Italian broadcast recorded by the Federal Communications Commission said today.

Rome, March 13 (AP)—Fifth Army troops have blasted the Germans from 5,900-foot Monte Spigolino, in the mountain country 14 miles northwest of Pistoia, and repulsed enemy counterattacks upon the peak, Allied headquarters announced today.

The activity flared in a section southwest of Monte Belvedere, which the Americans hold. Monte Spigolino is about 3 miles east of Piansinatico, on Highway 12 running from Lucca to Modena.

30.24-23865

Nazi Coast Artillery Active

Like the action in the Belvedere region, the advance apparently was designed to correct 5th Army positions for whatever may be in store on the Italian front in the coming months.

The Germans farther west and along the coast shelled Allied forward positions, and Allied patrols made contact with the enemy in the coastal region.

In the arc before Bologna, 5th Army troops advanced about 300 yards, improving their positions and taking several houses about 1,000 yards southwest of Monte Rumici. There were other advances south of Salvaro against no enemy opposition.

Long-Range Machine-Gun Fire

An Allied patrol ran into long-range German machine-gun fire north of Monte Belvedere. Brazilian troops northwest of that peak met nineteen Germans, killed three and captured the rest. Seven Germans were killed and more captured in the Spigolino attack.

Activity along the 8th Army front farther east on the fringes of the Po Valley was confined to patrol clashes.

A navy communiqué announced that PT boats operating off Mesco Point, in the Gulf of Genoa northwest of Spezia, engaged a northbound convoy of eight lighters, sank two with torpedoes and hit a third.

Mussolini's Ex-Secretary Held

ROME, March 13 (AP)—Alessandro Chiavolini, former private secretary to Benito Mussolini and a member of the Fascist Grand Council, was arrested in Rome today by the political police.

Hero Who, Fatally Shot, Bagged Plane, Honored

Rome, March 13 (AP)—Staff Sergeant William K. Guilfoil, who although mortally wounded shot down an enemy fighter which was attacking his Flying Fortress, has been posthumously awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

Guilfoil's home was in Chicago. He was a tail gunner on a United States air force mission against the Bologna railway yards October 5, 1943.

He was knocked down and badly injured by flak, but returned to man his guns. Then a Messerschmitt-109 attacked. The American gunner's straight shooting caused the Messerchmitt to explode so close that a fragment hit him in the face. He kept on shooting at other enemy planes until he died.

TAIL GUNNER GETS GENERAL'S DAGGER

Heinzerling

Rome, March 13 (A. P.).—Staff Sergt. Nicholas J. Wolfe, a tail gunner from Cleveland, Ohio, has the dagger of a German general as the souvenir of a Flying Fortress from which he and his mates had to bail out over a Yugoslav battlefield. Germans and Yugoslav Partisans were fighting below, and when word came to bail out, Sergt. Wolfe's 'chute headed him straight for no man's land. He saw parties from both sides set out for him.

"The Partisans got there first, and we worked our way back to their lines with bullets whizzing over our heads," Sergt. Wolfe said.

There stood a German general, captured only a short time before, arrogant and haughty. The general brusquely thrust out a hand.

"Von Klegen," the general said. "Berlin."

"Wolfe," said the sergeant, no less coolly. "Cleveland."

Asked about the general's gleaming dagger, Sergt. Wolfe explained, "He didn't exactly give it to me. The Partisans took care of the giving. He just sort of furnished it."

Bern Reports Rundstedt Has Lost Command

Unrest in Munich Rumored, With Nazis Warned to Shun Workers' Areas

Tillmans

BERN, Switzerland, March 13 (AP).—Frontier reports said today that Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt was no longer in command on the western front, and one unconfirmed account said the German general had been wounded.

Advices from across the border reflected growing tension in the German homeland, particularly in Munich, where the Nazi Gauleiter was said to have warned party officers to avoid circulating in worker sections of the city because the police were no longer strong enough to guarantee safety. However, rumors of outright revolt in Munich were not confirmed.

Well informed observers here speculated that Adolf Hitler might stage some new surprise, such as the use of gas, or some other new weapon, to halt the Allied advance, but agreed that whatever the Fuehrer decides, it must be done quickly.

Throughout Germany, reports here state, there is utter confusion, resentment and outright resistance against new reductions in food, travel and cooking privileges as Nazi leaders seek to slow Allied advances in the east and west. Banditry and partisan activity were declared increasing.

Foreign Workers Roam Reich.

A private report from Berlin stated that at least 100,000 foreign workers had left their jobs recently, and that some got through to meet the advancing Allies. Others were reported wandering about Germany. Travelers were beginning to tell of trains being derailed by these foreigners, who robbed freight cars. Workers committees against the Nazi regime were reported operating in Essen, Muehlheim, Duesseldorf and Dortmund, and reliable information indicated that the infamous prison camp at Dachau has become a center of resistance.

Reports Of Executions

More than 50 political prisoners were said to have escaped Dachau recently. An equal number was reported executed afterward as hostages. Punishment also was meted out to guards at Dachau for having been too friendly with prisoners, these reports said.

Nazis in Berlin were said to have confiscated even old-fashioned luxury limousines and carts in an effort to transport material for barricades.

Throughout Bavaria and Austria almost all trains were reported halted. Freight trains on local lines have been stopped entirely.

Ban On Cooking Gas

The St. Galler Tagblatt reported from Schaffhausen that gas for cooking has been forbidden everywhere throughout the Reich except for hospitals and some community restaurants.

Factories in southern Germany were said to have taken over the feeding of the people, but many places required that those who wanted to eat bring their own potatoes and whatever stored winter vegetables they had.

Hitler Plot Called Broader Than Revealed

London, March 13 (AP) — The Paris radio, quoting Allied press reports, said today that the bomb plot against Adolf Hitler last July was "much more extensive than had been supposed."

"New facts have come in about the generals' revolt," it added.

The broadcast, as heard by listeners here, did not mention any new revolt, however.

Soviet Press Supports Chinese Communists

Moscow, March 13 (AP) — The Soviet press today again supported Chinese Communist demands for "liquidation of the Kuomintang dictatorship" and creation of a coalition national government in China with unified military command.

The leading Soviet commentator on Far Eastern affairs, P. Krainov, wrote in Red Star that "the vices in China's organization and conduct of the war have been disclosed in all their acuteness" during the recent Japanese offensive.

Krainov placed the number of Chinese Communist and partisan forces at 2,250,000.

U. S. Editors in Moscow

Hold Talks With Executives of "Izvestia" and "Pravda"

MOSCOW, March 13 (AP).—The foreign and military editors of "Izvesta" received the three-man committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors last night for a two-hour "heart-to-heart talk" on common problems.

The Americans, invited to inspect the government newspaper's printing plant, said they would rather pass the time in the editorial offices, and their Russian colleagues cordially agreed.

A similar meeting with the editors of "Pravda" is scheduled for tonight. The National Art Museum was visited today by the three Americans, Ralph McGill, of "The Atlanta Constitution"; Wilbur Forrest, of the New York Herald Tribune, and Carl Ackerman, dean of the Columbia University School of Journalism.

Repatriates From Nazi Poland Prisons Return

A Middle East Port, March 13 (AP)—A second shipload of military and civilian repatriates, freed from German prison camps by the Red Army's surge across Poland and eastern Germany, arrived here today.

The vessel carried 755 French civilians, 592 British, 66 New Zealand and 62 Australian troops and several hundred other soldiers of the British Empire. The first shipload of rescued prisoners arrived yesterday.

Swedish Youth Asked To Fight For Norway

Stockholm, March 13 (AP)—The Swedish-Norwegian Volunteers Association published appeals in the press today to Swedish youths to enlist in a volunteer corps for "active participation in the battle for Norway's liberation."

The published appeal said formation of a corps and the task of equipping it was proceeding under the auspices of the association and "authoritative officials."

Allies Hasten Efforts To Repatriate Prisoners

Stockholm, Sweden, March 13 (AP)—Allied governments are making strong efforts to obtain the exchange of as many as possible of their nationals held as prisoners of war in view of the deteriorating situation in Germany where many large camps have been moved under difficult conditions.

The British are negotiating with the Germans through Switzerland for the exchange of 30,000 prisoners, it was reported, while the American Government is negotiating for nearly as many.

Armour Arrives At Madrid

Madrid, March 13 (AP)—Norman Armour, new United States Ambassador to Spain, arrived by Air Transport Command plane at Madrid's Barajas airport this afternoon to fill the ambassadorial post vacant since the departure of former Ambassador Carlton J. H. Hayes January 14.

FT. DUFFERIN IS SEALED OFF

British Cut Escape Routes From Mandalay Fortress

Calcutta, March 13 (AP)—In bitter house-to-house fighting, veteran troops of the Indian 19th Division are mopping up Japanese resistance patches in Mandalay while heavy artillery batters the enemy garrison in Fort Dufferin, an Allied communiqué announced today.

Dispatches from British headquarters within the North Burma city said Gurkha patrols had pushed ahead on two sides of the moat-surrounded fort and virtually had sealed all its main escape routes.

At least 80 per cent of Mandalay, Burma's second largest city, was reported destroyed by Allied aerial and artillery attacks. Japanese snipers were hiding in the wreckage in an attempt to delay the cleanup, but all strategic positions in North Mandalay except for Dufferin were in British hands.

Six Towns Captured

From the Irrawaddy bridgehead west of Mandalay other British troops were moving toward the city and had captured six towns.

To the south, the veteran British 4th Corps commanded by Lieut. Gen. F. W. Messervy was meeting increased resistance from Japanese forces in the Meiktila area. It was disclosed today that it was the 4th Division which halted the Japanese invasion of India last year on the Imphal Plain. And it was the 4th which plunged from the Pakokku bridgehead in a swift dash and captured Meiktila and its eight airfields.

The capture of Meiktila gave the British a solid base for extending their operations both to the west and eastward into the 6,000-foot Shan Hills.

Escape Route South Blocked

The 4th's operations in the area has blocked enemy escape routes to the south and forced the Japanese to make heavy withdrawals from northern Burma in an effort to hold open eastward routes toward Thailand and French Indo-China.

Armored columns operating from Meiktila daily plunge over the roads radiating from the base in attacks which have cost the enemy around 400 casualties daily.

Japanese trucks seeking to escape from Fort Dufferin during the night were caught by British artillery about a mile from the bastion. Enemy troops inside the barricade were subjected to aerial and artillery barrages.

As the British cleared the enemy from block after block of the city Burmese civilians emerged from their barricaded homes and shops. Civilian casualties were reported heavy in the street fighting as the people preferred to remain with their possessions rather than withdraw to the hills.

Mandalay Japs Being Trapped

British 19th Division Headquarters, Mandalay, March 12 [AP—Delayed]—Patrols of Gurkhas pushed ahead today on both sides of Fort Dufferin, the main Japanese position in Mandalay, and have virtually sealed all its main escape routes. The garrison was shelled.

A military spokesman said that in the next 24 hours the fort will have been completely isolated. British troops inside this ancient North Burma city were busy mopping up patches of Japanese troops in fierce house-to-house fighting.

Eighty per cent of the business and residential sections of Mandalay, Burma's second largest city, has been destroyed by bombings, according to air observation, and the Japanese are hiding in the wreckage in an attempt to delay the cleanup of the city.

Other Positions Fall

All strategic positions in North Mandalay except for Fort Dufferin have been taken by the British.

The Japanese troops inside the fort are depending mainly on machine guns. The fort is surrounded by 5 miles of heavy walls and a 200-foot moat filled with more than six feet of water.

It was announced that the veteran 4th Corps under Lieut. Gen. F. W. Messervy, which captured Meiktila, was the outfit which smashed the Japanese Indian invasion last year on the Imphal plain. The 4th's swift armored drive into Meiktila blocked Japanese escape routes to the south and forced the enemy to withdraw heavy forces from northern Burma.

CHINESE AGAIN HOLD SUICHWAN

First U.S. Airbase Lost To Japs Is Regained

Chungking, March 13 (AP)—The Chinese high command tonight confirmed that Suichwan, former site of a United States 14th Air Force base in Kwangsi province, had been recaptured Sunday by Chinese troops and that Japanese forces north of the city were being mopped up.

The high command said Chinese troops, after completing the recapture of Suichwan, which is halfway between Hong Kong and Hankow, pushed on toward Kanhsien, about 50 miles southeast, and the site of another former United States airbase lost to the Japanese in their drive last summer against American air installations.

Battle On For Ichang

West of the Canton-Hankow railroad, the high command reported Chinese troops were battling for the town of Ichang, near the Hunan-Kwangtung border about 105 miles south of Hengyang. Chinese troops were reported entrenched in the eastern suburbs of the town.

Suichwan is the first of the former American airbases to be recaptured by the Chinese. From Kahnsien the Japanese have a line open to Kukong, on the Canton-Hankow railroad, 125 miles north of Canton, but the Chinese are reported trying to sever this route in order to isolate Kanhsien.

Liuchen Reported Regained

A Chinese press dispatch said Chinese forces also had recaptured Liuchen, on the Kwangsi-Kweichow railroad, 11 miles north of Liuchow, and that the Japanese garrison had retreated toward Liuchow.

Authoritative reports reaching Chungking said prominent Chinese residents of Shanghai had suggested to Japanese officials that they declare the former British treaty port an open city and that while the enemy looked upon the proposal favorably the final decision was up to Tokyo.

The reports said Japanese civilians already were being evacuated and that 1,000,000 Chinese had been ordered to get out.

Suichwan Rewon By Chinese

Chungking, March 13 (AP)—Counterattacking Chinese troops have captured Suichwan, former site of a United States advanced air base in Kiangsi province midway between Hongkong and Hankow, Chinese field dispatches said today.

Suichwan was abandoned by the 14th Air Force late in January and the Chinese acknowledged its fall to the Japanese on February 3. It is the first of the lost air bases east of Japan's "West Wall" in China to be reported regained by the Chinese.

Chinese advices said the city was recaptured Sunday night when the Japanese retreated southward toward Kanhsien, site of another lost air base.

Japs Keep Rail Connections

The Japanese still are maintaining railway connections between Kanhsien and Kukong on the Canton-Hankow Railway, but the Chinese were reported trying to cut this line and isolate enemy forces at Kanhsien.

Chinese press dispatches said Chinese forces also had recaptured Liucheng on the Kwangsi-Kweichow Railroad 11 miles north of Liuchow, junction of this line and the Hunan-Kwangsi Railway.

Japs Urged To Make Shanghai An Open City

Chungking, March 13 (AP)—Prominent Chinese residents of Shanghai have suggested to Japanese authorities that they declare it an open city, Chinese advices said today.

These reports said that some Japanese officials apparently looked with favor on the suggestion, but Tokyo's reaction was uncertain.

The Japanese were reported already evacuating all Japanese civilians and were said to have ordered 1,000,000 Chinese inhabitants to leave. With sea communications disrupted and rail traffic subject to air attack, however, evacuation of any large percentage of the city's 3,000,000 or more inhabitants was regarded as extremely difficult.

Repeated warnings have been issued from Chungking against Chinese traveling on Japanese ships or Japanese-controlled railways.

YANKS GAIN ON MINDANAO

MacArthur Also Reports Taking South Luzon Towns

Manila, Wednesday, March 14 (AP)—Forty-first Division troops seizing four villages north of captured Zamboanga, pursued the disorganized Japanese into the Mindanao hills against increasing resistance Monday while on Luzon the Yanks conquered the southern end of the bitterly contested Shimbu Line.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today that Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st, after capturing the villages of Canelar Santa Maria, Sinonog and Pitogo was in hot pursuit of the enemy. Tanks paced the drive.

Capture Anchor Of Line

Antipolo, southern anchor of the Shimbu Line, east of Manila, was captured after a fierce fight. To the south, 11th Airborne Division troops reached Los Banos, site of the former internment camp, and Santo Tomas, on the main rail and highway route into southern Luzon.

The 158th Regimental Combat Team captured the town of Batangas, capital of Batangas province, in a swift eastward sweep from Balayan Bay. Batangas is on Batangas Bay, on the north end of the Verde island passage between Luzon and Mindoro.

Hit Hydroelectric Plant

Heavy bombers caused large explosions at the Takao hydroelectric plant on Formosa and started large fires in rail installations.

Patrol bombers, ranging the China Sea, left a 3,000-ton freighter-transport ablaze and medium bombers probably sank a tanker off French Indo-China.

Borneo, only little more than 200 miles from the new invasion spot on southwestern Mindanao, took a 57-ton bombing which destroyed eleven oil-storage tanks at the Miri petroleum refinery. Nearby airdromes also were hit.

[The Tokyo radio, admitting Japanese reverses on Mindanao and Luzon islands, complained that American troops on Luzon advanced with such "rapidity and surprise" they deprived the Nipponese of opportunities to organize their defenses.]

Rebuilding Airfield

American engineers rushed reconstruction of San Roque airfield, bomber strip taken by the 41st Division outside Zamboanga.

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, commander of the United States 8th Army, said Japanese troops, who left shattered Zamboanga to be held only by snipers, abandoned emplacements which were the strongest he had seen in the Philippines.

The Japanese also deserted strong bunkers and caves around the San Roque airfield. The enemy retreat apparently was motivated by the belief that hill positions would be best suited for delaying action.

But back of the Japanese were guerrilla forces which already have wrested much of Mindanao, second largest island in the Philippines, from Nipponese control.

Japs In Retreat On Mindanao

Manila, March 13 (AP)—Tank-led 41st Division infantrymen captured Zamboanga town and seized four more villages as they pursued retreating Japanese toward the hills of Mindanao Island, headquarters announced today, while other doughboys pressed the cleanup of southern Luzon Island.

The 41st seized four villages on the highway about 2 miles north of Zamboanga as engineers were reconditioning a captured bomber airrome 215 miles from Borneo. The Japanese abandoned formidable fixed positions before the town and around the airdrome and fled northward into the hills dominating fabled Zamboanga.

Against similarly light opposition on Luzon the 11th Airborne Division captured Los Banos, former prison town, and Batangas, tenth provincial capital on the island to be liberated.

Site Of Rescue

Los Banos, where airborne troops rescued more than 2,000 civilian internees three weeks ago, was easily taken. Enemy strong points were later encountered 1,500 yards northwest of the town.

No opposition was encountered at Batangas, about 25 miles south of Los Banos, on the southwest coast of Luzon.

In central Luzon First Division cavalrymen captured Antipolo, thirteen miles east of Manila and southern anchor of the strongly defended Shimbu line. The town was completely taken after sixteen days of bitter fighting. Sixth Division infantrymen cracked through the northern end of the line.

Associated Press War Correspondent Russell Brines reported from Zamboanga that abandoned Japanese fortifications there were the most formidable fixed positions encountered in the central or southern Philippines. The Japanese deserted the ancient Spanish fortress city about a week ago, leaving behind a small delaying force.

Tunnels Deserted

Mortars and machine guns sniped at the Yanks from the hills where the Nipponese had their main positions.

Strong bunkers and tunnels were found deserted around San Roque bomber airfield, the second to fall in the Mindanao invasion.

Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's Yanks quickly overran Wolfe Field, a small airstrip, and then captured big San Roque Airdrome, one of the best on Mindanao, in their lightning sweep which carried into the municipal center of Zamboanga.

The Japanese at Zamboanga, caught off balance by the amphibious landings, have not been able to organize their defenses, General MacArthur reported, because of the "rapidity and surprise of our advance."

There was no mention of fighting for the San Roque airdrome, which has an airstrip 4,000 feet long, but the early American drive elsewhere was made in the face of mortar, artillery and machine-gun fire.

Brines reported the Japanese were using mortars with good effect from positions in the hills. Moderate machine-gun and mortar fire was encountered on the outskirts of the Zamboanga city center.

Support Of Naval Fire

Aircraft and naval gunfire supported the ground operations and hit installations on Basilan Island, across the 12-mile Basilan Strait from Zamboanga. A number of small Japanese vessels were destroyed.

Jolo Island, in the Sulu Archipelago southwest of Zamboanga, was hit by heavy bombers which concentrated on the airfield there.

Heavy fighting was reported along the Shimbu line in the Marikina watershed east of Manila, on Luzon. The 1st Cavalry Division, which drove into Antipolo Friday, completely secured that town yesterday.

Antipolo, 13 miles east of Manila, is the southern anchor of the Shimbu line which army eigineers estimate took the Japanese two years to construct.

Demolition teams have blasted a hundred caves and tunnels in the sector, while heavy bombings and artillery shelling have continued daily, occasionally rattling the windows of Manila with their intensity.

To the north, the 6th Division repulsed several minor counterattacks and pressed farther into the hills southeast of Montalban.

Japanese shipping in the China Sea was severely hammered. Liberators dropped 89 tons of bombs on four North Borneo airdromes.

2,500-Plane Bag

Fifth Air Force Headquarters, Philippines, March 13 (AP)—The 5th Fighter Command reported today its airmen have shot down more than 2,500 planes in combat.

Capt. Frederick Dick, of Auburn, Maine, shot down No. 2,500 over Hainan island off the South China coast March 6. It was his fifth kill and his second of the day.

Capt. Noel B. Paris, of Atlanta, Ga., bagged the 2,498th and Lieut. Dwight L. Henderson, of St. Louis, Mo., got the 2,499th. All three airmen are of the 49th Fighter Group.

LEADING FLIER IS KILLED

Robinson, Holder of Pacific Records, Dies in Crash

FIFTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, March 13 (AP)—Col. Richard W. Robinson, commander of the Red Raiders heavy bomber outfit, was killed with his crew of ten in a crash on a take-off for the first Formosa raid by southwest Pacific land-based bombers, it was disclosed here today.

The crash occurred Jan. 21 but the report was held up for the notification of his next of kin.

Colonel Robinson, who was 25, was credited with more missions and more continuous combat flying and more continuous time overseas than any bomber pilot in this theatre.

He was the son of Mrs. Ruth Robinson of 5711 Coal Street, Wilkinsburg, Pa. He was co-captain of the University of Vermont football team in 1940.

Landing Craft Hits Beach, Zips Right On Across Isle

Lands in Sea on Other Side in 'Wet' Pacific Invasion

MANILA, March 13 (AP).—Sergeant Melvin Richard Miller, of Blackwell, Okla., was going so fast in his amphibious landing craft when he hit the beach that he went right on across the island and into the ocean on the other side.

He was part of the 11th Airborne force landing on small Saipang Island in Manila Bay. The island is half a mile long and, where Miller hit it, only ten yards wide.

"It was the most peaceful landing in the Pacific," he commented. "Only it was all wet."

MARINES SEIZE 2 ROCKS OFF IWO

Barren Islets Used by Jap Forces for Mortar Positions.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Wednesday, March 14.—(AP) Elements of two Marine divisions landed unopposed Tuesday on two barren rocks off the west coast of Iwo to end their use by the Japanese as mortar positions.

Although mortar fire from the rocks had been a problem earlier in the Iwo campaign, the Marines found neither enemy troops nor guns there.

Two Divisions Take Part

The rock landings, announced in today's communique of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, were amphibious operations involving units of the Third and Fourth Marine divisions.

Kangoku Iwa, the northernmost of the two islets, puts the Leathernecks almost due west of Kitano point, northern extremity of Iwo where the Japanese continued to hold out yesterday on the 23rd day of the invasion with small arms, machine guns and mortar fire. There were no appreciable changes in the Marine lines on Iwo Tuesday.

The other islet invaded was Kama, due west of the west central coast.

Landings Unopposed

Both flank the Iwo sector assigned to Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine division. The landings were unopposed.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz' communique reporting the landings described the two points as "rocks."

On Iwo, a small Japanese pocket on the east coast at Tachiiwa point, was further reduced Tuesday by

30.24-23867

Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth Marine division.

During the day 115 more of the maze of caves used by the Japanese were sealed up.

Army fighters based on Iwo made new attacks north of Iwo Tuesday on the airfield and harbor at Chichi in the Bonin islands. The communique belatedly listed attacks on Chichi Sunday and Monday by Army Airforce Liberators.

Other air attacks were reported against enemy positions on Babelthuap in the Palau islands and on Yap in the western Carolines, both on Tuesday.

Kama Rock is 1,000 yards off Iwo's west-central coast, Kangoku Rock is 2,700 yards off the northwest end.

Iwo Japs Hurled Closer To Sea

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 13 (AP)—Driving foot by foot against bitter resistance, Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th Marine Division has pushed the Japanese closer to the sea and destruction in a narrowing triangle around Kitano Point, northern extremity of Iwo.

There were indications that the enemy is weakening steadily, even though resistance remains stiff.

Mopping Up Coast

Today's morning communiqué, covering action up to 6 P.M. Monday, said Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's 3d Marine Division, in the center, and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates's 4th, on the right, are mopping up along the northeast coast.

In the 4th's sector near Tachiiwa Point, where Iwo's bulge makes its greatest extension eastward, a small Nipponese pocket still held out.

Given Air Cover

Despite the narrowly compressed Japanese area at Kitano Point—a triangle of 1,000 yards or less—United States 5th Fleet warships still were able to support the Leathernecks. Army fighter planes based on the southern Iwo airfield provided air cover.

Other army fighters braved intense anti-aircraft fire Monday to bomb and strafe Chichi Island in the Bonins, north of Iwo.

SMITH HAS CLOSE CALL

Iwo Jima, March 13 (A. P.).—Lieut.-Gen. Hollard M. Smith, commander of Marines in the Pacific, escaped death or injury by inches today. Gen. Smith, Major-Gen. Graves B. Erskine, commander of the Third Marine Division, and three others were standing on a rock on northern Iwo watching the fight below when a concealed Japanese took a pot shot at them.

The General said that the bullet missed him by six inches: "I looked to see if there was a hole in my trousers. It felt that close."

The party never found out where the shot came from.

MAR 14 1945

John Lardner Hurt On Iwo

Iwo Jima, Feb. 26 [Delayed]—John Lardner, injured by a rock sent flying into his groin by a Japanese sniper's bullet two days ago, was the seventeenth casualty among civilian and Marine combat correspondents in the first week of fighting on Iwo Jima.

Lardner, 33, correspondent for North American Newspaper Alliance and Newsweek and New Yorker magazines, was painfully but not seriously hurt.

Two Marine-enlisted correspondents have been killed and eleven wounded and two Marine public relations officers wounded.

Keith Wheeler, Chicago Times correspondent, was wounded in the jaw February 20.

Captain in Navy Finds Only Son At Iwo—Dying

Sgt. Anderson's Last Words to Father: 'I Wonder How Mother Will Take This'

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP).—A small Navy boat, in which lay a young marine sergeant desperately wounded on Iwo Jima, drew up to a transport lying off the island.

He was to have been taken aboard the transport, but another small boat came up, carrying a Navy captain who asked that the sergeant be given into his care. The marine was passed gently over.

And thus, Captain Charles Carter Anderson, United States Navy, carried his only son, Sergeant Charles Carter Anderson jr., to his own ship anchored near by.

Sergeant Anderson was dying. He had lost both legs and an arm and had suffered other wounds from the explosion of a mortar shell or a land mine on Iwo.

"I'm feeling pretty good," he told his father. "I wonder how mother will take all this."

Those were his last words.

A Navy chaplain came to the home here of Mrs. Anderson.

"Is it my husband or my son?" she asked.

The chaplain could tell her only that her son had died of wounds suffered on Iwo.

Mrs. Anderson turned to two unopened letters from her husband. She had been saving them to read after she had dressed for her volunteer job at Bethesda Naval Hospital.

". . . A force stronger than ours has taken charge, and our beloved son is with us on earth no more."

Mrs. Anderson donned her uniform and went to her work at the hospital.

This story of a fighting family was pieced together today from a delayed dispatch of Coast Guard Correspondent Thomas Warren, Captain Anderson's letters and Mrs. Anderson's account.

Eleventh Air Force Headquarters, Alaska, March 11 (Delayed) (A. P.).—Army Liberators struck twice today at Japanese bases in the northern Kuriles, hitting the naval base at Kataoka on Shim Shu Island and Suribachi on Paramushiro. The small attacking force dropped bombs through the overcast. Pilots said they saw two columns of smoke rising from targets on the way home.

Bolivian President's Car Target Of Inebriates

La Paz, Bolivia, March 13 (AP)—A Government communiqué tonight announced that the pistol shot which struck President Gualberto Villarroel's automobile near here Sunday night was fired "by persons without any political affiliation, who were in a state of drunkeness and sought only to halt an automobile to bring them to this city."

Informed sources said those who fired several shots at the car were unaware the President was a passenger. One man is being held for trial.

Venezuelan-Soviet Relations

Caracas, Venezuela, March 13 (AP). Venezuela and the Soviet Union have agreed to establish diplomatic and consular relations, a Government communiqué announced tonight.

Mexican Air Pilots End Strike

MEXICO CITY, March 13 (AP)—Striking pilots of the Mexican Aviation Company returned to work today after an eight-day interruption of main-line flights between Mexican cities. The men demanded recognition of their union, which the company refused, contending pilots should be classed with captains of ships.

U.S. Planes Raid Formosa Again

San Francisco, March 13 (AP)—United States Philippines-based aircraft raided Japanese installations on Formosa Monday the Tokyo radio reported today in an unconfirmed broadcast.

"About 30 enemy fighter planes" bombed the island in the morning and 35 bombers and "several" fighters struck Takao and Tainan in the island's southern section in the afternoon, according to the broadcast recorded here.

Yanks Move Too Fast, Japanese Complain

San Francisco, March 13 (AP)—Japanese broadcasts today admitted reverses in the Philippines and complained that United States troops on Luzon Island advanced with such "rapidity and surprise" Nipponese troops were unable to organize their defenses.

The Domei news agency conceded Americans invading Mindanao reached "a former airfield" near Zamboanga, but added: "They were thrown into utter confusion and disorder by the Japanese forces who all day long on March 11 subjected the enemy to terrific shelling."

The Domei broadcast, beamed to the United States and recorded here, said 100 American casualties were inflicted by Nipponese counterattacks on Mindanao. The propaganda version beamed to Asia raised the number to several hundred and added, Japanese "crack troops" were "continuing destructive assaults."

Japs Prepare For Invasion

San Francisco, March 13 (AP)—Suprred by warnings from Premier Koiso and key military Ministers that a homeland invasion is imminent, the Japanese Army devoted three days to anti-landing rehearsals, it was learned today from Tokyo broadcasts.

Firing practice was directed at Irago Point at the entrance of the bay leading to Honshu Island's large industrial city of Nagoya, the Tokyo radio disclosed in a broadcast intercepted here.

Six-Mile "Danger Zone"

The broadcast warned all shipping to avoid a 6-mile "danger zone" for three days.

Invasion jitters in bomb-pocked Honshu were brought to a head when Premier General Kuniaki Koiso and his War Minister, General Sugiyama, and Navy Minister Mitsumasa Yonai informed the Imperial Diet Sunday that the Government is rushing preparations for an imminent invasion of the Japanese home islands.

MOVE TO CUT FOOD EXPORT STARTS FIGHT

Army Threatens To Take WFA Proposal To White House

House extends Lend-Lease Act for year, but makes it only for war use.....Page 6

Washington, March 13 (AP) — A War Food Administration move to halt shipments of meats to Great Britain and liberated areas and to trim military demands has precipitated a bitter interagency controversy.

President Roosevelt may be called upon to settle the issue because of its possible impact upon international relations and home-front psychology.

Fundamentally, the issue is whether civilian food supplies should be reduced further to meet international commitments and obligations.

Production On Downgrade

With food production now on the downgrade, total demands being made upon this country are considerably greater than the supply, particularly in the case of meats, fats and vegetable oils, sugar and some kinds of dairy products.

The issue came to a head late last week in a WFA effort to allocate supplies for the April-June quarter among various claimant groups—the military, civilians, lend-lease foreign relief and other export demands.

In the case of meats, Marvin Jones, War Food Administrator, proposed to take Great Britain and liberated areas off the receiving list during the three-month period and to cut military supplies below army requests.

Army Protests Move

This action was described as necessary if civilian shortages were not to be aggravated.

Agencies representing foreign claimants— the Foreign Economic Administration and the State Department—protested. So did the Army. At a meeting with Jones, army officials threatened to take the matter to the White House.

Jones rushed to James F. Byrnes, war mobilizer, for support. The latter took no sides in the matter, but set up a special committee to pass upon foreign shipments of food.

The committee, headed by Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, is, in effect, a super food allocations committee.

Agencies Represented

Represented on this committee are the same agencies which have representatives on a food-allocations committee which has been functioning under Jones.

At the WFA there was little hope the new committee would meet with any greater success in dividing up the food supply than did the Jones committee.

Agencies speaking for foreign commitments expressed fear that failure to meet them might have far-reaching repercussions in London and other foreign capitals and weaken this country's influence at the forthcoming San Francisco world-security conference.

Jones, on the other hand, believes it is impossible to reduce civilian supplies further without endangering domestic morale and disrupting present food-rationing programs.

Army Demands Soaring

The Army's demands have been increasing rather sharply in recent months. Officials said the Army was anxious to build up reserves for the war against Japan before Germany is defeated.

Military leaders are said to fear a sharp letdown in production and a civilian demand for lifting of restrictions soon after V-E-day—developments which might make it difficult to get essential military supplies.

A forecast of the present controversy was made several weeks ago by the food allocations chief of FEA.

MAR 14 1945

Writing in the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Situation, this official — M. K. Bennett—warned of "embarrassing moments in international relations" if this country failed to meet international food obligations.

Salt-Pork Shortage Cited

"It remains to be seen," he added, "how far allocation policy by itself will squeeze domestic consumers for the benefit of foreigners."

In the Senate today Senator Eastland (D., Miss.) asked why so much food is being shipped abroad.

Because of large shipments of salt pork to Russia, he said, none of the meat is to be had in the South, where it forms an important part of the farm diet. Senator Bridges (R., N.H.) declared the same sort of shortage exists in New England.

Under allocations for the present quarter, civilians are supposed to be getting meat at the annual rate of 128 pounds per person.

147 Pounds Last Year

The Bureau of Agricultural Economics has said, however, the civilians would buy at the rate of between 165 and 170 pounds at ceiling prices if the supply were available.

Civilian supplies averaged about 147 pounds last year, while consumption in the 1935-39 period was about 135 pounds.

The United States allocated lend-lease countries (principally Great Britain and Russia) 605,000,000 pounds of meat, mostly pork, for the current quarter.

Figures as to quantities going to each lend-lease country have not been made available. Very little American beef is being sent abroad, except for American fighting men and for relief distribution by the armed services in liberated areas.

Argentine Beef To Britain

Great Britain supplements the pork she obtains from the United States with beef imported from Argentina.

Although no official figures were available, WFA officials said that if meat continued to be shipped to Great Brtiain and liberated areas during the April-June quarter, the per capita civilian supply might drop to around 116 pounds, or the lowest since severe mid-Western droughts drastically reduced meat supplies in 1936.

HOUSE EXTENDS LEND-LEASE

Given Year More Of Life But For War Use Only

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The House voted overwhelmingly today to give another year's life to the lend-lease program but labeled it "for war use only."

It wrote into the act a prohibition against using lend-lease in any postwar relief, reconstruction or rehabilitation programs, then voted, 354 to 28, to renew the program which administrationists called the No. 1 economic weapon of the Allies.

The extension now goes to the Senate. Without its enactment lend-lease will expire June 30. The renewal gives it life to June 30, 1946, and legalizes lend-lease contracts running to June 30, 1949.

Only Few Against Bill

Only a handful of members spoke against the bill, and most of them struck at Administration spending policies in general, rather than at the lend-lease program in particular.

Representative Rich (R., Pa.) touched off a round of debate when he called President Roosevelt "a spendthrift" who "doesn't know the value of a dollar, never did and never will."

"I resent the inference that the President doesn't have the welfare of this nation at heart," protested Representative Flood (D., Pa.), to which Representative Savage (D., Wash.) echoed:

"The millions who voted for President Roosevelt to carry on the war program voted their confidence in his ability."

Represents Compromise

Rich offered an amendment which would have required the President to obtain congressional approval for lend-lease settlements, but it was voted down.

The bill as it passed the House represented a compromise to erase Republican-expressed fears that the Administration would ease lend-lease into the postwar era, using it to make agreements for relief and reconstruction in liberated areas.

The Administration agreed to an amendment, which says the act does not "authorize the President to enter into or carry out any contract or agreement with a foreign government for postwar relief, postwar rehabilitation or postwar reconstruction, except for items specifically intended for defense or combat.

Bringing the bill to the floor for its third wartime renewal, Representative Luther Johnson (D., Texas) called lend-lease "the greatest war measure" and declared "it has brought us as close to victory as we now are."

Knutson Registers Protest

Representative Knutson (R., Minn.), a member of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee, raised one of the few voices of protest against past lend-lease administration.

"Lend-lease has done much good," he said, "but also it has been badly abused."

"Those in high places have assured our collaborationists they will not be called upon to repay 1 cent."

"You can go into Canada and get all the meat you want," Knutson chided at one point, "and get it without points. The reason is that the British like their beef with a lend-lease flavor—and cornfed from this country."

NAVY EXPECTED TO HIT 4 MILLION

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP) The United States Navy, already the greatest ocean power in history, expects to pass a personnel strength of 4,000,000 within a matter of months.

This was disclosed today in President Roosevelt's request that Congress appropriate $23,719,153,050 to run the Navy in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

It means bringing up the Navy proper to its full authorized strength of 3,389,000, plus 478,000 in the Marine corps and 173,165 in the Coast Guard.

This total of 4,040,165 compares with a strength of 3,870,039 as of Dec. 31.

The big Navy appropriation is assured, on past performances, of easy sailing through Congress. In the current fiscal year the Navy got $28,500,000,000 and the year before, $23,000,000,000.

The House Appropriations committee today approved a $259,109,700 appropriation bill for the work of four other agencies in the new fiscal year. This was made up as follows:

Justice department, $93,468,900; State department, $71,878,400; Commerce department $79,422,000, and the Judiciary $14,390,400.

STATE-JUSTICE OUTLAYS RISE

Two Departments Slated for $23,225,608 Increase.

Washington, March 13 (A. P.).—A $259,109,700 four-agency supply bill—more than half of it for the rapidly expanding State Department and a Department of Justice worried over juvenile crime—received the approval of the House Appropriations Committee today. Its overall total was $23,225,608 more than the same departments received for the current year.

For the twelve months beginning July 1, the bill will finance by these amounts the activities of the Department of Justice, $93,468,900; State Department, $71,878,400; Department of Commerce, $79,422,000, and the judiciary, $14,390,400. Debate on the measure is scheduled for tomorrow.

Much of the $21,384,562 increase voted the State Department, the committee said, is necessary because the department's activities "have become definitely intertwined with the economic and commercial activities of nations."

Subscribing generally to the department's program for expansion as outlined by Under-Secretary Joseph C. Grew, the committee noted that its estimated financial needs for the next fiscal year "are not greater than the requirements for waging war, as it is waged today, for less than eight hours."

"This country," the committee added, "must avail itself of every opportunity and every means to prevent a repetition of the present conflagration."

Mr. Grew had referred to the State Department as our first line of national defense.

Provision for War Crimes Body.

The committee approved a $60,000 item for expenses of United States participation in the United Nations War Crimes Commission after State Department officials voiced confidence that the commission would not fail to establish cases for punishment against Hitler, Goebbels and other high ranking Nazis. The bill includes $17,500 to set up an embassy in the Philippines.

The Justice Department's funds include a $320,000 increase in the anti-trust division's allotment. The committee explained that twenty-two cases held up at the request of the war agencies are expected to be released for trial. The committee voiced a hope that the division soon would be able to renew its drive against loan sharks and "clear up the entire loan shark business."

Singled out for commendation was the Federal Bureau of Investigation and its director, J. Edgar Hoover. The committee rejected a Budget Bureau recommendation for reductions that would have required the FBI to close five field offices and dispense with the services of 400 agents.

Girl Delinquents Decreasing.

In support of this action, the committee said Mr. Hoover presented a "depressing analysis" of crime conditions showing an increase, since 1941, of 134 per cent in the number of girls under 18 arrested and a 21 per cent increase in arrests of juvenile males.

To help the Department of Justice cope with a "serious" Mexican border situation, the committee approved an allotment of $21,000,000 for the Immigration and Naturalization Service. During the first seven months of the current fiscal year, it reported, approximately 42,000 law violators were apprehended on the border, many spotted from an autogiro acquired from the Army.

Approximately $7,800,000 was cut by the committee from budget estimates for the Commerce Department, of which Henry A. Wallace recently was named head. Almost all of the reduction was in funds earmarked for the Census Bureau.

Invasion Moneys Not U.S. Liability

Washington, March 13 (AP)—"Invasion currency" carried into European countries by the United States Army is strictly part of the money of those countries and they have the sole responsibility for redeeming it.

The Treasury made this clear today in the most comprehensive statement yet issued about invasion currency.

Many economists have wondered about the ultimate redemption of the Italian lire, French francs, German marks and other money—much of it printed in America—which Allied forces are using for payment of troops and other purposes.

The Treasury explained:

The United States Government did not issue any of these currencies. They are issued by authority of the lawful governments involved.

Issue Of German Currency

This is true even of the German currency, for under international law the military commander of conquered districts is the lawful government.

"It is perfectly clear that the United States has not obligated itself in any way to 'redeem' any invasion currency issued in a foreign land, and we have no 'secret understandings' that we will ever do so."

(This does not apply to yellow-seal dollars used in North Africa and Sicily, since they were United States currency.)

In the case of France, Belgium and the Netherlands, we are paying dollars to those governments in exchange for their currencies which we have used to pay troops and for "certain other strictly military expenditures not covered by reverse lend-lease."

Debit And Credit In Washington

The moment any disbursements such as troop pay are made in foreign currencies by Army or Navy finance officers, Washington is notified and the dollar amount is taken out of the War or Navy department's appropriation.

In the case of Italy, we are providing dollars to the Italian Government in exchange for the Italian currency we pay our troops—but for no other purposes. These payments are made with the understanding they will not prejudice any ultimate financial settlement with Italy. (Under the armistice terms, the United States is not required to furnish these dollars, but does it to help Italy in view of her status as a cobelligerent.)

Senate Votes 35 Millions For Public-Works Plans

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The Senate voted today to make $35,000,000 available to states, counties and cities for advance planning of postwar public works, after sharp disputes over what constitutes economy.

Senator Russell (D., Ga.) led a successful attack on a proposal by Senator LaFollette (Prog., Wis.) to raise the sum to $75,000,000, but lost a fight to require recipients of Federal money to match it dollar-for-dollar.

LaFollette's amendment was defeated by 42 to 31, while a motion to suspend the rules to consider the matching-provision proposal was turned back on a 43-to-28 roll-call vote.

AMUSEMENT PRICE CEILINGS URGED BY OPA

Bowles Asks Congress For Action To Control Admission Costs

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Chester Bowles, OPA chief, asked Congress today to help slap a price ceiling on admissions to motion pictures, stage shows, athletic events and "all other amusement activities."

They have been free of price control so far, Bowles told a news conference, because most of these things were not covered by the statutory definition of a commodity.

And the prices have been going up year after year, he asserted.

38½% Rise Charged

For example, he said, the cost of seeing a movie has increased, on the average, by about 38½ per cent from June, 1941, to last December.

The first thing to do is to keep admission prices from getting any higher than they are now, he said.

"We would then have to make studies later to determine whether there should be any rollback of prices."

Bowles wrote to Chairman Wagner (D., N.Y.) of the Senate Banking Committee about the motion-picture charges particularly. He expanded at his new conference to say controls should also be extended to other amusements.

Extension Considered

Wagner's committee is considering legislation to extend OPA another eighteen months beyond June 30.

Bowles said that people spent $1,500,000,000 on the movies last year, an important item in family budgets.

"In the absence of control," he told Wagner, "there is no reason to believe that these inflated prices will return to more reasonable levels or that they will not increase futher."

About one third of the movie-price increase could be attributed to increased taxes, the price administrator estimated. He also said that admission price control should be coupled with ceilings on the amount the picture houses have to pay for films. He said these film charges had gone up 25 to 30 per cent since the war started.

New York Comment

In New York city, whose two-score legitimate theaters, numerous large-capacity movie houses and other amusement places make its $100,000,000 entertainment industry the nation's largest, James F. Reilly, executive secretary of the League of New York Theaters, said he could not comment on Bowles's proposal until he had polled members of the organization.

A spokesman for the R.K.O. theater chain said that Bowles's statement regarding the 38.5 per cent rise in movie admissions since June, 1941, was "not accurate in our experience," adding that New York theaters generally had not increased prices by a very large percentage. He said he believed that tax increases accounted for most of the movie theater admission rise in the New York area.

Taxes Only Change

Mike Jacobs, president of the Twentieth Century Sporting Club which presents boxing shows at Madison Square Garden, said the price scale for boxing remained unchanged except for tax increases. The Garden also presents skating shows, hockey, basketball, rodeos, and many other types of indoor shows.

Ned Irish, acting president of the Garden, said Federal taxes represented most of the increase in hockey and basketball admission prices.

Billy Rose, theatrical and night-club producer, described the proposal of Bowles as "aimed at producing the illusion of activity," adding that while admission prices may have gone up 38.5 per cent, the cost of production in legitimate theaters "has gone up much closer to 100 per cent."

Little Change In Baltimore

Baltimore movie prices, except in a few isolated cases, have risen only ten per cent—the amount of last years' new Federal excise tax—since the war began, Lauritz Garman, vice president of the Motion Picture Theater Operators of Maryland, reported yesterday.

The ten per cent increase began a year go when the former ten per cent tax on admissions was doubled. He said there was no reason for numerous local complaints of price boosts, which an OPA spokesman eariler reported had been made to the OPA.

"Prices in New York and Philadelphia are much higher than in Baltimore," said Mr. Garman. "We decided long ago not to increase our prices unless a Federal tax had to be added. Of course, the theaters do not have to abide by our decision, but nearly every one has."

He said he foresaw no rise in prices during or after the war.

Practically Unchanged

In the local sports field admission prices have remained practically stationary during the war. What small increases there have been can be traced to Federal taxes.

One exception is found in the ice hockey sector where the Baltimore Ice Hockey Club increased prices this season when it moved into town in the wake of the Coast Guard outfit which operated here the previous winter.

Baseball admissions have remained the same as far back as anyone now connected with the club can recall. There have been increases in the amount of Federal taxes, and these, by governmental order, were passed on to the customers. But as far as the ball club is concerned its prices have remained the same.

Wrestling Rates The Same

Wrestling has maintained its regular admissions rates. In the boxing area prices generally fluctuate with the cost of bringing in good fighters. As guarantees must be increased for name battlers, the customers, especially ringside, are asked to pay more.

On the racing front prices also have remained unchanged. The Pimlico clubhouse price is $5 plus the tax, the grandstand $1.50 plus tax. It has been that way for years, according to Matt Daiger, secretary. The only difference is that the tax has increased on clubhouse tickets from 50 cents to $1, grandstand at the same rate. Mr. Daiger also pointed out that 40 years ago the programs sold for 10 cents, and still do.

SOVIETS GET GOODS VIA DARDANELLES

Opening Of Route Speeds Supplies, Crowley Reports

Washington, March 13 (AP)—The opening of the Dardanelles to Allied shipping has greatly speeded up the delivery of vital war supplies to Russia, Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator, reported today.

Crowley said the first ships carrying lend-lease cargoes from this country to Russia by way of a Black Sea port have reached their destination.

MAR 14 1945

In comparison with the Persian Gulf route, the route through the Mediterranean and thence to the Black Sea saves much time at sea, with an additional substantial saving of land mileage in the forwarding of cargoes.

Time-Saving Important

"Reduction of sailing time in this service is of particular importance now," Crowley said, "when the Soviet supply lines to the Eastern front are extended and speed in the delivery of raw materials to the Soviet war industry and to the Soviet troops is vital to the blows being struck at the weakened Nazi defenses."

Much of the raw material now moving to Russia under lend-lease is designed to improve the transportation system, which is feeding supplies to troops on the Eastern front.

15,770,000 Tons Shipped

Shipments in the 15 months ended January 31 included 1,278 locomotives, 27 Diesel electric locomotives, 8,340 flat cars, 1,000 dump cars, 100 tank cars and 10 heavy machinery cars.

Also more than one fourth of the steel sent to Russia since the beginning of lend-lease in October, 1941, is for use in the railroad rebuilding program. This has included 509,580 tons of rails.

Lend-lease shipments in December, 1944, and January, 1945, totaled 902,000 tons. This brought the total since lend-lease started to 15,770,000 tons.

Totals of lend-lease materials supplied by the United States to Russia through January 31 include 12,709 combat vehicles, 1,821 ordnance service vehicles, 355,059 trucks, 301,842 tons of explosives, 157,000 guns and mortars of various types, 701,400 tons of chemicals, 3,832,985 tons of foodstuffs, and nearly $1,000,000,000 worth of machinery and equipment.

FDR, Stettinius Confer With Security Delegates

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP) The San Francisco security conference may stretch for weeks beyond the expected month if the additional time is needed for all represented nations to air their views on world organization.

That this is expected by officials here was learned today as Secretary of State Stettinius began preliminary conferences with the American delegation to the meeting, which starts April 25.

To Work As Team

Stettinius predicted that while members of the group of which he is chairman would be free to pursue their "personal views and convictions," they would be able to "work as one team."

Six of the delegates met with Stettinius at the State department and were later received briefly by President Roosevelt at the White House. Only Secretary Hull, who is still recuperating from his long illness at Bethesda Naval hospital, was absent. Hull hopes that he will regain sufficient strength within the next month that he can go to San Francisco as senior advisor for the United States group.

Stettinius announced that there would be other meetings "from time to time," evidently with a view to reconciling possible conflicting elements within the delegation or at least producing understanding of the various viewpoints.

Comdr. Harold E. Stassen, former Minnesota governor and one of the Republican members of the delegation, said prior to the meeting that he believed the security organization "should have flexibility" to allow it to deal with future threats to the peace which cannot now be foreseen.

"I don't think we ought to set up a rigid organization at San Francisco," Stassen told a reporter. He indicated support, at least partially, for the view of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) also a member of the delegation, that the league designed to maintain peace should have authority to review some wartime political agreements.

Along with these developments, it is possible to report some of the aims of American officials responsible for planning a large part of the conference work:

It is intended to exclude from the conference all consideration of issues such as the disposition of territories and other settlements resulting directly from this war. On the positive side, the intention is to limit the work of the meeting to creation of machinery, along the lines of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, designed to preserve peace.

To Discuss Trusteeships

One piece of machinery which will be proposed which was not specifically provided for in the Dumbarton Oaks plan is an arrangement for setting up trusteeships to handle areas such as those mandated by the League of Nations to single nations.

Evidently there was some discussion of trusteeships among the Big Three representatives at Yalta. One idea held by authorities here is that the system might provide for joint control by two or more powers of an island or a dependent territory, formerly mandated, in which the controlling powers had some direct interest, such as a need for military base facilities.

The San Francisco conference, as conceived here, will be wide open for every country represented to be heard. Decisions probably will be made by majority vote.

The ultimate objective of the conference will be to produce a complete charter for a world organization which will take the form of a treaty, that, in the United States, will then be submitted to the Senate.

It is possible to report now on competent authority why San Francisco was chosen as the site of the meeting.

The choice of the city was made at Yalta by Stettinius with the approval of British Foreign Minister Eden and Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov. It was agreed that San Francisco would be most accessible to the representatives of New Zealand, Australia, the Soviet Union (by way of Siberia), China and many of the South American countries.

The domestic political significance of having a world gathering of this sort in a Western rather an Eastern city also was taken into account by Stettinius.

Japanese Beat Wermuth For Defending His Men

Freed Prisoner Tells of Foe's Brutality to Bataan Hero

CHICAGO, March 13 (AP).—A liberated prisoner of the Japanese said today that Captain Arthur Wermuth, "one-man army of Bataan" who is credited with killing 116 Japanese, was brutally beaten by the Japanese because he "stood up for his men" in prison camp and presumably was later transferred from the Philippines to Japan.

Private First Class Louis C. Zelis, of Chicago, a member of Captain Wermuth's detail who has since returned to Chicago, told of one day during the internment at Cabanatuan when some of his buddies, hardly able to stand because of the ravages of dysentery, were ordered to clean away a dung pile while barefooted. Some of the men, he said, were insane with disease.

"Without hesitation, Captain Wermuth complained to a Jap officer in a manner which could not be misunderstood," Private Zelis said. "I can see him yet, standing there, demanding we be treated decently.

"The officer pulled a bit of judo on Captain Wermuth, knocking him to the ground.

"Then, while we stood by helplessly, they kicked him in the stomach. They kicked him all over his body with their heavy boots.

"Unconscious, Captain Wermuth was taken to a hospital. He was there for some time.

"We lost our best friend when he left. We don't know what happened. One morning he was gone."

President Would Permit East Indians' Entry

Washington, March 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt today called for speedy enactment of legislation which would permit East Indians to enter the country and become citizens.

In a letter made public by Representative Dickstein (D., N.Y.), chairman of the House Immigration Committee, Mr. Roosevelt said he believed the setting up of an Indian immigration quota would "help us win the war and establish a secure peace."

Asserting that India has rendered great service in the war against the Axis, the President said:

"The present statutory provisions that discriminate against persons of East Indian descent provoke ill feeling, now serve no useful purpose, and are incongruous and inconsistent with the dignity of both peoples."

Wallace to Become Pilot To Learn About Aviation

Backs U. S. Airport Program at Senate Hearing

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP).—Henry A. Wallace, Secretary of Commerce, intends to demonstrate personally his department's interest in the post-war aviation industry by learning to fly.

Mr. Wallace announced this today to the Senate Commerce Committee in his first appearance before a Senate group since his appointment to the Cabinet post was confirmed after a rousing fight. He testified in support of an Administration program to spend several hundred millions of dollars for airports in the first ten post-war years.

"Just to indicate how seriously I think the (Commerce) Department will be interested in the aviation industry," Mr. Wallace said, "I intend to learn to fly just to find out what this private airplane business will be like."

He said he foresees an aviation after victory over Japan, with $1,700,000 annual revenue, and a "possible four hundred thousand workers."

CPA Gift To Willkie Building Fund Declined

New York, March 13 (AP) — The Communist Political Association's $5,000 donation to the Willkie Memorial Building fund has been declined by the board of directors of Freedom House.

Herbert Bayard Swope, treasurer of Freedom House, an organization devoted to world freedom, said in a letter to Earl Browder, CPA head:

"The Communist Political Association was the only donor to give their contribution a political implication and the only one of the thousands who have contributed to accompany the gift with a release to the press. We cannot accept this gift without accepting all of its implications."

Hull Improved; Wants To Go To Frisco

MAR 14 1945

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Cordell Hull's physical condition has greatly improved in the last few weeks; he now definitely hopes to attend the San Francisco United Nations Conference.

Whether he actually makes the trip, however, will depend on continued improvement during the next month.

Since last fall the health of the 73-year-old former Secretary of State has been one of the Capital's most closely guarded secrets.

Abed For Three Months

But today it is possible to report the following authorized information:

After being confined to his bed for three months, he is now able to sit up every morning in his sunny, seventeenth-floor apartment at the Bethesda Naval Hospital. Sometimes he also sits up during the afternoon.

Hull's weight is back to normal, about 170 pounds. His appetite is good.

Physicians To Decide

His doctors expect that he will be able to return to his hotel apartment within three weeks.

These physicians, whose orders Hull has followed to the letter during his long illness, will decide whether he is able to attend the conference, opening April 25.

Contrary to his own hopes, some of his close friends wish he would abandon thought of going. This, despite the fact that as "the father of the United Nations," participation would, for him, crown Hull's career. They fear the trip may cause a setback.

Hull is a member and senior adviser of the eight-man delegation headed by Secretary of State Stettinius. The group holds its first meeting today, but the former Secretary will not attend.

Resigned Last November 27

Hull resigned from the Cabinet November 27, 1944. He already had been ill for some time at the nearby naval hospital, suffering from overwork and a throat ailment.

He soon conquered the throat ailment but continued resting to regain his strength. His days have been quiet but by no means lacking in activity.

Mrs. Hull spends much of each day with him, driving out from their Washington residence. President Roosevelt is also a caller. It was he who termed Hull the father of the United Nations. Stettinius and Assistant Secretary James E. Dunn also visit frequently.

Sees His Mail

Other visitors are few, but Hull sees his mail, although until recently he has left largely to others the drafting of replies to hundreds of inquiries and well wishes received from over the world.

Hull's interest, almost to the exclusion of everything else, lies in the moves toward a world organization designed to preserve future peace.

Each day he receives copies of pamphlets and articles and official documents. Stettinius and occasionally Roosevelt "fill him in" on day-to-day developments. He reads a great deal—newspapers and books—and he listens to news broadcasts.

Moscow Trip Recalled

There was mild surprise in some Washington quarters when, in announcing the United States delegation to the United Nations conference, Roosevelt listed Hull as senior adviser. Many persons doubted that he would be up and about by then.

But his old friends recalled the circumstances of his trip to Moscow for the meeting of foreign ministers in 1943. Hull never had flown. Two physicians went along and attendants were solicitous for his every comfort and care. Hull remained outwardly serene.

"All the time I was getting ready," he chuckled later, "I would just say to myself: 'On to Moscow! On to Moscow!'"

New Hampshire Voters Favor Dumbarton Oaks Peace Plan

CONCORD, N. H., March 13—(AP) Unanimous approval of the Dumbarton Oaks postwar peace plan was voted today by the first of the 225 New Hampshire communities to report on their tackling this question of international relations.

Morning sessions were held by the citizens of Swansea and Hancock, small communities. All the voters backed the peace proposal.

Most of the other towns were to take up the subject later.

Ordinarily concerned only with their own municipal problems, the town meetings, maintained in this section almost identically in form with those of the early Colonial days, were officially requested by the state legislature this year to vote on this question at the annual gatherings:

Should the citizens "support U.S. membership in a general system of international cooperation, such as that proposed at the Dumbarton Oaks conference, having police power to maintain the peace of the world?"

MAR 14 1945

The outcome of the voting will be reported to the granite state's Congressional delegation.

The balloting recalled that in 1942 Massachusetts by a 202,603 to 67,691 vote favored a proposition which requested the President and Congress to call a convention of representatives of all free peoples to frame a Federal constitution under which they could unite in a democratic world government.

Observers called the New Hampshire voting, the first popular expression on the Dumbarton Oaks plan in any of the United Nations since the Yalta conference.

KRUEGER LIKELY ARMY GROUP HEAD

One Of 9 New Full Generals Due For Higher Post

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Selection of Lieut. Gen. Walter Krueger for promotion to the four-star rank stirred speculation today that he is slated for a bigger job—possibly as an army group commander.

The German-born leader, of the 6th Army in the Philippines was the only army commander among nine lieutenant generals nominated today by President Roosevelt for the temporary rank of full general.

The list, however, included the three army group commanders in the European and Mediterranean theaters:

Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, of the 12th.

Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, of the 6th.

Lieut. Gen. Mark Clark, of the 5th.

Comes Through The Ranks

Krueger's elevation suggested that he is being readied for a comparable post and that a new army group either has or will be created in the Southwest Pacific. At present, there are at least two armies but no army group in that theater, where General MacArthur is the supreme commander.

Krueger has come up through the ranks to attain his present position. He enlisted during the Spanish-American War and was appointed a second lieutenant in 1901. He served in France during the first World War.

Will Give Army 11 Generals

In addition to Krueger and the three army group commanders, the other lieutenant generals named for promotion included:

Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the Army Service Forces.

Thomas T. Handy, deputy chief of staff.

Joseph T. McNarney, deputy supreme Allied commander in the Mediterranean theater.

Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States Strategic Air Force in Europe.

George C. Kenney, commander of the Far East Air Force.

Senate approval of the nominations will give the Army eleven four-star generals in active service, aside from four five-star generals of the Army. The two present four-star generals are Joseph W. Stilwell, chief of the Army Ground Forces, and Malin Craig, chairman of the Secretary of War's Personnel Board.

Stassen Urges Flexible Security Organization

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Commander Harold E. Stassen said today the security organization expected to be formed at San Francisco must be flexible enough to deal with future peace threats now unforeseen.

Here to attend a meeting of the American delegation to the April conference the former Minnesota Governor indicated that he is prepared to support, at least in part, the contention of Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) that the peace-keeping league must have authority to review some wartime political agreements.

Would Avoid Perpetual Turmoil

"I don't think we ought to set up a rigid organization at San Francisco," Stassen said. "It should have flexibility that will permit it to expand its actions as developments warrant."

He said he feels it would be impractical to invite review by the proposed league of every agreement that is being made. To do that, he said, would keep nations in perpetual turmoil over controversial issues.

Stettinius To See F. D. R.

But the authority ought to be there, Stassen continued, to go into any agreements whose maintenance might seem likely to bring on another war.

Secretary of State Stettinius, as chairman, called the American delegates to a meeting today to discuss preliminary plans and to meet with President Roosevelt at the White House.

Missing from the eight-member group will be former Secretary of State Hull, who is in Naval Hospital.

The State Department is understood to have assembled for study by the delegates background data not only on the results of the Dumbarton Oaks preliminary meeting but on Big Three security decisions made at Yalta.

To Report On Mexico

Stettinius also was prepared to report on the Mexico City conference, which Chairman Connally (D., Texas) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee told the chamber yesterday placed enforcement of the Monroe Doctrine on a many-nations basis.

Connally and Senator Austin (R., Vt.) called attention to the fact that the Senate now has members participating actively in conferences at which security agreements are reached. Connally and Austin served as advisers at Mexico City. Connally and Vandenberg were named San Francisco delegates.

PRESIDENT NAMES 9 FOR FULL GENERAL

Washington, March 13 (A. P.).—Nine lieutenant-generals were nominated by President Roosevelt today to be full generals in the United States Army. They are:

Joseph T. McNarney, Supreme Deputy Allied Commander, Mediterranean theater.

Omar N. Bradley, commanding general, Twelfth Army Group, western front in Europe.

Carl Spaatz, commanding general, United States Strategic Air Force in Europe.

George C. Kenney, commanding general, Far East Air Forces.

Mark W. Clark, commanding general, Fifteenth Army Group, in Italy.

Walter Krueger, commanding general, Sixth Army, Philippines.

Brehon B. Somervell, commanding general, Army Service Forces.

Jacob L. Devers, commanding general, Sixth Army Group, European theater.

Thomas T. Handy, Deputy Chief of Staff, United States Army.

Elevation of the nine would give the Army eleven four-star generals in active service. The others are Gens. Joseph W. Stilwell, Chief of Army Ground Forces, and Malin Craig, chairman of the Secretary of War's Personnel Board. In addition, the Army has four five-star generals: Marshall, Arnold, MacArthur and Eisenhower.

War Prisoners Must Eat Meat Substitutes Now

Somervell Orders an End to Rations Like Those of Army

WASHINGTON, March 13 (AP).—Prisoners of war, like civilians, will eat substitutes for butter, meat, chicken and other foods that are scarce.

Revision of menus for prisoners in this country and overseas has been ordered by the Army Service Forces, it was learned, as a result of reports indicating "that the meat supply and other food reserves are rapidly being exhausted by the increasing demands of our armed forces overseas."

Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell, commanding the A. S. F., directed commanders of prison camps to "make every effort" to put on prisoner-of-war menus such foods as salted fish, eggs, spaghetti, macaroni, beans and cold meat cuts as replacements for beef, pork, ham, lamb, bacon, chicken and other meats virtually unobtainable at markets.

Margarin will be substituted for butter, syrup for sugar in cooking and other foods will be served in place of canned fruits and vegetables, preserves, jellies and similar items in short supply.

In brief, the memorandum said, the prisoner-of-war menus will be reorganized to "use as little as possible of those items now rationed by the Office of Price Administration."

The menus, however, will comply with terms of the Geneva convention stipulating that prisoners shall receive food equal in quality and quantity to that served American troops in base camps. The memorandum noted that equal food does not necessarily mean identical items.

Fancy names on menus for prisoners, as well as for soldiers, will also be dropped. Boiled potatoes will be simply that instead of parsley potatoes, and ground meat served in gravy or sauce will no longer carry the title "a la king."

FDR Extolls Relations Between U.S. and Canada

WASHINGTON, March 13—(AP) International cooperation, night baseball and New York politics took the play at President Roosevelt's news conference today.

The President once more held up as an example to the world the friendly relations between the United States and Canada. He said he didn't see why big league baseball should not continue as long as it doesn't utilize perfectly healthy men who could be more useful in the war effort. Questions about New York city and state politics brought only negative replies.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, White House guest for several days, attended the news conference. He sat behind the olive-green suited President, who took a few sips of water and started the conference off by reading a 200-word joint statement on the United States-Canadian talks.

The two agreed that "bold and expansive" action should be taken by the two countries to solve post-war trade questions with a view to reducing barriers to exchange of goods.

The statement also stressed that relations between the two countries "are as firm and friendly as ever" and said the two had surveyed questions arising out of the Yalta conference and likely to come up at next month's San Francisco gathering.

Elaborating after he finished reading the statement the President said American-Canadian relations of the past ten years should be an example to the world of how two countries can get along to their mutual benefit.

White-haired James L. Wright of The Buffalo Evening News wanted to know whether the St. Lawrence waterway had come up in the Canadian conversations. The President replied it had not but added that he and the Prime Minister have the same point of view: that the St. Lawrence project would be a great asset and the quicker it is built the better.

Buffalo papers please copy, Mr. Roosevelt said in a smiling aside to Wright, to which Wright promptly retorted, "You copy from us." (Wright's paper is opposed to the St. Lawrence seaway).

Replying to other questions, Mr. Roosevelt said he had discussed earlier in the day with the American delegation to San Francisco only the physical arrangements for that meeting. It was agreed, he said, that the conference will be open to the press and radio as at the Mexico City inter-American conference just concluded.

Another reporter wanted to know how governmental developments in Romania "square with the Yalta declaration." That appeared too hot for the President and he tossed it over his left shoulder to the State department.

Mr. Roosevelt described as a common agreement—with a victory for nobody—the decision reached by the Big Four on the voting procedure in the proposed world security council. If anyone has a better idea he would be glad to consider it, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt, asked whether Austria would be treated differently from Germany at the war's end, declared an Allied council in Vienna would look after that. He said Italy appeared to be more satisfied with a new agreement which gives Italy more internal management.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had not heard of a reported move to launch Senator Mead (D-N. Y.) for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in New York. When asked whether Brig. Gen. William O'Dwyer, Brooklyn Democratic leader, would run for mayor of New York city with presidential support, the President said merely that one newspaper was right and one was wrong in printing stories on O'Dwyer. He would not say which one was right.

UNION ATTACKED BY GMC OFFICIAL

DETROIT, March 13 — (AP) A spokesman for General Motors corporation today accused officers of the United Automobile workers (CIO) union with conducting "hate management" campaigns.

The accusation was made by H. W. Anderson, the corporation's vice-president in charge of personnel, at the closing session of a Senate War Investigating subcommittee's first Detroit hearings.

At the recess, Senator James M. Mead (D-NY) said the hearings may be resumed later in Detroit or Washington.

Also testifying at the final session were a number of leaders of the forge and foundry industry in the Detroit area, including R. J. Goldie, executive vice-president of the Timken Detroit Axle company, and spokesmen for the Ford Motor company and the Chevrolet Detroit forge plant.

The forge and foundry men agreed there was unused capacity in most Detroit area plants. In the case of the Ford Motor company, R. H. McCaroll, the company's chief engineer, said only 26 per cent of the foundry capacity was used during 1944 because the plant was not adapted to the types of work the government required.

William J. Scott, plant manager of the Chevrolet Detroit forge unit of General Motors, denied there was idle capacity in his plant. A union spokesman testified last Saturday a new shell plant recently was placed in operation in St. Louis although capacity to produce the same shells was idle here.

Anderson denied labor charges that industry was seeking to weaken unions and that plant executives had no authority to settle grievances. He asserted that "small groups of militant people, sometimes prompted by political aspirations for advancement within their own organization, have succeeded in making resistance to working a little harder."

Anderson presented exhibits of what he said were "scurrilous attacks against General Motors management by official publications of local unions."

MINE OWNERS BAN ROYALTY

Also Oppose Dropping Of North-South Differential

Washington, March 13 (AP)—Bituminous coal operators plainly indicated tonight they intend never to agree to John L. Lewis's $60,000,000 royalty demand or to elimination of the North-South wage differential.

The coal producers, whose contract with Lewis's United Mine Workers expires March 31, recessed the contract negotiations with Lewis to figure out how far they would go on his eighteen demands for a new contract.

400,000 Miners Affected

The precise stand of the operators on the balance of the demands still was a matter of speculation, but their rejection of the royalty and geographical-differential items was regarded as certain after two days of consultation.

None of the operators liked the 10-cent per ton royalty asked by Lewis, by which he said he would establish a health and rehabilitation service for the "economic protection" of the 400,000 miners.

Likewise, the proposed elimination of the geographical differential, a sore point with the Southern operators, was regarded as impossible of attainment.

To Answer Other Demands

This is because the Southern producers, who represent about one third of the bituminous production, are fundamentally opposed to it and have a tacit understanding with their colleagues from other sections of the country by which they could veto any such proposal.

The operators' answers to the other sixteen demands are to be handed to Lewis tomorrow, when the negotiations will resume.

FILM BIG NAMES SEEK STRIKE END

Writers, Actors, Producers Join To Settle Movie Tieup

MAR 14 1945

Hollywood, March 13 (AP)—Big names in Hollywood acted today to bring an end to the movie industry strike which entered its second day with both strikers and studios claiming gains.

Noted representatives of the three groups, screen writers, directors and actors guilds—affiliated with neither side in the union jurisdictional dispute—will meet later today in an effort to seek a truce.

Today the studios claimed they had stepped up production of pictures to 30 sets, as compared with eight yesterday.

15,000 Idle

Herbert Sorrel, spokesman for the strikers, said more had joined the walkout today and that "not a wheel will be turning in the studios by the end of the week."

Tonight the 2,600 members of the AFL Carpenters Local, nonmembers of the studio unions' conference, voted to support the walkout and volunteered for picket duty.

This increased to about 17,500 the number of idle.

The joint Guild "brain committee" said it is "hoping to decide upon some approach to the warring parties."

The committee's statement added that it hoped "to bring about at least an interim agreement which will halt the strike until the issues can be settled formally by the National Labor Relations Board."

Rivalry Precipitated Strike

Once agreed on an "approach," the special committee will lay its proposals before union and producer leaders possibly tomorrow.

The committee included President George Murphy, Alan Hale and Dorothy Tree, of the Actors Guild; President John Cromwell, Delmar Daves and Lewis Milestone, of the directors, and Hu Butler, Ring Lardner, Jr., Will Pomerance and Oliver H. P. G rett, of the writers.

Pickets Remained At Gates

The conference of studio union called the walkout yesterday. The rival International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and the conference seek recognition as the bargaining agent for 70-odd set decorators. It was this rivalry which precipitated the strike.

Pickets from the nine unions comprising the conference of studio groups remained at all major studio gates, but in contrast to yesterday's complete shutdown of half of Hollywood's big plants, managements said today that pictures were in production on every lot.

Union men quickly pointed out that when use of present sets is finished, no more will be built because of the walkout of the designers and decorators.

The studio-issued boxscore of picture production:

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 3; R.K.O., 3; Paramount, 5; Universal, 4; Columbia, 3; Twentieth Century-Fox, 5; Warner Brothers, 4; Republic, 3.

Prospects Not Bright

Prospects for an early settlement were none too bright, with all factions apparently refusing to back down. And there were indications that the contest between the studio conference unions and the IATSE might grow more bitter.

Sorrel, president of the conference, charged that the IATSE was supplying electricians to operate the generators replacing electricians affiliated with his group. Shutdown of some generators abruptly halted work in several studios yesterday. Today many of these generators were working again.

The IATSE admitted its men were operating the generators, adding that it had made a no-strike pledge and intended to keep it.

Have Petitions Pending

Both the War Labor Board and the National Labor Relations Board have petitions pending in the controversy. The WLB is slated to act on one petition—for a review of the case filed by the IATSE after a WLB arbitrator last February ruled in favor of the Painters Union affiliate of the conference.

Producers, meanwhile, appealed to the NLRB to decide which union had jurisdiction over the decorators.

Sorrel telegraphed George W. Taylor, chairman of the WLB, today stating: "The producers have refused to recognize the WLB decision . . . We do not object to the producers appealing, even to the Supreme Court, but we do insist that they comply with the award pending such appeal. . . ."

Isle-Hopping Flight From Japs Told

Berkeley, Cal., March 13 (AP)—A young American couple and their three children managed to elude pursuing Japanese for three years in the Philippines by fleeing from island to island.

Mrs. Betty de Carbonal, who recently returned to the United States with the children after rescue by Gen Douglas MacArthur's forces, related their experiences here yesterday.

She said they built 70 different "homes," one-room affairs of the thatch variety and lived on monkey meat, rice and cocoanuts. She taught the two older children, Mimi, 6½, and Michael, 5, to read and write by tracing in the sand. Their baby was a month old when they started.

Her husband, William Carbonal, has remained in the Pacific as a navy lieutenant.

Fled In Launch

Mrs. de Carbonal was the daughter of a Manila banker, and her husband, a University of California graduate, was a miner.

They were on tiny Busuanga Island when war came.

"We heard the Japs were going to land," Mrs. de Carbonal said. "We put a little stock of food and medicine in a launch and reached bigger Palawan Island despite the presence of Jap destroyers."

Chased By Scouts

The Japanese learned where they landed and sent scouts out after them. "Bamboo telegraph" forewarned them as they fled through jungles and swamps.

"I'd carry Susan—she was only about a month old then—and Bill would carry the bedroll and medicine kit.

"We never stayed long in one place."

One of their narrowest escapes was when a Japanese plane dropped a hand grenade but missed their boat as they were fleeing from one island to another.

BACKS UP TEN ARMY OFFICERS

Gen. Bissell Defends Men Accused of Red Links.

Washington, March 13 (A. P.)—The chief of Army Intelligence declared today that ten Army officers accused in newspaper articles of communist affiliations are now "actually engaged in upholding the United States by force."

Eight of the ten have been in combat overseas, Major-Gen Clayton Bissell told an investigating House military subcommittee.

Saying that several have received the Purple Heart for wounds in action, one twice, Gen-Bissell said the War Department was satisfied of their loyalty despite any possible former connection with the Communist party.

He read a resume of the military records of the officers and a number of enlisted men, including Corporal Dashiell Hammett, well-known author of mystery thrillers. Even if any one of them "had been inclined to preach subsersive theories" to troops, superior officers would have reported their activities and proper action taken, he asserted.

In response to demands by Representative Elston (R.-Ohio) for military intelligence reports on the men, Gen. Bissell produced a letter from Secretary of War Stimson saying that such records are confidential.

These were the names Gen. Bissell read to the committee as "men whose patriotism and loyalty has been attacked while they are not here to defend themselves:"

Major Edward Newhouse, First Lieuts. Isadore J. Trauber, Richard L. Criley, Irving Goff, Richard Kenney, Vincent Lossowski and Harry Schoenberg, Second Lieuts. Gerald Cook, Irving Fajaus and Milton Wolff, Sergeants William P. Gandell and Walter Bernstein, Corporal Hammett, Private Lyle Dowling and a John Lord from San Francisco.

Gen. Bissell said apparently there was no such person as Lord in the Army.

Late For Wedding, Kelly Again Keeps General Waiting

Phenix City, Ala., March 13 (AP)—Sergt. Charles E. Kelly—more quickly recognized as Commando—kept a general waiting yesterday—again.

But it was his—Commando's—wedding day. And also a year, to a day, since the Congressional Medal was bestowed on him for killing 40 Germans in 20 minutes.

20 Minutes Late

Commando Kelly and Miss May Frances Boish, of Pittsburgh, were exactly 20 minutes late to their wedding. Among those waiting was Maj. Gen. Fred L. Walker.

Walker is the commandant of the infantry school at near-by Fort Benning, where Kelly has been stationed since his return from overseas.

He is also the same general who last December was ready to pin the British Military Medal on Kelly—who, ten minutes before ceremony, was found in his quarters, stripped to the waist, mopping the floor, oblivious to the approaching fanfare.

Wed At Courthouse

After the civil ceremony, performed at the Russell County Courthouse here by Probate Judge C. B. Gullatt, Jr., the Kellys eluded photographers and newsmen, who had followed them for several days.

"We've found a room and I may stay here about 30 days," said the bride, "but nobody is going to find out where."

Their romance began in their native Pittsburgh soon after Kelly returned from overseas.

Jap Factory Plans Seized Here

100 Tons of Documents, With Blueprints, Help Our Air Forces Pick Key Targets.

Washington, March 13 (A. P.).—From 100 tons of Japanese documents seized in a New York warehouse have come some of the principal leads to key industrial targets in the air war on Japan.

This was disclosed in House Appropriations Committee testimony made public today.

Assistant Attorney-General Herbert Wechsler testified that data gleaned from the secret file of such Japanese business firms as the Mitsui and Mitsubishi trading companies with New York offices were utilized to build models to familiarize bomber pilots with the enemy's chief war production facilities.

"I think I can safely say that this information has played an important part in the bombing of Japan since the war started and continues to do so today," Mr. Wechsler told the committee.

Factory Blueprints Seized.

Department of Justice agents worked almost two years piecing scattered facts into a picture telling the armed forces "what it would be most important to destroy." They found some actual factory blueprints, but the job was tougher where only shipping invoices were available to show types and destinations of more than half a billion dollars' worth of tools, machinery and other manufacturing equipment acquired by Japan.

"That information was not available even to military intelligence in the complete way in which we were able to provide on the basis of this data," Mr. Wechsler asserted.

Department of Justice experts recently began culling through another big batch of Japanese documents in San Francisco, the witness said.

THE GERMANS WERE SAID TO BE PUTTING UP THEIR HARDEST FIGHT ON THE NORTHERN END, AT THE NEAREST APPROACH TO THE RUHR. RESISTANCE IN THE CENTER WAS DESCRIBED AS MODERATE AND ON THE SOUTH LIGHT. THE BRIDGEHEAD WAS NEARLY SIX MILES DEEP AT POINTS.

WHILE ALLIED CORRESPONDENTS STILL WERE OPERATING UNDER A NEWS DIMOUT IN ORDER TO GIVE THE ENEMY AS LITTLE INFORMATION AS POSSIBLE, ERLIN COMMENTATORS DESCRIBED THE FIGHTING IN CONSIDERABLE DETAIL. ONE SAID:

"THE AMERICANS SHIFTED THEIR OFFENSIVE FOCAL POINT INTO THE NORTHERN SECTOR OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, LAUNCHING STRONG TANK-SUPPORTED ATTACKS FROM THE HONNEF AREA AGAINST GERMAN HIGH POSITIONS. DESPITE HEAVY LOSSES, THE AMERICANS ATTACKED REPEATEDLY AND HAND-TO-HAND FIGHTING ENSUED AT SEVERAL PLACES.

ACROSS THE RHINE, MARCH 13-(AP)-MEASURING ADVANCES IN YARDS AGAINST STIFFENING ENEMY OPPOSITION, TROOPS OF LT.-GEN.COURTNEY H. HODGES' FIRST ARMY SLOWLY EXPANDED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD TODAY WHILE FIGHTING OFF NUMEROUS SMALL ENEMY COUNTERATTACKS SUPPORTED BY TANKS.

PUSHING EASTWARD, THE AMERICANS EDGED TO WITHIN TWO MILES OF THE GREAT NORTH-SOUTH AUTOBAHN LINKING THE RUHR AND FRANKFURT. THE DAY'S ADVANCES, WHILE NOT GREAT IN YARDAGE, DROVE THE ENEMY ARTILLERY BACK AND PLACED THE DOUGHBOYS ON IMPORTANT HIGH GROUND FROM WHICH THE ENEMY HAD HAD DIRECT OBSERVATION ON THE REMAGEN BRIDGE AND A PONTOON BRIDGE ACROSS WHICH TROOPS AND SUPPLIES WERE FLOWING INTO THE BRIDGEHEAD.

WHILE ENEMY PLANES ATTACKED AND ARTILLERY BLASTED AT THE CROSSING SITE, ENGINEERS PUT A PONTOON STRUCTURE ACROSS THE RHINE, THUS GIVING THE FIRST ARMY A SECONDARY AND HIGHLY-IMPORTANT BRIDGEHEAD LINK.

WITH TWO LIFELINES STRETCHING FROM THE WEST TO EAST BANK OF THE RHINE, THE DANGER OF THE 1,200-FOOT LUDENDORF RAIL-HIGHWAY BRIDGE BEING KNOCKED OUT WAS NOT SO IMPORTANT AS DURING THOSE FIRST FEW DAYS OF THE CROSSING OPERATION.

LOSS OF HIGH GROUND NEAR HOENNINGEN AND HONNEF ON THE SOUTH AND NORTH FLANKS OF THE BRIDGEHEAD DEPRIVED THE GERMANS OF VALUABLE OBSERVATION HILLS.

BUT THE GERMANS DID NOT YIELD WITHOUT A FIGHT, AND AS USUAL THEY THREW IN NUMEROUS SMALL COUNTERATTACKS.

THEIR COUNTERATTACKS WERE COSTLY. AT 9 A.M. TODAY THE NAZIS ATTACKED NEAR HARGARTEN WITH INFANTRY AND SIX TANKS. THE BATTLE WAS BRIEF AND FURIOUS, BUT WHEN IT ENDED FOUR OF THE SIX TANKS UNQUESTIONABLY HAD BEEN KNOCKED OUT, AND THE OTHER TWO WERE STATIONARY ON THE BATTLEFIELD.

IN ONE COUNTERATTACK NEAR HONNINGEN THE GERMANS DROVE THE DOUGHBOYS BACK 400 YARDS, BUT THIS GROUND WAS RESTORED IN A SHARP, FURIOUS MELEE. BESIDES KNOCKING OUT SIX ENEMY TANKS THE YANKS CAPTURED SIX MOTOR TRANSPORTS, FOUR 75 MM GUNS AND THREE SELF-PROPELLED WEAPONS.

THESE FIGURES ARE INDICATIVE OF THE BITTERNESS OF THE FIGHTING. THERE WERE NO SWEEPING GAINS IN ANY SECTOR OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, BUT THE GAINS IN YARDAGE WERE OF TREMENDOUS VALUE AT THIS STAGE OF OPERATIONS BECAUSE THEY DEPRIVED THE GERMANS OF OBSERVATION AND GAVE THE FIRST ARMY ELBOW ROOM.

ONE SIGNIFICANT FACT DURING THE DAY WAS THAT BETWEEN THE HOURS OF 9 A.M. AND 4 P.M. THERE WAS NO ARTILLERY FIRE ON THE BRIDGEHEAD -- THE FIRST LULL OF THIS KIND SINCE THE DOUBOYS SEIZED THE BRIDGE. THIS WAS EVIDENCE THAT THE GERMANS NOW HAVE BEEN FORCED TO PULL BACK THEIR ARTILLERY TO NEW LOCATIONS IN FEAR OF HAVING THEIR GUN POSITIONS OVERRUN.

IT WAS ESTIMATED THAT SINCE THE BRIDGE WAS SEIZED MARCH 7 THE GERMANS HAVE FIRED AN AVERAGE OF ABOUT 20 ROUNDS OF ARTILLERY PER HOUR ON THE BRIDGEHEAD--MOST OF IT DIRECTED AT THE BRIDGE ITSELF. ARTILLERY OFFICERS SAID THIS COULD NOT BE CONSIDERED A HEAVY BARRAGE AND WAS ADDITIONAL PROOF OF THE COMPLETE SURPRISE ACHIEVED BY THE CROSSING.

THE BRIDGE HAS BEEN HIT SEVERAL TIMES, BUT THERE HAS BEEN NO SEVERE DAMAGE. TRAFFIC STILL FLOWS TO THE EAST.

IN THEIR EFFORTS TO SMASH THE BRIDGE THE GERMANS HAVE SENT OVER STUKAS, JUNKERS 88S, MESSERSCHMITTS AND JET-PROPELLED PLANES IN A SERIES OF ATTACKS. NONE HAS SUCCEEDED.

DURING THE PAST SIX DAYS A TOTAL OF 160 PLANES MADE PASSES AT THE BRIDE. ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS CLAIM THEY SHOT DOWN 74 PLANES AND HAD 20 PROBABLES.

ANDERNACH, GERMANY, MARCH 13-(AP)-A STRANGE KIND OF WAR SETTLED OVER THIS RHINE TOWN OF 15,000 TODAY.

AMERICAN TROOPS AND VEHICLES MOVED FREELY THROUGH THE STREETS IN PLAIN VIEW OF THE TERRACED VINE-COVERED SLOPES ON THE EAST BANK, YET NOT A SHOT CAME FROM THE GERMAN TROOPS SUPPOSED TO BE THERE.

NO MOVEMENT COULD BE OBSERVED ON THE FAR SIDE OF THE RIVER EXCEPT FOR WHITE FLAGS FLAPPING FROM SCATTERED BUILDINGS AT THE WATER'S EDGE.

ANDERNACH, SCARCELY TOUCHED BY THE WAR, DISPLAYED ALMOST A FESTIVE SPIRIT. DURING THE HOURS THEY WERE PERMITTED ON THE STREETS, CIVILIANS WENT ABOUT THEIR BUSINESS WITHOUT CONCERN. SMOKE POURED FROM NUMEROUS CHIMNEYS OF FACTORIES, WHICH APPEARED TO BE OPERATING AS USUAL.

WITH U.S. NINTH ARMY IN GERMANY, MARCH 13-(AP)-FIELD MARSHAL VON RUNDSTEDT'S DECEMBER BREAKTHROUGH IN THE ARDENNES WAS PLANNED IN A FORMER REFORM SCHOOL NEAR KREFELD, QUESTIONING OF INHABITANTS OF THE VICINITY DISCLOSED TODAY.

THE SITE WAS A RAMBLING SERIES OF BUILDINGS DOMINATED BY ONE LARGE WOODEN SCHOOLHOUSE AND SURROUNDED BY BARBED WIRE FENCE. ORIGINALLY A REFORM SCHOOL, LATER IT WAS USED TO HOUSE SLAVE LABOR IN THE KREFELD AREA AND LAST SEPTEMBER WAS CONVERTED INTO THE HEADQUARTERS OF FIELD MARSHAL WALTHER VON MODEL.

RESIDENTS OF THE SECTION SAID THAT ON DEC. 12 VON MODEL REMOVED ALL HIS STAFF OFFICERS AND MOST CIVILIANS WHO HAD CLOSE CONTACT WITH THE HEADQUARTERS KEEPING AROUND ONLY A FEW NAZI WOUNDED TO DISGUISE THE SITE AS A CONVALESCENT HOME.

THEN HITLER, HIMMLER, GOEBBELS AND VON RUNDSTEDT VISITED THIS SECRET HEADQUARTERS. TWO DAYS BEFORE THE ARDENNES OFFENSIVE BEGAN VON MODEL SUDDENLY MOVED HIS HEADQUARTERS AT NIGHT. EVERYTHING WHICH WOULD INDICATE THE BUILDINGS HAD BEEN USED AS A HEADQUARTERS WAS DESTROYED OR REMOVED.

THE KREFELD AREA WAS OVERRUN BY THE SECOND DIVISION OF THE NINTH ARMY EARLY IN FEBRUARY.

WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY, MARCH 3-(AP)-AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE DISCOVERED A COAL MINE WHICH HAS ENTRIES FROM BOTH SIDES OF THE RHINE RIVER, BUT LT. GEN. WILLIAM H. SIMPSON SAYS HE HAS NO INTENTION OF USING IT AS A TUNNEL.

THE 84TH DIVISION CAPTURED THE MINE SHAFT SOUTH OF HOMBERG DURING ITS DASH FROM THE ROER RIVER. THE SHAFT IS 800 FEET DEEP AND LEADS TO PASSAGEWAYS WHICH ARE SAID TO CROSS UNDER THE RIVER AND OPEN ON TO A SHAFT ON THE OTHER SIDE.

HOWEVER, MINERS SAY THE NAZIS HAVE PLANTED DEMOLITIONS IN THE MINE AND HAVE BLOCKED SOME SECTIONS WITH STEEL DOORS. IN ANY CASE MACHINE-GUNS PRESUMABLY COULD COMMAND THE MINE MOUTH ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RIVER.

GERMAN MINERS STILL WORKING HERE SAY AT LEAST 600 PERSONS WERE EVACUATED TO THE EAST SIDE OF THE RHINE THROUGH THIS SHAFT AFTER AMERICAN TROOPS BEGAN THEIR SWEEP TO THE RIVER.

THEY TOLD OF A RECENT FIGHT HERE WHEN A GERMAN PATROL FROM THE EAST SIDE OF THE RIVER CAPTURED GERMAN MINERS FROM THE WEST SIDE. THE BOSS OF THE MINERS SLUGGED A NAZI OFFICER IN THE FACE WITH HIS LAMP AND THE OTHER MINERS ALL BROKE THEIR LAMPS AND RAN.

COLOGNE, MARCH 13-(AP)-THOUSANDS OF COLOGNE RESIDENTS, EMERGING FROM CELLARS FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE AMERICAN OCCUPATION OF THIS RHINE RIVER CITY, MILL AROUND ALLIED MILITARY GOVERNMENT HEADQUARTERS IN SEARCH OF INFORMATION.

FROM LOUDSPEAKERS THEY LEARN OF A 6 P.M. TO 7 A.M. CURFEW, THAT THEY MUST SURRENDER ALL ARMS, THAT GERMAN SERVICE MEN--MANY OF WHOM ARE BELIEVED TO HAVE DISCARDED UNIFORMS FOR CIVILIAN CLOTHES--MUST REPORT AND THAT ALL LOOTING MUST CEASE.

WITH A U.S. HEAVY ARTILLERY BATTERY FIRING ON ESSEN, MARCH 12-(DELAYED)-(AP)-LACK OF GERMAN COUNTERBATTERY FIRE SINCE THE U.S. NINTH ARMY ARTILLERY BEGAN RAKING THE RUHR VALLEY TWO DAYS AGO HAS AMERICAN OFFICERS GUESSING.

GERMANS ACROSS THE RHINE ARE KNOWN TO HAVE 380 MILLIMETER RAILROAD GUNS, BECAUSE THEY HAVE USED THEM INTERMITTENTLY. THEY HAVEN'T RUN OUT OF OTHER ARTILLERY, EITHER, AS IS EVIDENCED BY THE POINT-BLANK FIRE THEIR CANNONEERS POURED INTO AMERICAN TROOPS ATTACKING THE WESEL POCKET LAST WEEK.

BUT THE FACT REMAINS THERE HAS BEEN NO COUNTERBATTERY FIRE AND VERY LITTLE BOMBING OF LT.GEN.WILLIAM H.SIMPSON'S HIGH-POWERED GUNS THAT STARTED BOMBARDING THE KRUPP WORKS AT ESSEN AND OTHER RUHR TARGETS SATURDAY.

THIS HAS LED ARTILLERY OFFICERS TO DRAW TWO CONCLUSIONS: (1) THE GERMANS MAY HAVE DRAWN THEIR HEAVY STUFF BACK SO FAR TO SAVE IT FROM POSSIBLY BEING OVERRUN BY RAMPAGING DOUGHBOYS THAT IT IS OUT OF RANGE, OR (2) THEY MAY BE SAVING AMMUNITION FOR THE DAY WHEN THE NINTH ARMY WILL STORM ACROSS THE RHINE.

"THIS RUHR VALLEY IS QUITE A TARGET," SAID LT.COL.JAMES R. MONTGOMERY, 109 HAWTHORNE ST., HOUSTON, TEXAS. "YOU COULD SHOOT WITH YOUR EYES CLOSED AND NEVER MISS."

THE VETERAN ARTILLERY OFFICER, WHO WAS GRADUATED FROM TEXAS A. AND M. IN 1933, COMMANDS A BATTALION OF 240MM GUNS. HE SAID HE HAD NOT RECEIVED A COUNTERBATTERY BARRAGE AT ALL SINCE OPENING FIRE SATURDAY.

THE SAME STATEMENT WAS MADE BY MAJ.VERNON YOUNG OF MIDLAND, TEXAS, A BATTALION STAFF OFFICER.

EACH SHELL FIRED BY AN EIGHT INCH GUN COSTS AMERICAN TAXPAYERS ABOUT $120. TO SAVE SHELLS ONE GUN IS FIRED UNTIL IT IS "REGISTERED IN" ON THE TARGET THEN THE REST OF THE BATTERY FIRES ACCORDINGLY.

"OUR GREATEST TROUBLE IS THE DENSITY OF THE AIR," SAID AN OFFICER. "THE WEATHER HASN'T BEEN TOO GOOD THE LAST FEW DAYS FOR FIRING EIGHT-INCH GUNS BECAUSE THERE IS TOO MUCH TO BE TAKEN INTO CONSIDERATION -- SUCH AS WINDAGE, AMOUNT OF MOISTURE IN THE AIR AND OTHER FACTORS WHICH AFFECT LONG-RANGE FIRE."

ANYWAY, THE OUTFIT SEEMED TO HAVE ENOUGH SHELLS.

DIFFICULTY SOMETIMES ARISES IN GETTING THE RIGHT AMOUNT OF SHELLS IN THE SAME LOT, ACCORDING TO FIRST LT.BRODNAX CAMERON OF BELAIR, MD.

CAMERON EXPLAINED THAT SHELLS HAVE VARYING CHARACTERISTICS. ALL THOSE WHICH COME IN THE SAME LOT CAN BE DEPENDED UPON TO FIRE IN ALMOST THE SAME WAY, BUT WHEN SHELLS FROM DIFFERENT LOTS ARE MIXED, A GUN BECOMES ERRATIC.

ONE REASON FOR THIS IS THAT A SHELL GOES THROUGH SO MANY DIFFERENT LAYERS OF ATMOSPHERE, SAID MAJ.DON M.LINTON, 246 BRATTLE ST., CAMBRIDGE, MASS., WHO IS IN CHARGE OF REPORTING ON ALL AIR CONDITIONS FOR NINTH ARMY ARTILLERY. "THERE ARE NO ERRORS IN DEFLECTION, BUT ERRORS COME IN RANGE," LINTON EXPLAINED.

"YOU ALMOST HAVE TO BE A SCIENCE TEACHER TO OPERATE ONE OF THESE GUNS," PUT IN MAJ.JOSEPH C.HAZEN, 55 TEMPLE WAY, SUMMIT, N.J., FORMER WRITER FOR TIME MAGAZINE, WHO NOW HAS A POSITION WITH THE 15TH ARMY CORRESPONDING TO LINTON'S JOB WITH THE NINTH.

THE WAY THE GUNS ARE SET ON THE WEST BANK OF THE RHINE THEY HAVE TO FIGURE THE MINIMUM RANGE IN ORDER TO CLEAR ALL BUILDINGS ON THE WAY TO THE TARGET.

SGT.WILBUR KREITLER, 45 GOOD ST., BUFFALO, N.Y., SAID HE WOULD ALWAYS REMEMBER ST.MALO BECAUSE THEY FIRED FROM A HILLSIDE INTO THE TOWN AND GOT THE BARRELS DOWN LOW ENOUGH TO WHAM THE SHELLS IN FROM A 4,000-YARD RANGE.

AMONG THE MEMBERS OF KREITLER'S CREW WHO HELPED SMASH THE KRUPP WORKS TODAY WAS PVT.RALPH THOMAS OF 325 MCKINLEY ST., N.W. CANTON, O.

OTHERS WHO TOOK PART IN TODAY'S BOMBARDMENT:

JOHNSTON DEFENDS REDS

W. L. White's Book 'Overemphasizes' the Bad, He Says

SPOKANE, Wash., March 14 (AP)—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today that the book, "Report on the Russians," written by W. L. White, overemphasized the bad about Russia and minimized the good.

In a statement to the press today, Mr. Johnston said:

"Because William L. White accompanied me to Russia, I have had many inquiries about his new book on that country. They call for an answer, in general terms at least.

"I do not for a moment question White's right to say what he chooses, but I frankly disagreed with him as to the significance of many things we both saw.

"I believe that a genuine two-way understanding between Russia and the United States is indispensable. Each nation must accept honest and frank criticism from one another. But each nation should strive to avoid unfair and destructive criticism of the other. We have got to learn to get along with Russia and the Russians have got to learn to get along with us."

"WE DROPPED OUR BOMBS NEXT TO THE FIRES ALREADY STARTED," HE ADDED.

"THE RAID WENT OFF WITH CLOCKLIKE PRECISION. THERE WERE LOTS OF SMALL FLAK BURSTS, CLOSE ENOUGH TO HEAR. THEY SOUNDED LIKE FIRECRACKERS.

"THE FIRES COVERED A SMALLER AREA THAN IN TOKYO BUT WE WERE OVER THE TARGET EARLIER IN THE RAID THAN WE WERE AT TOKYO.

"THE FLAK WAS NOT AS BAD AS TOKYO BUT THE SEARCHLIGHTS WERE WORSE. CLOUDS SAVED US FROM FIGHTERS WHICH WERE COMING UP."

CPL. RICHARD A. STEELMAN, A GUNNER, OF ALTON, ILL:

"OSAKA WAS THE EASIEST FOR US OF THE THREE INCENDIARY RAIDS (WE WAS OVER EARLY BEFORE THE INTENSIFYING OPPOSITION REPORTED BY LATER B-29 CREWS). WE CAME IN VERY FAST. FLAK WAS MODERATE. THERE WERE NO FIGHTERS. WE WERE THE EIGHTH PLANE OVER AND THERE WERE SEVEN OR EIGHT FIRES ALREADY."

TCH. SGT. ROY H. BROM, DODGE, WIS:

"THE FIRE WAS PRETTY WELL SCATTERED OUT AND JUST GETTING A GOOD START BUT ONE GOOD-SIZED FIRE ALREADY HAD BURNED OUT BUILDINGS CLEAR TO THE GROUND."

LT. H. M. MATLEY, ALBEMARLE, N.C., WITH BROM:

"IT LOOKED LIKE A GOOD ONE."

CPL. DON MACLELLAN, 90 PROST, ANDOVER, MASS., RING GUNNER IN THE FOURTH PLANE OVER OSAKA:

"I SAW THREE FIRES. WE HIT THE TARGET RIGHT ON THE NOSE."

Allies Stab Across Rhine North Of Cologne, Nazis Say; Yanks In Bridgehead Advance 1½ Miles Beyond Honnef

REINFORCEMENTS, SUPPLIES RUSHED ACROSS BRIDGES

German Report That Ludendorff Bridge Destroyed Held Unlikely.

SEVENTH ARMY ATTACKS

Seeks to Wipe Out Nazi Salient—Pontoon Bridge in Operation.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, Thursday, March 15—(AP) Infantry and armor of the U. S. First Army expanded the Remagen-Erpel bridgehead today to within a mile and a quarter of the Frankfurt-Cologne super-highway, and other American forces extended the fighting along the far-flung Western front.

In the bridgehead now 10½ miles long and 3½ miles deep, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges doughboys punched north, south and east for gains of up to a mile through the rugged hills that border the Rhine.

Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour into the American-held area east of the river over the great Ludendorff bridge and the pontoon structure erected by U. S. engineers.

The German radio claimed Nazi bombers destroyed the big double-tracked rail bridge during the day, but the latest information available tonight at both SHAEF and 12th Army Group headquarters was that the huge steel structure not only was standing, but was in better condition than when it was captured.

A German broadcast also said Allied reconnaissance thrusts had been launched across the Rhine "north of Duisburg and north of Leverkusen." The enemy report said "all thrusts were unsuccessful."

There was no confirmation here of any Allied activity north of the First Army front, other than recent reports of the U. S. Ninth Army shelling the Ruhr across the river, but such reconnaissance would be a normal procedure.

Seventh Army Attacks

To the south, however, the American Seventh army opened a new attack against the last enemy-held salient west of the Rhine in Germany and gained four miles on a seven-mile front.

The drive west of Saarbruecken, following up a new attack begun yesterday by the Third Army to the north, was intended at the outset as a line-straightening operation. But the Yanks found only light resistance and punched on to the Saar river, where the Germans had withdrawn into Siegfried defenses on the north bank.

The 70th division, spearheading the new thrust, penetrated more than a mile beyond the French-German frontier and reached the Saar in the vicinity of Volkingen, six miles west of Saarbruecken.

The towns of Schaffhausen, Clarenthal, Wehrden, Gieslautern and Schoeneck, all on or near the south bank of the Saar, were seized as the enemy's rearguard resistance was brushed aside.

By nightfall artillery and mortar fire was being exchanged across the river.

Overrun Bomb Site

The Third Army wiped out the last remnants of resistance north of the Moselle river, overrunning a flying bomb launching site, and kept up pressure south of the Moselle, where a new attack opened Tuesday.

Enemy opposition stiffened in this area, but the 94th division slugged eastward another half-mile from the vicinity of Holzerath and other Third Army troops reached points seven to nine miles southeast of Saarburg.

More than 5,000 Allied warplanes carried the air offensive through its 30th consecutive day, with the RAF highlighting the assault by dropping for the first time new 11-ton "town buster" bombs, the largest explosive package in the world.

First Army Doughboys pushed up to a mile through the hilly, wooded country that rises east of the Rhine as they strove tenaciously to knock the Nazis back out of artillery range of the two bridges across the river in the Remagen area.

A week after the Remagen trestle was captured the enemy had yet mounted no full-scale counterblow at the bridehead, but air reconnaissance late today disclosed a large concentration of German forces east of Cologne and north o. the American holding.

The Remagen bridge, across which the bulk of men, tanks and guns have poured into the mounting bridgehead battle, was reported to be in better condition now than when it was seized, thanks to the fast and efficient repairs made by Army engineers under direct artillery fire.

Although new and tighter censorship restrictions were clamped on the bridgehead operation, it was permitted to be disclosed that Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' troops had driven beyond captured Honnef at the north end of the bridgehead and had reached the outskirts of Ontscheid, four miles northeast of Remagen.

St. Catherinen, directly east of Remagen was cleared in a 1,000-yard advance, and other units pushed forward approximately a mile into the hills beyond Ginsterhahn, east of Linz. The wide military highway built by Hitler was under bombardment both by American artillery and planes.

Slow Work Now

"The bridgehead operation now is in its expansion phase, and in this hilly region it necessarily is slow work," cautioned AP Correspondent Don Whitehead in a front dispatch. "There is no reason at this stage to expect anything sensational in the way of gains."

Joining in the steady application of pressure all along the western front, the U. S. Seventh Army opened a new attack in the Saarbruecken area and drove more than a mile into Germany just west of the capital city of the Saarland.

The 70th Infantry Division spearheaded the attack and captured the town of Stiring-Wendel, northeast of Forbach, without a fight. The Doughboys then pushed on nearly three miles northward to reach the Saar river just west of Saarbruecken. Petite Rousselle and Krughutt were overrun in the advance.

The thrust gave the Seventh Army a new foothold inside Germany along a five-mile front and to a depth of two miles. Since Feb. 23 Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's troops have been drawn up approximately a mile and a half south of Saarbruecken, foundry city of 135,00.

Destroy 57 Planes

American fighter-bombers scored a wholesale kill against the German airforce when they found a field packed with gassed-up enemy fighters near Lippe, 30 miles east of the Rhine bridgehead, and sent 56 of them up in smoke and flame. Another 47 were damaged in the savage attack, which cost three U. S. Thunderbolts, two of them by collision.

The closely-parked German machines blew up like firecrackers, indicating they were loaded with fuel and ready to participate in a concerted attack either against American troops in the bridgehead or against the two bridges spanning the Rhine there. Not a single enemy plane was permitted to get into the air.

The last half-dozen German-held towns north of the Moselle river were captured by Third Army troops as they eliminated a 16-square-mile salient midway between Coblenz and Trier. Only a few isolated enemy pockets in the winding loops of the river remained to be mopped up.

South of the Moselle, where other Third Army forces joined the 94th Infantry Division in a new eastward attack out of a bridgehead over the Saar, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's troops beat off 11 German counter-thrusts during the night and continued to advance along a fairly broad front.

Mechanized cavalry gained a mile on a two-mile front, capturing the villages of Sommerau and Morscheid, five miles east of Trier. The 94th pushed a mile eastward on a three-mile front in an area eight miles southeast of Trier, capturing Bonerath, Holzerath, Lonzenburg and Hinzenburg and enlarging its foothold east of the Ruwer river to some four miles wide by a mile and a half deep.

Autobahn Now But 1¼ Miles Ahead

Paris, March 14 (AP)—First Army troops fought through the hills rimming the Remagen bridgehead today to within 1¼ miles of the Frankfurt-Ruhr Autobahn.

To the north other 1st Army troops captured Honnef.

The German radio declared that Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton was trying to cross the Moselle at several points west of Coblenz, but there was no confirmation from the Allies.

The Germans said the 3d Army attempts were beaten back but that Patton had now brought up four infantry and three to four tank divisions for a large-scale attempt to force the river.

The Germans said crossing attemps were being made at Broettenbach and Htazenport, the latter 16 miles southwest of Coblentz.

Bridge Condition Improved

The captured Ludendorff Bridge, leading to American cross-Rhine territory, meanwhile was reported in better condition than ever although it has been hit by enemy shells several times. Work done to repair the damage caused by earlier American air raids accounted for the improved condition of the bridge, front line dispatches said.

There were indications that the Germans were not committing all their available strength against the bridgehead because they were wary of possible crossings at other points.

The biggest concentration of German tanks yet threatening the brigehead was sighted yesterday around the village of St. Catharinen, due east of Remagen and between the American lines and the superhighway to the Ruhr. The number of tanks seen was only about fifteen or twenty, however.

Firm Northern Anchor

The capture of Honnef provided a firm northern anchor for the bridgehead into which men and material streamed across two bridges to reinforce the 70,000 men the Germans said already were there.

Moving forward through the forested hills east of the Rhine in a dawn attack, the Americans captured St. Catharinen, 4 miles northeast of Linz and 7 miles east of a large bend in the river. Kretzenhaus, 5 miles east of the Rhine, was cleared and Kalenborn was entered.

3d Opens New Drive

To the south, the 3d Army cleared the western bank of the Moselle River except for stragglers, and opened a new drive across the top of the industrial Saar district which carried 9½ miles east of Saarburg and the Siegfried Line.

Thirteen towns were captured, mostly on the east side of the Moselle. The fighting was in the Hochwald and Hunsrueck Mountains, which made progress slow.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's army captured a record number of 6,619 Germans yesterday, raising its nine-day total to 27.127. Most of these surrendered in Eifel Mountain pockets sealed off by swift armored columns.

7th Reaches Saar

Meanwhile, the 70th Infantry Division of the 7th Army advanced nearly 4 miles today, penetrating into Germany and reaching the Saar River just west of Saarbruecken. These gains carried more than a mile into the German Saar district. The enemy skirmished only lightly and withdrew into the defenses of Saarbruecken, ruined capital of the industrial region.

Seventh Army troops have been a mile and a half south of Saarbruecken, a city of 135,000 since February 23. The Siegfried Line before the 7th Army is double. One line runs along the Saar just in front of Saarbruecken and other steel-producing Saar cities along the river. The second line extends 10 or 15 miles farther back into the hills.

Stiring-Wendel Taken

Stiring-Wendel, east of Forbach in France and the scene of hard fighting for several days, was occupied today without resistance and the 70th Division continued for nearly 3 miles to the Saar.

At the Saar the infantrymen were met by heavy mortar and artillery fire from across the river.

Petite Rousselle and Krughutt were occupied in the push, which reached the outskirts of Furstenhausen and Wehrden on the Saar's banks.

The push gave the 7th Army a new toehold in Germany along a 5-mile front.

Honnef, a picturesque town of 9,000, was the largest place yet conquered in the Remagen bridgehead. Significantly, it was in the area where Field Marshal von Model displayed his greatest resistance.

Other First Army troops fought into the last two miles of wooded hills between them and the six-lane superhighway linking the Ruhr with Frankfurt-on-the-Main. The road was under artillery fire.

Their strength increased over a new pontoon bridge, erected under fire Saturday, and the prized Ludendorff Bridge which the Germans still tried resolutely to cut with heavy shells and bombs.

Two miles inland from Honnef, Hill 370 was captured. To the southeast and still farther inland, infantry fought through Kretzenhaus into Kalenborn, five miles northeast of the original bridgehead town of Erpel and less than two miles from the superhighway. One main road to the Ruhr immediately east of the Rhine already was cut and helping supply the bridgehead forces.

To the south, St. Catharinen was cleared an d the north-south river road was severed in that area. The First Army still fought in Hoenningen in the drive down the Rhine bank sixteen miles from Coblenz.

Coblenz itself is on the west side of the river and shielded also by the Moselle. Thir Army trops have been at its edge several days but have neither crossed the Moselle near Coblenz yet nor started storming that traffic center—reputed to be heavily fortified.

Bridgehead Is Expanded.

It was disclosed that the new pontoon bridge across the Rhine was put into position somewhere south of the Ludendorff Bridge.

The bridgehead itself had been expanded into an assault base from eleven to thirteen miles along the Rhine and up to almost six miles in depth. The Germans reported a new Rhine crossing two miles down river from Honnef at Koenigswinter, twenty miles from Cologne and the Ruhr.

The Germans were increasingly nervous about the Canadian, British and American Ninth Armies on the lower Rhine, predicting an imminent Rhine crossing between Emmerich and the Dutch border. Patrols of both sides tested opposing strength in the Duisburg region. The Ninth Army captured thirty and killed two Germans of a party of thirty-six which crossed the Rhine in their sector.

The Germans sent 300 planes over the Twenty-first Army Group front yesterday and shelled the Nijmegen and Kleve areas. From twenty-four to twenty-nine planes were destroyed and thirteen others were damaged.

Counter-blows Are Small.

The Rhine bridgehead, embracing fifty square miles or more of the Westerwald, was taking a hard pounding from elusive enemy bombers and long-range artillery, including 340-millimeter railroad guns. The Ludendorff Bridge was repaired again and again from shell hits. The pontoon bridge supported a treadway for light vehicles.

The Germans were pecking away with counter-attacks—the biggest yet reported was only 250 men strong—but they had neither stopped Americans nor mounted anything like a full force counter-blow against the position.

Although Honnef itself was cleared, Supreme Headquarters said fighting still was going on in the river bank suburbs along the road north of the town.

American planes kept the Ruhr-Frankfurt superhighway under bombing and strafing attacks and flew day and night guard over the bridgehead, where sixty German planes, mostly fast jets, tried to break through yesterday. A handful tried again last night. Ten enemy craft were downed by fighters.

Nazis Lose Heavily in Air.

Ground guns were throwing up heavy barrages which have downed eighty-five and possibly 103 of the 224 planes the gunners have sighted above the salient.

The First and Third armies between them had rubbed out the Eifel pocket which a week ago embraced 2,500 square miles and six or seven understrength divisions of the German Seventh Army.

The First Army captured 1,283 prisoners yesterday, bringing its campaign total since crossing the Roer on February 23 to 37,671. Patton's Third Army, attacking since January 30, has seized 63,288. The British, Canadian and Ninth armies in the north took 50,477 in their campaigns to the Rhine through and behind the Siegfried Line.

Eisenhower's Success.

That total of 151,436 Germans, plus perhaps an equal number killed or seriously wounded, showed that Gen. Eisenhower had achieved a large degree of success in his avowed objective of destroying Germans west of the Rhine. Those who escaped lost much of their heavy equipment. They needed rest and reorganization.

The Third Army already had outflanked the Saar district by its drive to the Rhine at Coblenz. They were tightening their grip by the new drive south of the Moselle. The value of the Saar has been largely lost to Germany because it depneded for its steel on the iron ore of Lorraine, and because Allied bombers have tangled its railroads and drained its canals.

Most of the thirteen towns which the Third Army captured were east and northeast of Saarburg. Eleven counter-attacks, in strength of fifty infantrymen or less with two or three self propelled guns, were repulsed without loss of ground.

Clear skies were over the whole western front for the first time in several days and gave stored-up Allied air might the go sign again.

During yesterday and last night the Germans made forty-four raids on the Remagen Rhine bridgehead with eighty-nine planes, most of them trying futiley to blast the Ludendorff Bridge. Guns alone brought down from nineteen to twenty-three.

Giant 11 Ton Bombs Dropped by British 'Town Buster' Bombs Smash Rail Junction as Aerial Attacks Continue.

CHANGED TO

LONDON, Thursday, March 15.—(AP) The earth-shaking debut of the world's biggest bombs, weighing 11 tons each, capped a merciless assault on the Reich yesterday by more than 5,000 Allied planes which ripped and blasted Germany with everything from .50 caliber machinegun slugs to the new superbomb tall as a two-story house.

A rail viaduct at Bielefeld, 38 miles east of Muenster, was the target for the RAF's newest "Town Buster," the world's biggest package of explosive, which was used for the first time by four-engined Lancasters especially adapted for the purpose.

NIGHT

Other vital German communications and industrial objectives were assaulted by British and American warplanes as the great Allied air offensive rolled through its 30th consecutive day. Nearly 2,000 heavy bombers and fighters of the U. S. Eighth Air force participated in the operations, running into violent flak at several targets and losing 12 bombers and seven fighters.

British bombers were in action again during the night. Heavies attacked Zweibruecken and Homburg about 15 miles east of Saarbruecken in an effort to wipe out troops and military stores reported concentrated in the two towns, and Mosquitos pounded Berlin for the 23rd consecutive night.

During the widespread daylight operations American planes destroyed at least 87 German aircraft and damaged at least 56 others. Enemy transportation also was heavily strafed.

The new 22,000-pound bomb, the Air ministry said, combines great power of penetration with a high explosive force. Prior to the use of the 11-ton bomb the largest previously hurled on the Germans was the six-ton "earthquake" which sank the German battleship Tirpitz and penetrated 15-foot thick concrete roofs of U-boat pens.

Crewmen said the new bombs caused "a tremendous pall of black smoke and a fountain of debris—the blast dwarfed even the terrific explosions of the six-ton bombs which were also dropped in the attack."

The RAF hurled its massive new weapon at a rail viaduct at Bielefeld, 38 miles east of Muenster. There was no announcement of the result. Simultaneously another viaduct at Arnsburg, 27 miles southeast of Dortmund, was attacked with 12,000-pounders.

While vital German communication and industrial targets were feeling the weight of the mighty Allied air force for the 30th successive day, continent-based U. S. Ninth airforce fighter-bombers, operating in strength in protection of the vital Remagen Rhine river bridgehead, destroyed 60 German planes sitting on an airfield east of Coblenz and damaged 55 others. Three of the American fighter-bombers were lost, two in a collision.

From Italy, Liberators and Flying Fortresses of the U. S. 15th Air force striking for the third time in 10 days in support of the Red army attacked oil refineries and vital communications northwest of Budapest and within 35 miles of the advancing Russian forces.

In addition to the loss of the Nazi planes which apparently were preparing for a mass assault on the Remagen bridgehead, big bombers of the Eighth Air force attacked an airdrome 10 miles northwest of Giessen, touching off a terrific explosion in what air force officers believe was a fully stocked dump of bombs and shells intended for use against the bridgehead.

More than 1,250 heavy bombers and 650 fighters of the Eighth, fanning out in task forces of 200-planes, dropped 3,500 tons of explosives on these targets:

Two tank and half-track factories and a gun plant at Hannover.

Oil refineries at Misburg and Nienhagen, northeast of Hannover.

A large metal castings plant at Hildesheim, 20 miles southeast of Hannover.

U-boat pens at Ijmuiden on the Dutch coast.

Railyards at Gutersloh, Seelze, and Lohne on the main routes northeast of the Ruhr.

Weser river rail bridges at Vlotho and Bad Oeyenhausen in the Osnabruck area.

Railyards at Giessen, 60 miles east of Remagen.

Before the 8th Air Force planes returned to their British bases in midafternoon, some 250 RAF Lancasters attacked benzol plants at Bochum, 7 miles from Dortmund and Recklingshausen, near Muenster. Fighter planes escorted them.

Like Firecrackers

The German planes parked on the tiny front-line air field were spotted by a squadron headed by Major William H. Earle, of Greenville, S. C. The squadron had been on a strafing mission, and because of empty bomb racks, was forced to send for other American units.

Pilots said the parked planes "blew up like firecrackers," indicating they were fuelled and ready for flight.

The heavy bombers and fighters from Italy attacked the Almas Fuzito and Szony refineries between Komarom and Budapest which have been supplying 2,500 tons of gasoline monthly to German motorized formations.

Fortresses also attacked railroad yards at Komarom, 40 miles northwest of Budapest, in an effort to shut off German supplies moving from Vienna toward the Russian front. Liberators hit the Novy Zamky yards, 10 miles north of Komarom, and also attacked the Wiener Neustadt railyards southwest of Vienna.

The Air Ministry, after studying reconnaissance photographs, wrote off Essen and Chemnitz as two more dead German cities.

RUSSIANS SPEED BALTIC CLEAN UP

Reds Push Forward Four Miles on 17 Mile Front in East Prussia.

WHEELER

LONDON, Thursday, March 15—(AP) Russian troops, speeding the clean up of the Baltic coast to free powerful Red army formations for the swelling assault on Berlin, rolled the Germans back as much as four miles yesterday on a 17-mile front in the narrow pocket southwest of Koenigsberg, Moscow announced last night.

NIGHT

Simultaneously, Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine army in a drive through the wooded mountains of the Carpathian front to the south captured the rail junction town of Zvolen, a powerful German strongpoint on the Hron river in Slovakia 125 miles northeast of Vienna, and eight nearby towns.

German attacks toward the Danube river from positions northeast and east of Lake Balaton in Hungary were repelled by Russian units liberally employing artillery and minefields.

On the Baltic, in bitter village-by-village fighting, the Third White Russian army came within 4 1-2 miles of reaching the coast of the Frisches Haff (lagoon) and splitting the East Prussian bastions of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil from Brandenburg, 12 miles southwest of Koenigsberg.

4,000 Germans Killed

The Soviet night communique said the Russians advancing in the East Prussian pocket killed more than 4,000 Germans and took more than 2,000 prisoners. One Soviet column driving along the railroad to Braunsberg took the railway station of Vogelsang, four miles southeast of that stronghold. Another column farther north sliced its way to Lank, 4 1-2 miles from the Frisches Haff.

Constricted now to an area a little more than 30 miles wide and 10 to 12 miles deep at its widest parts, the Germans feverishly were digging additional trenches and fortifying all the villages and hamlets in the region, Moscow said. Although the Germans mined the approaches to their lines almost solidly they still were driven from more than a dozen localities.

The Russian drives in that pocket, at Koenigsberg itself, along the bay of Danzig and at Kolberg were designed to free the Baltic flank and enable the Soviet command to throw the maximum weight of men and material westward against Berlin and the heart of the Reich.

In the Stettin area near the northwestern corner of the Russian front the Germans claimed the Russians were regrouping their assault units and bringing up Polish reinforcements. One enemy commentator said there were indications Soviet troops intend to try taking Stettin in an encirclement maneuver by forcing the Oder river north and south of the city.

Nazis Evacuate 590,000

The Berlin radio claimed the successful evacuation by sea of 590,000 refugees, mostly women and children, from East and West Prussia.

The broadcast Moscow communique remained silent on the fighting on the central Oder river front before Berlin which the Germans have said has carried to within 33 miles east of the Reich capital.

Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's powerful First White Russian army was reported by Reuters to have cracked "one of the main German lines" in Berlin's outer defenses west of the Oder on the 16-mile front between the captured fortress city of Kuestrin and threatened Frankfurt.

100,000 Men in Attack

The Germans reported that nine Soviet Infantry divisions of perhaps 100,000 men and supporting armor were fighting to expand several bridgeheads on the west bank as a prelude to a full-scale drive on Berlin. Moscow has not yet borne out enemy reports that the Red army has established bridgeheads in this key area across the last waterway before the Reich capital.

By enemy account the main front facing west was ablaze for 115 miles from bombarded Stettin south to Guben and Forst, Neisse river bastions on Marshal Ivan S. Konev's sector southeast of Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army, attempting to clean out the German foothold on the bay of Danzig, was fighting in the suburbs of Danzig and Gdynia with the heaviest blows being directed against the latter town.

In the East Prussian pocket Russian units driving on Braunsberg, 33 miles southwest of Koenigsberg, advanced to positions 4 miles southeast of the stronghold with the capture of the rail station of Volgelsang.

They also took Lank, 9 miles northeast of Heiligenbeil and 4½ miles from the coastal Frisches Haff in the drive which threatened to divide Col. Gen. Lothar Rendulic's forces. Gross Klingbleck, 6 miles south of Brandenburg, and Hohenwalde, 7 miles southeast of Heiligenbeil, also were taken.

More Than 2,000 Prisoners

The Russians captured more than 2,000 prisoners in the East Prussian drive which is part of a larger operation aimed at cleaning up the Red Army's entire Baltic flank.

Capture of the Hron River stronghold of Zvolen in Slovakia was announced in an order of the day by Premier Stalin. It is a rail junction town 10 miles south of Banska-Bystrica, former Czechoslovak guerrilla center, and 95 miles northeast of Bratislava. A trunk railroad leads northward from Zvolen to Moravska-Ostrava.

The Soviet units which captured Zvolen crumpled a series of German counterattacks and hurled the enemy beyond the Hron River, the midnight communiqué said.

Overcome Artillery

To reach Zvolen the Russians overcame enemy artillery and machine-gun emplacements on the mountainsides covering the approaches to the town. The Germans also had barred all the roads with wide anti-tank ditches.

In Hungary, Russian troops repelled attacks of German tanks and infantry from positions northeast and east of Lake Balaton, the Soviet bulletin said. The Germans were attempting to reach the Danube in this sector south of Budapest, but were encountering heavy artillery fire and mine fields.

On all sectors of the front Tuesday the Russians disabled or destroyed 137 German tanks and self-propelled guns and brought down 37 enemy planes. Eighty-five of the tanks were knocked out on the Lake Balaton sector.

Battered From Three Sides

In the fighting along the Bay of Danzig the 2d White Russian Army battered Gdynia from three sides and was shelling military installations within the city at will from positions on hills to the south. Moscow dispatches said Rokossovsky apparently was determined to wipe out the Germans in Gdynia first, leaving the forces in Danzig to be dealt with later.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, Nazi military commentator, said more than 100 Red Army tanks west of Gdynia forced a half-mile breach in the main German line but failed in an attempt to separate Gdynia from Danzig.

The Germans said the garrison of Kolberg, surrounded Baltic port 55 miles east of Swinemuende, continued "to hold out in the inner defense ring of the town's flaming ruins."

Russians Pierce Berlin-Front Nazi Line

IS ASSIGNED

London, March 14 (AP)—Russian troops have broken through one of the main German lines west of the Oder in Berlin's forefield, a Reuter dispatch from Moscow declared today, while the German commander in Berlin ordered the Reich capital defended "above and under ground" to the last bullet.

NIGHT

The Reuter dispatch said Marshal Gregory Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army overran a main German line on an 18-mile Oder front between captured Keustrin and threatened Frankfurt.

115-Mile Front Aflame

German broadcasts said the front was aflame for 115 miles from Stettin south to Guben and Forst, the Neisse River bastions on Marshal Ivan Konev's 1st Ukrainian front southeast of Berlin.

The German high command announced a powerful new Russian offensive aimed at wiping out Nazis in East Prussia, but declared Soviet attacks from the Lebus bridgehead west of the Oder north of Frankfurt "broke down."

Girding for defense of Germany's queen city, Lieut. Gen. Bruno von Hausenschild, chief of Berlin's defense, declared in an order that the city would be defended to the last and that "all stratagems" and tricks were allowed.

Nazi Replacements

Another report to Stockholm said Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian had been replaced as commander on the Eastern front by Colonel General Schoerner and that Field Marshal von Rundstedt had been relieved on the Western front by Field Marshal Walther von Model. It said Rundstedt was dismissed after the Allied coup in capturing the Remagen bridge, and that the chief of the 1st Panzer Division and his staff, responsible for the defense of Remagen, had been court-martialed.

Separate Russian columns were striking westward on either side of Zinten, 20 miles below besieged Koenigsberg, a Berlin broadcast said.

Northwest of Gdynia, the Soviets had cleared a 14-mile coastal stretch from east of Wejherowo north to Chlapau, at the base of Hel Peninsula, jutting into Danzig Bay north of Gdynia. The Russians were within 8 miles of the port, and south of it captured seven more towns yesterday, including Neukirch, 14 miles away.

Slovakian Town Taken

The 2d Ukrainian Army has captured Zvolen, Slovakian stronghold on the Hron River, Marshal Stalin announced tonight. Zvolen is 11 miles south of the former Czechoslovak headquarters city of Banska Bystrica, and 75 miles north of Budapest.

Transocean said the Russians in the first 24 hours of attack had cut Koenigsberg's last land communications to the south by crashing through to Brandenburg, on the coast, 12 miles northwest of Zinten.

If the Soviets can drive to the sea centrally from Zinten they will have the German pocket, originally estimated at twenty divisions, but now depleted by losses and evacuation, The Germans in East Prussia now are commanded by Col. Gen. Lothar Rendulic, former commander in chief in Finland.

Earth Seemed to Open Up When Giant Air Bomb Hit

LONDON, March 14.—(AP) RAF Lancaster pilots showered giant new 11-ton bombs—the largest ever carried aloft—on northwestern Germany today for the first time and a returning pilot said "it seemed as if the earth itself had opened up."

Describing the shattering effects of this great British-designed projectile which is being produced also in the United States, another Canadian airman said: "The terrific flash was followed by a gigantic pall of black smoke and this was followed by fountains of debris gushing hundreds of feet into the air. The six-ton ones we dropped seemed like babies by comparison."

The target for the RAF's new super-bomb was a rail viaduct at Bielfeld, 38 miles east of Munster, it was announced. Another viaduct at Arnsburg, 27 miles southeast of Dortmund, was attacked with 12,000-ton bombs.

Weighs 11 Tons

The new 22,000-pound bomb, weighing 11 American short tons or 10 long tons, is 25 feet, five inches, in length with a diameter of three feet, 10 inches, and packed with a powerful high explosive charge. It is 10,000 pounds heavier than the high explosive bomb which sank the German battleship Tirpitz and penetrated 15-ft.-thick concrete roofs erected over Nazi U-boat pens.

The British air ministry said that "due to its increased velocity it should greatly exceed the devastation of any bomb so far employed against the enemy."

The primary role of the super-bomb, which is "from the family of large deep-penetration types," is for attacks on underground structures such as factories the Germans have built deep within the earth.

It was designed by B. N. Wallis of the Vickers Armstrong company.

"Although the bomb itself and also the aircraft which carry it are 100-per cent British, the United States has given valuable assistance with production," the air ministry said. "We already are obtaining supplies of complete bomb-bodies from America. It was schemed that the new bomb could be carried by the Lancaster which was chosen as the vehicle for delivering the goods to Germany."

The ministry disclosed that the big Lancaster planes, which normally carry about six American tons of bombs, had been modified in order to carry the new projectile.

A crew of six is needd to load the bomb into the Lancaster in a half-hour operation.

Four years ago the RAF dropped its first two-ton "blockbuster" bombs with devastating effect on the German port of Emden. In 1943 came the four-ton "factory-buster," and early in 1944 the first six-ton projectile. All these were blast bombs.

Six months later the first "earthquake" bomb was dropped. Though no heavier than the largest class it was entirely new. It gave more power against a considerable range of targets and was streamlined for penetration. The new superbomb followed.

"I thought the super-bomb would have a surprising effect and I was not wrong," an RAF squadron leader related. "As it burst, I felt as though someone had hit me severely in the back. I didn't expect a kick quite so soon. The force of the blast caused a pain up my spine that lasted more than a minute.

"When the bomb was released my Lancaster bounced up well over 500 feet from the relief of the big load," he said.

"The force of the explosion was worse than from the severest flak," a bombardier said. "I followed the progress of the bomb and it seemed to be falling well toward the target. It exploded with a fantastic flash and the area immediately was smothered by a boiling column of smoke."

Churchill Wins Fight Over 'Lie'

London, March 14 (AP)—In an angry mood, Winston Churchill today forced caustic Laborite Richard Stokes to withdraw in the House of Commons a charge the Prime Minister had "lied" during arguments over the merits of British tanks.

Churchill—absent when the charge was made last night during heated debate on British Army needs—strode into the House today and challenged Stokes to back his charge with proof or withdraw the word "lied" from the official record.

Cries Of 'Shut Up' Ring Out

Stokes yielded, but only with qualification and only after Arthur Greenwood, his party leader, urged him to take the step "in the interest of the House and orderly discussion." Cries of "shut up" rang out in the usually staid chamber during the tumultuous scene.

Earlier, Anthony Eden, Foreign Secretary, told the House the administration of Premier Petru Groza had been formed in Romania because Russia felt the situation under former Premier Nicolae Radescu "could not be tolerated."

He said notes on the Romanian situation now were being exchanged between the United States, Britain and Russia.

Russian Stand Explained

Eden said Russia had informed the British Government that a change of regimes in Romania was necessary because Radescu had been incapable of maintaining order and had taken inadequate measures to curb the activities of pro-Fascist elements.

Churchill, discussing the Polish situation, conceded some Poles would be extremely unhappy inside the new Poland envisaged at Yalta and said the British dominions now were being consulted about offering those Poles who wished British citizenship "as their final security."

The sharp exchange between Churchill and Stokes occurred when the Prime Minister took the floor and read from the official record of last night's debate these words of the Laborite:

Churchill Quotes Laborite

"It is very well for the Secretary of State to laugh it off, but the ministers responsible are mainly the Prime Minister and the Minister of Production and they are the people who have deceived the country, and the country should know that they have repeatedly come to the House and have lied."

Halfway Apology

"The statement of Mr. Stokes was made without any knowledge to me, and in my absence," Churchill declared. "I take the first opportunity of raising the matter on general grounds and on particular grounds, and I invite him to repeat his exact words here and now."

In reply to Churchill's challenge, Stokes rose and said:

"I certainly admit I was guilty of unparliamentary language and to that extent I apologize to the House and am perfectly willing to alter my interpolation to that of 'guilty of terminological inexactitude.' In saying that, I wish to make it perfectly clear I do not depart from the substances of what I said. Both this House and country have been deceived."

"I am sorry about this," continued Stokes. "I unequivocally withdrew the word 'lie.'"

Vote Of Support

Britain's Conservative party, opening its annual conference, gave Churchill a firm pledge of support today and a broad hint was voiced that he would be asked to lead the party in peacetime reconstruction.

Churchill himself, as party leader, will address the conference tomorrow, probably dealing chiefly with problems at home.

Critic Of Churchill Apologizes

London, March 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, aroused by an open charge that he had "lied" in extolling the merits of British tanks, challenged his critic to a showdown on the issue in Commons today and won a qualified apology.

Churchill flung down the challenge by quoting from the official Parliamentary Record this statement made last night by Laborite Richard Stokes:

"It is all very well for the Secretary of State to laugh it off, but the ministers responsible are mainly the Prime Minister and the Minister of Production, and they are the people who have deceived the country, and the country should know that they have repeatedly come to the House and have lied."

Halfway Apology

"The statement of Mr. Stokes was made without any knowledge to me, and in my absence," Churchill declared. "I take the first opportunity of raising the matter on general grounds and on particular grounds, and I invite him to repeat his exact words here and now."

In reply to Churchill's challenge, Stokes rose and said:

In saying that, I wish to make it perfectly clear I do not depart from the substances of what I said. Both this House and country have been deceived."

"I am sorry about this," continued Stokes. "I unequivocally withdrew the word 'lie.'"

London, March 14 (AP)—The German radio said tonight Allied forces had "launched a number of reconnaissance thrusts with the Rhine north of Duisburg and north of Leverkusen," but claimed "all thrusts were unsuccessful." Both places are below Cologne.

Nazi Coal, Steel Output Slashed, Briton Says

London, March 14 (AP)—Lord Selborne, Minister of Economic Warfare, said today the Allied blockade of Germany had forced more than 1,000,000 Germans from jobs in munitions factories into agriculture and other thousands into synthetic oil and gas-producing plants.

Addressing the London Rotary Club, he said Germany's coal production now was half what it was three months ago and her steel production less than one fifth that of a year ago.

German prisoners, he said, are complaining for the first time of a lack of munitions.

V-BOMBS HIT CHURCH

LONDON, March 14—(AP) A number of persons were killed and others injured seriously when V-bombs hit a factory and church in southern England recently.

Frantic efforts by soldiers and rescue workers to recover bodies and extricate the injured from the debris of the factory were hampered by fire while families stood outside waiting for news.

One 15-year-old girl was among those killed when the ceiling of a 13th century church collapsed from a V-bomb explosion.

BRACKEN PRAISES ART OF AMERICA

LONDON, March 14—(AP) Brendan Bracken, opening the first exhibition of contemporary American Art held in Britain, suggested today that "in writing, art and sculpture, Americans could teach us a good deal."

"We have wasted a great deal of time visiting less worthy places and if you want to get complete re-invigoration, go there and see the great buildings, fine pictures and sculptures which Americans have been producing for generations," the British Information minister said.

Reich Raided 30th Day In Row

London, March 14 (AP)—Germany was mauled from the air today for the thirtieth straight day as the United States 8th Air Force—carrying the manpower equivalent of a full infantry division—made another mass bombardment of Nazi railways, oil refineries, armament plants and submarine pens.

Hundreds of Allied fighters provided close cover for the Remagen bridgehead and other American bombers from Italy gave transportation targets another going over.

United States heavy bombers from Italy struck into Hungary and Austria in support of Russian armies, hitting rail yards at Komarom on the Danube and Wiener Neustadt, near Vienna.

Dozen Attack Groups

The giant force of 1,250 United States heavy bombers and 650 fighters from Britain split into a dozen attack groups after crossing the North Sea.

Their targets included a camouflaged U-boat hideout at Ijmuiden, on the Dutch coast; three truck and tank factories at Hannover, oil objectives at Misburg, near Hannover, and at Nienburg, 25 miles northwest of Hannover; metal-casting plants at Hildesheim, 20 miles southeast of Hannover, and freight yards and bridges on two main rail routes leading north from the Ruhr coal fields.

Rail yards were bombed at Giessen, Guetersloh, 10 miles southeast of Bielefeld; Seelze, just west of Hannover, and Lohne, 25 miles west of Osnabrueck, and bridges were attacked on the Weser River east of Osnabrueck.

The big daylight blows followed a five-pronged stab at targets between the Western front and Berlin by British night bombers, which had started this longest unbroken series of raids of the war with a big fire raid on Dresden February 13.

American Planes Strike Indo-China

London, March 14 (AP)—United States 14th Air Force fighters based in China have hit targets in the Langson area of French Indo China, where continued fighting was reported today between Japanese and French troops.

The American planes attacked a Japanese headquarters garrison and storage areas in Langson and a highway bridge yesterday, it was announced in an American communiqué issued at Chungking.

The Berlin radio relayed Tokyo dispatches which asserted that Japanese troops had killed more than 1,000 French troops and captured 8,500 in northern Indo-China and seized 54 French planes and other military supplies.

Japs Act In Shanghai

A DNB broadcast said the Japanese had disbanded French military formations and police in the International Settlement at Shanghai because the formations "were part of those in Indo-China."

The French Cabinet in Paris announced last night that an officer sent to Indo-China by the government several months ago is leading resistance against the Japanese.

Diet Kept In Session To Study Raid Problem

London, March 14 (AP)—The Japanese Diet, previously summoned for only a one-day meeting, is being kept in session to deal with problems arising out of the American air raids upon the homeland, a Transocean radio dispatch from Berlin said today.

Transocean said the Diet was discussing air-raid protection measures and the mobilization of seamen for internal water traffic.

A Tokyo broadcast said that Emperor Hirohito, "grieved by the effects of indiscriminate bombing of Tokyo's suburbs" March 10, sent Court Chamberlain Hokudaijy "to visit the stricken localities and report to him personally on the extent of damage and the working out of relief measures."

Tokyo's stock exchange was reported temporarily closed until conditions recover."

San Francisco, March 14 (A. P.).—The Japanese Government has announced a new evacuation system for primary school children. Domei news agency broadcasts, heard by the FCC, said that in districts designated as "A," presumably the most seriously menaced, all school children will be evacuated and all schools closed. In district "B" partial evacuation will continue according to previous regulations.

Romanian Situation Subject Of Notes

London, March 14 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden told Commons today that notes on the Romanian situation now were being exchanged by the United States, Britain and Soviet Russia.

The Foreign Secretary said a new administration had been formed in Romania because the Soviet Government felt the situation under Former Premier Nicolas Radescu "could not be tolerated."

Given Sanctuary

He said the British Government had given Radescu sanctuary because there was no evidence to show that the former Premier personally had been involved in any anti-Allied activities.

Eden said the Soviet Government had informed the British the change of government was necessary because Radescu had been incapable of maintaining order and had taken inadequate measures to curb activities of pro-Hitler and pro-Fascist elements.

Reich Panic Reported

London, March 14 (AP)—Panic has seized the people of Baden and Wurttemberg in western Germany and long columns are fleeing from Stuttgart, Karlsruhe and Pforzheim, the Brussels radio said today. The cities are opposite the inactive Alsace sector.

Armed SS troops were trying to turn back the columns of civilians, Brussels said, but the refugees continued their flight by country paths and byways.

Will Ask du Pont About Trade Secret

London, March 14 (A. P.).—The British Government will take steps to determine whether E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., an American firm, did or did not disclose information concerning polythene to I. G. Farben Industries of Germany "in accordance with its pre-war arrangements," Charles Peat, Parliamentary Secretary for the Ministry of Production, said in Commons today.

"If there is anything I can do I will certainly do it," Mr. Peat said in reply to an inquiry, adding that all information on the British process for covering cables had been "strictly confidential and for the use of du Pont only."

Tito Pins Medal on Eaker

LONDON, March 14 (AP).—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) has pinned the Order of the Partisan, first class, on Lieutenant General Ira C. Eaker, Allied Mediterranean Air Forces commander, and thanked him for his assistance against the Germans, the Yugoslav radio said today. Eaker visited Belgrade last week end and personally thanked the Yugoslav leader for the aid his forces had given American airmen who parachuted from damaged planes.

Churchill Asks Churchill: Is It 1-10-45 or 10-1-45?

Uniform System of Dating Urged by Prime Minister's Son

LONDON, March 14 (AP).—Major Randolph Churchill, member of Parliament and son of Britain's Prime Minister, has forwarded from the central Mediterranean a question to be put to his father next Tuesday in the House of Commons.

Major Churchill, hospitalized for a minor operation, requested Lord Hinchingbrooke to ask the Prime Minister "whether he is aware of the many conflicting systems by which letters and documents are dated in this country, whether he realizes the figures 1-10-45, which to the Englishman mean Oct. 1, 1945, indicate to an American Jan. 10, 1945; and if he will instruct all government departments to adopt forthwith the system current in the British Army, which avoids all confusion by putting the first day of the month in figures unblemished by any suffix, second the month in letters, and last the year."

Six More Escaped Nazis Taken

LONDON, March 14 (AP).—Six more escaped German prisoners were captured last night, leaving at large only nineteen of seventy who tunneled under fences of a prison camp in Wales Sunday.

U. S. Reinforcements Pour In

PARIS, March 14 (AP)—Reinforcements and supplies continued to pour into the American-held area east of the Rhine over the great Ludendorff Bridge and the pontoon structure erected by United States engineers.

A German broadcast said Allied reconnaissance thrusts had been launched across the Rhine "north of Duisburg and north of Leverkusen." The enemy report said 'all thrusts were unsuccessful."

45 Nazi Planes Destroyed On Airport

Allied Headquarters, Paris, March 14 (AP)—American fighter-bombers destroyed 45 German planes lined up today on an airport near Limburg, apparently all fueled up for a takeoff against the 1st Army's Rhine bridgehead nearby.

Twenty others were damaged. The destroyed planes were Junkers 87's and 88's and Messerschmitt 109's. American losses were two Thunderbolts which collided during the attack.

DE GAULLE RADIOS TO TROOPS

PARIS, March 14.—(AP) Gen. Charles de Gaulle, in a radio address which French authorities hoped would be heard by French combatants in Indo-China, tonight urged them to be of good heart and to continue their fight against the Japanese as best they could under difficult conditions.

"All through the sufferings of the invasion, France never has forgotten the brave Frenchmen and Indo-Chinese isolated by the crushing superiority of the Japanese invaders," he said.

Former Vichy Admiral Asks Mercy At Trial

Paris, March 14 (AP)—Admiral Jean-Pierre Esteva, former Vichy resident general of Tunisia, today appealed for a chance to serve his country again under General de Gaulle as the prosecution demanded the death sentence in his trial on charges of treason.

Esteva testified that, although he was a Catholic, he served under Premier Leon Blum, a Jew, because he had regarded himself duty-bound to serve his country no matter who was in charge. A juror interpreter asked him if he was willing to serve under de Gaulle.

"I ask you to acquit me so I can serve France until my last breath under General de Gaulle," replied Esteva.

The Admiral opined Marshal Pétain, Vichy chief of staff, had practiced a policy of dissimulation and saved what he could from the ravages inflicted by the Germans.

7th Gains a Mile

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, Allied Expeditionary Force, Paris, March 14 (AP).—Joining in the steady application of pressure all along the western front, the United States 7th Army today opened a new attack in the Saarbruecken area and drove more than a mile into Germany just west of the capital city of the Saarland.

The 70th Infantry Division spearheaded the attack and captured the town of Stiring-Wendel, northeast of Forbach, without a fight. The troops then pushed on nearly three miles northward to reach the Saar River just west of Saarbruecken.

The thrust gave the 7th Army a new foothold inside Germany along a five-mile front and to a depth of two miles.

Become U. S. Citizens East of the Rhine

Paris, March 14 (A. P.).—For the first time in history Americans are being naturalized on German soil.

The new citizens are the latest of some 5,000 foreign-born American soldiers who attained their citizenship while serving in the European theater. The oath is administered by a special naturalization service team of three American soldiers and three representatives of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. The team moves from division to division at the front.

Faulty Fusecap Cost Nazis Loss Of Bridge Intact

By Don Whitehead

With the 1st Army on the Rhine, March 14 (AP)—American engineers today attribtued the failure of the Germans to blow up the Remagen bridge to a faulty fuse cap that prevented hundreds of pounds of TNT from exploding.

That is one of the high spots in the story of the nineteen most fateful days since the Allied invasion of Europe, during which the entire course of the war changed on the Western front and the end of the conflict was brought nearer by the daring and initiative of American arms.

The climax came when Sergt. Alexander Drabik, of Holland, Ohio, led the charge across the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen on the afternoon of March 7.

The mighty Rhine had been crossed.

Not Knockout Blow

The Rhine crossing was not a knockout punch to end the war. Only a super-optimist could fail to see that there is much bloody fighting ahead. But there is every reason for jubilation over the combination of luck and courage that gave the 1st Army a bridge intact over the Rhine.

The drive across the Rhine did, however, place the Allies in position for the knockout blow and weakened the enemy defenses against future smashes that might come at any time and any point.

Ironically, the Rhine proved the easiest stream to cross in the entire drive into the Rhineland.

The Roer River was a stumbling block for three months. Even the little Erft River, which anyone could spit across on a windy day, held up a division for 24 hours.

This spectacular campaign to cross the Rhine began in the dark hours before dawn on February 23.

Comeback After Ardennes

Lieut. Gen. William H. Simpson's 9th Army and Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's 1st Army had built up strength for the drive in a surprisingly short time. Only a few weeks before, these armies had been battling for their lives in the Ardennes.

In the initial phases, the 9th Army started the attack with the 1st Army's 7th Corps, under Maj. Gen. J. Lawton (Joe Lightning) Collins, of New Orleans, providing flanking protection on the south. Once the drive was under way, Hodges gradually was to step up the power of his attack until the whole front was blazing.

At 4.30 A.M., the 9th and 1st armies launched co-ordinated attacks across the flooded Roer behind the crash of thousands of artillery shells.

Juelich, Dueren Captured

Maj. Gen. Terry de la Mesa Allen's 104th (Timberwolf) Division spearheaded the 1st Army crossing alongside the 8th Division, commanded by Maj. Gen. William Weaver.

Juelich fell to the 9th Army, Dueren toppled to Hodges's men in the first day. The 9th's powerful offensive overran Muenchen Gladbach and carried to the Rhine while the 1st Army closed in on Cologne.

Once these two armies began the steam-roller offensive, it was evident that the Germans would be unable to halt them. The enemy started retreating eastward and pouring across whatever Rhine bridges there were left for escape. Thousands of prisoners were taken.

On March 6 Maj. Gen. Maurice Rose sent the leading elements of his 3d Armored Division into Cologne while Allen's 104th closed in from the west.

Cologne A Pushover

Everyone had anticipated that the Germans would make a house-to-house defense, but Cologne was a pushover and those Germans, who could, escaped to the south toward Bonn.

Meanwhile, great events were taking place farther south.

At dawn on March 7 the 9th Armored Division of Maj. Gen. John W. Leonard, of Toledo, Ohio, attacked toward the Rhine with two combat teams. Combat Command B, under Brig. Gen. William Hoge, had the mission of capturing Remagen, on the west bank of the Rhine, and if possible of seizing the great Ludendorff Bridge should it prove to be intact.

It was a dramatic moment when the leading elements of Combat Command B stood on the hills looking down into the beautiful Rhine Valley, about midday. And there above the river was the Ludendorff Bridge intact, a sight none had expected to see. German vehicles still were streaming across it.

A Great Gamble

The men who stormed the Remagen bridge made the biggest gamble of their lives that afternoon. The Germans had mined the bridge with hundreds of pounds of TNT and had set the demolition hour for 4 P.M. It was virtually a death warrant for anyone who ventured on the span, but the try had to be made.

The first platoon on the bridge was engaged by Germans shooting from the railway tunnel and from the great stone towers on the far side of the bridge. While the first platoon pinned down the enemy defenders with intense fire, Sergeant Drabik led his platoon through it and made the dash across the bridge.

Behind the armored infantry came engineers commanded by Lieut. John Mitchell, of Brentwood, Pa., who slashed all the wires on the bridge and dumped the explosives into the river while German machine-gun and rifle bullets splattered about them.

BRIDGE OVER RHINE QUICKLY ERECTED

By HAL BOYLE

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 14—(AP) American army engineers, working with the speed of circus roustabouts, took just 31 hours to throw across the Rhine near Remagen a pontoon bridge which they believe is the longest built in this war.

The 960-foot bridge required special engineering measures because of the speed of the river current.

"Now we've got everything up to light vehicles rolling across it," said Lt. James A. Murphy, Jr., New Britain, Conn.

The bridge was erected by the 51st Combat Engineer battalion under Lt. Col. Harvey R. Fraser of Elizabeth, Ill.

"It was the sixth bridge we had built in two weeks—and the toughest," said Lt. Murphy.

It was found that the current on the east side of the Rhine ran faster than had been estimated, and available anchors would not hold the pontoon bridge in place.

"Nearby were some assault boats. By pushing against the current, these boats kept our pontoons from floating downstream and held the bridge in line until we could improvise another method to anchor the pontoons securely," said the lieutenant.

German planes attacked the bridge site almost continually from the time work began. The engineers labored to the accompaniment of anti-aircraft batteries and bombs and kept the construction going right through the raids.

"Our casualties have been light," said Murphy. "Fewer Americans have been killed than enemy planes brought down. All attempts to knock out the bridge have failed and traffic is flowing over it smoothly."

CAPTURE BOMB SITE

WITH THE FOURTH ARMORED DIVISION, Germany, March 14—(AP) Troops of the Fourth Armored division today captured a V-1 launching site near Buchel and learned from the irate residents that the range of some of early "vengeance" robombs was no further than their own rooftops.

Buildings and trees in the vicinity showed damage from some V-1 bombs which plunged to earth after going only a mile and a half.

Germans Gathered to Witness Blowing Up of Remagen Bridge

By HOWARD COWAN

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 14. (AP) The German officer assigned to blow up the Remagen bridge was drunk when American troops captured it, an American sergeant declared today in contributing a new chapter on the Rhine crossing.

Staff Sgt. Joseph De Lisio, 1097 Longwood Ave., Bronx, N. Y. who captured the German officer, said he was soused—but plenty.

This was what a subsequent investigation disclosed:

The German, a lieutenant, had been told some days in advance that he would have to destroy the 1,200-foot steel bridge. He had a flair for the dramatic, and when the U. S. Ninth Armored Division drew near he spread the word throughout Erpel, the town at the east end of the bridge, that "the bridge goes at 4 o'clock this afternoon."

Aside from its military importance, the bridge holds a large place in the lives of residents of this beautiful Rhine valley. Oil paintings of the bridge hang in many homes up and down the river. When word spread that the bridge was to be destroyed crowds gathered.

Dynamite was planted at strategic spots on the structure and the last folks in Remagen who wanted to leave were given a chance to cross to the east bank.

The speed of the American tanks was more than the Germans had expected, however, and scores of enemy vehicles had to be left in the thick woods on the hill above Remagen.

Nevertheless, German soldiers and civilians from miles around were sitting in "grandstand seats" at every suitable vantage point on the east bank, waiting for the spectacular sight of American troops pulling up at the Rhine and getting the bridge blown up right in their faces.

A few minutes before 4 o'clock the German officer signaled the plunger down. Two small puffs of dust and smoke accompanied by explosions echoed through the hills, but the bridge almost unbelievably remained on its piers.

(A dispatch from Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead today said engineers of the First Army attributed the failure to a faulty fuse. It may have been that because of the German lieutenant's celebration, the fuse was not properly inspected.)

Weren't Even Armed

Everyone on the east bank froze in paralyzed consternation. Then pandemonium broke loose. Few of the German soldiers present were even armed, so sure were they that the Americans would not be able to cross the river.

Anti-aircraft gunners on a high cliff at the east end of the bridge raced to their guns and tried to level them on the bridge. At the same time American troops raced across.

Within a few minutes more than 300 Germans had surrendered, including the unfortunate officer assigned to blow the bridge.

The village of Linz, south of Erpel, surrendered to an American chaplain. The next day doughboys mopping up there found two German officers riding in an American jeep which they had captured in the Ardennes offensive.

As they walked away to prisoner of war cages they muttered, "It's preposterous! It's impossible!"

deeply and said:

"Herr General, it is a high honor for me that you visit my hotel."

No Pal Of Hitler

When he was accused of being a known friend of Hitler, Dreesen quickly insisted:

"No—that was my brother who died last year. I always favored a constitutional system like the British."

Dreesen is assisted by his nephew, who, until his father's death, had been a Luftwaffe officer. He was discharged from the service to help run the hotel. The nephew helped his uncle show General Quesada all the appointments of Hitler's suite—securely segregated from the remainder of this famous hostelry.

GESTAPO KILLING DESERTERS' FAMILIES

WITH U. S. FORCES NEAR ZERF, Germany, March 14.—(AP) German prisoners captured today asserted that mountain hideouts in Germany and Austria were jammed with German army deserters and insisted that the Gestapo was carrying out threats to kill the families of men taken prisoner without being wounded.

Prisoners told German-speaking Lt. Theodore Gutman, Los Angeles, that the Gestapo probably never would find most deserters, since their hideouts were remote.

The deserters, the prisoners said, were seeking to evade detection until the war ended.

Prisoners said German officers' treatment of men was becoming markedly more severe. A corporal with six years of army service, wounded three times and the holder of an iron cross, reportedly was executed because he strayed only six miles behind the frontline.

Report Von Rundstedt Was Drinking on Job

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, March 14.—(AP) Rumors which have leaked through enemy lines to the First Army say that Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt has been drinking to excess and as a result Field Marshal Walther von Model now is in supreme command of German forces on the Western front.

There have been reports for some time that Von Rundstedt was addicted to alcohol and that the failure of his December offensive in Belgium did not help his spirits.

Md. GI Does Amputation

Across the Rhine, Germany, March 14 (AP)—Pfc. Norman Smith, of Port Deposit, Md., worked with a flashlight and pair of scissors last night to amputate the shattered arm of a 1st Army infantryman during the height of the battle for Honnef.

Smith is a military policeman with no previous field experience in medicine. He and Pfc. William Boyd, of Peach Bottom, Pa., carried the wounded man into a cellar. There he performed the operation, administered plasma and was credited with saving a life.

Yanks Promoted Beyond the Rhine

Across the Rhine, March 12 (Delayed) (A. P.).—The Ninth Armored Division awarded four battlefield commissions east of the Rhine today in a ceremony at Unkel, a short distance from the Remagen Bridge.

One of the new second lieutenants was Bob West, Cheyenne Indian fullback on the 1938 University of Oklahoma football team which appeared in the Orange Bowl. West's home is at Wirt, Okla.

West and the three others, including Sergt. George Schmalhofer of 60-89 68th Road, Brooklyn, won their promotions in the battle of Bastogne, but their promotion papers didn't catch up with them until they had crossed the Rhine.

NAZI STUDIED HERE

With the United States Ninetieth Infantry Division in Germany, March 14 (A. P.).—Blond Hans Detels, dapper in his neatly tailored uniform as a German lieutenant, sat in his prison bunk last night and talked of the beauties of Brooklyn. He wore a Fordham University class ring, an Iron Cross and a Russian campaign ribbon.

Detels, who is 40 years old, got his education in the United States and then became a Nazi. Speaking English with a trace of an accent, Detels said he went to America from his native Hamburg in 1923, looking for adventure.

HUEBNER IN COMMAND OF U. S. FIFTH CORPS

WITH THE UNITED STATES FIRST ARMY, March 14 (AP)—Censorship permitted disclosure today that Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Huebner, once a buck private, now is commanding the American Fifth Corps, succeeding Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, who heads the new American Fifteenth Army.

General Huebner went to the Fifth Corps from the First Infantry Division, which he took over in Sicily and then led in the invasion of the Normandy beaches as the spearheading element of the First Army.

A Kansan, he enlisted in the Army thirty-four years ago and came up the hard way. He went to France with the fighting First Division in World War I and at the close of the conflict was a regimental commander.

He took over command of the First Division from Maj. Gen. Terry Allen in Sicily, and then began training his troops for the invasion of France. The division, which won laurels in North Africa and Sicily, added new combat honors in smashing a German division on the beaches of Normandy and helping to lead the way in the breakthrough at St. Lo and the drive across France into Belgium and Germany. The division was first through the Siegfried Line.

When Field Marshal General Karl von Rundstedt made his great gamble in the Ardennes, General Huebner had been moved up to command the Fifth Corps, which held the northern shoulder against the German assaults, and saved a breakthrough on the north.

His wife, the former Miss Florence Barrett of Louisville, Ky., now lives in Washington, D. C. A daughter, Juliette, is a student at Trinity College, Washington, D. C.

IZVESTIA HITS SECURITY FOES

Calls Those Opposing Plan Fascist Bandits.

Moscow, March 14 (A. P.).—Izvestia today attacked as "Fascist bandits" those in Allied and neutral countries who oppose current plans for the formation of an international security organization.

"The success of the Dumbarton Oaks and Crimea conferences," said the article, written for the Soviet Government newspaper by Prof. E. Korobin, "is shown by the way the Fascist bandits are doing everything in their power to stifle the present steps to establish an international security organization.

"It is worth noting the coincidence of the German attacks with the criticism being conducted in certain Allied and neutral countries—by the American isolationist Hearst Press, John L. Lewis, the Vatican, De Valera (Premier Eamon De Valera of Eire) and others."

Izvestia said that the Dumbarton Oaks proposals were "not ideal and many of its decisions undoubtedly will receive further clarification and development."

Says Principles Will Stand.

"But the two main principles," the article stated, "will stand—the special responsibility of the leading democratic States for

Correspondent Eats K-Ration In Hitler's Private Apartment

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER

Bad Godesberg, Germany, March 14 (AP)—I ate my K-ration today in the parlor where Hitler and the late Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain held a historic meeting in 1938.

It was in this room, the parlor of a private apartment in the Dresden Godesberg Hotel, that the Führer sold Chamberlain the idea that peace might be safeguarded if Czechoslovakia's Sudetenland was ceded to Germany.

Hitler, although advertised by his Propaganda minister as a man of the simplest tastes, always managed to choose idyllic surroundings for himself.

Expensive Furnishings

His sitting room, bedroom and bathroom at the hotel were expensively furnished.

Maj. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada, chief of the 9th Tactical Air Command whose planes are aiding the 1st Army drive, invited me to accompany him on an inspection tour of the Rhine in this area.

Georg Dreesen, the manager of the hotel, which has been in his family's hands for 150 years, bowed

War Erases Carl Schurz' Home

LIBLAR, Germany, March 14 (AP)—This Rhine town near Cologne, birthplace of Carl Schurz, German-American liberal statesman of the nineteenth century, was captured today by the United States First Division, but the house in which Schurz spent his boyhood was destroyed by fire during the battle.

Md. Major Captures 3

With the U.S. 9th Army, March 14 (AP)—A lot of things you don't look for happen when the heat's on—such as when Lieut. Gen. William Simpson's 9th Army was streaking from the Roer to the Rhine.

Company command posts moved almost every day, and this meant changing billets and officers' mess halls with no time out for selection of sites.

When Major Joseph Dagenais, of Hagerstown, Md., headquarters commandant for the 2d Armored Division, stepped into a house in a German town to investigate a place for the command post, he saw three enemy soldiers huddled in a corner. Dagenais took them along and had them show him the town at the muzzle of his .45.

Yank M. P. Severs Doughboy's Arm

Across the Rhine, Germany, March 14 (A. P.).—Pfc. Norman Smith of Port Deposit, Md., worked with a flashlight and a pair of scissors last night to amputate the shattered arm of a First Army infantryman during the height of the battle for Honnef.

Smith is a military policeman with no previous field experience in medicine. He and Pfc. William Boyd, Peach Bottom, Pa., carried the wounded man into a cellar. There he performed the operation administered plasma, and was accredited with saving a life.

PLENTY OF FOOD IN NAZI LARDER

Andernach, Germany, March 14 (A. P.).—This part of Germany certainly is not on starvation rations or anything approaching it. Homes in Andernach, a Rhine town of 15,000 scarcely touched by war, are well equipped with gadgets, and their larders are stocked with foodstuffs.

In one German worker's the defense and observance of peace; the main consolidation of support among these States. Anyone who opposes these principles is turning the mills of our enemies."

The article upbraided the old League of Nations, declaring it had enabled "even one second rate Power, by a negative vote, to upset any proposal for action against aggression."

Izvestia likewise scored the league for a situation whereby, it said, "States defending themselves against a charge of aggression were deprived of a vote and concrete measures were decided upon without these States being permitted a voice."

TRANSYLVANIA'S RETURN HAILED

Moscow, March 14 (A. P.).—Flag waving, parades and an exchange of speeches marked the formal return of Transylvania to Romania yesterday in ceremonies at Cluj, Transylvanian capital. The return of Transylvania rule to Romania was the biggest foreign news today in the Soviet press.

The Soviet agency Tass told of joyous crowds of Romanians in the streets of the old university city of Cluj, waving Romanian flags, Soviet banners and flags of other United Nations as Russian and Romanian troops paraded through the town.

Andrei Vishinsky, Soviet Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, and Col.-Gen. Susaikov, vice-chairman of the Allied Control Commission, arrived at the Cluj railway station flanked by a Soviet and Romanian military guard of honor. At a Cabinet meeting Romanian Premier Petru Groza thanked the Red Army, Marshal Stalin and Vishinsky for "the liberation of northern Transylvania."

The new Romanian Premier said that when he asked for the return of northern Transylvania, Marshal Stalin "within one hour gave us a favorable answer."

Russ-Vatican Talks Denied

Moscow, March 14 (AP)—The Soviet news agency Tass issued an official denial today of a Rome report that the Soviet Government and the Vatican were negotiating for an accord.

[The Vatican press office issued a similar denial Sunday.]

"Recently the Rome bulletin 'Servizio Informazion' published a report that, with the collaboration of the United States and with the support of Great Britain, negotiations were alleged to be in progress between the Soviet Union and the Vatican for the purpose of concluding an agreement," Tass said. "Tass is authorized to state that the report is without foundation."

20,000-Ton German Ship Reported Sunk

Stockholm, March 14 (AP)—The 20,000-ton German transport Albert Ballin struck a mine outside of Warnemuende during relief and supply operations in the battle for East Prussia and sank while being towed back to port, the newspaper Sydsvenska Dagbladet, of Malmo, said today. The date was not given.

The vessel, one of the last of Germany's large ships, had brought thousands of refugees from East Prussia to Warnemuende and was returning to Koenigsberg with food and war supplies for the encircled German troops when it hit the mine, the dispatch said.

100 HU... WRECK

BILBAO, Spain, March 14—(AP) More than 100 persons were injured, 18 seriously, when a passenger train collided with a freight in a dense fog early today. The passenger train was crowded with workers coming to Bilbao.

Brussels Exchange to Reopen

BRUSSELS, March 14 (AP).—Belgian Finance Minister Gaston Eyskens announced yesterday that the Brussels stock exchange would reopen within a month. Meanwhile, the bourse is opened unofficially about one hour every day, but no business is allowed. The object of the meetings is to nominate candidates for election to the bourse committee on April 3. Only stockholders belonging to the prewar bourse are eligible.

Anti-Jewish Drive Reported

Stockholm, March 14 (AP)—The Nazis have opened a new campaign against Jews still in Germany, a neutral traveler from Hamburg reported today.

Jews married to Germans have been ordered to the ghetto city at Theresiendstadt (Terezin) in Czechoslovakia or to other designated concentration camps within five days, this informant said.

NO YANK SOLDIERS BURIED IN GERMANY

HENRI CHAPELLE, Belgium March 14—(AP) No American soldier is being buried by the Army in German soil.

The largest military cemetery on the Western front — probably the largest ever built for an American overseas army lies—in green rolling hills here some six miles from Aachen, first large German city taken by the Allies.

Since last Sept. 7 this peaceful pasture land where Belgian cattle grazed only a few miles from the German border, has been criss-crossed by row after row of crosses marking the graves of several thousand American dead. There are also 138 Allied dead of other nationalities and 8,833 Germans.

66 Sentenced To Death in France

London, March 14 (A. P.).—Special French courts established to try persons accused of collaborating with the Germans during the Nazi occupation sentenced sixty-six defendants to death during the first ten days of March, the Paris radio said today. The broadcast said that twenty-two others were sentenced to life imprisonment at hard labor, 552 given terms of varying duration and 138 acquitted.

Brussels, March 14 (A. P.).—Seven persons have been sentenced to death within twenty-four hours as courts-martial in Belgium stepped up the punishment of traitors and collaborators.

AMERICAN PATROLS MENACE VERGATO

German Counter Attacks Beaten Off by Yank Defenders.

ROME, March 14—(AP) Strong Fifth army patrols have worked their way north of Vergato, important German stronghold 14 miles southwest of Bologna, already threatened by Allied forces on the south, east and west, Allied headquarters said today.

Southwest of Vergato, which is astride the main Pistoia-Bologna highway, other Fifth army troops have beaten off German counter-attacks against newly-won positions on the 5,900-foot Monte Spigolio.

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring's embattled German forces were displaying increased aggressiveness on the main approaches to Bologna, key Nazi communication and supply center in northern Italy.

Fifth army troops improving their positions in the Serchio valley were slowed by extensive minefields.

On the Eighth army front along the Adriatic patrols clashed in a brisk 45-minute battle along the Senio river and 27 Germans were killed.

Headquarters of the Mediterranean Allied Air force disclosed that 2,500 tons of supplies had been parachuted to partisan forces behind the German lines in northern Italy in recent weeks.

The partisans apparently are making good use of the supplies. A communique issued by the 15th Army group said 76 enemy soldiers were casualties of a patriot attack against the Fascist garrison at San Giacomo, in Modena province. In the Piedmont region a passenger train was stopped by partisans and 50 Germans and 50 Italian fascists were captured.

The communique said rail and communication lines had been cut at a number of places.

FIFTH THREATENS NAZIS IN VERGATO

Rome, March 14 (A. P.).—The threat to German positions in Vergato, important highway stronghold fourteen miles southwest of Bologna, was intensified today by striking Fifth Army patrols which yesterday worked their way to a point north of the town.

Vergato, astride the main highway from Pistoia to Bologna, previously was closely menaced by Fifth Army forces moving up from south, east and west. Allied Headquarters, announcing the new advance, also reported that other Fifth Army forces to the southwest of Vergato had beaten off German counter-attacks on their newly won positions of 5,900-foot Mount Spigolino.

The Germans around and in Vergato were becoming increasingly aggressive. There were two patrol clashes and two German raids on Fifth Army positions were broken up by mortar and small-arms fire. Allied troops attempting to improve their positions in the Serchio valley encountered wide minefields. In a sharp forty-five-minute patrol fight along the Senio River on the Eighth Army front twenty-seven Germans were killed.

Admiral Hewitt Honored by French

Rome, March 14 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral Harold K. Hewitt, of Newport, R. I., commander of the United States Eighth Fleet, and fourteen other officers of the fleet have been awarded the French Legion of Honor by Gen. de Gaulle for their part in the invasions of Normandy and southern France.

Admiral Hewitt was made a Commander of the Legion of Honor. Among those made Chevaliers of the Legion were Lieut.-Commander Paul Brine and Lieut. Bernard Steele, both of New York city.

BRITISH SECRET AGENTS SMASHED PLOT AT TEHERAN

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

TEHERAN, Iran, Feb. 10.—(Delayed)—(AP) A widespread Nazi sabotage ring with ambitious goals that threatened the lives of the "Big Three" was smashed before the Teheran conference in Nov.-Dec. 1943, it was disclosed today with the lifting of censorship.

Nazi underground workers, spies and saboteurs, flown and parachuted from Berlin, built up a master plot which might also have endangered Prime Minister Churchill as he passed through Iran in 1942 on his Moscow trip.

But when the Big Three met in late 1943, the ring had been broken and about 170 Persians—some later released—were under arrest as accomplices of the Germans. They had been jailed in August.

Japs Aided Nazis

Disclosable details of the plot included assistance to the Nazis by the Japanese legation, a tribal revolt incited by gun-running agents, sabotage against the Persian corridor lifeline to Russia, a sedulously planned "putsch" to depose the Shah, and plans to split Iran into two puppet states.

Most of the other side of the story—how British counter-espionage followed the thread, lost and picked it up again—must be untold for the present, for counter-espionage is never finished in wartime.

One of the two German secret service agents originally sent by Berlin to Iran in 1940 learned of Churchill's presence in Teheran when the British premier was on his way to Moscow in 1942.

In his subsequently captured diary, the agent noted that he had lost a great opportunity of serving the German cause by not knowing the exact time of the prime minister's arrival.

In 1943, the Germans began to suspect that a conference of the leaders of the United States, Britain and Russia would take place and during the summer they transmitted instructions to this same agent, Franz Mayr, to inform them at once if there was any sign of the meeting of the "Big Three."

When the Teheran conference brought Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin together for the first time, local election intrigue was at its height, and disorders could have been fomented by a clever German agent with powerful Persian political backing.

In one phase of the fantastic plottings, captured documents disclosed that an air strip had been prepared to receive and service German planes in the Persian southland with saboteurs in reach of the main rail line and to the great Anglo-Iranian oil refinery.

The Germans dispatched Mayr and Roman Gamotha, another spy, to Persia in the autumn of 1940. They came ostensibly to work for the transport firm, Nouvelle Iran Express.

In April, 1941, Maj. Julius Berthold Schulze of the German secret service became consular secretary at Tabriz in northwest Persia near the Russian frontier and when Germany attacked the Soviet Union the following June, he followed instructions to begin military espionage under consular cover by communicating with Berlin over the legation radio.

Nazis Moved In

By the time Russian and British troops entered Iran in August, 1941, there was a vigorous German community operating on Nazi lines, with the Germans in many important positions in the kingdom's economic life and in contact with dissident politicians.

When Anglo-Russian forces entered Iran, Mayr and Gamotha were arrested by the Persian government and interned in the German summer legation at Tajrish but they escaped with the connivance of Persian guards.

Mayr hid out in Armenia and Gamotha returned to Germany where he directed subsequent fifth column efforts by remote control.

The first fifth column committee fell apart because of jealousies among Iran members. The second movement, using the tribal quarrels and ambitions of disgruntled army officers, made considerable progress until Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's defeat in Africa.

Some Persians grew frightened by Allied successes and one collaborator lost his nerve to the extent that he led the British to a suitcase containing about 250 vital documents.

Mandalay Rapidly Being Cleared Of Japs

Pagoda Hill, Mandalay, March 14 (AP)—Mandalay was rapidly being cleared of the Japanese today as infantry, artillery and tanks of the Indian 19th Division smashed their way through the southern part of the city.

Tanks and artillery, firing point-blank, blew up nests of Japanese in the business and residential sections 800 feet below this vantage point.

Japanese infantry, falling back from building to building, were dropping under automatic rifle fire.

On the southern outskirts houses and buildings were being blown up as armored units sought to weld a solid ring around Fort Dufferin.

Smoke Over Southwest Corner

Smoke hung along the bypassed southwest corner of the fort, where Japanese headquarters still held out. Its wall appeared to be crumbling from shelling. The Japanese do not seem to be making the least countermove. Attacking troops moved unmolested beside the east and west walls.

Gurkha and Welsh troops of the Indian 19th Division, attacking after a daring 40-mile forced march over an opium smugglers' trail, have captured the Burma Road town of Maymo, 35 miles east and slightly north of Mandalay, it was announced today.

Last Gate Closed At Fort Dufferin

Mandalay, Burma, March 14 (AP). British Indian artillery and infantrymen closed the last remaining south gate of Fort Dufferin in this rubble-heaped city today, trapping the Japanese garrison.

A barrage of shells set fire to the south gate moat bridge and installations, halting any enemy truck or tank movement in or out of the battered fort, and artillerymen had the north, east and west gates under point-blank fire. A railway line leading out of the southern corner of the fort already had been cut by infantrymen.

Snipers Cleaned Out

Through the business and residential streets of Burma's second largest city the tank men and artillerymen moved forward, blasting nests of Japanese snipers.

A heavy smoke pall hangs over Dufferin. No signs of activity can be seen within the compound from the observation post on 800-foot Pagoda Hill.

A small American liaison plane landed on the Mandalay race course, only ½ mile from the fort and within easy machine-gun and rifle range, but did not draw any fire.

British officers who led the Indian troops in capturing Pagoda Hill said the night before they launched their attack they could hear the laughing and shouting of Japanese soldiers and women. The women left before dawn.

Mitchell's Flag Flies in Pacific

A B-29 BASE, India—(AP) The personal flag of the late Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, pioneer exponent of expanded air power, is flying against the Japanese.

The burgee flown from the Mitchell yacht, "Canvasback," depicting a canvasback duck on a background of green and white stripes, was presented to Maj. Gen. Kenneth B. Wolfe, first commanding officer of the Twentieth Bomber Command.

Gen. Wolfe gave the flag as a monthly trophy for the B-29 squadron with the best record. One squadron won it three months consecutively, and came into permanent possession. The squadron promptly named itself the "Billy Mitchell Squadron," and is so known officially. The design of Gen. Mitchell's flag is copied on all planes of the group.

BRITISH MAJOR, JAPS' PRISONER, REPORTED SLAIN

CHUNGKING, March 14—(AP) Unconfirmed reports received here from Hongkong say that Maj. Charles Boxer, chief of British army intelligence at Hongkong at the time of its capture by the Japanese, recently was executed by the Japanese, who charged him with operating a secret radio station in a prisoner of war camp.

In a current book, "China to Me," the author Emily Hahn identified Major Boxer as the father of her daughter, Carola, 3.

Miss Hahn, who has been living in New York since she was repatriated a year ago from the Orient on the exchange ship Gripsholm, said, "unless there is more evidence, I do not intend to believe the rumor."

She explained that she had heard such a report through the British war office several months ago but thought it might have arisen through the reported imprisonment of Hongkong civilians for operating a secret radio and the simultaneous imprisonment of a civilian named Boxer.

She said such a report reached Chungking last June. Chungking, she said, was full of rumors.

Miss Hahn, a frequent contributor to the New Yorker magazine and other periodicals, was a freelance writer in China. In her book she told of meeting Major Boxer after his wife had instituted divorce proceedings. She said she would return to China after the war to marry him.

In London the war office withheld comment, pending completion of a check of the Chungking reports.

8 Killed As Storm Hits Superfortress Base

U.S. 20th Bomber Command Headquarters, March 14 (AP)—A storm of hurricane violence struck a B-29 Superfortress base in southeast Asia today, killing eight men and injuring 150 and damaging about 25 cargo and transport aircraft on the field.

No. B-29's were damaged and most of the aircraft that were damaged can be repaired.

The storm blew up suddenly. Most of the casualties occurred when walls and roofs collapsed.

Relentless Aerial Pounding Of Jap Mainland Continues

21ST BOMBER HEADQUARTERS, Guam, March 15—(Thursday)—(AP) The Osaka arsenal, one of Japan's most important, probably was destroyed in yesterday's 300-Superfortress attack on that city.

That belief was expressed today by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Lemay, commander of the 21st bomber command, after B-29 crews reported they were rocked violently by ground explosions.

Osaka arsenal covers 150 acres.

One Superfort crew was blown from an altitude of 7,000 up to 12,000 feet and turned completely over, Lemay said. It went into a slow roll but the pilot recovered control at only 2,000 feet from the ground and flew back to Tinian, where it will be salvaged.

The constantly mounting fierceness and relentlessness of American Superfortress incendiary—raids on Japan's industrial centers—three smashes by about 1,000 of the sky giants in less than 100 hours—strongly indicates that the B-29 command has embarked on an all-out campaign of area rather than strategic bombing.

Between early last Saturday morning and early Wednesday morning three missions of more than 300 planes each took off from bases in the Marianas to destroy almost 24 square miles in the industrial centers of Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka with more than 6,000 tons of fire bombs.

(Indicating full recognition of the new threat to the homeland, the Japanese government was reported by Tokyo radio broadcasts to have taken these actions:

(1. Instituted a new evacuation system for primary school children in prime target districts and planned to close all schools.

(2. Discussed urgent raid relief measures.

(3. Re-studied and revised the "Air Defense Structure" in the home islands, especially with regard to fighting fires started by incendiary bombs. One domestic broadcast said raid precautions and fire fighting methods had proved "insufficient" in the recent "full scale" night raids.)

Plan Bigger Raids

Maj. Gen. Curtis Le May, commander of the 21st, said significantly after the great Tokyo raid of Saturday morning: "All the Japs have to look forward to is the total destruction of their industries, cities and other vital targets devoted to their war effort." Also significantly, he declared his Superfortress command is still a long way from attainment of "full strength."

The Tokyo attack, the first all-out incendiary raid by B-29s, was immediately followed by speculation that the command had switched from strategic to area bombing. On the heels of this came the great fire raids on Nagoya and Osaka.

When he took over the 21st command here last January General Le May said the Japanese would be hit "more and more until they decide they have had enough."

Earlier, Brig. Gen. Lauris Norstad, chief of staff of the 20th Air Force said "if necessary" to win the war Japan would be lashed by missions of 1,000 or more B-29s.

At the time the Superforts first began to hit Japan-proper from China bases the missions were officially described as "light" and single plants were named as the targets. When the Yanks got bases at Tinian, Saipan and Guam the B-29 fleets grew gradually through the terms "medium" to "sizeable" to "large" and finally "very large." Target areas increased in size accordingly and the fires, first described as "big," have now become "conflagrations."

5-Square-Mile Osaka Area Bombed Out

Twenty-first Bomber Command Headquarters, Guam, March 14 (AP). Three hundred Superfortresses wiped out five square miles or more of the industrial heart of Osaka before dawn today, expanding their fiery destruction in three of Japan's largest cities during a five-day period to 24 square miles—larger that the area of Manhattan island.

At a cost of four Superforts over the targets—two over Tokyo and one each over Nagoya and Osaka—the B-29's have dropped more than 6,000 tons of incendiaries in new low-level tactics which have:

Burned out 17 square miles of Tokyo, in the first dark hours of Saturday.

Leveled 2 square miles—47,600,000 square feet—in the air factory center of Nagoya, raided in darkness Monday.

Wiped out hundreds of little wooden war-vital workshops, known as "hidden factories," in Osaka, whose 3,250,000 inhabitants make it second only to Tokyo in size.

Solid Fire Reported

Returning crewmen from the last planes over Osaka told Brig. Gen. Thomas S. Power, commander of Guam-based B-29's, the inflammable center of Osaka was "a solid fire" when the raid was over.

The area engulfed by uncontrolled fires, visible 125 miles away, may have totaled as much as eight square miles, said Lieut. William T. Loesch, of Lake Wood, Ohio, a bombadier.

The B-29's, fast turning Japan's biggest cities into torches in the night, have in three days wiped out an area larger than Dayton, Ohio (23 square miles), or Jersey City, N.J. (21 square miles).

Burning Ten Hours Later

Tokyo radio acknowledged that ten hours later some fires still were burning in Osaka. The Japs reported the raid lasted three hours.

General Power said fires in the target area merged after two hours into a "solid sheet of flame."

"After seven minutes the whole town seemed to be burning like a huge pit of fire," exclaimed Lieut. Joseph R. Carroll, of Jacksonville, Fla., as he climbed out of the B-29 Lady Luck on his return to his base.

Daring the most concentrated display of searchlights yet encountered, the first 25 Superforts over Osaka quickly set nineteen fires.

Landings On Iwo Jima

Three returning B-29's made emergency landings on Iwo Jima. In order to make the concentrated power of the B-29's felt in undiminished strength, ground crews in the Marianas labored 36 hours without sleep after the Nagoya raiders returned, getting the big four-engined planes ready, duplicating their feat following the Tokyo raid.

Meeting the Nagoya raiders as they taxied to a stop, the ground personnel at Saipan alone in 250,000 man hours delivered 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 32,000 quarts of oil in preparation for the Osaka fireworks.

Target Area Centers

The target area, where more than 600,000 Japanese live, included railroad stations, small factories, household factories, and the civic heart, with modern buildings. Fires were set near enough to have spread to a large airplane propeller factory and to industrial plants in suburban Amagasaki and Sakai.

Enemy anti-aircraft fire at Osaka was described by B-29 crewmen in the early waves as erractic, although it grew in intensity as the raid progressed.

"They acted just as if they had gotten out of bed, run to their guns and started shooting wildly," said Capt. R. T. Eakes, of Philadelphia, Mississippi.

[At Washington, a 20th Air Force communiqué said "enemy opposition was described as slight and ineffective and flak was meagre to intense.]

A surface wind appeared to cause the flames to leapfrog from area to area.

Some B-29 flyers over Osaka spotted Nipponese night fighters aloft but for the most part reported these kept out of range of the Superfort guns.

Yanks Seal 115 More Caves On Iwo

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 14 (AP)—The three United States Marine Divisions on Iwo Jima slugged it out with remaining Japanese today after seizing two nearby rocks and sealing off numerous caves.

Nipponese occupying caves and pillboxes on rugged Kitano Point—the northern tip of the island—continued resisting stubbornly. They were fighting with small arms, machine gun and mortar fire, a communiqué issued by fleet headquarters here said.

Plight Serious, Japs Say

[A Tokyo broadcast, recorded by Reuters, stated that the position of the Japanese forces on the northern tip of Iwo Jima had taken an "extremely serious turn."

[Tokyo reported "furious attacks, preceded by the most intense fire and artillery bombardments and strongly supported by tanks and flame throwers."

[This report, which was not confirmed from Allied sources, suggested that the Marines might have embarked on an all-out drive to clear the last remnants of the Japanese garrison from Iwo.]

Deserted By Enemy

The rocks, designated in the communiqué as Kara and Kangoku, were occupied without opposition. They were deserted by the Japanese, who previously had used them as mortar positions. Kama is 1,000 yards off Iwo's west central side and Kangoku 2,700 yards off the northwest end.

Marines yesterday sealed off 115 caves, which the Japanese had used as underground strongholds.

Pocket Reduced

The communiqué said "no appreciable change was made in front lines." A Japanese pocket in the 4th Division sector, on the northeast side of the island, was reduced in size but holding out at 6 P.M. yesterday. Today is the twenty-fourth day of the battle.

Army fighter planes, operating from the southern Iwo Jima airfield, flew north some 200 miles yesterday to raid airfield and harbar installations on Chichi Jima in the Bonins.

Seventh Air Force Liberators of the Pacific's Strategic Air Force bombed the same island Sunday and Monday.

FLAG RAISED ON IWO JIMA

Formal Possession Taken, But Japs Still Resist

HAVELAND

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Thursday, March 15 (AP) — The American flag was raised over Iwo Island—within 750 miles of Tokyo—Wednesday, signifying tactical conquest of its 8 square miles, although Japanese still are resisting to the death. More than 20,000 Nipponese already have died there.

The navy communiqué today, reporting 200 to 400 yard gains further compressing the Japanese toward the sea at the northernmost end, announced the flag raising on the twenty-fourth day of the invasion, but made no claim that the island had been entirely secured.

Officially Takes Possession

In a formal ceremony, the United States Government officially took possession of an island so close to Japan that it is governed as an integral part of a prefecture in the homelands.

The proclamation was issued by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as military governor. Marine Colonel D. A. Stafford, Spokane, Wash., read the proclamation suspending all powers of the Government of the Japanese Empire on Iwo.

Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's 5th Marine Division, on the northwest, pushed toward Kitano Point in a fight which still was raging at nightfall Wednesday.

Progress was slow because of the need to clear the rough land with bulldozers so tanks and other equipment could be brought up to clean out the endless maze of caves.

Small Pocket On East Side

In addition to the Japanese around Kitano Point, a smaller pocket still is holding out against Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates's 4th Marine Division at Tachiiwa Point, on the east side.

The communiqué noted that the Japanese had placed booby traps on the bodies of American dead, in an effort to kill other Marines seeking to retrieve them for burial.

The Navy communique made no mention of American casualties—a figure not brought up officially on Guam since that supplied for the first three days. It was 5,732 including 644 killed. Later Navy Secretary Forrestal in Washington placed the Marine dead at 2,050.

Use Island Airfields

Today's communique disclosed that Navy, Army and Marine planes are operating from captured air bases on the island.

The estimated enemy dead was regarded as conservative. It was reached by an approximate count of burials. Many more Japanese bodies are known to be sealed up in bomb-blasted caves.

In reporting the raising of the flag, usually designating a conquest, the communique specified "some resistance still continues."

Iwo-based Army planes and Army Liberators from more distant bases pounded Chichi in the Bonin islands, north of Iwo on successive days, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Army Liberators also hit southern Paramushiro in the Kuriles.

In addition to the Japanese around Kitano Point, a smaller pocket still is holding out against Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth Marine Division at Tachiiwa Point on the east side.

Today's communique added 48 more Japanese dead and 13 prisoners to the more than 60,000 enemy casualties—the vast majority killed—in the Palau and Marianas islands. These islands long since have been transformed into American bases but enemy remnants still roam the mountainous regions.

Would Change Iwo Name

Washington, March 14 (AP)—A change in the name of Iwo Jima to "Marines Island," commemorating the Leathernecks' great fight on this Pacific isle, was proposed in a resolution prepared today by Representative Hays (D., Ark.).

The Arkansan said the first to suggest the name "Marines Island" was a friend, C. N. Rainwater Little Rock, Ark.

Americans Land On Two Islands East Of Mindoro

Mexico City, March 14 (AP)—Gen. Luis Alfillo Flores, Mexican military attache in the United States, left by plane for Washington today, reportedly to complete arrangements for departure of a Mexican expeditionary air force to a Pacific war front.

M. DANIEL

Manila, Thursday, March 15 (AP). Maj. Gen. Frederick A. Irving's 24th Infantry Division made surprise night landings on Romblon and Simara islands in the central Philippines Tuesday night at light cost to strengthen the American hold on the main shipping lane from the United States to Manila.

The Yank force "seized control" of the small islands, east of American-held Mindoro, after the nocturnal invasions "attained complete tactical surprise," Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today.

Losses Called Minor

American losses were described as "minor."

The 24th, veterans of Leyte, Bataan and Corregidor, destroyed the small Japanese garrison on Romblon in a skirmish at the town of Romblon and killed the few enemy defenders of Simar.

These were the twenty-second and twenty-third invasions of Philippine Islands since American troops first swarmed ashore on islets off Leyte last October.

On Luzon, the 6th Division fighting east of captured Antipolo, on the bitterly contested Marikina watershed area, repulsed a series of counterattacks, inflicting heavy losses on the Japanese.

Continue Eastward Drive

The 1st Division and elements of the 43d continued to advance eastward from the strong Shimbu Line.

To the north, 26th and 32d Division Yanks pressed toward the Balete Pass against stubborn resistance. This pass leads into the Cagayan Valley of northern Luzon, in which is believed the bulk of the Japanese Luzon garrison.

On Mindanao, invaded last Saturday, 41st Division troops expanded their holdings north of two captured airdromes in the Zamboanga area, capturing two more towns, Masilay and Harlow.

5 Miles Beyond City

Strong patrols driving past Zamboanga, which fell Sunday, seized Tumaga and Mercedes, 5 miles east of the city.

Aircraft and naval guns supported ground operations, silencing eight enemy artillery batteries. Light naval craft sank several Japanese seacraft off Basilan Island, 12 miles south of Zamboanga.

Heavy bombers dropped more than 100 tons of bombs on oil storage areas and rail yards at Formosa while patrol planes swept China Sea shipping. Borneo took a 60-ton bombing.

Romblon Island, 10 miles long and 5 wide, is in between Tablas and Sibuyan islands, both of which are in Japanese hands. Simara Island is about 20 miles to the northwest. It measures 5 miles long and 3 wide.

Blamey Visits MacArthur

General Sir Thomas Blamey, commander in chief of Australian military forces which are campaigning against Japanese units in bypassed Southwest Pacific islands, was at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters.

Blamey, also commander of land forces in the Southwest Pacific area where MacArthur is commander in chief, presented high British Empire decorations to Lieut. Gen. Richard K. Sutherland, MacArthur's chief of staff, and Maj. Gen. Spencer B. Aikin, United States chief signal officer.

Big Salvage Job

The cleanup of Manila Bay, now under way, will be one of the world's most tremendous jobs, said Commander William A. Sullivan, of New York city, navy salvage expert who estimated that more than 300 vessels had been sunk in the harbor.

The ships included six craft which the Japanese sent down to block the main harbor channel through the breakwater, and scores of enemy vessels hit by American army and navy planes preparatory to Yank invasion landings.

Sullivan said the sunken tonnage in Manila harbor is far greater than in any other port in the world. He estimated it to be three times that which clogged the harbor of Cherbourg, France.

bomber field just 215 miles from Borneo.

On Luzon the 11th Airborne Division took the prison camp town of Los Banos, near the southern shore of Laguna de Bay, and the town of Santo Tomas, on the main rail and highway route into the southern part of the island.

The 158th Regimental Combat Team seized Batangas, on Batangas Bay, and its adjacent airfield.

Fall Of Antipolo

After sixteen days of battle the 1st Cavalry division on Monday captured Antipolo, southern anchor of the bitterly-defended Shimbu Line on the Marikina watershed east of Manila, but fighting still was heavy east of there.

Fighter-bombers caused heavy explosions on southwestern Formosa and shipping was hit off China and Indo-China.

Heavy bombers hit Borneo with 57 tons of bombs, and airdromes in the Sulu Archipelago, which stretches between Mindanao and Borneo, were raked with 53 tons of bombs.

repaired or rebuilt.

At Clark Field—Stotsenberg the infantry ran into large minefields and the boys of the 117th became demolition experts again, removing or setting off more than 1,300 mines.

Lt. Henry L. Morris, Upper Marlboro, Md., after completing a bridge job had to hold off a stiff Japanese charge. In another engagement, Pvt. Harry Rivers of Middlebury, Vt., had to retire after a stiff fight and he hid several wounded engineers in ditches so well that the enemy did not find them.

It all proves the contention of Lt. Col. Thomas B. Simpson, Tuscaloosa, Ala., that his engineers "got a chance to do just about everything on Luzon."

Jap Resistance Is Held Stiffening On Mindanao

San Francisco, March 14 (AP)—An unconfirmed Tokyo radio broadcast claimed today that Nipponese bombers sank two American destroyers in Bohol Strait in the Philippines last night. The broadcast was beamed to Italy and recorded here.

HOLD PRESS

Manila, March 14 (AP)—Resistance was stiffening on southwestern Mindanao, headquarters reported today, although tank-paced Yanks of the 41st Infantry Division still pursued the Japanese defenders into the mountains north of captured Zamboanga.

On Luzon, meanwhile, mechanized American spearheads drove deeply into the vast area south of Manila, seizing three main towns and an airdrome, while other doughboys east of the capital conquered the southern end of the strong Shimbu Line.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur said in his communiqué today that Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st Division on Mindanao was "pursuing the enemy into the hills north of the airfields against increasing resistance," while medium bombers and fighters flew in close support.

Eight Villages Captured

At least eight villages besides Zamboanga were captured in the first 48 hours of the invasion. Two airfields were taken, one of them a

BRIDGE BUILDERS WERE KEPT BUSY

WITH THE 37TH DIVISION IN MANILA, (delayed)—(AP) To hear the 117th Engineers of the 37th division tell about it, one almost believes that the most important part of the early Luzon campaign was the building of bridges.

The first job, after landing at Lingayen gulf, was to repair a five-span job over the wide Calmay river with material they salvaged because the six-foot surf at Lingayen made it all but impossible to unload bridging.

From Calmay to Fort Stotsenberg and Clark Field they rebuilt a small bridge or culvert every couple of miles and at least one large bridge every 10 or 15 miles. In all, Maj. Thomas P. Love, Webster, Mass., estimates 63 bridges were Manila, March 14 (AP)—Awards by King George of England to two American generals were presented them today by General Sir Thomas Blamey, commander in chief of Australian military forces.

Lieut. Com. Richard K. Sutherland, chief of staff to Gen. Douglas MacArthur, was made Honorary Companion of the Military Division of the Most Honorable Order of the Bath.

Maj. Gen. Spencer B. Akin, chief signal officer on MacArthur's staff, received the award of Honorary Commander of the Military Division, Most Excellent Order of the British Empire.

REPORT SOME JAPS STILL ON SAIPAN

SAIPAN (Delayed)—(AP) This strange Pacific war — organized Japanese resistance on Saipan officially was reported at an end July 8, 1944. Now it is a base for B-29s raiding Japan.

But Japanese still are at large on it—and close by.

American engineers at Camp Carr told Robbin Coons, Associated Press war correspondent, some Japanese prisoners had confided how they used to huddle on hilltops and watch American movies in the camp. The Japanese couldn't understand the dialogue but enjoyed the music and the pictures.

Mexico Sends Mission On Trade To Europe

Mexico City, March 14 (AP)—A Mexican economic mission will leave Tuesday for Europe, Gilberto Valenzuela, head of the mission, said today.

The group will seek to open markets for Mexican products whose wartime demand in the United States is slackening, and offer to import certain European products in return.

The mission will go by train to New York, then proceed to Lisbon and London, where the remainder of the itinerary will be mapped, Valenzuela said. The group plans to remain in Europe four months.

Dutra, Gomes Top Brazilian Candidates

Rio de Janeiro, March 14 (AP)—War Minister Eurico Gaspar Dutra and Air Force Gen. Eduardo Gomes emerged today as the leading candidates in Brazil's impending Presidential elections, for which President Getulio Vargas is expected to set a date in September.

Dutra was proposed as a candidate in a manifesto issued last night by the Governors of Sao Paulo and Minas Gerais states—both stanch lieutenants of Vargas.

The opposition press, meanwhile, boomed Gomes as the choice of the united opposition. Neither man has formally announced his candidacy.

Vargas announced on Sunday that he would not be a candidate.

Future Is Undecided

OTTAWA, March 14 (CP).—No decision has been made on the feasibility of maintaining the Alaska highway after its use for military purposes ceases nor on Canada's ability to maintain it, according to information available here today.

When the road's war purpose ceases an existing agreement provides that it come under Canadian control and form part of the Canadian highway system. It will then be up to Canada to keep it in repair or not as may be decided. The only stipulation is that if the road is kept open United States traffic should be free to use it without any discrimination.

PLAN TRUSTEESHIP FOR JAP ISLANDS

Washington, March 14 (A. P.).—Former enemy territories, such as the Japanese-mandated islands, would be administered by two or more Powers under a proposal to be presented at the San Francisco security conference.

Not embraced in the Dumbarton Oaks security plan, the trusteeship proposal, it was learned yesterday, is intended to replace one-nation mandates. Apparently this formula was discussed at the Roosevelt, Stalin, Churchill Yalta meeting.

Authorities here suggested the plan might provide for joint control by one or more Powers of an island or dependent territory in which the controlling Powers had some special interest.

Elsewhere on the international front President Roosevelt said yesterday that the United States and Canada agree that bold and expansive action should be taken to solve post-war trade questions.

With Canadian Prime Minister Mackenzie King at his side the President read to his news conference a statement that relations between the two countries are as firm and friendly as ever.

"The Free Philippines" (English) and "Malayang" (Tagalog), which used to be circulated free by the O. W. I., have been enlarged to four pages and are being sold. Advertisements also are being accepted. Any profits, the O. W. I. said today, will go to the United States Treasury.

Story of Rhine Hero In Congress Record

Washington, March 14 (A. P.).—The story of the Yankee soldier credited with being first to cross the Rhine was part of the official record of Congress today. Written by Don Whitehead for the Associated Press, the exciting account was placed in the record by Representative Ramey (R.-Ohio.)

The hero is Sergeant Alexander Drabik of Holland, Ohio, singled out as the man first to cross the river in the establishment of the First Army's foothold.

DRAFTEES, 18-20 SLATED FOR ARMY

Agreement to Cover Three Month Period—Technicians Excepted.

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP) For the next three months, all inductees between 18 and 20, inclusive, with a few exceptions, will be earmarked for the Army.

A joint statement by the Army and Navy said the arrangement was made "to satisfy the current needs of the Army for young infantry replacements."

During the three months period covered by the agreement, the Navy's calls upon selective service will be filled with men 21 to 38 years old.

The only exceptions in the 18-20 bracket will be inductees who qualify and are assigned to special Navy programs such as radio technicians and combat aircrewmen.

The text of the statement:

"As the result of an arrangement between the Army and the Navy, all inductees 18 to 20 years old inclusive will be acquired by the Army for a period of three months beginning March 15, with the exception of inductees who qualify and are earmarked for special Navy programs such as radio technicians and combat aircrewmen.

"This arrangement was undertaken in order to satisfy the current needs of the Army for young infantry replacements. During the three months period covered by the agreement, the Navy's calls upon selective service will be filled with men 21 to 38 years old.

The bulk of men entering the Army in recent months have been channeled into the infantry replacement system and eventually into combat divisions.

Only recently selective service calls were increased to give the Army more men for the infantry after all other branches of the service had been tapped for men who could be trained as infantrymen.

These replacements, after some 15 to 17 weeks basic training, are shipped overseas, placed in replacement pools, and then assigned to veteran divisions.

Blais to Head Missi in London

Washington, March 14 (A. P.).—The appointment of Thomas C. Blaisdell Jr., now in the Office of War Mobilization and Reconversion, to be chief of an American Economic Mission in London was announced today. Mr. Blaisdell who has been in charge of planning and statistics in the OWM, will have the rank of minister. A letter written by the Prseident to Mr. Blaisdell said that he would be a member of the staff of Ambassador John G. Winant for "such foreign economic affairs as the State Department or the Foreign Economic Administration, through the Ambassador, may request you to undertake."

W. Averell Harriman, Ambassador to Moscow, and Philip Reed formally headed the economic mission. Like them, Mr. Blaisdell also will represent this country in London on a combined shipping adjustment board a committee of the combined production and resources board and other Anglo-American agencies.

Roosevelt Proclaims April 6—Army Day

Washington, March 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt today proclaimed April 6 as Army Day and urged civilians to put renewed energy into the task of supplying implements of war to fighting men.

Senate Groups Set Aviation Hearings

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Two Senate committees will start full-scale hearings next week on the United States postwar aviation policies.

The Foreign Relations Committee named a subcommittee to start hearings, probably next week, on the international aviation treaty, fruit of the Chicago aviation conference last November, which proposes to set up an international agency to deal with world aviation.

The Commerce Committee acceded, in a closed session, to the demands of Senator McCarran (D., Nev.) that he be heard on his bill which would set up a single United States aviation company to carry all overseas traffic. McCarran will be heard on Monday and will present further witnesses on Thursday.

Old Disputes To Come Up

Both hearings will bring up controversies which have been simmering here for a year.

The aviation treaty names, among other purposes of the international aviation organization, the prevention of "economic waste caused by unreasonable competition." American aviation men fear the phrase skirts very close to the cartelized form of European business which parcels out markets to business enterprises, and then limits them to those fields.

McCarran's proposal for a single overseas company has the emphatic opposition of fifteen independent aviation companies, And both the State and Commerce departments have declared against the idea in preference for open competition both among American companies and between American and foreign companies.

3 British Concerns Favored

The hearings will follow close on the heels of the British Government's announcement, made yesterday, that it proposes to permit three British companies to handle all overseas traffic, rigidly dividing the field among them.

The subcommittee, which will hold open hearings on the international treaty, will include Senator George (D., Ga.), chairman, and Senators Thomas (D., Utah), Pepper (D., Fla.), La Follette (Prog., Wis.), and White (R., Maine).

White, in taking the committee assignment, announced he would abandon his intention of pressing for a committee resolution demanding that the State Department hold up approval of the temporary agreement on international aviation, reached at Chicago. White told reporters he had determined he didn't have enough votes to carry the resolution.

Senator Connally (D., Texas), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, requested the subcommittee to "proceed as rapidly as possible," saying there was a possibility the hearings could be completed before the United Nations conference opens in San Francisco on April 25.

FARM LABOR AT LOW LEVEL

Supply Declines In Quality As Well As Quantity

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Approach of perhaps the most important spring planting season of the war finds farm labor employment at its lowest seasonal level since the Government started keeping records 21 years ago.

Reporting this, the Agriculture Department today said the labor force was 150,000 persons below that of a year ago. Some of this decrease represented young previously deferred farm workers who have been drafted recently for military service.

8,400,000 In Farm Jobs

Farm employment was estimated at 8,400,000 persons, including 6,894,000 family workers and 1,520,000 hired workers. Although no figures were given, the department said women provided a larger proportion of the labor force than a year ago.

Officials said the farm labor supply had declined in quality as well as quantity. Much of the supply is made up of older men and women who quite naturally grow less able to work each succeeding year. Many of these workers normally would have retired by now, but are continuing to work because of the urgent need for their services.

German Prisoners Available

Despite this decline in the labor supply, agriculture is being asked to match last year's record crop production. Some of the labor lost will be offset by an increase of about 30,000 in German prisoners of war to be made available for seasonal farm work.

In many sections of the country, spring work is being delayed by precipitation, excessively wet soils and snow-covered fields. On the other hand, drought conditions were reported by the Weather Bureau to be threatening citrus fruits and truck farms in Florida.

HOUSE REJECTS SENATE'S MILD MANPOWER BILL

WASHINGTON, March 14—(AP) An adamant House refused today to accept the Senate's comparatively mild manpower control bill and sent the issue to a senate-house committee to be ironed out.

The 211 to 177 vote by which the House acted was a test of strength between those backing the administration's "work or jail" bill, passed by the House Feb. 1, and forces supporting the less-stringent Senate measure.

The make-up of the conferees appointed by Speaker Rayburn to represent the House in the conference committee indicated that the House will refuse to budge from the major provisions of its measure.

Four of the five House conferees—May of Kentucky, Thomason of Texas and Brooks of Louisiana, Democrats, and Andrews of New York, Republican—voted for the "work or jail" bill today. The fifth, Short of Missouri, a republican, opposed it.

Republicans led the fight to force immediate consideration of the senate bill, which, generally speaking, would put legal teeth in the war manpower commission's current job recruitment program and impose a $10,000 fine and a year imprisonment on employers violating WMC employe-ceiling orders. The senate measure would penalize workers indirectly by restricting their option to go from one job to another.

The 134 republicans who fought unsuccessfully to keep the legislation out of conference and to dispose of it immediately were joined by 42 democrats and the lone progressive party member.

They were overwhelmed by 172 democrats, 38 republicans and the American-labor party member who joined to uphold a rules committee recommendation to seek an adjustment in conference.

The alignment was one of the strangest in recent house voting, some new dealers and avowed labor spokesmen joining in the republican move, and some of them standing with the democratic house leadership.

Had the rules committee's recommendation been rejected or amended, republicans planned to move for immediate consideration of the senate bill and to offer as a substitute a similar proposal once rejected by the house.

Representative Halleck (R-Ind.) warned that a stalemate would result if the legislation went to conference, and there might be no bill at all.

And a Senate committee heard testimony that the meat supply seems to be so short that the Army and Navy—to say nothing of civilians—may not get all they need.

Senator Wherry (R-Neb) urged the Senate to set up a five-member committee to inquire into all phases of food production, distribution, processing and transportation. He urged also another committee to investigate food exports and imports.

Before the Senate Banking committee, G. L. Childress, representing the American Meat Institute, testified that the meat shortage "may become increasingly more severe unless remedial steps are taken immediately."

"The present meat situation is so serious that it threatens meat supplies necessary for war purposes—for Army and Navy uses," he added.

O'Mahoney Hopeful

Wherry's demand touched off a general Senate debate during which Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said he had a reason to believe there will be announcements "in the near future" which will improve the meat situation.

O'Mahoney did not amplify to the Senate but told reporters later that one step he expects is a regulation allowing purchase of range cattle by the head without regard to weight. O'Mahoney said this would lead to more stocker and feeder cattle—the usual intermediate step before cattle reach the slaughterer.

Chairman Mead (D-NY) said the War Investigating committee has been inquiring into the food situation with a view to holding public hearings soon.

The Banking committee is considering legislation to extend the price control act, now due to expire June 30, through 1946. Childress, general manager of the Houston (Texas) Packing company, directed his testimony principally to the effect he said OPA regulations have had on the meat industry.

Under them, he said, packers are operating at a loss and he asked an amendment to the price law to require that no ceiling on any cut or variety of meat be lower than cost.

In a general discussion, Childress said "the beef business has been governed by a formula which has established the business on a losing basis for over a year."

As for hogs, he said hog producers produced a record crop last year and then found "the floor on hogs had been lowered, that there was a corn freeze, that there was a penalty on producing heavy hogs."

The hog producer's reaction was to cut production, Childress continued, adding:

"The result is that today the commercial slaughter of hogs is 50 per cent of that of a year ago."

He said the "black market" is still "serious and widespread" and that OPA enforcement must be tightened.

Lost on Lend-Lease

Howard C. Greer, general manager of Kingan & Co., Indianapolis, testified that his company had sustained a loss of approximately $1,000,000 from its operations during the last eight months. He said most of it was due to being required to fill orders from war procurement agencies at below cost.

"We are required to furnish frozen pork sides for Lend-Lease shipment to England at the rate of over 200,000 pounds per week at an out-of-pocket loss of around $1 a hundredweight," he told the committee. "We are required to produce beef for the Army at prices less than the cost of live cattle."

The question of increasing butter production arose during testimony of Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Cooperative Milk Producers federation. Holman said a six-cent increase in the market price was the "most practical means."

Otherwise, he urged an additional $100,000,000 of subsidies during the 12 months beginning next July 1. This would bring total dairy subsidies for the period to $796,000,000.

Army Will Close Canol Project April 1

Washington, March 14 (AP)—Chairman Mead (D., N.Y.) of the Senate War Investigating Committee disclosed today that the Army has agreed to close down its Canol petroleum project in Canada "about April 1."

Mead made his statement to the Senate during a speech in which Senator Moore (R., Okla.) assailed the War Department for what he described as a "bullheaded and arbitrary attitude" in going ahead with the projcet against the advice of "petroleum experts."

Date Is Changed

Mead recalled the War Department's recent announcement that the project will be closed June 30, but said the committee had received more "satisfactory" promises since.

Top officials, he said, told a closed meeting of his group the new deadline is "about April 1."

"Operations at the wells will be closed immediately." Mead declared. He said the Whitehorse refinery will be closed as soon as it has refined the crude oil on hand.

Offered To Canada

Workers, he said, will be made available to the oil industry in this country.

"The Army says that the properties are to be offered to Canada under an option to buy at the present appraised value," Moore said.

permitting German reconnaisance planes to follow them to the field while the Americans complained the Russians had failed to put up adequate ground protection for the bombers.

Three days after the raid, the War department here issued a brief "memorandum to the press" which said "a recent raid by the German air force on two airdromes in Russia used in shuttle operations by our strategic bombers caused the loss of three crew members and a number of American planes."

"In view of the incomplete disclosures displayed by the Army in connection with this project, I seriously doubt the wisdom of permitting the Army to negotiate for the disposal of the property," Moore added.

Moore said the property should be sold by the Surplus Property Board.

May Abandon Highway

Senator Magnuson (D., Wash.) later told the Senate that he understood the Alaskan Highway also would be abandoned. The Army, he said, had picked the route without consulting the Alaskan Highway Commission, created by Congress, which had studied the problem for years.

"They have spent $139,000,000 on it, exclusive of bridges, and I understand the Canadian Government has stated it cannot maintain the southern end," Magnuson added.

He expressed the hope that if the Canol project cannot be sold for a satisfactory price that it will be dismantled and the machinery returned to this country.

Reveal 47 Flying Fortresses Were Destroyed on Ground

WASHINGTON, March 14.—(AP) Maj. Gen. Orvil Anderson said today he had no criticism for anyone as the result of the destruction of 47 Flying Fortresses in a German air raid on an airfield in Russia last June 21.

Anderson, deputy commander of the 8th Air Force, was asked at a news conference about a story by Alexander Kendrick, returned Moscow correspondent of the Philadelphia Inquirer, Kendrick wrote that Americans and Russians blamed each other for the success of the German attack on the field at Poltava.

Anderson said the defense of any air field was "inherently weak" and that the 8th Air Force command had accepted the risk of an attack in sending the shuttle bombers across Germany to the American-built field in Russia.

"The Germans," Anderson said, "simply put on an aggressive attack."

Kendrick, in his article, said the Russians blamed the Americans for

ARMY CASUALTIES

Washington, March 14.—The War Department announced today 2,348 casualties in the European and Southwest Pacific areas.

In all of these cases next of kin have been notified previously and have been kept informed directly by the War Department of any change in status.

NAVY CASUALTIES

The Navy Department announced forty-three casualties in the Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard which makes a total of 91,032 casualties reported by the Navy since Pearl Harbor. Of this total 34,808 are reported dead, 41,387 wounded, 10,566 missing and 4,271 prisoners of war.

Jamaicans at Raritan Arsenal

METUCHEN, N. J., March 14 (AP).—Arrival of 375 Jamaican workers at the Raritan Arsenal was announced today by Colonel Max A. Elser, arsenal commander.

They are British subjects and will be permitted off the military reservation only with special passes, he said.

Jews Ask Seat At Frisco Conference

Philadelphia, March 14 (AP)—Jewish representation at the San Francisco Allied Nations conference was asked last night by Gabriel Wechsler, national secretary of the Emergency Committee to Save the Jewish People of Europe.

"The Jewish problem must be settled to insure the peace," he said at a meeting sponsored by the American League for a Free Palestine.

Jap Children Trained In 'Bayonet Charges'

San Francisco, March 14 (AP)—Japanese children in the elementary school grades are being trained in "bayonet charges," the enemy homeland was told today by the Tokyo radio.

"These children have been very enthusiastic in this training," said the FCC monitored broadcast, saying they are going out to the decisive battlefront by polishing their fighting spirit for the destruction of the United States and Britain."

The program was started in the fifth and sixth grades of the Kawaguchi National School in Mogami county, Yamagata prefecture, and is to be extended to youngsters below the fifth grade.

Saposa Island Cleared By Australian Forces

San Francisco, March 14 (AP)—Australian forces have cleared all Japanese soldiers from the island of Saposa off northwestern Bougainville, the Melbourne radio reported today. The Aussies invaded the island last Thursday.

The operation, said the Australian broadcast, isolates the Japanese garrison on the Bougainville side of Buka passage and gives the Aussies control over the entire western coast of Soraken peninsula.

Melbourne reported that Australian patrols are taking a heavy toll of Japanese outposts in the main northern sector of Bougainville, where the Nipponese are using artillery constantly.

6 Tokyo Papers Told To Print In One Plant

San Francisco, March 14 (AP)—Six of Tokyo's leading daily publications have been ordered printed in one plant, according to a Nazi transocean agency dispatch intercepted today by the Federal Communications Commission.

This is apparently the first specific application of the "temporary" measures adopted by the Japanese Cabinet Tuesday to insure the publication of papers in emergencies arising from the "present critical war situation."

The papers affected, said Transocean, are the Asahi, the Mainichi, the Yomiuri Hochi, the Tokyo Shimbun, the Nippon Times and the Nippon Sangyo Keizai, an influential commercial daily.

To Move Equipment

Transocean said the joint publication had been ordered by President Taketora Ogata of the Board of Information to permit the printing equipment thus freed to "be evacuated and kept ready at other places" in view of "the increased enemy air-raids," but it did not specify when the order would go into effect.

The Government, according to the Doemi News Agency, wishes to see newspapers continue publication no matter how serious the situation because of the "important role newspapers play in the dissemination of domestic propaganda in line with the war situation."

San Francisco, March 14 (AP). Seventy Philippines-based United States planes, mostly B-24's, struck Formosa at midday Tuesday, the Tokyo radio reported today in an unconfirmed broadcast recorded here.

Huge Carrier Launching Set

Newport News, Va., March 14 (AP)—The largest flattop in the world, the 45,000-ton aircraft carrier Midway, will be christened and towed into the James River from her building dock here next Tuesday.

The Midway, which will be able to carry more than 80 twin-engined planes, will be christened by Mrs. Bradford Williams Ripley 2d, of Dayton, Ohio, widow of a navy lieutenant who lost his life in a plane crash in the Pacific, and daughter of James M. Cox, a former Governor of Ohio.

Named After Battle

Named after the Battle of Midway, which occurred June 3-6, 1942, the new carrier is a sister ship of the Coral Sea, which will be launched this spring at the New York Navy Yard. The Midway was built by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, which is now building another 45,000-ton carrier and which recently was awarded contracts for two more.

Lieutenant Ripley, who was born in Chicago, was graduated from Princeton University in 1938, joined the Navy two years later and won his wings in 1941. After service in several shore billets he was assigned to Fighting Squadron 12 and on April 12, 1943, died as the result of a plane crash.

Mrs. Ripley's father was the Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1920, opposing Warren G. Harding.

TWO NOTED VIENNESE BECOME U. S. CITIZENS

Two prominent citizens of pre-Nazi Vienna, a well-known social worker and a poet-playwright, were among the 300 persons sworn in yesterday as American citizens by Judge John Knox at Federal District Court.

Eighty-eight-year-old Sophie Gruenfeld was decorated by the Emperor Francis Joseph for her work in organizing summer homes for impoverished and tubercular Jewish children from Vienna. One of these was seized by the Nazis in 1938, and the Jewish children expelled.

Mrs. Gruenfeld came to this country, where she has three daughters, nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, in 1939.

Dr. Richard Beer-Hofmann, 78 years old, whose forty-room home in Vienna was the meeting place of such literary figures as Franz Werfel, Arthur Schnitzler and Hugo von Hofmannsthal, is the author of "Jacob's Traum," produced by Max Reinhardt in 1918, and other verse plays. His most recent work, a poem, "Herbstmorgen in Oesterrich," was published here last year. It centers around the figure of his wife, Paula, who died in Zurich in 1939, after their escape from the Nazis.

Army Package Shocks Mother of Dead Captain

Return to Her of His Blood-Stained Shirt Protested

INDIANAPOLIS, March 14 (AP). —The office here of Representative Louis Ludlow, Democrat, of Indiana, said today Mr. Ludlow had asked Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to investigate the forwarding by the Army of blood-stained clothing of an artillery captain to his parents in Indianapolis. The captain was killed in New Guinea. Names of the officer and the parents were not disclosed.

The officer's mother was quoted by Representative Ludlow as saying she received a package from the Army depot at Kansas City, Mo., containing mud-caked, blood-smeared clothing of her dead son. Ludlow said she added:

"It was the most horrible, inhuman, brutal act in the world. I couldn't believe any one could be so heartless as to send home tthat blood-smeared shirt."

Representative Ludlow said: "I have referred it to the Secretary of War and am awaiting an answer."

Colonel C. G. Blake, commander of the Quartermaster Depot, was quoted at Kansas City as saying the procedure was "most unusual, and usually we keep such things pretty well under control."

Lieutenant Colonel John R. Murphy, of the personal effects bureau of the depot, was quoted as saying the incident was an apparent violation of Army regulation. He said a check was impossible without the name of the captain.

REV. J. A. MULRY, JESUIT, IS DEAD

Missionary Was a Former Instructor at Fordham.

The Rev. Joseph A. Mulry, a Jesuit missionary in the Philippines for more than twenty years and a former instructor in rhetoric and poetry at Fordham University, died January 15 in the Los Banos internment camp, south of Manila, according to word received by the Jesuit Philippine Bureau, 51 East 83d street. Death was due to natural causes.

Father Mulry, who was 56 years old, had been teaching poetry and rhetoric at the Ateneo, the Jesuit university in Manila, before he was interned by the Japanese. He helped set up farming cooperatives in the islands and was active in forming Catholic Evidence clubs and in revitalization of the Catholic press.

He was born in the Washington Square section of New York and entered the Jesulit order a short time after being graduated from St. Francis Xavier's College, 30 West 16th street. His father, Thomas M. Mulry, was a former president of the Immigrant Savings Bank.

Father Mulry taught at Fordham from 1913 to 1918 when an uncle, the Rev. Joseph A. Mulry, S. J., was president of the university. He was ordained a priest in 1921 and sent to the Philippines three years 'ater.

A Solemn Memorial Mass will be celebrated at 10 A. M. Saturday in St. Philip Neri Roman Catholic Church, Grand Concourse and 201st street, the Bronx.

Surviving are a sister, Miss Mary Mulry, and five brothers, the Rev. Louis J. Mulry, S. J.; the Rev. Dr. Vincent DePaul Mulry of St. Stephen's Church, Second avenue and 28th street; Francis X. Mulry, James A. Mulry, and George A. Mulry.

Enemy Reports

The enemy frequently puts out false reports in an effort to gain information of military value. The dispatches below have not been confirmed by any Allied source.

The Tokyo radio claimed today that Nipponese bombers sank two American destroyers in Bohol Strait in the Philippines last night. The broadcast was beamed to Italy and recorded by the FCC.

Last night the Tokyo radio reported that huge fires were observed Sunday on American aircraft carriers massed off Ulithi Island, north of Yap in the Mid-Pacific, as the result of a surprise blow by units of a Japanese special attack corps. Tokyo offered no explanation as to what our carriers were doing in the area and failed to give any details of the engagement, according to DNB, which picked up this Japanese broadcast.

LONDON MARCH 14-(AP)-BRITAIN'S PLANS TO REGAIN A POSITION AS ONE OF THE WORLD'S LEADING ECONOMIC POWERS SURGED FORWARD TODAY AS GOVERNMENT EXPERTS PURSUED A PROGRAM OF TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH EUROPEAN COUNTRIES.

PACTS ALREADY HAVE BEEN CONCLUDED WITH SWEDEN AND SWITZERLAND. IMPORTANT TALKS ARE UNDER WAY WITH TURKISH ECONOMIC REPRESENTATIVES.

CONVERSATIONS ALSO ARE UNDERSTOOD TO BE IN THE PRELIMINARY STAGE WITH COUNTRIES FREED OF GERMAN DOMINATION OR IN THE PROCESS OF LIBERATION.

AS A FURTHER STEP, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL AND FOREIGN SECRETARY ANTHONY EDEN ARE EXPECTED TO MAKE AN ATTEMPT TO CONVINCE REPRESENTATIVES OF THE BRITISH COMMONWEALTH, WHEN THEY MEET HERE EARLY IN APRIL FOR A PRE-SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE, THAT EMPIRE PARTNERSHIP ASSURES A BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR THEIR COUNTRIES.

THERE ARE INDICATIONS THE BRITISH LEADERS WILL ATTEMPT TO TIGHTEN THE ECONOMIC TIES DINDING THE COMMONWEALTH AND EXPAND BRITAIN'S CONTROVERSIAL TRADE POLICY OF EMPIRE PREFERENCES.

IN LINE WITH AN OFFICIAL ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD SUPPORT THE WORLD TRADE FIGHT BY INCREASING THE APPROPRIATION FOR BACKING EXPORT TRADE FROM AN EQUIVALENT OF $300,000,000 TO APPROXIMATELY $800,000,000, BRITISH BUSINESSMEN ARE BEING URGED TO GO AFTER OVERSEAS TRADE RATHER THAN CONCENTRATE ON MEETING HOME DEMANDS.

LONDON MAR.14 (AP WIREPHOTO)-xx RUINS.

WHILE ZHUKOV CLEARED HIS FLANKS AND PREPARED FOR A FINAL ASSAULT ON BERLIN, THE GERMAN TRANSOCEAN AGENCY SAID THE DEFENDERS OF THE REICH CAPITAL HAD BEEN ORDERED TO FIGHT TO THE LAST AND REPORTED THAT THE BATTLE WOULD BE DIRECTED BY LT.GEN.BRUNO VON HAUSENSCHILD, WHO LED THE GERMAN SPEARHEAD WHICH THE RUSSIANS TURNED BACK JUST OUTSIDE MOSCOW IN 1941.

ONE NAZI CORRESPONDENT SAID THERE WERE MOUNTING INDICATIONS THAT ZHUKOV INTENDS TO TAKE STETTIN, 60 MILES NORTH OF KUESTRIN, BY AN ENCIRCLING MANEUVER. HE SAID THE RUSSIAN COMMANDER HAD BROUGHT FERRIES AND BRIDGE-BUILDING EQUIPMENT TO THE ODER SOUTH OF STETTIN AND ALSO IN THE AREA OF STEPENITZ, 15 MILES NORTH OF THE CITY. THE RUSSIANS NOW ARE FIGHTING IN STETTIN'S EASTERN SUBURBS.

LONDON, March 14-(AP) Allied establishement of "an ecomonic Eisenhower and and economic genreal staff " was urges tpday by Lord Templewood,former Briti ambassador to Spain, to defeat the "deliberate plan of Hitler and the Nazis to make Europe dafe for chaos."

He coupled his suggestion, ~~xxxx~~ made in a luncheon address, with a warning that "we must expect even worse horrors before the war's end" with sudden death and starvation in occupied countires and the possibility of a "final attack by the most ruthless methods on this countyy. "

"Only by applying to the civil field the same strategy that has been so successful in the military field, ~~xxx~~ a war on two fronts," can the Allies prevent Hitler from carrying out his plan for destruction, Lord Templewwod cautioned.

"On the material side we need a much more concerted movement than we have today. We need for Europe a ~~xxxxx~~ supremem commander, and economic Eisenhower and and ec. general staff."

The former Sir Samuel Hoare said that the need had arisen because the allied admin strative machine "is now so complicated and the demands on it so great that relief will continue to arrive too little and too late. "

He urged the forthcoming San Fransisco conf. to tackel the problem of giving "Hitler's victims new hope."

JOHNSTON DEFENDS REDS

W. L. White's Book 'Overemphasizes' the Bad, He Says

SPOKANE, Wash., March 14 (AP)—Eric A. Johnston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, said today that the book, "Report on the Russians," written by W. L. White, overemphasized the bad about Russia and minimized the good.

In a statement to the press today, Mr. Johnston said:

"Because William L. White accompanied me to Russia, I have had many inquiries about his new book on that country. They call for an answer, in general terms at least.

"I do not for a moment question White's right to say what he chooses, but I frankly disagree with him as to the significance of many things we both saw.

"I believe that a genuine two-way understanding between Russia and the United States is indispensable. Each nation must accept honest and frank criticism from one another. But each nation should strive to avoid unfair and destructive criticism of the other. We have got to learn to get along with Russia and the Russians have got to learn to get along with us."

(170) LONDON MARCH 14-(AP)-ALLIED MILITARY MEN WERE QUOTED IN A WESTERN FRONT DISPATCH LAST NIGHT AS EXPRESSING THE VIEW THE WAR IS LIKELY TO END IN THE EARLY SUMMER, BUT HIGHLY-PLACED BRITONS KEEP THEIR FINGERS CROSSED.

ANNOUNCING IN THE HOUSE OF COMMONS YESTERDAY THAT ALLIED ARMIES WERE PREPARING TO CROSS THE RHINE IN FORCE, WAR SECRETARY SIR JAMES GRIGG ADDED:

"IN SPITE OF THIS MIRACULOUS BETTERMENT IN OUR FORTUNES IT WOULD BE UNWISE TO ACT AS IF ALL WERE OVER, BAR THE SHOUTING...WE HAVE HAD ONE FALSE DAWN..."

WRITING FROM THE U.S.NINTH ARMY FRONT, ASSOCIATED PRESS CORRESPONDENT WES GALLAGHER SAID MILITARY LEADERS NOW BELIEVE THE FORMAL END MAY COME THIS SUMMER, ALTHOUGH FULL DESTRUCTION OF THE ENEMY'S FORCES MAY REQUIRE A LONGER TIME.

MAR 14 1945

LONDON, MARCH 14-(AP)-A NEW RUSSIAN ONSLAUGHT SOUTH OF KOENIGSBERG IN AN EFFORT TO DIVIDE AND SMASH THE REMAINING GERMAN TROOPS IN EAST PRUSSIA WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY THE BERLIN RADIO AS ADVICES FROM MOSCOW INDICATED THE EARLY FALL OF GDYNIA, THE MODEL SEAPORT OF PRE-WAR POLAND.

THE EAST PRUSSIAN ASSAULT WAS OPENED EARLY TUESDAY AFTER A HEAVY ARTILLERY BARRAGE, THE GERMAN BROADCAST SAID, WITH SEPARATE RED ARMY COLUMNS DRIVING WESTWARD ON EITHER SIDE OF ZINTEN, 20 MILES BELOW KOENIGSBERG.

AN EARLIER DISPATCH FROM MOSCOW GAVE SOME SUPPORT TO THE GERMAN REPORT. IT SAID THERE WERE SIGNS THE BATTLE OF KOENIGSBERG WAS FLARING UP WITH NEW VIGOR.

COL.ERNST VON HAMMER, NAZI COMMENTATOR, DECLARED THAT "NUMEROUS" LOCAL RUSSIAN THRUSTS HAS PROVIDED A TIP-OFF THAT A MAJOR ASSAULT WAS IMMINENT IN EAST PRUSSIA.

WESTWARD AT THE TIP OF THE POLISH CORRIDOR, RUSSIAN STORM FORCES WERE BATTERING GDYNIA FROM THREE SIDES AS THE GERMAN FOOTHOLD ON THE BAY OF DANZIG STEADILY DWINDLED.

MOSCOW, MARCH 14-(AP)-RUSSIAN STORM FORCES BATTERED PRE-WAR POLAND'S MODEL SEAPORT OF GDYNIA FROM THREE SIDES TODAY AS THE GERMAN FOOTHOLD ON THE BAY OF DANZIG STEADILY DWINDLED.
FIELD DISPATCHES INDICATED MARSHAL KONSTANTIN K.ROKOSSOVSKY WAS DETERMINED TO WIPE OUT THE GDYNIA POCKET AT TOP SPEED, LEAVING THE CITY OF DANZIG TO BE DEALT WITH LATER. RED ARMY FORCES WERE SAID TO BE CLOSING IN ON GDYNIA FROM THE NORTH, WEST AND SOUTHWEST WHILE AIRCRAFT RANGED OUT TO SEA TO CHOKE OFF ENEMY EFFORTS TO REINFORCE OR EVACUATE THE BESIEGED PORT.
GDYNIA'S MOPUP WOULD LAY DANZIG OPEN FOR COMPLETE ENCIRCLEMENT.
FIGHTING ALONG THE BERLIN FRONT FROM STETTIN TO FRANKFURT WAS DISMISSED BY OFFICIAL RUSSIAN REPORTS AS HAVING ONLY "LOCAL SIGNIFICANCE." BUT THERE SEEMED NO DOUBT MARSHAL GREGORY K.ZHUKOV WAS INCREASING PRESSURE AGAINST THE ENEMY'S POSITIONS ON THE WEST BANK OF THE ODER, ESPECIALLY NEAR FRANKFURT, SO HE CAN DEPLOY THE BREAKTHROUGH ARMIES WHEN THE TIME COMES TO STRIKE FOR THE GERMAN CAPITAL.
(BY GERMAN ACCOUNT, ZHUKOV ALREADY HAS SENT NINE DIVISIONS, OR NEARLY 100,000 MEN, WEST OF THE ODER BETWEEN KUESTRIN AND FRANKFURT, BUT THE RUSSIANS NEVER HAVE ANNOUNCED ANY CROSSING OF THE RIVER IN THAT AREA.)
A HARD STRUGGLE CONTINUED IN STETTIN'S EASTERN SUBURB, ALTDAMM, WHERE ZHUKOV IS TRYING TO PENETRATE A DEEP BELT OF MINES AND ANTI-TANK GUNS IN THE WOODED HILLS SOUTH OF THE DAMMSCHER SEE.
IN THE GROWING BATTLE FOR GDYNIA, ROKOSSOVSKY'S TROOPS GAINED HIGH GROUND IMMEDIATELY OVERLOOKING THE PORT FROM THE SOUTH AND SWARMED FORWARD TO ATTACK ADLESHORST, A COASTAL SETTLEMENT, ONE AND ONE-HALF MILES FROM GDYNIA PROPER. HIS ARTILLERY WAS SHELLING MILITARY INSTALLATIONS IN THE CITY AT WILL.
ANOTHER RED ARMY FORMATION WAS SAID TO HAVE ALMOST ENTERED THE WESTERN OUTSKIRTS OF THE SEAPORT WHILE A THIRD COMING DOWN THE COAST FROM THE NORTH WAS WITHIN EASY SHELLING DISTANCE.
WITHIN THE NAVAL BASE OF KOLBERG ON THE POMERANIAN COAST THE RUSSIAN PUNCHED FARTHER INTO A MAZE OF FORTIFIED BUILDINGS, WHERE MIXED REMNANTS OF THE GERMAN ARMY, VOLKSSTURM AND NAVY FACED ULTIMATE ANNIHILATION.
THERE WERE SOME SIGNS TTHAT THE BATTLE OF KOENIGSBERG, WHICH ENTERED A RELATIVE LULL AT THE END OF FEBRUARY, WAS FLARING UP WITH NEW VIGOR. SOVIET INFANTRY HAS BEEN REINFORCED IN THE EASTERN SUBURBS AND MASSED GUNS HAVE INCREASED THEIR FIRE ON THE BURNING INNER CITY.
THE GERMAN COUNTEROFFENSIVE IN WESTERN HUNGARY FAILED TO SLACKEN, ALTHOUGH IN THE PAST SIX DAYS, THE RUSSIANS DECLARE, THEY HAVE KNOCKED OUT MORE THAN 400 ENEMY TANKS AND INFLICTED HEAVY CASUALTIES.

AWARE THAT THE THIRD ARMY'S NEW ATTACK WAS A DANGEROUS THREAT TO THE SAAR INDUSTRIAL AREA, THE NAZIS WERE REACTING SHARPLY TO EVERY AMERICAN MOVE.

THE BERLIN RADIO REPORTED THAT THE THIRD ARMY WAS TRYING TO FORCE A CROSSING OF THE MOSELLE AT SEVERAL POINTS WEST OF COBLENZ, WITH UP TO FOUR INFANTRY AND FOUR TANK DIVISIONS AVAILABLE FOR THE ASSAULT. THREE ATTEMPTS TO CROSS THE STREAM ALREADY HAD BEEN REPULSED, THE NAZI BROADCASTS SAID.

BY A.I.GOLDBERG

WITH THE SIXTH ARMY GROUP, SOUTHERN FRANCE, MARCH 14-(AP)-U.S. TROOPS, INCLUDING FIGHTING AMERICANS OF JAPANESE ANCESTRY AND SOME PUERTO RICAN UNITS, ARE STILL FIGHTING A HOLDING ACTION ON THE IMPORTAN "FORGOTTEN FRONT" ALONG THE FRENCH-ITALIAN BORDER.

IN THE TOWERING MOUNTAINS OF THE MARITIME ALPS, WHERE PACK MULES MUS BE USED TO CARRY SUPPLIES TO OUTPOSTS AND MAINTAIN COMMUNICATIONS, BRIG.GEN.RALPH C.TOBIN COMMANDS A SMALL ARMY WHICH CONTAINS A FRONT WHERE A GERMAN BREAKTHROUGH MIGHT PROVE EMBARRASSING TO AMERICAN AND FRENCH ARMIES IN SOUTHERN FRANCE.

THERE IS NO IDEA THAT ITALIAN TROOPS, LEAVENED BY GERMAN UNITS, HAVE ANY INTENTION NOW OF DOING MORE THAN GUARD THE ESCAPE ROUTE FOR GERMAN TROOPS LEFT IN NORTHERN ITALY. BUT IF THE ARDENNES BREAKTHROUGH HAD SUCCEEDED, THIS ALPS SECTOR MIGHT HAVE PROVIDED AN AREA FOR A DIVERSIONARY THRUST VALUABLE TO THE NAZIS.

LITTLE MORE THAN AN HOUR BY JEEP FROM THE LUXURY OF THE FRENCH RIVIERA, TOBIN'S TROOPS MAN MOUNTAIN OBSERVATION POSTS AND ENGAGE IN CONSTANT PATROLLING, CAPTURING A FEW ENEMY SOLDIERS TO KEEP THEIR INFORMATION UP TO DATE AND OCCASIONALLY ENGAGING IN PITCHED BATTLES. THE ITALIANS OPPOSITE THEM GENERALLY ARE CONTENT TO FIGHT OFF THE PATROLS SENT OUT FROM OUR LINES.

THE NISEI--IT'S HARD TO CONSIDER THEM JAPANESE IN THE FACE OF THEIR OWN PROUD INSISTENCE THEY ARE AMERICANS WHO HAVE JAPANESE FORBEARS--ARE SMALL, STOCKY, WIRY AND TOUGH, EVERY INCH FIGHTERS WHO HAVE WON UNSTINTED PRAISE FROM THEIR SUPERIORS, FROM GEN.TOBIN DOWN.

THEY SUFFERED CASUALTIES IN THE ITALIAN CAMPAIGN AND THIS FRONT IS PROVING RESTFUL AFTER THE RIGORS OF ITALY, BUT IF THERE IS A SCRAP IN SIGHT THEY SPOIL TO GET IN IT. ONE MEASURE OF THE WORTH OF THESE TROOPS IS THE AMOUNT OF TROUBLE THEY GIVE THE MP'S. THE LATTER HAVEN'T THE SLIGHTEST DIFFICULTY WITH THE NISEI, BECAUSE THE NISEI DON'T QUARREL, DON'T GO A.W.O.L., DON'T GRIPE.

IT'S NOT A QUESTION OF DISCIPLINE ONLY, OFFICERS SAY. THEIR GOOD BEHAVIOR AND INTENSE EFFORT IN BATTLE ARE PART OF THEIR WAY OF SAYING: "WE ARE FIGHTING FOR AMERICA, WE'RE LOYAL TO HER AND THIS IS OUR WAY OF PROVING IT."

A40

THEIR OFFICERS' MAIN DIFFICULTY IS TRYING TO KEEP THEM IN HOSPITAL BEDS WHEN THEY ARE WOUNDED OR ILL. THEY WANT TO GET BACK INTO THE SCRAP.

NO NISEI PATROL EVER LEAVES A WOUNDED MAN ON THE FIELD. IT IS AN UNWRITTEN LAW THAT A WOUNDED MAN MUST BE BROUGHT BACK.

THEIR OFFICERS SAY NO NISEI EVER HAS BEEN KNOWN TO SHIRK HIS DUTIES AND THAT THEY STILL ARE AS EAGER FOR ACTION AS THEY WERE IN THEIR FIRST BATTLE.

THE NISEI ALSO DISTINGUISHED THEMSELVES IN THE VOSGES FIGHTING.

THE PUERTO RICANS, WHOSE PRESENCE IN THE ARMIES IN SOUTHERN FRANCE WAS DISCLOSED ONLY RECENTLY, HAVE NOT BEEN EMPLOYED AS MUCH AS THE NISEI FOR COMBAT DUTY, BUT IT IS EXPECTED THEY WILL GIVE A GOOD ACCOUNT OF THEMSELVES IF CALLED UPON TO DO SO.

IN CONTRAST TO THE LITTLE NISEI, THE PUERTO-RICANS ARE SIX-FOOTERS, ASSIGNED TO MULE OUTFITS. MULESKINNERS MUST BE TALL TO HANDLE THE MOUNTAINOUS PACKS LOADED ON THE BEASTS.

THE MULES WERE PICKED UP MOSTLY IN ITALY, WHERE THE ANIMALS WERE SCRAGGY AND THIN. NOW THE MULES ARE SLEEK AND WELL FED, BUT STILL OBSTINATE. ON AN INACTIVE FRONT THE ANIMALS ARE EXERCISED ONLY BY MEN

30.24 — 23903

WHO HAVE ADMIRATION, IF NOT QUITE AFFECTION, FOR THEM. THE LAND IN THE ALPS IS NOT CONDUCIVE TO FARMING, AND HAY MUST BE IMPORTED FOR THE MULES.

ONE OF THESE PACK-MULE OUTFITS SUPPLIES ISOLATED MOUNTAIN OUTPOSTS. ANOTHER CARRIES FIELD ARTILLERY THROUGH THE ALPS.

NORTH OF THE AREA HELD BY TOBIN'S TROOPS THE FIRST FRENCH ARMY MANS A LINE RUNNING SOUTH FROM ALSACE ALONG THE SWISS BORDER, THENCE TO THE ITALIAN BORDER AND THE RIVIERA. THE AMERICAN SECTOR IS FROM A POINT NORTHWEST OF TURIN TO THE RIVIERA.

THERE ARE PEAKS LIKE MOUNT GROSSO, NEARING MORE THAN 4,000 FEET, AND MOUNT MANGIABO, RISING 6,000 FEET, WHICH PROVIDE PERFECT OBSERVATION POINTS. THERE ARE MOUNTAINS HONEYCOMBED WITH TUNNELS, MANY OF WHICH HAVE BEEN BLOCKED BY BOMBS OR ARTILLERY FIRE. THE GERMANS USE MANY RAIL TUNNELS AS EMPLACEMENTS FOR SELF-PROPELLED GUNS.

IN THE FRENCH SECTOR SOME FORMER FRENCH FORCES OF THE INTERIOR, ALONG WITH SENEGALESE, ALGERIANS AND MOROCCANS, HOLD THE LINE.

WITH THE UNIT WHICH OCCUPIED HONEFF AFTER TWO DAYS FIGHTING, SAID "THERE STILL ARE SOME JERRIES HIDING OUT."

"APPROACHES TO THE TOWN WERE HEAVILY DEFENDED," SAID COLLINS, WHOSE OUTFIT ATTACKED FROM UNKEL, SIX MILES TO THE SOUTH. "THEY FIRED EVERYTHING AT US, INCLUDING ACKACK GUNS, POINTBLANK."

LT. COL. JACK HOUSTON, OF 811 EAST COMPTON BLVD., COMPTON, CALIF., SAID AMERICAN ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS HAD A .500 BATTING AVERAGE AGAINST GERMAN PLANES SEEKING TO DESTROY THE REMAGEN BRIDGE, HAVING SHOT DOWN 30 GERMAN PLANES SINCE MARCH 3.

THE ARMY COMPLETED TONIGHT A HOUSE-TO-HOUSE SEARCH OF THE BRIDGE-HEAD AREA AND EVERY CIVILIAN WAS QUIZZED. THIRTY-TWO HUNDRED PRISONERS HAVE BEEN REPORTED CAPTURED ON THIS SIDE OF THE RHINE INCLUDING ADOUT 50 GERMAN SOLDIERS DISCOVERED IN CIVILIAN CLOTHES.

U.S. NINTH ARMY, GERMANY, MARCH 13-(DELAYED)-(AP)-TWO CORPS OF THE NINTH ARMY CAPTURED OR DESTROYED 715 GERMAN ARTILLERY PIECES--ENOUGH FOR AN ENTIRE ENEMY ARMY--AND 109 TANKS OR SELF PROPELLED GUNS IN THEIR TWO-WEEK DRIVE TO THE RHINE.

THE FIGURES WERE INCOMPLETE AND FOR ONLY TWO OF THE THREE KNOWN CORPS UNDER LT. GEN. WILLIAM H. SIMPSON'S COMMAND. FINAL FIGURES WILL APPROXIMATE 953 ARTILLERY PIECES AND 145 TANKS AND SELF PROPELLED GUNS, IT WAS INDICATED.

THE MATERIEL ALREADY HAS BEEN GATHERED BY ORDNANCE COMMANDS AND INCLUDES HULKS OR GUNS FOUND BEHIND AMERICAN LINES.

OF GUNS CAPTURED, 281 WERE 88-MILLIMETER DUAL PURPOSE PIECES, THE BACKBONE OF GERMAN FLAK DEFENSES. ALSO SEIZED WERE 50 FLAK CARS SEIZED IN RAILYARDS AND 100 GERMAN LOCOMOTIVES, MOST OF WHICH CAN BE REPAIRED.

BAD NEUENAHR, GERMANY, MARCH 14-(AP)-FLIGHT LT. LEROY B. WHEELER OF SMITHFIELD, ILL., BAILED OUT OF HIS PLANE AFTER SHOOTING DOWN A GERMAN MESSERSCHMITT FIGHTER AND THEN COLLIDING WITH ANOTHER AMERICAN P-38 TODAY.

AN HOUR LATER HE WAS BEING PATTED ON THE SHOULDER BY MAJ. GEN. ELWOOD R. QUESADA, COMMANDER OF THE NINTH TACTICAL AIR COMMAND WHICH IS AIDING THE U.S. FIRST ARMY DRIVE. QUESADA HAD SEEN THE ENTIRE SKIR-MISH FROM A POINT JUST BEHIND THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE ACROSS THE RHINE.

WHEELER HAD BEEN INTENT ON BRINGING DOWN THE ENEMY PLANE. ANOTHER AMERICAN FIGHTER WAS RIGHT UNDER HIM, EQUALLY INTENT ON HIS QUARRY. AS THE MESSERSCHMITT CRASHED TO EARTH, THE TWO FIGHTERS COLLIDED. BOTH BAILED OUT. THE OTHER OFFICER WAS TAKEN TO A COMMAND POST AND WHEELER TO BAD NEUENAHR.

THE GENERAL ASSURED WHEELER HE HAD DONE A SPLENDID JOB IN THE BATTLE AND SHOULD NOT WORRY ADOUT THE LOSS OF HIS PLANE.

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY, MARCH 14-(AP)-LT.-GEN. COURTNEY HODGES' MEN FOUGHT THROUGH THE HILLS RIMMING THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD TODAY TO WITHIN A MILE AND A QUARTER OF THE FRANKFURT-COLOGNE AUTOBAHN, AND EXPANDED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD.

IT WAS SLOW, TORTUOUS PROGRESS AGAINST STUBBORN ENEMY RESISTANCE.

THE ADVANCE REACHED TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF KALENBORN, NORTH OF HONNEF, AND TO THE EDGE OF NOTSCHEID, FOUR MILES NORTHEAST OF REMAGEN. THE TROOPS CLEARED ST. CATHARTNEN IN A 1,000-YARD ADVANCE, WHILE OTHER UNITS DROVE FORWARD 1,500 YARDS INTO THE HILLS BEYOND GINSTERHAHN.

ENGINEERS REPORTED THAT SINCE THE CAPTURE OF THE BRIDGE, ENEMY ARTILLERY HAD SCORED MANY HITS, BUT THAT THE SPAN WAS IN BETTER CONDITION NOW THAN WHEN IT WAS SEIZED BECAUSE OF THE WORK DONE TO REPAIR SOME OF THE DAMAGE BY AMERICAN AIR ATTACKS PRIOR TO ITS CAPTURE.

THERE WERE INDICATIONS THAT THE GERMANS WERE NOT COMMITTING ALL THEIR AVAILABLE STRENGTH AGAINST THE BRIDGEHEAD BECAUSE THEY WERE WARY OF POSSIBLE ALLIED CROSSINGS AT OTHER POINTS ALONG THE RHINE.

THERE IS NO REASON AT THIS STAGE TO EXPECT ANYTHING SENSATIONAL IN THE WAY OF GAINS BECAUSE OF THE TERRAIN AND THE NECESSITY OF BUILDING UP BRIDGEHEAD STRENGTH.

AIR RECONNAISSANCE REPORTED A LARGE CONCENTRATION OF ENEMY VEHICLES AND A HEAVY TRAFFIC LINE EAST OF COLOGNE. THE MEANING OF THIS MOVEMENT WAS NOT YET CLEAR, ALTHOUGH THERE ARE NO SIGNS YET THAT THE GERMANS ARE THROWING ANY GREAT NEW STRENGTH TOWARD THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA.

COLOGNE, MARCH 12(DELAYED) --(AP) -- THE SOLDIERS WHO CAPTURED THE COLOGNE OPERA HOUSE PUT ON A HORSE-PLAY PERFORMANCE OF THEIR OWN THAT MUST STILL HAVE RICHARD WAGNER SPINNING IN HIS TOMB LIKE A ROULETTE WHEEL.

MOVING THROUGH THE BOMB-SMASHED INDUSTRIAL CITY, ONE COMPANY CHOSE THE RUINED OPERA HOUSE FOR A COMMAND POST AND HOLED UP THERE FOR THE NIGHT. AND WHAT A NIGHT IT TURNED OUT TO BE.

ALLIED BOMBS HAVE GUTTED THE GLITTERING TIERS AND PLUSH BOXES WHERE IN OTHER DAYS GERMAN OPERA FANS GATHERED TO HEAR THE WORLD'S GREATEST SINGERS BOUNCE ARIAS OFF THE RAFTERS. THE VAULTED STAGE IS OPEN TO THE SKY NOW AND PROP WIRES RUST IN THE RAIN. BUT MOST DRESSING ROOMS STILL ARE REASONABLY INTACT. SO ARE THE DIRECTOR'S OFFICE AND THE PROPERTY ROOMS.

MAR 14 1945

RUMMAGING THROUGH THE DAMAGED BUILDING WITH THAT INSATIABLE CURIOSITY CHARACTERIZING ALL DOUGHBOYS, THE SOLDIERS FOUND A ROOMFUL OF X 100 COLORFUL COSTUMES. IN ANOTHER, THEY CAME ACROSS 50 TO 60 BAND INSTRUMENTS. A THIRD ROOM YIELDED ENOUGH WIGS TO HAVE BEEN THE SCALP WAREHOUSE FOR AN APACHE INDIAN TRIBE.

"LET'S PUT ON A SHOW", SOMEONE SAID -- AND THAT'S HOW THE FIRST AMERICAN OPERA PERFORMANCE IN COLOGNE WAS BORN.

DIRTY, TIRED DOUGHBOYS, WHO AN HOUR BEFORE HAD BEEN POPPING AWAY AT NAZIS, RAN WHOOPING INTO THE PROP ROOM AND PUT ON THE MOST COLORFUL COSTUMES THEY COULD FIND. THE OUTCOME WAS SOMETHING LIKE A FANCY DRESS BALL ON BOWERY.

MAR 14 1945

"WE HAD ALL RANKS, FROM ADMIRAL ON DOWN TO ONE GUY IN A FUR-TRIMMED COAT WITH A WHITE FUR COSSACK HAT AT LEAST A FOOT TALL," SAID PVT. JACK D. ROBERTSON, 20, OF LOGAN, VA.

ROMEO WAS THERE TOO AND A BARREL-CHESTED JULIET WITH WAIST-LENGTH FALSE BLACK HAIR HANGING DOWN IN FRONT INSTEAD OF BEHIND, LIKE A CIRCUS WILDMAN GOING THREE YEARS LATE TO GET HIS BEARD TRIMMED.

SIEGFRIED, THE EPIC HERO OF THE GERMAN NATION HAD LITTLE ~~OF~~ A SPINDLE-SHANKED GI, AND HIS BUXOM BRUNDHILDE, WHOM UNCLE SAM HAD LISTED AS A [redacted] MORTARMAN, WAS BADLY IN NEED OF A SHAVE.

THERE WAS NO PLOT TO THE "DOUGHBOY OPERA". IT JUST GREW -- LIKE A [redacted] DANDELION PATCH.

THE DRESSING ROOM CORRIDOR WAS THE STAGE. THERE WAS NO LACK OF MUSIC. THERE WERE SEVEN PIANOS AND ALL WERE GOING AT ONCE.

MAR 14 1945

MOST OF THEM PLAYED "CHOPSTICKS". ONE SOLDIER LAID HIS BAZOOKA ON A PIANO AND WENT TO WORK WITH A SLIDE TROMBONE. THE SOUND EFFECT WAS ABOUT THE SAME.

THERE WAS ANOTHER SOLDIER INVOLVED WITH A BASS FIDDLE AND IT WAS HARD TO TELL WHO WAS PLAYING WHICH. ONE BOY OFF IN A CORNER WAS WORKING OVER A CLARINET IN A DREAMY WAY -- AND THIS ONE KNEW HIS BUSINESS. HE MADE NOTES SOUND LIKE LITTLE HAPPY CHILDREN RUNNING UP AND DOWN A DEPARTMENT STORE ESCALATOR.

BESIDE HIM WAS A SOLDIER PLAYING CHOW-CALL AND REVEILLE ON A LONG FANFARE TRUMPET.

THE CAST DIDN'T WAIT FOR THE OVERTURE TO FINISH. THEY JUST PRANCED ABOUT THE CORRIDORS SINGING AND YODELING EVERYTHING FROM THE LATEST BOOGIE-WOOGIE TO "SWEET ADELINE". SIEGFRIED SANG "SAINT LOUIS WOMEN" INSTEADOF WAGNER'S IMMORTAL PYROTECHNICS.

OUTSIDE IN THE DUSK, GERMAN HAUSFRAUS CARRYING TUBS AND PITCHERS WAITED IN LINE TO DRAW WATER FROM A BROKEN MAIN. THEY LISTEBED IN STOLID WONDERMENT TO THE STRANGE BRAYING AND CATERWAULING OF THESE AMERICANS.

THE SHOW LASTED ABOUT TWO HOURS AND WAS MORE FUN TO THE SELF-ENTERTAINING TROOPS THAN ANY USO SHOW.

WHEN IT WAS DARK THEY PUT BACK THE COSTUMES, HAD A LITTLE WINE AND CRAWLED INTO BUNKS WHICH THE GERMANS GARRISON IN THE OPERA HOUSE HAD USED THE NIGHT BEFORE.

THEY SLEPT SOUNDLY -- STREET FIGHTING WEARS YOU OUT EARLY -- WITH WEAPONS BY THEIR SIDES. THE HORSEPLAY WAS OVER. IN THE MORNING [redacted] THEY HAD TO GET BACK TO THEIR BUSINESS OF KILLING AND CAPTURING.

FALL OF THE TOWN PLACED THE ALLIED FORCES IN THE PATH OF JAPANESE FALLING BACK ALONG THE BURMA ROAD BEFORE A CHINESE ONSLAUGHT FROM THE LASHIO AREA, 100 MILES TO THE NORTHEAST.

OTHER TROOPS OF THE 19TH DIVISION, MEANWHILE, CONTINUED OCCUPYING MANDALAY BLOCK BY BLOCK IN HEAVY STREET FIGHTING. THEY NOW CONTROL MORE THAN HALF OF THE CITY. A FURTHER ADVANCE OF LESS THAN NINE BLOCKS WILL SEAL OFF THE JAPANESE HOLDING OUT THERE IN FORT DUFFERIN.

THE THRUST TO MAYMYO WAS MADE OVER A TRAIL KNOWN ONLY TO A FEW BURMESE. WHEN THE ALLIED TROOPS STORMED THE TOWN, THE JAPANESE SET FIRE TO THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AND FLED.

TWO OTHER 19TH DIVISION FORCES STRUCK SIMULTANEOUSLY IN RELATED ACTIONS. ONE CAPTURED TWO AIRFIELDS NEAR MAYMYO. THE OTHER SET UP AN AMBUSH ALONG THE MAYMYO-MANDALAY ROAD AND, IN A NIGHT ATTACK, DESTROYED 34 JAPANESE TRUCKS AND CAPTURED NINE STAFF CARS AND AN ANTI-TANK GUN. THE JAPANESE SURVIVORS ESCAPED ON FOOT INTO THE HILLS.

A U.S.ARTILLERY POSITION ON THE SHIMBU LINE,PHILIPPINES, MARCH 14 (AP)-ONE OF THE OLDEST UNITED STATES ARMY FIELD ARTILLERY OUTFITS, A UNIT WHICH CARRIES 10 BATTLE STREAMERS ON ITS STANDARD, IS MAKING A TOP RANKING REPUTATION IN THE LUZON CAMPAIGN WITH DRAFTEES AND RESERVE OFFICERS.
IT IS THE FIRST FIELD ARTILLERY BATTALION WHICH TRACES ITS HISTORY BACK TO THE WAR OF 1812 AND HAS PARTICIPATED IN EVERY AMERICAN WAR SINCE THEN.
ONE OF ITS PRIZED STREAMERS SIGNIFIES THE CONQUEST OF CAVITE ON LUZON IN TUS SPANISH-AMERICAN WAR.
FOR AN ORGANIZATION OF ARTILLERYMEN WHO NOT SO LONG AGO WERE CIVILIANS WHO HAD NEVER PUT THEIR HANDS ON A FIELD GUN, THIS BATTALION HAS DONE A REMARKABLE JOB, A HIGH ARTILLERY COMMANDER SAID. IT HAD ONE OF THE HIGHEST PERFORMANCE RATINGS IN TRAINING AND BECAME A CRACK OUTFIT IN ACTION.
THE COMMANDER IS LT.COL.A.R.LARASON, WOODWARD, OKLA.
DURING ONE PREPARATORY BARRAGE FOR AN INFANTRY DRIVE ON THE JAPANESE SHIMBU LINE EAST OF MANILA I WATCHED ONE GUN CREW PUMP FIVE 105MM SHELLS INTO THE AIR BEFORE THE FIRST ONE HIT THE GROUND. FOUR OF THE NINE-MAN CREW WERE FARMERS BEFORE THE WAR AND ALL WERE DRAFTEES.
STAFF SGT.ELWOOD JORGENSEN, ROUTE ONE, IRENE, S.DAK., HEADED THE GUN SECTION. OTHERS INCLUDED CPL.ANTHONY GROSS, 2411 PARK AVE., CANTON, OHIO, WHO USED TO BE A BRICKLAYER IN A ROLLER BEARING FIRM, AND PFCS DONALD MCDONALD, ROUTE ONE, PARK RAPIDS, MINN., FORMER FARMER; MERLIN PERRIN, 6 ELM ST., PONCHATOULA, LA., ONE-TIME CONTRACTOR'S HELPER; BURL JOHNSON, GLASS MILL EMPLOYE FROM WILLIAMSTOWN, W.VA.; AND CARL EGGLESTON, RAILROAD WORKER FROM PORTAGE, OHIO.
NEARBY ANOTHER GUN CREW HEADED BY SGT.JAMES DIETRICH, 8512 SOUTH MAY ST., CHICAGO, WAS LAYING BURSTS OVER JAPANESE TROOP CONCENTRATIONS. IN HIS SECTION WAS A CHINESE-AMERICAN BOY, PFC SHUI LEE, 1171 PUGSLEY AVE., BRONX, N.Y.
THIS EXPERT CREW INCLUDED CPL.WILLIAM O.BISHOP, TRUCK DRIVER FROM VINCENNES, IND.; T/5 ESTAL BOYD, FARMER FROM WATERLOO, IND., AND PFCS EDWARD OALFMAN, FARMER FROM CAMPBELL, MO.; POLO GALVIN, 307 WEST 22ND PLACE, CHICAGO, FORMER STOCKYARDS WORKER; WALTER MILLIGAN, 920 HUDSON ST., HOBOKEN, N.J., WHO OWNED A LUMBER BUSINESS; DONALD HAGEN, A CITY EMPLOYE FROM MOOREHEAD, MINN., AND PVT.RALPH VAN SICKLE, WHO WORKED ON HIS FATHER'S FARM NEAR TERRA ALTA, W.VA.

VBY JAMES HUTCHESON (200)
MANILA, MARCH 14-(AP)-ONE OF THE NAVY'S FOREMOST SALVAGE EXPERTS SAID TODAY THAT THE TONNAGE OF SUNKEN SHIPS IN MANILA'S WRECKED AND CLOGGED HARBOR IS FAR GREATER THAN IN ANY OTHER PORT IN THE WAR AND THE CLEARING WILL PRESENT A STUPENDOUS PROBLEM.
COMMODORE WILLIAM A. SULLIVAN, WHO CAME FROM SALVAGE OPERATIONS IN EUROPEAN PORTS TO DIRECT THE OPENING OF WAR RAVAGED MANILA'S HARBOR TO SHIPPING, ESTIMATED AT A PRESS CONFERENCE THAT MORE THAN 300 SHIPS WERE SUNK HERE.
SULLIVAN OF 35TH AVE., NEW YORK, WAS THE OFFICER WHO STARTED THE LINER NORMANDIE SALVAGE JOB.
HE ESTIMATED THAT THE SUNKEN TONNAGE OF MANILA'S HARBOR IS THREE TIMES THAT OF CHERBOURG'S AND THE TASK OF CLEARING IT MIGHT BE THREE TIMES AS HARD.
HE SAID HE COULD NOT HAZARD A GUESS ON THE TIME REQUIRED FOR THE GIGANTIC TASK BUT HE EXPECTS WITHIN A FEW DAYS TO RAISE ONE OF THE SIX SHIPS THE JAPANESE SANK TO BLOCKADE THE MAIN HARBOR CHANNEL THROUGH THE BREAKWATER. ITS REMOVAL WILL ALLOW THE FIRST SHIPS TO THREAD THEIR WAY INTO THE HARBOR THROUGH THE SUNKEN HULKS.
PIER SEVEN, THE MOST FAMOUS AND LARGEST IN THE ORIENT, WAS BADLY WRECKED BY TERRIFIC JAPANESE DEMOLITION WHICH RIPPED GAPS COMPLETELY ACROSS IT BUT SULLIVAN PREDICTED THAT ARMY CREWS, ALREADY MAKING RAPID CLEANUP PROGRESS, WILL HAVE IT RETURNED TO AN EFFICIENT OPERATING BASIS WITHIN A FEW WEEKS.
THE PIER IS FLANKED BY A TORPEDOED 10,000 TON FREIGHTER AND A HALF DOZEN SMALL CRAFT, BUT SULLIVAN SAID IT WOULD BE ABLE TO ACCOMODATE SOME SHIPS IMMEDIATELY.
[illegible]

SIXTY-TWO OF THE SUNKEN SHIPS ARE IN EXCESS OF 2,000 TONS. SOME VESSELS ARE STOP EACH OTHER. SOME ARE AMERICAN SHIPS SUNK IN 1942.
A JAPANESE CRUISER AND A DESTROYER ARE SUNK A SHORT WAY FROM THE PIER. AT LEAST FIFTY SMALL CRAFT ARE SUNK IN THE PASIG RIVER, A HALF MILE UPSTREAM TO JONES BRIDGE.
IN ADDITION SHIPS HAVE BEEN SUNK TO BLOCKADE THE MAIN ENTRANCE. THE JAPANESE CHAINED TOGETHER 21 SMALL VESSELS AS A BARRIER ACROSS THE SHALLOW WATER BETWEEN THE BREAKWATER AND THE YACHT BASIN. THEY ALSO SANK THREE ACROSS THE MOUTH OF THE PASIG BUT ONE HAS BEEN RAISED TO OPEN THE PASSAGEWAY TO BOATS AND ANOTHER IS BEING RAISED.
THE SHIP BEING RAISED IN THE MAIN BREAKWATER CHANNEL IS BALANCED

30.24-23911

PRECARIOUSLY ON THE CHANNEL SHOULDER WITH ITS BOW PROTRUDING. OTHERS BLOCKING THE CHANNEL ARE COMPLETELY SUBMERGED.

A LARGE SHARE ARE 500 TON WOODEN VESSELS BUILT DURING THE WAR EMERGENCY.

SULLIVAN ESTIMATED THAT THE TONNAGE OF SUNKEN SHIPS WOULD APPROACH THE TOTAL OF ALL EUROPEAN PORTS COMBINED, EXCEPTING MARSEILLES, WHERE HEAVY SHIPS RAISED TONNAGE.

THE COMMODORE SAID THAT SOME OF THE JAPANESE FREIGHTERS APPEAR AS IF THEY MIGHT BE USEABLE AFTER RAISING AND REPAIRING.

ONE OF THE FAMED OBSTACLES SUNK FARTHER IN THE BAY IS THE FLOATING DEWEY DRYDOCK WHICH MADE HISTORY WHEN IT WAS TOWED TO THE PHILIPPINES 40 YEARS AGO. HE SAID THE AMERICANS SANK IT AT MARIVELES IN 1942. THE JAPANESE RAISED IT AND U.S. BOMBERS PROBABLY RESUNK IT.

MARINE GENERAL (780)

BY MORRIE LANDSBERG

IWO JIMA, MARCH 14-(AP)-VIGOROUS, TWO-FISTED LT.GEN. HOLLAND MCTYEIRE SMITH OF THE MARINES HAS BECOME SOMETHING OF A LEGENDARY FIGURE IN THE PACIFIC WAR.

HIS REPUTATION AMONG THE RANK AND FILE IS THAT OF A ROUGH, TOUGH OLD MAN. HE DRIVES HIS MARINES WITH AN IRON WILL. FINALLY, HE IS "HOWLIN' MAD" SMITH--NOT SO MUCH AS THE FATHER OF MODERN AMPHIBIOUS WARFARE BUT AS A MAN OF STORMY TEMPERAMENT AND ACID DISPOSITION.

PERHAPS THE FIGHTING SIDE OF THE COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE FLEET MARINE FORCE HAS BEEN OVER EMPHASIZED ALTHOUGH HIS MEN ARE CREDITED WITH EXTERMINATING MORE THAN 135,000 JAPANESE ON PACIFIC ISLANDS.

SMITH LONG ADVOCATED ADOPTION OF NEW METHODS OF AMPHIBIOUS WARFARE.

"I REALIZED," HE SAYS, "THAT WE WERE IN FOR A NEW KIND OF WARFARE. I FELT WAR WITH JAPAN WAS COMING AND WE WOULD HAVE TO MEET AN ENEMY ON THE GROUND OF HIS OWN CHOOSING."

TODAY SMITH CAN LOOK BACK WITH SATISFACTION ON THE SUCCESSES OF TROOPS TRAINED BY HIS AMPHIBIOUS STAFFS--THE ARMY FIRST AND NINTH DIVISIONS (AFRICA AND SICILY); ARMY SEVENTH DIVISION (ATTU, KWAJALEIN AND LEYTE) AND HIS OWN MARINES.

THE GENERAL IS SENSITIVE ON THE POINT OF CASUALTIES.

"MOST OF OUR ATTACKS," HE SAYS, "THROUGH NECESSITY HAVE BECOME FRONTAL ATTACKS. THERE HAS GROWN IN THE MINDS OF THE UNINFORMED THE THOUGHT THAT WE ARE RECKLESS WITH OUR LIVES BUT SUCH IS FAR FROM BEING THE FACT.

"WE USE EVERY METHOD KNOWN TO MODERN WARFARE TO KEEP LOSSES TO A MINIMUM. IN FACT, THE AVERAGE LOSSES OF LIFE AMONG OUR MARINES, AS COMPARED WITH LOSS OF JAP LIVES, IS IN A RATIO OF APPROXIMATELY ONE TO TEN. REMEMBER THAT IN MODERN WARFARE, THE RATIO OF ATTACKERS' LOSSES OVER ATTACKED SHOULD BE APPROXIMATELY THREE TO ONE."

SMITH LISTED THE JAPANESE KILLED BY MARINES AS FOLLOWS:

GUADALCANAL 15,000; BOUGAINVILLE 6,000; TARAWA 6,000; SAIPAN 30,000; TINIAN 6,000; GUAM 15,000; ENIWETOK 4,000; PELELIU 4,000 AND IWO--(MORE THAN 12,000 AT THE LAST OFFICIAL REPORT)

MANY MORE THOUSANDS WERE KILLED IN THE CAPE GLOUCESTER, NEW GEORGIA, ROI AND NAMUR CAMPAIGNS.

"THE JAP," SMITH SAID, "IS A FANATICAL FIGHTER, IMBUED WITH A FANATICISM IN WHICH DEATH IS CONSIDERED THE REWARD OF HIS EFFORTS.

"EACH TIME WE MEET HIM IT BECOMES TOUGHER AND TOUGHER BECAUSE HE IS LEARNING THE HARD WAY.

"THE AMERICAN SOLDIER AND MARINE IS A BETTER FIGHTING MAN THAN THE JAP. HE HAS BETTER WEAPONS, BETTER FOOD AND BETTER MEDICAL ATTENTION. HE IS JUST AS WILLING TO MEET THE JAPS IN HAND TO HAND CONFLICT AS THE JAPS ARE THEMSELVES."

MAR 14 1945

A9FX

BUT THERE IS ANOTHER SIDE TO THE BLUNT-SPEAKING, 63-YEAR-OLD GENERAL. IT SHOWS UP ON THE FIELD OF BATTLE MUCH AS IT DOES IN THE QUIET ATMOSPHERE OF HIS HOME AT LA JOLLA, CALIF.

ALABAMA-BORN SMITH HAS A TENDER HEART FOR HIS MEN AND FAMILY. HE IS AN ARDENT GARDENER, LIKES MUSIC AND THE OPERA AND IS AN EXPERT CRIBBAGE PLAYER. HE PLANS TO SPEND MUCH TIME AFTER HE RETIRES READING HISTORICAL NOVELS.

ON THE NIGHT BEFORE "D" DAY AT IWO JIMA, SMITH PACED THE DECK OF HIS FLAGSHIP. HE TURNED WITH AN EXPRESSION OF GREAT SADNESS ON HIS TANNED, WRINKLED FACE.

"A LOT OF THE BOYS ARE MAKING THEIR LAST TRIP," HE SAID TO HIS AIDE, CAPT.MAC ASBILL, JR., 23, OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

AND THAT NIGHT "HOWLIN' MAD" SMITH DIDN'T SLEEP AT ALL.

SOME PREDICTED IWO WOULD BE A FIVE OR SIX DAY OPERATION. BUT THE MARINE LEADER KNEW, FROM LONG DEALING WITH THE JAPANESE, THAT IT WOULD BE A TOUGH FIGHT.

HE HAD TOLD WAR CORRESPONDENTS DAYS PRIOR TO THE INVASION THAT IT WOULD "NOT BE A SETUP" AND THAT THE COST WOULD BE HIGH.

"I LOOK THINGS STRAIGHT BETWEEN THE EYES," HE SAYS. "MY CARDS AT ALL TIMES ARE ON THE TABLE WITH THEIR FACES UP."

SO, THOUGH HE HATES TO SEE HIS "BOYS" KILLED AND MAIMED, HE DECLARES: "THERE'S NO WAY TO MAKE WAR SAFE OR EASY."

ON EVERY OPERATION, FROM TARAWA ON, HE HAS GONE ASHORE EARLY TO DIRECT HIS TROOPS. ON THE IWO JOB, HE WAS KEPT ABOARD HIS FLAGSHIP FOR A TIME BY COMMAND RESPONSIBILITIES AND A SEVERE COLD. FINALLY, HE BLEW UP AND TOLD HIS AIDES: "I'M GOING ASHORE TOMORROW IF I HAVE TO FIGHT THE DOCTOR TO GET THERE." HE WENT.

AT A CASUALTY STATION, HE TALKED WITH THE WOUNDED. ON THE BEACH, HE ASKED MARINES IF THEY HAD PLACES TO SLEEP, HOW THE CHOW WAS AND "DID YOU GET SHELLED LAST NIGHT?"

SMITH HAD HIS CLOSEST CALL YESTERDAY WHEN HE WENT UP TO THE FRONT AREA. A BULLET WHIZZED BY SO CLOSE, HE LOOKED TO SEE IF IT HAD MADE A HOLE IN HIS TROUSERS.

HE TOOK THE INCIDENT WITH THE CHARACTERISTIC CALM OF AN OLD SOLDIER.

AT SAIPAN, THE GENERAL SOMETIMES RECEIVED A ROAST TURKEY AT HIS ISLAND HEADQUARTERS FROM HIS SHIP. HE WOULD GO OUT IN FRONT OF THE HEADQUARTERS AND BECKON TO THE FIRST MEN HE SAW. THE MEN, BEFORE THEY KNEW WHAT WAS HAPPENING, WOULD FIND THEMSELVES SITTING BEFORE PLATES OF TURKEY.

"COME ON DOWN, I WANT TO TALK TO YOU," SMITH CALLED TO A TELEPHONE LINESMAN ONE DAY. HE INVITED HIM TO A DISH OF ICE CREAM.

YET IN BATTLE, SMITH REALLY BECOMES HOWLING MAD--A DYNAMIC FIGHTING MAN, SEVERE AND UNSPARING OF HIMSELF AND OTHERS. IF TROOPS CAN'T MOVE UP, HE WANTS TO KNOW WHY.

IF THEY CAN AND DON'T, HE'S LIABLE TO TAKE THEIR COMMANDERS APART.

HE DOESN'T BELIEVE IN WITHDRAWAL. "GET GROUND AND HOLD IT," HE DEMANDS.

U.S. 21ST BOMBER COMMAND, MARCH 14-(AP)-FOOD, SLEEP AND RECREATION WERE ALL SACRIFICED TO SEND THE GREAT FLEETS OF B-29 SUPERFORTRESSES, BURNING IMMENSE QUANTITIES OF GASOLINE AND OIL, OVER JAPAN THREE TIMES IN FIVE DAYS.

GROUND CREWS AT SAIPAN, ONE OF THE THREE MARIANAS BASES FROM WHICH THE BOMBERS WERE SENT TO HIT TOKYO SATURDAY, NAGOYA MONDAY AND OSAKA TODAY, REPORTED SOME FIGURES.

THEY DELIVERED TO THE BOMBERS BETWEEN THE NAGOYA AND OSAKA MISSIONS ALONE 1,000,000 GALLONS OF GASOLINE AND 32,000 QUARTS OF OIL.

THE SAIPAN CREWS WORKED 36 HOURS NONSTOP GETTING THE B-29S READY FOR THE OSAKA ATTACK.

OTHER CREWS SERVICED UNITS OF THE 300-PLANE FLEETS AT GUAM AND TINIAN BASES.

LT.COL.ROBERT A.BREMER OF DANVILLE,ILL., DIRECTOR OF MAINTENANCE AND SUPPLY AT ONE OF THE BASES, SAID THE ONE-TWO-THREE PUNCH MISSIONS WERE ACCOMPLISHED ONLY BECAUSE ALL CONCERNED "SACRIFICED SLEEP, FOOD AND RECREATION TIME UNSELFISHLY."

NAVY SEABEES STOPPED THEIR OWN CORAL-ROLLING WORK TO PROVIDE ADDITIONAL FLOOD LIGHTS FOR THE LARGE SCALE NIGHT WORK.

THE RUSH WAS TERRIFIC. AS EACH BOMBER RETURNED FROM ITS PREVIOUS MISSION, THE ORDNANCE AND GASOLINE TRUCKS WERE ALONGSIDE OF IT AS IT PULLED INTO ITS HARDSTAND (PARKING AREA).

CAPT.GUS CLAY OF (1025 HENRY ST.) ROANOKE,VA., JUST BACK FROM NAGOYA WITH HIS SUPERFORTRESS, LOOKED OUT AT THE BUSTLE FROM A PILOT'S CABIN WINDOW AND SHOUTED:

"HEY, AREN'T YOU GUYS GOING TO GIVE US A CHANCE TO GET OUT AND STRETCH?"

THE SAIPAN GROUND CREWS PUT IN 250,000 MAN HOURS PREPARING FOR THE OSAKA MISSION.

THE BASE'S ORDNANCE PERSONNEL ALONE WORKED 300 TO 400 MAN DAYS (CORRECT) UNCRATING BOMBS AND ANOTHER 400 MAN DAYS LOADING THE BOMBERS.

ONE SUPERFORTRESS, DAMAGED ON THE TOKYO RAID, NEEDED A NEW ENGINE IF IT WAS TO GO TO NAGOYA. T/SGT.MALVIN BARNES, CREW CHIEF, OF CIMARRON,KAS., AND MECHANICS HAD IT READY IN 15 HOURS.

ANOTHER FLAK DAMAGED B-29 WAS TURNED OVER TO M/SGT.EVERETT EMBLETON OF (14 WEST EIGHTH ST.) OIL CITY,PA., AND HIS CREW. SHEET METAL PATCHES WERE RIVETED OVER MORE THAN 20 FLAK HOLES, ALL ENGINES WERE CHECKED AND THE BOMBER WAS READY WITHIN 27 HOURS FOR THE NEXT MISSION.

THEY TOLD BRIG.GEN.THOMAS S.POWER, COMMANDER OF GUAM-BASED B29S, THAT THE AREA AFLAME IN JAPAN'S SECOND LARGEST CITY "MAY HAVE TOTALED ANYWHERE FROM FIVE TO EIGHT SQUARE MILES."

THIS AREA ESTIMATE WAS GIVEN BY LT.WILLIAM T.LOESCH OF (1525 ARTHUR AVEM) LAKEWOOD,OHIO, BOMBARDIER, AND OTHERS ABOARD ONE OF THE LAST PLANES OVER THE TARGET.

LOESCH AND CPL.K.E.YOUNG OF MCKINNEY,KY., TAILGUNNER OF THE PLANE PILOTED BY CAPT.G.A.SIMERAL OF PIXLEY,CALIF., SAID THEY PROBABLY HAD AS GOOD A VIEW AS ANYONE OF THE CONFLAGRATION.

THE FLAMES ROLLED OVER OSAKA'S "HIDDEN FACTORIES" -- IN WORKSHOPS AND HOMES TOO SMALL TO BE MADE INDIVIDUAL TARGETS.

CPL.ARNOLD G.HOLLIDAY OF (328 WEST THIRD ST.) OSWEGO,N.Y., RADIO MAN IN ANOTHER PLANE, REPORTED "THE WHOLE SKY WAS RED AND FIRES WERE DEFINITELY LAID IN A PATTERN -- IT LOOKED LIKE MOST OF THE TOWN WAS AFIRE."

ALTHOUGH IN ONE OF THE EARLY WAVES, T/SGT.ROY H.BROW OF DODGE, WIS., NOTED THAT "ONE GOOD SIZED FIRE ALREADY HAD BURNED OUT BUILDINGS CLEAR TO THE GROUND."

LT.ROBERT MARVIN, DEER WOOD,MINN., WHO COULD "SEE THE TOWN AND RIVERS LIT UP BY FIRES" AT THAT STAGE, SAID "WE DROPPED OUR BOMBS NEXT TO THE FIRES ALREADY STARTED."

RECONNAISSANCE PLANES REPORTED THAT SMOKE FROM MONDAY'S NAGOYA RAID WAS STILL CUTTING VISIBILITY ALMOST TO ZERO AS FAR AS 150 MILES AT SEA.

GENERAL POWER, PRAISING THE WORK OF THE GROUND CREWS WHICH KEPT THE BOMBERS FLYING ON THEIR THREE MISSIONS IN FIVE DAYS, SAID "THESE MECHANICS ARE DOING A WONDERFUL JOB."

WASHINGTON.MARCH 14-(AP)-AWARD OF THE DISTINGUISHED SERVICE MEDAL TO TWO GENERALS WAS ANNOUNCED TODAY BY THE WAR DEPARTMENT.

MAJ. GEN. RAYMOND S. MCLAIN OF OKLAHOMA CITY, COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE 19TH CORPS ON THE WESTERN FRONT, RECEIVED THE DECORATION FOR EXCEPTIONAL SERVICE AS COMMANDER OF THE 90TH INFANTRY DIVISION IN FRANCE FROM JULY 31 TO OCTOBER 15, 1944.

THE OTHER AWARD WENT TO MAJ. GEN. DONALD W. CONNOLLY OF MARIETTA, GA., DEPUTY COMMISSIONER OF THE ARMY-NAVY LIQUIDATION COMMISSION, FOR HIS WORK AS COMMANDING GENERAL OF THE PERSIAN GULF COMMAND FROM DECEMBER 10, 1943, TO DECEMBER 24, 1944.

UNDERSECRETARY OF WAR PATTERSON PRESENTED CONNOLLY'S MEDAL TO HIM AT THE WAR DEPARTMENT TODAY IN A CEREMONY ATTENDED BY HIGH RANKING OFFICERS.

MCLAIN'S CITATION SAID THAT WHEN HE TOOK COMMAND OF THE 90TH HE IMBUED THE ENTIRE DIVISION WITH THE WILL AND ENERGY TO WIN. ALMOST OVERNIGHT HE CONVERTED TROOPS WEARY AND DISPIRITED FROM LOSSES SUFFERED DURING 50 DAYS OF CONTINUOUS BITTER FIGHTING IN NORMANDY, TO A FIGHTING MACHINE OF GREAT POWER."

CONNOLLY'S CITATION SAID THAT HE HAD PERFORMED HIS DUTIES AS PERSIAN GULF COMMANDER "WITH EXCEPTIONALLY MERITORIOUS AND DISTINGUISHED SUCCESS AND HIS ACCOMPLISHMENTS CONTRIBUTED MATERIALLY TO THE SUCCESSFUL EFFORTS OF OUR ARMED FORCES."..

NIGHT LEAD TREATY

WASHINGTON, MARCH 14-(AP)-OPPONENTS IN THE HOUSE JABBED AWAY AT THE PROPOSED UNITED STATES-MEXICO WATER TREATY TODAY WHILE FINAL SENATE ACTION ON THE PACT WAS DELAYED BY OTHER LEGISLATION.

REP. JENSEN (R-IA) PREDICTED THAT SENATE RATIFICATION OF THE TREATY WOULD JEOPARDIZE A HUGE RECLAMATION PROGRAM FOR THE COLORDAO RIVER BASIN, WHILE REP. ELLIOTT (D-CALIF) ASSERTED IT WOULD HARM AMERICAN COTTON GROWERS BY ENCOURAGING MEXICAN GROWTH OF THE FIBRE CROP.

LATE TODAY, CHAIRMAN CONNALLY (D-TEX) OF THE SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS COMMITTEE SAID HE HAD BEEN ASSURED THAT THE SENATE WILL CONSIDER THE TREATY AS SOON AS IT HAS FINISHED WITH THE INDEPENDENT OFFICES APPROPRIATION BILL.

A TWO-THIRDS VOTE OF THE SENATE IS NECESSARY FOR RATIFICATION. THE HOUSE DOES NOT ACT ON TREATIES.

JENSEN, IN A STATEMENT FOR THE CONGRESSIONAL RECORD, SAID A TENTATIVE REPORT PREPARED BY INTERIOR SECRETARY ICKES, BUT NOT YET SUBMITTED TO CONGRESS, LISTS 78 PROJECTS FOR THE COLORADO RIVER BASIN TO COST AN ESTIMATED $2,439,000,000.

HE ASSERTED THE ICKES' REPORT SHOWS THERE IS NOT ENOUGH WATER FOR THE PROPOSED PROJECTS "EVEN IF NO WATER AT ALL WERE DELIVERED TO MEXICO" AND ADDED:

"IF 1,500,000 ACRE FEET IS GUARANTEED TO MEXICO, TO BE MADE GOOD OUT OF STORAGE WORKS WE ARE ASKED TO BUILD FOR AMERICAN PROJECTS, AND HAVING A PRIORITY AHEAD OF THOSE PROJECTS, THEN I SAY THE WHOLE PLAN IS FANTASTIC."

MAR 15 1945

WASHINGTON.MARCH 14-(AP)-GERMAN FIGHTER PLANES ARE NOW LITTLE MORE THAN "CLAY PIGEONS" FOR AMERICAN FLIERS, SAYS MAJ. GEN. ORVIL (CO) ANDERSON.

THE DEPUTY COMMANDER OF THE BRITISH-BASED EIGHTH AIR FORCE TOLD A NEWS CONFERENCE TODAY THAT THE QUALITY OF GERMAN PILOTS WAS SKIDDED SO FAR THAT IT IS SUICIDAL FOR THEM TO ATTACK AN AMERICAN FORMATION.

A "CONVINCING DEMONSTRATION" OF THIS WAS GIVEN LAST JANUARY 14, HE SAID. THEN 161 GERMAN FIGHTER PLANES WERE SHOT DOWN OUT OF A FORCE OF 400 WHICH WERE ATTACKING BOMBERS RAIDING THE BERLIN AREA. DURING THE SAME BATTLE, SIX OF OUR FIGHTERS WERE LOST.

ALTHOUGH THE LUFTWAFFE STILL HAS PLENTY OF FIGHTER PLANES, ANDERSON SAID THE NAZI AIR COMMAND HAD INSISTED UPON QUANTITY IN AN AIR FORCE AND THEREBY COMPROMISED ON THE QUALITY OF ITS FLIERS.

ANDERSON, NATIVE OF SPRINGVILLE, UTAH, SAID THE EIGHTH AIR FORCE'S STRATEGIC BOMBERS HAD WHITTLED GERMAN OIL PRODUCTION TO 20 PERCENT OF PREWAR CAPACITY.

THIS, HE SAID, HAS FORCED A DRASTIC CURTAILMENT IN THE TRAINING OF AIR CREWS AND LEFT MANY GERMAN GROUND UNITS STRANDED FOR LACK OF FUEL.

HE ALSO ESTIMATED THAT THE AIR WAR AGAINST GERMANY HAD TIED DOWN ONE TO TWO MILLION MEN AND WOMEN TO MAN ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNS AND REPAIR BOMB DAMAGE.

(Advance for PMs of today, Wednesday, March 14)

Dayton, Ohio, March 14-(AP)- One of the army's newest and fastest fighter planes, the Bell P-63 Kingcobra, has been tunred into a"flying pinball machine" to sharpen the eyes of America's aerial gunners,

Using bullets made of lead and plastic and designed to shatter into pewder on contact with armor plate, gunnery students blaze away at the Kingcobra target--and see their hits recorded on lights flashing in the cockpit and in the propellor.hub.

Developed by the air tecnical service command at nearby Wright Field, the system permits gunnery students to simulate combat conditions to every extent, except anti-aircraft fire and return fire from the attacked plane.

Teh kingcobra, designated P-63 to indicate its restriction from combat, has heavy armor plate around vital parts of the engine, gas tank and other vital parts. The pilot is surrounded by armor plate and buller-resisiting glass.

The target plane has a hit-indicating mechanism which records the impact of a bullet on a counting device in the cockpit, and flashes a light in both the cockpit and the propellor spinner.

Bullets used in the realistic target practice are fired from a modified .30 caliber machine gun, and are made of timy globules of lead combined with resin. The missile disintegrates into granular particles when it hits the armor plate.

At Laredo Army Air Field in Texas, Maj. Cameron D. Fairchild, who is credited by the AAF training command with invention of the bullet, declared the AAF has been unable to find where any other country has such a bullet and that it would take an enemy something like five years to reproduce it.

News writers present at the Laredo Base for a demostration, saw Lt. Donald E. Meyer of Soth Bend, Ind. sit in a plane on the ground, unharmed as the bullets thudded sharply against the craft, and left only smudges as they broke with a waterlike flow against thearmor.

Developemnt of the bullet took about two and a half years. Facutly members of Duke and Princeton Universities and research laboratories of the Bakelite Corp, and Corning Glass Works were among the groups assisting in the work.

The ATSC said that the frangible bullet, together withall the details connected with its application to gunnery training--including the new process for treating armor plate and modification of the P-63 for use as the attacking p pursuit plane--was developed by Maj. Cameron Fairchild of (3044 San Felipe Rd) Houston, who is attached to the AAF Trainig Command's school for flexible gunnery.

Germans Report New 15th Army Springs Into Action in Rhine Battle.

PARIS, Friday, March 16—(AP) The U. S. First army deepened its Rhine bridgehead to six miles yesterday, seizing command of more than a mile of the great six-lane military highway to the Ruhr, and the Germans said five American armies were striking along 235 miles of the blazing Western front.

The drive beyond the Rhine gained more than a mile during the day, swept up four more German towns and stabbed into five others. The Germans said the new U. S. 15th army had sprung into action on the bridgehead, where 100,000 American soldiers now were massed.

Seventh Launches Attack

The U. S. Seventh army broke a long lull with a general assault on a 50-mile front from the Saar to the Rhine in a synchronized attack with the U. S. Third army, and gained three miles or more, driving the Germans into retreat to the Siegfried line.

The U. S. Third army smashed six miles south from its newly-won Moselle river bridgehead near Coblenz in an offensive that was cutting in 80 miles or so behind the Siegfried line facing the Seventh army front.

Already the push had sealed off the Rhine transit city of Coblenz, was nearing the Rhine south of the city, was pinching off the enemy's "little Ruhr"—the Saar basin—and was challenging the Nazis' last 150-mile grip on the Rhine's west bank.

The Third army was by far the deepest into Germany of any Allied army in the west. As it closed on Boppard, an ancient Rhine center six miles south of Coblenz, it was 80 miles north of the Saar border, and nearly 70 miles west of the enemy frontier.

Enemy accounts said the U. S. Ninth army, drawn up in force on the Rhine, had stormed across into the Ruhr at Duisburg and had been thrown back to the west bank in hand-to-hand combat.

This might well have been an enemy propaganda attempt to capitalize on the repulse of a small raiding party, out to test the power of hurriedly-deployed German defenses on the east bank.

Patrols Cross River

It was disclosed officially that the Ninth army had been sending patrols across the river in the area north of Duisburg and that they had clashed with the enemy on the east bank from time to time before withdrawing.

The Germans, who also have sent patrols across the river to the Allied side, obviously seizing an opportunity afforded by these patrol clashes to bolster homefront morale, claimed a Ninth army attempt to cross the Rhine had been smashed.

The Rhine crossing by the First army at Remagen, where the Americans now hold 11 miles or more of the east bank, was so solid that it was announced officially the danger of its being dislodged now was past.

The Germans were throwing in tank-led counterattacks, trying to hold back the tide from the superhighway, which the enemy itself said the Americans had completely severed at the northeast corner of the bridgehead.

There was no Allied confirmation of the report, although a field dispatch Thursday said American machinegunners were raking the vital road from positions half a mile away, and had moved up less than a mile from it at another point where they could see and destroy German traffic.

One force driving for the highway—over which the Germans are shuttling forces and massing troops east and northwest of the bridgehead—captured a junction of six highways about four miles east of the Germans' fallen northern anchor of Honnef.

Push Into Rottbitze

One force then battled a half mile or so into Rottbitze, while another fought on more than a mile north into Aegidienberg, eight miles northeast of the Remagen bridge and 1,000 yards from the superhighway.

It was in this area that a German war reporter at the front said the Americans had fought out onto the highway.

If the road has been cut, then the German high command has been robbed of much of its freedom of lateral movement, and will be harder pressed to check the push northward to the open German plain.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges seemed to be mounting that push now, for American troops fought a mile north of fallen Honnef, seized Rhoendorf and were within five miles of clearing the last low hills before the plain, leading 19 miles north to the southern Ruhr basin.

The deepest penetration was into Steinshardt, six miles east of Remagen bridge, where stiff fighting broke out after Americans had overrun the nearby towns of Hesseln, Lorscheid and Hahnen.

Lorscheid, a mile northwest of Steinshardt, fell only after the Germans struck back with six King Tiger tanks. The Germans then fell back into Strodt, a mile east, and the Americans fought halfway to that town.

Strong air patrols kept German planes away from the bridgehead, the nearest getting eight miles from the battlefield before it was shot down. Pilots said German trains and vehicles were moving toward the bridgehead, bringing up forces for the bridgehead battle.

Face Transport Difficulties

So far, however, the Germans had been unable to aim a single major counter-blow and it appeared they were hard put to marshal their forces over cratered highways and bomb-wrecked villages east of the Rhine.

At the same time, German fire on the bridgehead had dropped off sharply, testimony to the effectiveness of the steady expansion operations which have shoved enemy gunners beyond easy range.

Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead said the Germans were building up strength east of the bridgehead. That might be to contain the bridgehead or to muster the force for one big attempt to crush the all-important American foothold east of the Rhine.

Between the assault of the U. S. Third army from the north, and the U. S. Seventh army's drive from the south, Hitler's hold on the Saar and the nearby palatinate, his last west of the Rhine, seemed to be slipping fast.

Guns Sweep Road

Last Allied frontline dispatches, filed at 9.30 A.M. battlefront time, said the 1st Army was within a half mile of the six-lane military highway in the thickly wooded hills northeast of Honnef, northern anchor of the bridgehead. The Americans were sweeping the road with machine gun fire at the time. The only mention of the 15th Army came from the foe.

Houvel Battle Reported

The Germans reported fierce fighting in the village of Houvel, 3½ miles northeast of Honnef, in the area where the Autobahn was severed—embarrassing Nazi communications for both the Rhineland and the imperilled and outflanked Saar.

A German war reporter, reporting in a dispatch "from Field Marshal von Rundstedt's headquarters," said the 9th Army unit which crossed the Rhine near its greatest port of Duisburg "was to be the spearhead for stronger forces to follow." The 9th Army pulled up to the Rhine March 2 after overrunning the western end of the great Ruhr industrial basin.

Hand-To-Hand Fighting

"The force was immediately engaged after reaching the right bank of the Rhine by determined resistance," the enemy reported.

"Fierce fighting, sometimes hand to hand, developed. It is assumed that only a small part of the American forces will reach the left bank of the Rhine again. The Americans left many dead and prisoners."

The enemy had been reporting smoke screens shielding intense activity on the lower Rhine front all week. The British War Secretary said earlier this week "our forces" are preparing for a large-scale crossing of the Rhine.

To the south, the American 3d Army crossed the lower Moselle on a 9-mile front within 8 miles of besieged Coblenz and won domination of another 10-mile strip of the west Rhine banks from positions less than 3 miles from the ancient walled Rhine town of Boppard.

Thus Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's troops were threatening to roll up the Siegfried Line along the Saar River from the rear.

Planes Rip Pillboxes

Still farther south, four waves of American medium bombers ripped up dragon's teeth barriers and pillboxes of the Siegfried line on the Saar front where the fresh advances of the United States 7th Army carried almost to the edges of the steel-producing cities of Voelklingen and Saarbruecken.

The bombing with special fused, non-crater-digging explosives was the kind used as a prelude to other Allied offensives in the past.

Face 10 Divisions, Nazis Say

The Germans said "some ten divisions" of between 100,000 and

Ruhr Road Cut, Foe Says; 7th Advances

Paris, March 15 (AP)—American forces east of the Rhine captured four towns and extended their bridgehead to an area 11 miles by 6 today, and the Germans said the new United States 15th Army had joined the assault from the Remagen foothold.

The enemy reported that 100,000 Americans now were across the Rhine and had cut the Frankfurt-Ruhr Autobahn while the United States Ninth Army had made an attempt to cross the Rhine north of Duisburg, 55 miles north of Remagen.

To the south, the United States 7th Army attacked along a 50-mile front in the Saar and gained up to 3 miles in the first few hours against light to moderate resistance.

140,000 Americans had been thrown into the bridgehead. The report added:

"General Eisenhower has thrown the new American 15th Army into this battle."

The 15th, announced only last week, is commanded by Lieut. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, a Virginian with a flair for speed. His men are mostly of new, as yet unannounced divisions, seasoned with some veterans wearing the Purple Heart.

The bridgehead battle was in its eighth day and still was shrouded by a security blackout. Emphasis was on building up assault forces and making sure that no German counterattack could dislodge the conquerors. The position a half conquerors.

Near Junction City

Troops expanding the bridgehead advanced to Bruenesberg, 5½ miles east of the Rhine and 9½ southeast of Siegburg, a junction city on the superhighway. Other 1st Army forces were fighting in Notscheid, 6 miles east of the Rhine and 7 southeast of Honnef.

The Germans were building up their strength directly east of Remagen and claimed that their bombers had destroyed the Ludendorff Bridge and a nearby pontoon bridge supplying upward of 70,000 American foot and tank troops that the Nazis said were across the Rhine.

[The Paris radio said this morning that the Ludendorff Bridge was now out of reach of German field artillery, but this seemed doubtful. At last report the Remagen bridgehead was 10½ miles long and 5½ miles deep; such distances are easily covered by modern big guns.]

With the Ruhr already smoking as much from bombing and shelling as from production, the heightening question was how much longer its factories and forces could continue to make steel for German war needs.

The western edge of the Ruhr and its great cities of Cologne, Krefeld and Muenchen Gladbach were already in Allied hands. Artillery shelled the heart of the Ruhr basin for 15 miles east of the Rhine, battering such production centers as the Krupp Works at Essen, the vast inland port of Duisburg, Duesseldorf, Muelheim and Oberhausen. Air bombs supplemented the shells.

CHURCHILL SEES NAZI DEFEAT BY END OF SUMMER

SINGLETON

LONDON, March 15 — (AP) The war in Europe might well end "before summer ends or even sooner," Prime Minister Churchill told a conference of the Conservative party today.

"Victory lies before us—certain and perhaps near," he declared.

In making his prediction on the defeat of Germany, Churchill pointed out that with it "war conditions will no longer prevent, as they have hitherto prevented, the holding of a general election," Britain's first since 1935.

Seek Liberty of Action

He said the liberal and labor parties had indicated that they would resume their liberty of action in that election and end the coalition government of which he is head.

Therefore, Churchill declared, the Conservative party must consider the issue of the election to come and he drew it clearly as a showdown fight between forces of the right and left.

The Prime Minister demanded a future of "free enterprise" for Britain and exhorted the conservatives to stand firm against economic programs of nationalization "borrowed from foreign lands and alien minds" and against the ideas of the "stay-at-home, left-wing intelligentsia."

Saying "it is no cheap-jack utopia of air phrases that lies before us," Churchill asserted the Conservative party would be better off going down to defeat telling the truth than gaining "a span of shabbily bought office by easy and fickle froth and chatter."

In this fighting pep-talk to the party which he heads, Churchill dropped the impartiality of his role as a coalition premier and slugged orally at those who have criticized him and his party, calling those critics "that happily limited class of left-wing politicians to whom party strife is the breath of their nostrils."

But, even while serving notice that he had no intention of relinquishing the reins of leadership, either of his party or his country, the 70-year-old Prime Minister made it clear that he would not exclude members of other parties from any government he might head.

"If the verdict of the nation should leave us responsible," he said, "the government after the election will be further reformed with the sole desire of rallying the strongest forces to carry our cause to final victory and peace."

Amid laughter he told his followers, "you hear all this talk by the stay-at-home, left-wing intelligentsia that soldiers will hold us guilty if we do not have a brave new world waiting for them on their return.

Do not Seek New World

"They are not looking forward to a new world constructed behind their backs by politicians who seek their votes," he scoffed. "Most of them have lived long enough in uncomfortable proximity to another world to be thinking of that."

Churchill also reminded the conference that a great task awaited Britain in the war against Japan.

"We shall have to finish the war against Japan," he said, "not only as loyal Allies of the United States and other nations in that conflict, but also to regain, as we are regaining, territories which the Japanese have wrested from us."

Then, turning to the problems Britain will face in the post-war period, he called for a removal of all possible restrictions on British liberties after victory and shouted, "control for control's sake is senseless."

"At the head of our mainmast we fly the flag of free enterprise," he declared.

The Prime Minister received a tremendous ovation as he concluded his 45-minute address.

The conference adopted a resolution calling for the occupation of Germany "until the Allies are satisfied that the German people have abandoned aggressive militarism," disbanding Germany's military forces, preventing her rearmament and "such further measures as may be required until Germany is again fit to take her place in a prosperous world economy."

Other resolutions adopted by the party meeting called for:

British foreign policy designed to bring about international stability based upon rule of law.

Action to give service men priority on houses.

Retention of conscription for the armed forces.

Establishment of a common empire trade policy.

Churchill Sees Summer Victory, Pledges Election

SINGLETON

London, March 15 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today that victory over Germany might come "before summer ends or even sooner," and promised Britain its first general election since 1935 as soon as possible after Hitler is beaten.

He served notice that he intended to guide Britain in the trials of peace and pledged his party, the dominant Conservatives, to promotion of free enterprise in the postwar period.

"Victory lies before us, certain and perhaps near," he told the Conservative party conference.

2,000 delegates gave their leader a tumultuous ovation as he concluded his 45-minute address.

His temper obviously taut after recent sharp exchanges with left-wing critics in Commons, the Prime Minister struck out at "our socialist friends" and their program "for nationalizing all the means of production, distribution and exchange."

"Foreign System"

He asserted that would imply "not only the destruction of the life of the whole of our existing system of society and life and labor, but the creation and inforcement of another system or systems borrowed from foreign lands, and alien minds."

With more than 1,000,000 British homes damaged or destroyed, Churchill said:

"Never was there a time when so much was planned and projected and so much remained to be turned from paper into action. Nothing is more clear than that when the war is over the world will face an acute shortage of food for several years. It would be madness indeed to cast away the increased food production which has been achieved in the war."

Hopes For Ruin Of Nazis

In his first address to a full Conservative party conference since assuming leadership of this dominant political group four and a half years ago, Churchill declared:

"The continuous and ever more rapid progress of the war against Germany and the Nazi tyranny leads us all to hope that the giant foe against whom for more than a year we stood alone, unflinching and undismayed, will be forced into unconditional surrender or beaten to the ground in chaos or ruin."

"Insults Unanswered"

A target of frequent criticism from Left-wing factions in Commons, the Prime Minister opened his Right-wing political party's address by saying:

"Many are the insults and slanders which we have allowed to pass—I will not say unnoticed, but unanswered—for the sake of concentration on the war effort.

"We shall maintain this patriotic restraint as long as the national coalition continues to work together in loyal comradeship."

Won't Quit After Victory

He indicated clearly that he has no intention of stepping down from the driver's seat once Germany is defeated.

"Should it fall to me," said Churchill, "as it may do, to form a government before the general election, I shall seek out not only Conservatives but men of any party or no party who are willing to serve and thus invest our administration with a national character."

This, obviously, was meant to include victory over Japan as well as Germany.

Must Repay Injuries

For Churchill, only a few minutes later, declared Britain was obligated to repay injuries inflicted by the Japanese "and the infernal cruelties they have perpetrated upon his Majesty's subjects, British, Australian, Indian, Burmese and Malayan alike."

"This requires an intense effort, and no mood of war weariness must prevent us from doing our duty to the last inch and to the last minute," he declared.

Cautioning of difficulties ahead, Churchill declared: "Let there be no mistake about it. It is no easy cheap-jack Utopia of airy phrases that lies before us.

"No Time For Platitudes"

"This is no time for windy platitudes. The Conservative party had far better go down telling the truth and acting in accordance with the verities of our position than gain a span of shabbily bought office by easy and fickle froth and chatter."

"Woe betide those public men," Churchill cried, "who seek to slide into power down the slippery slope of vain and profligate undertakings. This is no time for humbug and blandishment, but for grim and stark facts and figures, and action to meet immediate needs.

"It would be very easy for us all to promise or even to give each other presents, bonuses and gratuities in the most enthusiastic manner, but if we woke up in the morning and found that the pound sterling ($4) bought only 5 shillings ($1) worth of goods or services, we should have committed the crime of cheating the soldiers and workers of the country."

Transport Limits Jap War

Speaking of the war against Japan and the future, the Prime Minister said:

"However, the scale of the war against Japan is limited not by manpower, for that will readily be forthcoming. It is limited by shipping and other means of transport over the vast ocean spaces and through steaming jungle. . . .

"You hear all this talk by the stay-at-home Left-wing intelligentsia that the soldier will hold us guilty if we do not have a new world waiting for them on their return. The brave new world is to be already waiting for them when they disembark at Liverpool, on the Clyde, at Southampton, or Tilbury Docks.

Not Looking For New World

"But that is not what the fighting men are looking forward to.

"They are not looking forward to a new world constructed behind their backs by politicians who seek their votes. Most of them have lived long enough in uncomfortable proximity to another world to be thinking of that. . . .

"They do not regard themselves as a slum-bred serf population chased into battle from a land of misery and want. They love their country and the scenes of their youth and manhood and they have shown themselves ready to die not only in defense of its material satisfactions but for its honor.

Will Decide On Destiny

"They wish to see old England or Scotland or Wales or northern Ireland playing their part in the forefront of all the nations in battles against tyranny. When they are home and settled down and our country is again a going concern, paying its way and standing on its own in the postwar world, then will be the time for them to settle what form and shape our society should assume. . . .

"All my experience of the British people, which is a long one, convinces me that never at any moment more than this have they meant to face realities and woe betide those public men who seek to slide into power down the slippery slope of vain and profligate undertakings.

"No Time For Humbug"

"This is no time for humbug and blandishment but for grim and stark facts and figures and action to meet immediate needs. There is, however, another note which I must strike on the gong. . . .

"No restriction upon well-established British liberties that is not proved indispensable to the prosecution of the war and the transition from war to peace can be tolerated.

Opposes Needless Controls

"Control for control's sake is senseless. Controls under the pretext of war or its aftermath which are in fact designed to favor the accomplishment of totalitarian systems, however innocently designed, whatever guise they take, whatever liveries they wear, whatever slogans they mouth, are a fraud which should be mercilessly exposed to the British public.

"At the head of our mainmast we fly the flag of free enterprise. We are determined that the native genius and spirit of adventure, of risk-taking in peace as in war, shall bear our fortunes forward, finding profitable work and trade for our people, and that good and thrifty housekeeping, both national and private, shall sustain our economy."

Nazi Army Headquarters Blasted by U. S. Bombers

650 Big Planes Shower Explosives, Incendiaries on Zossen.

CHAMBERLIN

LONDON, Friday, March 16. — (AP) The German army's general staff headquarters near Berlin was smashed yesterday in one phase of a 2,100-plane American raid which was followed last night by the twenty-fourth consecutive RAF night bombing of the enemy capital. The attacks concluded one of the biggest and most successful days of the war for the Allied air forces.

NIGHT

The American bombers sowed 3,500 tons of high explosives and incendiaries in the vicinity of Berlin, including the German army's nerve center at Zossen, 20 miles south, where some 650 especially-briefed bombardiers of the Eighth Air force had little trouble picking out the target in clear weather.

Bombers Blast Zossen

The visual bombing of Zossen, where the highest ranking officers of the Wehrmacht were believed engrossed in attempting to run the war on both the Eastern and Western fronts, probably will rank among the best accomplished by the Eighth Air force, its officers said. Returning crewmen were jubilant over the success of the mission.

Anti-aircraft fire, though heavy at other points near Berlin, was meager at Zossen. Sixteen bombers and three fighters were reported missing from the Eighth's operations yesterday.

"While part of the German army general staff headquarters at Zossen is deep underground," a staff officer of the Eighth said, "today's attack by about 650 Flying Fortresses and Liberators was aimed at paralyzing the Army nerve center through destruction of administration buildings, vital records, barracks, utilities and communications and transport systems. It was the first time the high command headquarters in Germany had been attacked by Eighth airforce bombers."

Meanwhile, the RAF was hurling 11-ton "town-busters" at western Germany, and the British planes came back after dark for blows at Berlin; Hagen, an industrial town on the edge of the Ruhr, and Misbourg, three miles east of Hannover, where an oil refinery was hit.

Some 6,000 to 7,000 planes were hurled against the Germans from the west, south and east, as a long-awaited break in the weather released Allied air power in the near-record strength.

Tonight the sustained air assault apparently was being carried into its 32nd consecutive day. The German radio flashed warnings throughout the evening that bomber formations were heading over western and northwestern Germany and that "spearheads" of the aerial formations were racing toward Brandenburg, the German capital's own province.

Planes Strike from Italy

From Italy, American heavy bombers struck to within 65 miles southwest of Berlin in their deepest penetration of Germany while on the Western front hundreds of medium and light bombers battled in support of ground forces. On the Eastern front, too, Russian planes were in the air.

The RAF's great new 22,000-pound bombs, which made their debut Wednesday, were dropped on the vital Arnsburg rail viaduct, 27 miles southeast of bomb-ravaged Dortmund. Wednesday, the strategic viaduct was plastered with the RAF's six-ton "blockbusters", while warfare's greatest package of explosive was loosed on the great double-track Bielefeld viaduct, north of the Ruhr.

Six to eight of the viaduct's spans were buckled, an Air Ministry announcement said, describing both the Bielefeld and Arnsburg spans, carrying lines to the Ruhr, as the "most vlunerable points on what now are the most important railroad routes, both military and economically, in the whole of Germany."

The U. S. Eighth Air Force baffled the Nazi defenders of Berlin today as more than 1,350 Flying Fortresses and Liberators, guarded by 750 fighters, roared straight for Berlin in a 300-mile long sky-train and then split in half to loop around the capital for strikes on Zossen, on the south, and the jammed Oranienburg railyards, seven miles north of greater Berlin.

Nazis Huddle in Shelters

While one force left Nazi military leaders huddled in air raid shelters, the other hurled high explosives on the choked freight yards at Oranienburg, described by an Eighth air force staff officer as one of the Reich's greatest military depots providing the entire German army with equipment of all kinds.

The bold American operation, which had been held in readiness by Allied air chiefs for ideal bombing weather, had taken, double-edged purpose. It threw Nazi war planners into confusion and left them less to plan with when they recover.

Oranienburg, aerial photos had showed, was packed with supplies for the Eastern Front, especially the Stettin battle area. It had been bombed once before on April 18, 1944.

A staff officer said that the yards were believed handling traffic bypassing Berlin and disclosed that 3,500,000 pounds of high explosives were dropped. Many of them were one-ton bombs. Missiles of this type also were sent hurtling down on staff headquarters at Zossen.

As the bombers thrashed over Berlin, smoke could be seen rising from within the city which was hit Wednesday night by two-ton blockbusters for the 23d straight night by RAF Mosquitoes. During the night, RAF heavy bombers also struck at German troops at Homburg and other points and hammered a synthetic oil plant at Lutzendorf in Saxony.

thirty-first day of the Allies' sustained aerial offensive, is on the main highway and one of the two main railways to the Baltic coast where Russian armies are operating against Stettin, and on the Have River, which connects with a large freight canal.

An Air Force spokesman said recent reconnaissance showed the Oranienburg yards were extremely active.

[United States Flying Fortresses unleashed a shattering attack from Italy today on what headquarters called "the most important target in Europe," the gigantic Ruhland oil refinery 65 miles southeast of Berlin. It was a 1,400-mile round trip from Italian bases and the deepest 15th Air Force penetration of the Reich thus far.

In Vienna Area

[Other United States heavies battered three refineries within the Vienna area. An Air Force spokesman said reconnaissance indicated the attacks all were successful and estimated that 25 per cent of Germany's total production of synthetic oil had been knocked out, at least temporarily.

[The Ruhland bombing was done visually in good weather and also by use of instruments.]

British bombers were in action during the night, heavies striking at the Western front supply centers of Zweibruecken and Homburg, while Mosquitos rocked Berlin for the twenty-third straight night.

More than 5.000 British and American planes participated in the operations yesterday during which the new RAF superbombs were introduced in the attack on London, March 15 (AP)—A fleet of 1,350 American bombers attacked the outskirts of Berlin, including the huge freight yards at Oranienburg, today following the first use by the RAF of a new 11-ton volcano bomb.

Oranienburg, 16 miles north of Berlin, is virtually a suburb of the battered Nazi capital which has been bombed on 23 successive nights by RAF Mosquitos.

The first use of the new 11-ton bomb by the RAF yesterday was credited with knocking out the important Berlin-Ruhr railway viaduct at Bielefeld, 80 miles east of the Rhine.

POLES PROTEST EXCLUSION FROM

SECURITY TALKS

PARRIS

LONDON, March 15. — (AP) Prime Minister Churchill frankly told the House of Commons today that a line between the strong and the weak was drawn at Yalta, with the big powers alone wielding the right in the world security league to veto measures directed against them as aggressors.

NIGHT

His defense of the veto powers—denied to small nations bent on aggression—came as the Polish government in London issued a violent protest against its exclusion from the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

Churchill Defends Yalta

"We may deplore if we choose that there is a difference between the great and the small, between the strong and the weak in the world," Churchill said. "There undoubtedly is such a difference and it would be foolish to upset good arrangements proceeding on a broad front for the sake of trying to attain immediately to what is a hopeless ideal."

While Churchill appeared in the House of Commons, the Poles issued their statement saying they "emphatically insist on their indisputable right to take part in the World Security conference" to be held next month at San Francisco.

They accused Russia of exercising a right of veto even before the United Nations approved or accepted proposals concerning the International Security organization.

In a note to the United States, British and Chinese governments protesting its omission from the governments invited to San Francisco April 25, the exiled Polish regime contended it was "the sole legal and independent representative of the Polish state."

The note said the Polish government in London had submitted certain preliminary suggestions on the Dumbarton Oaks proposals and "intended participating to the fullest" in the establishment of the World Security organization.

Laborite Questions Churchill

Churchill was asked in Commons by Laborite Rys Davies if, under the Yalta agreement, there was a differentiation in the treatment of the great powers and small nations bent on aggression.

The question was put with the observation that the Crimean conference envisaged action by a new international organization to prevent aggression by smaller powers.

"It is clear that similar action could be invoked to prevent aggression by great powers," Davies said.

Churchill conceded the "axiomatic truth" in Davies statement that "there is nothing at all to deal with" aggression by the great powers.

"Are we not entitled to ask that our delegates at San Francisco will bear this important point in mind when discussing the problem?" Davies asked.

Churchill's answer was direct:

"No, sir. As far as we are concerned, we made a perfectly voluntary agreement with other great powers that were gathered at Yalta and that does prescribe for a differentiation between the treatment of the greatest powers in these matters and of the smallest powers."

CHURCHILL SAYS BIG POWERS ARE LEFT FREE OF CURB

Admits Yalta Took No Action on Aggression by Any of Big Three Nations.

London, March 15 (A. P.).—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today there was axiomatic truth in a member's statement that under the Yalta agreement on world security "there is nothing at all" to deal with aggression by the great Powers.

Rhys Davies, a Laborite, drew the Prime Minister out with the observation that the new international organization agreed upon at Yalta envisaged action to prevent aggression by the smaller Powers.

"It is not clear that similar action could be invoked to prevent aggression by the great Powers," Davies added. "Are we not entitled to ask that our delegates at San Francisco will bear this important point in mind when discussing the problem?"

"No, sir," was Mr. Churchill's direct answer. "As far as we are concerned we made a perfectly voluntary agreement with other great Powers that were gathered at Yalta and that does prescribe for a differentiation between the treatment of the greatest Powers in these matters and of the smallest Powers.

"We may deplore, if we choose, that there is a difference between the great and small, between the strong and the weak in the world. There is undoubtedly such a difference and it would be foolish to upset the good arrangements proceeding on a broad front for the sake of trying to attain immediately to what is a hopeless ideal."

The Polish Government in London protested in notes to the British, United States and Chinese governments today against its commission from the San Francisco World Security Conference.

The Polish government contended that it was the "sole legal and independent representatives of the Polish State" and "emphatically insist on their indisputable right to take part in the World Security Conference."

Windsor Resigns Post in Bahamas; Ex-King Expected to Live in France

FRYE

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, Friday, March 16—The Duke of Windsor has resigned as Governor and Commander in Chief of the Bahamas, a post into which he stepped almost five years ago, the Colonial Office announced last night.

NIGHT

This announcement, made without explanation or comment, brought the former king and his duchess back into the limelight in Britain, the news of his giving up his post being played prominently by London newspapers, which have mentioned the Windsors infrequently and obscurely in recent years.

The stories printed here said it was understood that the Duke, who reigned briefly as Edward VIII, probably would retire from public life and live in France, where he married American-born Wallis Warfield Simpson, for whom he abandoned his throne.

In Nassau, a Government statement said the news did not give "any cause for surprise," and the Duke himself at a press conference pointed out that he had served almost the five-year maximum tenure of his office.

The Duke will be succeeded, the Colonial Office said, by W. L. Murphy, 58-year-old Colonial Secretary to Bermuda, who on several occasions has served as Acting Governor.

The Duke of Windsor would have completed next Aug. 17 five years as Governor of a tiny segment of the British Empire over which he ruled as King-Emperor nearly a year before abdicating on Dec. 10, 1936.

Colonial Governors normally are appointed for five-year terms, but the surprise with which the announcement was met indicated that most persons had expected him to continue in the work, which appeared to have been the most satisfactory activity of a career that, from birth, had been hemmed in closely by precedent that often irked him.

Authoritative sources here, who said it was surprising that he quit with the end of his term so near, praised his administration for giving the Bahamas a "greater measure of prosperity" and bettering the lot of its workers.

The Duke is a rich man. Queen Victoria left him wealth and he draws a large income from the Duchy of Cornwall, his private property.

Expected in United States

It is believed here that the Windsors will stay in the United States until plans for their removal to France are completed. It is expected that they will live in Paris, where in pre-war years they leased a palatial home.

The Windsors also have a Riviera home—Chateau de la Croe at Cap d'Antibes—originally leased from Sir Pomeroy Burton in 1838. This white stone chateau escaped war damage and has been used as a rest home for wounded officers.

The Duke and the former Mrs. Simpson were married six months after he quit the throne and lived in Europe until the outbreak of the war. They hurried back to England and the Duke was sent to France in General Staff work.

Then, in 1940, he was appointed to the colonial post and plunged into the task of improving the welfare of 70,000 persons under his charge.

The Duchess was busy, too. As the war intensified and came to their very front yard, she turned to welfare work and dealt especially with survivors from torpedo ships washed ashore.

The couple visited the United States frequently. Their last visit was in August, when the Duchess underwent an appendectomy in a New York hospital. They returned to Nassau early in November at the end of their longest stay in the States.

Long before the Duke's arrival, the colony — a group of islands stretching from just off Florida's lower east coast down to the eastern tip of Cuba—had given to a great extent the pursuit of agriculture in favor of the more easy and lucrative business of serving American tourists.

He demanded from the legislature establishment of Windsor farms, a training ground in food growing, and won it in the second year of his rule. He set up barracks and promised courses to selected farmers willing to learn how to use rich soil in some of the out-islands.

Duchess Helped War Effort

The Duchess was busy, too. As the war intensified and came to their very front yard, she turned to welfare work and dealt especially with survivors from torpedoed ships washed ashore.

The couple visited the United States frequently. Their last visit was in August, when the Duchess underwent an appendectomy in a New York hospital. They returned to Nassau early in November at the end of their longest stay in the states.

While they were in the states in 1942, and the Duke was discussing in Washington a proposed pay increase for workmen on a U. S.-British war project in Nassau, a strike followed by riots developed suddenly there. Laborers, dissatisfied with an 80-cents daily wage, marched into the town, smashing windows and looting shops. Local officers were unable to cope with them and the Duke took a special plane, hurried home and broadcast an appeal for quiet, promising he would consider the workers' demands.

Peace was restored instantly and with only a little delay the Duke won approval of an agreement to raise the workers' pay to $1 daily and providing them a free meal at noon.

DUKE OF WINDSOR QUITS AS HEAD OF BAHAMA ISLANDS

Will Give Up Governorship in August at End of Five-Year Tenure.

KEPT PLANS SECRET

News from British Colonial Office Catches Duke by Surprise.

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 15—(AP) The Duke of Windsor announced today that he has resigned after serving for longer than four and one-half years as governor of the Bahama islands, a tiny colonial outpost of the mighty empire of which he once was king.

He said he had made no immediate plans for the future after he relinquishes his post in April.

To Stay in Nassau

He added, that he and his American-born duchess, for whose love he relinquished the crown will remain at Nassau for at least another month.

W. L. Murphy, 58-year-old colonial secretary to Bermuda, will succeed the Duke.

The news of the Duke's resignation caught Nassau by complete surprise.

The Duke had kept his plans a secret even from his household staff, it was explained, and a government house spokesman reported that an announcement of the resignation from the British colonial office in London surprised the Duke.

He said that the Duke "didn't know anything about it."

The spokesman declared that the Governor's first word of the action came from an Associated Press correspondent, who asked for comment on the London announcement.

The Duke had left government house to go out to lunch at the time.

When he learned that the word was out, he called his staff and colonial leaders together and told them of the resignation.

It was explained that the Duke himself was somewhat surprised by the announcement because he did not expect it to be made until April.

In a later news conference, the Governor explained that the resignation will come after he has served within three and one-half months of "the five-year period of normal maximum tenure of a colonial governorship."

"The news that his royal highness had now decided to tender his resignation of the post of governor is therefore not unexpected nor gives any cause for surprise," a government announcement added.

The Duke took office Aug. 17, 1940.

RUSSIAN FORCES PUSH INTO GDYNIA ON BALTIC COAST

Isolate Battered Capital of Koenigsberg, Hurl Enemy Back.

Soviet Attacks Against Stettin Thrown Back, Germans Report.

WHEELER

LONDON, Friday, March 16—(AP) Russian shock troops, in a seven-mile breakthrough to the coast of the Frisches Haff (lagoon) southwest of Koenigsberg, sliced the German East Prussian pocket into two vulnerable segments yesterday in a lightning pop-up prelude to the central offensive toward Berlin.

Isolating the besieged and shellstorn provincial capital of Koenigsbarg from the main force of trapped enemy troops, the Third White Russian army reached the coast on a four-mile front and were hurling the battered remnants of 200,000 Nazi troops back to the sea along a blazing 39-mile line, Moscow's communique disclosed.

Smash Into Gdynia

Simultaneously, Berlin said that Soviet forces had fought into the outskirts of Gdynia on the Baltic coast and were battling across the Canal-webbed Vistula delta south of Danzig.

The enemy said violent Russian blows against the suburbs of Stettin had been thrown back while Russian heavy guns raked the island of Wollin at the northeastern extremity of the Stettiner Haff.

The Third White Russian army reached the coast of the Frisches Haff, Moscow said, after a seven-mile sweep across the coastal railroad and highway linking Koenigsberg with the East Prussian fortresses of Heiligenbeil and Braunsberg.

Elements of what Berlin said were seven Russian armies captured the coastal village of Heide-Waldburg, five miles southwest of Koenigsberg, after it had changed hands repeatedly in the bitter, prolonged fighting since late January, when the Soviets first took it.

Spreading out along the coast, the Russian wedge enveloped Wangitt, seven miles southwest of Koenigsberg, and swept up Albehnen and Einsam, the latter two miles northeast of the stronghold of Brandenburg.

The wedge cut off Koenigsberg from the southwest and left the Junker capital only with a narrow coastal strip running west to the escape port of Pillau.

Seizing 25 communities in advances toward the towns of Brandenburg, Heiligenbeil and Braunsberg, the Third White Russians threaten to divide the dwindling pocket yet again by seizing the four-way road junction of Bladiau, four miles from the sea.

Outflank Heiligenbeil

Bladiau's fall outflanked Heiligenbeil, seven miles northeast, while tanks and infantry pressed on the stronghold from the southeast, capturing Eisenberg, six miles from the big road and rail hub.

In bitter fighting along the east bank of the Behwer river, the Russian front moved toward Braunsberg, gaining a mile on the southeast by the capture of Vogelsang village, five miles from that objective.

NIGHT

More than 5,500 Germans were killed or captured and 29 enemy tanks knocked out in this fierce struggle east of the besieged Gdynia-Danzig pocket, the Soviet war bulletins said.

Enemy broadcasts said German planes had destroyed with eight direct hits a Russian-held bridge spanning the Oder river near Lebus, 32 miles east of Berlin, and said the impression was growing that Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov, First White Russian army commander, "does not feel sufficiently strong to unleash his grand-scale offensive."

Previous Nazi reports said Zhukov had pushed at least 100,000 men across the Oder on the road to Berlin, whose outskirts were lashed anew today by 2,100 American planes slamming some 3,500 tons of explosives into enemy military targets.

The Soviet clean-up of East Prussia and the combined smashes at the ports of Gdynia and Danzig to the west were regarded as the preludes to the coming great offensive toward Berlin and Dresden, Saxon capital, but the Germans and Russians alike reported savage fighting in Hungary and Slovakia and the Nazis told of fierce Russian assaults near Stettin, at the mouth of the Oder river, and at Kolberg, surrounded Baltic port in overrun Pomerania.

The Nazi garrison at Kolberg has rejected two Russian surrender demands, Berlin said.

Batter Nazi Positions

The Russians were laying down a terrific barrage on German positions on the west bank of the Dievenow river near the Baltic, and the Germans said Red army shock troops were trying to cross to Wollin island, one of the stepping stones to the heavily fortified port of Swinemuende, 33 miles northwest of Stettin.

Late German broadcasts said German fleet units had swung into action, laying down broadsides against Russian tank forces both near Stettin and in the Gdynia-Danzig area. It was declared that "scores" of Soviet tanks were destroyed.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev's First Ukraine army shock units were reported to have smashed deep into the southern and northern sections of Breslau, lower Silesian capital and largest Nazi city yet tackled by the Red army. Using flamethrowers, mortars and heavy weapons they had reached one of the city's biggest squares.

In southern Hungary the Germans said their troops had crossed the Sarviz canal southeast of Lake Balaton and were fighting on both sides of that natural defense line. The canal lies 16 miles from Lake Balaton's northeastern tip in the area south of Budapest. It is 20 miles west of the Danube.

Great tank battles swirled across the flat lands in their area where the German first World War leader, General Ludendorff, predicted the decisive struggle would be fought in any succeeding war. The Germans apparently were trying to disrupt Marshal Feodor Tolbukhin's plans for a renewed drive on Vienna and the Bavarian sector where the Nazis are expected to make their last stand.

Churchill's Address to Party

LONDON, March 15 (UP).—The text of an address by Prime Minister Winston Churchill before the annual conference of the Conservative party follows: TAKE

First of all, I have to thank you for all the too kind terms in which you passed a resolution yesterday and I also have to thank the proposer, our chairman, and the seconder, for commending it to your attention. This is the first time since I became leader of the party four and a half years ago that I have had the honor of addressing the delegates of the National Union in full party conference.

That does not mean to say that either you or I have been idle or neglectful of our duties in the interval. We have all worked our hardest in the national cause and we have been too busy for party politics. We have all abstained from doing or saying anything which would be likely to impair the unity of the British people or the smooth working of the coalition government of all parties which delivered us from mortal peril and won for itself a memorable place in our long history. We held in abeyance all party activities and allowed our organizations, both local and national, to be devoted entirely to the prosecution of the war.

In doing this we have endured patiently, almost silently, many provocations from that happily limited class of left-wing politicians to whom party strife is the breath of their nostrils. Many are the insults and slanders which we have allowed to pass—I will not say unnoticed but unanswered—for the sake of concentration on the war effort. Even the almost ceaseless series of attacks which have been made upon us in official Socialist and Liberal newspapers, with their writers, have extorted from us neither protest nor reply.

I am sure I shall carry you all with me in saying that we shall maintain this patriotic restraint as long as the national coalition, in which members from all parties have distinguished themselves, continues to work together in loyal comradeship.

Support in Greek Crisis

I must also thank the Conservative party for the resolute and undivided support which its representatives gave to the policy of the government in saving the City of Athens from a hideous massacre and in preventing an armed Communist minority from shooting their way into place and power. Among all our problems there have not been any which led to so much misunderstanding and misrepresentation at home and abroad as did this Greek trouble, but the policy of our coalition government was sustained by the whole strength of the Conservative party. They provided five-sixths, or maybe more, of the majorities and surely never has an episode in these violent days been crowned with more signal vindication.

The continuous and ever more rapid progress of the war against Germany and Nazi tyranny leads us all to hope that the giant foe against whom for more than a year we stood alone, unflinchingly undismayed, will be forced into unconditional surrender or beaten to the ground in chaos and ruin. It will always be the glory of our island race that they never swerved from the path of duty—they never lost faith in the meaning of fighting against tyranny to the death.

Thus we held aloft the flaming torch of freedom when all [illegible] and the night was black as [illegible] thus we gained time for the [illegible]ental tyrant, for Hitler, [illegible] master of wickedness, to [illegible]e a deadly error. Thus we [illegible] space for the United [illegible]tates to begin marshaling of [illegible]s great unmeasured forces of power, of science and of valor.

But there is another glory in which we may rejoice: that in those terrible days the whole of our Empire and Commonwealth of Nations, apart from one melancholy exception round the corner, stood together with us of their own free will from the greatest dominion to the smallest colony in spontaneous resolve to die or conquer with us in righteous cause. This astounding union of communities and races spread around the globe sprang not from legal or physical obligations but from mysterious, unfathomable upliftings of the soul of man, and raised our world-wide association to heights never attained nor even dreamt of by an empire of the past. Certainly with this unparalleled record we have no need to seek the advice of even our most honored Allies as to how we should conduct ourselves with regard to our own affairs. The maximum of Lord Beaconsfield, 'Imperium et Libertas' is still our guide. This truth has already been proved abundantly since those words were spoken. Without freedom there is no foundation for our empire. Without empire there is no safeguard for our freedom.

30.24-23921

We mean freedom for all states and nations within the circle of the Crown. By this we also mean freedom for individuals within the broad and ever-advancing conceptions of the British constitution and the British way of life.

"Trust the People"

We have no use here for totalitarian schemes of governments in their various forms. The right of free speech and political opposition have been preserved in hours of national peril to an extent incredible outside the English-speaking world.

"Trust the people," said Lord Randolph Churchill in the last strong revival of Tory democracy. Has not that trust been well repaid?

It has often been remarked by bewildered foreign observers that every extension of the franchise in Great Britin has left the Conservative party in a stronger position. The reason, or one of the main reasons, which they did not see, for this undoubted fact is the steady and ceaseless improvement in the education of the people, In the conditions of their life and in their growing conscious power to govern their country effectively. Here is the high road along which we march to sure and growing confidence. Here is the course we steer in the full tide of successful experiment.

When I became Prime Minister nearly five years ago, I promised nothing but blood, toil, tears and sweat, and on that I received from the House of Commons a vote of confidence of 397 to naught and from the nation I received such aid and trust as no other politician in our history has ever enjoyed before. The other day, after this long period of terrible events, with all their ups and downs, with their chances and perplexities, the figure of Parliament's confidence rose to 413 to naught.

But this Parliament is nearly ten years old. It has lived almost double its constitutional span and executive government must refresh itself by direct contact with electors.

Should the war in Europe end before the summer ends, or even sooner, as it might well do, we shall have reached a considerable milestone in our journey and war conditions will no longer prevent us, as they have hitherto prevented, from holding a general election—and here I regret to say that public declarations of our Labor and some of our Liberal colleagues and of the party organizations which they represent leave us in no doubt that they feel themselves bound to resume their full liberty of action, thus bringing this famous coalition to an end. We must prepare ourselves for the loss of many loyal and capable fellow workers in the administration and for a full clash of party principles and party interests, inseparable from appeal to the judgment of the people.

It will fall to us, as the largest party in the existing House of Commons, to arrange for a general election which will be conducted with British fair play, and, I trust, with a minimum of party or personal rancor and above all with the least possible injury to the underlying unity of the nation in serving the national cause.

Nation Will Be Weakened

Nevertheless we cannot be blind to the fact that the strength of government which has borne us thus far through the struggle will be seriously weakened. Should we be successful in the election, a very happy burden will fall upon our shoulders. The gap has to be filled. The job has to be finished and I am here to tell you that we must brace ourselves and summon all our energies in order that if, as I believe, the nation places its faith in us, we shall not be found unequal to the gigantic toils that lie ahead.

For this purpose we must lay aside every impediment; we must cleanse our hearts of all unworthy feelings and seek only the faithful discharge of our responsibilities and the long-term welfare of the state. Should it fall to me, as it may do, to form a government before election, I shall seek aid not only of Conservatives but of men of good will of any party or no party who are willing to serve, thus investing our administration with national character. And if the verdict of the nation should still leave us responsible, that government after election will be further reformed with the sole desire of rallying the strongest available to carry our cause to final victory and peace.

We must not underrate the enormous tasks that will lie before us if our countrymen afford us their confidence. Nor must we fear these tasks or shrink from them or doubt our capacity to surmount all difficulties or make our way through them as we have made our way thus far.

There is one thing we shall certainly not do. We shall not bid for votes or popularity by promising what we cannot perform, nor shall we compete with others in electioneering baits and lures. It would be very easy for us all to promise, or even to give each other, presents, bonuses and gratuities in a most enthusiastic manner but if we woke up in the morning and found that the pound sterling only bought five shillings worth of goods or services, we should have committed a great crime.

We should have committed the crime of cheating, of cheating soldiers and workers in this country of a nest egg, very often amounting to £200 or £300 which millions of people acquired by their faithful discharge of duty and their thrift and self-denial during the war.

Defense of High Taxes

Great as are the evils of high taxation in clogging the wheels of enterprise and commerce—that is a fact that must ever be before us—they are not comparable to those which would follow financial collapse and destruction of all standards of value between man and man.

Our Socialist friends have officially committed themselves, much to the disgust of some of their leaders, to a program for nationalizing all means of production, distribution and exchange. These are all matters which the British public can consider at their leisure. They can consider them when times are quiet and when our soldiers are home again and settled down in civilian life and employment. Then will be the time to go into all these sweeping proposals which imply not only distribution of the life of the whole of our existing system of society and life and labor, but the creation and enforcement of another system or systems borrowed from foreign lands and alien minds. But this is not the time.

Now our tasks are severely and precisely defined . . . we have to finish the war against Japan and play our part, not only as loyal allies of the United States and other nations in that conflict, but also to regain, as we are regaining, territories which the Japanese wrested from us. We have to repay the injuries they inflicted and infernal cruelties they perpetrated upon His Majesty's subjects, British, Australian, Indian, Burmese and Malayan alike.

That will require an intense effort and no mood of war weariness must prevent us from doing our duty to the last inch and to the last minute.

However, the scale of war against Japan is limited not by man power, for that will be readily forthcoming. It is limited by shipping and other means of transportation over vast ocean spaces and through steaming jungles.

Although it will be our ceaseless endeavor to hurl our utmost strength into the Japanese war, although we shall have to provide for the garrisoning of a zone in Germany which has been assigned to us in discussion with our principal allies, nevertheless we should have to provide for the return to this country of very large numbers of our soldiers now serving abroad, many of whom have been separated from their families for years. What are the questions these men are asking now and what are the questions that are being asked by those they love and those who love them in the cottage homes of Britain? Will the warrior return, will the family be reunited, will the shattered houses be restored, will there be a steady job for several years ahead for all those who have served their country on the war front and for those who were, for good reasons, deprived of the privilege and ordered by the state to serve it with equal fidelity in the field and factories at home? These are the questions that arise in every breast.

No New World Is Ready

How shall we answer them? We have got to answer them in a manner worthy of us and worthy of our vital strength as a race and a state.

You hear all this talk by the stay-at-home left wing intelligentsia that the soldiers will hold us guilty if we do not have a new world already waiting for them when they disembark at Liverpool, on the Clyde, at Southampton or the Tilburg docks.

But that is not what the fighting men are looking forward to. They are not looking forward to a new world constructed behind their backs by politicians who seek their votes. Most of them have lived long enough in uncomfortable proximity to another world to be thinking of that. Their heart's desire is that after duty has been done and the job finished, they should come home. They do not regard themselves as slum-bred serf population chased into battle from a land of misery and want. They love their country and the scenes of their youth and manhood and they have shown themselves ready to die, not only in defense of its material satisfactions but for its honor. They wish to see old England or Scotland or Wales or Northern Ireland playing their part in the forefront of all the nation's battles against tyranny.

When they are home, settled down, and our country is again a going concern, paying its way and standing on its own in the post-war world, then will be the time for them to settle what form and shape our society should assume, but our own tasks will be precise, sharply and plainly outlined. Above all they are a practical job. We have to finish the war. We have to bring men home. We have to get our dear country on the move again and into its full swing of natural health and life.

There will be plenty of time for politicians when these grim fundamental tasks have been discharged and when that time comes, we shall not show ourselves incapable of expressing our point of view in these free discussions of our democracy. But there are other tasks which must be added to the stern list. We do not wish to live on charity or generosity of any nation. We have given our all in the common cause and may claim assistance to recover our normal economy from those we have helped to victory, but we must never agree to found our economic life on the indulgence or favor even of the Allies we most dearly cherish.

Blood, sweat, toil and tears—there may be less blood and fewer tears, but mental toil, physical sweat, the conscious united resolve of every man and woman to give all that is in them will be required from us after the last bomb or cannon has ceased to thunder.

Let there be no mistake about it. It is no easy cheapjack Utopia of airy phrases that lies before us. This is no time for windy platitudes. The Conservative party had far better go down telling the truth and acting in accordance with the verities of our position than gain a span of shabbily bought office by easy fickle, froth and chatter.

All my experience of the British people, which is a long one convinces me that never at any moment more than this have they meant to face realities, and woe betide those public men who seek to slide into power down the slippery slope of vain and profligate undertakings. This is no time for humbug and blandishment but for grim and stark facts and figures and action to meet immediate needs.

There is, however, another note which I must strike on the gong. I have in mind the resolutions which you proposed at yesterday's sessions. If we are to recover from the measureless exertions of the war it can only be by a large release from the necessary bonds and controls which war conditions have imposed upon us. No restriction upon the well established liberties that is not proved indispensable to the prosecution of the war and the transition from war to peace can be tolerated.

Control for control's sake is senseless. Controls under the pretext of war or its aftermath which are, in fact, designed to favor the accomplishment of totalitarian systems however innocently designed or whatever guise they take, whatever liveries they wear, whatever slogans they mouth, are fraud which should be mercilessly exposed to the British public. At the head of our mainmast we fly the flag of free enterprise. We are determined that native genius and the spirit of adventure and of risk taking, in peace as in war, shall bear our fortunes forward, finding profitable work and trade for our people, and that good, thrifty housekeeping, both national and private, shall sustain our economy.

This does not mean that we are likely to run short of necessary controls. While food is scarce, it must be fairly shared. While thousands of enemy prisoners are in our midst, we must still have identity cards. While extraordinary conditions prevail, special powers, safeguards and regulations will be required. But many of these evils will pass away as we recover our natural life and these years of sombre crisis brighten into daylight again.

Still there are other tasks beyond those I mentioned. Two years ago I declared that we must have a four-year plan for a new Parliament after the war and in spite of our struggles abroad, immense toil and preparation have been given to the design of this plan. We are making steady, immense progress with the program I then outlined. We have passed into law the greatest Education Act ever known in these islands and we are putting that act into operation in a fortnight's time. We are now discussing in Parliament the long-cherished family allowances bill. We have shaped and prepared vast schemes of national insurance. We propose to introduce a new plan for altering the basis upon which compensation for industrial injury is at present assessed. We have adopted plans for revolutionizing our health system.

I will not elaborate the list but many of these are but bits of paper, white paper, and still have to be brought into operation. The bulk have yet to be passed into law. The great mass of this immense constructive heave will be the task of the new Parliament.

But there is ever with us the

MAR 16 1945

MAR 16 1945

clamant problem of providing sufficient houses after five years of no building being possible by us, after five years of destruction by the enemy.

Broad Housing Program

I can assure you we are grappling with the housing shortage to the utmost that is possible before the builders, who are also home seekers, return from the Rhine, from the Apennines and from Mandalay. Everything in human power is being and shall be done. Of course, we must first concentrate, as we are doing, all available building and labor on these parts of our cities which suffered the most but we shall not be content, even during the progress of hostilities, merely to repair the devastation in places which the enemy found it most easy to attack.

The same drive and punch, and may I say genius in organization which enabled us to triumph over U-boats, over flying bombs and to land a mighty army on the Continent last June, must and will be applied as we regather strength from war to construction and reconstruction of housing both in towns and in the country.

A four-year plan will require our utmost effort. The government in power will not only have to turn White Papers into acts of Parliament but to make acts of Parliament a living, active, harmonious part of our social system. On all this we must march ahead even while the Japanese war continues and even while the process of bringing back armies and rehabilitating our trade is incomplete. Never was there a time when so much was planned and projected and so much remains to be turned from paper to action.

There is one great change that war has brought into our national life which we must never again cast away. Alone among the great nations of the world, we cannot live without immense importation of foreign food. War taught us that we have long neglected the treasure house of British soil. Twice in a generation we called on the farming community in spite of that neglect to keep the wolf from our doors. They have not failed us.

Increase in Food Output

The record of the agricultural industry in increasing food production and helping to save vital shipping marks a grand contribution to our survival. When we look to the future nothing is more clear than that when the war is over, the world will face an acute shortage of food for several years. We, who even under war-time pressure only grow two-thirds of our necessary food, and that is a marvelous expansion, must feel disquieted at living four years in the midst of a hungry world. It would be madness indeed to cast away the increased food production which has been achieved in war. Indeed, having regard to the many improvements which have been introduced into British agriculture under the scourge of necessity, we have every reason to hope, as we are bound to plan, for a substantial further increase in home food production beyond any we have yet accomplished.

There was another reason for making ourselves more independent in food supply. We have freely sacrificed our foreign investments which brought a large income into this country and helped redress our trade balance. We paid them without a moment's hesitation during the time that we were keeping the flag of freedom flying all alone. After the war the revival and expansion of our export trade will be a prime and indispensable factor in our prosperity. Every ton of food produced here not only helps to fill to some extent the gap caused by the loss of our foreign investments but it sets free more of our export trade to buy, not only food, but those raw materials without which neither trade nor production are possible.

Agriculture, therefore, assumes a place in the forefront of post-war policy. A healthy and well-balanced agriculture is one of the mainsprings of our national life.

I note with interest and sympathy the resolution which this conference carried yesterday on this subject, supporting as the resolution did, a long-term policy which, by means of price stability, would secure an efficient and fair return for his capital and for the worker a standard of living comparable with that in other industries.

A prosperous agriculture brings benefits alike to town and country. It brings health, both physical and moral, to the nation as a whole, and we must cherish it as the first of British industries and nourish all our other industries thereby.

Victory lies before us, certain and perhaps near. But the years of cruel torment and destruction have wasted earth and victory, with all its brilliant trappings, appears to our strained, experienced eyes as deliverance rather than as triumph. Our hearts go out in thankfulness that we have been saved from annihilation and from the enduring ruin of our country. And that after all our long and famous history we shall come through once again with life and honor a convulsion that has ravaged the globe.

We shall best show our gratitude for these mercies by the zeal and faithfulness with which we devote ourselves to our duty and prove ourselves worthy in strength and in spirit of the place we hold in the hearts of men and in the vanguard of the modern world.

LESS MEAT IN BRITAIN

London, March 15 (A. P.).—Britons, who can buy only 24 cents worth of meat apiece each week under the present rationing system, faced the prospect today of receiving even less in the near future.

The food situation is serious and a Washington announcement that the United States will send less meat to Britain is causing deep concern among housewives.

One reason behind the food shortage here is the severe drought in Australia and New Zealand, where enormous orders had been placed for supplies in 1945.

Three Escaped Nazis Caught

LONDON, March 15 (AP).—Tired and hungry, three fugitive German prisoners of war came out of the hills of South Wales early today and were seized a short time after reaching a main road. Their capture left at large thirteen of seventy who escaped in a mass break from Bridgend camp Sunday.

Exchange Ship Leaves Sweden

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—The Berlin radio announced today that the Swedish exchange ship Drottningholm sailed from Goeteborg this morning with 900 passengers, mostly British civilian internees and Argentine and Turkish diplomats homeward bound from Germany. The liner will dock first in England, discharge the Argentines in Lisbon and then proceed to Istanbul. She is expected to return in May with Germans now interned in Argentina.

SMASHED NAZI PLOT

London, March 15 (A. P.).—The smashing of a Nazi sabotage ring in Teheran a short time before the Big Three meeting there late in 1943 was disclosed yesterday with the lifting of censorship on the arrest of 170 suspected Iranian collaborationists.

In a delayed dispatch from Teheran, Associated Press Correspondent Charles Grumich said that Nazi spies and saboteurs—flown and parachuted from Berlin—fostered intrigue that endangered Prime Minister Churchill, President Roosevelt and Premier Marshal Stalin.

The dispatch, dated February 10, but received here only yesterday, said the plotters had the assistance of the Japanese Legation in Iran. British counter-espionage tracked down the plotters.

Pope Will Speak Sunday

LONDON, March 15 (AP)—The Vatican radio announced today that Pope Pius XII would address the people of Rome next Sunday in a broadcast at 4:10 P. M. (11:10 A. M. Eastern war time).

Troops Rushed To Belgium by Air

London, March 15 (A. P.).—Approximately 6,000 troops, needed recently in Belgium on short notice, were flown from England in five days, the Air Ministry disclosed today. The soldiers were transported in C-47s of the R. A. F. and the American Air Transport Command.

U. S. Sailors Wed Ulster Girls

LONDON, March 15 (AP).—Commodore T. J. Keane, U. S. Naval officer in Northern Ireland, disclosed today that 25 per cent of the men under his command have married Northern Ireland girls.

Cry Of 'Lie' Again Sends Commons Into Uproar

London, March 15 (AP)—The House of Commons was in an uproar a second time in three days over the shouted accusation that one of its members was a liar.

Two days ago, Laborite Richard Stokes said Prime Minister Churchill "lied" on the merits of British tanks. Challenged yesterday by Churchill, Stokes withdrew the word.

The term was tossed today at Sir James Grigg, War Minister, by Laborite Aneurin Bevan, when Grigg said the Army had stood alone "with not an awful lot of help from the honorable member."

"That's a lie," Bevan shouted.

After a few minutes of noisy excitement, Bevan withdrew his assertion.

Dr. Inge Asserts Britain Is Headed for 'Serfdom'

Ex-Dean of St. Paul's Predicts Greatest Depression Yet

WINCHESTER, England, March 15 (AP).—The Very Rev. W. R. Inge, former "Gloomy Dean" of St. Paul's, said today he believes Great Britain is heading toward serfdom and a financial crash greater than that in 1931.

In an address prepared for the Society of Individualists and the National League for Freedom, the eighty-five-year-old retired clergyman expressed fear that efficient planning would destroy freedom.

"At last," he asserted, "the individual is delivered over entirely to the tyranny of the state. So searching a tyranny has never been seen before. Security—the security of the barracks—would be too dearly purchased by the loss of every kind of freedom."

Dr. Inge cautioned that "we are on the high road to serfdom and the loss of all that has made our civilization great, of all that to an Englishman makes life worth living."

He added: "There will soon come, quite inevitably, a financial crash compared with which the threatened disaster in 1931, which turned a Labor government precipitately out of doors, was a mild shock. We shall be obliged, whether we like it or not, to look facts in the face."

Japs To Leave Tokyo, 4 Other Major Cities

London, March 15 (AP)—In a swift aftermath to raids by American Superfortresses, the Tokyo radio said today the Japanese Government has decided to evacuate five major cities, among them the fire-blized capital, of all persons except war workers.

The decision was reached at a Cabinet meeting this morning, the broadcast said.

Supplies will be transferred from the affected areas at the same time as the population, Tokyo announced. A Tnrasocean dispatch broadcast by Berlin named the cities as Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe.

The German account said the evacuation remained on a voluntary basis for the time being, but added that "special measures will be taken" if the populations failed to respond.

FRENCH ADMIRAL GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT

LONDON, March 15—(AP) The Paris radio said tonight that Admiral Jean-Pierre Esteva, former Vichy resident-general of Tunisia, was sentenced today to life imprisonment, military degradation and national "indignity."

He was charged with treason and tried by a special court established to handle cases involving persons of ministerial rank or higher.

HIMMLER AID GETS VITAL POST

Austrian Quisling to Lead Troops Before Berlin.

London, March 15 (A. P.).—The Moscow radio said today that Ernst Kaltenbrunner, former Quisling Minister of Public Security in Austria and right hand man to Heinrich Himmler, had been made a colonel-general and named a commander of German troops on the approaches to Berlin. Kaltenbrunner, a young Austrian, is the successor of the late hangman Heydrich as chief of German Security Police.

The Moscow broadcast said that Himmler was systematically purging German Army officers and superimposing his own SS command to enforce the Nazi will to resist, and that Kaltenbrunner's appointment was a part of that policy.

"Kaltenbrunner has been responsible for firing many experienced Wehrmacht officers and replacing them with SS men who have just finished special training courses," the broadcast added. Himmler himself was reported taking over a new organization of a new "army group Elbe" in interior Germany.

Transocean reported in a Berlin broadcast a few days ago that another of Himmler's choices, Lieut.-Gen. Feinefarth, who is on the Russians' list of war criminals for putting down the Polish rebellion in Warsaw last year, was commanding the "fortress command Oder" at Frankfurt.

Stockholm, March 15 (A. P.).—Nazi "flying courts-martial" are operating over a wide area of the German eastern front and executed men are left under warning placards where they fall, the Berlin correspondent for the Stockholms-Tidningen reported today after a conducted tour of the front. In a central square at Goerlitz, the correspondent wrote, this placard was displayed prominently:

"Shot by the fury of the people. Here lies Grenadier Dittmar. He was shot following a court-martial for stealing."

Tokyo Reports Transports

London, March 15 (AP)—A Tokyo dispatch broadcast by the German Transocean radio said today American transports had been sighted north of Iwo and suggested that United States Marines may be ready to make a new landing in the rear of Japanese forces fighting against being driven into the sea. The broadcast said the transports were first seen March 13.

Called Propaganda.

London, March 15 (A. P.).—American announcements of 300,-Superfortress raids on Japanese cities are just enemy propaganda, the Tokyo radio asserted today. "The biggest number to hit us was 130," the broadcast declared.

Soviets Improve Positions For Oder Drive

[There were persistent German reports that the Russians have thrust across the Oder in force, between captured Kuestrin and Frankfurt, but they have not been confirmed by Moscow.]

While the Red Army's top-ranking field commander was setting the stage for a huge assault against the Nazi Oder River line, other Russian troops scored additional gains in sectors as far removed as southwestern Slovakia and East Prussia.

Slovak Drive Renewed

The Slovak campaign was revived with a flourish by Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's 2d Ukraine Army with the capture of Zvolen, heavily fortified German base on the upper Hron River.

Malinovsky carried the fight almost to the outskirts of Banska Bystrica, headquarters of last year's gallant Slovakian uprising, 10 miles north of Zvolen.

Driving through the wooded Carpathian Mountains, these Soviet troops captured eight towns in that area yesterday.

12 Miles From Kremnica

Moving west over the steep forested shoulder of the low Tatra Mountains, his troops reached within 12 miles of Kremnica, astride the enemy's most important lateral communications east of the Vah River.

The wooded, rugged terrain still was fiercely defended by the Germans, who were anxious to keep the northern anchorage of their Danubian front from being torn out, but Malinovsky's troops made steady progress.

The 3d White Russian Army, closing in on Koenigsberg, set the Germans' coastal corridor southwest of the East Prussian capital blazing again under a heavy ground assault supported by swarming Red bombers. The Soviet troops struck at Koenigsberg and Braunsberg at both ends of the enemy's shallow positions along the Frisches Lagoon.

Two thousand prisoners were reported taken yesterday in the vicinity of Braunsberg, and it appeared likely that this Nazi strong point would be quickly isolated.

Troops of the 2d White Russian Army, meanwhile, tightened the siege rings around Danzig and Gdynia. It seemed probable the Russian attack would carry into Gdynia, but German resistance stiffened markedly in the Danzig area.

North of the Berlin assault arc, Red Army planes inflicted a savage pounding on Wollin Islands, in the channels connecting Stettin Bay and the Baltic.

The pressure was so great, front dispatches said, that Nazi field commanders appealed to the German Navy for support to keep the Dievenow River, between Stettin Bay and the Baltic, from being breached.

Hard fighting continued in the forests on the perimeter of Altdamm on the east side of the Oder before Stettin.

Editors See New Soviet Home

MOSCOW, March 15 (AP).—A committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, visiting Allied nations seeking to aid post-war exchange of news among nations, lunched today with American Ambassador W. Averell Harriman and then attended an exhibit of Russia's first prefabricated house. The committee, which arrived last week and plans to leave this week, is composed of Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of "The Atlanta Constitution," and Carl W. Ackerman, dean of Columbia University's School of Journalism.

Tankmen Skeptical Of New U.S. Vehicle

With U.S. 9th Army, Germany, March 15 (AP)—The General Pershing tanks may be superior on paper to the Nazis' Royal Tigers, but the consensus among American tankmen on this front seems to be that the war probably will be over before they get chance to prove it.

A statement from Washington that the new No. 26 tank has gone into mass production brought little consolation for the boys who have been getting belted around by German tanks for two or three years.

"We fought them and licked them with inferior tanks all the way up," a high ranking officer of an armored division said today, "and it looks like we'll still be fighting with inferior tanks when the war ends."

SEVENTH ARMY ATTACKS ALONG 50-MILE FRONT

By LEWIS HAWKINS

WITH THE U. S. SEVENTH ARMY, March 15 — (AP) Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh army broke a long lull today with attacks at many points along a 50-mile front from the Saarbruecken area eastward toward the Rhine.

They attacked without artillery at 1 a.m., gained up to three miles in the first few hours against light to moderate resistance, and sent the enemy in retreat toward the Siegfried line.

It was the first real blow since the Colmar pocket in southern Alsace was cleared, and it rolled out into the Saar and through northern Alsace despite minefields and bad terrain.

The 63rd division paced early gains with a three-mile thrust southeast of Saarbruecken, ruined Saar capital. They captured Guedingen, two miles southeast of the city, and farther east entered Ensheim, just outside the Siegfried line.

Four miles south of Ensheim, a gain up to three miles carried into the border town of Habkirchen.

A new penetration of the Saar was made by other troops 15 miles east of Saarbruecken, where advances up to two miles carried a mile into the Reich on a two-mile front.

The attack moved swiftly in this sector in the first hours, but the Germans rallied quickly, counter-attacked with tanks, and late this afternoon the heaviest fighting on the front was swirling around Hill 310, just inside the border near Uttweiler.

Substantial advances were made farther east in the Hardt mountain sector, but minefields and the terrain slowed the progress.

At the eastern end of the front, the 36th division was cleaning out Haguenau, which is 15 miles north of Strasbourg near the Rhine.

The Seventh army, which had been resting and building up strength since the Colmar triumph early in February, struck silently in the dark without the usual artillery barrage.

Shortly thereafter, however, an almost unprecedented concentration of cannon began mauling German battery positions and one general said:

"I don't know whether it was the pounding our guns gave those carefully-plotted kraut batteries, but something certainly kept them from firing, and we had scarcely a round in our area up to mid-afternoon."

This lack of artillery reaction on any great scale seemed general all the way from Saarbruecken to Haguenau. Aside from small arms, spotty selfpropelled gun and mortar fire were the chief Allies of tens of thousands of mines sowed by the enemy.

"We apparently achieved tactical surprise, and many of the prisoners I've talked to admitted they were taken while asleep," said Capt. Henry Haguenin, New York, in charge of a division prisoner of war enclosure where 130 captives were counted by late afternoon.

BASTOGNE HEROES AWARDED CITATION

SOMEWHERE IN WESTERN EUROPE, March 15—(AP) The 101st Airborne division was awarded the First Presidential citation to an entire Army division today "for extraordinary heroism and gallantry" in its epic defense of Bastogne last December.

Gen. Eisenhower, who presented the award, said that never before has a full division been cited by the War department in the name of the President for gallantry in action. This marks the beginning of a new tradition in the American army."

(The First, Second and Fourth Marine divisions have been awarded presidential citations through the Navy department for actions in the Pacific).

After the veterans had passed in review, Gen. Eisenhower told them:

"I'm awfully proud of you."

He declared that the tradition established in the award today, "therefore, always will be associated with the name of the 101st Airborne division.

"Yet you men, because you are soldiers of proved valor and of experience, would be the last to claim that you are the bravest. All the way from where Marines are fighting on Iwo Jima, through the Philippines and Southeast Asia, on through the Mediterranean and along this great front and on the Russian frontiers are going forward day by day those battles sustained by the valor of you and other Allied units that are beating this enemy to his knees. They are proving, once and for all, that dictatorship cannot produce better soldiers than can aroused democracy."

The 101st won its fame during the German breakthrough when, although encircled, it beat off every enemy attempt to seize the vital Belgian communications hub of Bastogne. Maj. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe of Washington, D. C., then a brigadier general and deputy commander during Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's absence, was handed a German surrender ultimatum and replied with the now famous:

"Nuts."

The division's gallant stand was among the greatest single factors in blunting the force of the German offensive.

Right Leg Off, Left In Shreds, GI Kills 8 Nazis, Chases Tank

By J. W. GALLAGHER

With 83d Infantry Division in Germany, March 14 [AP—Delayed]—If you had your right leg blown off and the other leg ripped to shreds after a direct hit with a tank shell——

If you had been blown away from your machine gun and struck in the head with a shell fragment and everyone around you had been killed or wounded——

If you saw a 40-ton German tank 10 yards away from where you were lying and 20 German infantrymen moving up behind it——

If all these things happened, what would you do?

This Is What He Did

This is what Sergt. Ralph G. Neppel, 21, of Glidden, Iowa, a machine-gun detachment leader in the 23d Division, did:

He dug his elbows into the street and painfully pulled himself 10 yards to his machine gun. Somehow he pulled himself into firing position with blood spurting from his wounds and he started firing at the infantrymen while the German tank crunched to a halt alongside his position.

Anyone leaning out of the tank could have dropped a hand grenade on him, but no one did.

Neppel killed eight Germans and drove the rest off before he slumped over his gun. The tank crew, frightened by the loss of protecting infantry, retreated without firing another shot.

Tank Makes Direct Hit

The action occurred last December 14 when Neppel's battalion of the 329th Infantry was assigned to clear the village of Birgel. There was little difficulty accomplishing the task but the roads were so heavily mined that tank destroyers and anti-tank guns could not be moved up immediately.

Neppell led one of several machine-gun squads sent out to defend two main streets from a counter-attack. He set up his gun at the corner of a building.

The German tank attacked at once. It made a direct hit on the position and a shell fragment severed Neppel's right leg below the knee. Additional fragments broke the other leg and wounded him in the head. All his companions were casualties.

Leg 'Just Flesh'

Corporal Robert L. Giessler, of Alton, Ill., who was trapped in the second story of a house down the street, said Neppel's leg was "just flesh, that part which was not cut off," when he began his agonized crawl.

When the tank retreated, medical men carried the still conscious sergeant into a near-by house. They gave him morphine and he lay for eight hours before being evacuated. Once during that period he insisted that a wounded fellow sergeant be removed first.

Neppel is in England now, recovering from his wounds.

GI Hero Gets C.M.H Posthumously

With U.S. 9th Army in Germany, March 15 (AP)—A sergeant who deliberately drew machine-gun fire on himself to save his comrades received the Congressional Medal of Honor posthumously Tuesday.

The honor went to Staff Sergeant Jack J. Pendleton, son of Mrs. Dora Pendleton, of Yakima, Wash., in recognition of an action at Bardenberg, Germany, which caused his death.

A member of Company I, 120th Infantry Regiment of the 30th Division, Pendleton volunteered with a squad to knock out a machine-gun nest holding up an advance in Bardenberg. The squad had advanced along an open street and was pinned down by the machine gun.

Pendleton, ten yards ahead of his squad, was hit in one leg by a burst of fire. Then he ordered his men to halt and painfully dragged himself down the street, drawing German fire until a burst killed him ten yards from his objective.

Meanwhile, Pendleton's squad and another, taking advantage of the Germans' concentration upon a one-man attack, slipped around the strongpoint and knocked it out.

8 Germans Had Selves Mutilated to End Combat

Medic Who Crushed Ankles Surrenders Them All

WITH UNITED STATES 1ST ARMY, East of the Rhine, March 15 (AP).—A German medic, professing to be anti-Nazi, surrendered today with eight soldiers whose hands and legs were crippled.

He told captors he had been scientifically crushing their wrists and ankles so they could escape combat.

FIRST ARMY TAKES FOUR MORE TOWNS

By DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U. S. FIRST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, March 15 (AP) The U.S. First Army seized four more towns beyond the Rhine today and cemented its six-by-eleven-mile bridgehead so firmly that it was announced officially the danger of being dislodged was well past.

The assault carried into five other towns, including Aegidienberg, eight miles northeast of the Remagen bridge, and less than a mile from the six-lane highway to the Ruhr, which now is under direct observation.

Captured were Rhoendorf, one mile north of Honnef, Lorscheid, five miles east of the bridge, and Hesseln and Hahnen in the same area.

Troops also were fighting in Hoenningen, at the south end of the bridgehead, Notschied and Kalenborn on the eastern edge of the bridgehead, and Steinshardt, six miles east of the bridge.

In the drive toward the super highway, the First army secured an important junction of secondary roads four miles east of Honnef near the village of Rottbitze.

This represented an advance of more than half a mile.

One Yank Rounds Up 340 German Prisoners

With U.S. 1st Army Beyond the Rhine, March 15 (AP)—One soldier staged a one-man German roundup today.

He started to the rear with nineteen prisoners in tow. En route, the Germans called to comrades in the woods to surrender.

When the soldier reached the prison cages he was guarding 340 Germans.

Rundstedt, In Fear Of Life, Held Mere Nazi Tool Now

Cologne, March 15 (AP)—Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt is so fearful of his life, since seeing what happened to his colleagues who were purged after the Hitler assassination attempt last July, that he now unresistingly lends his name to military measures which he knows are doomed to failure.

This is the considered opinion of a Rhenish man of letters who knows von Rundstedt intimately. His name must be withheld at present for family reasons.

Against Better Judgment

The so-called von Rundstedt offensive last December was not the field marshal's at all, this informant asserted. He said it was concocted by Hitler, Himmler and Field Marshal Walther von Model, but that von Rundstedt was compelled to carry it out against his better judgment.

Disagreement between von Rundstedt and the Hitlerites concerning measures to be adopted when the Allies landed in the west began long before D-day, the informant asserted.

Von Rundstedt considered a successful landing inevitable. Therefore, he counseled for fighting only a delayed action along the coast and for construction of a strong fortifications belt farther inland. Hitler disagreed and sent Field Marshal Erwin Rommel to throw everything at the Allies in an effort to prevent a landing.

A Will-Less Tool

When the landing succeeded, Hitler looked for a scapegoat. Von Rundstedt was deposed and Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge was put in his place. Rommel was killed by Allied air action while driving his car, thus entering Valhalla as a hero.

After von Kluge's death von Rundstedt, as had happened several times, was reinstated. By this time he was so intimidated by the various purges that he became a will-less tool of the regime. Not daring to object, he permitted the December offensive and the temporary breakthrough to bear his name.

British Claim German Peace Feeler Rejected

STOCKHOLM, March 15—(AP) A German peace feeler recently was conveyed to the British legation here through a third party—apparently a Swedish business man—and was rejected, an unofficial British statement said today.

"An approach was attempted a few days ago through a third party to a junior member of the legation staff," the unofficial announcement said. "The third party was at once told that the British legation was not in the least interested in any such approach."

(Official British quarters in London said they knew nothing of the reported incident.)

Responsible Allied officials in Stockholm generally regarded the development as a carefully-planned Nazi propaganda maneuver—one of several that long-time observers here have noted—in an attempt to split the Allies by causing misunderstandings and suspicions of double-dealing, especially in relation to the Russians.

Swedish sources expressed the opinion that similar "peace" moves or propaganda rumors could be expected "by the bushel" from now on in neutral countries as Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels begins a final campaign to expound Nazi views and cause confusion abroad.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet earlier today reported the Nazis had attempted to approach both British and American officials here, but the United States legation said no contact had been made there.

The newspaper reported that a German representative had "threatened" that, unless an armistice offer was accepted, the German army would cease resistance in the east and permit the Russians to overrun Germany.

The decision to approach the Allies, Svenska Dagbladet asserted, was made at a conference of Nazi leaders at Berchtesgaden, with Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop arguing all night before he finally convinced Hitler it was essential to ask for peace.

The newspaper said the Nazis had offered to evacuate all occupied territories still in their possession providing they were permitted to stay in power in Germany after an armistice.

The newspaper did not say where it got its information, and there was no evidence to support the article other than the unofficial British confirmation that an approach had been attempted through a third party.

I learned that within the past three weeks a minor German official had approached a Swedish businessman with a view to using him as an intermediary. The latter refused to act, however, saying that the proposal was "ridiculous." Another Swede apparently was persuaded to make the nebulous contact.

Reich Peace Bid Turned Down, British Say

Stockholm, March 15 (AP)—An unofficial British statement today confirmed reports that a German approach to Allied representatives was attempted here a few days ago with a view to a possible armistice, but said it was immediately rejected.

"An approach was attempted a few days ago through a third party to a junior member of the legation staff," the unofficial British statement said.

"The third party was at once told that the British legation was not in the least interested in any such approach."

U.S. Denies Report

Apparently the German effort to make contact with the Allies came only through the British because the American legation denied that any feeler had been attempted there.

The third party apparently was a Swedish business man who, other informants said, was approached by a minor Nazi official in the hope of using him as a medium for talking to the Allies.

Russ Bogie Raised

Responsible Allied officials generally regarded the incident as a carefully planned German propaganda maneuver in an effort to split the Allies by causing misunderstandings and suspicions of double dealing.

The Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet, which reported the attempted contact earlier today, said the Germans had urged the Allies to begin negotiations for an armistice while Germany was still strong enough to act as a bulwark against the "Bolshevik menace."

Svenska Dagbladet said the attempt failed because the German representatives predicated their bid on the condition that the Nazi Government should continue in office.

The newspaper said the approach to the Allies was made early this month.

The paper failed to identify the source of the report.

Ribbentrop Mentioned

Sevenska Dagbladet said the Germans had based their insistence that the Nazi Government be permitted to remain in power on the ground that only Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler had sufficient authority to reconcile the German people to the idea of suing for peace.

The decision to contact the Allies, the newspaper asserted, was made at a conference at which Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop headed the peace advocates. Ribbentrop was said to have talked with Hitler all night before persuading him it was essential to sue for peace.

The article said the Germans had offered to evacuate all occupied territories now in their possession—which include Norway, Denmark and parts of Holland.

Nazis Kill 7 Danish Patriots

STOCKHOLM, March 15 (AP).—Seven Danish patriots were executed Saturday by the German military barracks at Copenhagen, the Free Danish press service said today.

BERLIN 'PHONE LINES CUT

STOCKHOLM, Friday, March 16.—(AP) Telephone communications between Berlin and Stockholm have been severed since 2 p. m. Thursday, the Stockholm press reported today.

WAVE OF SABOTAGE REPORTED IN NORWAY

STOCKHOLM, March 15—(AP) A wave of sabotage swept Norway last night. Directed mainly against railway bridges and locomotives sheds, there was the greatest number of incidents ever reported in a single night.

A German communique said the Norwegian railway administration building was blasted at 10 p.m., and that a number of Germans and Norwegians were buried in the ruins. (Presumably this was in Oslo.)

Elsewhere bridges and viaducts were sabotaged and their German guards killed.

Thousands Of Germans Fleeing Red Siege

Stockholm, March 15 (AP)—Three steamers, jammed with 26,000 German refugees from Gdynia, now under Red Army siege, arrived in Copenhagen early this week, the Free Danish Press Service said today.

This was the number of arrivals by Tuesday night, and thousands more were expected on foot at the Danish border, the agency said. The Danes reported that such cities as Aalborg have been ordered to make room for the refugees.

Red Cross Supply Ship Sunk Off Gijon, Spain

Lisbon, March 15 (AP)—The sinking of the Portuguese freighter Islandia in the Bay of Biscay off Gijon, Spain, with the loss of 450 tons of supplies for Belgium was reported here today.

Details were not revealed, but the eleven-man crew was said to have been saved. The Islandia sailed from Lisbon March 10 under the auspices of the Red Cross with canned goods and other supplies.

Yank Airmen Help Russ Flyers

Rome, March 15 (AP)—United States 15th Air Force fighters and bombers for the first time yesterday engaged in co-ordinated attacks with Russian aircraft on targets in Austria, Hungary and Yugoslavia, it was announced today.

The American fighter pilots encountered German planes attacking formation of Russian bombers and joined in the battle.

Twenty Allied planes, including eight heavy bombers, were reported missing from the actions.

21 Enemy Planes Bagged

Twenty-one enemy craft were destroyed, at least seventeen of them by American pilots.

The combined American-Russian assault was believed to have been the first instance in which Allied air operations in the area were coordinated.

The American Mustangs bombed and strafed within 20 miles of the Hungarian front. The clash with the German fighters occurred 55 miles north of Budapest when the American fighter group, escorting Liberators, sighted Messerschmitt-109s diving on the Russian bomber formations.

The United States heavy bombers struck nine targets in the three countries "with better than fair results," the announcement said.

5TH ARMY KNOCKS OUT NESTS NEAR VERGATO

ROME, March 15 (AP)—American Fifth Army mortars have silenced several German machine-gun nests defending the mountain stronghold of Vergato, fourteen miles southwest of Bologna on the Bologna-Pistoia highway, Allied Headquarters announced today.

Vergato virtually has been surrounded, and the enemy's road to Bologna was believed still to be open and the Nazis continued to defend the town stubbornly.

A German raiding party forced British Eighth Army troops to withdraw from a position southwest of Imola, near Riolo dei Bagni, as fighting along the entire Italian front dwindled to its lowest point in many days. There was no essential change in positions.

ITALIAN FRONT QUIET

Rome, March 15 (A. P.).—Fighting on the Italian front was the lightest in many days yesterday, with only minor patrol clashes reported along the whole front and no changes in forward positions, Allied headquarters said today.

Allied machine guns silenced German machine guns firing from the contested road strongpoint of Vergato, southwest of Bologna, and a patrol clash occurred west of Castel D'Aiano, west of Vergato. Other clashes took place southwest of Monte Giovo, about eight miles west of captured Monte Spigolino and in the Serchio Valley.

On the Eighth Army front a Nazi raiding party forced the Allies to withdraw from one position southeast of Riolo Die Bagni.

Allied Court Jails 2 Italians

ROME, March 15 (AP). — Two Italians, accused of counterfeiting more than 1,000,000 lire ($10,000) of Allied military currency so expertly that the Bank of Rome accepted 7,000 notes in good faith, were convicted today by an Allied court and sentenced to prison, one to ten years and the other to seven. The charges were preferred by Allied agents before the two could pass the bulk of the money.

Left-Wing Victory Won At Polls In San Marino

Rome, March 15 (AP)—A dispatch to the Communist newspaper L'Unita reported today a left-wing victory in the Grand Council elections held yesterday in the Republic of San Marino.

The dispatch said that the leftist "Committee of Liberty," composed of Communists, Socialists, Democrats and Republicans, captured 40 of the 60 seats at stake.

PAUL REVERE RIDES AGAIN

With the Fifth Army in Italy, March 15 (A. P.).—Another Paul Revere now sounds the alarm against the enemy.

This time it is Pvt. Paul Revere, former Northeastern University student from Braintree, Mass., who says he is distantly related to the revolutionary war hero through his great-great-grandmother.

Revere is a forward observer and it is his job to alert headquarters when he sees Germans coming. He has just won the Bronze Star for action last summer.

"On numerous occasions," his commander related, "he was subjected to extremely heavy fire, but he never failed to accomplish his mission."

WOMAN REVEALS NAZI CAMP HORROR

Cairo, March 15 (A. P.).—A Paris woman whose back is covered with purple scars which she said resulted from beatings by French police in German service, arrived in a Middle East port yesterday after nearly three years in a German concentration camp with a story of slow starvation and mass asphyxiation.

the Russian winter offensive, Mrs. Sonia Biche of Paris was one of several hundred French civilians aboard a repatriation ship from Russia. She said she was arrested because she was suspected of being friends of De Guallists who were in touch with London, and was sent to Birkenau Camp, where only women were confined. Every woman there, she said, feared a periodic medical inspection when inmates were forced to walk stripped before doctors.

"If any had boils or skin trouble of any kind or were ill and weak from lack of food they were taken away and killed in a gas chamber," she said.

Mrs. Biche said she would turn over to French authorities the name of German medical officers and other responsible Germans who sent an uncounted number of women to their deaths.

Freed War Prisoners Reach Middle East

Cairo, March 15 (A. P.).—Arrival at a Middle East port of a "first contingent" of more than 1,000 United States soldiers freed from German prison camps by the Russian offensive was announced today by American headquarters in Cairo.

A statement said the troops would be refitted, given medical attention, and examined so that they "may continue their journey as expeditiously as possible." Two other shiploads of rescued Allied prisoners reached the port earlier in the week.

BRITISH PUSH CLOSER TO FORT IN MANDALAY

MANDALAY, Burma, March 15 (AP)—The battle inside Mandalay continued slowly today as British troops inched forward from both the east and west against Japanese besieged in Fort Dufferin.

The enemy in the fort showed no sign of slackening his resistance. Some supplies have been entering the fort through its south gate despite Allied shelling, but Indian troops silenced and captured 275 filed guns near by.

A news blackout on the location of troops fanning out in the area of the Myinmu bridgehead over the Irrawaddy River indicated important developments might be expected in that sector west of Mandalay.

The last report on these troops said they were meeting "disorganized" Japanese resistance and that they were astride the Myotha-Mandalay highway in position for a crippling drive against the enemy.

As both Chinese and British troops advanced there were indications that the Japanese were abandoning the entire area east of the Irrawaddy and north of the Mandalay-Lashio Road, leaving only nuisance parties and artillery that could not be moved to delay the Allies' advance.

No important changes were reported from the Meiktila area where Fourth Corps troops continued to harrass the Japanese with wide-ranging armored sorties.

The Japanese in this area have resorted to suicide tactics against Allied tanks. Soldiers are left with 500-pound aerial bombs in camouflaged holes. When the tanks are directly over the holes, the enemy soldiers hammer the detonators with stones, exploding the bombs. Allied losses to this weapon have been negligible.

Japs Fleeing Mandalay Hit By Allied Artillery

Mandalay, Burma, March 15 (AP). Groups of Japanese trapped inside Fort Dufferin, inner city of Mandalay, attempted to sneak out of the fortress last night but were caught in an Allied artillery blockade and suffered heavy casualties.

Japanese infantrymen crawled through a gate in the middle of the south wall and attempted to reach open country. Artillery and mortar fire caught them as they ran down the streets.

Allied infantry, meanwhile occupied sections in the southeastern and southwestern parts of the city and reached the main railway station.

...NESE ADVANCE IN HUNAN SECTOR

CHUNGKING, March 15—(AP) Further Japanese preparations for the battle they fear they must fight with Americans on the China coast were reported today in Chinese dispatches which said that the entire Japanese-occupied stretch of the Yangtze river from its mouth to Hwaining had been closed to commercial navigation.

Hwoining, the Japanese-held capital of Anhwei province, is 364 miles up the river from Shanghai.

The Japanese also were reported to have ordered evacuation of all Japanese nationals living at Hangchow, the famous lakeside resort 1000 miles southwest of Shanghai and the first group was said to have departed for Manchuria.

Meanwhile, the Chinese high command announced attacks against enemy positions in Hunan province southwest of Yuhsien, 45 miles east-northeast of Hengyang and one of the strongholds guarding the Canton-Hankow railroad There were indications that these attacks were in preparation for a full-scale counter-offensive by the Chinese.

At Kunming, Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault said the U. S. Fourteenth air force was "prepared to support the French and Annamites in every way possible" if they actively resisted complete Japanese occupation of Indo-China.

"As we see it," Chennault said, "the Japanese have finally decided it is necessary to take over Indo-China. We would lose an opportunity if we did not prevent them from achieving this end."

The American general said the 14th air force's principal efforts now were directed against enemy overland shipping through China and that its operations had not been limited "to any considerable extent" by loss of airfields to the Japanese.

Yangtze Cleared Of Ships By Japs

Chungking, March 15 (AP)—Chinese dispatches today said that the entire Japanese-occupied stretch of the Yangtze River from its mouth to Hwaining (Anking) had been closed to commercial navigation.

Hwaining, the Japanese-held capital of Anhwei province, is 364 miles up the river from Shanghai.

The Japanese also were reported to have ordered evacuation of all Japanese nationals living at Hangchow, lakeside resort 100 miles southwest of Shanghai. The first group was said to have departed for Manchuria.

American Trains Begin Operating Into Manila

By The Associated Press

MANILA, Friday, March 16—American rail and ship transportation operated into Manila again today. Gen. Douglas MacArthur himself rode the flag-bedecked locomotive of the first train into Manila yesterday. He said American engineers had accomplished the difficult job of reconstructing the Lingayen-Manila railroad in record time.

The sixteen-car freight train carrying General MacArthur arrived in Manila a day after the first ship, a Navy LST, dropped its landing ramp on the harbor beach.

Japanese Spy on Luzon Hanged

MANILA, March 15 (AP)—The first announced case of a Japanese spy executed under military law in the Philippines was revealed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters today. Pfc. Ichiro Hongo, Japanese infantryman, was hanged yesterday after he was convicted of spying behind American lines while wearing civilian clothes.

LAND MINES SLOW MINDANAO DRIVE

Rail, Ship Transportation Operating in Manila Again.

MANILA, Friday, March 16—(AP) Extensive enemy use of electrically-controlled land mines and increased artillery and automatic weapon fire slowed the 41st division Doughboys driving northward from captured Zamboanga Wednesday but they widened their Mindanao island beachhead to 28 miles, headquarters said today.

The Japanese resorted to electric mines for the first time in the Southwest Pacific. A headquarters spokesman reported the Yank advance was definitely impeded.

Along the coast, however, Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's infantrymen captured Manicahan on the east flank and San Ramon on the west to take in 28 miles of coastline. Heavy bombers hit eastern Mindanao, meanwhile, with 200 tons of bombs.

A Japanese destroyer and five other ships were sunk in the China Sea by four Mitchell medium bombers.

American rail and ship transportation was operating in Manila again. Gen. Douglas MacArthur rode the locomotive of the first train into Manila on the Lingayen-Manila line, reconstructed by Army engineers in record time. Twenty-four hours earlier an LST (tank landing ship) unloaded on the Manila bay shore.

On Luzon the 158th regimental combat team destroyed a concentration of enemy barges and dispersed a Japanese landing attempt at Bolo, on the south coast.

East of Manila in the bitterly-held Shimbu line, the Sixth and 43rd divisions pressed against the strongly entrenched enemy on the approaches to Teresa.

Patrol bombers sank a destroyer, at 5,000-ton tanker and four small freighters in the China Sea.

Eastern Mindanao took a 200-ton bombing, while Formosa was hit with 174 tons concentrated in a hydroelectric plant.

Trains Begin to Roll

The 16-car freight train carrying MacArthur arrived in Manila a day after the first ship, a navy LST, dropped its landing ramp on the harbor beach.

Cheering Filipinos lined the railroad tracks as the first train, drawn by a new American Diesel locomotive, pulled into Manila.

MacArthur, who rode in the cab with Col. John P. Johnson of Topeka, Kans., acting as engineer, said: "The rapid reconstruction of this railroad represents a great engineering feat. It is construction, thank God, not destruction."

The General and his party had boarded the train at Caloocan, three miles from Manila.

JAPS REPORT ON BRITISH FLEET

Say It Has Gone Into Action in Philippines.

London, March 15 (A. P.).—The Tokyo radio said today the British Pacific Fleet, operating from Australian bases, had gone into action in Philippine waters, taking part in United States operations against Mindanao Island.

More U. S. Landings.

Manila, March 15 (A. P.).—United States forces, making their twenty-second and twenty-third invasions of the five-months old Philippines campaign seized two small islands in the Sibuyan Sea Tuesday. Yank invaders on Mindanao Island, pushed five miles east of captured Zamboanga in an accelerated drive.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today that Major-Gen. Frederick A. Irving's Twenty-fourth Division infantrymen, veterans of Leyte, Bataan and Corregidor, invaded Romblon and Simara Islands at night and "attained complete tactical surprise." The Japanese garrisons were wiped out. American losses were light. Romblon and Simara are strategically situated in the heart of the island-studded inland sea of the central Philippines. Their capture strengthened the American hold on the main shipping route from the United States to Manila.

In Battle on Luzon.

On Mindanao, which was invaded last Saturday, Major-Gen. Jens A. Doe's Forty-first Infantry Division captured the towns of Masilay and Harlow, north of the two captured Zamboanga airdromes, while patrols shot eastward past Zamboanga to seize Tumaga, Recodo and Mercedes, five miles beyond the city.

On Luzon Island, Major-Gen. Verne D. Mudge's First Cavalry Division and the Forty-third, under Major-Gen. Leonard F. Wing, drove eastward from captured Antipolo on the strongly defended watershed east of Manila, while Major-Gen. Edwin D. Patrick's Sixth Division turned back several counter-attacks on high ground to the north.

Railroad transportation to Manila was reopened today with Gen. MacArthur riding the new flag-bedecked Diesel locomotive of the first Lingayen-Manila freight. The arrival of the sixteen-car freight train came less than twenty-four hours after beaching of the first LSTs in Manila Harbor after the wreckage-blocked breakwater channel was partially cleared.

YANK KILLS 29 JAPS

Luzon, March 15 (A. P.).—Sergt. Clifford G. Harmon of Hagerman, Idaho, a 27-year-old potato farmer, who had never killed a Japanese in five years' Army service, hit the jackpot in the first crack at the Nipponese.

He polished off twenty-six in five minutes with a flame thrower, clubbed another to death with an empty weapon, picked off a straggler with a grenade and finished his day's activities by cutting down the twenty-ninth with a tommygun.

4,000 Marines Killed on Iwo, Foe Lost 20,000

Adm. Turner Calls Casualties Low, Says Only One Big Japanese Group Remains

By The Associated Press

ON BOARD ADMIRAL TURNER'S FLAGSHIP, Iwo Jima, March 15 (via Navy radio).—Vice-Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner said today that American marine deaths on Iwo Jima were less than one-fifth those of the Japanese—an indication that about 4,000 marines have lost their lives in capturing this island 750 miles from Tokyo.

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz announced in today's communique that careful estimates placed the number of Japanese dead on Iwo Jima at 20,000.

The latest official estimate of marine casualties on Iwo was given at Washington March 5 by Navy Secretary James Forrestal, who placed the total of dead at 2,050.

Turner and Lieutenant General Holland M. Smith, marine commander in the Pacific, today reviewed the capture of the island. Turner said it was "unbelievable" that marine deaths were so low.

Both Turner and Smith stressed the difficult terrain on tiny Iwo, as well as the tenacity of the defenders. They voiced high praise of the victory which Smith called "incomparable in all our history as to completeness."

Turner, commander of fleet amphibious forces, warned, however, that one sizable enemy group and other small parties remain on the island. They are well armed, and must be eliminated "to permit us to proceed with development of a base," and the job may require weeks, he added.

"But the major fighting is finished," Turner continued. "It has been difficult, and we suffered considerable losses on the ground, in the air and on the sea, as must always be the case where the only possible tactical method is a frontal assault on well prepared and well defended positions."

Smith, commander of the expeditionary troops, said: "A frontal assault against prepared defenses was our only choice of attack." He said the operation was carefully planned and executed by experienced commanders, and added that every effort was taken to accomplish the mission "with as little loss of life as possible."

and the sun became hot.

Recalls First Foxhole

Staff Sergeant Don Washburn, 28, Hopdale, Mass., remembered his first foxhole. It was near two charred jeeps by a gasoline dump which a Japanese shell had set off.

It occurred to Pfc. James M. Buckley, 25, of Chicago, that several days ago he heard a loudspeaker blare the popular song titled "This Is Worth Fighting For."

"As for me," said Pfc. Marshall J. Hodges, 26, Clarkesville, Tenn., "I keep thinking of the men coming back from the front looking tired and straight ahead."

Stretcher Men Collapse

Pfc. Nello J. Biagini, 28, Charleroi, Pa., saw two Marines carrying a wounded man on a stretcher.

"They were just as bad off as the casualty and when they made it to the evacuation hospital both of them collapsed."

Corporal Jim Francheschini, 22, Charlestown, Ind., came by a cemetery one afternoon when a half dozen Marines were being buried. There was a simple dignity about it but the sight made him sad, and

Lieut. Gen. Holland ... (Mad) Smith, who walked away from the scene with tears in his eyes, summed it up tersely: "This was the toughest yet."

U. S. FLAG NOW FLIES OVER IWO

Navy Announces End of Jap Rule of Island.

HAGLAND

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Guam, March 15 (A. P.).—Waving atop a Japanese bunker, the Stars and Stripes caught the breeze today over blood-stained Iwo, 750 miles from Tokyo, signaling that the island has been cut away from the Empire of Nippon after 55 years.

But the twenty-five-day-old fight went on. Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner said today that American Marine deaths on Iwo Jima were less than one-fifth of those of the Japanese, an indication that around 4,000 Marines had lost their lives in capturing the island. Admiral Nimitz reported that careful estimates placed the number of Japanese dead on this island at 20,000. Admiral Turner said it was unbelievable that the Marine deaths were so low.

While stiffly resisting, survivors of the Nipponese garrison yielded gains up to 400 yards yesterday to the Marines near the north end, the United States flag was raised formally at the south end in the shadow of Mount Suribachi.

A proclamation suspended "all powers of Government of the Japanese empire" and vested them in Admiral Chester W. Nimitz as military governor of island. Marine artillery almost drowned out Stafford's words.

Field Musician First Class John E. Glynn, of New Orleans, cognizant of how much this moment meant, was nervous and his mouth was dry as he ra... bugle to his lips. But the notes came clear and sharp, calling to attention the hundreds of service men gathered around the flagpole in a mass of dusty battle green.

Reads Order for Change.

Col. Davis H. Stafford, Spokane, Wash., Fifth Amphibious Corps personnel officer, stepped forward and read the order for the establishment of military government of the Volcano Islands. Standing on the loose, gritty sand were generals who plotted the capture of Iwo Jima and the men who captured it—in the toughest fight of the Pacific.

Military leaders present included: Vice-Admiral Richmond Kelly Turner, commander, Amphibious Forces, Pacific; Rear Admiral Harry H. Hill, Oakland, Cal., deputy commander, Attack Force; Major-Gen. Harry F. Schmidt, Fifth Amphibious Force commander; Major-Gen. Graves B. Serkine, La Jolla, Cal., Third Marine Division commander, and his chief of staff, Col. Robert E. Hogaboom, Vicksburg, Miss.; Major-Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Fourth Marine Division commander, and his chief of staff, Col. M. J. Batchelder, and Major-Gen. Keller Rockey, Fifth Marine Division commander, and his chief of staff, Col. Ray A. Robinson. The Army was represented by Major-Gen. James E. Cheney.

Pfc. Bernard Denetz, 21, of 257 Sheffield avenue, Brooklyn, said he thought of the first few nights ashore. His engineering outfit was bivouacked on the beach. "We caught hell from Jap mortars and artillery," he said.

Sounds Colors.

At the end of the reading, Bugler Glynn sounded colors. Then Pfc. Thomas J. Casale, 20, of Herkimer, N. Y., of the military police color guard, stepped forward with the flag. With Pfc. Albert B. Bush, 24, of Cleveland, holding the guide line, Private Casale ran the colors up the 80-foot pole. As he did some one else watching from the peak of Mount Suribachi lowered the flag raised there February 23 by a young blond haired boy.

Lieut.-Gen. Holland M. Smith who walked away from the scene with tears in his eyes summed it up tersely: "This was the toughest yet."

Marines Recall Tough Fighting As Flag Is Raised Over Iwo

MAR 16 1945

By Morrie Landsberg

Iwo Jima, March 14 [AP—Delayed]—Field Musician (first class) John E. Glynn, of New Orleans, cognizant of how much this moment meant, was nervous and his mouth was dry as he raised the bugle to his lips. But the notes came clear and sharp, calling to attention the hundreds of service men gathered around the flagpole in a mass of dusty battle green.

Col. Davis H. Stafford, of Spokane, Wash., 5th Amphibious Corps personnel officer, stepped forward and read the order for the establishment of military government of the Volcano Islands.

Generals Present

Standing on the loose, gritty sand were generals who plotted the capture of Iwo Jima and the men who captured it—in the toughest fight of the Pacific.

Pfc. Bernard Denetz, 21, of Brooklyn, for example, thought of the first few nights ashore. His engineering outfit was bivouacked on the beach. "We caught hell from Jap mortars and artillery," he said.

As Stafford continued reading Fleet Admiral Chester Nimitz's proclamation, the wind died down he remembered it now during the r...ding of the proclamation, because among those dead were buddies.

At the end of the reading, Bugler Glynn sounded "Colors."

80-Foot Pole Used

Then Pfc. Thomas J. Casale, 20, Herkimer, N.Y., of the military police color guard, stepped forward with the flag. It was such a simple thing to do, but the occasion made it seem very important. "I wanted to do the best to make it turn out all right," he said later.

With Pfc. Albert B. Bush, 24, of Cleveland, holding the guide line, Casale ran the colors up the 80-foot pole. As he did someone else watching from the peak of Mount Suribachi lowered the flag raised there February 23.

It had taken just five minutes to read the proclamation and hoist the flag, but it had taken 23 days and 25 minutes of the hardest kind of fighting for the moment when the Marines could say: "Iwo is ours."

Spectators at the ceremony stood around a few moments and then scattered. No one did much talking.

BELIEVES B-29 BOMBS BLEW UP OSAKA ARSENAL

Gen. Lemay Says Blasts Spun Superforts Around Like a Feather.

ONE BOUNCED A MILE HIGHER

All of Planes Tossed About by Violent Explosions Are Able to Get Back to Base.

GUAM

21st Bomber Command, Guam, March 15 (A. P.).—Major-Gen. Curtis E. LeMay's expressed belief today that Osaka's 150-acre arsenal—vital to the Japanese war effort—went up in explosion after explosion in Wednesday's 300-Superfortress raid on the empire's second largest city. Blasts so terrific that they shot some of the sixty-ton Superforts 2,000 to 5,000 feet higher into the skies were the basis of Gen. LeMay's belief.

Three hundred Superforts, making the third 2,000-ton incendiary attack on Japan's largest cities in five days, laid waste a five-square-mile area in the heart of industrial Osaka.

One of the chief targets was Osaka arsenal. It produced anti-aircraft guns, artillery, machine guns, rifles, shell cases, bombs and fuses. It included a steel mill, chemical works and research laboratory. After talking with pilots, Gen. LeMay said that although he had no reconnaissance photographs showing the arsenal was destroyed, it must have been blown up to cause such tremendous explosions as these:

One B-29 was blown from 7,000 to 12,000 feet, turned completely over and sent into a slow roll. After falling 10,000 feet, the pilot, recovered control and flew it home. Another B-29, "Joltin' Josie," was lifted from 7,000 feet to 10,000 feet, then dived to 2,000 feet before the pilot regained control. He too made it home.

Capt. Jack D. Nole of San Antonio, Tex., said that four violent blasts rocked his Superfort. The first dumped the bombardier, Lieut. John B. Allen of Scottsville, N. Y., into the lap of Lieut. William H. P. Nolan Jr., of Oroville, Cal. The second pitched him onto the control board. The third, turned the ship on its side, hurled Capt. Nole on his back near the ceiling. Although damaged, all of these planes returned to their bases.

For their part in the Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka raids in the last five days, Gen. LeMay awarded a Silver Star to Brig.-Gen. Thomas S. Power and an Oak Leaf Cluster in lieu of a second Silver Star to Brig.-Gen. John H. Davies.

MARINES REDUCE JAP HOLD ON IWO

Navy Estimates 4,000 Leathernecks Killed in Costly Campaign.

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Friday, March 16.—(AP) Further reduction of the last stand area of the Japanese on the northernmost end of Iwo Thursday, the 25th day of an invasion which probably already has cost the Marines 4,000 dead, was reported by the Navy today.

The gains toward Kitano point were registered by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine division against intense small arms and mortar fire.

Mop up Straggling Japs

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third Marine division in the center and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth on the right mopped up straggling enemy elements.

The communique reported new air attacks on the Bonin and Marshall islands and on Wake.

(Robert McCormick, NBC war correspondent in a broadcast from Guam, said it is believed there that the Marine casualties on Iwo — killed, wounded and missing—total at least 12,000).

Admiral Turner placed the Marine dead at less than one-fifth that of the enemy. An earlier communique from Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz conservatively estimated that 20,000 Japanese had been killed on the tiny volcanic island as of March 14.

Admiral Turner and Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, Marine commander in the Pacific, reviewed the Iwo campaign aboard the Admiral's flagship. Their observations were reported by Morrie Landsberg, Associated Press war correspondent.

Turner said it was "unbelievable" that the Leathernecks could have taken an island with no greater cost, considering the intricate defenses and difficult terrain that forced a frontal assault. He added:

"Such an achievement can reach no higher perfection."

Gen. Smith Stresses Difficulties

General Smith likewise stressed the many difficulties in seizing this forward island, soon to be an advanced base for aerial punches at Japan.

"Frontal assault against prepared defenses was our only choice of attack," said the Marine commander. "That operation was carefully planned and executed by experienced commanders."

As to Marine losses, a point on which he is considered sensitive, the two-fisted general said:

"The cost of winning this objective no doubt was weighed carefully against the importance of having this island as an operating base and speeding the ultimate defeat of Japan. When capture of an enemy position is necessary to winning a war, it is not within our province to evaluate the cost in money, time, equipment or most of all human life."

Japanese survivors on Iwo fought on hopelessly today although the authority of the United States had been proclaimed over the island.

Hundreds of the Nipponese resisted bitterly from strong defenses, many of them underground, along a sandstone ridge or butte on the northern tip of the island.

The Nipponese apparently were not suffering from lack of arms or ammunition, said a field dispatch from Landsberg. They were pounded by an incessant barrage laid down by planes, tanks, howitzers, other artillery and naval guns.

Guam Bank Reopens In Army Quonset Hut

GUAM, March 15 (AP).—The Bank of Guam, housed in a Quonset hut, reopened for business today. The bank, owned by the Naval government of the island, has capital funds of $100,000 and a special war emergency fund of $300,000. Its assets total $1,500,000. Scores of natives and service men thronged the bank to start savings accounts. Prior to the war the bank had 4,000 accounts.

IWO ENEMY HOLDOUTS PUSHED FARTHER BACK

GUAM, Friday, March 16 (AP)—Further reduction of the last stand area of the Japanese on the northernmts ened of Iwo Thursday was reported by the Navy today.

The gains toward Kitano point were registered by Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's Fifth Marine Division against intense small arms and mortar fire.

Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third Marine Division in the center and Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates' Fourth on the right mopped up straggling enemy elements.

A National Broadcasting Company correspondent in a broadcast from Guam said it is believed there that the marine casualties on Iwo—killed, wounded and missing—total at least 12,000.

D-Day Cigarettes Are On the House

A COAST GUARD - MANNED SHIP IN THE PACIFIC — (AP) Free cigarettes aren't important on D-Day, says Chaplain James J. Carberry who provides them for the personnel of this ship just before a landing.

In landings in Normandy, in Southern France, and again in this theater, the chaplain set out cases of smokes on the mess deck where they were easily available and invited everyone to come and get them.

Few men took more than one pack, he reported, although there were no restrictions and no supervision.

U. S.-Mexico Defense Mapped

MEXICO CITY, March 15 (AP)—The possibility of continuing defense collaboration after the war is being discussed by the United States-Mexico Joint Defense Commission, in session here. Gen. Francisco Castillo Najera, Mexican Ambassador to Washington, is presiding over the meetings, which opened yesterday with Under-Secretary of War Francisco Urquizo in attendance.

Friend Of Bastista Slain

Havana, March 15 (AP)—Eugenio Llanillo Garcia, a close personal friend of former President Fulgencio Batista, was found shot to death last night on the highway between Punta Brava and Santa Fe beach. Garcia, 40, formerly was president of the Politico Realista party, which supported Batista.

Alaska Protests Bill on Finns

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 15 (AP).—The lower house of the Territorial Legislature unanimously went on record in a memorial yesterday against a bill in Congress which would permit nonquota Finns who fought in the Allies' service, and their relatives, to come to Alaska and, after ten years, be admitted to citizenship.

Says Canol Will Close April 1

EDMONTON, Alta., March 15 (AP).—Brigadier General F. S. Strong, commander of the Northwest Service Command of the United States Army, said today the Canol oil development at Whitehorse, Y. T., would stop April 1.

In Edmonton for a conference with Major General W. W. Foster, special Canadian commissioner for northwest defense projects, General Strong said that by June 30 "we will have only a handful of men to look after the refinery."

General Strong said there was no truth in a report that the Alaska highway would be abandoned.

NINE CIVILIANS HERE FREED IN PHILIPPINES

practice of locating prisoner of war camps in target areas, it was learned today, but has received no satisfactory reply.

With Superfortress raids on the enemy homeland increasing, a fresh protest was forwarded only recently. It probably has not had time to reach the Japanese Government, but State Department spokesmen said that replies to previous protests, starting more than a year ago, have been vague and evasive.

John Cotton, Far Eastern representative of the American Red Cross, said there are about a half a dozen Allied prisoner of war camps in the Osaka area, including one in the center of the city.

Camps in Tokyo Area.

Although B-29 crews are aware of their locations, Cotton said there was "a very good chance" that some of them were hit in the recent large-scale bombing assaults on that big enemy industrial center. He estimated that between 8,000 and 10,000 Allied prisoners of war are held in the vicinity, about one-third of whom are Americans. The others are British and Dutch.

"The Army is very careful that the airmen know where they are," he said, "but they can't always avoid hitting them."

Several other prisoner camps, he said, are known to be in the Tokyo area, mostly along the coast between Tokyo and Yokahama.

U. S. TOLL IS 425,007 ON WESTERN FRONT

Stimson Says Losses in February Declined—Total Casualties Increase to 839,589

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Army Ground Force casualties on the western front from D-day in June to March 1 totaled 425,007, Secretary Stimson reported today.

Of that number, he said, 34,468 represented casualties during February. He noted that last month's losses were substantially lower than in January, when 61,962 casualties were reported. In December the losses were 74,788.

Mr. Stimson gave the western front losses, in reporting that Army casualties in all theatres reached 748,457, on the basis of individual names compiled here through March 7.

The Navy reported losses of 91,132, putting the aggregate casualties since the Pearl Harbor attack at 839,589, an increase of 15,957 over last week's report.

The Secretary said that in February on the western front 4,145 were killed, 26,436 wounded and 3,887 reported missing.

From D-day to March 1 the break-down for the western front showed 70,414 killed, 297,547 wounded and 57,046 missing.

The classification of Army casualties in all theatres since Dec. 7, 1941, and corresponding figures for the previous week give these results:

Killed 145,733 and 142,285; wounded 450,766 and 438,734; missing 89,656 and 91,237, and prisoners 62,302 and 60,666. Of the wounded, 288,502, or more than half, have returned to duty.

Similar figures for the Navy follow:

Killed 34,938 and 34,513; wounded 41,443 and 41,209; missing 10,483 and 10,671, and prisoners 4,268 and 4,317.

In discussing the campaign on Luzon and Leyte, Mr. Stimson said that the Japanese counted killed there numbered 150,278 and the captured 1,516. In addition, thousands had been killed or drowned on transports.

By contrast, he added, our dead and missing totaled 7,243, of whom 6,889 were killed. There were 23,978 Americans wounded, putting total casualties at 31,221.

Marines, Coast Guard To Get 4-Star Officers

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—The Senate approved and sent to the White House today legislation establishing the rank of full general in the Marine Corps and full admiral in the Coast Guard.

First recipients of the new four-star grade will be Lieutenant General Alexander A. Vandergrift, commandant of the Marine Corps, and Vice-Admiral R. R. Waesche, Coast Guard commandant.

Army Probes Charge Of Captain's Parents

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Secretary of War Stimson said today he had ordered investigation of a report that the parents of a soldier killed in New Guinea had been sent his blood-stained clothing.

The Secretary said he had received a letter from Representative Ludlow (D., Ind.) asking for an inquiry of the case involving a mother and father in Indianapolis.

"I am having the facts investigated and will, of course, reply to him (Ludlow) when the information is received," Stimson said.

Previously Ludlow had quoted the mother of the soldier, an artillery captain, as saying she "couldn't believe anyone could be so heartless as to send home that blood-smeared shirt."

Men Under 21 Go Into Army

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The Army's growing need for young infantrymen to replace combat losses will take practically all inductees under 21 for the next three months.

Beginning today, the Army and Navy announced jointly, the only exception to army assignments for men drafted in that age bracket will be the comparatively few who qualify for such specialized naval programs as radio technicians and combat aircrewmen.

Navy Needs From 21-38 Group

Routine manpower needs of the Navy will be met from the 21-to-38-age brackets during the three-month period of the agreement.

The move is another step in the army's efforts to increase its sources of supply for infantrymen. In recent months the service has combed all its other branches.

17-Year-Olds Still Can Enlist

Last night's announcement made no mention of, and presumably does not affect, the Navy's policy of enlisting 17-year-olds.

About 80,000 youths reach their eighteenth birthdays monthly, and the recent division has been approximately 55,000 to the Army and 25,000 to the Navy.

16 DIED IN CRASH OF CHANNEL PLANE

Seven of USO Athletic Team Were Among Those Lost in Flight to Paris on March 3

MAR 16 1945

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Sixteen persons, including seven USO entertainers, died in the crash of an Army transport plane in Europe on March 3, the War Department stated today.

The plane was flying from England to Paris at the time of the accident. The dead and the next of kin are as follows:

MATKOVICH, GEORGE, USO; Mrs. Loetta Matkovich, Chicago.

ROSS, JACK, USO; Artur G. Ross, Chicago.

DONOR, Mrs. RUTH G., USO; Mrs. Sadie Baker Butcher, Neptune, N. J.

CHAPMAN, LESTER, USO; Mrs. Dee Chapman, Evanston, Ill.

SABATH, H. A., USO; Mrs. Adelaide Sabath, Chicago.

YOUNG, GAIUS W., USO; Mrs. Mary Jane Young, Minneapolis.

REUBEN, BEN, USO; Mrs. Sally Reuben, Chicago.

FOSTER, Capt. F. F., Navy; Mrs. Beatrice M. Foster, Washington.

HEIDEMAN, Lieut. L. L., Navy; Mrs. Lempi Heideman, Laurium, Mich.

HOPE, Spec/1c JOHN GARFIELD, Navy; Mrs. Emma Garland Hope, Philadelphia.

McVEY, Sgt. ALBERT J.; Mrs. Mary McVey, Herrin, Ill.

DEARSTINE, First Lieut. ROBERT H., crew member; Mrs. Jessie S. Dearstine, Syracuse, N. Y.

HIRTH, First Lieut. HERBERT H., crew member; Mrs. Helen Hirth, New Orleans.

that division during which there was no loss of life in a plane accident.

RYE, N. Y., March 15 (AP)—First Lieut. Paul A. Mansell was a weather officer with the Eighth Air Force. His father, David, said today that the 26-year-old lieutenant was graduated from Peekskill Military Academy and was attending Columbia University when inducted in 1942. He went overseas early in 1943.

New York USO officials identified Mr. Matkovich, Mr. Ross, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Young and Mr. Reuben as professional wrestlers and Mrs. Donor as a portrait artist.

Mr. Matkovich was known professionally as George Mack. He had opposed Jim Londos, Don George and Gus Sonnenberg, all title claimants, during his twenty-year mat career.

Mr. Reuben, a former middleweight title aspirant, was a naval veteran of the first World War.

USO records showed that Mr. Ross, who turned professional fifteen years ago after his graduation from Lane Technical High School in Chicago, listed Sally Ross as a sister. She also is a wrestler.

Mr. Young played football with the St. Cloud (Minn.) Teachers during his collegiate career. Mr. Chapman, known in mat circles as Kid Chapman, also was a Wisconsin golf professional.

The USO officials said the athletes' show consisted of feats of strength, application of various holds and wrestling exhibitions.

In Chicago USO officials said Mr. Sabath also was a wrestler using the name of Al Sabath.

Wartime Income Totals Record 100 Billion

Washington, March 15 (AP)—America's 50,000,000 taxpayers today tossed in the last hundred millions on their 1944 taxes, boosting wartime revenue past $100,000,000,000—a figure surpassing all prior collections in American history.

Tax experts estimated that Government collections for 1944 at $43,000,000,000, highest on record, and comparing with prewar revenues of $5,000,000,000 a year or less.

The midnight deadline for 1944 income-tax payments neared with these developments:

"Digit Jitters" Eased

1. Some 30,000,000 persons—those earning below $5,000—were relieved of the annual siege of "digit jitters" by the 1944 Simplification Act. But long lines still sought help at Internal Revenue Bureau offices across the country, giving vent to demands for still more simplification.

2. Pleas were heard for easements in tax burdens, but there was no immediate prospect for a reduction in record high levies. Congress does not intend to write a new revenue bill this year, but has its tax staff at work on a postwar tax program.

Representative Carlson (R., Kan.), author of the pay-as-you-go bill which established the current withholding system, said today that further adjustments are needed to simplify returns for persons earning more than $5,000.

Graduated Scale Studied

He said he is studying the advisability of a graduated withholding levy designed to take virtually the entire tax of persons making up to $10,000 a year.

A check of figures compiled by the congressional tax staff showed that from 1863—as far back as their figures go—through fiscal 1941, total tax payments amounted to $97,953,675,000.

The last payments today on 1944 incomes are expected to bring revenue for the three war years considerably above $100,000,000,000, which congressional experts said was more than the aggregate of all prior taxes collected since the nation was constituted.

17 Billions From Incomes

Of the 1944 collections, around $17,000,000,000 will be from individual incomes. The remainder comes chiefly from corporation taxes and excise levies on such items as liquor, cigarettes and beauty aids.

Prior to enactment of the first individual income tax in 1913, the Government was financed chiefly by levies on liquor and tobacco. Records disclose that in 1907 the liquor tax yielded 80.6 per cent of all government revenues.

MARINE CADET CORPS PRAISED

Roosevelt Pays Tribute to Men of Merchant Fleet.

Washington, March 15 (A. P.).—President Roosevelt paid tribute today to the cadet-midshipmen of the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, L. I.

In a letter to Vice-Admiral Emory S. Land, War Shipping Administrator, on the occasion of the academy's seventh anniversary, Mr. Roosevelt said the young cadet-midshipmen "and the price they have paid toward maintaining freedom shall long endure in the memory of a grateful nation."

The academy has graduated 6,000 merchant ship officers since 1938. More than 140 have died from enemy action.

The text of the letter, scheduled to be read by Capt. Edward Macauley, Deputy WSA Administrator, at ceremonies at Kings Point this afternoon follows:

"On the seventh anniversary of the founding of the United States Merchant Marine Cadet Corps, I extend my congratulations upon the service the cadet corps is rendering the nation by adequately and efficiently training young men as officers of our merchant marine.

"I know that the young cadet-midshipmen of the cadet corps have gone to sea in the face of peril and that many have sacrificed their lives. They and the price they have paid toward maintaining freedom shall long endure in the memory of a grateful nation. I know of their love for the sea, their loyalty to their ships, and I am confident of their continued success in the ultimate peacetime commerce in which this country must surely engage.

"To the United States Merchant Marine Cadet Corps and to the training organization of the War Shipping Administration, of which it is a part, I send my congratulations and best wishes."

Washington Affirms Inquiry

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The State Department confirmed today the announcement made by British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in the House of Commons yesterday that the United States, British and Soviet Governments were exchanging communications on the situation in Rumania.

In response to inquiries this statement was made by a State Department spokesman:

"The American representatives in Rumania have, of course, kept the department informed of recent developments in that country. We think that some aspects of the political situation require consultation among the three principal Allies and we are discussing this situation with the British and Soviet Governments."

ROMANIAN CRISIS WILL TEST YALTA

U.S. Calls for "Big Three Parley Under Crimean Agreement.

WASHINGTON, March 15—(AP) The United States has asked Russia and Britain to hold consultations under the Yalta agreement on political conditions in Romania.

The State department issued this statement through a spokesman late today in answer to inquiries:

"The American representatives in Romania have of course kept the department informed of recent developments in that country. We think that some aspects of the political situation require consultation among the three principal Allies and we are discussing this situation with the British and Soviet governments."

Elsewhere it was learned that the discussions were initiated and the request made under the Yalta agreement for joint action when necessary to preserve the political security and independence of liberated and former Axis controlled countries of Europe.

The Romanian situation has been boiling since the government of Premier Nicolai Radescu fell under Russian criticism and following a visit to Bucharest of Vice Commissar for Foreign Affairs Vishinsky.

The present Romanian regime, headed by Premier Petru Groza, a leader of the Communist-controlled national democratic front party, is considered here to be a minority government not representative of all the "democratic elements of the country.

It was considered entirely possible that as a result of the discussions, the Big Three might decide to create a joint commission to deal with Romanian affairs.

The first application of the Crimean principles was made to Poland, under comparable circumstances, when the Big Three leaders agreed that they would jointly seek to broaden the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw provisional government.

The United States has two principal officials in Romania. Burton Y. Berry, with the rank of minister, is the top American diplomatic representative although not formally accredited to King Mihai. The American member of the Allied control commission, which is responsible for enforcement of armistice terms on the former Axis satellite country, is Brig. Gen. Courtland Van Rensselaer Schuyler.

At the moment American diplomatic officials are by no means certain that the Yalta agreement will come through unscathed. On the other hand, none here really expects it to break down. The expectation is that some sort of acceptable, if not generally satisfactory, agreement can be reached.

Foreign Minister Eden publicly told Commons this week what had been commonly talked in secret by Allied diplomats for many days—that it was the Moscow government, acting without consultation with the United States and Britain, which ousted the Radescu administration and helped set up the present regime.

WANTS ALL LET IN ON WORLD PARLEY

Washington, March 15 (A. P.).—The United States will ask other United Nations to conduct the San Francisco meeting "with the greatest possible consideration for the widespread interest of the world in its deliberations."

Secretary of State Stettinius made this announcement today. President Roosevelt has already promised an open press policy, patterned on the Mexico City conference.

Mr. Stettinius said the conference itself will decide final policy with regard to press, radio and motion pictures. The United States will propose that plenary meetings and meetings of the principal commissions be open to news correspondents and photographers and to the general public so far as facilities permit.

He turned thumbs down on social activities, declaring that "this is a working conference entrusted with the high purpose of preparing a charter for a general international organization for the maintenance of peace and security." Mr. Stettinius also told his news conference that the United States delegation will confer again soon to decide on a panel of advisers.

STIMSON SEES WAR IN CRITICAL STAGE

Washington, March 15 (A. P.).—Secretary of War Stimson today described the Remagen bridgehead as a foundation for "attack on inner Germany." The bridgehead, Mr. Stimson said in his weekly war review, "may be the scene of still heavier fighting, but we have had time to consolidate our position."

The war on the western front has "reached a very critical stage," he said.

As an example of the progress of fighting along the Rhine, the Secretary said he had received today a report on the capture by a single American Army corps of the following material: 68 tanks, 166 88-millimerter guns, 23 self-propelled guns, 43 75s and 105s, 41 anti-tank guns, 51 80-millimeter mortars and a large number of smaller weapons.

"The desperate situation of the Germans is indicated by German Army orders to shoot all stragglers," he added. "Last December we captured orders which directed the shooting of attempted deserters and the notification to all troops that the families of deserters would be subjected to the death penalty.

"I cite these as examples of the iron grip the Nazi leaders are attempting to maintain over the German Army and people," he said.

Argentina Must First Declare War

U. S. Invokes Yalta Charter On Romania

Seeks to Prevent Country Falling Into the Hands of Communist Minority

Discussions Are On With Britain, Russia

Soviet Pressure Seen in Cabinet's Fall; Joint Control May Be Set Up

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The United States invoked the Crimean charter today in an effort to prevent Romania from falling completely into the hands of a Communist minority.

Under apparent Russian pressure, the Romanian government of Premier Nicolai Radescu was overthrown on the last day of February and succeeded March 6 by the administration of Premier Petru Groza, of the Communist-controlled National Democratic front.

The United States action was disclosed in an official but incomplete announcement from a State Department spokesman:

"The American representatives in Romania have, of course, kept the department informed of recent developments in that country. We think that some aspects of the political situation require consultation among the three principal Allies, and we are discussing this situation with the British and Soviet governments."

30.24-23929

Based on Yalta Parley

The statement was issued in response to inquiries. Elsewhere it was learned that the call for consultation is based on the agreements to protect the political integrity of liberated and former Axis-satellite countries which President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin and Prime Minister Churchill made at the Crimean Conference little more than a month ago. That agreement provides for joint action whenever the Allies find it necessary to inject themselves into a country's politics.

It was considered entirely possible that as a result of the discussions the Big Three might decide to create a joint commission to deal with Romanian affairs.

The first application of the Crimean principles was made to Poland, under comparable circumstances, when the Big Three leaders agreed that they would jointly seek to broaden the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw provisional government.

Agreement Is Expected

The United States has two principal officials in Romania. Burton Y. Berry, with the rank of minister, is the top American diplomatic representative, although not formally accredited to King Mihai. The American member of the Allied Control Commission, which is responsible for enforcement of armistice terms on the former Axis-satellite country, is Brigadier General Courtland Van Rensselaer Schuyler.

At the moment American diplomatic officials are by no means certain that the Yalta agreement will come through unscathed. On the other hand, none here really expects it to break down. The expectation is that some sort of acceptable, if not generally satisfactory, agreement can be reached.

StimsonKnows ofNoPlan To Drop Alcan Highway

Says He Also Has No Word on Canol Closing Date

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, said today he knew of no plans to abandon the Alaskan highway in Canada.

He was asked at a news conference about the statement of Senator Warren G. Magnuson, Democrat, of Washington, in the Senate yesterday that he understood the highway, built to form a military link between the United States and Alaska, would be abandoned.

"I know of no such plan," Mr. Stimson replied.

Secretary Stimson likewise said he had no information regarding another report, by Senator James M. Mead, Democrat, of New York, that the date for closing out the Canol oil development had been moved up from the previously announced June 30 to April 1.

Senate Takes Up Debt Limit

MAR 16 1945

Treasury Official Says $300,000,000,000 Top May Have to Be Raised in Year.

Washington, March 15 (A. P.).—The Senate Finance Committee approved today legislation raising the national debt limit to $300,000,000,000. Daniel W. Bell, Under-Secretary of the Treasury, said it would have to be raised again within a year.

The present statutory limit is $260,000,000,000. The House already has approved the higher figure.

Mr. Bell, the Treasury's only witness, told the Senate committee the debt stood at $235,000,000,000 on February 28. He estimated that it would mount to $251,800,000,000 by June 30, end of the current fiscal year. He said that the increase is urgently needed in view of the forthcoming Seventh War Loan, by means of which the Government hopes to raise another $14,000,000,000.

Mr. Bell was questioned intensively by Senator Byrd (D.-Va.) and others concerning the Treasury's plans to prevent marketable bonds from selling below par after the war. Senator Brewster (R.-Me.) recalled that Liberty Bonds dropped to 82, as contrasted with par of 100, after world war I.

The Under-Secretary said that as he saw it the Government, working through the Federal Reserve system, would have to maintain the market at par by buying its own bonds if necessary. Senator Byrd contended that such a course held serious dangers of inflation, since the Government would have to borrow other money to make the purchases.

Mr. Bell said that there undoubtedly would have to be a campaign to persuade people to hold their savings bonds.

He characterized the present redemption rate as "steady" and generally satisfactory, running a little over 1 per cent a month as compared with bonds outstanding.

Over the last calendar year, Mr. Bell said, $25,514,000,000 worth were sold and $15,957,000,000 redeemed.

W. Randolph Burgess, president of the American Bankers Association, read a statement de-

'44 Campaigns For President Cost 23 Million

Total Revealed as Senators Urge Hatch Act Change to Lift Ceilings on Gifts

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP).—Senator Theodore Green, Democrat, of Rhode Island, told the Senate today that approximately $25,000,000 was collected and $23,000,000 spent in last year's political campaign.

The chairman of the Senate campaign investigating committee contended in a prepared address that Federal prohibitions had been ineffective in preventing large expenditures. The committee recommended elimination of present ceilings.

"The basic theory underlying the recommendations is founded upon the conviction that the amount of campaign contributions is not the most important matter but that the sources of these contributions and the manner in which they are expended are more important," he said.

"Consequently, it is felt that greater emphasis should be placed upon publicity—full and timely publicity. When the public knows where campaign funds are coming from and for what purposes they are spent, then the public is in a position to resist effectively any attempt to purchase a Federal office."

The investigators split sharply over a Republican proposal to prevent future political spending by labor unions.

The committee said final reports of the Congress of Industrial Organizations Political Action Committee and its affiliated National Citizens Political Action Committee, which supported the fourth-term campaign, showed total contributions received of $1,405,120 and expenditures of $1,327,775.

The investigators agreed there was "no clear-cut violation" of the corrupt-practices act by C. I. O. committees in the 1944 campaign, but a suggested revision of the act proposed by Senators Homer Ferguson, Republican, of Michigan, drew Democratic majority dissent.

Republicans Lose on Sanction Plan

The Republicans sought a prohibition against "expenditures, as well as contributions, made in connection with any Federal election by a corporation, bank or labor organization."

Senator Green and Senators Tom Stewart, Democrat, of Tennessee, and James M. Tunnell, Democrat, of Delaware, disagreed, on the ground that such an extension of the corupt practices act might limit freedom of speech, press and assembly and that prohibitions and sanctions fail to prevent "pernicious political activity."

The clash over union election activity was bundled up in a 250-page report on the 1944 campaign filed with the Senate.

The committee, which questioned Sidney Hillman, head of the P. A. C., said its inquiry developed that while the corrupt-practices act prohibits unions and corporations from making contributions in Federal elections it "does not extend the ban to expenditures."

This position, taken by Mr. Hillman at the time, later was concurred in by Attorney General Francis Biddle, the committee asserted. Senators Ferguson and Ball would apply the prohobition to political convention spending as well.

The committee recommended removal as "utterly unrealistic" of an existing Hatch-act ceiling of $3,000,000 upon receipts and expenditures by political committees and a $5,000 limitation on individual campaign contributions.

The committee said that while the Republican National Committee reported spending $2,828,651 and the Democratic National Committee $2,056,121, groups supporting the national tickets spent as follows: Democrats: Independent committees, groups or individuals, $2,327,659; intrastate independent groups, $1,024,648, and state committees, $2,033,370. Republicans: Independent committees, groups or individuals, $609,291; intrastate independent groups, $493,905, and state committees, $9,260,528.

General Patrick Dies of Wounds In Philippines

MAR 16 1945

6th Infantry Commander Was in Luzon Offensive; Served on Halsey Staff

EL PASO, Tex., March 15 (AP).—Major General Edwin Daviess Patrick, commanding general of the 6th Infantry Division and former chief of staff of the 6th Army, died of wounds suffered on Luzon, according to word from the War Department received here today by his wife. The date of his death was not given. He was fifty-one years old.

The 6th Division was last reported in the Marikina watershed eaast of Manila, tackling the Japanese Shimbu line between Wawa and Antipolo, scene of some of the severest fighting in the Luzon campaign. General Patrick went ashore at Lingayen Gulf with his unit Jan. 9.

He was the second divisional leader on Luzon to be reported recently as a casualty. Major General Verne D. Mudge, leader of the 1st Cavalry Division, was wounded by a grenade thrown by a Japanese Feb. 28.

Mrs. Patrick first received a telegram that her husband had been seriously wounded, but an hour later another telegram came notifying her that he had died.

Lieutenant in Last War

A native of Tell City, Ind., Major General Patrick was commissioned a second lieutenant in the regular army during the first world war. He saw action at St. Mihiel, the Meuse and Argonne. After the war he was graduated from the Infantry, Command and General Staff School of the Army War College and also of the Naval War College.

He was stationed in China between 1926 and 1929. After Pearl Harbor he was assigned to the staff of Admiral William F. Halsey, the commander of the South Pacific area, and in December, 1943, he was named chief of staff of the 6th Army. Later he was made commanding general of the 6th Infantry Division, now on Luzon.

Surviving, besides his wife, the former Nellie May Bowen, are three sons, Cadet Thomas Patrick, Lieutenant Urlic B. Patrick, overseas with the Army, and Seaman E. D. Patrick jr., U. S. N., stationed at Stillwater, Okla.

Brooklyn Girl Waits For Captured German

New York, March 15 (AP)—Hans Detels, Reichswehr officer captured by American soldiers in Germany, has a pretty girl awaiting him in Brooklyn.

She is Anne Lo Monaco, who said today that the blond lieutenant, a Fordham University graduate, "rushed her off her feet" when they both worked in a department store in New York, and that, upon returning to Germany in 1937, he had promised to return to her some day.

"I am still waiting," she said.

Detels, 40, was captured by the American 19th Infantry Division when the outfit took a hospital where he was a staff officer.

Evidence Of Jap Atrocities In Manila Brought Back

MAR 16 1945

San Francisco, March 15 (AP)—Bitterly describing "coldly premeditated atrocities" in Manila, Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo was back in the United States today with a sheaf of documents and films to "indict the Japanese people on the floor of Congress."

The Resident Commissioner of the Philippines, who arrived here from Manila yesterday, said the prime purpose of his trip was to appear before Congress "and describe in detail, with sworn affidavits, the atrocities the Japanese committed on helpless civilians."

Worse Than Nanking

Romulo told newsmen that "the rape of Nanking was a picnic compared with what the Japs did to Manila."

He said he carried documentary evidence that the Japanese Imperial Marines in Manila had direct orders from Tokyo to kill as many Filipinos as they could.

"The Japanese were irate in having failed to get the support of my people. They wanted to make an example of the Filipinos to influence Greater East Asia."

Romulo said that inside Manila's Intramuros (walled city) the Japanese herded virtually all the men into Fort Santiago, doused the place with kerosene and set it ablaze.

1,700 Died There

"In that fort 1,700 civilians died," he declared. "Only three escaped, through machine gun fire, to describe the horror.

"I entered Fort Santiago later and I saw the burned corpses lying helter-skelter. Some were holding onto the grillwork, and would drop off when I touched them."

Domei, Japanese news agency, said in another FCC recorded broadcast that damage caused by the raids "has been considerable."

The organization of "civilian special attack corps" for fighting home shores has been completed in some districts in the wake of warnings by government officials that an invasion was expected.

While the enemy radio said that U. S. announcements of 300-Superfort blasts at Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka within the last week were just "propaganda," and that the number never exceeded 130, it was nevertheless reported these cities and also Yokohama and Kobe would be cleared of all citizens except war workers.

The evacuation decision was reached Thursday by Premier Kuniaki Koiso's cabinet, said a Berlin interocean dispatch broadcast heard in London. The move of populations will be on a voluntary basis at first, but "special measures will be taken" if the people failed to respond, Interocean reported.

The government also issued further orders for prominent Japanese newspapers to combine publication operations outside Tokyo in single plants. Previously it had ordered six Tokyo papers to use one plant jointly because of air raids and the war situation.

Participation in the British fleet in American operations against Mindanoa island, Philippines, was claimed in an unconfirmed enemy broadcast.

JAPS TO EVACUATE FIVE LARGE CITIES

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15. — (AP) Japanese admission of heavy loss of life and damage from recent heavy American Superfortress incendiary raids came from Tokyo radio today, with reports of formation of a civilian army to counter a possible invasion and orders for civilian evacuation of the nation's five biggest cities.

The Tokyo newspaper Asahi was quoted as saying the number of deaths in the Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka raids of the past week "could never be called small."

ICKES WARNS OF 'PLANNERS'

Says Forces Of Reaction Look Forward To 1946

New York, March 15 (AP)—Interior Secretary Ickes told the American Labor party tonight that "the forces reaction . . . have become bold with anticipated success and they are looking forward to 1946."

He described these forces as "back room" planners ready to attack "any forward looking social legislation." He said that although they were defeated in the 1944 Presidential campaign, they still are unduanted.

Heard Over Telephone

Ickes did not attend the party dinner. A telephone arrangement was set up to bring his speech, the prepared text of which was released in Washington.

In it he proposed a program of "liberty, equality and security" for carrying on "the cause of the common man."

"The so-called liberties of those who enjoy a monopoly of one or more of the articles of commerce are not, to my mind, liberties except that they give the holder of these monopolistic privileges the liberty to prevent competition and to destroy his competitors," Ickes said. "I think that it is time to give a little liberty to those upon whom the dead hand of monopoly has lain so long.

Urge Equal Opportunity

"The second fundamental of the program that I have in mind is equality. By this I do not mean that all men ought to receive equal wages or have like homes, but I do mean that they ought to have an equal opportunity, one with another, for equal homes and like wages. . . . There remains a great sour mass of discrimination on account of race of color or religion that must be done away with if we are to achieve true equality."

As to the third phase of his program, Ickes said "we must fight to extend social security benefits to the thousands of workers who are not yet covered into this system."

Miners' Paper Foresees Owners Blocking Pact

Washington, March 15 (AP)—The United Mine Workers' Journal, which often speaks for John L. Lewis, said today that bituminous operators would refuse increases "that would make possible negotiation of agreement."

The organ did not elaborate on this statement beyond analyzing reported sentiment of the operators on a few of Lewis's eighteen demands presented during the current wage conference, and saying there was an advance agreement by the producers "to conduct make-believe negotiations."

Strike Vote Scheduled

Neither did it mention what would follow the expiration of the soft coal contract March 31 without a new agreement to take its place. A nation-wide strike vote among the bituminous miners is scheduled for March 28.

The Journal said it was unofficially reported that the operators "propose to deny or ignore, in emphatic fashion, the 10-cent-a-ton royalty proposal for medical care and rehabilitation of the injured and afflicted miners in the industry.

"The operators probably will yield on shift differentials, but will seek to pare the 10 and 15 cent proposal to the lower levels that have been granted in other industries by the War Labor Board," the Journal continued.

Travel-Time Issue

"There is a strong conviction among many of the operators that it will be useless to attempt to evade full (underground) travel-time payments any longer, but whether or not the operators who take this viewpoint will be sufficiently strong enough to convince the majority of the folly of longer maintaining at least frontal opposition is questionable.

"It is also unlikely that the operators will yield anything on vacation pay and other proposals, unless the mine workers would agree to scuttling the royalty payments, as well as adjustment of the differentials within and as between fields."

Reports On Proxies

The Journal questioned that the conference was nation-wide in scope, saying that proxies had been obtained from the bulk of the associations, leaving on hand only about a dozen operators.

Meanwhile, differences among the operators forced further postponement today of a reply to Lewis's contract demands.

Tokyo Reeled In Panic as B-29s Struck

Russian Reporter Says Thousands Still Crowd Stations to Leave City

Civilians Wandered In Daze for 3 Days

All Vehicles From Trucks to Jinrikishas Used in the Rush to Get Away

The Tokyo correspondent of the Soviet Tass agency reported last night that the civilian population of the Japanese capital was thrown into a panic beyond the authorities' ability to control during the heavy B-29 pre-dawn raid last week, and that yesterday—six days after the assault—thousands of refugees were still crowding railway stations trying to leave Tokyo.

"Everywhere there are various kinds of vehicles, from trucks to rickshas, loaded with belongings of the people evacuating the city," said the dispatch, as reported by the Federal Communications Commission. "Hospitals are crowded with sufferers," it added, noting that they had "stopped their usual, ordinary work."

The Russian correspondent quoted the Tokyo newspaper "Asahi" as saying that for three days following the bombing "sufferers were wandering about at places reduced to ashes, hoping to find out whether their families were safe," and that many persons sustained eye injuries as a result of the raging fires. There were not enough doctors to care for the injured, according to the "Asahi" report.

Free Evacuation Trains

The Tass dispatch quoted the "Asahi" article as saying special trains were run out of Tokyo for two days following the raid to transport sufferers without tickets. However, many were unable to avail themselves of the opportunity to leave the capital because of lack of transportation. Special provisions were made for the feeding of those left behind.

Following the Tokyo announcement on Wednesday of a program of compulsory evacuation of children from all key mainland danger zones, the German Transocean agency reported yesterday that the Japanese government has called for the "voluntary evacuation" of every one not in essential occupations in the five leading cities—Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka and Kobe. "In the event of an unsatisfactory response to the request, the government will take appropriate steps," Transocean said the Japanese were warned.

The formation of "civilian special attack corps" to defend the nation "against possible enemy invasion" was also reported in Japanese broadcasts yesterday. Units have already been formed in some districts, the broadcasts said.

F.D.R. Names Harrison To Myron Taylor's Post

Washington, March 15 (AP)—President Roosevelt today appointed Earl G. Harrison, of Philadelphia, to succeed Ambassador Myron C. Taylor as United States representative on the intergovernmental committee of refugees.

Harrison was formerly commissioner of immigration and naturalization of the Department of Justice. Taylor is the President's personal representative to the Vatican.

The refugee committee has its headquarters in London, and Harrison is expected to go there immediately. The committee is charged with making plans to care for racial, religious and political refugees who cannot return to their homes.

The job of caring for and repatriating displaced persons who can be repatriated is assigned to the United Nations Relief ond Rehabilitation Administration.

Montreal Probes Sale Of Drugs To Soldiers

Montreal, March 15 (AP)—A city-wide search for persons who "steered" more than 600 soldiers and civilians to premises where they allegedy obtained drugs to render them unfit for military service has been opened by Royal Canadian Mounted Police, it was disclosed tonight.

The Montreal residents sought by police were all said to be "working" with a man who has been arrested and charged by police with selling pills and other medicine for $50 to $1,000. Officials said papers found in the man's home showed 150 soldiers now listed as army deserters.

Others Can Help Feed Europe, Says Mrs. R.

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Mrs. Franklin D Roosevelt doesn't think the United States should feed Europe by itself.

Other nations have things to contribute, she told a news conference today.

The President's wife had been asked whether she shared fears that the American economy would crack "if we feed Europe."

Her reply: "I do not see why we should feed Europe alone. Other countries can join with us. But I do not think we will crack. We may have difficulties but we haven't had any hardships here. I do not want us to go without anything, but we are not going to be asked to feed Europe alone. The other nations have things to contribute."

SOLDIERS MOVED TO CURB CRIME

NEW YORK, March 15—(AP) Transfer of 1,000 soldiers from Staten Island was announced by the New York Port of Embarkation today in a move toward curbing what Richmond County District Attorney Farrell M. Kane termed a "crime wave."

Port authorities at the same time expressed doubt that a service man was responsible for Tuesday night's reported attack on Mrs. Pasquale Cortopassi, 25, latest of about 75 molestation cases reported to police.

Four soldiers from the Fox Hill cantonment have signed affidavits, the port public relations officer said, that they saw a man in civilian clothing run from the Cortopassi house after a woman screamed. The soldiers were confined to a prison garrison about 100 yards from the house.

Mrs. Cortopassi had told police she was raped in front of her home by a Negro in a soldier's uniform.

Authorities said five companies of soldiers, in training for stevedore work, would be transferred farther from the Metropolitan area today and that two other companies would be shifted shortly.

They said also that War department permission had been asked to erect a service club and to build an eight-foot fence around the Fox Hills cantonment and a guard house at the main gate.

Additional military police have been assigned to the area, authorities said.

Cuban Sugar Men Accept U.S. Offer

Washington, March 15 (AP)—Cuban sugar producers have accepted a United States offer of $3.10 a hundred pounds for their 1945 output, it was learned today.

At the same time informed sugar men said they had been advised that Puerto Rican sugar producers have accepted with certain undisclosed reservations an offer of 55 cents a hundred pounds incentive payment for this year's crop. Official confirmation was lacking.

Cuba was paid $2.65 per hundred pounds and Puerto Rico received an incentive payment of 20 cents last year.

Puerto Rican production has been tied up for over a month by strikes for higher wages. Producers, maintaining they could not meet workers' demands on the basis of the Government's earlier offer of 40 cents, had sought equality with Louisiana growers who receive Government payments of a cent a pound.

San Francisco, March 15—On the little-publicized fronts of New Guinea, Bougainville and New Britain, Australian troops made general advances up to 3 miles, Radio Melbourne reported today in a broadcast intercepted by the Federal Communications Commission. The time involved was not stated.

GEN. E. D. PATRICK DIES, WAS WOUNDED ON LUZON

EL PASO, Tex., March 15 (AP) Maj. Gen. Edwin D. Patrick, whose sixth infantry division was one of the original invaders of Luzon, has died of wounds received on Luzon, the War department notified his wife here today.

The Sixth division was last reported in the Marikina watersbed east of Manila, tackling the Japanese Shimbu line between Wawa and Antipolo, scene of some of the severest fighting in the Luzon campaign.

Patrick, former chief of staff of the Sixth army, went ashore at Lingayen gulf with his unit Jan. 9.

MEDIUM BOMBERS, STRIKING IN FOUR WAVES AT HALF-HOUR INTERVALS, LEVELLED DRAGON'S TEETH OBSTACLES AND GERMAN PILLBOXES IN THE SIEGFRIED LINE ON THE SAAR FRONT. THEY DROPPED SPECIALLY-FUSED NON-CRATERING BOMBS WITH A WIDESPREAD BLAST EFFECT.

THREE GERMAN AIRCRAFT WERE DESTROYED ON THE GROUND AND TWO IN THE AIR DURING THE MORNING AS THE NINTH'S PLANES MADE 500 TRIPS WITHOUT LOSS.

MEANWHILE, HUNDREDS OF ITALY-BASED U.S. 15TH AIR FORCE FLYING FORTRESSES AND LIBERATORS ROARED NORTHWARD DURING THE DAY, ATTACKING THE HUGE RUHLAND OIL REFINERY, 65 MILES SOUTHEAST OF BERLIN. THE BRIDGEHEAD BATTLE WAS IN ITS EIGHTH DAY AND STILL WAS SHROUDED FOR THE MOST PART BY A SECURITY BLACKOUT. EMPHASIS WAS ON BUILDING UP OVERPOWERING ASSAULT FORCES AND MAKING SURE THAT NO GERMAN COUNTER-ATTACK COULD DISLODGE THE CONQUERORS. THEY ENTERED WEISKIRCHEN, 12 MILES SOUTHEAST OF SAARBURG AND 24 NORTHWEST OF SAARBRUECKEN, AND REPULSED TWO COUNTERATTACKS. SCHEIDEN, NINE MILES SOUTHEAST OF SAARBURG, WAS ENTERED BY THE 94TH DIVISION WHICH CAPTURED HEDERT, NINE MILES SOUTHEAST OF TRIER.

THAT IS THE KIND OF BOMBING THAT HAS GONE BEFORE OTHER ALLIED OFFENSIVES, AT ST.LO, WHERE THE ALLIES BURST THE BONDS OF THE NORMAND BEACHHEAD, AND LATER WHEN AMERICAN ARMIES BROKE THROUGH THE SIEGFRIED LINE.

THE BOMBING WAS CENTERED IN AN AREA TWO AND A HALF MILES SOUTH OF ZWEIBRUECKEN, 15 MILES EAST OF THE MENACED SAAR CAPITAL OF SAARBRUECKEN.

LT.GEN.GEORGE S.PATTON'S TROOPS CROSSED THE MOSELLE YESTERDAY AGAINST LIGHT RESISTANCE, IT WAS DISCLOSED ONLY TODAY, AND QUICKLY CLEARED 11 TOWNS ON THE SOUTH BANK, WHERE THE GERMANS MUST MAKE A STAND IF THEY EXPECT TO HOLD FOR LONG THEIR LAST TERRITORY STILL UNCONQUERED WEST OF THE RHINE.

WITH THE U.S.FIRST ARMY EAST OF THE RHINE, MARCH 15-(AP)-THE U.S. FIRST ARMY SEIZED FOUR MORE TOWNS BEYOND THE RHINE TODAY AND CEMENTED ITS SIX-BY-ELEVEN-MILE BRIDGEHEAD SO FIRMLY THAT IT WAS ANNOUNCED OFFICIALLY THE DANGER OF BEING DISLODGED WAS WELL PAST.

THE ASSAULT CARRIED INTO FIVE OTHER TOWNS, INCLUDING AEGIDIENBERG, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF THE REMAGEN BRIDGE, AND LESS THAN A MILE FROM THE SIX-LANE HIGHWAY TO THE RUHR, WHICH NOW IS UNDER DIRECT OBSERVATION.

CAPTURED WERE RHOENDORF, ONE MILE NORTH OF HONNEF, LORSCHEID, FIVE MILES EAST OF THE BRIDGE, AND HESSELN AND HANNEN IN THE SAME AREA.

TROOPS ALSO WERE FIGHTING IN HOENNINGEN, AT THE SOUTH END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, NOTSCHIED AND KALENBORN ON THE EASTERN EDGE OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, AND STEINSHARDT, SIX MILES EAST OF THE BRIDGE.

LORSCHEID WAS CLEARED ONLY AFTER THE ENEMY DROVE BACK INTO TOWN WITH SIX KING TIGER TANKS IN A COUNTERATTACK THAT WAS REPULSED IN SEVERE FIGHTING. THE ENEMY THEN WITHDREW TO STRODT, ABOUT A MILE EAST, WHILE THE AMERICANS PUSHED ON HALF WAY TO THAT TOWN.

WELL-SIGHTED, SELF-PROPELLED GUNS IN THE ENEMY STRONGPOINT AT KALENBORN HAVE HELD THE YANKS ON THE EDGE OF TOWN. THEIR POSSESSION OF A RAILROAD STATION THERE WAS CHALLENGED BY ANOTHER SEVERE ENEMY COUNTERATTACK WHICH WAS CONTAINED AFTER A FOUR-HOUR FIGHT.

ALL ALONG THE BRIDGEHEAD PERIMETER, WHICH DID NOT MATERIALLY CHANGE IN DIMENSIONS, THE ENEMY WAS PUTTING UP STIFF RESISTANCE.

A TOTAL OF 35 TANKS AND SELF-PROPELLED GUNS ATTACKED IN SMALL GROUPS AT VARIOUS SECTORS YESTERDAY. EIGHT WERE KNOCKED OUT, AND ANOTHER TIGER TANK WAS DESTROYED TODAY AT LORSCHEID.

IN THE DRIVE TOWARD THE SUPER HIGHWAY, THE FIRST ARMY SECURED AN IMPORTANT JUNCTION OF SECONDARY ROADS FOUR MILES EAST OF HONNEF NEAR THE VILLAGE OF ROTTDITZE.

THIS REPRESENTED AN ADVANCE OF MORE THAN HALF A MILE.

AT THE SOUTHERN END OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, OTHER AMERICAN TROOPS THIS AFTERNOON OPENED AN ATTACK ON THREE HILLS NORTHEAST OF HOENNINGEN, WHOSE POSSESSION BY THE GERMANS HAS PREVENTED OCCUPATION OF HOENNINGEN.

STRONG AIR PATROLS KEPT THE BRIDGEHEAD SKIES CLEAR OF ENEMY PLANES. ONE GOT WITHIN EIGHT MILES AND WAS SHOT DOWN.

PILOTS REPORTED GREATLY INCREASED RAIL AND HIGHWAY TRAFFIC EAST OF THE RHINE, MUCH OF IT HEADED TOWARD THE BRIDGEHEAD.

NINTH TACTICAL AIR FORCE PLANES IN DAY-LONG SORTIES MADE THE FOLLOWING CLAIMS: RAILROAD CARS, 331 DESTROYED AND 297 DAMAGED; LOCOMOTIVES, 15 DESTROYED AND 8 DAMAGED; ARMORED VEHICLES, 19 AND 13, MOTOR TRANSPORT 210 AND 159.

ANTIAIRCRAFT GUNNERS NOW CLAIM A SEVEN-DAY TOTAL OF 111 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED AND 26 PROBABLY DESTROYED OUT OF 353 PLANES MAKING 192 RAIDS ON THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE. THE BRIDGE STILL IS IN USE DESPITE GERMAN CLAIMS TO HAVE KNOCKED IT OUT.

WITH THE U.S. 94TH DIVISION, SCHILLENGEN, GERMANY, MARCH 15-(AP) THE DOUGHBOYS WHO CAPTURED SCHILLINGEN, 10 MILES SOUTHEAST OF TRIER TODAY, WERE LED BY COLORFUL COL. "ROARING ROY" HAGERTY OF LUBBOCK, TEX., THE COMMANDER OF THE 301ST REGIMENT, WHO IS NEVER SEEN WITHOUT A CANE AND A CIGAR.

"PRISONERS TOLD US THEY HAD PILLBOXES AROUND THE TOWN AND ROADBLOCK AT EVERY ENTRANCE," HAGERTY SAID. "BUT WHEN WE ARRIVED WE FOUND NOBODY BUT 900 CIVILIANS, WHO WERE MORE OF A BOTHER THAN SOLDIERS WOULD HAVE BEEN."

HAGERTY, BORN IN NEBRASKA AND FOR SEVERAL YEARS RESIDENT IN INDIANA, ADDED "IT'S EASY TO KICK HELL OUT OF THE KRAUTS, BUT THIS AREA IS PLENTY ROUGH. THERE ARE MOUNTAINS AND WOODS ALL THE WAY TO THE RHINE."

LT.EDWIN ROSENZWEIG, 639 WEST 11TH ST., ERIE, PA., SAID HE WAS STANDING NEAR A TRUCK FROM WHICH TWO GERMAN PRISONERS WERE UNLOADING THE BODIES OF 23 SS SOLDIERS.

"THEY DROPPED EACH FACE DOWN ON THE GROUND, MUTTERING 'THOSE DIRTY ---'" ROSENZWEIG SAID.

THE BIG BATCH OF PRISONERS TAKEN TODAY INCLUDED AN ARTILLERY BATTALION COMMANDER, LT. GEORGE MINISTER OF ATHENS, OHIO, SAID.

PHILADELPHIA, MARCH 15-(AP)-CORBETT BISHOP, 38-YEAR-OLD NON-EATING, NON-WALKING FUGITIVE FROM A CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS' CAMP IN GERMFASK, MICHIGAN, IS ON HIS WAY BACK AFTER NEARLY SEVEN MONTHS.

BISHOP, WHO HAS BEEN FORCE-FED FOR NEARLY A MONTH AND WAS REFUSED TO WALK SINCE HE WAS TAKEN INTO CUSTODY FEB. 20 BY FBI AGENTS, WAS CARRIED ON A STRETCHER TO THE TRAIN TONIGHT BY POLICE.

HE CONTINUED TO VOICE HIS CONVICTIONS AGAINST WAR TODAY TO A GROUP OF ONLOOKERS.

"PEACE TREATIES, SUCH AS VERSAILLES OR DUMBARTON OAKS, ARE LIKE A CHILD TRYING TO CAPTURE LIGHT. WHEN HE OPENS HIS FIST, THE LIGHT IS GONE," HE SAID.

CORBETT FAILED TO RETURN TO THE CAMP AFTER A LEAVE.

WITH THE U.S. NINTH ARMY--FIRST ADD EUNSON'S GEN. PERSHING TANKS X X X WAR ENDS."

THERE WAS NO SIGN ON THIS FRONT DURING THE ROER TO THE RHINE OFFENSIVE OF ANY SUCH THING AS PERSHING TANKS EQUIPPED WITH 90-MILLIMETER GUNS, WHICH SUPPOSEDLY CAN PUNCH A HOLE IN THE ARMOR PLATE OF THE NAZI TIGERS.

"THERE JUST NEVER WAS ANY EXPLANATION," THE SAME OFFICER SAID, SHAKING HIS HEAD. "I'D GO TO A HOSPITAL VISITING MY MEN AND HEAR THEM TELL ME HOW THEY'D HIT GERMAN TANKS FIVE AND SIX OR MAYBE EIGHT TIMES AND WATCHED THE SHELLS BOUNCE RIGHT OFF. THEN THE TIGER WOULD GET THEM WITH ONE SHOT."

GERMAN TANKS SHOW A MARKED SUPERIORITY OVER OUR MODELS IN ARMOR AND FIREPOWER. MANY BELIEVE THE GERMANS TREAT THE STEEL IN THEIR ARMOR PLATE WITH A SECRET ALLOY--WHICH WE HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO MATCH. OLD-TIMERS IN ARMORED WARFARE CAN GIVE A LECTURE ILLUSTRATED WITH BRUISES TO PROVE WHY AN 88-MILLIMETER GUN CAN OUTSHOOT THE 75S AND 76S OUR OLD SHERMANS FIRE.

ANOTHER IMPORTANT FACTOR IS THE WIDTH OF THE TRACK. THE TIGER HAS A 24-INCH TRACK AND THE ROYAL TIGER A 36-INCH TRACK, WHILE OUR OLD SHERMANS ARE EQUIPPED WITH A TRACK 19 INCHES WIDE. THE NEW PERSHIN TRACK IS SAID TO BE WIDER, THEREBY GAINING MUCH GREATER STABILITY AND TURNING POWER.

THE SUSPENSION SYSTEM IN THE GERMAN TANK IS COPIED FROM THE RUSSIANS WITH MORE BOGEY WHEELS AND SHOCK ABSORBERS IN THE COUPLINGS. THE NEW AMERICAN TANKS HAVE ALL THESE FEATURES, ACCORDING TO REPORTS.

"GOING INTO MASS PRODUCTION IS A RATHER FLUID STATEMENT," ONE OLD TIMER SAID. "THAT COULD MEAN THEY'RE TOOLING THE FACTORIES.

"BUT SAY THEY ARE STARTING TO PRODUCE NOW. WELL, THERE'S TIME REQUIRED GETTING THE TANK TO THE DOCK AND THEN THERE'S THE TRIP ABOARD SHIP AND MORE TIME IN ORDNANCE OVER HERE. WEEKS TO BREAK IN CREWS. THEY COULD PUT OLD CREWS IN THE NEW TANKS AND TURN THEM LOOSE, BUT THAT WOULD BE STUPID. MAN, THIS WAR'S GOING TO BE OVER ONCE WE GET ROLLING ON THE OTHER SIDE OF THE RHINE."

IF ALL THE PERSHING TANKS SAID TO BE PRODUCED WERE IN ACTION NOW THEY WOULD NOT REPRESENT A HIGH PERCENTAGE OF THE TOTAL TANKS WHICH THE AMERICANS TRUNDLED ACROSS ONE ROER BRIDGE DURING THE FIRST FOUR DAYS OF THE RECENT OFFENSIVE.

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY, MARCH 14-(AP)-LT.-GEN.COURTNEY HODGES' MEN FOUGHT THROUGH THE HILLS RIMMING THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD TODAY TO WITHIN A MILE AND A QUARTER OF THE FRANKFURT-COLOGNE AUTOBAHN, AND EXPANDED THEIR BRIDGEHEAD.

IT WAS SLOW, TORTUOUS PROGRESS AGAINST STUBBORN ENEMY RESISTANCE.

THE ADVANCE REACHED TO THE OUTSKIRTS OF KALENBORN, NORTH OF HONNEF, AND TO THE EDGE OF NOTSCHEID, FOUR MILES NORTHEAST OF REMAGEN. THE TROOPS CLEARED ST.CATHARTNEN IN A 1,000-YARD ADVANCE, WHILE OTHER UNITS DROVE FORWARD 1,500 YARDS INTO THE HILLS BEYOND GINSTERHAHN.

ENGINEERS REPORTED THAT SINCE THE CAPTURE OF THE BRIDGE, ENEMY ARTILLERY HAD SCORED MANY HITS, BUT THAT THE SPAN WAS IN BETTER CONDITION NOW THAN WHEN IT WAS SEIZED BECAUSE OF THE WORK DONE TO REPAIR SOME OF THE DAMAGE BY AMERICAN AIR ATTACKS PRIOR TO ITS CAPTURE.

THERE WERE INDICATIONS THAT THE GERMANS WERE NOT COMMITTING ALL THEIR AVAILABLE STRENGTH AGAINST THE BRIDGEHEAD BECAUSE THEY WERE WARY OF POSSIBLE ALLIED CROSSINGS AT OTHER POINTS ALONG THE RHINE.

THERE IS NO REASON AT THIS STAGE TO EXPECT ANYTHING SENSATIONAL IN THE WAY OF GAINS BECAUSE OF THE TERRAIN AND THE NECESSITY OF BUILDING UP BRIDGEHEAD STRENGTH.

AIR RECONNAISSANCE REPORTED A LARGE CONCENTRATION OF ENEMY VEHICLES AND A HEAVY TRAFFIC LINE EAST OF COLOGNE. THE MEANING OF THIS MOVEMENT WAS NOT YET CLEAR, ALTHOUGH THERE ARE NO SIGNS YET THAT THE GERMANS ARE THROWING ANY GREAT NEW STRENGTH TOWARD THE BRIDGEHEAD AREA.

THE DAY WAS CLEAR ALL ALONG THE FRONT, AND MEDIUM BOMBERS RAN AN ALMOST CEASELESS SHUTTLE SERVICE OVER THE LINES, CHOPPING INTO TOWNS, SUPPLY ROUTES AND VEHICLES A FEW MILES TO THE REAR, AND THE SIEGFRIED FIGHTERBOMBERS RAVAGED TOWNS SO FIERCELY THAT BY LATE AFTERNOON PILOTS REPORTED SMOKE AND DUST SO THICK IT ALMOST WAS IMPOSSIBLE TO SPOT TARGETS IN A BELT 10 MILES DEEP ALL ALONG THE FRONT.

BITCHE, THE OLD MAGINOT LINE STRONGHOLD EAST OF SAARBRUECKEN, WAS REPORTED IN FLAMES. A BIG GASOLINE DUMP OR REFINERY ON THE EAST EDGE OF SAARBRUECKEN SENT BLACK SMOKE ROLLING THOUSANDS OF FEET HIGH.

WITH THE U.S. 36TH INFANTRY DIVISION, MARCH 12--(AP)--

THE WAR DEPARTMENT HASN'T SILENCED A LONG STANDING ARMY COMPLAINT BY ITS DECISION TO GRANT A VALOR BADGE TO FRONT-LINE MEDICS WHILE WITHOLDING THE $10 MONTHLY PAY BONUS WHICH GOES TO ENLISTED MEN WHO WEAR THE COMBAT INFANTRYMAN'S BADGE.

DOUGHBOYS AND MEDICS OF THE 36TH DIVISION SEEM AGREED THAT THE BADGE IS A STEP IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION BUT WERE UNIMPRESSED BY SECRETARY OF WAR STIMSON'S REASONING -- AS REPORTED IN THE STARS AND STRIPES -- THAT GRANTING EXTRA PAY FOR DUTY UNDER FIRE WOULD COMPROMISE THE MEDICS STATUS AS NONCOMBATANTS UNDER THE GENEVA

CONVENTION.

PFC. ALBERT DALLEGRO, A RIFLEMAN FROM 222 PARKER ST., NEWARK, N.J., AND HIS BUDDY PVT. ADAM ALDI, FONDA, N.Y., COULDN'T EVEN SEE ANY ROOM FOR ARGUMENT. DALLEGRO DECLARED: "THEY DO AS MUCH AS ME AND THEY HAVEN'T EVEN GOT A RIFLE." ALDI ASSERTED: "OF COURSE THE MEDICS SHOULD GET IT. THEY CERTAINLY DO AS MUCH AS WE DO."

MAR 16 1945

ANOTHER DOUGHFOOT, WHO DECLINED TO GIVE HIS NAME, SAID THAT IF THE GOVERNMENT COULDN'T AFFORD THE MONEY HE'D WILLINGLY HA HIS EXTRA TEN DOLLARS GIVEN TO THE PLATOON AID MAN "BECAUSE HE DESERVES IT MORE THAN I DO."

THE NEAREST THING TO ENTHUSIASM ENCOUNTERED AMONG MEDICS THEMSELVES WAS PFC. JAMES PARKER, OF PARIS, TEXAS, A LITTER BEARER SINCE THE AFRICAN CAMPAIGN AND HOLDER OF A BRONZE STAR FOR BRAVERY, WHO SAID, "I DON'T CARE TOO MUCH ABOUT NOT GETTING THE EXTRA PAY, ALTHOUGH I THINK WE SHOULD GET IT. AT LEAST THE BADGE WILL MAKE CLEAR THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN WHO CARRIES A LITTER AND WHO CARRIES A BED PAN."

MAR 16 1945

PFC. JOE ERSHUN, VETERAN LITTER BEARER WHOSE HOME IS AT 579 61ST STREET, BROOKLYN, N.Y., ALSO WELCOMED THE BADGE, SAYING, "I'M GLAD TO SEE THE FRONTLINE MEDIC GET A BADGE TO MARK HIM AS A COMBAT SOLDIER, BUT I DON'T SEE WHY THEY DIDN'T GIVE US A PAY BOOST LIKE THE INFANTRY GETS. I CAN'T SEE HOW IT ENDANGERS OUR NONCOMBATANT STATUS. AFTER ALL, PARATROOP MEDICS GET JUMP PAY, SO WHY SHOULDN'T WE GET HAZARD PAY?"

MAR 16 1945

CORPORAL LLOYD HARRISON, BRADSHAW, W.VA. "COULDN'T SEE WHY THEY THINK WE SHOULDN'T GET EXTRA DOUGH," AND STAFF SERGEANT MICHAEL KENNELLY, OF 2816 ARMINGO AVE., PHILADELPHIA, A FORMER LITTER MAN AND AID MAN, COMMENTED TARTLY, "I THINK THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S EXCUSE FOR NOT GIVING US THE DOUGH IS BALONEY."

MEDICAL OFFICERS-- WHO WOULDN'T SHARE IN THE PAY BONUS EVEN ON FRONT LINE DUTY-- REACTED MUCH AS DID THE MEN. DIVISION SURGEON LT. COL. CLARENCE BREWSTER, OF FORT WORTH, TEXAS, REASONING, "THE VALOR BADGE IS A STEP FORWARD, BUT IT DOESN'T GO FAR ENOUGH. THEY SHOULD GET EXTRA COMPENSATION."

MAR 16 1945

LEIUTENANT-COLONEL JOE PATE, OF PADUCAH, TEXAS, WHO HAS BEEN A REGIMENTAL SURGEON ALL THROUGH AN ITALIAN WINTER CAMPAIGN,

3024-23941

SAID, "IT WOULD SEEM THAT AT THE TIME THE INFANTRYMEN GOT THEIR BADGE, THE WAR DEPARTMENT DIDN'T EVEN KNOW THERE WERE MEDICS UP XHER THERE. NOW THEY HAVE GIVEN THEM THE BADGE MINUS THE EXTRA PAY. IT SOUNDS LIKE APPEASEMENT TO ME."

MAR 16 1945

REFLECTING A WIDELY HELD OPINION THAT THE WAR DEPARTMENT IS BOGGLING UNNECESSARILY AT THE TERM "COMBAT PAY" AND THAT AN INCREASE COULD BE CALLED SOMETHING ELSE, LIEUT. ALFRED PEREZ, ASSISTANT BATTALION SURGEON FROM SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS, SAID, "INFANTRY MENMEN ARE BEING PAID FOR THE DANGER AND HARDSHIPS THEY GO THROUGH NOT BECAUSE THEY CARRY GUNS. THE MEDICS GO THROUGH THE SAME DANGERS. THE WAR DEPARTMENT'S REASON FOR NOT GRANTING EXTRA PAY DOESN'T MAKE SENSE."

CASSINO, ITALY, MARCH 15-(AP)-HIGH ITALIAN OFFICIALS AND DIPLOMATS OF THE UNITED NATIONS PICKED THEIR WAY THROUGH THE RUBBLE OF CASSINO TODAY, JUST ONE YEAR AFTER AN AVALANCHE OF AMERICAN BOMBS WRECKED THE TOWN AND MADE IT A GHASTLY MONUMENT TO MODERN WAR.

THE OFFICIALS HAD COME TO SEE THE FIRST OF A SERIES OF HOUSING UNI' OPENED AT THE EDGE OF THE TOWN.

UNITED STATES AMBASSADOR ALEXANDER C.KIRK, STANDING ON A PLATFORM WHERE MACHINEGUN FIRE FROM THE GERMAN-HELD CONTINENTAL HOTEL ONCE RAKED ALLIED POSITIONS, WAS FLANKED BY THE REPRESENTATIVES OF RUSSIA, BRITAIN AND FRANCE AND PREMIER IVANOE BONOMI AND MEMBERS OF HIS CABINET.

KIRK SAID ITALY WAS BUILDING MORE THAN HOMES FOR HER PEOPLE AND "THROUGH PARTICIPATION IN THE CONSTRUCTION OF A SOUND POLITICAL AND SOCIAL ORDER FOR EUROPE WILL AID IN ACHIEVING THAT CONTENTMENT AMONG PEOPLES WHICH IS THE ONLY BASIS FOR UNIVERSAL PEACE AND LASTING PROOF THAT OUR DEAD HAVE NOT DIED IN VAIN."

CASSINO HAS NOT CHANGED MUCH IN A YEAR. THERE IS THE SAME SUGGESTION OF DIGNIFIED DESOLATION ABOUT THE TOWN WITH ITS GREAT MOUNDS OF WHITE RUBBLE, ITS STARK AND JAGGED WALLS POINTING TO THE SKY.

MINES STILL EXPLODE AND CHILDREN STILL FIND HAND GRENADES. MANY HAVE BEEN INJURED.

IN HIS ADDRESS BONOMI SAID CASSINO WAS "A SYMBOL OF THE DEVASTATION CAUSED BY WAR" AND THAT IT WAS APPROPRIATE ALLIED AND ITALIAN REPRESENTATIVES SHOULD GATHER HERE "TO CELEBRATE ITALY'S SPIRITUAL REBIRTH."

THE FIRST OF 120 TWO, THREE AND FOUR ROOM ONE-STORY APARTMENT-TYPE DWELLINGS WAS TURNED OVER TO FORMER RESIDENTS OF CASSINO TODAY AND MORE ARE TO BE COMPLETED WEEKLY.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, GUAM, MARCH 16-(FRIDAY)-(AP)-FIVE OR SIX B-29S HAVE MADE EMERGENCY LANDINGS ON IWO JIMA SINCE MARINES CAPTURED MOTOYAMA AIRFIELD ON THAT ISLAND'S SOUTHERN END.

ALL HAVE BEEN ABLE TO TAKE OFF AGAIN FOR THEIR MARIANAS BASES BECAUSE OF THE BOMBER COMMAND'S EMERGENCY REPAIR AND MAINTENANCE CREW WHICH HAS BEEN STATIONED ON IWO SINCE MARCH 5--14 DAYS AFTER D-DAY. CREW MEMBERS LIVED IN SHELL HOLES OR SLEPT INSIDE THE BIG PLANES FOR WARMTH.

21ST HQ, GUAM -- FIRST ADD WAITE'S IWO B-29 REPAIRS (TOP ON AYE) X X X FOR WARMTH.

MORE THAN ONE B-29 ALREADY IS BACK BOMBING JAPAN BECAUSE MARINES CAPTURED IWO AIRFIELDS AND BECAUSE THIS EMERGENCY REPAIR CREW IS ON THE JOB.

WORKING ON THE STAFF ARE SGT.JOHN CIMILUCA, (432 UNION ST.) CARLSTADT,N.J., SGT.R.J.CHURCH (7 SHADYWOOD LANE) BATTLE CREEK,MICH.; SGT.S.H.OLDFIELD, ABERDEEN,IOWA; AND SGT. H.D.BOMDENMOYER, (ROUTE 1) HARTINGTON,NEBR.

ONLY 1.7 PER CENT OF ALL MARIANAS-BASED B-29S WERE GROUNDED DUE TO LACK OF PARTS ON MARCH 14. THIS IA A PHENOMENAL FIGURE COMPARED WITH 5 PER CENT WHICH IS UNDERSTOOD HERE TO BE THE LOWEST AVERAGE EVER ATTAINED IN THE CONTINENTAL UNITED STATES.

THE 1.7 FIGURE IS BELIEVED BY OFFICERS OF GUAM-BASED B-29 UNITS TO BE A WORLD RECORD. EVEN THAT SMALL PERCENTAGE WAS READY TO FLY AGAIN ON MARCH 15.

COL.ROBERT F.CULLWELL (655 N.MERTON ST.) MEMPHIS,TENN., ASSISTANT CHIEF OF STAFF FOR SUPPLY AND MAINTENANCE FOR THE BOMBER COMMAND, EXPLAINED THAT THE SUPPLY SYSTEM IS ORGANIZED ACCORDING "TO STANDARDS OF BIG BUSINESS." HE ADDED, HOWEVER, "WE CAN'T POSSIBLY EXPECT TO HAVE A STOCK OF SPARES" ON ALL OF A SUPERFORT'S 300,000 (CORRECT) PARTS.

HE CREDITED INGENUITY OF PARTS SPECIALISTS IN MAKING SUBSTITUTES WITH ESTABLISHING "THIS STARTLING RECORD."

ALTHOUGH SUPPLY LINES STRETCH THOUSANDS OF MILES FROM AMERICAN FACTORIES TO MARIANAS BASES, IT NOW IS POSSIBLE TO MAKE A REQUEST AND HAVE THE FINISHED PART HERE AND INSTALLED WITHIN SIX DAYS, CULWELL SAID.

THE NICKNAME GIVEN BY SUPERFORT CREWS TO THEIR PARTS SPECIALISTS IS "MINUTE MEN."

IN TWO WITH A TOMMYGUN.

HE'S SGT.CLIFFORD G.HARMON OF HAGERMAN, IDAHO.

HIS REGIMENTAL COMMANDER WHO WITNESSED THE FLAMETHROWER FEAT SAID "IT WAS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL JOB I HAVE EVER SEEN."

THE WHOLE THING OCCURRED ON A HILL DURING MOUNTAIN FIGHTING NEAR DIDDIG ON BALETE PASS ROAD.

THE BOYS WERE DETERMINED TO RECOVER THE BODY OF A SERGEANT FOR WHOM THE HILL WAS NAMED.

MOVING UP UNDER A HEAVY ARTILLERY BARRAGE, HARMON'S OUTFIT STARTED DIGGING THE JAPANESE OUT OF THE ROCKY CRAGS. "THE NIPS WEREN'T FIRING MUCH BUT WERE TOSSING A LOT OF GRENADES," HARMON SAID. "SO FOR ONE MORNING WE HUDDLED IN THE HOLES AND PLAYED BALL WITH THE NIPS USING GRENADES AS BALLS.

"THE NEXT MORNING AFTER WE'D TAKEN THE HIGH GROUND WE STARTED WORKING DOWN THE REVERSE SLOPE. THE JAPS HAD BURROWED IN UNDER THE HUGE BOULDERS AND BUILT SOME PRETTY BIG CAVES.

"SUDDENLY ONE OF OUR MACHINEGUNNERS SPOTTED THIS BIG HOLE UNDER A PILE OF ROCKS. HE CALLED TO ME SO I GOT A FLAMETHROWER AND HAD TO CLIMB ALMOST OVER THE TOP OF THE HOLE TO GET IN POSITION.

"FROM ABOUT 15 FEET I SENT THE FIRST SQUIRT INTO THE MOUTH OF THE HOLE AND THEN QUICKLY MOVED OVER WHERE I COULD FIRE DIRECTLY INSIDE. THOSE NIPS REALLY CAME OUT A-RUNNING.

"THEY TRIED TO SCRAMBLE OUT, TWO OR THREE AT A TIME. I'D LET THEM GET HALFWAY OUT AND THEN LET THEM HAVE IT RIGHT IN THE FACE. THEY STACKED UP LIKE CORDWOOD AT THE MOUTH OF THE HOLE. AS FAST AS THEY'D FALL OTHERS TRIED TO CLIMB OVER THEM. THE PILE GOT SO HIGH THAT THE LAST ONES DIED ON TOP OF THE PILE AND SLID BACK INSIDE.

"ONLY TWO ACTUALLY GOT OUT OF THE CAVE. I HIT THEM AS THEY WERE RUNNING AND IT JUST LOOKED LIKE THEY SPROUTED WINGS. THEY FLEW FOR A FLAMING FIFTY YARDS DOWN HILL TO A CLEARING WITH SOME BROKEN TREES. WHEN THAT STREAM HITS THEM WITH 1800 POUNDS PRESSURE PER SQUARE INCH SOMETHING HAS GOT TO FLY."

MAR 16 1945

A141KX
BY THE TIME THE LAST OF THE 26 NIPS WERE KILLED, HARMON'S FLAMETHROWERS WERE EMPTY. AS HE STARTED WORKING HIS WAY BACK UP THE HILL TO PICK UP A TOMMYGUN HE SAW A JAPANESE SOLDIER POP OUT OF A HOLE RIGHT BESIDE HIM.

"THERE WAS NOT MUCH I COULD DO SO I SWUNG MY FLAMETHROWER AROUND AND CLUBBED THIS GUY RIGHT IN THE FACE. HE FELL TO THE GROUND. I NEVER STOPPED SWINGING. I STARTED BEATING HIM OVER THE BACK OF THE HEAD UNTIL HE WAS DEAD."

ACCOUNTING FOR THOSE 27 JAPANESE TOOK LESS THAN 10 MINUTES. BEFORE THE MORNING WAS OVER HARMON KILLED ONE MORE WITH A GRENADE AND ANOTHER WITH A TOMMYGUN.

"WE DISCOVERED ONE OF THOSE NIPS IN THE CAVE WAS A JAP BATTALION COMMANDER. HE AND ALL THOSE OTHER NIPS WHO FIRED ARE LITTLE ENOUGH REVENGE FOR OUR SERGEANT. BUT THEY HELP."

(ADVANCE)...AN EAST COAST PORT, MARCH 15-(AP)-FOUR AMERICAN DESTROYER ESCORTS SANK A GERMAN SUBMARINE IN MID-ATLANTIC RECENTLY WITH A SERIES OF DEPTH CHARGE ATTACKS, VICE ADMIRAL JONAS INGRAM, COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF OF THE U.S. ATLANTIC FLEET, ANNOUNCED TODAY.

THE ESCORTS--OTTER, HUBBARD, VARIAN AND Hayter--BLASTED THE RAIDER WITH THUNDEROUS EXPLOSIONS, BRINGING PARTS OF BODIES AND BLOOD-STAINED DEBRIS TO THE SURFACE. THERE WERE NO GERMAN SURVIVORS. THE DATE AND LOCATION OF THE ATTACK WERE NOT GIVEN.

COMMANDER JACK F. BOWLING, WASHINGTON, D.C. (4808 NEBRASKA AVENUE, N.W.) REPORTED THE ESCORTS ATTACKED LIKE "STUBBORN TERRIERS" ALTHOUGH SHIPS IN THE GROUP UNDER HIS COMMAND EXPECTED THE SUB WOULD SINK ONE OR TWO OF THE TINY ATTACKERS.

WATER BOILING UP IN THE ATTACK AREA INDICATED THE U-BOAT WAS BLOWING HER TANKS IN AN ATTEMPT TO REACH THE SURFACE.

"HE BLEW THE WATER OUT OF HIS TANKS AND WE BLEW IT RIGHT BACK IN AGAIN," SAID BOWLING.

A BLACK-BALL-LIKE OBJECT POPPED TO THE SURFACE AND MORE DEPTH CHARGES THUNDERED INTO THE WATER. OIL AND DEBRIS BEGAN TO APPEAR AND MOMENTS LATER A TREMENDOUS UNDERWATER EXPLOSION INDICATED THAT THE MAIN PRESSURE HULL OF THE SUB HAD COLLAPSED.

SKIPPERS OF THE ESCORTS WERE:

OTTER: LT. COMDR. J.M. IRVINE, 2421 RUSSELL AVENUE, SOUTH, MINNEAPOLIS; HUBBARD: COMDR. L.C. MADLEY, 57 MEADOW LANE, GROSSE POINTE FARMS, MICH., A NAVAL ACADEMY GRADUATE AND FORMER SALES ENGINEER VARIAN: LT. COMDR. L.A. IN AN ADDRESS FOR DELIVERY ON "AMERICA'S TOWN MEETING OF THE AIR" BROADCAST OVER THE BLUE NETWORK (8:30-9:30 P.M. EWT), THE FORMER COMMANDER OF THE U.S. ASIATIC FLEET PROPOSED "PUNISHMENT OF ALL GUILTY OF WAR CRIMES AND ATROCITIES SINCE JULY 1937;" USE OF JAPANESE LABOR "TO REBUILD DEVASTATED AREAS OUTSIDE OF JAPAN" AND ELIMINATION OF SECRET POLITICAL POLICE AND ALL SECRET SOCIETIES.

IN ADDITION TO DESTRUCTION OF NIPPON'S ARMED FORCES AND WAR PRODUCTION FACILITIES, YARNELL SUGGESTED BANS ON JAPANESE OPERATION OF AIRCRAFT INDUSTRY OR COMMERCIAL AIR-LINES AND ON OWNERSHIP OF MERCHANT SHIPS OF OVER 5,000 GROSS TONS.

AMONG THE POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC CONDITIONS WHICH YARNELL SAID "SHOULD BE IMPOSED" WERE ABOLITION OF THE IMPERIAL DYNASTY, AND CURB ON HEAVY INDUSTRY.

HE ARRANGED TO LEAVE FOR WASHINGTON THIS MORNING.
ROMULO TOLD NEWSMEN THAT "THE RAPE OF NANKING WAS A PICNIC COMPARED WITH WHAT THE JAPS DID TO MANILA."
HE SAID HE CARRIED DOCUMENTARY EVIDENCE THAT THE JAPANESE IMPERIAL MARINES IN MANILA HAD DIRECT ORDERS FROM TOKYO TO KILL AS MANY FILIPINOS AS THEY COULD.

MRS.VIRGINIA ROMULO, SMALL AND QUIET, NODDED VIGOROUSLY AS THE GENERAL SAID THE FILIPINO SOLDIER MUST BE GIVEN THE PRIVILEGE OF PARTICIPATING IN THE INVASION OF JAPAN, "FOR I THINK WE HAVE EARNED THAT RIGHT."
NINETEEN-YEAR-OLD CARLOS ROMULO JR., PROUD AT HAVING KILLED SEVEN JAPANESE DURING HIS YEARS AS A GUERRILLA, SPOKE UP:
"THE AMBITION OF EVERY GUERRILLA IS TO BE A MILITARY POLICEMAN IN JAPAN SO WE CAN DOUBLE AND TRIPLE WHAT THE JAPS HAVE DONE TO US."
MRS.ROMULO AND THREE OF THE YOUNGEST BOYS WERE PICKED UP ONE AT A TIME FROM A CENTRAL LUZON PROVINCE BY AMERICAN FLIERS IN TINY CUB PLANES. CARLOS LEFT HIS GUERRILLA BAND TO JOIN THE FAMILY.
ROMULO SAID THAT INSIDE MANILA'S INTRAMUROS (WALLED CITY) THE JAPANESE HERDED VIRTUALLY ALL THE MEN INTO FORT SANTIAGO, DOUSED THE PLACE WITH KEROSENE AND SET IT ABLAZE.
"IN THAT FORT 1,700 CIVILIANS DIED," HE DECLARED, "ONLY THREE ESCAPED, THROUGH MACHINEGUN FIRE, TO DESCRIBE THE HORROR.

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 15-(AP)-)-JAPANESE ADMISSION OF HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE AND DAMAGE FROM RECENT HEAVY AMERICAN SUPERFORTRESS INCENDIARY RAIDS CAME FROM TOKYO RADIO TODAY, WITH REPORTS OF FORMATION OF A CIVILIAN ARMY TO COUNTER A POSSIBLE INVASION AND ORDERS FOR CIVILIAN EVACUATION OF THE NATION'S FIVE BIGGEST CITIES.

THE TOKYO NEWSPAPER ASAHI WAS QUOTED AS SAYING THE NUMBER OF DEATHS IN THE TOKYO, NAGOYA AND OSAKA RAIDS OF THE PAST WEEK "COULD NEVER BE CALLED SMALL."

MAR 16 1945

DOMEI, JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY, SAID IN ANOTHER FCC RECORDED BROADCAST THAT DAMAGE CAUSED BY THE RAIDS "HAS BEEN CONSIDERABLE."

THE ORGANIZATION OF "CIVILIAN SPECIAL ATTACK CORPS" FOR FIGHTING ON HOME SHORES HAS BEEN COMPLETED IN SOME DISTRICTS IN THE WAKE OF WARNINGS BY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS THAT AN INVASION WAS EXPECTED.

WHILE THE ENEMY RADIO SAID THAT U.S.ANNOUNCEMENTS OF 300-SUPERFORT BLASTS AT TOKYO, NAGOYA AND OSAKA WITHIN THE LAST WEEK WERE JUST "PROPAGANDA," AND THAT THE NUMBER NEVER EXCEEDED 130, IT WAS NEVERTHELESS REPORTED THESE CITIES AND ALSO YOKOHAMA AND KOBE WOULD BE CLEARED OF ALL CITIZENS EXCEPT WAR WORKERS.

THE EVACUATION DECISION WAS REACHED THURSDAY BY PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO'S CABINET, SAID A BERLIN INTEROCEAN DISPATCH BROADCAST HEARD IN LONDON. THE MOVE OF POPULATIONS WILL BE ON A VOLUNTARY BASIS AT FIRST, BUT "SPECIAL MEASURES WILL BE TAKEN" IF THE PEOPLE FAILED TO RESPOND, INTEROCEAN REPORTED.

THE GOVERNMENT ALSO ISSUED FURTHER ORDERS FOR PROMINENT JAPANESE NEWSPAPERS TO COMBINE PUBLICATION OPERATIONS OUTSIDE TOKYO IN SINGLE PLANTS. PREVIOUSLY IT HAD ORDERED SIX TOKYO PAPERS TO USE ONE PLANT JOINTLY BECAUSE OF AIR RAIDS AND THE WAR SITUATION.

PARTICIPATION IN THE BRITISH FLEET IN AMERICAN OPERATIONS AGAINST MINDANAO ISLAND, PHILIPPINES, WAS CLAIMED IN AN UNCONFIRMED ENEMY BROADCAST.

DIPLOMACY.

HE TOLD HIS NEWS CONFERENCE TUESDAY THAT INFORMATION ARRANGEMENTS WILL BE SIMILAR TO THOSE AT THE CONFERENCE JUST CONCLUDED IN MEXICO CITY.

OPEN MEETINGS AT SAN FRANCISCO WILL MARK A REVERSAL OF THE POLICY OF BARRING REPORTERS AND ISOLATING DELEGATES LAID DOWN FOR THE FIRST UNITED NATIONS MEETING--THE FOOD CONFERENCE AT HOT SPRINGS,VA., IN 1942. SOLDIERS WITH FIXED BAYONETS KEPT REPORTERS AWAY FROM THE CONFEREES.

IN MEXICO CITY, I LIVED IN THE SAME HOTEL WITH THE UNITED STATES DELEGATION AND SECRETARY OF STATE STETTINIUS. I ATTENDED COMMITTEE MEETINGS, INCLUDING THE DRAMATIC SESSION WHERE THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC WAS BROUGHT OUT.

THE OPEN POLICY IN MEXICO EVEN WENT BEHIND THE FEW CLOSED DOORS WHICH EXCLUDED THE PRESS FROM MEETINGS OF THE CHIEFS OF DELEGATIONS AND INFORMAL TALKS AMONG DIPLOMATS.

EVERY DAY, ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF STATE NELSON ROCKEFELLER HELD A BACKGROUND CONFERENCE WHERE HE SPOKE FREELY. HE HAD HIS ADVISERS THERE TO FILL THE PRESS IN ON DEVELOPMENTS.

WHEN THE ARGENTINE PROBLEM WAS HOTTEST, ADOLF BERLE, U.S. AMBASSADOR TO BRAZIL, AND AVRA WARREN, HEAD OF THE STATE DEPARTMENT'S AMERICAN REPUBLICS OFFICE, GAVE INSIDE REPORTS ON LAST MINUTE DEVELOPMENTS. WARREN AND BERLE WERE THE AMERICANS MOST DIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR WRITING THE DECLARATION ON ARGENTINA, WHICH LAID DOWN A JOINT POLICY TOWARDS BUENOS AIRES.

PERHAPS THE MOST IMPORTANT CHANGE IN MEXICO WAS THE POLICY OF LETTING THE PRESS IN ON DECISIONS AS THEY WERE BEING FORMED, SO THAT COMPROMISES WERE OBVIOUS AND SECRET DEALS RULED OUT.

BEST EXAMPLE WAS THE ACT OF CHAPULTEPEC. IT GREW FROM PROPOSALS BY COLOMBIA,URUGUAY AND BRAZIL WHICH THE PRESS SAW AS SOON AS THEY CAME BEFORE THE CONFERENCE. THEN, IN A SMALL COMMITTEE ROOM JAMMED WITH MORE REPORTERS THAN DELEGATES, THE COMBINATION OF THE THREE PLANS WAS READ OPENLY.

WHEN A COMPROMISE WAS REACHED ON THE HEMISPHERE SECURITY GUARANTEES, IT ALSO WAS MADE PUBLIC IMMEDIATELY--A SHARP CONTRAST TO THE DUMBARTON OAKS METHOD OF SAVING EVERY IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT UNTIL THE MEETING ENDED.

MICHAEL J.MCDERMOTT, STATE DEPARTMENT PRESS CHIEF, GOT OUT TEXTS AS SOON AS THEY HAD BEEN DECIDED UPON.

THE OPEN MEETINGS AND ABSENCE OF GUARDS TO KEEP NEWSMEN AWAY FROM OFFICIALS DAY OR NIGHT MADE FOR AN ENTIRELY DIFFERENT ATMOSPHERE IN MEXICO.

I LUNCHED WITH DELEGATES, CHATTED WITH THEM IN CORRIDORS AND FOUND THEM WILLING TO TALK FREELY. EVEN IF YOU COULD FIND A DELEGATE DURING THE DUMBARTON OAKS CONVERSATIONS LAST YEAR IN WASHINGTON, THE LID WAS ON SO TIGHTLY HE WAS AFRAID TO MENTION THE STATE OF THE WEATHER. THE PRESS WASN'T ALLOWED INSIDE THE WALLED ESTATE IN GEORGETOWN EXCEPT ON FORMAL OCCASIONS WHERE REAL DECISIONS WERE KEPT SECRET.

FIRST ARMY UNITS CUT BIG HIGHWAY LEADING TO RUHR

Patton's Troops Crack Enemy Defenses 20 Miles Beyond Moselle.

CAPTURE BITCHE

First Army Deepens Rhine Bridgehead to Seven Miles.

PARIS, March 16.—(AP) The U. S. First army slashed across the great Ruhr superhighway at two points east of the Rhine today, and southward a sensational breakthrough by the Third army 20 miles beyond the Moselle river set up two German armies for imminent annihilation.

These two seasoned, hard-hitting armies were dealing tremendous body blows to the reeling armies of the Reich, while the Seventh army was crashing through into Germany from the south.

The Moselle-Rhine triangle—80 miles from top to bottom and 85 miles wide at the base—was collapsing under the terrific impact of the Third and Seventh armies and it appeared that soon not a German would stand on the soil of the Reich west of the Rhine.

Rhine Bridgehead Deepened

The First army, carrying a fight to the enemy fraught with the most immediate peril, deepened the Rhine bridgehead to seven miles, swept a mile north to within three miles of the open plains of Germany, and smashed the first big tank-led counterblow.

The Third army broke loose along the Rhine valley on a 14-mile rampage that cleaved through the heart of the enemy defenses between the Rhine and the Moselle 60 to 70 miles north of the Germans fighting in defense of the Saar basin and the Bavarian palatinate.

The Seventh army was hammering at the underside of this huge bulge in a co-ordinated offensive along a 50-mile front that gained up to four miles and overwhelmed the 200-year-old French fortress of Bitche, never before taken by storm.

The Germans were falling back into the Siegfried line, which had been reached at some points, and were deluging with artillery shells Seventh army troops who had fought up to the western outskirts of the Saar's capital of Saarbruecken, 23 miles west of Bitche.

Planes Support Troops

By a quirk of nature, the only flyable weather on the Western front was where the three American armies were attacking, and 2,500 tactical warplanes ripped into the enemy's defenses, transport and supply lines.

Airmen running interference for the Third army's flying tank columns reported wild confusion in the triangle. One pilot said refugees and fleeing convoys were ensnarled and there was "fire and smoke all over the place."

Onrushing tankmen found many undefended roadblocks in their southeastern smash, testifying to the surprise achieved by the Third army's sudden crossing of the broad Moselle with tanks.

Gen. Eisenhower dealt this powerful three-army blow as the Germans renewed predictions that three other armies—the Canadian First, the British Second and the U. S. Ninth—were about to storm across the Rhine into the north Germain plain.

These accounts said British and American artillery were searing German east bank positions with barrages of mounting intensity.

German attempts to hold back the American tide on a 13-mile front east of the Rhine was struck a heavy blow by the cutting of the six-lane Rhine-Ruhr military highway, over which they had been moving troops from one sector of the bridgehead to the other.

The 78th infantry division fought astride the Autobahn at 11:14 a. m. near Bruengsberg, eight miles northeast of the bridge at Remagen.

Later in the afternoon another unit fought house-to-house through Hoevel, less than a mile south of Bruengsberg, and likewise battled across the major road link.

While the Germans struggled to prevent a breakthrough to the north German plain here, other American forces to the west along the Rhine smashed a mile north into Koenigswinter, where only three miles of hills separated them from the plains leading to inner Germany.

To the south, the Ninth infantry division was locked in the most savage fighting of the bridgehead at the key stronghold of Strodt, six miles east of the Remagen bridge.

In this area the Germans had built up their heaviest defenses and it was from here that they struck with the biggest tank force yet employed in the struggle.

The Germans threw in 24 tanks against the Ninth, whose blazing guns and bazookas knocked out five of them, forcing the rest to break off the battle and withdraw.

Another attack was thrown in from a wooded section, about four miles north, near where American infantry cut the highway, and the Germans were thrown back after a furious melee.

Thirteen miles south on the Rhine embattled Koenigswinter, the First army entered Hoenningen unopposed after seizing surrounding hills. Civilians broke out white flags as their Nazi soldiers pulled out.

The greatest eastward penetration was to the Wied river, seven miles east of the bridge, where the Americans overran Steinshardt and entered Reiffert, seven miles southeast of the bridge.

The Germans were desperately building up forces in an attempt to smash Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, bridgehead forces, which the enemy said were massed in the greatest strength ever seen in so small a sector on the Western front.

Since seizing the bridgehead, the First army had captured 50 towns and villages east of the Rhine. In most of the localities, the civilians were pleading with the German army not to make their homes a battle ground.

The Germans sped an exodus from the Saar and the neighboring palatinate, last Reich holdings west of the Rhine, as Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army struck with all the speed and fury that fashioned the sensational breakthrough to the Rhine a fortnight ago.

It was the Fourth Armored division that was on the loose, lashing out 12 miles or more beyond the six-mile deep Moselle bridgehead south of Coblenz in another of its startling breakthroughs.

It last was reported racing southeastward in two columns. One was beyond Simmern, 18 miles south of the bridgehead, less than 60 miles north of where the Seventh Army is attacking at Saarbruecken. The other column was only five miles west of the Rhine, possibly in the same area.

The Fourth was traveling under the same secrecy with which it broke through to the Rhine, and might be well beyond here.

It was more than half way across the Hunsrueck plateau, the only natural barrier before the tanks and the Rhine plain around Bingen, which is 32 miles southeast of bypassed Coblenz.

At Simmern, the Third Army was 18 miles both from Bingen and the large road and railway network at Kreuznach, which controls most of the escape roads out of the Saarland.

Pilots Report Enemy In Flight

Pilots reported the Germans already were in flight over these imperiled roads toward Mainz and Frankfurt.

Patton had thrown at least three divisions into this push, the Fifth and 90th Infantry Divisions which made the original Moselle crossings, besides the Fourth Armored, whose Rhine breakthrough trapped much of the German Seventh Army in the Eifel mountains.

Now the broken German Seventh Army, and the German First Army opposing the U. S. Seventh Army, were faced with another gigantic encirclement that would dwarf that achieved in the Eifels.

The Fifth and 90th Divisions were deepening the flanks of the Moselle bridgehead by three miles or more, while other troops forced two more crossings of the river almost unopposed.

These crossings were east and west of the original bridgenead, and the easternmost was six miles south of Coblenz.

Patton Keeps Up Pressure

While Patton poured in the power here, he kept up the pressure far to the west, where other divisions south of Trier by gains of five miles were threatening to burst into the Saar industrial basin from the northwest.

The Germans had the alternative of withdrawing across the Rhine or being pinned in their Siegfried line in the Saarland and Palatinate, the last stretch where these once imposing fortifications still are manned by enemy troops.

German resistance along the northern reaches of the Moselle-Rhine triangle was weakening quickly.

The German First Army, glancing nervously over its shoulder to see what Patton was doing, battled fiercely against the offensive which Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army opened Thursday along a 50-mile front from the Saarbruecken area to the Rhine.

At least seven American divisions and a number of French units were attacking and had reached or were nearing the Siegfried line.

On the west end of the front, the Americans cleaned up the south bank of the Saar river right to the western outskirts of Saarbruecken itself.

Several Towns Captured

The town of Fechingen, three miles southeast of Saarbruecken, fell, as did Ensheim, just south of the Siegfried line two miles farther east.

Bitche, a French Maginot line fortress whose guns and battlements still were intact, fell to an encircling attack which forced the Germans to withdraw

The Americans cutting around the city captured Freudenberg, a half mile to the northwest. Other forces moved two miles north and took Schorbach, while the lines also closed on Bitche from the south.

Some of the heaviest fighting raged near the eastern end of the front at Haguenau, where the Americans were dislodging the Germans from their last toehold in that strategic town.

Between Bitche and Haguenau, the biggest advance of he whole front were scored by the 42nd Division, which slugged more than two and a half miles northward through the Hardt mountains.

The French attached to the Seventh Army were assigned the sector closest to the Rhine, and they were steadily pushing the Germans from the northeastern corner of Alsace.

Nowhere was the Seveth Army more than 15 miles from the Siegfried line, which for the second day was being scourged mercilessly by swarming fighterbombers.

PATTON'S MEN SWEEP 18 MILES; PATCH ROLLS ON

Germans Seen Preparing for Major Counter-attack on Rhine Bridgehead.

DRIVES SQUEEZE SAAR NAZIS

Seventh Advances on Front of 50 Miles as Third's Troops Make Sensational Gain.

Paris, March 16 (A. P.).—The First Army cut the Ruhr-Frankfurt superhighway east of the Rhine in two places today and extended the bridgehead to at least thirteen miles in length.

The Americans beat off a German tank attack in heavy fighting four miles northeast of Linz, in the area where the bridgehead is six and a half miles wide. They fought into Koenigswinter in two-mile gains within three miles of open tank country leading to the great Ruhr basin.

"The Germans are building up for a major counter-attack," Associated Press correspondent Don Whitehead reported from the bridgehead.

To the south, the famous 4th Armored Division broke loose again in a swift, unchecked 12-mile dash southeast of Coblenz.

Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d Army on the north and the 7th Army's new offensive on the south were squeezing the Germans from the rich Saarland and Palatinate and developing every prospect of another great trap—like that which yielded more than 40,000 prisoners in the Eifels.

7th Army Gains

The 7th Army rolled up aggregate gains of 6 miles on the south side of the Saar, fought to the edge of its capital of Saarbruecken, outflanked the burned French fortress of Bitche and imminently threatened the Wissembourg Gap into the Palatinate.

Tens of towns fell, a thousand crack German troops surrendered before the new offensive was a dozen hours old.

The 4th Armored Division, commanded by Patton's former chief of staff, Maj. Gen. Hugh J. Gaffey, of Austin, Texas, dashed across the Hunsrueck plateau below Coblenz and covered a third of the distance to the great bend of the Rhine between Bingen and Frankfurt—threatening some of Germany's largest industrial centers.

Germans Fleeing Saarland

Pilots spotted Germans already fleeing the Saarland and palatinate toward Frankfurt and Mainz, both in the path of Gaffey's tanks.

The breakthrough threatened immediately to cut the whole network of supply and retreat routes behind Nazis reeling back from the 7th Army's offensive, powered by at least seven divisions or about 100,000 men.

Fighter-bombers worked over convoys seen running for Frankfurt. Seventh Army troops were but 8 miles from Zweibruecken, 16 from Pirmasens, 5 from St. Ingbert and at the edge of Voelklingen.

To the north, other planes kept up the methodical sealoff of the whole communications arc from Limburg to Dortmund. Thunderbolts paced the 4th Armored Division's dash along the Rhine, blasting towns in its path.

Patton's forces crossed the Moselle anew 6 miles southwest of Coblenz and at a point 18 south of Maven.

The Saarland and Palatinate were both being pried loose from the Reich—and these were the last important German holdings west of the Rhine.

The 3d Army was also swinging down from the middle Moselle behind Merzig and fortifications on the Saar River.

Patch Using 85,000 Men

The Germans expressed great concern over the new and powerful 7th Army offensive, in which Lieut. Gen. Alexander M. Patch was already using at least six divisions—up to 85,000 combat troops.

All through the night, the 1st Army infantrymen battered their way through the rugged forests and hills of inner Germany in a fanout east of the Rhine beyond Remagen.

[Reuter reported that 1st Army troops have thrown back three counterattacks in the Remagen bridgehead during the past 24 hours. All around the perimeter of the bridgehead resistance continued to be stiff.

Use Of Armor

[Reuter also quoted a Berlin military spokesman for the Transocean News Agency as saying: "The Americans in the Remagen bridgehead are now using armor to a major degree. Armored wedges are now storming the Cologne Frankfurt Autobahn."]

Inland, Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges's men fought in the village of Hoevel, almost astride the superhighway. The center of the bridgehead bulged out to the banks of the narrow Wied River, which parallels the Rhine.

The towns of Rhoensdorf and Steinshardt, six miles east of Remagen, fell to the new and spirited 1st Army thrust through difficult terrain.

Fighting was also in progress in Strodt, Reifert and Breninscheid.

Two-Mile Advance

In capturing Steinshardt, the Americans made a two-mile advance to the Wied. At Reifert, they were five miles beyond the Rhine town of Linz.

The bridgehead was pushed 6½ miles deep at its deepest point, and was being built into a great staging base for operations against the heart of Germany. The Germans, realizing the danger, were seen moving troop trains and trucks toward the bridgehead, officially declared to be no longer in danger of dislodgment.

At the southern end of the Remagen salient, the Americans captured high ground around Hoenningen and reported that white flags were being displayed by civilians in the town. There were no reports of opposition in Hoenningen, which is 16 miles from Coblenz.

Seven Nazi Planes Downed

Night gunners and fighters destroyed seven German planes over the bridgehead. Only light artillery shells fell in the area. The 1st Army increased its bag of prisoners for the campaign to 38,120.

While the army groups of Lieut. Gen. Omar N. Bradley and Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers were striking these blows along 200 miles of undulating front from Koenigswinter to the Rhine above Strasbourg, patrols of the 9th Army crossing the lower Rhine in the Duisburg area provoked fears in the foe.

Ahead of the 7th Army's new offensive, bombers continued their terrific aerial poundings. Key cities and bases were reported to be burning and shrouded in smoke so thick that results could not be assessed. Night fighters strafed convoys of Germans streaming from the Saarland and Palatinate toward Frankfurt and Mainz.

Gains of a mile and a half northeast of Sarreguemines through heavy minefields were reported. Street fighting proceeded in the border town of Habkirchen, won and lost in the winter, and in woods north and northeast of the town.

The frontier town of Uttweiler, 10 miles east of Sarreguemines, fell after a bitter fight.

French Make Gains

On the 7th Army's right flank French troops fighting under American command also made gains in the attack to clear out the last northeast corner of Alsace below Karlsruhe.

The Germans brought more reinforcements, including what armor they dared spare, to their defense arc around the Remagen bridgehead—but were still unable to muster anything like enough strength to bog down the Americans on the ninth day since they crossed the Rhine.

Koenigswinter, a town of 5,000 near the Seven Mountains country, was entered in a push starting at 7.30 A.M. down the east bank of the Rhine 20 miles from Cologne and the Ruhr. Four miles beyond is open country, ideal for tanks.

News Blackout

Censorship prevented pin-pointing the dash of the 4th Armored Division of the 3d Army in its breakout from the Moselle bridgehead through the Rhine valley.

The 5th and 90th Divisions in the Moselle bridgehead, however, swept up town after town including Liesenfeld, just south of Boppard and 33 miles northwest of the Rhine city of Weisbaden, 34 miles from Mainz 51 miles west of Frankfurt on the Main and 62 from the twin cities of Ludwigshafen and Mannheim.

The whole 3d Army front moved forward. Nehrens and Semhals, both 16 miles south of Mayen, were cleared at the new Moselle crossing and Bullay and Neef, across the river, were taken.

The Moselle bridgehead just below Coblenz was considerably widened and now dominated 16 miles or more of the Rhine zone up from Coblenz. In 3-mile advances, the 90th Division of Texans and Oklahomans captured Beulich, Deiler, Halsenbach, Kratzenburg and Buchholz, all from 10 to 12 miles south of Coblenz. Ney, 11 miles south of Coblenz, also fell.

'Jap Soldier' on Wrong Front

WITH AMERICANS ACROSS THE RHINE, March 16 (AP)—Some American infantrymen meeting the Germans east of the Rhine have received a profusely illustrated booklet entitled "The Jap Soldier." The preface says: "Every soldier who reads this book will agree that we must learn to kill Japs quickly and in large numbers."

Severed Super-Highway Is 6-Lane War Artery

Ruhr-Frankfort 'Autobahn' One of Network Built by Hitler

PARIS, March 16 (AP).—The military super-highway between the Ruhr and Frankfurt am Main, cut today by American forces, is a six-lane concrete road through the rugged Westerwald, just east of the Rhine. It is one of a network of autobahns which the war-minded Germans rushed to completion between 1936 and 1940 as military supply arteries.

The autobahns in inner Germany are of six or eight lanes, with intricate systems of overpasses and underpasses which achieve the maximum of arterial through traffic. Virtually no roads cross them. At grade these superhighways are much like the Pennsylvania Turnpike between Pittsburgh and Harrisburg. They skirt most towns—even Berlin—along their routes.

The one just east of the Rhine starts outside Frankfurt, where it links with another north-south autobahn through Mannheim into central Germany. Its course from Frankfurt northeast is through Limburg along the Rhine east bank to Deutz, a Cologne suburb. There it links with an east-west autobahn from Aachen to Cologne to Berlin.

From Deutz it leads north into the Ruhr past Duisburg, where two branches fan out into the industrial sections of the Ruhr.

AMG UNITS CROSS RHINE AT REMAGEN

PARIS, March 16—(AP) Allied Military government units crossed the Rhine in the Remagen bridgehead area today and established AMG control east of the river for the first time.

As they did so an AMG officer, returning here from Cologne, reported that the Nazi party and German high command were in disagreement on at least one point—how much destruction should be done before leaving an area.

The AMG learned that the Nazis in Cologne wanted to demolish powerhouses and similar installations but the Army argued that they should be left intact except for certain key parts. In the case of Cologne, the Army won.

In Cologne, largest German city yet to fall under AMG administration, about 100,000 civilians are scheduled to begin registration tomorrow.

Cologne police, 123 of whom have been cleared as politically unobjectionable, will aid in the registration, which will include fingerprinting. The police are serving under a former chief, ousted by the Nazis in 1933, who has been reinstated by the Allies.

Capt. James H. Denison of Detroit, Mich., first AMG officer to operate on German soil in the Aachen area, said only 34 persons had been arrested for violating military law in Cologne and most of these were minor cases.

Denison said the AMG first was concerned with establishing civilian order and then food supplies, with displaced persons being given preference over the German population. In this class are all Allied and other foreign workers whom the Germans imported. Sixteen thousand were found in the Cologne area, he said.

Third on the list is restoration of utilities—not for the sake of the civilians but to give the Army the use of them, he explained.

Denison said the German food rationing system was being used in Cologne with new ration cards being issued to each civilian after he registers.

The amount of food Cologners will get will be less than under the Nazis, with the maximum set at 1,500 calories. The average probably will be 1,250 calories against a daily caloric average in the United States of 3,800.

3 SCOUT GERMAN LINES

Spend Three Days Behind Foe to Obtain Information

WITH THE UNITED STATES FORTY-SECOND INFANTRY DIVISION, March 16 (AP)—Three days and nights of scouting deep within German lines by a sergeant, a corporal and a private was credited today with saving hundreds of American lives and speeding the Forty-second Infantry Division's progress through the Hardt Mountains in the United States Seventh Army's current offensive.

Sgt. Daniel J. Wofford of Rudy, Ark., Cpl. Richard B. Jones of Washington, D. C., and Pfc. Russell J. Kubiak of Milwaukee, Wis., were in the patrol.

Divisional Commander Maj. Gen. Harry J. Collins awarded each a Silver Star for gallantry in action.

Lying at times almost within arm's reach of German soldiers, the bold scouts gained a mass of information about the enemy's positions, locations of minefields so the Rainbow Division doughboys were able to smash the first and avoid the second when the attack started.

Foe's Loss in North 112,000

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—The United States Ninth and the Canadian First Armies killed or wounded at least 60,000 Germans and captured 52,000 others in their recent combined drive to clear the section west of the Rhine between Emmerich and Neuss, Allied headquarters announced today. Allied losses in the same drive were less than one-fifth of the enemy's, a statement said.

Freed Gestapo Victims Pay Homage To 10 Who Died

By Louis P. Lochner

Cologne, March 16 (AP)—Forty victims of Gestapo violence staggered from their filthy, disease-ridden prison here last Saturday and in their first minutes of freedom paid homage to fellow prisoners who had died.

They staggered to a mound in the prison square in memory of ten of their comrades, seven of whom the Allied Military Government found dead and three who failed to respond to medical treatment.

Listened To Broadcast

They knelt at the graves in silent prayer and then one of them fashioned a rough cross with two sticks and some twine.

The prisoners, who had been accused of political offenses against the Reich, included Dutch, Belgians, French, Polish, Russians, Italians and five Germans.

One of them, a Dutch woman, was seized January 26 for listening to a British broadcast.

Really Among Dead

"My husband, daughter and myself were arrested and brought here," she said. "My daughter could not swallow these last days, so she was hospitalized yesterday. Probably my husband is in a hospital, too."

Tough American soldiers could not tell her that her husband was one of the ten dead.

Called Indescribable

Three Russian girls stood silent in the courtyard. When a Polish correspondent addressed them in their own tongue they beamed, then broke into a torrent of speech about maltreatment, beatings and undernourishment.

Lieut. Col. Oswald F. Hedley, of Newtonville Mass., AMG health officer, said 29 of the worst sufferers of typhus and other diseases had been hospitalized, but he said he feared that half the number might die.

Capt. James G. Van Oot, of Richmond, Va., said: "You ought to have seen this place when we entered. It was indescribable. Some of the prisoners were already so weak they were lying in their own filth. All were covered with lice."

There were cells labeled "For Unruly Inmates." These were pitch dark and inside each was an additional cage of iron bars in which was a bed.

Steel Whips There

One room was marked "Hearings." Outside it were discarded steel whips.

As the enfeebled victims stumbled into trucks to take them to rehabilitation centers, American soldiers aided them and gave them cigarettes, candy and gum.

Yank Sergeant Goes A.W.O.L., Sets Up 'Kingdom' in Germany

By ROBERT EUNSON

MUENCHEN GLADBACH, Germany, March 16—(AP) Going A.W.O.L., an American sergeant took over the military government of three suburbs of this German city, issued passes to civilians, billeted visiting officers in the choicest rooms and acquired for himself the best looking blonde he could find.

His blonde girl friend was a nurse. So he made her chief of his "health and welfare department."

Tonight, the beautiful blonde German girl was back in her home after six days of playing a lead in a story that would do credit to Gilbert and Sullivan. Her 22-year-old American Doughboy was in the local klink.

The sergeant's king-like rule was brought to a sudden end when Capt. James Mallen, a pre-war park director in Queens, New York, and now heading the military government in Rhyedt, which adjoins this birthplace of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, began hearing reports of German civilians on roads during hours when they were supposed to be in their homes.

MAR 16 1945

When he learned the civilians were carrying passes written in long-hand he suspected Nazi attempts to sabotage his system.

When he finally saw one of the passes, he sent his public safety officer out to investigate, for the scribbled pass said:

"Plase liv his man and his femly go to Willich and live they homes and work on they frams at home. Five pipple and his car with him."

This is the story that Lt. Charles Pillegrin, a Newark, N. J., lawyer, uncovered.

"One Helluva Time"

The sergeant, who had been in the line quite a while and was in one of the U. S. 9th Army divisions driving to the Rhine, became awed with the elegance he found inside the homes of German cities he passed through and decided to have himself "one helluva time."

The young Doughboy picked the three suburbs out for himself and with two assistants set up a military government with an office in which he kept records, issued passes and welcomed visiting American officers.

Life had been lonesome during the long, cold watch on the Roer, and so he looked over his constituents and picked out the most beautiful girl he could. Leaving the office and municipal affairs with his buddies, he went to the blonde's dream home and told her to pack her bags and come with him.

Cozy Little Housekeeping

In a jeep which he got from some unknown source he brought his girl home with him and set up housekeeping.

Meanwhile, the Germans in the three towns were quite pleased with the set-up. They could get passes to go anywhere they pleased while their less fortunate friends in Muenchen Gladbach had to stay off the streets except between 9 a. m. and noon and could not go anywhere with vehicles of any sort.

The sergeant had a busy week. There were municipal affairs, such as seeing everyone had lights and water. He made sure the law was enforced.

The sick and hungry appearing in his office worried him. He got a solution to that problem when his blonde said she was a nurse. She became head of the department of health and saw that minor first-aid cases and sick babies were cared for.

The Sad Awakening

Just when things were going nicely, Lt. Pillegrin walked in the office. The dialogue went something like this:

The Sergeant: "Anything we can do for you? Looking for someone? Like to meet some nice girls?"

Pillegrin: "What is your position here?"

Sergeant: "Head of the military government."

Pillegrin: "Could I see your credentials for a lieutenant?"

Sergeant: "I don't have any. I'm a battlefield commission. You see, there was a colonel named Williams and he made me a first lieutenant and . . ."

Pillegrin: "Would you mind coming with me, lieutenant."

The Sergeant reluctantly gave in. Now he's charged with impersonating an officer, fraternizing with Germans, intimidating civilians, illegal use of government property and desertion.

The first four charges could cost him a sizeable fine or a long jail sentence. Conviction on the last charge could mean the death penalty.

Lily Pons Sings on Rhine

G. I.'s Get Overtime Concert With Artillery Accompaniment

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY, March 16 (AP).—While heavy artillery boomed in the lines along the Rhine three miles away, Metropolitan Opera star Lily Pons sang an hour of "Maine" today to a G. I. audience in a barn auditorium.

The show featuring the diminutive French-born coloratura soprano was scheduled to last one hour, but continued for two as the American doughboys clamored for more selections. Miss Pons's husband, Andre Kostelanetz, led a G. I. orchestra from the United States 1st and 9th Armies in accompaniment.

VITAL DOCK AREAS HIT IN HEAVIEST ATTACK ON JAPAN

Airplane, Locomotive Plants Ripped in Sixth Largest Jap City.

5-MILE AREA POUNDED

Airmen Report Opposition Light in 2,000-Ton Assault.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, GUAM, March 17 (Saturday)—(AP) More than 300 B-29s dropped 2500 tons of incendiaries on Kobe—Japan's great shipbuilding center and sixth largest city—in a pre-dawn attack today.

NIGHT

Bombs from the second plane over the target started a string of fires in the important dock areas. Resultant fires illuminated the previously blacked-out city.

Airplane Plant Hit

The third plane scored direct hits on the Mitsubishi airplane plant and Kawasake locomotive plant, its crew reported to Associated Press Correspondent Elmont Waite.

The Superforts swept over Kobe at only a one-mile altitude to dump their loads on Japan's principal seaport and shipping center.

Maj. Leon Lowry, San Carlos, Calif, said "everything worked slick." He reported only light anti-aircraft fire, although he saw searchlights piercing the skies from Osaka, havocked only three days before by another 2000-ton raid.

Target for this greatest of all fire raids that rapidly are turning huge sections of Japan's industrial centers to ashes was a five-square-mile area in the highly congested core of Japan's sixth largest metropolis.

Large Force Attacks

Although the 21st Bomber command announced only that a "very large task force" of B-29s attacked, indications were that more than 300 aircraft participated.

Tokyo radio made the unconfirmed claim that more than 30 of the B-29s were "either shot down or damaged." The enemy said that the raiders, while concentrating on Kobe, also dropped incendiaries in the vicinity of Osaka.

This was the fourth great strike—all incendiary—on Japan's major cities in eight days and the first mass B-29 assault of the war on Kobe.

Tokyo was hit a week ago today in the first big attack inaugurating the new strategy of burning down the enemy's industrial areas.

Nagoya was hit two days later, March 12 and Osaka on March 14.

All the raids were staged in the dark hours soon after midnight.

The three previous raids—details of the Kobe attack are not yet available—caused great conflagrations, much damage to industries, burned out many square miles of congested areas and caused the Japanese government to make many changes in its air raid defenses.

Kobe Attacked Before

A "sizeable" force of the sky giants previously had hit Kobe Feb. 4, starting 34 fires. They also smacked the Kawasaki aircraft engine factory at Akashi town, 10 miles west of Kobe, on Jan. 19.

Varying their tactics with the view of creating surprise, the B-29s took off from their bases in the Marianas two hours later for the Kobe raid than for those on Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka.

They hit their targets for almost two hours starting at about 3:55 a. m. Saturday, Kobe time (1:55 p. m. Friday EWT).

The series of fire raids are growing in weight all the time because each time out a "few more crews decide they can take on heavier loads," a spokesman for the command said.

(In Washington, the 20th Air Force headquarters announced that the Kobe mission was a continuation of the plan "to destroy Japan's industrial production of war essentials.")

All Hit 5-Mile Zone

The Superforts swept over the target as low as 5,000 feet, dropping all incendiary loads upon precise targets within a chosen five mile zone of the long, crowded city.

An effective attack on the urban industrial areas called for bombing of a high order of accuracy and timing—definitely not "area bombing."

The primary purpose was to destroy industrial and transportation facilities within or near the highly inflammable sections of the city.

With a population of around 1,000,000 in a space of 10 miles long and one to three miles wide, Kobe's congested center has a population of more than 100,000 per square mile.

A successful attack would handicap Japan's shipbuilding and ship repair program and create a critical bottleneck in the main rail artery between the eastern and western ends of Honshu island, main island of the empire.

It also would destroy tons of warehouse stores along the waterfront and limit the production of steel, rail equipment, ordnance, chemical, machinery and rubber plants.

Kobe, Japan's principal seaport, has the empire's largest concentration of shipbuilding and Marine engine capacity. It is on the main rail line that connects Tokyo with Osaka and Shimonoseki, at the western tip of the main island of Honshu.

Shimonoseki is connected by rail, through the underwater Kammon Tunnel, with Kyushu, the southern homeland island.

Kobe is at the northern end of the inland sea. Osaka is 15 miles to the east and Tokyo about 275.

Kobe has no large rivers or canals. It depends upon three large reservoirs to the north for its water supply, which is dangerously low for large-scale fire-fighting.

Most of the city's buildings are of wood and plaster. Only about 10 per cent are constructed of brick, sheet metal, stone or concrete.

RUSSIANS PERIL 3 BALTIC PORTS

Penetrate Inner Defense of Stettin, Close On Danzig.

Wheeler

LONDON, Saturday, March 17—(AP) Russian tank assault forces smashed through bitter enemy resistance to within four miles of the prize German port of Stettin yesterday while other Soviet troops threatened to smash the Nazi defenders of the big Baltic naval bases of Danzig and Gdynia.

NIGHT

The three great Baltic seaports, at either end of the Red army's 175-mile front across Pomerania, were imminently endangered. Berlin said Soviet forces had penetrated Stettin's "inner defenses" and Moscow's war bulletins disclosed the Russians were within six miles of both Danzig and Gdynia.

Gain in East Prussia

East of the blazing front before Danzig and Gdynia, the Russians carved out two-mile gains in the German East Prussian pocket and the enemy said Red army units 325 miles to the south had opened a new offensive toward the Moravian gap leading to Prague and Vienna.

The German radio said that Marshal G. K. Zhukov had hurled one tank army and five tank corps into the First White Russian army's Stettin battle in an attempt to crush a narrow Nazi bridgehead across the Oder river from the west bank Pomeranian capital.

Slashing across deep fortifications lines, Zhukov's troops slugged to within four and a half miles southeast of the city by capturing Rosengarten, less than two miles south of suburban Altdamm, key stronghold of Stettin's defenses. Zhukov's men were battling through forests below Altdamm in a drive to cut its railroad and highway links with Stettin, across the mouth of the Oder.

Eight to 11 miles south of Stettin, the Russians reached the east bank of the Oder on a three-mile front, hurling the Germans back into the stream after taking Neu-Bruenken, Wintersfelde and the important highway bridge crossing town of Greifenhagen. Capture of Greifenhagen gave the Russians a possible springboard for a sweep across the river defense line.

Meanwhile, far to the east in the "Polish corridor," Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army troops hammered toward the coastal town of Zoppot, on Danzig bay mid-way between Danzig and Gdynia.

Tearing up deep anti-tank ditches, blockhouses and dug-outs where the Germans were bracing themselves on the perimeter defenses of the twin ports, the Russians captured Osowa (Espenkrug), only four miles from the waters of Danzig bay.

This Russian wedge threatened to split the German pocket around Danzig, six miles southwest of Osowa, and Gdynia, six miles northwest, into two segments. Moscow's midnight communique said the Nazis undertook several counter-attacks supported by fire from naval vessels.

Osowa is two miles from the border of the former territory of Danzig. Six miles due west of Danzig city, the Second White Russians captured Rebiecho (Ramkau) and also overran the seven-way road and rail center of Zukowo (Zuckau), eight miles southwest.

In East Prussia, the Third White Russian Army squeezed the trapped enemy grouping southwest of Koenigsberg, pushing the remnants into a narrow coastal belt. Nine miles southeast of the provincial capital, the Soviets widened a wedge to the Frisches Haff, which Thursday cut off Koenigsberg from the main force, and captured Pocarben, two miles east of threatened Brandenburg.

Soviets Advance

On the approaches to the coastal strongholds of Braunsberg and Heiligenbeil, Soviet columns advanced on a 10-mile front, taking among 12 places, the village of Jarfithal, seven miles east of Heiligenbeil.

More than 4,000 enemy troops were killed in East Prussia, Moscow's war bulletin's said, and 1,800 prisoners taken on the northern sectors of the eastern front where the Red Army was mopping up enemy resistance pockets to release thousands of troops for the impending Berlin drive.

On the middle Oder front due east of Berlin the Germans said three Soviet infantry divisions had encircled Klessin, two miles west of the river, and had pushed on toward Podelzig, a mile and a half to the northwest and 32 miles east of the Reich capital. A later account claimed that German artillery broke up this attack and reestablished contact with Klessin.

Klessin lies about midway between captured Kuestrin and Frankfurt in the area where the Germans have reported 100,000 First White Russian Army fighting to expand their bridgeheads for the coming assault on the capital.

At Kolberg, Pomeranian port on the Baltic, a trapped Nazi garrison was hurled back among harbor installations by Soviet troops crushing final resistance in the burning shell-torn city.

MITSCHER HAILS SUPERFORT FEATS

Guam, March 16 (A. P.).—Vice-Admiral Marc A. Mitscher, whose carrier planes have havocked Tokyo, sent this message today to Major-Gen. Curtis Lemay, commander of the Twenty-first Bomber Command, whose B-29s have devastated Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka industrial districts with incendiaries:

"We are proud to operate in the same area with a force which can do as much damage to the enemy as your force is consistently doing. May your targets always flame!"

BERLIN SAYS REDS ARE IN STETTIN'S INNER DEFENSES

Russian Tank Army and 5 Tank Corps Reported in Action East of Oder.

London, March 16 (A. P.).—A Berlin war correspondent said tonight that the Russians had broken in to the inner defenses of Stettin, and that a Soviet tank army and five tank corps had been thrown into a violent new effort to liquidate the last German positions east of the Oder. Preceded by a furious artillery barrage from hundreds of guns, masses of tanks and infantry were attacking on a narrow front, trying to split the German bridgehead into three parts, the correspondent said.

"Small heights and villages have changed hands up to fourteen times," he added. In East Prussia, the Russians announced a seven-mile break-through to the shore of the Frisches Haff, a Baltic lagoon, which divided the remnants of the 200,000 defend-park director in Queens, New York, and now heading the military government in Rhyedt, which adjoins this birthplace of Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, began hearing reports of German civilians on roads during hours when they were supposed to be in their homes.

When he learned the civilians were carrying passes written in long-hand he suspected Nazi attempts to sabotage his system.

When he finally saw one of the passes, he sent his public safety officer out to investigate, for the scribbled pass said:

"Plase liv his man and his femly go to Willich and live they homes and work on they frams at home. Five pipple and his car with him."

This is the story that Lt. Charles Pillegrin, a Newark, N. J., lawyer, uncovered.

"One Helluva Time"

The sergeant, who had been in the line quite a while and was in one of the U. S. 9th Army divisions driving to the Rhine, became awed with the elegance he found inside the homes of German cities he passed through and decided to have himself "one helluva time."

The young Doughboy picked the three suburbs out for himself and with two assistants set up a military government with an office in which he kept records, issued passes and welcomed visiting American officers.

Life had been lonesome during the long, cold watch on the Roer, and so he looked over his constituents and picked out the most beautiful girl he could. Leaving the office and municipal affairs with his buddies, he went to the blonde's dream home and told her to pack her bags and come with him.

Cozy Little Housekeeping

In a jeep which he got from some unknown source he brought his girl home with him and set up housekeeping.

Meanwhile, the Germans in the three towns were quite pleased with the set-up. They could get passes to go anywhere they pleased while their less fortunate friends in Muenchen Gladbach had to stay off the streets except between 9 a. m. and noon and could not go anywhere with vehicles of any sort.

The sergeant had a busy week. There were municipal affairs, such as seeing everyone had lights and water. He made sure the law was enforced.

The sick and hungry appearing in his office worried him. He got a solution to that problem when his blonde said she was a nurse. She became head of the department of health and saw that minor first-aid cases and sick babies were cared for.

The Sad Awakening

Just when things were going nicely, Lt. Pillegrin walked in the office. The dialogue went something like this:

The Sergeant: "Anything we can do for you? Looking for someone? Like to meet some nice girls?"

Pillegrin: "What is your position here?"

Sergeant: "Head of the military government."

Pillegrin: "Could I see your credentials for a lieutenant?"

Sergeant: "I don't have any. I'm a battlefield commission. You see, there was a colonel named Williams and he made me a first lieutenant and . . ."

Pillegrin: "Would you mind coming with me, lieutenant."

The Sergeant reluctantly gave in. Now he's charged with impersonating an officer, fraternizing with Germans, intimidating civilians, illegal use of government property and desertion.

The first four charges could cost him a sizeable fine or a long jail sentence. Conviction on the last charge could mean the death penalty.

Lily Pons Sings on Rhine

G. I.'s Get Overtime Concert With Artillery Accompaniment

SOMEWHERE IN GERMANY, March 16 (AP).—While heavy artillery boomed in the lines along the Rhine three miles away, Metropolitan Opera star Lily Pons sang an [illegible] today to a G. I. audience in a barn auditorium.

The show featuring the diminutive French-born coloratura soprano was scheduled to last one hour, but continued for two as the American doughboys clamored for more selections. Miss Pons's husband, Andre Kostelanetz, led a G. I. orchestra from the United States 1st and 9th Armies in accompaniment.

VITAL DOCK AREAS HIT IN HEAVIEST ATTACK ON JAPAN

Airplane, Locomotive Plants Ripped in Sixth Largest Jap City.

5-MILE AREA POUNDED

Airmen Report Opposition

Light in 2,000-Ton Assault.

21ST BOMBER COMMAND, GUAM, March 17 (Saturday)—(AP) More than 300 B-29s dropped 2500 tons of incendiaries on Kobe—Japan's great shipbuilding center and sixth largest city—in a pre-dawn attack today.

NIGHT

Bombs from the second plane over the target started a string of fires in the important dock areas. Resultant fires illuminated the previously blacked-out city.

Airplane Plant Hit

The third plane scored direct hits on the Mitsubishi airplane plant and Kawasake locomotive plant, its crew reported to Associated Press Correspondent Elmont Waite.

The Superforts swept over Kobe at only a one-mile altitude to dump their loads on Japan's principal seaport and shipping center.

Maj. Leon Lowry, San Carlos, Calif, said "everything worked slick." He reported only light anti-aircraft fire, although he saw searchlights piercing the skies from Osaka, havocked only three days before by another 2000-ton raid.

Target for this greatest of all fire raids that rapidly are turning huge sections of Japan's industrial centers to ashes was a five-square-mile area in the highly congested core of Japan's sixth largest metropolis.

Large Force Attacks

Although the 21st Bomber command announced only that a "very large task force" of B-29s attacked, indications were that more than 300 aircraft participated.

Tokyo radio made the unconfirmed claim that more than 30 of the B-29s were "either shot down or damaged." The enemy said that the raiders, while concentrating on Kobe, also dropped incendiaries in the vicinity of Osaka.

This was the fourth great strike—all incendiary—on Japan's major cities in eight days and the first mass B-29 assault of the war on Kobe.

Tokyo was hit a week ago today in the first big attack inaugurating the new strategy of burning down the enemy's industrial areas.

Nagoya was hit two days later, March 12 and Osaka on March 14.

All the raids were staged in the dark hours soon after midnight.

The three previous raids—details of the Kobe attack are not yet available—caused great conflagrations, much damage to industries, burned out many square miles of congested areas and caused the Japanese government to make many changes in its air raid defenses.

Kobe Attacked Before

A "sizeable" force of the sky giants previously had hit Kobe Feb. 4, starting 34 fires. They also smacked the Kawasaki aircraft engine factory at Akashi town, 10 miles west of Kobe, on Jan. 19.

Varying their tactics with the view of creating surprise, the B-29s took off from their bases in the Marianas two hours later for the Kobe raid than for those on Tokyo, Nagoya and Osaka.

They hit their targets for almost two hours starting at about 3:55 a. m. Saturday, Kobe time (1:55 p. m. Friday EWT).

The series of fire raids are growing in weight all the time because each time out a "few more crews decide they can take on heavier loads," a spokesman for the command said.

(In Washington, the 20th Air Force headquarters announced that the Kobe mission was a continuation of the plan "to destroy Japan's industrial production of war essentials.")

Hit 5-Mile Zone

The Superforts swept over the target as low as 5,000 feet, dropping all incendiary loads upon precise targets within a chosen five mile zone of the long, crowded city.

An effective attack on the urban industrial areas called for bombing of a high order of accuracy and timing—definitely not "area bombing."

The primary purpose was to destroy industrial and transportation facilities within or near the highly inflammable sections of the city.

With a population of around 1,000,000 in a space of 10 miles long and one to three miles wide, Kobe's congested center has a population of more than 100,000 per square mile.

A successful attack would handicap Japan's shipbuilding and ship repair program and create a critical bottleneck in the main rail artery between the eastern and western ends of Honshu island, main island of the empire.

It also would destroy tons of warehouse stores along the waterfront and limit the production of steel, rail equipment, ordnance, chemical, machinery and rubber plants.

Kobe, Japan's principal seaport, has the empire's largest concentration of shipbuilding and Marine engine capacity. It is on the main rail line that connects Tokyo with Osaka and Shimonoseki, at the western tip of the main island of Honshu.

Shimonoseki is connected by rail, through the underwater Kammon Tunnel, with Kyushu, the southern homeland island.

Kobe is at the northern end of the inland sea. Osaka is 15 miles to the east and Tokyo about 275.

Kobe has no large rivers or canals. It depends upon three large reservoirs to the north for its water supply, which is dangerously low for large-scale fire-fighting.

Most of the city's buildings are of wood and plaster. Only about 10 per cent are constructed of brick, sheet metal, stone or concrete.

RUSSIANS PERIL 3 BALTIC PORTS

Penetrate Inner Defense of Stettin, Close On Danzig.

Wheeler

LONDON, Saturday, March 17—(AP) Russian tank assault forces smashed through bitter enemy resistance to within four miles of the prize German port of Stettin yesterday while other Soviet troops threatened [illegible] the Nazi defenders of the big Baltic naval bases of Danzig and Gdynia.

The three great Baltic seaports, at either end of the Red army's 175-mile front across Pomerania, were imminently endangered. Berlin said Soviet forces had penetrated Stettin's "inner defenses" and Moscow's war bulletins disclosed the Russians were within six miles of both Danzig and Gdynia.

Gain in East Prussia

East of the blazing front before Danzig and Gdynia, the Russians carved out two-mile gains in the German East Prussian pocket and the enemy said Red army units 325 miles to the south had opened a new offensive toward the Moravian gap leading to Prague and Vienna.

The German radio said that Marshal G. K. Zhukov had hurled one tank army and five tank corps into the First White Russian army's Stettin battle in an attempt to crush a narrow Nazi bridgehead across the Oder river from the west bank Pomeranian capital.

Slashing across deep fortifications lines, Zhukov's troops slugged to within four and a half miles southeast of the city by capturing Rosengarten, less than two miles south of suburban Altdamm, key stronghold of Stettin's defenses. Zhukov's men were battling through forests below Altdamm in a drive to cut its railroad and highway links with Stettin, across the mouth of the Oder.

Eight to 11 miles south of Stettin, the Russians reached the east bank of the Oder on a three-mile front, hurling the Germans back into the stream after taking Neu-Bruenken, Wintersfelde and the important highway bridge crossing town of Greifenhagen. BERLIN SAYS REDS ARE IN STETTIN'S INNER DEFENSES

Russian Tank Army and 5 Tank Corps Reported in Action East of Oder.

London, March 16 (A. ers of the Koenigsberg zone into two pockets.

Another major attack has been started by Marshal Ivan Konev's First Ukrainian Army north of Ratibor and in the Grottkau area, southeast of Breslau, in Silesia, the German communique announced, and penetrations were made. German broadcasts said that several Russian divisions were involved in the drive toward Moravska-Ostrava, in the Moravian Gate, seventeen miles south of Ratibor.

The Stettin and East Prussian offensives apparently were a part of a wide-scale mopping up behind advanced Soviet lines preparatory to the climactic battle which the Russians may launch along the Berlin front at any time. Stettin is the key to Berlin's northern flank.

Key To Berlin Flank

Stettin is the key to Berlin's north flank. For days the Russians have been reported on heights overlooking the city, Berlin's chief Baltic port, and pouring artillery fire into the streets.

The chief German bridgehead centered around Altdamm, the Stettin suburb on the eastern side of the Oder.

Dievenow Bridgehead Possible

Another German bridgehead may be along the Dievenow, an outlet between the mainland and Wollin Island which connects Stettin Bay with the sea. The Russians cleared the east side of the Dievenow several days ago, but the Germans declared they regained a bridgehead.

The Germans said most of the 380,000 inhabitants of Stettin had been removed. Moscow broadcasts reported that the city had been turned into a fortress with all manner of fortifications and barricades erected in its streets and environs and its garrison strengthened by marines, SS men, Volks grenadiers and training school cadets.

Kolberg Reported Falling

Another German holdout garrison in Kolberg, Pomeranian port on the Baltic, 63 miles northeast of Stettin, appeared to be fighting its last.

Moscow dispatches said fall of the town of 33,000 was imminent, and a German broadcast said the garrison had been driven into the northern fringe and harbor area of the town and that the streets were "flooded with Russian troops."

Klessen Encircled

On the Berlin front a German broadcast said the Russians had encircled Klessen, 33 miles east of Berlin and on the west side of the Oder, but that the encirclement had been broken. Klessen is midway between the fallen Oder River fortress of Kuestrin and besieged Frankfurt.

The Germans reported Soviet bridgeheads west of the Oder have been expanded until they hold about 100,000 Russians, but Moscow has never officially confirmed the crossing of the river.

In East Prussia, the Soviet breakthrough to the Baltic was made at Heide-Waldburg, five miles southwest of Koenigsberg, where the Russians gained a four-mlie hold on the coast.

The thrust separated the East Prussian capital from a string of three Baltic fortress towns, Brandenburg, Heiligenbeil and Braunsberg, all in a narrow coastal strip 30 miles long and 10 miles or less deep.

Front-line dispatches which appeared in Moscow newspapers today made it evident that the spring thaw continued to hamper operations by Marshal Zhukov.

A dispatch today said that the road to Berlin was protected with eight rows of concrete dragon's teeth, underground anchorages and an anti-tank ditch bristling with steel spikes. It described a maze of machine gun and mortar pillboxes linked by tunnels and subterranean railways. Electrified wires gird the water hazards of small rivers, lakes and canals, the dispatch adding:

"There are three such belts of fortifications from the Obra River to the Oder, each increasing in strength."

NAZI OIL TARGETS HIT BY BOMBERS

British Blast Railway Cities, Mosquitos Pound Berlin.

LONDON, March 16 — (AP) Strong forces of RAF heavy bombers blasted two railway cities of southern Germany tonight and Mosquitos raided Berlin for the 25th consecutive night after Italy-based U. S. heavy bombers had attacked three Nazi oil refineries in Vienna's outskirts today.

The RAF bombers singled out Nuernberg and Wuerzburg, north of Munich, while the Mosquitos were dumping explosives on the Reich's capital.

For the first time since Germany began to feel the remorseless weight of unrelenting air assaults 32 days ago, U. S. heavy bombers based in Britain were unable to attack the Reich in daylight.

Waves of American heavy bombers from Italy seared three vital German fuel refineries in Vienna's outskirts.

Leaving fire and smoke columns two miles high pluming over refineries producing about 10 per cent of Germany's entire synthetic oil supply, Flying Fortresses and Liberators hammered plants at Floridsdorf, Korneuberg and Schwechat, all within a five-mile radius of the Austrian capital.

The giant bombers of the U. S. 15th Air Force, continuing their methodical pounding of Germany's vital fuel sources, were escorted by an umbrella of fast American fighters. The crews reported good results.

Britain-based heavy bombers were grounded, however, for the first time in 32 days as heavy weather over the continent sealed off bombing lanes, giving crews and ships a much-needed recess in the record-breaking air assault against Germany after 7,000 Allied planes lashed Germany in a 24-hour period.

Aerial photographs showed great fires raging among buildings and barracks of the German Army's general staff headquarters at Zossen, 20 miles south of Berlin after Thursday's attack by some 650 Flying Fortresses and Liberators which unloaded well over 1,500 tons of bombs on the target.

During the night, RAF Lancasters blasted three targets in the Ruhr, rail outlets from the great industrial basin, and an oil refinery at Misburg near Hannover. Berlin also was attacked by fast-flying Mosquito bombers for the 24th straight night.

In western Europe, medium, light and fighter bombers stationed at forward bases on the continent maintained pressure during the day against German targets in support of ground troops despite the weather. The U. S. 9th Air Force got in 400 fighter-bomber sorties before noon at a loss of two planes, while the British 2nd Tactical Air Force flew up to 1,730.

From the south, Mitchells and Thunderbolts meanwhile maintained the intense strain on German communications in Austria around the Brenner Pass and through the Po valley. They scored direct hits on a rail bridge at Brixlegg, 35 miles northeast of Innsbruck and struck at four other vital spans in the pass and valley.

The bombers cut railroads in more than 30 places and still incomplete reports said more than 100 rail cars and 30 locomotives were destroyed or damaged.

Barracks, HQ Buildings Hit At Zossen

London, March 16 (AP)—American heavy bombers smashed several headquarters buildings and rows of barracks in yesterday's 650-plane attack on Adolf Hitler's army staff headquarters at Zossen, 20 miles south of Berlin, it was announced officially today.

A United States Strategic Air Force communiqué said the airmen who had been waiting for weeks to carry out the assignment did a bullseye job.

The official bulletin reported hits on many barracks and major office buildings, including the Administration Building, with both high explosive and incendiary bombs.

Great Fires Spread

Great fires were spread in a wide area.

The surprise attack on the army chiefs' workshop, where Hitler was reported in conference a few days ago, was carried out by pilots, navigators and bombardiers especially picked for the job.

In a cloudless sky they paraded over the target in two waves and dropped 6,000 blast bombs weighing 1,500 tons, in addition to 325,000 small incendiary missiles.

The Liberator wing of the attack went in first and by the time the Flying Fortresses arrived fires were burning fiercely.

Aerial photographs taken during the attack showed Liberator bombs had blocked several roads on the headquarters grounds and crashed into a nearby tank training depot.

The Fortresses placed six heavy concentrations of bombs in the target area, smashing a number of the main buildings and a large storage depot.

Then the ground haze and smoke closed in over the scene and prevented a more detailed assessment of the damage.

Part of the headquarters establishment is known to be deep underground, however, and presumably safe from anything except the RAF's new eleven-ton bomb.

The pilots, carefully briefed for the attack, said they encountered only sporadic anti-aircraft fire.

Despite the bombing, the German communiqué was broadcast on schedule today. It made no mention of the raid on army headquarters although it told of the other Allied attacks.

Berlin Is Pounded 24th Night In Row

London, March 16 (AP)—Bomb-blasted Berlin underwent its twenty-fourth consecutive RAF night raid last night after American flyers had climaxed a peak day of Allied air operations with a 650-plane attack on Adolf Hitler's army staff headquarters at Zossen, twenty miles from the German capital.

Rail Yards Hit

RAF night raiders also struck at Hagen, in the industrial Ruhr, and at oil refineries in Misbourg, near Hannover.

More than 1,350 bombers, guarded by 750 fighters, soared straight for Berlin, and then split in half to loop around the capital for the Zossen raid and attacks on the Oranienburg rail yards to the north.

16 Bombers Lost

From 6,000 to 7,000 Allied planes took advantage of a good break in the weather to step up yesterday's operations over Germany from the south, east and west to a near-record.

American bombers alone unloosed 3,500 tons of high explosive and incendiaries in the vicinity of Berlin.

Anti-aircraft fire was heavy at some points and sixteen bombers and three fighters were reported missing.

RAF daylight raiders struck anew at the vital Arnsburg rail viaduct with giant eleven-ton bombs that were first used Wednesday in a destructive attack on the Bielefeld viaduct, north of the Ruhr. Arnsburg, also a target on Wednesday, is 27 miles southeast of Dortmund.

An 8th Air Force staff officer described Oranienburg as one of the Reich's greatest military depots and aerial photos had showed it was jammed with supplies obstensibly for the Eastern front, particularly the Stettin area.

Germans Express Concern Over The Bridgehead

London, March 16 (AP)—The Germans expressed concern late today about the expanding cross-Rhine bridgehead at Remagen and the 3d Army's armored breakthrough between the Moselle and Rhine valleys.

"These developments begin to assume operational importance," the enemy military commentator, Capt. Ludwig Sertorius, broadcast.

The German radio, which previously estimated that 100,000 American troops have been poured into the Remagen bridgehead, declared today that four more divisions were being moved into the area, making it "the biggest single concentration of power on a narrow front ever seen in this war."

"Boiler Ready To Explode"

"Even during the invasion in Normandy there was nothing to compare with it," declared German War Reporter Franz Westhoff. "The situation is like a boiler under maximum pressure and ready to explode from pent-up energy."

The broadcast also asserted that Lieut. Gen. Leonard Gerow, commander of the new United States 15th Army, now was at the head of the forces on the east bank of the Rhine.

The American 1st Army was fanning out in several directions east of the Rhine and tank forces reached the Cologne-Weisbaden highway (probably the Cologne-Frankfurt superhighway), the enemy said.

"Aimed At Bend In Rhine"

Mounting pressure by the 3d Army on the north side of the Saar district was said to have caused a "fluid situation." Sertorious asserted American tanks were aiming at the great bend of the Rhine at Bingen just west of a cluster of great German cities such as Frankfurt, Weisbaden, Mainz and Darmstadt. He said the Americans might also swing into the Kreuznach basin or try to envelop from the rear German defenses in the Hunsreuck mountains of the Saarland.

The Germans acknowledged continued advances by the resurgent United States 7th Army, but asserted that the drive had not yet reached the forefield of the West Wall defenses.

Germans Seek to Split Allies With Wave of Peace Feelers

LONDON, March 16—(AP) Responsible diplomats expressed belief tonight that a wave of German peace feelers aimed at sowing dissension among the Allies is likely to strike neutral European capitals within the next few weeks.

An authoritative source confirmed that one such feeler was made to a British official in Stockholm a few days ago but said the British government "firmly ignored" it and notified the United States and Russia of all details.

Confirm Stockholm Report

(In Washington State department officials disclosed that Britain had reported last week on a Stockholm peace gesture. The report, officials said, was filed away as another more or less meaningless incident and apparently it did not reach top State department officials or the White House, where President Roosevelt said nothing at all had been received).

A reliable informant said Dr. Fritz Hesse, one time German press attache in London, was assigned by Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop to approach a member of the British legation in Stockholm and open preliminary negotiations for an armistice.

First hint of the overture came yesterday when the ultra-conservative Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet reported it.

The British foreign office at that time said it knew nothing of such an approach and maintained the same attitude until late today, when an authoritative source explained that the report now could be confirmed.

Apparently Hesse himself saw to it that the story became known after the failure of his mission. Svenska Dagbladet's former Berlin correspondent, Dr. Arvid Fredborg, who wrote "Behind the Steel Wall," broke the news. He said the German peace feeler carried the implied threat that if America and Britain would not agree Hitler would "give in to the Russians."

The version made available here said Hesse undertook the mission after Von Ribbentrop had an all-night argument with Hitler in which he finally convinced the Fuehrer that the time was ripe to feel out the Allies.

Hesse, long a confidant of Von Ribbentrop, approached a junior member of the British legation in Stockholm in an effort to break the ice. He was understood also to have tried to make contact with American officials in the Swedish capital through the medium of a prominent Swedish businessman.

British Not Interested

In the case of the British legation, the 50-year-old Germany emissary was told no one was interested in getting in touch with him. The Swedish businessman was understood to have refused his services when he learned that Hesse's intention was that the Nazi regime should be maintained in Germany.

In London tonight the British government was said to have immediately given the American and Russian governments full details of Hesse's unsuccessful attempts to reach any ranking official.

"The British government firmly ignored the German emissary's move and informed the American and Russian governments immediately of what had occurred, explaining that no talks were held," an authoritative source said.

The general opinion among diplomats was that the Germans are trying to use the bait of a peace offer in a renewed attempt to create disharmony among Britain, America and Russia.

The German official propaganda agency said that rumors that Marshal Von Rundstedt had asked for an armistice were a "complete invention," but diplomats here commented that it perhaps was significant that the Nazi denial was not made until after the Hesse approach had failed.

Roosevelt

Washington, March 16 (AP)—President Roosevelt informed reporters today that the Government has received nothing at all here in the way of German peace feelers.

He was asked at a news conference if he could give any illumination on rumors from Europe, particularly reports in Stockholm, that there had been some peace discussions. No Murphy Talk

He w[illegible]hether, in that connecti[illegible]ld throw any light on discussions he has had with Robert Murphy, principal political adviser to Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. It was assumed, he was told, that the consultations dealt with occupation of Germany.

The Chief Executive said he had seen Murphy only once since the latter had returned from abroad and that they had talked then about Murphy's boyhood in Germany.

To an inquiry whether the American zone of occupation in Germany has been decided, the President said he had not heard about it since the Yalta Conference with Prime Minister Churchill and Marshall Stalin. He said he did not know what was holding it up and was glad to be reminded about it.

Original Plan

Originally, the United States was to occupy a southern zone; Russia, the eastern section, and Britain, the north and west. Then it was decided to deal France in, probably necessitating changes in the proposed American and British areas.

Still answering questions, Mr. Roosevelt suggested that the State Department be asked what is holding up publication of terms of the Italian armistice.

"They refer us to the War Department and the War Department refers us to the White House," a reporter told him.

The Chief Executive interrupted a query about whether the present Romanian Government was representative of the people, saying it was so catchy that the State Department should be asked about that also.

Meets With Stassen

Commander Harold E. Stassen, former Republican Governor of Minnesota and a delegate to the San Francisco conference next month, met with the President today.

Talking with reporters after discussing the coming conference meeting with the President, Stassen said he would return home tomorrow to spend a couple of days with his family and then fly to Pacific fleet headquarters.

An an inquiry whether any decision had been reached on a new command setup for the Pacific, the President replied in the negative, adding that it all depends on the kind of operation.

Germans Asked Armistice, London Source Says

MAR 17 1945

London, March 16 (AP)—Authoritative quarters said today that a German representative had approached British officials with a view toward an armistice, but Britain had "firmly ignored" the overture and informed the United States and Soviet Russia immediately.

[A Washington dispatch quoted President Roosevelt as saying, in response to an inquiry on the reported peace feelers: "We have nothing here at all on them." (Dispatch on Page 4.)]

It was said that Dr. Fritz Hesse, onetime German attaché in London, was assigned by Joachin von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister, to make contact with a member of the British legation in Stockholm.

The authoritative quarters described the move as a "typical German effort to sow dissension among the Allies."

A British statement issued unofficially in Stockholm yesterday said a German peace feeler had been conveyed to the British legation there and was rejected. British quarters here had disclaimed knowledge of the incident yesterday.

No Reich Peace Feelers, Says

Britons Expect Allies To Ignore 'Feelers'

By James F. King

London, March 16 (AP)—The cockney took another swig of beer, placed the glass on the bar and ordered another pint.

"See ole 'itler's up to it again," he said. "'Es trying to get out of it any way 'e can. An' I don't blame 'im."

And that is the average Briton's reaction to Stockholm reports that the Germans have been putting out peace feelers.

It is taken for granted by everyone here, from office boys to members of Parliament, that the Nazis can expect nothing but a quick brushoff in response to any attempt to bargain.

Britons Keep Calm

Any Nazi peace bid is generally regarded in London as only an attempt to sow distrust among the Allies.

Perhaps it is merely the British temperament, but the country has not shown unbridled optimism in the wake of military victories or reports of German unrest. Neither has it fallen into fits of depression over minor setbacks.

Even Prime Minister Churchill's prediction yesterday that the European war might be over before the end of the summer, or even sooner, caused scarcely a ripple.

You can't stir up much discussion in a pub about when the war will end, but mention politics and you can have a forum anytime. To Britons, who haven't had a national election in ten years, talk about postwar politics and conditions is more absorbing than rationing and other wartime restrictions.

What G.I.s Want: A Better Tank

And Less Talk

Washington Praise of U. S. Equipment Irks Men in Combat With Nazi Tigers

MAR 17 1945

By Wes Gallagher

Associated Press correspondent just returned from the United States 9th Army front.

LONDON, March 16.—The reaction of American tank soldiers who have had to do the fighting is that they want new tanks on the battle line and less talk about them at Washington. (Seventeen words censored from this paragraph.)

[Gallagher's dispatch was written in response to information that there had been much discussion at Washington about the new General Pershing tank, equipped with guns of 90-mm., nearly four inches. Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson said last week that the General Pershing "is an answer to the German Royal Tiger in the sense that it is an improvement in line with the American concept of offensive warfare." Gallagher apparently was not permitted to say whether the Pershing has been in action in Europe.]

A new wide tread and increased flotation have made the General Pershing a better wet weather tank than the General Sherman, hitherto the main dependence of American armored forces. (107 words deleted before and after this paragraph.)

"Give us enough gun to knock out the Tiger and we will carry it around on trucks," is the tankman's answer.

Tankmen who have seen battle action day after day and have fought in Shermans for two years say they are fed up with the statements coming out of Washington praising American equipment.

Story Angers Soldiers

Arousing the most ire was a dispatch about a month ago which quoted the Army Chief of Ordnance as saying that the Germans lost two tanks for every one the Americans lost, and that American equipment was superior in every department. It was carried by "Stars and Stripes," the Army newspaper.

One American colonel who has fought across western Europe summed up the attitude of the tankmen when he said: "I would like to have him in the lead tank during one of our attacks some day. He would damn soon change his tune."

The German Army may well have lost two tanks to every one lost by the Allies, but that does not mean they lost them in armored fighting. This figure apparently included tanks the Germans lost to the Air Force, bazookas, artillery, mines and all other means.

The heaviest armored fighting on the western front during the fall and winter was during the 9th Army's drive to the Roer in November. In that action men of the American 2d Armored Division, experienced and skilled, considered the trade of two Shermans for one Tiger or one Panther "good hunting."

American tankmen say that the Germans have been using Tigers and Panthers for two years, and that only as the war is nearing an end are the American armies able to produce their equal, and that only in driblet form. (165 words censored.)

There has been almost no tank-for-tank fighting in the 9th Army's drive to the Rhine and the 1st and 3d Army attacks in the south. The Germans have been using their few tanks to support their infantry counter-attacks, and have used armor in small numbers. They have been depending on artillery and anti-tank guns to halt American armor, which they have been unable to do. (twenty-five words censored.)

Just Coming Into Production

At Washington, J. A. Krug, chairman of the War Production Board, said the new General Pershing tank is "just coming into production." He said production did not start until late last year, but that steep production schedules have been set.

Major General L. H. Campbell, Chief of Ordnance, recently wrote to C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation at Detroit: "I have just had word from the western front in Europe of the fine work which our new tanks have done in battle since their arrival last month (February). Our tank forces are enthusiastic over the fighting ability and great destruction which has been done to the enemy by these tanks."

Mr. Krug side-stepped any discussion of relative merits of the General Sherman tank and the heavier German tanks, but said he had a high regard for General Campbell, who has praised the Sherman's fighting ability. "But this does not mean that General Campbell took the position that we would never build a better tank," Krug commented.

Asked why this country had not put a heavier tank, such as the Pershing, into production sooner, Mr. Krug said it was not a W. P. B. function to decide upon types, but merely to see that they are produced when the military services order them.

Last Nazi Office Out of Berlin

LONDON, March 16 (AP).—The last Nazi office has been moved from Berlin, and all high officials now are in southern Germany, where big food stocks have been stored, the Moscow radio said today in a German-language broadcast.

Metaxa Reported Killed in West

LONDON, March 16 (AP)—The German radio announced today that George von Metaxa, Austrian tennis star and former member of German Davis Cup teams, has been killed on the western front. No details were given.

V-BOMBS HIT LONDON

London, March 16 (A. P.).—Correspondents were permitted tonight to report that German V-2 bombs have fallen on London and that people here have been injured. Censorship maintained a ban on the disclosure of details, any mention of the locality of specific incidents, or the date when the rockets started banging into the metropolitan area.

Previously, correspondents have been able to say only that V-bombs fell in "southern England." A communique issued before the relaxation of the ban on naming London said that a number of the bombs hit southern England last night, causing damage and casualties.

63 Nazi P.W.'s Retaken

London, March 16 (AP)—Of 70 German prisoners who escaped from the Bridgend camp in South Wales last Sunday, only three remained at large today. Ten fugitives were captured during yesterday and last night without resistance.

Churchill Thanks Americans

LONDON, March 16 (AP).—Prime Minister Churchill said today in a message thanking the British War Relief Society of America that "for more than five years they have never failed to bring comfort and happiness to countless British families who have been the victims of German bombs." The society has raised more than $45,000,000 to relieve war distress in the British Empire.

Two French Traitors Get Life Terms

Paris, March 16 (A. P.).—Admiral Jean-Pierre Esteva and Gen. Jean Henri Jauneaux have been sentenced to life imprisonment after separate trials on charges of collusion with the enemy. Esteva was convicted of collaborating with the Nazis while Resident-General of Tunisia. Jauneaux, who spurned a post in the British Royal Air Force after the defeat of France to take a Vichy post on the island of Madagascar, had violently attacked Britain in his writings.

Paris Thieves Wear Stolen U. S. Uniforms

Paris, March 16 (A. P.).—Six men, two of whom the police said were wearing stolen American Military Police uniforms, were arrested today on charges of participating in the February 2 robbery of $200,000 receipts from the Enghien race track.

French Courts Give 679 Death Sentences

PARIS, March 16 (AP)—France's purge courts have handed down 679 death sentences officials announced today as a court condemned to death Jacques Schweitzer, close associate of Otto Abetz, for collaboration with the Germans.

Abetz was expelled from France in 1939 on suspicion of being an espionage agent and was sent back by Hitler during the occupation as Germany's chief diplomat in Paris.

Schweitzer established a youth group on Nazi lines in Paris.

Drieu La Rochelle, 60, well known writer who faced trial as a collaborationist, was found dead in his home today with the gas turned on. A verdict of suicide was given. La Rochelle, was former editor of the literary magazine Nouvelle Revue Francaise.

Given Special Powers

BRUSSELS, March 16—(AP)—The Senate voted 119 to 2 today to grant Premier Achille Van Acker special powers to deal with black market and war profiteering activities. The chamber already had approved the measure.

Six Belgians Executed

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 16 (AP)—Six men condemned to death as traitors by Belgian courts martial were shot at daybreak today. Four of them, convicted of serving in the German Army, were executed in the Antwerp fort. Fernand Daumerie and Alphonse Devries were shot at the fortress of Charleroi, one for torturing prisoners at the Breendonck concentration camp and the other for belonging to Rexist shock troops.

At Brussels a military court condemned to death a Flemish journalist, Gerard Angement, for publishing newspapers under German control.

ITALY'S LIBERATION IN SIGHT, SAY ALLIES

They Praise Work of Patriots in North—Americans Capture Serra Near Bologna Road

ROME, March 16 (AP)—Allied headquarters, in a special communiqué lauding the activities of patriot forces in northern Italy, declared today that the liberation of Italy was "not far distant."

"The enemy has unceasingly attacked patriot forces in the following areas: Ceva, Mondovi, Val, Bromide, Acqui, Alessandria, Asti, Casale and Biella," the communiqué said. "But in all these areas patriot resistance showed good results, which augurs well for the time not far distant which will see the end of the enemy and the liberation of Italy."

Patriot activities were reported to have increased in tempo and, while no figures have been given on the number of patriot formations involved, they were said to have fought off all attacks by fascist and German forces at Val di Susa in the Piedmont region.

Enemy troops stationed at scattered points along a railroad in Piedmont have suffered heavily in recent operations, the communiqué said. Two enemy garrisons have been withdrawn from the area.

The regular Allied communiqué reported that American Fifth Army troops had captured the town of Serra, about 1,000 yards west of the Bologna-Pistoia highway, from which they might be able to cut across the highway north of Vergato and isolate the stubbornly resisting German force in that mountain stronghold.

Farther southwest an Allied raiding party penetrated into enemy territory north of Mount Belvedere and destroyed a quantity of German equipment and ammunition. German raiding parties also were active all along the Apennine front on the approaches to Bologna, as well as on the Eighth Army front near the Adriatic.

Vergato Under A New Threat By Yanks

Rome, March 16 (AP)—Fifth Army forces have captured the village of Serra and won positions from which they may be able to cut Highway 64 behind the German stronghold of Vergato, Allied Headquarters announced today.

After occupying Serra, about 1,000 yards west of the highway, the Allied troops pushed toward the village of Salvaro against stiff resistance.

The Germans have clung stubbornly for months to Vergato, a highway center commanding the southwestern approaches to Bologna.

Allied Raiders Active

Farther to the southwest, an Allied raiding party penetrated far into enemy territory north of Mount Belvedere and destroyed a quantity of equipment and ammunition. German raiders likewise struck into 5th Army positions at scattered points on the approaches to Bologna.

Both German and Allied patrols were active on the 8th Army front, but no outstanding skirmishes were reported. North of Highway 9 enemy mortar fire noticeably increased.

MAR 1 7 1945

CASSINO OPENS HOUSING UNITS

Cassino, Italy, March 16 (A. P.).—The initial step toward rehabilitation of this devastated community was taken yesterday when high ranking Italian and Allied officials formally opened the first of a series of housing units constructed on the edge of the old town.

The ceremony, in which United States Ambassador Alexander Kirk and Italian Premier Ivanoe Bonomi participated, took place just one year after a great fleet of American bombers, trying to drive German forces from the town, had turned it into a grim monument of modern war.

The famed Rapido River has been dammed and the highway has been repaired. But the year-old suggestion of desolation remains in the debris-piled town. The first of 120 one-story apartment type-dwellings was turned over to former Cassino residents who have been living in caves and makeshift quarters.

After the ceremony the official party rode up the winding road to the blasted Benedictine Monastery overlooking Cassino. Archbishop Giovanni Constantine, representing Pope Pius XII, dropped a trowel in a hole near the shattered building to symbolize the approaching resurrection of the monastery.

TRIUMPH FOR GIGLI

Rome, March 16 (A. P.).—Beniamino Gigli came back to the opera without advance notice or top billing last night and scored one of the greatest triumphs of his career in "Tosca." At one point, the huge audience held him on the stage ten minutes answering curtain calls.

Very few opera lovers had even noticed the tenor's name; it had been placed unpretentiously in handbills, in small type, well beneath Iva Pacetti's, but the house recognized him instantly.

ed the Army Oct. 1, 1942. He joined the crack 7[illegible]th Division in April, 1943—the same month he became a U. S. citizen. As platoon leader of Company A of the 86th he and his men aided in the scaling of a tremendous ridge west of Monte Belvedere which preceded the general attack.

The ridge, five miles long and 3,500 feet high, is so sheer the mountaineers had to use fixed ropes and other special peak-climbing equipment to get up its rocky sides. At the top they caught the German garrison completely by surprise, seized the entire mass and held it for three days against repeated desperate Nazi counter-attacks.

Officers of other units said the feat was one of the most brilliant mountain-climbing operations of this campaign.

Tokle had been a great skiier in his homeland but it was not until he went to the United States in 1939 that he became internationally known.

He broke records on some of the toughest jumps in the country — Iron Mountain, Mich., Bear Mountain, N. Y., Berlin, N. H., Steamboat Springs, Col., and Levenworth, Wash.

Spain Will Pay 83 Million for I. T. & T. Unit

These will provide for the transfer of International's 80 per cent interest in the Spanish company for $7,000,000 in cash and $50,000,000 in 4 per cent dollar bonds of the Spanish government.

The deal also calls for complete liquidation and transfer of balances held by International Telephone in Spain, or owed to it by the Spanish company. These total $26,000,000, of which $15,000,000 will be paid in cash and the remainder in short-term government dollar notes.

International Telephone also agreed to repurchase a 9½ per cent minority interest in the Spanish company and to keep International's technicians and advisers in Madrid with the company.

FINLAND TO HOLD ELECTION TODAY

HELSINKI, March 16—(AP) Finland votes tomorrow and Sunday in her first parliamentary election since 1939, recording for the first time the sentiments of a people who fought in this war on the side of the Axis.

Premier Juho Paasikivi, long an advocate of friendship with Soviet Russia, has demanded that the voters throw out of the 200-member parliament all elements responsible for taking the nation into war, and elect those who will knit the country more closely to her big neighbor from whom, he said, she "obtained freedom and independence."

Russia is watching the election closely. In Moscow, the newspaper Izvestia commented that the voting would be considered the test of whether Finland had "broken completely with her anti-Soviet past."

Paasikivi declared that a new national policy "in line with the principles set forth at the Crimea conference is demanded, and with it new people and new political leaders."

The premier, who is 74, came into the government last Nov. 17 in a shakeup which brought 10 new ministers to President Gari Gustaf Mannerheim's cabinet. Mannerheim has been forced to give up his duties because of illness and Paasikivi is in charge of the government as premier and acting president.

Paasikivi, who played a leading part in negotiations that led to the armistice between Finland and Russia, succeeded Erhu Castren, whose government had been criticized frequently by Soviet organs for its handling of problems stemming from the armistice.

While outwardly quiet, the Finns appeared to be evidencing considerable interest in the election. The biggest unknown factor seems to be the strength of the new democratic people's party, made up of leftwing radicals, communists and dissident social-democratic elements.

The current house of representatives elected in 1939 is composed of 85 social-democrats, 56 agrarians, 17 Swedish people's party, 25 Finnish coalition party, 8 patriotic national movement, 6 progressive party, 2 small farmers' party, and 1 Alanders.

Finns Exhorted On Policy

Helsinki, March 16 (AP)—The Finnish people, who vote tomorrow in their first national election since 1939, were exhorted by Premier Juho K. Paasikivi last night to rid Parliament of its war responsible elements and support a "new national policy in line with principles set forth in the Crimea conference."

The Premier said "our foreign policy never in the future must be directed against the Soviet Union."

He declared that "we have obtained freedom and independence with our great neighbor's consent an we must condition ourselves so that band of friendship and confidence between free Finland and the Soviet Union is continually strengthened."

Torger Tokle, Great Ski Star, Killed in Action

By SID FEDER

WITH THE 10TH MOUNTAIN DIVISION IN ITALY, March 16. — (AP) T/Sgt. Torger D. Tokle, one of the great skiers of all time, was killed leading his infantry platoon during an attack by the 10th Mountain Division across rugged Apennine peaks March 31, it was announced today.

Shell fragments cut down the 25-year-old ski jumper-soldier shortly after his rifle company of the 86th Regiment jumped off north of the 3,300-foot Monte Torraccia in a drive which resulted in an advance of four miles through some of the most rugged terrain of the Apennines.

Tokle's platoon was aiming for the little town of Monte Forte, two miles to the north, when a fragment from the heavy concentration of shells the enemy had been pouring on the American positions for days struck and killed him.

Final Contracts Drawn for Sale of Spanish Company After Year of Discussion

MADRID, March 16 (AP).—Spanish Telephone Co., a subsidiary of International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. of New York, will be sold to the Spanish government, it was announced today. The transaction involves more than $83,000,000.

Demetrio Carceller, Spanish Minister of Industry and Commerce, assigned by Generalissimo Franco to negotiate the sale, reached a complete agreement after a year of conversations with International Telephone interests, it was disclosed. Final contracts, already drawn, will be submitted to a full session of the Cortes (parliament) for final approval.

Open Berlin-Stockholm [illegible]

STOCKHOLM, March 16 (AP)—Telephone communication between Stockholm and Berlin was restored at 2 p. m. yesterday, was reported today by a single cable from Nurnburg. The main lines in Germany apparently had been badly damaged in an air raid.

NAZI CREW GIVES [illegible]

Stockholm, March 16 (A. P.)—A German patrol boat from [illegible] manned by a crew apparently desirous of deserting the Nazi cause, entered Swedish waters yesterday and was interned, the newspaper Dagens Nyheter said today. She was the first German vessel to [illegible] the paper added.

Nijinsky Reported Slain In Budapest by Nazis

Dancer Executed With Others Mentally Ill, Swedes Hear

STOCKHOLM, March 16 (AP).—The newspaper "Morgontidningen" said today that Vaslav Nijinsky, once one of the world's foremost ballet dancers, has been a victim of the German policy of executing all persons in Budapest suffering from mental or nervous disorders.

No source was quoted for the report, which came from Budapest. Nijinsky went to Budapest from Switzerland in 1940 in the hope of reaching the United States to continue treatment for a mental illness.

Became Ill in 1919

Vaslav Nijinsky, the Russian ballet dancer whose grace won him world renown and prompted one admirer to describe him as "the man of whom the birds are jealous," entered the tragic twilight of mental derangement twenty-six years ago and never returned to sanity.

He had not reached his thirtieth birthday when he was admitted to a Swiss sanatorium in 1919, three years after his last trip to America in the company of his Hungarian-born wife, Romola, whom he married before they spoke a common language, and their daughter, Kyra. There he remained until 1940 when he was taken to Budapest for continued mental therapy.

During the shadowed half of his life Nijinsky sank into profound melancholy, showed no interest in dancing and appeared indifferent to all human relationships. His creative artistic urge manifested itself in production of many macabre paintings and drawings, which were exhibited in New York in 1932 on the advice of Drs. Freud and Jung, the famous Viennese psychiatrists, who told Mrs. Nijinsky they would be of tremendous interest to students of the progress of Nijinsky's mental malady.

Mrs. Romola de Pulszky Nijinsky, daughter of the Magyar actress, Emilia Markus, last visited the United States in 1936 for a country-wide lecture tour on the dance. In 1934 she published a biography of her husband," which caused wide comment.

Nijinsky's sister, Bronislava Nijinska, has been active in the United States as choreographer for the films, the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, the Ballet Theatre and the Ballet International.

Hesse Is Identified

STOCKHOLM, March 16 (AP).—The Stockholm newspaper "Svenska Dagbladet" today identified as Oberriegerungsrat Hesse, fifty years old, supposedly a former attache at the German Embassy in London, the agent it reported yesterday had relayed Nazi peace proposals to British authorities.

An unofficial Swedish statement, issued here after publication of the Svenska Dagbladet story yesterday, said that a German peace feeler had been conveyed to the British legation in Stockholm through a third party, but did not identify him. The feeler, the statement said, was flatly rejected.

The newspaper Aftontidningen, meanwhile, asserted that there were rumors that German representatives also had presented peace proposals to Mme. Alexandra Kollontay, Russian Ambassador to Stockholm, "which she is supposed to deliver to Premier Stalin." Best informed Stockholm circles, however, declared that no peace proposals had been received by the Soviet Union.

American Editors Leave Russia

MOSCOW, March 16 (AP)—The three-man committee of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, visiting Allied nations in furtherance of a post-war exchange of news, left Moscow today to continue its world tour through India, China, Australia and South America. The committee, Wilbur Forrest, assistant editor of The New York Herald Tribune; Ralph McGill, editor of The Atlanta Constitution, and Dean Carl W. Ackerman of the Columbia University School of Journalism, were in Moscow a week.

Red Cross Sends Medicine To Poland

Moscow, March 16 (AP)—The first American Red Cross shipment of six tons of medical supplies has reached Poland and the organization's director in the Soviet Union is now in Warsaw conferring with Government relief authorities, Polish dispatches said today.

The Red Cross director, Elliott Shirk, was quoted as saying another shipment of 60 tons, including surgical instruments, is expected to arrive soon from warehouses in Russia.

It also was announced that the Soviet Union had presented the provisional Polish Government with 500 motor trucks for reconstruction work in Warsaw.

Pravda Condemns Lippmann Book

Moscow, March 16 (AP)—A new book on United States military aims by Walter Lippman was assailed by Pravda today as advancing an idea that is "contrary to all the principles of the United Nations" and is a "threat to enduring peace."

Pravda said Lippman advocated an Atlarntic community of powers separate from the Russian sphere, an dthus espoused "the old plan of Versailles, Locarno and Munich," reviving the idea of the cordon sanitaire.

"He makes scandalous assertions against Soviet democracy," said the article, signed by A. Gyorgiev, "and brings forward many-typed foolish suspicions relating to Soviet foreign policy, and he concludes that if the Soviet Union will not accept his ideas there cannot be real cooperation between the U.S.S.R. and the Western world.

Terrible Results Of Past

"Lippmann worries about Germany after the war . . . that it should find a place in the sun. He does not include Germany in 'the Russian sphere,' but in the Atlantic sphere. It is the cordon sanitaire all over again. Experience has shown all attempts to build peace without the participation of the Soviet Union brought terrible results for humanity.

"Now, with the Red Army proved to be the savior of European civilization from the Fascist destroyers and the Soviet Union become one of th emost important factors in international policy, this proposed postwar system is a modernized sketch of the sanitary cordon.

"U.S. Domination"

"Lippman's aim is to create a large politico-military bloc to include 42 countries with a population of one and one-half billion which would be dominated by the United States.

"When he speaks of the Soviet Union he demonstrates his lightheadedness and his harmful aim. He has gone too far in giving his own theories as the military aims of the United States. The Crimean conference has shown the unity of the great democratic states in the struggle against Hitlerite Germany and the decision to co-operate with each other in order to create a durable peace after the war."

Dimitroff, Red Leader, Ends Exile From Bulgaria

Returns After 20 Years With a Place in Government

MOSCOW, March 16 (AP).—Georgi Dimitroff, Bulgarian Communist leader, has returned to his homeland after more than twenty years in exile and has been named a member of the national committee of the new Fatherland Front, according to the Sofia radio.

The Fatherland Front has supplied Bulgaria with a government since the armistice with the Allies last autumn. Dimitroff was said to have been one of four members of the Workers' party, local Communist political organization, accorded places on the twenty-three-man national committee.

Dimitroff barely escaped from Bulgaria with his life in 1923 when the government ruthlessly suppressed the leftist Workers' Union, of which he was the leader. He achieved international attention when he defied Hermann Wilhelm Goering at the famous Reichstag fire trial, after which he was imprisoned, later was released and made his way to Moscow, where he became secretary-general of the Comintern.

Parley Criticized In Moscow

MAR 17 1945

Moscow, March 16 (AP)—Konstantin Hoffman, political commentator for the army newspaper Red Star, expressed dissatisfaction today with the results of the Inter-American conference at Mexico City because the member nations did not break diplomatically with Spain.

"Franco's regime was sired by Fascism and must be destroyed," he said.

"If the conference had severed relations with Franco, it would be a great blow to the Hitlerite Falangist agents in the Western Hemisphere. In order to prevent this, Franco's Government, through special emissaries in Mexico, obtained help from several delegations, as for instance the Republic of Peru, which led in the decision that the conference was inter-American and, therefore, would not deal with questions outside the continent.

"While in Spain there exists Franco's regime and Falangist agents are active in Latin America, we cannot consider the Fascist link with the Western Hemisphere liquidated. Franco gave citizenship to 30,000 Germans who fought on his side in the civil war. This shows how the Nazis can penetrate Latin America after this war, because from Spain they can easily change passports to those Latin-American countries."

30 Bulgarian Army Chiefs Must Die

Sofia, March 15 (Delayed) (A. P.). — The Bulgarian Peoples Court tonight sentenced thirty Army officers to death and eighty-three others to jail on charges of involving Bulgaria in the war against the Allies and perpetrating war crimes. Among those condemned to death were nine generals, including Triphon Triphonov and Konstantin Loukash, former chiefs of staff; Boris Dmitrov, former gendarmerie chief, and Assin Nikolov, former chief of Bulgarian occupation forces in Yugoslavia.

Smuts Coming to San Francisco

CAPETOWN, Union of South Africa, March 16 (AP)—Prime Minister Jan Christiaan Smuts announced in Parliament today that he would leave early in April for a commonwealth conference in London and then proceed to the San Francisco World Security Conference opening April 25.

BRITISH, INDIAN TROOPS TIGHTEN MANDALAY NOOSE

MANDALAY, March 16—(AP) British and Indian troops mopped up roving bands of Japanese in the southern section of Mandalay south of enemy-held Port Dufferin today and virtually surrounded the moated fort with a double ring of infantry.

The main clashes with the Japanese now are taking place on the southern outskirts of Mandalay and at scattered points in the eastern and western parts of the river city.

Small units of Japanese were moving constantly from one shelter to another, avoiding making a last stand. The railway station south of Fort Dufferin had been cleared of the enemy.

A few miles south of Mandalay leading elements of the British Second division advancing from the west made contact with troops of the 19th division which outflanked the city from the east. The 20th Indian division south of Mandalay continued to drive eastward as part of the battle plan which has trapped some 50,000 Japanese troops in the Mandalay area.

Flying columns of the 19th division had cut across a series of roads from five to eight miles southeast of Mandalay and were ambushing such enemy troops as managed to escape from Mandalay itself. Reports continued to reach here of armed Burmese firing on the retreating enemy, who have the use only of third-rate tracks winding through the rugged Shan hills.

British armored columns yesterday destroyed 17 Japanese field guns in sweeps across secondary roads in the Meiktila area south of Mandalay. It was estimated that 10,000 Japanese had been killed and more than 100 field guns destroyed since the British 14th army opened the central Burma campaign Jan. 7.

(The Eastern Air command at Calcutta announced that 39 Japanese planes were destroyed, probably destroyed or damaged in an attack by American fighter planes yesterday on the principal Japanese airfield in the Bangkok area of Thailand at Don Muang. One Allied plane was missing from the mission.

(The announcement said it was the longest fighter raid of the war in any theater. Fighter pilots flew a round trip of 1,500 miles).

JAPANESE TROOPS POUR INTO CHINA

CHUNGKING, March 16—(AP) The Japanese are rushing the construction of defenses and pouring troops into possible Allied invasion areas, a Chinese army spokesman said today.

Fortifications have been erected in the Shanghai-Hangchow-Ningpo region, the Hongkong-Canton area and the Foochow area, the spokesman said, adding that 150,000 troops had been massed in the Shanghai section.

The northern French-Indo-China region was another section picked by the Japanese as a possible scene of an American attack and troops were being sent there.

The Chinese spokesman said these moves also might be aimed at a drive on Kunming, strategic Yunnan province center, via the Yunnan railroad. Between five and six enemy divisions were believed to be in northern Indo-China.

Meanwhile, the Chinese high command announced Japanese resistance had been overcome 18 miles north of Kanhsien, fallen American air base in Kiangsi, and that the enemy was being pursued southward.

In Hunan Province the Chinese said they advanced against the Japanese southeast of Yuhsien, forty-five miles east-northeast of Lengyang, Canton-Hankow railroad junction held by the Japanese, killing part of the enemy forces.

39 JAP PLANES HIT IN RECORD ATTACK

Calcutta, March 16 (A. P.).—The Eastern Air Command announced today that thirty-nine Japanese planes were destroyed, probably destroyed or damaged yesterday in what was described as the longest fighter raid of the war in any theater. Two waves attacked the principal Japanese airfield in the Bangkok area of Thailand at Don Muang, just north of the city, taking the enemy defenders completely by surprise, with most of their planes grounded.

The bag included twenty planes destroyed, four probably destroyed and fifteen damaged. Of these, thirteen twin-engine, two single-engine and one unidentified craft were destroyed on the ground and thirteen twin-engine and two single-engine planes were damaged on the ground. One Allied plane was reported missing.

The location of the base for this raid was not indicated by headquarters, but it could not well have been less than a 1,500-mile round trip. Bangkok is some 750 miles from the Indian border and about 850 from the Eastern Air Command field at Myitkyina in Burma.

Yanks Destroy South End Of Japs' Luzon Defenses

By James Hutcheson

MANILA, Saturday, March 17 (AP)—Yanks fighting on Luzon island's scattered fronts have destroyed one end of the Japanese Shimbu Line east of Manila, cut the enemy communication line to southern Luzon and advanced within seven miles of Baguio, summer capital of the Philippines.

Further Gains on Mindanao

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced the successes today in a communique which also recorded further gains by American forces invading the Zamboanga sector of Mindanao island.

In the Shimbu sector, where one American general has been killed and another wounded in the fiercest battling of the Luzon campaign, "the entire southern flank of the elaborate Wawa-Antipolo line has now been destroyed with great losses to the enemy in both personnel and supplies." The U. S. 43rd (Winged Victory) Division reached a point four miles east of Antipolo.

The Japanese main line of communication with southern Luzon was cut at Maybancal, at the base of Morong Peninsula in a wide enveloping movement.

Shore-to-Shore Movement

South of Manila at Balayan Bay, the 158th Regimental Combat Team made a shore-to-shore movement to seize Dagatan on the western coast of Calumpan Peninsula. They then pushed inland eastward toward Mabinia.

Far to the north of Manila, the U. S. 33rd Infantry Division moving up the only good road toward Baguito, has pushed four miles northeast of Twin Peaks and is approaching Camp Three.

Highlighting actions elsewhere, 243 tons of explosives were poured down on the Annan naval base at Formosa and on the nearby Pescadores islands. Smoke from resultant fires rose 6,000 feet. Fighter planes swept low to destroy railway rolling stock.

Shipping Hit

Small shipping was effectively hit around Formosa and along the China coast. In all 23 surface craft ranging up to a 2,000-ton freighter were sunk or damaged.

A cement factory and several warehouses were destroyed in a raid on Dutch Borneo.

Prior to the issuance of today's communique, dispatches on the fighting east of Manila disclosed the 43rd Division had driven a two-mile wedge into the Shimbu line which put several thousand enemy troops in a trap.

Two-Mile Wedge Is Cut In Luzon Shimbu Line

Manila, March 16 (AP)—American infantrymen smashed a wedge 2 miles deep into the crumbling Shimbu Line on Luzon Island today, perhaps trapping several thousand Japanese, and seized 15 more villages in the southern Philippines to spread their Mindanao beachhead over 28 miles.

A Japanese machine-gun burst killed Major-Gen. Edwin D. Patrick, commander of the Sixth Division, while sitting in a foxhole on the northern end of the Shimbu line. Gen. Patrick, who was shot Wednesday, was the second division commander to be hit on the Shimbu line. Major-Gen. Verne D. Mudge of the First Cavalry is recovering from grenade wounds.

The Shimbu Line, roughly 15 miles east of Manila, was cracked by a heavy blow from Maj. Gen. Leonard F. Wing's 43d Division. Wing's infantrymen drove through between two of the enemy's southern defense lines and seized a network of roads, cutting off the escape route for thousands of Japanese.

Skip-Bombing Used

Annihilation of the Shimbu line was speeded by a new skip-bombing technique of fighter-bombers that sent bombs skidding into the mouths of tunnels and caves.

On Mindanao, Japanese artillery and electrically controlled land mines, used for the first time in the Southwest Pacific, slowed the American advance northward from Zamboanga.

The Yanks, who invaded Mindanao last Saturday, now have more than a score of villages besides the Zamboanga governmental center and two airdromes, one a bomber field 215 miles from Borneo.

Formosa Bombed Again

Four-engined Liberators dropped 74 tons of bombs on Formosa, scoring hits on an inland hydro-electric plant, and raked fuel-storage areas in the Pescadores Islands to the west.

Two hundred tons of explosives were dropped on bivouac areas and supply dumps at Sarangani Bay, on the east coast of Mindanao.

Jap Machine Gun Kills Gen. Patrick

With the U.S. 6th Division East of Manila, March 14 (AP—Delayed)—A short burst from a concealed Japanese machine gun killed Maj. Gen. Edwin D. Patrick this morning at a forward command post of his 8th Division.

Patrick was the second division commander to be hit by the Japanese while touring Shimbu line positions in the last three weeks. Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, of the 1st Cavalry, was hit by a grenade on the southern flank of the same enemy defense line. He is recovering.

Sitting In A Foxhole

Patrick was sitting in a foxhole atop a spiny ridge overlooking a ravine where patrols had killed nine Japanese shortly before their commander arrived.

Suddenly a Japanese 25-caliber Nambu machine gun—known to the GI's as a Woodpecker—opened up from bushes less than 50 yards below the foxhole. Patrick died later from an abdominal wound.

19,938 U.S. Casualties Reported on Iwo Jima As Yanks Capture Isle

MAR 17 1945

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Saturday, March 17.—(AP) Three American Marine divisions sustained 19,938 casualties, including 4,189 dead, in capturing Iwo Jima for an advanced air base 750 miles from Tokyo, Fleet Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced today.

Iwo was the bloodiest, toughest and costliest battle in the 168-year history of the United States Marines, their officers agreed.

Organized Resistance Ends

Nimitz' said organized resistance ceased on the volcanic black island at 6 p. m. Friday when units of the Third and Fifth divisions overran the last Japanese hold-out emplacements at Kitano Point, northernmost tip of the island.

Defending a piece of Japan, part of the Tokyo prefecture, the Japanese on Iwo fought and died almost to a man. Nimitz previously had announced that 21,000 of the enemy were killed, by conservative estimate. Prisoners were few.

The conquest toll, exacted from the Third, Fourth and Fifth Leatherneck divisions included 15,308 wounded and 441 missing, Nimitz said in his press release on the casualties. "A very considerable number" of the wounded have returned to action, he added.

The Fourth and Fifth divisions hit the black sand southeast beach of Iwo Feb. 19 "with certain knowledge of the cost of an objective which had to be taken," Nimitz stated.

This knowledge also was shared by the Third division, which went ashore Feb. 21 to support the other two divisions and take the place in the center of the line as the Leathernecks fought northward yard by yard through close spaced machinegun, mortar and artillery emplacements.

American casualties on Iwo were the heaviest of any island invasion in the Pacific war to date, exceeding the 16,525 in 24 days of fighting on Saipan in the Marianas.

But the end of the 26-day fight [illegible] for Iwo found war dividends already accruing to American forces.

Superforts Land on Island

So far, 30 U. S. Superfortresses have landed on Iwo airstrips which the devil dogs wrested from the Japanese. The planes, returning from strikes at Japanese cities, out of fuel or damaged, would have been forced to make sea crash landings and perhaps lost their crews had Iwo not been available to them.

The island is half way along the 1,500-mile route from Superfortress bases at Saipan, Tinian and Guam in the Marianas, and Japan. It not only has become a main rescue station for the big planes which recently have hit Japan with mass attacks, but also will in time be a base for other B-29s which, because of the shorter distance, can hit Nippon with heavier bomb loads.

Smaller Army, Navy and Marine planes already are striking the Japanese from Iwo airfields, which Navy Seabees started putting into use almost the hour the Marines had driven the Nipponese off them.

In his message of congratulations to all forces of the Pacific oceans areas which he commands, Nimitz said:

Nimitz Praises Marines

"To Marines of the Fifth amphibious corps and to all supporting forces I send my admiration and congratulations on an achievement that brings this war much closer to its inevitable end.

"In capturing Iwo which is as important as it was tough, you have overcome the most difficult defenses that skill and ingenuity could construct on a small island that nature herself had already made strong for military defense.

"Your victory which was assured almost from the first landing will brighten the pages of American history. Today, your fellow countrymen humbly and proudly sing your praise."

The Army gave the Marines praise in a message from Lt. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, commanding general of Army forces in the Pacific ocean areas, to Lt. Gen. Holland M. Smith, commander of Marine forces in the Pacific.

"Warm congratulations for the magnificent fight which has been made by gallant Marines in the capture of Iwo," Richardson said.

"It makees one proud to be an American, thinking of what those brave men have done."

The Marine divisional commanders on Iwo were Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine of the Third, Maj. Gen. Clifton B. Cates of the Fourth and Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey of the Fifth.

The Fourth and Fifth, after days of preinvasion bombardment by a fleet task force and carrier air groups, landed Feb. 19 on the volcanic ash shores on Iwo Jima. The island had been bombed daily for many weeks by American planes based in the Marianas and had been subjected earlier to carrier plane raids and shellings by American warships.

Although they met heavy fire soon after landing, and the shifting sands hampered the movement of mechanized equipment, units of the Fourth and Fifth drove across the island by 6 p. m. of D Day.

Iwo Fight Won; Marine Dead Is 4,189

MAR 17 1945

Fleet Headquarters, Guam, Saturday, March 17 (AP)—The Navy announced today that 4,189 American Marines had been killed in the conquest of Iwo Jima, strategic Japanese island within 750 miles of Tokyo, and that the battle for Iwo "has been won."

It added that 15,308 Marines had been wounded and 441 are missing, making a total of 19,938 casualties suffered by three Marine divisions in seizing the island.

Some Back In Action

"A very considerable number," of the wounded already have returned to action, the press release said.

Iwo was invaded February 19 by the 3d and 4th Marine divisions, which were joined a few days later by the 5th Marine Division.

Costliest Invasion

Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said today that the bloody battle, costliest invasion in the Pacific war, had been won and asserted the Marines fought "with certain knowledge of the cost of an objective which had to be taken."

Organized resistance on Iwo ceased at 6 P.M., Friday (Iwo time) when elements of the 3d and 5th Divisions broke through the enemy lines at Kitano Point at the northern tip of the island.

The casualties on Iwo topped those on Saipan of 16,525 in 24 days or organized resistance on that island in the Marianas, about 650 miles south of Iwo. The Iwo campaign lasted two days longer.

Forces Congratulated

Nimitz sent this message of congratulations to all forces of the Pacific Ocean areas:

"To Marines of the 5th Amphibious Corps and to all supporting forces I send my admiration and congratulations on an achievement that brings this war much closer to its inevitable end. In capturing Iwo, which is as important as it was tough you have overcome the most difficult defenses that skill and ingenuity could construct on a small island that nature herself had already made strong for military defense."

"You victory which was assured almost from the first landing will brighten the pages of American history. Today, your fellow countrymen humbly and proudly sing your praises."

30 B-29's Saved

More than 21,000 Japanese were killed or captured on this fuming, gritty black little island which already is proving a lifesaver to many a B-29 crewman.

Thirty Superforts returning crippled or with fuel low from strikes on the Japanese homeland already have been saved by landings on Iwo Jima. If the island had not been available to them they would have been forced to crash land at sea.

Nimitz, who formally proclaimed possession of the island March 14, announced at that time that army, navy and marine planes already were operating from Iwo Jima. They were based on captured Japanese airfields which were repaired and extended by Seabees who themselves were often under fire.

Praise from Army.

In a message to Lieut.-Gen. Holland M. Smith, commanding general of the Fleet Marine Force in the Pacific, Lieut.-Gen. Robert C. Richardson, commanding General of Army Forces in the Pacific Ocean areas, said: "Warm congratulations for the magnificent fight which has been made by gallant Marines in the capture of Iwo. It makes one proud to be an American, thinking what those brave men have done."

Friday's communique said that the Fifth Marine Division, on the northwestern side of the Island, had inched closer to Kitano Point, at the extreme northerly end of the island, despite intense small arms and mortar fire.

WOMAN PROTESTS IWO SACRIFICES

Washington, March 16 (A. P.).—The Navy Department released today an exchange of correspondence between Secretary Forrestal and an unidentified woman who protested the heavy toll of life in the taking of Iwo Jima. Said the Secretary: "There is no short cut or easy way. I wish there were."

Navy spokesmen said the letter the department made public was typical of a number the department had received. It read:

"Please for God's sake stop sending our finest youth to be murdered on places like Iwo Jima. It is too much for boys to stand, too much for mothers and homes to take. It is driving some mothers crazy. Why can't objectives be accomplished some other way. It is most inhuman and awful—Stop, stop."

Secretary Forrestal replied:

"On December 7, 1941, the Axis confronted us with a simple choice: fight or be overrun. There was then, and is now, no other possibility.

"Having chosen to fight, we had then, and have now, no final means of winning battles except through the valor of the Marine or Army soldier who, with rifle and grenades, storms enemy positions, takes them and holds them. There is no short cut or easy way. I wish there were."

The Navy Department said it had no information whether the writer of the letter had a son or other close relative at Iwo Jima. They declined to divulge her identity.

DUKE OF WINDSOR WILL LEAVE FOR N.Y. DURING APRIL

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 16.—(AP) The Duke of Windsor, whose resignation as governor of the Bahama islands was announced yesterday, said today that he and his Duchess will leave for New York during the latter part of April.

From New York, he added, they may go to his ranch in Canada, and later plan to visit Europe.

"My resignation does not mean a permanent severance from public life," the Duke declared, "because after the war men with experience will be badly needed, and I'll fit in anywhere that I can be helpful."

Attired in a smart grey check suit with a red carnation in his lapel, the youthful-appearing former king held a meeting with newsmen this morning.

"When the Secretary of State for colonies visited Nassau last December," the Duke said, "I told him that I wanted to be relieved when my five-year term as governor expired."

He took office August 17, 1940.

"Now that the war in Europe is near an end," he continued, "I have interests in Canada, America and Europe that need more than the spasmodic attention that I can give them from this distance.

"I shall go to England some day, but there are no definite plans or dates.

"We have no immediate plans beyond going to New York and probably to my ranch in Canada.

"We certainly will go to Europe when travel is possible. Both the Duchess and I love to travel. Nearly five years in Nassau is the longest time I have spent in one place since my adolescence, and the longest I hope to spend in any place in the future.

The Duke said that "I have a deep affection for the Bahamas, and learned much of colonial administration while here, and the Duchess and I hope to return to Nassau one day as visitors to see the fruits of the work we started here."

He explained that the announcement of his resignation was made two days before he expected it, and therefore the word appeared to come as a surprise.

He said he did not expect to be in Nassau when his successor arrives, since it is customary for the retiring governor to leave before the incoming executive reaches the capital.

This tiny colony will bid a regretful farewell to the royal governor who steered the Bahamas safely through a war-time economic storm.

W. L. Murphy, now colonial secretary in Bermuda, will succeed the Duke.

Windsors Will Leave Bahamas

Royal Governor and American-born Wife Plan to Say Good-by Next Month.

Nassau, Bahamas, March 16 (A. P.).—This tiny colony will bid farewell next month to the Duke of Windsor, the Royal Governor who steered the Bahama Islands safely through a wartime economic storm, and to his American-born Duchess.

An announcement that the former King had resigned the governorship, which he has held since August 17, 1940, and would be succeeded by W. L. Murphy, Bermuda colonial secretary, came yesterday as a surprise even to members of his official household. The Duke himself said that the resignation should not have been unexpected, pointing out that by the end of April he will have served all but about three and a half months of a term of five years, usually the maximum tenure for colonial governors.

Duke Is Surprised.

Apparently the Duke was somewhat surprised himself by the timing of the announcement. He was reported to have canceled a golfing date to meet with governmental heads when the news was made known from London.

While Bahamians and Londoners alike speculated whether the couple would go to the Windsor ranch in Canada, journey to Southern France, or live in the United States, the Duke said that he had no immediate plans for the future, but probably would stay in the Bahamas at least another month. A governmental spokesman said yesterday that the Duke's first word of the resignation announcement came from an Associated Press correspondent.

Editorial Praise.

The Duke "didn't know anything about it," the spokesman said. Later, however, it was explained that even the Governor's closest aids were not informed of his plans for resigning.

It was reported today that the Duke had wanted to quit last December, when Sir Oliver Stanley, British Secretary of State for the Colonies, visited here. The Duke was said to have agreed to remain at his post until a successor was named.

Recovering from their shock, Bahamians of all walks of life were almost unanimous in their praise of the Duke's accomplishments as Governor. Today, the century-old Nassau Guardian voiced in an editorial the "heartfelt regrets" of Bahamians at the Duke's resignation. The newspaper praised the "personal initiative" of the Duke in his efforts to improve the lot of colonists and declared that the Duke helped to make the colonial finances "sounder than at any other period in the long history of the Bahamas."

MANY ARRESTED IN HAVANA REVOLT

HAVANA, March 16—(AP) Army and police forces, acting swiftly during the night and early morning under the direct command of Maj. Gen. Genovevo Perez, chief of the army, and Col. J. M. Carreno Fiallo, chief of police, thwarted a revolutionary movement led by former Army Chief Jose Eleuterio Pedraza, the government announced today.

Not a single shot was fired in the arrest of more than 130 former army, police officers and civilians, Maj. Gen. Perez declared, adding that the speedy and efficient service of the armed forces prevented the outbreak of the armed movement.

Dr. Luis Collado, sub-secretary of national defense, in a statement issued at the presidential palace, said the former army and police chief, Col. Pedraza, was the leader of the "organized rebels," which, he added, included "former members of the armed forces and prominent figures of the past regime."

Officials said that "investigations are continuing and further arrests are expected."

While absolute quiet and tranquility reigned in Havana and the interior of the republic, with no outward signs of intense police and army activity, authorities are continuing their round-up of all suspected participants in the plot which, they said, may have "ramifications."

Special precautions have been adopted throughout Havana province, where the reported movement appears to have been centered, with particular vigilance enforced at all ports and airdromes to prevent possible escape of suspects.

CUBA SUPPRESSES ARMY REBELLION

MAR 17 1945

Havana, March 16 (A. P.).—Genovevo Perez, chief of Cuba's armed forces, announced today that the Government had suppressed a military rebellion against President Grau San Martin's administration. Jose Pedraza, former army chief, was arrested with about eighty other former army and police officers and civilians at a meeting in the town of Batabano.

Mexico Accepts San Francisco Bid

Mexico City, March 16 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla last night formally announced Mexico's acceptance of an invitation to the San Francisco World Security Conference and said he would make known his Government's delegates as possible.

New R. C. A. F. Chief Named

OTTAWA, March 16 (AP).—Air Vice-Marshal W. O. Johnson, Royal Canadian Air Force, commander at Halifax, will become R. C. A. F. commander overseas April 1. Forty-nine years old, he succeeds Air Marshal Lloyd S. Breadner, whose retirement at fifty-one was not explained in today's announcement.

Premier Koiso Named To Japs' War Staff

San Francisco, March 16 (AP)—Because the war situation is so grave that "the fate of the empire is at stake," Emperor Hirohito today made the unprecedented move of empowering Premier General Kuniaki Koiso to sit in on meetings of the Japanese general staff.

This extraordinary arrangement was announced in a Domei news agency dispatch broadcast by Tokyo to the United States.

Japanese premiers have never before been members of the Imperial Headquarters, which consists of the Emperor as supreme commander and the chiefs of the army and navy general staffs.

War Situation Causes Move

This "direct fusion of the administration of strategy and the governmental problems of war," said Domei, was decided upon after the Emperor had summoned the Premier and the Army and Navy chiefs of staff to the Imperial Palace to "instruct" them about the new arrangement.

This move was necessary, the enemy news agency added, because "the war has arrived at a stage where the fate of the empire is at stake."

Koiso Calls Situation Grave

Koiso acknowledged the Emperor's "concern" over the situation, pledged he would carry out his new duties and in turn admitted the war situation was indeed grave.

"The Empire is at the crossroads of its destiny," Koiso said in a formal statement, according to Domei. He promised "to truly integrate the Government with the Imperial headquarters for the fulfillment of our righteous objective."

The broadcast said that the Supreme War Council, created by Koiso when he assumed office last July, would continue to function. It consists of Cabinet members and ranking army and navy officers. It will strengthen its position, Domei said, because of the Premier's new capacity as a member of the Imperial headquarters.

Thousands Dead In Raids

The Domei report followed an announcement that many thousands of Japanese were burned to death, severely injured or left homeless by recent B-29 incendiary raids.

The Government hastened the evacuation of millions of civilians from Nippon's five largest cities, according to Japan's chief propaganda spokesman.

Tokyo broadcasts told of the flight from the cities and quoted Sadao Iguchi, spokesman of the Japanese Board of Information, on the extent of casualties.

Leaflets Also Dropped

Iguchi reported propaganda leaflets also were dropped by the B-29's. He called the raids an effort to "terrorize and weaken the morale of the Japanese people."

He claimed Tokyo areas bombed last Saturday by 300 Superforts "were not even remotely connected with war industries or located near military installations."

"Thousands were burned to death, thousands were severely injured," he said, and "many thousands bombed out of their homes."

Chinese Minister to Visit U. S.

The Chungking radio said yesterday that Dr. Wong Wen-hao, Chinese Minister of Economic Affairs and chairman of the Chinese war production board, would leave China soon for an extended visit to United States war production centers. The Associated Press reported. The broadcast, heard by the Federal Communications Commission, said Dr. Wong would be accompanied by Howard Coonley, American adviser to the board.

San Francisco Hails 320 Freed In Philippines

U. S. Troops Welcomed by Thousands; Wac Greets Husband, Listed Missing

SAN FRANCISCO, March 16 (AP).—After three years of imprisonment by the Japanese in the Philippines, 320 United States soldiers today returned to their homeland, and received the tribute and homage of San Francisco's thousands.

As the great transport moved through the harbor and to its berth, the thundering siren atop the ferry building touched off another welcome to the heroes of Bataan and Corregidor.

There were fifty-nine officers and 261 enlisted men in the group returning today. Last week, 275 who had been liberated came home.

Also aboard the transport today were seventy-three enlisted men of the British Army and twenty-six United States civilians.

Among those on the pier as the liner docked was a Wac, Lieutenant Mrs. Natalie Yates, who was able to arrange plane transportation unexpectedly from Gunther Field, Ala., to meet her husband, Major Jules Yates, who was captured by the Japanese as Corregidor fell.

A group of Wacs distributed mail to the soldiers—the first that most had received in many months.

The War Department announced that these New York soldiers arrived in San Francisco today:

Captain James G. Bruce, of 24 Hooker Avenue, Poughkeepsie.

Major Joseph L. Chabot, of 614 West 147th Street, New York City.

Lieutenant Thomas S. Hackett, of 23 East Main Street, Huntington.

Private First Class Thomas M. Johnson, of 64 West Eighty-second Street, New York City.

Sergeant Harry Kornfield, of 248 West Main Street, Patchogue.

Corporal John O. Manning, of Rochester.

Staff Sergeant Kenneth E. Mattoon, of Phelps.

Corporal Fred R. Schumm, of Concord, S.

Technical Sergeant Thomas H. Willard, of 58 East 102d Street, New York City.

Captain Lester J. Chase, of 389 Whitehall Street, New York City.

Big 3 May Form Romania Unit

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Creation of a Big Three commission on Romania appeared possible today after a United States call for consultation over establishment of a Communist-controlled Government in Bucharest.

The American move, it is understood, is based on the Crimean declaration pledging political integrity of liberated and ex-satellite countries and ruling out singlehanded action by the big powers.

The Romanian Government of Premier Petru Groza, head of the Communist-controlled National Democratic Front, took office March 6.

Situation Hard To Swallow

It is no secret in Allied capitals that the previous government of Nicolai Radescu was pushed out under Russian pressure.

While consultations proceed, the Groza Government already is functioning in Bucharest, thus presenting the United States and Britain with a situation that is hard to swallow.

However, negotiations are going on with Russia over formation of a government for Poland, also provided for in the Yalta declaration. It seems clear that any United States protest over Romania probably would keep in mind the eagerness of diplomats here to find a satisfactory Polish solution.

Curzon Line Problems Of Poland

By Sigrid Arne

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Four groups of people make up the 11,807,000 population which lived in that section of 1939 Poland east of the Curzon Line. Because of the Big Three agreement at Yalta, this area presumably will pass into Russian hands.

The Poles claim that in 1939, before war blotted out the area, the largest group was the 4,500,000 Poles, with Ukrainians close runners-up. Others say that the Ukrainians equaled the Poles. There were also in the area some 894,000 White Ruthenians, and some 850,000 Jews.

The original Curzon Line proposal was published December 8, 1919. But even then Polish troops were east of it. They remembered that Poland had once included the important city of Kiev, so they plowed eastward and took Kiev again.

Russ Pushed Poles Back

The Russians counterattacked and pushed the Poles back almost to Warsaw. The western Allies, afraid of the young Soviets' program, sent French General Weygand to Warsaw. The Poles' offensive was again so successful that Russia, at the Treaty of Riga, in March, 1921, granted Poland the strip which now probably will pass back into Russian hands.

The peoples who may now change their citizenship are split religiously—those who are left, that is. No one knows how many there are. Germans murdered them and Russians deported them. But for the most part the Poles and the small number of Lithuanians are Catholic. The Ruthenians and Ukrainians belong to a branch of the Russian Orthodox Church.

It's believed that most of the 850,000 Jews are dead. But in the years between 1921 and 1939 they were never enamored of the Soviets, since they were eastern Poland's small business men and wanted to keep their small private properties.

Problem Of Ukrainians

Unhappily for the future of the area, what Communists Poland had in her legislature (six at the most, out of 404 seats) came not from this area but from western industrialized Poland.

The Ukrainians have been a cocklebur in both the Polish and Russian flanks. They were asking independence before World War I.

They had hopes for a time during the Versailles talks. But they were finally split between Russia (the great majority) and Poland.

There is diplomatic gossip that the U.S.S.R. wants this strip partly to get the Ukrainians all under one economic philosophy, so that letters between families won't pass from a capitalist to a Communist area.

People Poorer In East

People in 1939 eastern Poland were somewhat poorer than those in the west. They produced raw materials—timber, oil, phosphates, gas. Western Poland turned out the manufactured goods.

That loss of raw materials is what is disturbing the exile Poles most now. Poland's oil and gas lay around Lwow. The U.S.S.R. has plenty of its own, but these deposits were all that Poland had. The only hope of the exile Poles now is to arrange for the Lwow supplies to be available for their industry.

As it is, they are saying farewell to the great timber stands in the north part of this strip. Sixty per cent of Poland's exports of lumber came from there, and Poland's exports of timber were one of her certain ways to obtain foreign exchange.

3024_23959

Cultural Center

The Poles still have some hope that Lwow may be left to them. A phrase in the Yalta agreement says "the eastern frontier of Poland should follow the Curzon Line with digressions from it in some regions."

Lwow is important to Poles, not only because of its oil and gas hinterlands, but because the city is a traditional center of Polish culture, much as Boston is to the United States.

Polish exiles now make this point about their eastern frontier: The old Curzon Line would have saved Lwow for Poland since that line stopped at the old Austrian-Hungarian border. You have to look at a 1914 map of Europe to understand that. The new line, called the Curzon Line, which gives Lwow to Russia, the Poles call by another name. Since it has been extended south beyond the old Curzon Line, it's called the Ribbentrop-Molotov Line after the agreement of '39, when Germany and Russia together occupied Poland.

ARGENTINA LOOKS TO SAN FRANCISCO

Washington, March 16 (A. P.).—Quick action by Buenos Aires, including declaring war and signing the United Nations and Mexico declarations, it appeared today, could enable Argentina to gain diplomatic recognition in time to be invited to the San Francisco security conference.

However, before a formal invitation to San Francisco could be extended special arrangements would have to be concluded with Russia, Britain and China as other sponsors of the United Nations conference.

The Russian press sporadically has attacked the Farrell government in Argentina, and there is speculation whether Moscow would raise any objections to letting it in on San Francisco.

However, since it now appears certain that President Farrell can get a Western Hemisphere blessing by taking specific actions, best chances are that general United Nations acceptance would follow.

STETTINIUS ACTS TO AVOID DISPUTES AT SAN FRANCISCO

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) Secretary of State Stettinius is using all the resources at his command to eliminate as many controversies as possible from the United Nations conference at San Francisco.

He has been working on this with the members of the American delegation and representatives of other countries. He hopes to limit the conference strictly to creation of world peace machinery, excluding all fighting issues such as what to do about colonial peoples and where to fix European boundaries.

Stettinius wound up today a series of conferences with congressional and diplomatic authorities. He saw the ambassadors of Britain, Russia, France, Belgium and the Netherlands. He also met with a group of House leaders, including Speaker Rayburn and members of the Foreign Affairs committee.

Earlier this week Stettinius met with the members of the American delegation to the San Francisco conference with a Senate Foreign relations group and with other Senate members.

His objective evidently is to smooth the way for the San Francisco meeting by working out now such problems as can be solved ahead of the conference opening April 25. Among these are differences of view among members of the American delegation who, like Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Commander Harold Stassen, do not accept the Dumbarton Oaks proposals without some criticisms.

Stettinius' idea is to give these differences of opinion full play but at the same time to be sure that in a pinch the delegation will stand together on whatever issues will arise in San Francisco.

That is the way it was handled in Mexico city where many differences within the American delegation were threshed out in daily meetings so that the United States always went into sessions with other countries with an agreed policy.

At the same time, Stettinius has been grappling with issues which may arise among nations. The position of France as a potential leader of smaller countries, fighting the delegation of power to the great nations, is still not exactly clear. But it may decide more than anything else the extent to which the Dumbarton Oaks proposals for a World Security council will be attacked at San Francisco.

Leon Henderson to Go To China as Adviser

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP).—Leon Henderson, former Administrator of the Office of Price Administration, is going to try his hand at solving price problems in inflation-ridden China.

The Chinese Embassy said today the invitation was extended Mr. Henderson "with the strong concurrence of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek" and at the recommendation of Donald M. Nelson.

Mr. Nelson recently visited China as a representative of President Roosevelt. Mr. Henderson is just back from an economic inspection tour in Europe.

FDR SEEKS TO SEND BARUCH TO ENGLAND

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) The White House said today that President Roosevelt hopes Bernard M. Baruch will be able to go to England on a mission for him.

It said that many problems will be coming up which will be likely to require trips to England by many people at various times. What Baruch's task might be was not disclosed.

Baruch is not going to Russia, officials said.

ROOSEVELT SEES LESS FOOD FOR U.S

Steps Into Inter-Agency Battle Over Division of Food Stocks.

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) President Roosevelt stepped into the inter-agency controversy over division of dwindling food stocks today with the assertion we will have to eat less to help feed starving Europe.

The American people will have to tighten their belts, he told a news conference in outlining what he termed administration policy on who is to get what from domestic supplies.

The people in this country have not suffered very greatly compared with some others, he said, adding they are not going to suffer.

Asserting the war is not won yet, the Chief Executive said he believed the country will back up the idea of keeping people alive abroad by retaining existing food restrictions at home and adding others.

Thus, he apparently sided with those in his administration who have opposed a war food administration proposal that some commitments made for Lend-Lease and foreign relief be reduced drastically and that military demands also be trimmed for the April-June quarter to allow civilian supplies to be maintained near present levels.

Representatives of the War department have resisted the WFA idea. A week ago War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes turned the whole matter over to a seven-man government committee headed by Leo T. Crowley, foreign economic administrator.

The President had Byrnes' announcement before him today when he began his food discussion. He said the reason for the committee was largely food, but not entirely so. The group, he added, will act as a clearing house.

Taking issue with critics, the President used sugar as an example. Suppose this commodity was short—although he said it isn't—and American consumption was cut 10 per cent. He contended the people here would still live, while sharing with those who need it more abroad.

Some need it more than we do, he said, citing what he called malnutrition in Holland.

Sugar, meat, butter and other fats are among the commodities for which demand exceeds prospective supply. War officials have warned that civilians here may have to get along with less meat, lard, cheese and evaporated milk and probably less poultry and eggs

TRANSPORT MEN WILL GET DRAFT DEFERMENTS

Railroads May Keep Up to 85 Per Cent of Those Who Are 18 to 30.

TRANSIT BREAKDOWN FEARED

Liberalization Must Be Made Up Elsewhere—Consider Coal and Steel Relaxation.

MAR 17 1945

Washington, March 16 (AP).—A threatened transportation breakdown has resulted in a liberalization of draft deferments for railroad, air-line and inland waterway workers under 30.

Other similar relaxations are in prospect for coal miners and steel workers.

The decision to allow deferment of additional key workers in the three segments of the transportation industry followed a prediction by Col. J. Monroe Johnson, Defense Transportation Director, that the nation's transportation system could not meet demands upon it this year "unless there is early improvement in furnishing man power and materials."

Instead of the previous limit of 30 per cent, railroads—which already have lost 300,000 workers to the armed forces—now may ask for the deferment of 85 per cent of their present occupationally deferred workeres between the ages of 18 and 30. This would be a total of 40,800 men.

The air lines may ask for deferment of 90 per cent, or a total of 4,860, and the inland waterways a total of 2,400. On a percentage basis, it is 90 per cent for Great Lakes carriers and 80 per cent for other inland waterways.

No Announcement Made.

The decision to ease the draft's pinch on those three industries was reached at a meeting yesterday of the Government's policy committee on occupational deferments. No formal announcement was made, presumably on the theory that it might increase pressure for liberalizations.

One highly placed official, who declined to be quoted by name, said, however, that the 30 per cent over-all limit still applies, and that it will be necessary to concentrate deferments in the critical activities at the expense of others.

In the case of transportation workers, the official explained, the ODT still can certify for deferment only 30 per cent of the total number of occupationally deferred workers under its jurisdiction. In view of the higher percentages for the railroad, air-line and inland waterways, reductions must be made elsewhere—perhaps among local transportation or similar activities.

Local draft boards, as always, will have the final say on occupational deferments.

A lively fight began shaping up meanwhile over extension of the draft law. Unless renewed by Congress, the act—or at least those sections under which draft boards induct trainees—will become "inoperative and cease to apply on and after" May 15. So, also, will several separate laws enacted later as amendments.

A strong effort is expected to write into the extension legislation a ban against sending teen-age inductees into combat areas until they have been trained a specified time, probably twelve months, in this country.

Another fight undoubtedly will center around a move to re-emphasize existing restrictions against induction of essential farm workers. Still another is in prospect over the insistence of some members that men over 30 with prewar children be deferred, if not completely exempted, from induction.

NEW TRANSPORT REVEALED BY NAVY

NEW ORLEANS, March 16—(AP) The U.S.S. Hampton, an attack transport, is one of the many effective United States war weapons developed under the veil of military secrecy.

Known officially as an A.P.A., the Hampton was constructed, outfitted, and recently commissioned at the Ingalls Shipbuilding yards at Pascagoula, Miss., where two others of the same class—the U.S.S. Grundy and the U.S.S. Griggs—have already been built.

The Navy lifted its veil a bit recently when Rear Admiral A. C. Bennett, commanding the Eighth Naval district, invited newspaper men from this area on a "shake down" cruise of the Hampton.

High points of this amphibious monster that can be made public:

The Hampton is 492 feet long, has a beam of 70 feet, and draft of [illegible] feet with a displacement of 17,000 tons. She is driven by turbine engines, with Diesel auxiliaries. The Hampton's speed is still a secret, but newsmen on the cruise said they saw her do "14 knots in a calm sea."

Officers and crew exceed 400, and there are comfortable accommodations for 1,500 troops, but an entire regiment could be accommodated in an emergency.

In the bow and stern are menacing looking 5-inch guns, set in open turrets. Back of the forward turret is a revolving platform with a number of 40 millimeter guns and back of this another platform with a batch of 20 millimeter guns. All of these can be used as ack-ack or for direct action.

Vinson Asks Okay Of World Fund

Washington, March 16 (AP)—Fred M. Vinson, on his first visit to Capitol Hill as Federal Loan Administrator, told Congress today that "economic isolationism is as dangerous to world peace as political isolationism."

He appealed for prompt Congressional sanction of the Bretton Woods 44-nations international bank and monetary agreements as a demonstration to the world that the United States wants to solve global problems by co-operation rather than "by the sword."

Asks Economic Co-Operation

"No country in the modern world can live in peace and prosperity in economic isolation," he told the House Banking Committee. "Without economic peace there is no political peace. . . . Nations which cannot work together to provide for order and stability in their economic relations are not likely to be good guardians of the peace."

Economically, he said, nations live "in one world."

Vinson, former economic stabilization director, said a prosperous world economy is needed as added assurance of prosperity for the United States.

"If this country reduces its purchases abroad, unemployment occurs in other countries; and they, in turn, buy less from us," he said.

"It is important to re-establish the producing powers and the consuming power of countries that have been devastated by war. Nearly one-half of the world's trade was formerly done with countries that have suffered from enemy action. A prosperous world economy requires the reconstruction of Europe and the Far East.

"It requires the development of countries that lack the modern means of production."

Col. Richard Park Jr. Is New Roosevelt Aide

Assistant for a Year, Succeeds Late Gen. E. M. Watson

WASHINGTON, March 16 (AP). —President Roosevelt has a new military aide, Colonel Richard Park jr., who succeeds the late Major General Edwin M. Watson.

General Watson, who died at sea Feb. 20 while returning with the Chief Executive from the Crimea Conference, was secretary as well as military aide to Mr Roosevelt. The post of secretary remains to be filled.

Colonel Park had been an assistant military aide at the White House for a year.

A native of Washington, he was commissioned in the field artillery in 1933 after graduating from West Point. He served four years at Fort Ethan Allen, Vermont, then went to a field artillery school at Fort Sill, Oklahoma.

From June, 1941, until January, 1943, Colonel Park was assistant military attache at Moscow and Kuibyshev.

CONGRESS FACES TARIFF BATTLE

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) A tariff battle, with party lines developing swiftly, suddenly burst upon Congress today.

The administration asked for new authority to reduce all import duties—some as much as 75 per cent under the levels of the Hawley-Smoot act of 1930.

Republicans promptly promised the hardest tariff fight since this act, the last general tariff revision, was written.

Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the House Ways and Means committee tossed the explosive new bill into the legislative hopper.

Backers said it is an important part of the administration's policy of breaking down world trade barriers.

It would extend the reciprocal trade act for three years and allow the State department, in trade treaties with other nations, to reduce by as much as 50 per cent the effective duties as of last January 1.

The existing reciprocal trade act, first enacted in 1934, already permits duty reductions up to 50 per cent of the 1930 levels.

Thus a duty reduced as much as 50 per cent below the Hawley-Smoot act prior to last January 1 could be cut in half again, making an accumulative reduction of 75 per cent. Many items already have been cut by the present 50 per cent maximum.

Rep. Knutson (R-Minn), ranking ways and means Republican, led off his party's opposition, declaring "this bill would strip the United States of all economic defenses. It would force thousands of industries to shut down and cause widespread unemployment after the war."

Chairman George (D-Ga) of the Senate Finance committee had this to say of the proposal. "I'm afraid it will aggravate the fight that has always been made in the Senate against the reciprocal trade program."

Doughton said the State department wanted the legislation, and it was regarded as a strict administration measure. Democratic leaders said it would pass the House, but were not quite so confident about the Senate.

President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Stettinius both have been vigorously vocal recently in declaring that high tariffs are barriers to world peace.

Reciprocal trade pacts, under present authority, have been negotiated with 28 nations.

HOLLYWOOD UNION DEFIES AFL HEAD

HOLLYWOOD, March 16 — (AP) Movie strike leaders defied American Federation of Labor President William Green late today after the AFL top man in Washington branded the studio walkout "unjustified" and demanded that the AFL unions return to work.

"The strike goes on," declared Herbert Sorrell, spokesman for the striking forces in a telegraphed reply to Green.

The exchange of strongly worded sentiments came as Hollywood's 8,000 actors, heading into a mass meeting to hear the strike issues argued, received notice from the board of directors of the Screen Actors' Guild recommending they continue to ignore picket lines.

"We refuse to 'cease and desist' from using the name of the AFL in connection with our strike," Sorrell wired Green.

"We pay our per capita tax to the AFL and are bona fide AFL unions, but we also are autonomous and democratic groups and feel that we know what is best for our membership."

Sorrell said his conference of studio unions, which called the strike in a jurisdictional row with the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage employes, was "willing to abide by the decisions of the agencies for the settlement of grievances, but must insist that others abide by the decisions of the same agencies."

Green, in his telegram to Sorrell, ordered striking workers not to use the AFL name in their strike banners or placards.

Green's telegram read, in part: "I officially disavow your strike x x x I call upon you and those on strike x x x to exercise good judgment, terminate immediately the unjustified strike x x x to take up grievances for adjustment through agency set up for settlement of grievances during existing war emergency.

"I regard strike x x x as a violation of no-strike pledge made by AFL to President of the United States for duration of war.

"It should never have occurred and ought to be terminated at once."

In Washington, President Roosevelt said he had read only headlines about the film strike and gave no indication of intervention.

Hundreds of top flight movie stars and lesser players prepared to hear arguments tonight in the deadlocked strike at a meeting called by the influential Screen Actors' Guild.

MINERS REJECT OPERATORS' PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) John L. Lewis' soft coal miners received and quickly turned down today an operator counter-proposal on wages unofficially estimated to net them nearly 50 cents a day.

The union rejection was immediate and definite, holding to the miners' original proposals which operators had figured would cost them more than six times what they offered. But the UMW policy committee couched its turn-down to language inviting continuation of negotiations for "real collective bargaining."

The operators made proposals of their own on six of the 18 pay demands made by Lewis, and turned thumbs down on the other dozen. The rejected list was topped by Lewis' principal claim for a royalty of 10 cents a ton, estimated at $60,000,000 a year, for a union health and rehabilitation fund.

The producers estimated that Lewis' whole list of demands would come to about $3.33 a day.

Lewis and his eight-man negotiating committee received the operator offer, in preparation for the past week, at a morning session. Then a recess was taken until tomorrow and Lewis called together his policy committee of 250, which had been standing by since the original demands were formulated at the beginning of negotiations for a contract to supplant the one expiring March 31.

Steelworkers Join Lewis

Huntington, W.Va., March 16 (AP). Asserting that "we've gone under the banner of John L. Lewis," President James C. Johnson announced today a switch in allegiance of the local of the CIO United Steelworkers at the International Nickel Company.

Johnson said the local, embracing 1,700 members, will petition the National Labor Relations Board for a collective bargaining election under the aegis of the United Mine Workers, District 50.

The announcement followed by a few hours the seizure of local control by District Director W. D. Mackay, of the steelworkers. Mackay said the action was prompted by "internal affairs."

The Army on orders by President Roosevelt took charge of the big plant, which is engaged entirely in war production, several months ago.

Although it has since been returned to private management, Johnson declared the local to be dissatisfied with the adjustment between Mackay and the Inco management of grievances which had led to two strikes.

Mackay, whose district embraces eleven uinon locals here and in Charleston, Point Pleasant, and Ironton, Ohio, was re-elected director of the district several weeks ago, after which the Inco local charged there had been irregularities.

U.S. MAPS PLANS ON RECONVERSION KRUG DISCLOSES

WASHINGTON, March 16—(AP) J. A. Krug dragged the forbidden word "reconversion" out of limbo today, asserting that the government is working out "much better plans" than it had last Summer.

The War Production board chairman, who has abided for months by the White House ban on reconversion talk, told a news conference that reports the government is not making peacetime plans are "very demoralizing to management and labor."

Krug raised the reconversion issue himself, apparently in response to pressure from business for some inkling as to WPB's preparations for dropping controls and permitting greater civilian goods production after Germany collapses.

To the surprise of reporters, Krug proved willing to discuss the possibility of having one motor company build a nameless automobile if the Japanese war lasts long enough, though he said such a plan is not being considered now. Krug said the idea "might prove desirable" if civilian needs become extremely pressing before it is possible to release the whole industry.

As for V-E day itself, Krug revealed the White House is now trying to decide whether to ask workers to stay in their plants for victory festivities.

"Some feel we ought to try to keep them in the plants," he smiled, "and others feel that the celebrations in the plants would break up more material than they would produce."

The WPB chairman said he could promise that reconversion procedures will meet the problems of V-E day.

"We will drop our controls at the earliest possible date consistent with securing the all-out war effort against Japan."

The automobile industry, however, need not expect to get peacetime machine tools until they can be built without interfering with the ammunition, rubber, jet-propelled aircraft and other programs, he warned. The machine tool industry is "booked up to the hilt" with war orders, he added.

"But that doesn't mean we are not digesting the automobile manufacturers' needs so that, when we can schedule them, we will be ready to put their machine tools into production."

THE BRITISH, STILL ANGRY OVER MUNICH, ARE SUSPICIOUS OF EVERY GERMAN MOVE AND DETERMINED TO BE ON GUARD.

RED AIRFORCE FIGHTER-BOMBERS WERE SUPPORTING THE GROUND FORCES WITH ROCKET BOMBS AND STRAFING ATTACKS AND THE "BATTLE CONTINUES FURIOUSLY," THE GERMANS SAID.

AMONG THE LOCALITIES MENTIONED BY THE GERMANS WERE KLEBOW, SEVEN MILES SOUTHEAST OF STETTIN, AND BRUENKEN, THREE MILES TO THE WEST NEAR THE ODER. THE RUSSIANS RECENTLY ANNOUNCED THE CAPTURE OF KLEBOW, BUT THE GERMANS SAID "HOUST TO HOUSE FIGHTING" NOW RAGED IN THAT HAMLET.

GERMAN SOURCES EXPRESSED FEAR THAT SOVIET AMPHIBIOUS FORCES MIGHT CROSS THE ODER'S ESTUARY NORTH OF STETTIN IN AN ENCIRCLING MANEUVER, AND SAID THAT MOST OF THE 380,000 CIVILIANS IN STETTIN HAD BEEN EVACUATED. THE PRIZE CITY IS UNDER BOMBARDMENT BY BOTH SOVIET ARTILLERY AND PLANES.

BERLIN PREVIOUSLY HAD REPORTED THE RUSSIANS GATHERED ASSAULT BOATS AND BRIDGE-BUILDING EQUIPMENT NORTH OF STETTIN.

THE GERMANS SAID THAT AN ALL-OUT ASSAULT ON STETTIN'S DEFENSES BEGAN AT DAWN THURSDAY AFTER A DRUMFIRE ARTILLERY BARRAGE. FIVE GENERATIONS OF MILITARY MEN IN THE GRIFFIN FAMILY OF EAST CHICAGO, IND., WERE PRAISED TODAY BY COL.HENRY MACDONALD OF SAN FRANCISCO, COMMANDING OFFICER OF THE 305TH BOMBER GROUP.

THE COLONEL'S COMMENT CAME AFTER RECEIPT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN H. GRIFFIN, FATHER OF THE CO-PILOT OF A FLYING FORTRESS WHO WAS KILLED ON HIS FIRST COMBAT MISSION.

THE FATHER REQUESTED INFORMATION ABOUT HIS SON, FLIGHT OFFICER JOHN A.GRIFFIN, KILLED WHEN HIS PLANE CRASHED BECAUSE OF POOR VISIBILITY ON ITS RETURN FROM KASSEL, GERMANY. THE LETTER OUTLINED THE FAMILY'S RECORD OF MILITARY SERVICE IN THE U.S.ARMY.

THE FLIER'S GREAT GREAT GRANDFATHER FOUGHT TWO YEARS IN THE WAR OF 1812; HIS GREAT GRANDFATHER SERVED THREE YEARS IN THE CIVIL WAR, AS A CAPTAIN; HIS GRANDFATHER ALSO WAS IN THE CIVIL WAR AS A LIEUTENANT; AND THE FATHER HIMSELF FOUGHT ON THE MEXICAN BORDER AND WITH THE RAINBOW DIVISION IN FRANCE AND GERMANY DURING THE FIRST WORLD WAR.

THE LETTER ADDED THAT THE FLIER'S GREAT GREAT GREAT GRANDMOTHER HAD HELPED FEED WASHINGTON'S CONTINENTAL ARMY AT VALLEY FORGE.

LONDON, MARCH 16-(AP)-JAPAN DISCARDED HER SYSTEM OF MILITARY SUPERIORITY OVER CIVIL AUTHORITY BY IMPERIAL ORDER TODAY AS AN OFFICIAL SPOKESMAN ANNOUNCED THERE WERE THOUSANDS OF HOMELESS, MANY DEAD AND SERIOUSLY WOUNDED FROM U.S. AIR RAIDS.

A BROADCAST SAID EMPEROR HIROHITO HAD EMPOWERED PREMIER KOISO TO SIT IN ON MEETINGS OF THE JAPANESE GENERAL STAFF BECAUSE OF THE GRAVE WAR SITUATION.

THE BROADCAST QUOTED AN ANNOUNCEMENT BY KOISO AS SAYING:

"I HAVE BEEN EMPOWERED BY THE AUGUST EMPEROR TO TAKE PART IN THE DELIBERATIONS AT IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS AT THIS MOMENT WHEN THE WAR SITUATION IS SO GRAVE THAT THE FATE OF OUR COUNTRY IS IN THE BALANCE."

KOISO ADDED:

"THE GOVERNMENT AND IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS HAVE NOW BEEN FUSED INTO ONE BODY."

LONDON, MARCH 16-(AP)-THE GERMAN RADIO, WHICH PREVIOUSLY ESTIMATED THAT 100,000 AMERICAN TROOPS HAVE BEEN POURED INTO THE REMAGEN BRIDGEHEAD, DECLARED TODAY THAT FOUR MORE DIVISIONS WERE BEING MOVED INTO THE AREA, MAKING IT "THE BIGGEST SINGLE CONCENTRATION OF POWER ON A NARROW FRONT EVER SEEN IN THIS WAR."

"EVEN DURING THE INVASION IN NORMANDY THERE WAS NOTHING TO COMPARE WITH IT," DECLARED GERMAN WAR REPORTER FRANZ WESTHOFF. "THE SITUATION IS LIKE A BOILER UNDER MAXIMUM PRESSURE AND READY TO EXPLODE FROM PENT UP ENERGY."

THE BROADCAST ALSO ASSERTED THAT LT.GEN.LEONARD GEROW, COMMANDER OF THE NEW U.S.15TH ARMY, NOW WAS AT THE HEAD OF THE FORCES ON THE EAST BANK OF THE RHINE.

NO FOOD IS BEING BROUGHT IN FOR CIVILIANS--BOTH THEY AND DISPLACED PERSONS ARE BEING FED FROM EXISTING STOCKS. COLOGNE'S FOOD STOCKS IN HOMES, SHOPS AND PUBLIC WAREHOUSES ARE ESTIMATED TO BE SUFFICIENT FOR THREE MONTHS.

DESPITE EXTENSIVE DESTRUCTION IN THE RHINELAND, DENISON REPORTED SOME FACTORIES ALREADY WERE OPERATING AND OTHERS WOULD BE OPERATING SOON WITH GERMAN LABOR AND MATERIAL.

THESE FACTORIES INCLUDE SOAP, BLANKET AND SHOE-MAKING ESTABLISHMENTS. SOME OF THE SOAP WILL BE SENT TO BELGIUM, WHERE A SHORTAGE HAS CAUSED MANY CASES OF SCABIES. SOME SHOES AND BLANKETS WILL GO TO DISPLACED PERSONS AND TO WORKERS IN BELGIUM AND FRANCE.

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY LABORERS ALREADY ARE AT WORK FOR THE AMG REPAIRING ROADS AND STRUCTURES IN COLOGNE AND MORE WILL BE HIRED, DENISON SAID. MANY GROCERY, HARDWARE AND BUILDING MATERIAL SHOPS WILL BE OPENED TOMORROW UNDER AMG PERMITS.

THE PATROL, WHICH COLLINS DESCRIBED AS "THE MOST EFFECTIVE THIS DIVISION EVER HAD" BEGAN ON THE 232ND INFANTRY REGIMENT FRONT AT 7:30 P.M. MARCH 9 AND WAS TO HAVE BEEN FOR 48 HOURS BUT WAS PROLONGED 30 HOURS LONGER. Ret with U.S. Prod Lt. (Hawkins) executed.

IN ADDITION TO GAINING INFORMATION ON THE ENEMY, THE SCOUTS CAREFULLY NOTED THE EFFECT OF OUR ARTILLERY WHEN THEY WERE CAUGHT BY A STORM OF SHELLS IN THE SPRUCE WOODS. IN THEIR REPORT THEY SUGGESTED OUR GUNNERS WERE USING THE WRONG KIND OF FUSE FOR THE MOST EFFECTIVE FIRE IN DECIDUOUS TIMBER, ADDING THAT ANOTHER TYPE OF FUSE WOULD HAVE RESULTED IN "MEMBERS OF THE PATROL BEING WOUNDED IF NOT KILLED."

ONCE THEY WERE CAUGHT IN BETWEEN A PARTY OF THE ENEMY ON THE RIDGE AHEAD OF THEM AND SHELLFIRE FROM THEIR OWN GUNS. ANOTHER TIME THEY WERE BETWEEN TWO GERMAN MACHINEGUN POSTS, SO CLOSE THAT THEY COULD HEAR THE BOLTS OF BOTH WEAPONS. ONCE THEY PICKED THEIR WAY RIGHT THROUGH A GERMAN BIVOUAC AREA.

A104

SEARCHING LATE ONE AFTERNOON FOR A PLACE TO SPEND THE NIGHT, JONES REPORTED THEY "RAN ACROSS WHAT LOOKED LIKE A GERMAN GRAVE WHICH TURNED OUT TO BE A FELLOW SLEEPING IN HIS SACK WITH HIS HELMET HANGING ON A STICK."

THE PATROL FIGURED IT WOULD NOT BE WISE TO MOVE AROUND WHILE THE ENEMY WAS SLEEPING SO THEY LAY QUIET AND LET THE GERMAN MOVE AWAY WHEN HE AWAKENED.

THEY GOT VERY LITTLE SLEEP AND HAD TO LIVE ON CHOCOLATE BARS BUT NEVER WERE SEEN BY THE ENEMY AND DIDN'T HAVE TO FIRE A SHOT.

THEIR CLOSEST CALL CAME WHEN RETURNING TO THEIR OWN LINES AT 1.30 A.M. MAARCH 13. A NERVOUS GI TOSSED A HAND GRENADE AT THEM.

ALL THREE VOLUNTEERED FOR THE DANGEROUS JOB, A PART OF THEIR TASK IN THE INTELLIGENCE AND RECONNAISSANCE PLATOON. NONE EXCEPT WOFFARD HAD ANY EXTENSIVE KNOWLEDGE OF WOODCRAFT, BUT THE ARKANSAN HAD ENOUGH FOR ALL.

THE SERGEANT, A 30-YEAR-OLD GRADUATE OF THE UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS, IS A CORN BREEDER BY PROFESSION AND AN ENTYMOLOGIST FOR RELAXATION. HE ALMOST NEVER SPEAKS ABOVE A WHISPER AND WHISPERS ONLY WHEN HE HAS SOMETHING WORTH SAYING.

JONES WAS A SOPHOMORE AT DARTMOUTH WHEN HE ENTERED THE ARMY IN 1942. HE WON THE BRONZE STAR LAST JANUARY AT KILSTETT FOR RUSHING TWO ANTITANK GUNS INTO POSITION UNDER HEAVY FIRE FROM SMALL ARMS, MORTARS AND 88S. THAT MEDAL ARRIVED THE SAME DAY THE GENERAL PINNED A SILVER STAR ON HIM.

LEAD BITCHE

BY LEWIS HAWKINS

WITH THE U.S.SEVENTH ARMY, MARCH 16-(AP)-INFANTRYMEN OF THE SEVENTH ARMY CAPTURED THE FRENCH FORTRESS TOWN OF BITCHE TODAY, BRINGING LT. GEN ALEXANDER M.PATCH HIS BIGGEST PRIZE OF THE TWO-DAY OLD OFFENSIVE.

THE ATTACKING YANKS CONTINUED TO MAKE SLOW BUT STEADY PROGRESS ALONG THE 50-MILE LINE FROM WEST OF SAARBRUECKEN TO THE RHINE RIVER.

BITCHE STOOD OFF THE 100TH DIVISION UNDER MAJ.GEN.WITHERS A.BURRESS THROUGH A WEEK OF FIERCE FIGHTING LAST DECEMBER BUT TODAY THE SAME OUTFIT OVERRAN THE CITY IN A FEW HOURS AGAINST FEEBLE RESISTANCE.

THE CITY, A TOWERING, MASSIVE CITADEL, HAD NEVER BEEN STORMED AND CAPTURED SINCE IT WAS BUILT 200 YEARS AGO. IT WITHSTOOD ALL ASSAULTS IN THE FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR OF 1870.

MAR 17 1945

ONCE INSIDE THE CITY, THE SEVENTH ARMY FOUND NO ENEMY OPPOSITION.

THE 63RD DIVISION SCORED GAINS DESCRIBED OFFICIALLY AS "SEVERAL KILOMETERS" NORTH AND EAST OF FECHINGEN, WHICH LIES THREE MILES SOUTHEAST OF SAARBRUECKEN.

ALTHOUGH THE LIMITS OF THIS ADVANCE WERE NOT DISCLOSED, IT WAS OBVIOUS THAT FORWARD ELEMENTS OF MAJ.GEN.LEWIS E.HIBBS' DIVISION MUST BE HARD UP AGAINST THE OUTER SIEGFRIED LINE.

HABKIRCHEN, ON THE NORTH BANK OF THE BLIES RIVER THREE MILES EAST OF SARREGUEMINES, WAS CLEARED BY ANOTHER DIVISION AFTER MORE THAN 24 HOURS OF HOUSE TO HOUSE FIGHTING.

OTHER UNITS FOUGHT IN THE BEBELSHEIM AREA, TWO MILES TO THE NORTH. THE GERMANS WERE USING TANKS IN SMALL-SCALE DEFENSIVE ATTACKS, TWO BEING KNOCKED OUT BY THE 63RD TWO MILES EAST OF FECHINGEN. THREE OTHERS WERE DESTROYED NEAR BLIESBRUECK, FOUR MILES EAST OF SARREGUEMINE.

IN ADDITION TO CAPTURING BITCHE, THE 100TH PRESSED ON THROUGH THE WOODS NORTH OF TOWN.

THE 42ND RAINBOW DIVISION FIVE MILES TO THE SOUTHEAST CLEARED OUT THE HARDT MOUNTAIN VILLAGE OF MELCH, TAKING 95 PRISONERS, AND FOUGHT INTO MOUTERHOUSE. SMALL ADVANCES WERE MADE AT OTHER POINTS DESPITE THE BACK-BREAKING TERRAIN.

MEN OF THE 103RD DIVISION CLOSED IN AGAIN ON UTTENHOFEN, EIGHT MILES NORTHWEST OF HAGUENAU, AFTER HAVING BEEN FORCED FROM THE TOWN IN A COUNTERATTACK YESTERDAY.

FOUR MILES WEST, IN THE SAME ALSATIAN PLAIN AREA EAST OF THE HARDT MOUNTAINS, THE CACTUS OUTFIT CONSOLIDATED ITS HOLD ON OFFWILLER, ROTHBACH AND ENGWILLER.

JUST TO THE EAST, UNITS OF THE 36TH DIVISION WERE FIGHTING FOR MERTZWILLER AND MIETESCHEIM, BEATING OFF COUNTERATTACKS IN THE LATTER TOWN.

ON THE EASTERN END OF THE FRONT, FRENCH TROOPS EXERTING PRESSURE ALONG THE RHINE VALLEY MET STRONG RESISTANCE FROM AUTOMATIC WEAPONS AND REPORTED NO SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS, ALTHOUGH 70 PRISONERS WERE TAKEN YESTERDAY.

A TROOP CARRIER GROUP, EUROPEAN THEATER, MARCH 16-(AP)-GLIDER PILOT ROLLIN FOWLER WAS PROMOTED FROM FLIGHT OFFICER TO SECOND LIEUTENANT TODAY. AND HE TRACES HIS PROMOTION TO HIS YEN FOR A GERMAN OFFICER'S BINOCULARS.

FOWLER WON THE AIR MEDAL WITH OAK LEAF CLUSTER FOR "MERITORIOUS ACHIEVEMENT" IN THE NORMANDY AND HOLLAND AIRBORNE INVASIONS. HERE IS HOW HE GOT THOSE BINOCULARS:

MAR 17 1945

HE CRASH-LANDED HIS GLIDER IN NORMANDY AND IT CAME UNDER IMMEDIATE ENEMY FIRE. FIGHTING BACK, HE KILLED FIVE GERMANS WITH HAND GRENADES AND THEN SHOT FOUR MORE BEFORE HE WAS KNOCKED OUT BY AN ENEMY GRENADE AND CAPTURED.

HE WAS TAKEN TO A GERMAN REGIMENTAL HEADQUARTERS JUST IN TIME TO GET IN ON AN AMERICAN THUNDERBOLT AND LIGHTING ATTACK. THEN AMERICAN ARTILLERY PUMPED SHELLS AT THE GERMAN POSITION. DURING THE ATTACK A GERMAN COLONEL DROVE UP IN A STAFF CAR.

"HE HAD A PAIR OF BINOCULARS THAT I SURE WANTED," FOWLER SAID.

THE GERMANS WHO SEARCHED FOWLER MISSED ONE OF HIS GRENADES. WHILE THE SHELLING KEPT THE GERMANS BUSY DODGING, FOWLER HEAVED HIS GRENADE AT THE STAFF CAR AND JUMPED OVER A WALL.

"WHEN THE THING EXPLODED I CAME BACK," HE SAID. "THE GERMAN COLONEL AND ANOTHER SOLDIER WERE LYING ON THE GROUND. I GRABBED THE BINOCULARS AND A CARBINE AND RAN DOWN THE ROAD. THEN I STOLE A GERMAN MOTORCYCLE AND BEAT IT BACK TO OUR LINES."

LED BY ITS COMMANDING OFFICER, COL. FRANK MC NEES OF ST. RMMMX PAUL, MMM MINN., FOWLER'S UNIT, THE 435TH TROOP CARRIER GROUP, HAS SEEN AMERICAN ACTION IN EVERY AIRBORNE ASSAULT SINCE D-DAY.

IT WON THE PRESIDENTIAL UNIT CITATION FOR ITS PERFORMANCE IN NORMANDY.

FIRST ARMY
BY DON WHITEHEAD

WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY ON THE RHINE, MARCH 16-(AP)-AMERICAN INFANTRY TRAMPED TONIGHT ON HITLER'S SUPER MILITARY HIGHWAY, AN EVENT WHICH THE RULERS OF NAZI GERMANY NEVER ANTICIPATED WHEN THEY BUILT IT AS AN AVENUE OF EUROPEAN CONQUEST.

THE FIRST DOUGHBOYS TO FIGHT OUT ONTO THIS SIX-LANE HIGHWAY CONNECTING THE RUHR WITH FRANKFURT ON THE RHINE WERE FROM THE 78TH INFANTRY DIVISION, WHICH FOUGHT ASTRIDE THE AUTOBAHN AT 11:14A.M.

THEN IN THE AFTERNOON, ANOTHER UNIT OF AMERICANS LESS THAN A MILE SOUTH REACHED THE BROAD HIGHWAY. THE 79TH REACHED IT NEAR BRUENSBERG, EIGHT MILES NORTHEAST OF THE REMAGEN BRIDGE. THE OTHERS CAME BY WAY OF THE VILLAGE OF HOEVEL, WHICH THEY HAD TO FIGHT THROUGH HOUSE BY HOUSE.

THE GERMANS WERE DESPERATELY BUILDING UP FORCES FOR A MAJOR COUNTER-ATTACK AND TODAY THEY HIT BACK IN FORCE WITH TANKS FOR THE FIRST TIME.

THE BRUNT OF THE ATTACK FELL TO THE SOUTH ON THE NINTH INFANTRY DIVISION, WHICH WAS ENGAGED IN THE HEAVIEST FIGHTING OF THE BRIDGEHEAD WHILE ASSAULTING THE ENEMY'S KEY DEFENSE POINT AT STRODT.

THERE ALSO WAS HARD FIGHTING IN KALENBORN AND NEARBY VETTELSCHOSS, A MILE OR SO FARTHER NORTH.

IN THIS AREA THE GERMANS HAVE BUILT UP THEIR MAJOR DEFENSES ON THE EAST EDGE OF THE BRIDGEHEAD, AND THEY ARE PUTTING UP A BITTER FIGHT TO HOLD ON TO KEY TERRAIN AND PREVENT THE AMERICANS FROM SURGING EASTWARD.

THE GERMANS THREW IN 24 TANKS AGAINST THE NINTH INFANTRY, TRYING TO KEEP LT.GEN.COURTNEY H.HODGES' TROOPS FROM CLOSING IN ON THEIR KEY POINTS EAST OF REMAGEN.

WITH BLAZING GUNS AND BAZOOKAS, THE AMERICANS KNOCKED OUT FIVE OF THE ATTACKING TANKS, INCLUDING THREE TIGERS, AND BLASTED ONE SELF-PROPELLED WEAPON. THE STRONG DEFENSE KNOCKED THE ASSAULT BACK AND THE REMAINING TANKS WITHDREW FROM ACTION.

30.24-23965

THE ENEMY MADE ANOTHER ATTACK FROM WOODED COUNTRY NORTHEAST OF ROTTBITZE AT 10:50A.M., NEAR WHERE THE DOUGHBOYS CUT THE HIGHWAY.

A40

THERE WAS A SHARP AND FURIOUS MELEE BEFORE THE YANKS DROVE THE GERMANS BACK.

INDICATIONS ARE THAT THE GERMANS ARE WORKING HARD TO REORGANIZE THEIR SUPPLY SYSTEM FOR THE BRIDGEHEAD LINE, AND ARE TRYING TO GET SET TO MEET THIS SURPRISE THREAT.

EXCELLENT WEATHER FOR THE PAST THREE DAYS HAS GIVEN THE AMERICANS A CHANCE TO PUT THEIR AIR FORCE OUT IN STRENGTH AND SLASH AT THE ENEMY'S SUPPLY LINES.

WHILE THE GERMANS MAKE AN EFFORT TO BUILD UP THEIR FORCES AND TAKE THE INITIATIVE, THE FIRST ARMY IS STILL POURING FORCES ACROSS THE LUDENDORFF BRIDGE AND AN AUXILIARY PONTOON BRIDGE WHICH THE GERMANS HAVE BEEN UNABLE TO DESTROY.

SHOULD THE ENEMY GET A RUN OF BAD FLYING WEATHER, IT IS POSSIBLE HE WILL BE ABLE TO ASSEMBLE A FORMIDABLE PANZER AND INFANTRY FORCE TO MEET THIS THREAT.

THE ADVANCES DURING THE DAY EXPANDED THE BRIDGEHEAD TO 13 MILES WIDE AND SEVEN MILES DEEP.

ON THE NORTH FLANK, THE 78TH INFANTRY DIVISION SENT UNITS THROUGH KOENIGSWINTER ALONG THE RHINE AND TO ITTENBACH, THREE MILES EAST.

IN THE SOUTH, TROOPS BEGAN THE JOB OF CLEARING HOENNINGEN AFTER SEIZING HIGH GROUND DOMINATING THE TOWN.

WHITE FLAGS WERE FLYING FROM THE HOUSES OF CIVILIANS, BUT THE GERMANS LEFT A FIGHTING FORCE BEHIND TO CONTEST THE FINAL OCCUPATION.

THE AMERICANS HAVE TAKEN 50 TOWNS AND VILLAGES EAST OF THE RHINE SINCE SEIZING THE BRIDGEHEAD, AND IN ALMOST ALL TOWNS IN THE PATH OF THE ADVANCE, VILLAGERS HAVE HUNG OUT WHITE FLAGS AND ARE PLEADING WITH THE GERMAN ARMY NOT TO MAKE THEIR TOWNS A BATTLEGROUND TO BE DESTROYED BY AMERICAN ARTILLERY.

WITH THE 100TH DIVISION IN BITCHE, MARCH 16-(AP)-CENTURY DIVISION DOUGHBOYS SETTLED A THREE-MONTHS' OLD GRUDGE AND MADE A LITTLE HISTORY TODAY BY OVERRUNNING THIS OLD TOWN AND GRABBING ITS CITADEL WHICH NEVER HAD FALLEN IN HISTORY.

BACK IN DECEMBER, MEN OF THE 100TH FOUGHT FOR MORE THAN A WEEK TO OVERCOME THE MODERN PILLBOXES RINGING THIS OLD FORTRESS TOWN BUT BEFORE THEY COULD FORCE THEIR WAY IN THEY HAD TO BE CALLED OFF BECAUSE OF THE GERMAN BREAKTHROUGH IN THE NORTH. EVEN THOUGH THE FAILURE WAS NOT THEIR FAULT, IT RANKLED.

TODAY, HOWEVER, SGT.LLOYD CAIN, SWITZ CITY, IND., LED IN A PATROL AT 4.45A.M., SCOUTED ABOUT AND MADE HIS REPORT TO HIS PLATOON LEADER, LT.JAMES BYRD, POPLARVILLE, MISS.

THE LIEUTENANT LED THE PLATOON STRAIGHT DOWN THE MAIN ROAD FROM THE EAST. THEY WERE WELL INTO THE TOWN BEFORE THEY DREW EVEN SNIPER FIRE.

WITH THE U.S. 84TH INFANTRY IN GERMANY, MARCH 16-(AP)-SGT.WOODROW J.BOYETT OF KENSINGTON, KAN., WAS EN ROUTE WITH TWO MATES TO REPAIR AN ARTILLERY TELEPHONE LINE RECENTLY WHEN TWO GERMAN BAZOOKA SHELLS CRASHED INTO THEIR JEEP.

BOYETT, WHOSE PARENTS, MR.AND MRS.HOWARD BOYETT, LIVE IN WETUMPKA, ALA., ESCAPED WITH A NICKED THUMB. ONE OF HIS MATES WAS KILLED AND THE OTHER WAS BADLY INJURED.

THE SERGEANT TOLD THIS STORY OF THE 48-HOUR PERIOD WHICH FOLLOWED:

BOYETT WAS SEIZED BY SS TROOPS IMMEDIATELY AND TAKEN TO AN AREA WHERE 35 OTHER AMERICANS, 25 OF THEM WOUNDED, WERE BEING HELD SOME 300 YARDS FROM AMERICAN LINES.

THE GERMANS TOLD BOYETT TO FIX A CAPTURED AMERICAN RADIO. BUT BY MANIPULATING SWITCHES HE CONVINCED THEM IT WAS BROKEN. THEN THEY TOLD HIM TO GET INTO A CAPTURED AMERICAN TANK AND REMOVE FOUR DEAD AMERICANS SO THAT IC GUN COULD BE USED. BOYETT GOT IN, BUT HE DESTROYED THE TELESCOPIC SIGHT, MAKING THE GUN USELESS.

GETTING OUT OF THE TANK, HE BROUGHT ALONG ITS FIRST AID KIT TO USE ON WOUNDED AMERICANS. BUT HE SAW THE SUPPLIES WERE INADEQUATE AND SO OBTAINED PERMISSION TO GO WITH A GERMAN GUARD FOR MORE. AS A RESULT OF [illegible] THE INJURED DIED IN THE 48-HOUR PERIOD OF IMPRISONMENT. ALL THE WHILE, AMERICAN SHELLS BURST IN THE AREA BUT ONLY ONE PRISONER WAS HURT WHILE 10 GERMANS WERE KILLED.

AS THE DOUGHBOYS FOUGHT CLOSER, THE GERMANS PULLED OUT, LEAVING THE WOUNDED BEHIND. BOYETT SUPERVISED LOADING THEM INTO TWO TRUCKS ABANDONED BY THE GERMANS AND THEN LED THE WAY TO A FIRST AID STATION.

ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS U.S. NINTH AIR FORCE, MARCH 16-(AP)-THE SALT MINES IN THE SALZBURG REGION OF AUSTRIA AND BAVARIA ARE BELIEVED TO PLAY A CONSPICUOUS ROLE IN THE NAZIS' PLANNING FOR A LAST-DITCH STAND.

INCREASING EVIDENCE IS ACCUMULATING ON THE AMERICAN SIDE THAT HOLING UP IN THE MOUNTAINOUS AREAS OF THE SOUTH IS A WELL-DEVELOPED SCHEME TO WHICH THE GERMANS MAY RESORT AFTER BEING DRIVEN FROM BERLIN AND THE NORTHERN PLAINS.

SOME OF THE SALZBURG SALT MINES ARE IN ACTIVE PRODUCTION, BUT OTHERS ARE UNWORKED, MAN-MADE CAVERNS SUITED FOR STORING VAST QUANTITIES OF SUPPLIES. IT WAS INDICATED BY VARIOUS SOURCES THAT SOME HORIZONTAL BORINGS ARE LONG AND BIG ENOUGH TO PROVIDE UNDERGROUND STRIPS FOR AIRPLANES.

AS THE PICTURE IS PIECED TOGETHER HERE, IT WILL BE NO PASSIVE GAME OF HIDE-AND-SEEK. NOR IS IT SHAPING UP AS A PLAN TO PROVIDE RETREAT FOR A LIMITED NUMBER OF DIE-HARD NAZIS.

NIGHT LEAD ROMANIAN (720)

BY EDDY GILMORE

BUCHAREST, MARCH 16-(AP)-AMERICAN AND BRITISH REPRESENTATIVES ARE REMAINING ALOOF FROM LOCAL MANIFESTATIONS OF ENTHUSIASM FOR THE NEW NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC FRONT GOVERNMENT OF ROMANIA UNDER PREMIER DR. PETRU GROZA.

THE MISSIONS OF THESE TWO POWERS ARE NOT EXACTLY THROWING THEMSELVES INTO THIS ENTHUSIASM.

BUT GROZA'S GOVERNMENT APPARENTLY HAS THE FULL BACKING OF THE RUSSIANS, AND WHILE THERE IS A POSSIBILITY THAT ITS BASE WILL BE BROADENED (BY THE INCLUSION OF OTHER POLITICAL ELEMENTS) IT APPEARS TO BE A GOING PROPOSITION AS NOW CONSTITUTED.

(A WASHINGTON DISPATCH SAID THURSDAY THAT AFTER THE OVERTHROW OF

GROZA'S PREDECESSOR, NICOLAS RADESCU, LATE LAST MONTH, THE UNITED STATES INVOKED THE CRIMEAN CHARTER IN AN EFFORT TO PREVENT ROMANIA FROM FALLING INTO THE HANDS OF A COMMUNIST MINORITY. GROZA IS COMMUNIST SUPPORTED. A STATE DEPARTMENT OFFICIAL SAID, "WE ARE DISCUSSING THE SITUATION WITH THE BRITISH AND SOVIET GOVERNMENTS."

(GILMORE AND OTHER CORRESPONDENTS FROM MOSCOW ARE IN BUCHAREST ON A VISIT ARRANGED BY THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT.)

ANDREI VISHINSKY, SOVIET RUSSIA'S VICE COMMISSAR OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS, HAS BEEN A POPULAR FIGURE IN THE BUCHAREST DEMONSTRATIONS SINCE HIS ARRIVAL YESTERDAY. (VISHINSKY ALSO WAS IN BUCHAREST WHEN RADESCU WAS OVERTHROWN AND GROZA NAMED TO SUCCEED HIM.)

WHEN HE GOT OFF THE TRAIN HE WALKED THROUGH CHEERING THOUSANDS AND MADE A SHORT SPEECH IN A SQUARE, STANDING BETWEEN TWO STREET CAR TRACKS. LATER IN THE DAY HE WAS CHEERED IN THE SAME VOICE WITH YOUNG KING MIHAI AND PREMIER GROZA. THERE WAS EVIDENCE THAT HE WAS POPULAR WITH THE WORKERS AND STUDENTS WHO MADE UP MOST OF THE CROWDS.

HE AND GROZA APPEAR TO BE FIRM FRIENDS, SLAPPING ONE ANOTHER ON THE BACK, LAUGHING, JOKING AND BECOMING CONFIDENTIAL AND SERIOUS WHEN THE OCCASION ARISES.

GROZA, WHO TOOK OFFICE MARCH 6, LOOKS LIKE A PROSPEROUS RETIRED WRESTLER AND TALKS LIKE A POET. HE SAID TODAY HE BELIEVED HIS GOVERNMENT WAS HERE TO STAY AND THAT HE WAS "SATISFIED THE FUTURE WILL PROVE TO EVERYONE THIS IS A PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT."

"I AM A PATIENVOVVVVVV

PROVE TO EVERYONE THIS IS A PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT."

"I AM A PATIENT MAN," HE SAID, COMMENTING ON FOREIGN REACTIONS TO HIS GOVERNMENT.

AS HE TALKED HE LEANED BACK IN A BLUE PLUSH CHAIR IN HIS OFFICE, WITH ITS GOLDEN-BEAMED CEILING. HE HAS A BIG, ROUND HEAD ON A THICK, BULL-LIKE NECK. HIS HAIR IS CLOSE-CROPPED AND HE HAS CALM BLUE EYES. HE WAS DRESSED IN A SALT AND PEPPER SUIT WITH A RED TIE AND A STRIPED SHIRT.

HE HAD JUST COME FROM BIG DEMONSTRATIONS AT CLUJ (IN TRANSYLVANIA, JUST RESTORED TO ROMANIA AT THE EXPENSE OF HUNGARY) AND IN BUCHAREST YESTERDAY.

I WITNESSED THE LATTER FROM A VANTAGE POINT ON THE BALCONY LOOKING DOWN UPON THOUSANDS MASSED IN THE PALACE SQUARE AND JAMMED AROUND THE EQUESTRIAN STATUE OF KING CAROL I. I WOULD SAY THERE WERE 200,000 TO 300,000 PEOPLE THERE. THEY SHOUTED WILDLY AS GROZA AND OTHER MEMBERS OF HIS GOVERNMENT ADDRESSED THEM FROM A PORTABLE PLATFORM WITHIN EARSHOT OF THE PALACE AND THE KING.

GROZA AND HIS MINISTERS, TOGETHER WITH ANNA PAUKKER AND LEADERS OF THE ROMANIAN COMMUNIST PARTY, STOOD ON THE PLATFORM DECORATED WITH ROMANIAN, SOVIET, AMERICAN AND BRITISH FLAGS AND LARGE PORTRAITS OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, MARSHAL STALIN, PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL, KING MIHAI AND VISHINSKY.

THE CROWD AT ONE TIME SURGED IN FRONT OF THE PALACE, CHEERING THE YOUNG KING, WHO CAME OUT ON THE BALCONY AND WAVED TO THEM.

THE DEMONSTRATORS CARRIED AMERICAN, SOVIET, ROMANIAN, AND BRITISH FLAGS, AND SAW ONE CHINESE FLAG. AFTER CHEERING FOR EVERYTHING FROM THE UNITED NATIONS TO THE BIG THREE, THE CROWD MARCHED TO THE SOVIET EMBASSY AND THERE CHEERED VISHINSKY UNTIL HE MARCHED DOWN THE SYMETRICAL EMBASSY STEPS INTO THE STREET, WHERE AS MANY AS COULD OF THE CROWD MASSED AROUND HIM.

NO, NEVER WILL THE BALKANS BE DIVIDED AGAIN. OUR NEW DEMOCRACY WILL MAKE THINGS EASIER. YES -- YES, WE'RE ON THE RIGHT ROAD AND WE WILL FIGHT AGAINST ANYONE WHO TRIES TO DIVIDE US."

DEFENSES ALSO ARE BEING RUSHED IN THE FOOCHOW AREA ON THE EAST COAST, BUT HAVE NOT BEEN COMPLETED, THE SPOKESMAN SAID.

THE ENEMY WAS PICTURED AS POURING TROOPS INTO NORTHERN FRENCH INDO-CHINA FROM THE HUNAN-KWANGSI RAILWAY REGION TO FORESTALL A POSSIBLE AMERICAN INVASION THERE. CHINESE TROOPS DRIVING FROM THE NORTH TOWARD KANHSIEN, FALLEN AMERICAN AIR BASE IN KIANGSI, WERE REPORTED ONLY 18 MILES FROM THE CITY. THE CHINESE, THE ARMY SPOKESMAN SAID, ARE ATTEMPTING TO DISRUPT JAPANESE SUPPLY LINES FROM KUKONG, FALLEN PROVISIONAL CAPITAL OF KWANGTUNG ON THE CANTON-HANKOW RAILWAY, TO KANHSIEN. CHINESE ATTACKS ARE DIRECTED FROM THE AREA OF NAMYUNG, ANOTHER LOST AIR BASE CITY, AND FROM THE AREA OF TAYU, CENTER OF CHINA'S WOLFRAM MINES. AN EXAMPLE OF IWO'S MILITARY VALUE WAS THE DISCLOSURE THAT FIVE OR SIX SUPERFORTRESSES HAVE MADE EMERGENCY LANDINGS ON IWO DURING RAIDS ON JAPAN AND BEEN REPAIRED FOR RESUMPTION OF FLIGHTS TO THE MARIANAS. WITHOUT THE AVAILABILITY OF IWO, THE B-29S WOULD HAVE BEEN CONFRONTED WITH THE NECESSITY OF EITHER TRYING TO MAKE IT ON FOR MORE THAN 700 MILES TO THE MARIANAS, OR GOING DOWN AT SEA.

ALSO SINCE IWO HAS BEEN ELIMINATED AS AN ENEMY BASE TO SPOT THE B-29S IN FLIGHT AND RELAY WARNINGS TO JAPAN, THE MOST EFFECTIVE AIR ATTACKS OF THE WAR HAVE FALLEN ON NIPPONESE CITIES.

WITH THE 43RD DIVISION EAST OF MANILA,MARCH 16 (AP)-IN A HEAVY BLOW AGAINST SHIMBU LINE DEFENSES, 43RD DIVISION TROOPS ADVANCED MORE THAN TWO MILES DRIVING A DEEP WEDGE BEHIND THE CRUMBLING LINE AND SEIZING A ROAD NETWORK TO CUT THE JAPANESE WITHDRAWAL ROUTE.
CAPT.R.F.EGGERS OF LARCHMONT, N.Y., SAID TODAY THE JAPANESE COULD WITHDRAW FROM THE CRUMBLING LINE ONLY INTO THE MOUNTAINS TO THE EAST. THE ROAD NET AROUND TERESA, SOUTHEAST OF ANTIPOLO, HAD GIVEN THE JAPANESE ROUTES FOR WITHDRAWAL SOUTHWARD TO JOIN OTHER FORCES STILL ACTIVE ON LUZON ISLAND.
EGGERS SAID THE RAPID FLANKING MANEUVER PROBABLY TRAPPED SEVERAL THOUSAND JAPANESE IN THE AREA. THE WEDGE WAS DRIVEN NORTHWARD BETWEEN TWO DEFENSIVE LINES.
THE STEADY ANNIHILATION CAMPAIGN IS BEING PRESSED AGAINST THE DEFENDERS IN TUNNELS AND CAVES. PURSUING NEW TACTICS, FIGHTER-BOMBERS ARE FLYING AT A LOW LEVEL AND DROPPING BOMBS BY SKIP BOMB TECHNIQUE INTO THE MOUTHS OF CAVES, SEALING THE JAPANESE INSIDE.
DOUGHBOYS ARE DOING THE SAME JOB BY SLIPPING UP TO THE CAVES WITH GRENADES, DEMOLITION CHARGES AND FLAME THROWERS.

CANBERRA,AUSTRALIA,SATURDAY,MARCH 17-(AP)-WILLIAM MORRIS HUGHES, VETERAN AUSTRALIAN PARLIAMENT MEMBER, ISSUED A STATEMENT TONIGHT ASSERTING THAT STATEMENTS OF U.S. SECRETARY OF STATE EDWARD R.STETTINIUS, JR., AND OTHERS PRELIMINARY TO THE SAN FRANCISCO CONFERENCE ARE CALCULATED TO SERIOUSLY DISTURB AUSTRALIANS.

HUGHES, AUSTRALIAN PREMIER DURING THE FIRST WORLD WAR AND MEMBER OF EVERY PARLIAMENT SINCE THE FEDERATION OF AUSTRALIAN STATES 40 YEARS AGO, TOOK EXCEPTION TO PROPOSALS BY STETTINIUS AND OTHERS FOR INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP OF DEPENDENT AREAS TO REPLACE THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS MANDATES.
IT MIGHT BE, HUGHES CONCEDED, THE INTENT TO LIMIT THE PROPOSAL TO ISLANDS COVERED BY THE JAPANESE MANDATES. HOWEVER, HE ADDED, PRESS STATEMENTS DO NOT SUGGEST THIS LIMITATION BUT IMPLY THAT INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP SHOULD REPLACE AUSTRALIAN CONTROL OF MANDATED NEW GUINEA.
AUSTRALIAN SOLDIERS ARE NOT FIGHTING TO HAND OVER NEW GUINEA TO SOME INTERNATIONAL TRUSTEESHIP, BUT TO RETAIN IT FOR THE AUSTRALIAN COMMONWEALTH, HE ASSERTED.
AFTER THE 1918 ARMISTICE, HUGHES CLASHED FREQUENTLY WITH U.S. PRESIDENT WOODROW WILSON AND FRENCH PREMIER GEORGES CLEMENCEAU.

BUENOS AIRES, MARCH 16-(AP)-ACTING FOREIGN MINISTER CESAR AMEGHINO SAID TODAY THE ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT SAW HOPE FOR A "SATISFACTORY, DIGNIFIED OUTCOME" OF ITS INTERNATIONAL PROBLEM IN THE INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE INVITATION TO REALIGN ARGENTINA WITH THE REST OF THE AMERICAN NATIONS.
HE DECLARED, HOWEVER, THAT HE COULD NOT COMMENT ON WHETHER ARGENTINA WOULD DECLARE WAR AGAINST THE AXIS AS PART OF THE REALIGNMENT. DELEGATES TO THE INTER-AMERICAN CONFERENCE AT MEXICO CITY TOLD ARGENTINA THEY WOULD LIKE TO HAVE HER BACK IN THE AMERICANFAMILYOF NATIONS "IN OUR COMMON STRUGGLE AGAINST THE AGGRESSORS" BUT THAT ARGENTINA WOULD HAVE "TO GUIDE ITS POLICIES THAT IT MAY BECOME ELIGIBLE TO SIGN THE DECLARATION BY THE UNITED NATIONS AND ADHERE TO THE FINAL ACT OF THIS CONFERENCE."

MAR 17 1945

AMEGHINO EXPRESSED HOPE FOR SOLUTION OF ARGENTINA'S PROBLEM IN A FORMAL STATEMENT ISSUED AFTER A TWO-HOUR CABINET MEETING DEVOTED TO THE STUDY OF THE INTERNATIONAL SITUATION. HE SAID THE MEXICO CITY OVERTURE STILL WAS UNDER CONSIDERATION, PENDING COMMUNICATION OF FURTHER DETAILS. BEFORE REACHING ANY DECISION, THE GOVERNMENT WILL CONSULT "AUTHENTIC OPINIONS" WHEREON AUTHORITIES BASE THE NATION'S POLICY.
"THE GOVERNMENT," SAID AMEGHINO, "APPRECIATES THE SINCERITY OF INTENTIONS WHICH ARE DEMONSTRATED AT THE PRESENT MOMENT AND THE LOFTY COMPREHENSION WHEREWITH THE PROBLEM HAS BEEN FACED."
THE ANNOUNCEMENT THAT THE GOVERNMENT WOULD CONSULT AUTHENTIC OPINION APPARENTLY SIGNIFIED AN INTENTION TO CONVOKE AN ASSEMBLY OF CIVILIAN LEADERS WHO WOULD BE ASKED TO EXPRESS VIEWS ON THE CHANGE IN NATIONAL POLICY CALLED FOR IF ARGENTINA IS TO RESUME NORMAL RELATIONS WITH THE REST OF THE HEMISPHERE.
THIS ASSEMBLY WOULD AFFORD THE REGIME A SUBSTITUTE FOR CONGRESS IN DETERMINING THE GRAVE QUESTION OF A DECLARATION OF WAR WHICH WELL MIGHT PROVOKE UNFAVORABLE REACTION IN SOME SECTIONS OF THE POPULATION.

HAVANA, MARCH 16-(AP)-THIRTY FORMER ARMY AND POLICE OFFICERS AND CIVILIANS, INCLUDING THE FORMER CHIEF OF THE CUBAN ARMY, COL. JOSE ELEUTERIO PEDRAZA, WERE ARRESTED TODAY AS THE GOVERNMENT ACTED SWIFTLY TO FORESTALL WHAT IT CALLED A PLOT TO OVERTHROW THE GRAU SAN MARTIN ADMINISTRATION.

THE CUBAN ARMY AND POLICE WENT INTO ACTION 48 HOURS AFTER A CLOSE FRIEND OF FORMER PRESIDENT FULGENCIO BATISTA HAD BEEN ASSASSINATED IN A SHOOTING THAT SHOCKED THE ISLAND.

PEDRAZA, ACCUSED OF LEADING THE PLANNED REVOLT, AND THE OTHERS ARRESTED WERE HUSTLED OFF TO THE CABANA FORTRESS MILITARY PRISON ACROSS THE HARBOR FROM HAVANA.

THE ROUNDUP WAS DIRECTED BY MAJ.GEN.GENOVEVO PEREZ, CHIEF OF THE ARMY, AND COL. J.M CARRENO FIALLO, CHIEF OF POLICE.

COL. PEDRAZA WAS HELD IN A CELL SHARED WITH FIVE CIVILIANS ARRESTED WITH HIM. NEWSMEN WERE PERMITTED TO ENTER THE FORTRESS PRISON TO SEE THE PRISONERS DUT WERE NOT PERMITTED TO TALK WITH THEM.

IT WAS LEARNED THAT PEDRAZA, WHO HAD BEEN LIVING IN MEXICO, ARRIVED IN CUBA SEVERAL DAYS AGO FROM AN UNKNOWN FOREIGN COUNTRY ABOARD A CHARTERED SCHOONER.

THE FORMER ARMY CHIEF, WHO WAS OUSTED IN FEBRUARY, 1941, BY THE THEN PRESIDENT FULGENCIO BATISTA, IS WANTED BY SEVERAL CUBAN COURTS ON NUMEROUS CHARGES, RANGING FROM MALFEASANCE TO MURDER. HE WAS ARRESTED AT BATABANO, HAVANA PROVINCE'S SOUTH COAST PORT.

THE OTHER FORMER ARMY AND POLICE OFFICERS ALL WERE ARRESTED AT THEIR RESPECTIVE HOMES IN AND AROUND HAVANA. THEY ARE HELD TOGETHER IN ONE OF THE LARGE INTERIOR "PATIOS" OF THE FORTRESS.

THE ARRESTS CAME 48 HOURS AFTER THE SLAYING OF DR. EUGENIO LLANILLO, PROMINENT POLITICAL FIGURE AND CLOSE FRIEND AND PRIVATE ATTORNEY OF BATISTA. LLANILLO'S BULLET-GIDDLED BODY WAS FOUND WEDNESDAY NIGHT ON A SIDE ROAD NEAR HAVANA.

THE SLAYING, WHICH SHOCKED THE NATION, BROUGHT CHARGES FROM A NUMBER OF ORGANIZATIONS, INCLUDING THE REVOLUTIONARY GROUP "JOVEN CUBA" (YOUNG CUBA), THAT POLICE WERE RESPONSIBLE.

POLICE NOW SAY THAT TWO OF THE FIVE CIVILIANS ARRESTED WITH PEDRAZA WERE LLANILLO'S ASSASSINS. THIS ALSO WAS REPORTED BY SEN. EDUARDO CHIBAS, LEADING MEMBER OF THE CUBAN REVOLUTIONARY PARTY (AUTENTICOS) AND SPOKESMAN FOR PRESIDENT GRAU.

POLICE ARE APPLYING PARAFIN TESTS TO THE TWO MURDER SUSPECTS, SEEKING TO PROVE THEY FIRED THE SHOTS WHICH KILLED LLANILLO.

AMONG THE FORMER OFFICERS ARRESTED IS LT. COL. RAMON N. GUTIERREZ VELAZQUEZ. DURING THE PAST SEVERAL DAYS INSISTENT RUMORS IN HAVANA SAID PRESIDENT GRAU WAS CONTEMPLATING THE APPOINTMENT OF GUTIERREZ VELAZQUEZ AS POLICE CHIEF IN A MOVE AIMED TO TIGHTEN CONTROL OVER THE FORCES AND STAMP OUT THE WAVE OF TERRORISM AND CRIMES RIFE IN HAVANA.

DEFENSE MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID PEDRAZA'S PRESENCE IN CUBA HAD BEEN KNOWN FOR SEVERAL DAYS, AND THAT CLOSE SURVEILLANCE WAS KEPT ON HIS MOVEMENTS.

LAST NIGHT, AS PREDRAZA MET WITH HIS GROUP, REPORTEDLY ON A FARM NEAR BATABANO, ARMY FORCES UNDER BRIG. GEN. ABELARDO GOMEZ GOMEZ (CQ), INSPECTOR GENERAL OF THE ARMY, "SURROUNDED AND ARRESTED THE REBELS, WITHOUT FIRING A SHOT," COLLADO DISCLOSED.

AMONG OTHER FORMER OFFICERS ARRESTED WERE LT. COL. ANGEL ALONSO, CHIEF AIDE D' CAMP OF BATISTA; MAJS. PEDRO RODRIGUEZ OCHOA, RENE L. SCOTT, ADOLFO MORE AND PEDRO MUDARRA; CAPT. BELISARIO HERNANDEZ, FORMER BATISTA AIDE, AND HIS TWO SONS, AND LT. HERIBERTO HERNANDEZ.

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 10-(AP)-)-MANY THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE WERE BURNED TO DEATH, SEVERELY INJURED OR LEFT HOMELESS BY RECENT B-29 INCENDIARY RAIDS, JAPAN'S CHIEF PROPAGANDA SPOKESMAN SAID TODAY AS THE GOVERNMENT HASTENED THE EVACUATION OF MILLIONS OF CIVILIA FROM NIPPON'S FIVE LARGEST CITIES.

TOKYO BROADCASTS, RECORDED BY THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, TOLD OF THE FLIGHT FROM THE CITIES AND QUOTED SADAO IGUCHI, SPOKESMAN OF THE JAPANESE BOARD OF INFORMATION, ON THE EXTENT OF CASUALTIES.

IGUCHI REPORTED PROPAGANDA LEAFLETS WERE DROPPED BY THE FIRE-SETTING B-29S. HE CALLED THE RAIDS AN EFFORT TO "TERRORIZE AND WEAKEN THE MORALE OF THE JAPANESE PEOPLE".

HE CLAIMED TOKYO AREAS BOMBED LAST SATURDAY BY 300 SUPERFORTS "WERE NOT EVENLY REMOTELY CONNECTED WITH WAR INDUSTRIES OR LOCATED NEAR MILITARY INSTALLATIONS," "THOUSANDS WERE BURNED TO DEATH, THOUSANDS WERE SEVERELY INJURED," HE SAID, AND "MANY THOUSANDS BOMBED OUT OF THEIR HOMES."

A DOMEI NEWS AGENCY DISPATCH INTERCEPTED BY FCC SAID ONLY A "MINIMUM NUMBER OF ESSENTIAL PERSONS" WOULD BE LEFT IN TOKYO, OSAKA, NAGOYA, YOKOHAMA AND KOBE. THEY HAD A COMBINED POPULATION OF 13,293,553 IN 1940. EVACUEES WILL BE PUT TO WORK IN THE COUNTRY PRODUCING FOOD.

ONE BROADCAST, BEAMED IN JAPANESE TO CONQUERED TERRITORY, SAID ALL JAPANESE ARE "COMBAT MEMBERS" AND THEY HAVE NOT "AS YET SUFFERED ENOUGH IN THIS WAR." THE REMARKS WERE ATTRIBUTED TO ADMIRAL EGUCHI. IDENTIFIED AS JAPANESE NAVAL AIR FORCE COMMANDER IN THE PHILIPPINES.

"FROM NOW ON WE CONSIDER ALL JAPANESE COMBAT MEMBERS," EGUCHI SAID, "AND IF THE ENEMY LANDS ON OUR MAINLAND, EVERY MAN AND WOMAN WILL TAKE UP ARMS AND DESPITE ANY SACRIFICE WHICH MUST BE MADE, THE ENEMY WILL BE ATTACKED AND REPULSED. X X X

"THIS ENEMY MUST BE KILLED BY USING ALL MEANS."

REPORTS FROM JAPAN TOLD OF TERROR, WHOLESALE DEATH AND MASS FLIGHTS FROM TOKYO, OSAKA AND NAGOYA PRECIPITATED BY SUPERFORTRESS RADES OF THE LAST SEVEN DAYS.

"INCENDIARIES AND BOMBS POURED LIKE RAIN ON THE PEOPLE'S HEADS," RADIO TOKYO SAID. DOMEI DESCRIBED DAMAGE AS "CONSIDERABLE" AND THE TOKYO NEWSPAPER ASAHI ADDED THAT THE NUMBER OF DEATHS "COULD NEVER BE CALLED SMALL".

THE TOKYO CORRESPONDENT OF THE SOVIET TASS AGENCY SAID THE CAPITAL WAS THROWN INTO PANIC BY LAST SATURDAY'S 300 PLANE RAID AND PEOPLE FLED THE CITY FOR SIX DAYS BY SPECIAL TRAIN, TRUCKS, RICKSHAS AND ON FOOT. HE SAID HOSPITALS WERE OVERCROWDED AND QUOTED ASAHI AS SAYING TRANSPORT FACILITIES WERE SO JAMMED THAT "SUFFERERS MUST WAIT TWO OR FOUR DAYS MORE" BEFORE THEY COULD GET OUT OF TOWN.

THE FUGITIVES WILL BE EMPLOYED ON JAPAN'S INTENSELY CULTIVATED FARMS IN AN EFFORT "TO ESTABLISH A SELF-SUFFICIENCY STRUCTURE."

ANOTHER DOMEI DISPATCH REPORTED NIPPON IS SUFFERING FROM SUCH A SERIOUS SALT SHORTAGE THAT "AUTHORITIES CONCERNED ARE DEMANDING THE GOVERNMENT TAKE DRASTIC MEASURES."

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 16-(AP)-)-UNITED STATES MARINE CASUALTIES ON IWO ISLAND NOW TOTAL 25,800, A JAPANESE IMPERIAL COMMUNIQUE CLAIMED TODAY WHILE ADMITTING NIPPONESE FORCES ON THE ISLAND HAVE BEEN REDUCED TO THOSE DEFENDING KITA VILLAGE AND THE HIGASHI MOUNTAIN SECTOR.

VICE ADMIRAL RICHMOND K.TURNER, U.S. COMMANDER OF FLEET AMPHIBIOUS FORCES, YESTERDAY ESTIMATED U.S. FATALITIES AT ONE-FIFTH THOSE OF THE JAPANESE, WHICH HAVE BEEN OFFICIALLY SET AS APPROXIMATELY 20,000. HE DID NOT GIVE A FIGURE FOR MARINE WOUNDED AND MISSING, HOWEVER.

THE COMMUNIQUE, RECORDED THE FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION, SAID THE MAJORITY OF JAPANES UNITS IN THE MOUNT TAMANA AREA "WAS BELIEVED TO HAVE MET DEATH I ACTION BY MARCH 12" AFTER INFLICTING HEAVY LOSSES ON THE YANKS.

THE DOMEI NEWS AGENCY BROADCAST ANOTHER UNCONFIRMED CLAIM THAT UNITS OF A JAPANESE ASSAULT CORPS SWAM WITH EXPLOSIVES OUT TO FIVE "ENEMY" SUBMARINE CHASERS ANCHORED IN THE SOUTHERN PALAUS, SINKING ONE AND DAMAGING THREE OTHERS.

THE LEADER OF ONE GROUP, DOMEI SAID, "SMASHED HIMSELF AND THE MINE"AGAINST THE SIDE OF ONE OF THE SHIPS, SINKING IT AND KILLING HIMSELF. THREE OTHER GROUPS RELEASED THEIR EXPLOSIVES NEAR THE SCREWS OF SHIPS ASSIGNED TO THEM, HEAVILY DAMAGING ONE AND MODERATELY DAMAGING THE OTHERS. THE FIFTH GROUP WAS TURNED BACK BY THE TIDE.

THE GROUPS WERE SAID TO BE FROM MAKARAKARU ISLAND, NORTH OF AMERICAN HELD PELELIU.

(SAN FRANCISCO, MARCH 16-(AP)-) EMPEROR HIROHITO OF JAPAN, FACING A WAR SITUATION SO SERIOUS "THE FATE OF THE EMPIRE IS AT STAKE", BROKE PRECEDENT TODAY (FRIDAY) BY EMPOWERING PREMIER KUNIAKI KOISO TO JOIN IN MEETINGS OF THE IMPERIAL GENERAL STAFF, DOMEI NEWS AGENCY SAID IN A TOKYO BROADCAST.

THE ENEMY RADIO REPORT, HEARD BY THE FCC, SAID THIS "FUSION OF THE ADMINISTRATION OF STRATEGY AND OF GOVERNMENTAL PROBLEMS OF WAR" WAS THE RESULT OF A DECISION MADE AFTER THE EMPEROR HAD CALLED KOISO AND HIS MILITARY CHIEFTAINS TO THE PALACE FOR INSTRUCTIONS.

NEVER BEFORE HAS THE HEAD OF NIPPON'S CIVIL GOVERNMENT BEEN PERMITTED TO PARTICIPATE WITH THE TOP MILITARY AND NAVAL LEADERS IN DELIBERATIONS ON EMPIRE MATTERS. THE IMPERIAL STAFF IS COMPOSED OF THE EMPEROR AS SUPREME COMMANDER AND CHIEFS OF THE ARMY AND NAVY GENERAL STAFFS.

THOUSANDS OF JAPANESE DIED OR WERE INJURED IN THE FIRES WHICH SWEPT THEIR HOMES IN RECENT HEAVY AMERICAN SUPERFORTRESS RAIDS ON JAPANESE CITIES, SAID SADAO IGUCHI, CHIEF SPOKESMAN FOR THE NIPPONESE BOARD OF INFORMATION, IN ANOTHER TOKYO BROADCAST.

ANOTHER DOMEI BROADCAST SAID THE GOVERNMENT WAS HASTENING THE EVACUATION OF MILLIONS OF NON-WAR WORKING CIVILIANS IN TOKYO, OSAKA, NAGOYA, YOKOHAMA AND KOBE.

IGUCHI, HIGHEST OF THE JAPANESE PROPAGANDA SPOKESMEN, SAID TOKYO AREAS HIT LAST SATURDAY IN THE 300-PLANE SUPERFORT ASSAULT WERE NOT "REMOTELY CONNECTED" WITH WAR INDUSTRIES OR NEAR MILITARY INSTALLATIONS.

ONE PURPOSE OF THE WIDE-SCALE INCENDIARY RAIDS, AMERICAN SOURCES HAVE SAID, WAS TO WIPE OUT THE THOUSANDS OF SMALL HOME FACTORIES WHICH TURN OUT GREAT QUANTITIES OF PIECES TO BE ASSEMBLED INTO JAPAN'S WAR MACHINES.

PREMIER KOISO IN A FORMAL STATEMENT CONCERNING THE EMPEROR'S ORDER FOR HIM TO JOIN IMPERIAL GENERAL STAFF MEETINGS SAID "THE EMPIRE IS AT THE CROSSROADS OF ITS DESTINY."

KOISO SAID HE WOULD "TRULY INTEGRATE THE GOVERNMENT WITH THE IMPERIAL HEADQUARTERS FOR THE FULFILMENT OF OUR RIGHTEOUS OBJECTIVE."

TWO U.S. COLUMNS THREATEN ENTIRE INDUSTRIAL AREA

Patton's Forces Smash Through Siegfried Line in 8-Mile Advance.

DRIVE TOWARD MAINZ

First Expands Remagen Bridgehead, Takes Several More Towns.

PARIS, Sunday, March 18.—(AP) Historic Coblenz—the biggest prize since Bonn—fell swiftly to the Third U. S. Army today as American armor and infantry plunged forward against German forces which appeared in collapse through all of the Palatinate.

As Coblenz toppled before the flying columns of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's army, the Seventh U. S. Army, operating on the southern end of the flaming Saar front, smashed into Siegfried Line defenses for gains of six to eight miles.

With the 45th and Third infantry divisions pacing this assault, the Seventh's momentum carried Americans through Hornbach, only 3 ½ miles south of Zweibruecken.

Drive to Encircle Saar

This placed the farthest elements of the Seventh army only about 55 miles by shortest overland routes from Third army forces in Rheinboeller and Ellern and created the threat of a great pincers move around all of the rich Saar industrial area and its defenders.

Meanwhile, fast traveling Third army tanks 30 miles to the south of Coblenz ripped 15 more miles across the rear lines of two fleeing German armies and were possibly only 21 miles from the great Rhine escape city of Mainz.

First Army troops, simultaneously, expanded the important Remagen-Erpel bridgehead east of the Rhine, seizing control of a 4 ½-mile stretch of the autobahn leading to the Ruhr and capturing several more towns.

Third Reaches Nahe River

Flying tank columns of the Third army's Fourth Armored division reached the Nahe river—last barrier before Mainz—with immense, ground-devouring strides that fast were cutting off all northward routes of escape out of the Saar and Palatinate. The Germans said the Nahe had been crossed.

As Supreme Allied headquarters reported these general successes on all fronts, rumors of armistice and peace ran riot through Allied Europe. There was absolutely no confirmation at Supreme headquarters that the Germans had asked for a cessation of hostilities.

Eyes were on Switzerland, where many felt negotiations might come.

Gen. Eisennower warned civilians in Frankfurt, Mannheim and Ludwigshafen, in the Third army's path, that these big Rhineland cities would be subjected to merciless bombardment and the Germans themselves reported major breakthroughs in the starkest terms ever used in the war.

The Eleventh Armored division, which joined in the destruction of the German force between the Rhine and Moselle rivers, passed through the 89th U. S. Infantry division lines in two columns. The first column plunged eight miles to the southeast during the day to capture Buechenbueren, 12 miles southwest of Simmern.

The other column raced seven miles southeast and captured Wuerrich, 9 1-2 miles west of Simmern.

The 90th infantry division surged forward three miles on a six-mile front and entered Boppard, seven miles south of Coblenz. Doughboys from the 90th also engulfed Bad Salzig, Molzfeld, Pfaffenbach and St. Goar, towns seven to 14 miles south of Coblenz.

The German First and Seventh armies were in road-choking flight under a deadly aerial lashing in this Rhine valley breakthrough. Forty to 50 miles farther south the U. S. Seventh army was cracking the Siegfried line in the Saar and the Palatinate.

The U. S. First army hacked out gains of a mile and broadened its bridgehead east of the Rhine to 14 miles, took a four and a half mile grip on the six-lane military highway and fought a mile beyond it to the edge of the great Ruhr plain.

Expand Bridgehead

Despite rising resistance, the First deepened its holdings to seven and a half miles, knocked out an eastern anchor at Strodt and the southern anchor of Hoenningen, capturing at least seven more German towns.

Enemy broadcasts said this was the southern jaw of a gigantic pincers on the war factories of the Ruhr, and that Allied armies farther north were bringing up bridging equipment behind a smoke screen to thrust the northern jaw across the Rhine.

U. S. Ninth army patrols were stabbing agressively across the Rhine on this latter front, and enemy raiding parties came back across the river, fishing for information.

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army stormed Coblenz, Rhineland city of 60,000, at 3 a.m. today, sending the 87th infantry division in assault boats across the Moselle river near its confluence with the Rhine after the garrison had ignored a surrender ultimatum.

Troops poured into the city from the north against light resistance. Other forces with tanks drove in from the south, and the end seemed near for this citadel. American headquarters after the last war for the watch on the Rhine.

Patton's Fourth Armored division ran wild southeastward along the Rhine against disorganized resistance and spilled out into the open plain deep in the enemy's rear, breaking clear through the Hunsrueck hills and the Soonwald.

Escape Road and Flank Mainz.

Paris, March 17 (A. P.).—American Third Army troops in amphibious assault seized two-thirds of Coblenz today while armored columns raced forty miles southeast of the Rhine city in a drive behind the Saarland triangle threatening entrapment of thousands of Germans. Coblenz, first entered in a night assault across the Moselle, was expected to be cleared completely tonight.

Two armored columns of the Third Army were driving southward toward a junction with the American Seventh Army and already had outflanked the northern escape gate at Mainz for the Germans.

Berlin said American tanks had crossed the Nahe River at Bad Kreuznach, twenty-one miles southwest of Mainz. A dispatch from Supreme Allied Headquarters said the Nahe probably had been reached, with Third Army vanguards about forty miles from joining the Seventh Army and sealing off the huge Moselle-Rhine triangle. Remnants of two German armies are fighting in the triangle.

To the north, the American First Army broadened its cross Rhine bridgehead to fourteen miles long and seven and a half deep, and seized or had under close-range direct fire a four-and-a-half-mile strip of the superhighway connecting Frankfurt and the Ruhr. Hoenningen, on the southern end of the bridgehead was cleared. Berlin said Koenigswinter on the northern end had been evacuated. The Germans were rushing up all available reserves—mostly remnants of divisions battered on the west side of the Rhine—against the bridgehead.

Nazis Rush Up Reserves

The Germans were rushing up all available reserves—mostly remnants of divisions battered on the west side of the Rhine—against the bridgehead.

A street battle raged in Coblenz this afternoon. Troops of the 87th Division in assault boats poured into the northern section at 3 A.M., meeting light resistance at the outset, and other forces which jumped the Moselle River south of the city moved up from the southwest.

The attack carried across the Moselle River near its confluence with the Rhine, Associated Press Correspondent Thoburn Wiant said.

10 To 15-Mile Gains

An Allied front dispatch said Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's armor thrust another 10 to 15 miles southeast of Simmern today.

Berlin said the breakthrough by concentrated United States tank forces had made "this sector of the Western front completely fluid."

"The German bunker front of Saarbruecken is now exposed," Berlin added. 7th Army troops are in the outskirts of Saarbruecken, at the southwestern corner of the triangle.

7th Army Gains

Seventh Army troops punched forward as much as 3 miles along their 50-mile front today.

The 3d Army tanks were meeting only light opposition, and German defenses were thrown into wild confusion by the dash flanking Mainz.

German 7th Army troops and vehicles fled toward the Rhine. The German 1st Army was falling back into the Siegfried Line, trying to hold its "front door" against the United States 7th Army while Patton's army already had burst in the back door.

TWO THIRDS OF CITY CAPTURED BY YANKS

Patton's Tanks Are Racing Behind 2 Nazi Armies in Saarland—Spearheads Cut

MAR 18 1945

American medium, light and fighter bombers plastered the German getaway towns of Neustadt, Kaiserslautern, Ettlingen and Ludwigshafen.

Bitche Captured

The American 7th Army had reached the Siegfried Line at points along its front, and had taken the Maginot fortress of Bitche.

A German broadcast late today said Patton was using 40 divisions, 15 of them armored, in his attack on the Saarland triangle.

The 3d Army captured seven towns, cleared eleven and entered another; security measures did not permit their identification immediately. Roads south were clogged with retreating Nazi vehicles and troops.

Nazis Admit Big Breach

The tank columns neared Bingen on the Rhine, and Berlin broadcasts admitted a "breach in major depth" west of the lower Vosges Mountains.

The American 1st Army in its expanding Rhine bridgehead deployed tanks on the superhighway connecting Frankfurt and the Ruhr, took four more towns.

Heeg, Reiffert, Bremscheid and Hohen were taken in the bridgehead, and some United States units were within 3 miles of open plains leading north of the Ruhr.

New Jabs On 9th's Front

Northward on the United States 9th Army front, where the Rhine guards great Ruhr war cities, Americans and Germans stepped up patrol thrusts over the river. Three Allied armies are arrayed along this area of the lower Rhine.

Patton's 4th Armored Division, racing south and southeast from its Moselle River crossing southwest of Coblenz, was undercutting the whole triangle formed by the Moselle and Rhine.

Armored columns had gone beyond Simmern and one farther east entered Rheinbollen and Ellern, near the Rhine, 24 miles from Coblenz. Patton's men there were 9½ miles from Bingen and 27 from Mainz.

Nazi Vehicles Jam Roads

Airmen reported that roads through Kaiserslautern in the middle of the triangle were jammed with German vehicles trying to escape over the Rhine at Mainz and Mannheim.

Other 3d Army divisions fought in from the west at one side of the triangle, and took Hermeskeil, 36 miles southwest of Simmern.

The broken German 7th Army was moving back so fast that Patton's 4th Armored Division found some bridges intact.

50 Towns Taken East Of Rhine

Americans who swept over the Rhine at Remagen had taken 50 towns and villages east of the river, cut the Ruhr superhighway at two points, and repulsed the first large Nazi armored-supported counterattack.

Thrusting eastward, other units reached the west bank of the Wied River, 7 miles from Remagen. A front dispatch said the Germans were hurriedly massing strength, apparently for a major blow at the bridgehead. First Army troops took 1,126 prisoners yesterday.

First Army troops are meeting stiff resistance near Vettelschoss, 7 miles east of Remagen, supreme headquarters announced.

German broadcasts declared again that the new United States 15th Army had been thrown into action in the bridgehead, aiming at a breakthrough on the Ruhr-Frankfurt superhighway, but insisted that the thrusts had been halted, except for gains "to the north and east on a broad front."

Nazis Lose Drachen Fels

Berlin admitted loss of the Drachen Fels (Dragon's Rock), a 1,055-foot peak south of Koenigswinter, and other heights dominating the Rhine's eastern bank.

One Nazi war reporter said the United States 15th Army "tried to finish the first phase of the battle with a breakthrough at the Autobahn (superhighway) in order to transform the narrow bridgehead into a vast operational area. The American war machine, deploying air forces and artillery in very great strength, pushed forward against the German positions, but could not crush the elastic German defense ring," he said.

Germans Using Reserves

Volkssturm battalions and all other available reserves have been thrown against the 3d Army's forced march to the south, Berlin said. The broadcasts reported especially heavy fighting against 3d Army units driving in against the Moselle-Rhine triangle from the west.

German artillery was plastering the doughboys who fought up to the western outskirts of Saarbruecken, 23 miles west of fallen Bitche.

commanding a regiment that stormed the citadel said.

Cross Moselle By Boat

The 87th Division surged by assault boat across the Moselle into the city that served as headquarters of the American Army of Occupation after World War I.

Only about 2,000 civilians so far have been discovered in the city, which once had 58,000 population, but now lies in ruins due to aerial attacks.

Coblenz probably will be completely cleared late tonight, the colonel said.

Entered At 3 A. M.

Troops began pouring into the northern section in darkness at 3 A.M. against light resistance. Other troops which jumped the river south of the city moved up from the southwest.

The attack on the ancient citadel opened only ten days after the 4th Armored Division of the United States 3d Army made its sensational spurt to the Rhine north of Coblenz.

Yanks' Hold On Germany In Last War Surpassed

With American Troops in Germany, March 17 (AP)—The United States 3d Army alone now controls more German territory than American forces ever occupied in 1918-19.

This fact emphasizes the magnitude of the job taken on by military government detachments moving into town after town and district after district as they are cleared by the advancing Yanks.

The 3d Army's area of operations inside Germany roughly corresponds with the area into which the Americans marched after the 1918 armistice—that is, it did until Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's armored columns broke loose east of the Moselle river. Now, nobody knows how large the area is likely to be next week.

It was the newly created 3d Army which began moving into the Rhineland in 1918 under the terms of the November armistice, ready to resume hostilities should the Germans change their minds.

The towns they occupied without resistance then have the same names as towns lately stormed by the modern 3d Army—Bitburg, Daun, Pruem, Wittlich, Saarburg, Mayen, Andernach and Coblenz.

GI's ENVY FOE MANY WEAPONS

King Tiger Tank, 88-Mm. Gun, Bazookas, All Held Better

With U.S. 9th Army, March 17 (AP)—The American soldier on the Western front believes that the Germans have many weapons besides tanks which are superior to his own.

Next to the King Tiger tank in performance comes the German 88-mm. gun, which is one of the best in the war. In adition the Germans have excellent bazookas, automatic mortars, mines, booby traps and faster shooting machine guns. They also have formidable jet airplanes, buzz-bombs and rocket weapons.

One erason for this is that the Germans prepared for this war many years before the American factories were geared to war production. German armor was wrecking Europe when the United States decided to produce one modern tank.

"Here Comes An .88"

The German 88-mm. gun has such a reputation among the Yanks now that when the Nazis fire anything above a rifle the Americans call out "here comes an 88."

This long-barreled, all-purpose artillery weapon with a flash guard on its graceful muzzle is on practically all German tanks. It also hurls flak in blankets at our high-flying bombers, wheels in for direct fire as a self-propelled gun and can be dug in behind the lines for use as regular artillery.

In the Wesel pocket a week ago the Germans held two bridges over the Rhine in the face of hard-driving infantry and tank attacks by flattening out their dual purpose anti-aircraft 88's and pummeling the American infantry positions and knocking out two columns of tanks.

Early Sherman tanks came overseas equipped with a 75-millimeter gun and later with a 76. American tank crews watched their shots bounce off the Tiger tanks while our Shermans might be wrecked by one direct hit from an 88.

German Bazooka Bigger

The German bazooka is bigger and shoots a heavier charge than the American.

Sergt. James J. Spurrier, Congressional Medal of Honor winner from Baluefield, W.Va., and Riggs, Ky., will testify to the job it can do.

The 35th Division sergeant had 14 Germans in a basement at Aachen and knew that the only way to get them out was scare them from a distance. Spurrier shot three different American bazookas at the walls of the house, but failed to dent them. One of his buddies came running up with a German bazooka and suggested he try it.

Spurrier's first shot with the Nazi weapon knocked a big hole in the wall and the Germans came running out.

The German automatic mortar is a complicated machine.

How Mortar Works

Lieut. Pat Lynch, of the 102d Division, whose father used to be a prize-fight judge in New York city, helped capture one which cost a lot of American casualties before its operation was silenced.

"It was in the upper story of a house," Lynch related. "The man who fired it sat on a regular bicycle seat and operated levers to control its aim and speed. Shells came in from another room on a conveyor belt and the machine could fire 120 shots a minute. It didn't heat up, either, because mortar shells don't heat up barrels the way other fire does.

"That joker sat up there like he was running a steam shovel in a vacant lot off Times Square. It cost a lot of men to get him out of there, too."

Machine Gun Better

Many American automatic weapons men feel that their machine gun is superior to the Germans although the enemy model fires twice as fast, is water cooled, has an automatic search device and the gunner can change barrels faster when necessary.

One reason advanced for the superiority of German mines and booby traps is that, except for the Ardennes breakthrough, the Americans have been fighting an offensive war and have not had to concentrate on defensive methods.

It is pretty well established here that the German jet plane can run away from anything we have in combat in the skies. There is not time enough left, however, for the Germans to produce them in effective quantity and another factor is that the jets cannot fly in formation. But some of those they do have are now dropping small bombs in attacks upon the front.

87th Division Clears Most Of Coblenz

Coblenz, March 17 (AP)—The United States 87th Division entered Coblenz early today by amphibious assault, and by tonight had cleared nearly two thirds of the once great city at the juncture of the Rhine and Moselle rivers.

About 500 prisoners have been taken in the city, which ignored a call to surrender [illegible] ast by a American tank yes [illegible] a colon

Order Returning In Cologne

Cologne, March 17 (AP)—Some degree of order was emerging today from the chaos of Cologne a week after the Allied Military Government took over the biggest assignment it has yet been handed.

Electricity has been restored in one section of the city and some telephones are in use again. The beginnigs of a city administration have been established.

A central office is providing orderly distribution of food. The water supply is expected to be in good condition in a few days.

Industries Big Problem

But a survey of Cologne's bomb-battered industries by the AMG economics officer, Major Robert T. Davis, of Kennebunk, Maine, discloses a big task lies ahead.

With the exception of the Ford plant and one rayon factory virtually all of Cologne's industrial buildings have been leveled. Even the famous Eau De Cologne factory has been flattened.

German Ration Cards Used

The labor office, under Capt. Earle K. Pottle, St. Paul, Minn., has been able to supply sufficient German labor to start restoration of life in the city.

The food office, in charge of Capt. Elisha C. Abrams, of Newberry, S.C., is operating for the time being with old German ration cards.

Lieut. Col. John K. Patterson, of Riverside, Cal., Cologne's military governor, is constructing his civilian government with the utmost care to eliminate the possibility of Nazi influences. Patterson is ruling out everyone who ever has been a member of the Nazi party, including those who claim to have joined under pressure.

Typhus Epidemic Averted

No formal health department has been inaugurated but Lieut. Col. Oswald F. Hedley, of Newtonville, Mass., virtually has such a department working through cooperation of German physicians.

Hedley did yeoman service in preventing a typhus epidemic by isolating those affected.

U.S. Flyers Using Bases In Germany

A United States 9th Air Force Field in Germany, March 17 (AP)—American airmen now are attacking Germany from American-built bases on German soil.

German territory east of the Rhine is just a short jump now to the swarms of fighters and fighter-bombers which ceaselessly are blasting German installations a few yards to a few miles ahead of the ground troops.

Getting the ground end of their operations anchored on German soil was an historic event for American airmen and there was a short breezy ceremony on this damp, chilly field.

Only Few Present

Aside from airforce personnel, the only witnesses were a few correspondents, two girls of a Red Cross clubmobile and a half-dozen German civilians who leaned on shovels. The Germans, paid and reasonably contented employés of the Americans, now are filling in trenches they dug for the Nazis.

This is a cheerless, primitive spot but it has everything essential for conducting intensive air attacks. Officers from the rank of major general on down surveyed the expanse of fresh earth and the near-by mile-long runway as if it were the perfect answer to their dreams. The field was put into use the instant aviation engineers said it was ready.

A squadron of fighter-bombers which had taken off from a French field for an operation east of the Rhine settled down in its new home in Germany.

Can Make More Missions

It was estimated that the squadron could make twelve missions on a good day now compared with

Yank Smothers Grenade To Save 4; Gets C.M.H.

With the 3d Infantry Division, March 17 (AP)—At a cost of permanent injury to himself, Corporal Robert D. Maxwell, of Cottage Grove, Ore., smothered a German grenade, saved four other soldiers and won the Congressional Medal of Honor.

Early in September, 1944, near Besancon, France, Maxwell and four other 7th Regiment infantrymen, armed only with pistols, were attacked at a battalion command post by 30 or 40 Germans, supported by 20-mm. cannon and machine guns.

Inspired Fellow-Soldiers

The enemy had infiltrated through the battalion's forward command post to within ten yards at times, but the corporal and his tiny garrison fought off the thrust. In the words of the citation, Maxwell "by his calmness, tenacity and fortitude inspired his fellow-soldiers to continue the unequal struggle."

When the enemy grenade landed in the midst of his squad, Corporal Maxwell unhesitatingly threw himself on it, using a blanket and his body to absorb the full force of the explosion. He not only saved his companions, but made possible the maintenance of vital military communications during a temporary withdrawal of battalion headquarters.

Maxwell was evacuated to the United States a month ago.

nine previously.

Construction of this field started a little more than a month ago. One corner had been a German municipal airport which was useless for large scale American operations. The rubble of a German village was in another corner. In between were fields and a trench system. Bricks from the village were used to fill in the craters and trenches.

The fighter squadron using this field is accustomed to fast moves to keep up with the ground forces. It has moved ten times in eight months, three times since Christmas.

German Civilians Clog Hitler Road

Advance Headquarters, United States Ninth Air Force, March 16 (Delayed) (A. P.).—American flyers observed a mass of German civilians in confused flight eastward today on the Hitler superhighway east of Cologne.

"There were long lines of men, women and children, all pulling, pushing or carrying something and all moving eastward," said Lieut. John H. Rogers, Shepardstown, W. Va.

Baltimorean 5th Across Rhine, The Latest Ratings Indicate

H. Cowan

On the Remagen Bridgehead, March 17 (AP)—Ever since the United States 1st Army crossed the Rhine ten days ago there have been mighty and heated arguments about who did what first.

There were conflicting claims as to who was the first doughboy, the first engineer, the first anti-aircraft gunner and the first ambulance driver to cross.

Now the dust of battle is beginning to clear. At last it is more or less official just who these Remagen pioneers were.

First Across—Drabik

First across the bridge was Sergt. Alexander Drabik, of Holland, Ohio. He was the assistant leader of a detail, and it would have been natural for his boss, Sergt. Joseph Petrecsik, of Berea, Ohio, to be in the lead.

But the day before the 9th Armored Division pulled up at the Rhine, Petrecsik slipped and sprained an ankle. The injury was not enough to put him out of action, but he was unable to keep up with Drabik in the historic sprint across the undestroyed bridge. So Petrecsik came in among the also-rans.

The second man across the bridge was Pfc. Marion Jensen, of Stanton, Minn., and in this order followed Sergt. Anthony Samele, of the Bronx, N.Y.; Sergt. Michael Chinchar, of Rochelle Park, N.J.; Private Artis Massie, of 2643 Aisquith street, Baltimore, Md., and Sergt. Joseph Delisio, of the Bronx, N.Y.

Others In Group

It is still not certain in what order the others finished, but in the first group across these others included Private Martin Read, of Sedalia, Mo.; Private Joseph K. Peoples, of Warrenton, N.C.; Pfc. Donald Ward, of Cleveland, Ohio; Sergt. Charles D. Kreps, of Rougeville, Pa., and Private Carl Parnell, of Greenville, Mo.

These led the Remagen dash. All were in the platoon of Lieut. Karl Timmerman, West Point, Neb., who was the first officer across.

Germans Shelling Coblenz

Coblenz, Germany, March 17 (AP)—The United States 3d Army returned in triumph today, to this ruined city where 22 years ago in another generation it stood watch on the Rhine.

Only some Germans holding out in the northeastern section near the river contested Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton's control of this city of normally 60,000 population, which from 1918 until January 24, 1923 was headquarters for the 3d Army's occupation forces.

Tanks rumbled through the ancient streets. The southern, western and northwestern quarters of the city were firmly in American hands.

The siege lines had been drawn up outside Coblenz, and late yesterday, a medium tank clanked up to the Moselle River armed with a loudspeaker that called on the city to surrender. There was no answer.

Resistance Light

In the darkness of 3 A.M., infantrymen of the 87th Division pushed off across the Moselle River in assault boats.

If the Germans knew the American were coming back after all these years, they gave little hint of it, for resistance was light and soon doughboys were pouring in from the northwest.

Simultaneously, tanks and troops that had crossed the Moselle earlier south of the city, swung in to the attack.

At first the Germans met the attack only with small arms and mortar fire, but then the Germans across the Rhine began shelling the city.

Across the Rhine there is the frowning fortress of Ehrenbreitstein, and some of the fire may have been coming from there.

500 Soon Rounded Up

Before long 500 prisoners had been rounded up, many of them complaining that the Nazi Elite, the SS, had sacrificed them by destroying the Rhine bridges. Others declared they had been given no artillery support.

Capt. William Bowen, of Omaha, Neb., military government officer, declared the Germans in the southeastern edge of Coblenz had coldbloodly machine gunned 70 Germans as the Americans were evacuating them.

"The civilians, mostly women and children, had hidden in a cave during the fighting," Bowen said. "We were trying to remove them to a safer place away from the river when the Germans opened up. Six civilians were killed and four were wounded. It's a miracle more weren't hit."

Civilians Rage At Soldiers

Bowen said German civilians at Guels, where the incident occurred, were so angry that they spat at prisoners brought back across the Moselle in assault boats.

Major James Wilson, of Orangeburg, S.C., said the prisoners were "a conglomeration of nearly everything. As a matter of fact, they represented 15 to 20 different outfits."

Civilians included several who claimed to be American citizens. One was Anna Klier, of Cleveland, Ohio, who said she had been living in this area since 1929. She said she wanted to return to Cleveland years ago but did not have the money.

Among those directing artillery fire preceding the Coblenz attack were Captains G. N. di Mascio, of Philadelphia, and Raymond J. Dionne, of Grande Isle, Maine.

Ceased Fire At Noon

They said they ceased firing into the city proper at noon, allowing infantry commanded by Brig. Gen. Frank L. Culin, Jr., Tucson, Ariz., to clean up the city unhampered. Dionne said he was a tenth cousin of the famous quintuplets.

"We couldn't damage the city much because our bombers had done such a thorough job," di Mascio said, "but we figured we worked over the Germans considerably."

The Moselle crossing from Guels into Coblenz was one of the smoothest on record.

Outboard motor-powered assault boats shuttled back and forth near the destroyed Moselle bridge. Among the nonchalant operators were Sergeants Walter Wieczorek, of Johnstown, Pa.; James Crosson, of Pittsburgh; Fred Price, of Blacksburg, Va., and Private Edward Hruska, of Homestead, Pa.

YANK GETS 3 TANKS WITHIN 3 MINUTES

H. Cowan

ACROSS THE RHINE, March 17 (AP)—An Illinois farmer who stood in his tank destroyer as it charged up a mountain and fired all the way was credited today with having finished off three German Panther tanks in less than three minutes.

"We were covering the infantry in an attack on the edge of the little town of Oberert," said quick-thinking Sgt. Sam Craddock of Route 2, Benton, Ill.

Sergeant Craddock had changed position with Gunner Crpl. George Marks of Brooklyn.

The Sergeant saw one of the monster German tanks almost immediately, about fifty yards ahead on the misty hill. Pfc. William Lautenberger of Westerleigh, Staten Island, N. Y., fired a round, and then Sergeant Craddock fired without rechecking his sights.

"It missed the tank I was aiming at, but hit another one I'd never seen," he related.

He ducked into his turret to take aim again and found his sights blurred in the cold mist and rain. Again he fired blind at point-blank range. The first shot missed but the second ricocheted off the ground and into the belly of the enemy tank. The third tank, which was machine-gunning American infantry concentrations, started to lumber away. Three shots got it, the third with another ricochet.

Fifteen Germans died in the blazing behemoths.

REDS TAKE TOWN OF BRANDENBURG

Also Knife Into Stettin Defenses With Aid Of 1,000 Guns

Hoffschire

London, Sunday, March 18 (AP)—Russian forces, backed by fire from 1,000 heavy guns and hundreds of dive bombers, yesterday knifed 3 miles into the southern defenses of Stettin, while Soviet troops in East Prussia captured t hekey coastal stronghold of Brandenburg, 9 miles southwest of Koenigsberg.

While the Germans threw wounded soldiers into the battle for the notrthern anchor of Berlin's Oder River defense line, Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's 1st White Russian Army troops extended their control of the river's east bank barrier to a point 4½ miles south of the Pomeranian capital.

Reports 20,000 Killed

A Moscow radio front report announced that the Red Army had killed more than 20,000 Germans and destroyed more than 600 tanks in repelling German counterattacks in a thirteen-day battle near Lake Balaton, southwest of Budapest, capital of Hungary.

In the Balaton sector, Berlin reported that the Russians had opened an offensive of their own, and the Moscow radio said that with the collapse of German attacks, Soviet forces "now threaten southern Germany with the added danger of a linkup between the Red Army and Allied forces in Italy."

Smashing toward Stettin from the south, Zhukov's troops captured the Oder River villages of Frauenhof, 4½ miles from the city, Retzowsfelde and Ferdinandstein. Their capture extended the Russian control along the eastern channel of the Oder to 6½ miles north of Griefenhagen.

Narrows Bridgehead

The advances narrowed the Nazi bridgehead across the Oder's mouth southeast of Stettin, and the Germans slowly were being squeezed out of their positions in the Kluetzer forest between Frauenhof and suburban Altdamm, 6 miles to the northeast.

Berlin said the Russians had broken through the Nazi line to Altdamm. Moscow did not confirm the report.

Other Soviet elements were driving on Altdamm from the north, however, and reached the east shore of the wide Dammscher See at Bergland and Wilhelmsfelde, 6 miles northeast of Stettin and 5 above Altdamm.

Moscow announced that Zhukov's troops had captured another 2,000 prisoners in the tSettin area, including the commander of the 402d German Infantry Division, Lieutenant General Schleinitz.

Other East Prussia Gains

In East Prussia, the 3d White Russian Army won the fortified stronghold of Brandenburg on the east bank of the Frisching River and to the southwest advanced up to 2 miles toward the coast and the town of Heiligenbeil, one of the last two big towns in German hands.

Advancing toward the already-cut Brandenburg Heiligenbeil coastal highway, the Russians seized Warnikam, less than a mile from the road, and surged toward Heiligenbeil from the southeast, capturing Bilshoefen, 5 miles from the bastion. In all, the Russians took ten East Prussian places and more than 700 prisoners.

Apparently in conjunction with an offensive, not confirmed by Moscow, toward Moravska-Ostrava, Czechoslovak industrial city guarding the Moravian gap, Soviet heavy bombers lashed the city and set big fires, Moscow announced.

main highway bridge across the Oder's eastern arm, the Reglitz, and the Oder itself, from Griefhagen toward the Stettin-Berlin Autobahn, was unofficially reported demolished before the Russians occupied the town.

Meanwhile, the 3d White Russian Army group pressed closer to Braunsberg in East Prussia and reached the outskirts of the port of Brandenburg, already cut off from Koenigsberg.

Lull In Crucial Sector

An uneasy lull was reported from the most crucial of all sectors of the Eastern front—the 25-mile stretch of the middle Oder, due east of Berlin—where both German and Russian troops continued to mass for an impending climactic battle.

Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's 2d White Russian Army again today sustained the powerful drive aimed at splitting the Danzig-Gdynia coastal strip against the most stubborn opposition yet encountered in eastern Pomerania and the Polish corridor.

In an arc across the wooded hills about 6 miles west and northwest of Danzig, German guns in great numbers laid down a thick curtain of defensive fire.

Red Drive In Hungary

Reuter reported that Marshal Fedor Tolbukhin, after stemming the great German twelve-day coun-

Reds Gain Against Reduced Bridgehead At Stettin

Moscow, March 17 (AP)—Tanks and infantry of the 1st White Russian Army thrust forward again today against the reduced enemy bridgehead at Stettin from within 4½ miles of that northern gateway to Berlin.

Simultaneously, the Russians were reported bringing up pontoon equipment along a 3-mile stretch of the Oder River in the vicinity of captured Griefhagen, less than 11 miles south of Stettin.

The heaviest pressure was exerted against the southern flank of the Nazi bridgehead, which extends along the east bank of the Oder for about 11 miles south from Stettin's eastern suburb of Altdamm, on the edge of Dammscher See.

Nazi Bridgehead Shallow

The remaining Nazi bridgehead east of the river is only 1 to 2 miles deep at some points. Its seizure would be a tactical preparation for the Berlin offensive.

Fall of Griefhagen put Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's troops into another good jumping-off spot for spanning the Oder. However, the teroffensive, had today gone over to the offensive on a broad front between Lake Balaton and the Danube, according to Berlin.

Col. Ernst von Hammer, German DNB news agency correspondent, reporting the attack, claimed that one wedge directed against Szekesfehervar had petered out under German defensive fire, while a Soviet penetration farther north had been sealed off.

The individual battles with the isolated German pockets in fortresses scattered along the Eastern front, including Kolberg in Pomerania and Glogau and Breslau, in Silesia, continued unabated in fierce house-to-house fighting.

'FLEE,' ADVICE OF EISENHOWER

Seek Safety, German Civilians And Foreign Workers Told

London, March 17 (AP)—General Eisenhower broadcast a warning tonight to German civilians and foreign workers in the Frankfurt-on-Main and Mannheim-Ludwigshafen areas to flee to safer places because these sectors would be subjected to merciless bombardment.

The warnings, broadcast by the BBC's European service on order of the supreme Allied commander, said:

"From now on no shelter or refuge can be considered safe."

Out To Destroy War Machine

Put out in German, French, Dutch, Czech, Polish and Flemish, the message said the Allied armies were determined to destroy the German war machine but wanted to spare the German civilian population and foreign workers.

"You lie in one of the key areas of German war industry," the broadcast said. "For years your factories and workshops, your railways, roads and waterways have been supplying the weapons of conquest. Now they merely delay the final military collapse.

"Therefore, to prevent the further prolongation of a lost war, the whole armament industry of the areas of Frankfurt-on-Main and Mannheim-Ludwigshafen will be subjected to merciless bombardment."

Message To Foreign Workers

Turning to foreign workers, the broadcast added:

"The supreme commander up to now has advised you, along with all other foreign workers in western Germany, not to permit yourself to be evacuated, but to find a safe refuge in the vicinity of your work and there to await the Allied armies.

"He now issues a special instruction which applies exclusively to those of you in the Frankfurt-on-Main and Mannheim-Ludwigshafen areas."

In today's warning, the foreign workers were told that these areas would become death traps and that they should leave their places of work and take refuge in the safest place they could find in the adjacent countryside, there to stay until the battle passed.

". . . Live for your family and country, refuse to die working for Germany," the foreign workers were told.

The message—first of a series to be broadcast during the next nine days—also was put out in briefer form in other languages.

SPRING DRIVE ON, FOE SAYS

Reds Say "Stupendous," Concerted Blow Will Fall

London, March 17 (AP)—The Germans said tonight the first phase of the Allied spring offensive had begun with massive American attacks in the west and Moscow broadcast a report the Nazis were turning an area in south Germany into a "small but superstrong" defense region for their last stand.

At the same time, a Russian military commentator declared that high commands of the Red Army and the western Allies had agreed on a co-ordinated win-the-war strategy which soon would result in a "simultaneous blow of stupendous force which will effect the juncture of our armies somewhere in central Germany."

"They Will Not Break Us"

The German radio, beaming abroad an article that will appear in tomorrow's papers, said that the war was "about to enter its decisive phase" on both the Eastern and Western fronts.

It said the Allied spring push began with the heavy American attack between Coblenz and Hague-nau, and that troops were concentrating on the Rhine north of Coblenz and Bonn for other drives.

But Robert Ley, Nazi labor chieftain who has been touring the Rhine front, said any decisions there would not decide the Germans' fate. He asserted in a broadcast message:

"I repeat what I said earlier in Berlin—we fight in front of the Rhine, on the Rhine and behind the Rhine. Our enemies have not broken us, and they will not break us."

New Tactic—Concerted Blows

Colonel Kolomeitsev, a Russian commentator, wrote in an article later broadcast that "operational contact had been established between the Allies and is becoming closer." He added:

"Allied blows at Germany are becoming ever more effective and everything seems to point to a strictly elaborated and timed plan of co-ordination between the Allied fronts now about 300 miles apart.

"The old tactics of successive blows—now at one front, now at another—have given way to a tactic of concerted blows on both fronts and I believe that in the future co-ordinated Allied fronts will take the form of simultaneous concentric blows increasing in strength and scope."

Bavaria, Austria Chosen

The Allies long have figured that the Nazi leaders intend to stage their last battle in the mountainous southland. A Moscow broadcast said Bavaria and Austria had been chosen definitely and that large quantities of weapons and food already had been moved in. Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and General Alfred Jodl were reported to have inspected the setup.

A field dispatch from the Western front said yesterday that it was believed the Nazis were going to use the vast salt mines in the Salzburg area as part of their defense plan. The dispatch pointed out that the tremendous borings were large enough to hold airplanes and big quantities of supplies.

The Berlin radio, talking about how the capital had been prepared to meet the oncoming Russians, said defense sectors radiated fanwise from the city and that battle-seasoned officers had been put in command.

Berlin's Defenses

"The sectors are studded with extensive defense positions which make use of natural obstacles such as belts of lakes, chains of hills and canals," the broadcast declared.

"On the more exposed flanks the defense will rest on artificial installations such as tank blocks, anti-tank ditches, strong points and fox-holes. Using the technique for plotting the approach of enemy aircraft, an 'Achtung' (attention) tank ring will warn against the approach of any spearheads.

"As the outskirts of the city are approached, the defense becomes more and more closely knit and correspondingly more powerful. Armored waves of the attackers will be directed into tank-busting alleys. Communications in the capital permit the mobile deployment of husbanded reserves and the formation of surprise strong-points."

Dane Reports On Stettin

Meanwhile, the multiple burdens of a besieged nation were reflected in various reports.

A Dane arriving in Sweden from Stettin said the assaulted Baltic city faced a "catastrophic shortage" of weapons and that one third of the population had been evacuated, while the remainder stayed to defend the city in Volkssturm units.

The informant was quoted as saying the Germans had hoped to hold out against the Russians for a month there, but "the prospects are small." Plans of the city's defense were reported disclosed to the Soviets by a retired general who deserted to the Russians.

Mobile courts-martial have executed 1,000 men and officers of the German Army for desertion and other military offenses, the German home radio said in a broadcast. These courts have been set up at key centers to try military personnel suspected of leaving their units.

Arm Bands For Mourning

A shortage of material brought a decree that arm bands will be the only token of mourning henceforth. Women must do without black stockings and men without black ties, "even in the case of the death of closest relatives," one enemy broadcast said.
